Help is available

City workers help the farmers

It was back to the farm this week for some Wayne merchants and employees. Working through a program offered by the Wayne Chamber of Commerce, employees and employees of certain Wayne businesses were disking and feeding cattle this week. Because farmers are running behind schedule due to a wet spring, the chamber is offering free labor to any area farmers who are willing to call the office at 375-2240. The program is scheduled to last another week.

farmers took advantage of the farmers assistance program in its first three days. More are scheduled to receive help this week. Many of the volunteers are experienced in farm work and are willing to drive tractors, fill planters with seed, do chores, go after gas, parts or supplies, run errands or do other general work that needs to be done. Help for farmers is available on a first come-first served basis by calling the chamber office. Farmers should leave directions to their farms. Volunteers will work up to 12 hours a day at no cost to the County voter turnout below 50 percent

Between 45 and 50 percent of the registered voters in Wayne County turned out to vote in last Tuesday's primary election, according to County Clerk Orgetta Morris. Mrs. Morris said no races were close enough to require recounts. Any recounts that would be held now would be at the expense of the candidate requesting the recount, she said. Winners in the Wayne City Council First Ward race are Stanley Hansen and Kent Hall. Those two candidates will advance to November's general election where they will compete for the one seat. The six candidates who will advance to the general election ballot for the Winside Board of Education are Gene Jorgensen, Bill Burris, Dean Mann, Robert Wacker, Dale Topp and Richard Jenkins. Incumbent state senator Merle Von Minden won the District 17 race against Jerry Conway in last Tuesday's election. The candidates will face each other again in the general election.

Tootsie Roll drive will aid handicapped

A Tootsie Roll drive to raise funds for the mentally handicapped is being planned by the Knights of Columbus council in Wayne. A fund raising drive will be held Thursday, according to Maynard Warner, grand knight. The Nebraska Knights will hold their annual statewide drive that day. Tootsie Rolls will be given in exchange for donations to aid the mentally handicapped. All funds from the drive will be spent on the needs of the mentally retarded in this area and in the state. More than $600,000 has been raised by the Nebraska Knights of Columbus in the past. The local Father Kearns Council has selected Jerry Sperry and John Witkowski as chairmen of the area drive.

Agriculture task force makes recommendations

A task force studying agricultural finance and rural development has presented a report to Gov. Kerrey with recommendations to help ailing farmers. Recommendations in the report are broken down into four categories: tax code reform, rural development, agricultural finance, and government spending patterns. The report, which was presented to Kerrey last week, underscores the correlation between high interest rates, low commodity prices, governmental spending policies, federal farm programs, federal tax policies and the declining number of farms. BECAUSE THE task force presented some recommendations to the governor before the report was completed, Kerrey already look action on some of their recommendations. Those include:

- Successfully requesting that the Legislature appropriate $100,000 to provide farm financial management training, assistance to farmers suffering severe financial stress.
- Asking Agriculture Secretary John Block to provide $200,000 to supplement the state funds for farm financial management training and assistance for Nebraska farmers.
- Calling upon member governors of the National Governors' Association's agriculture committee to join him in asking federal lending and regulatory institutions to show forbearance toward as many ag borrowers as possible.
- Alerting Nebraska farmers of the USDA announcement that federal crop insurance will be the only disaster program for 1984.
- IN THE AREA of tax code reform, the task force recommended that: tax codes should be developed to collect revenue rather than to change investor behavior;

- tax policy should involve a gradual limitation of the use of cash basis accounting; tax policy should limit the ability of nonfarm investors to offset income against farm losses; tax collection procedures should be simplified; depreciation on agricultural buildings should be brought in line with the useful life of the building; tax policies should tie investment credit to farm earnings.
- In its report on rural development, the task force said that programs should be established using existing or newly created local entities to:
 - Educate the citizens of communities on the concept of the value of the community.
 - Assist local businesses, organizations and institutions in evaluating activities in the community which are inconsistent with the policy.
 - Assist private groups in exerting pressure on the legislative branches of government at - the state and federal levels to implement policies which strengthen the community.

- TASK FORCE recommendations for state government include:
 - Participation in wheat and feed grain programs that assure effective supply control should be encouraged.
 - The formation of a state association with representation from each of the commodity groups, each of the farm organizations and agricultural government agencies should be encouraged.
 - A farm financial management education and consultation program should be initiated immediately.
 - A Nebraska Agricultural Research & Product Development Commission should be established to serve in an advisory and coordinating role in order to expand agricultural research and product development.
 - The potential for a state-level export

- finance program should be appraised.
- Training programs to assist farmers who are forced out of farming as an occupation should be developed.
- AT THE FEDERAL government level, the task force made these recommendations:
 - The federal administration and Congress should deal in a forthright manner to significantly reduce the national deficit.
 - The U.S. secretary of agriculture should make full use of the discretionary powers he currently has to promote exports.
 - The national government should develop and promote a reputation for the United States being a dependable and competitive supplier of quality farm products.
 - A long-term farm policy that will return agriculture to a lasting, profitable position and will provide an adequate supply of food for domestic consumers and export should - be developed.

- Congress and the USDA should fine-tune and further develop the current farm program.
- A federal farm board to develop long-term agricultural policy should be promoted.
- THE TASK FORCE was a cross-section of Nebraskans, composed of agricultural leaders, farmers, economists, agribusiness leaders and consultants and rural community representatives.
- The group recognized that farmers, ranchers and agribusiness people and under considerable stress from many factors that are not under their director control or easily changed.
- However, governmental spending policies, tax codes and farm programs have had a significant impact on changing the structure of agriculture and rural communities, the report said.

Somehow I just knew that Friday was going to be one of those days—a day when nothing seems to go right and everything seems to go wrong.

I guess my first omen came Thursday night when The Wayne Herald garage door derailed and whacked me on the head and neck as I tried to close it from the inside.

No problem. I often drop garage doors on my head just for pure enjoyment. The goose egg on my thick skull and the aches in my neck kept reminding me to beware of other things that would happen.

You should have seen the looks people gave me when I explained that I had been mugged by a garage door. Sure!

One of the worst catastrophes that can occur at a newspaper plant stems from a faulty camera or improperly exposed film.

Friday we suffered a catastrophe that makes a reporter's blood boil.

Two rolls of film that we developed early Friday evening came out of the developing tank completely blank. Those two rolls supposedly contained some pictures that had to go in this edition of the newspaper. In fact we left space for them when some of the pages were laid out.

To make matters worse, our Street Talk pictures were on one of the rolls. A check of the inside of The Wayne Herald camera revealed the verdict—the shutter did not work. The camera appeared to work when we used it. The shutter release button worked, the film advance lever worked, the camera's mirror worked and things sounded proper. It had to be working. Wrong!

Assistant editor Jackie Osten had to restrain me from pulling the camera in one of Wayne's potholes.

Now we have two cameras at the camera doctor's office. I hope he can fix them soon.

Locating the camera's troubles didn't solve our problem. What were we going to do about the missing photos? I've always been tempted to leave blank spots on some pages of the paper but these pictures had to go in.

A few phone calls later, the pictures we needed to retake were set up again. The individuals who were involved in the pictures went out of their way to help us overcome our predicament.

The Street Talk photos were another problem: How do you track down five persons on a Friday night to retake their pictures?

Fortunately, five Wayne High seniors were featured in this week's Street Talk. And all five had graduation photos in our files from the graduation section we published last week.

We came out smelling like a tulip (tulip sounds more appropriate this time of year than a rose).

Employment steady

A Trade Mission from the Republic of Korea that visited the United States in early March resulted in significant sale of U.S. products. Korea is going to spend more than $3.2 billion on American products in 25 states, including $4,340,000 for goods from Nebraska.

Earlier this year there was much commotion when the Japanese agreed to beef and citrus fruit quota changes. Another change was an agreement by the Japanese to reduce tariffs on farm equipment.

I have been particularly interested in getting the tariff on hay balers reduced, as this will provide opportunity for increased export of some equipment manufactured in Nebraska.

employment was up by almost 75,000, while more than 100,000 people were added to payrolls at factories.

After two months of decline the Conference Board reports that consumer confidence rose in April. According to the Board's buying plans index, however, the number of people planning to purchase cars and homes fell.

In a separate report, the University of Michigan's Institute for Social Research announced that U.S. consumer confidence during the first quarter of this year reached its highest level in 18 years. A higher percentage of people surveyed also said that their financial situation had improved in recent months and that they expected their incomes to rise even further in the next year.

MORE THAN 260,000 people found jobs in April, but the addition of 340,000 people, mostly women, to the labor force kept the unemployment rate steady at 7.8 percent for the third month in a row. Meanwhile, the factory workweek grew by six tenths of an hour—to 41.2 hours, the highest level in almost two decades.

This is good news since employers usually add new workers to their payrolls after current employees work overtime for awhile.

Almost half of the new jobs were created in goods-producing industries. Construction

Long-term agricultural policy is needed

By Cheryl Stubbendieck, Nebraska Farm Bureau

Recently Neligh Sen. John DeCamp called a legislative hearing to receive testimony about proposed solutions to the current ag credit crisis. DeCamp himself proposed a kind-of agricultural Marshall Plan, which would set up an emergency program to guarantee payment of troubled ag loans, if it is determined that the loan is likely to be repaid once short-term economic conditions have stabilized or improved.

Such a program would be federally funded, and would also provide for deferral of some of the interest owed by qualified borrowers. This would act as a safety net until long-term ag policy can be developed in the next few years, he said.

The need for long-term agricultural policy — extending beyond the current four-year planning horizon — is apparent, but the infusion of massive amounts of federal money is not the answer. Looking beyond the obvious — lower land values, low commodity prices, high priced inputs — it's clear that excessive federal spending and inflationary fiscal policies have contributed to farmers' problems.

A massive infusion of federal money would only serve to increase the deficit, which is the real culprit behind the high cost of money.

ACCORDING TO LUTHER Tweeten, Oklahoma State University ag economist, two things create more instability in farm income than all other forces combined: volatile exports and inflation. Tweeten recommends anti-inflationary monetary policies and trade policies that do not interfere with exports.

Many of our trade policies do hinder our exports. Last summer, the U.S. placed restrictions on speciality steel imports, and as a result, the European Economic Community has proposed to set new limits on corn gluten sales, now worth about $700 million a year to us. Further, these limits could become a precedent for restricting our $4.2 billion in annual soybean sales to Economic Community countries.

Increased exports have the potential to assuage much of the current ag situation. Chase Econometrics estimates that expanding export of feed-grains by 10 percent above levels currently projected for the next five years would result in an increase in net farm income by about 20 percent during that period.

One suggested solution, a moratorium on farm foreclosures, isn't the answer, because banning foreclosures would make it extremely difficult for farmers to secure operating loans. Some farmers will tell you it's already plenty difficult to get operating loans.

ON THE STATE level, new tax schemes which would further erode land values and reduce our ability to attract investment in our credit institutions also would be unwise. It would become extremely difficult to attract investment capital for agriculture if an overly dismal picture of our state's farming conditions is conveyed.

What's needed is application of "a rule of reason." This means for everyone involved emotionally charged extremes and arbitrary and inflexible approaches which may bring regrettable results.

Farm operators who are under a heavy debt load, but with a reasonable chance of recovery, need help in rolling that debt over. The rule of reason would suggest that lenders could extend special help to those farmers with a reasonable chance of making it.

But common sense dictates that farmers who are in trouble shouldn't be allowed to take on additional debt. It's the last thing they need, and enticing farmers with high debt-to-asset ratios to take on additional debt hurts everyone.

The current ag credit crisis, while serious, tends to distort the total situation. Although many farmers are in financial trouble, many thousands are not having severe problems. Efforts to help those in trouble should not propose a solution — such as massive federal spending — that would have everyone involved in farming ask a lawyer

a public service of the nebraska state bar association

Q: I received a sizable inheritance from my mother. I want to give some of this to my nieces and nephews (her grandchildren). I would like to know how much cash I give each one in a one year period without having to pay inheritance taxes.

A: A transfer of money such as you describe, made during your lifetime, would be treated by law as a gift, not as an inheritance. Under federal law one person may give to another per annum a gift of up to $10,000 annually without the recipient being liable for any federal gift tax. (Nebraska presently has no state gift tax.)

There is no limit on the number of nieces and nephews to whom such $10,000 gifts may be given. Also, if your spouse joins in your gifts you could give up to $20,000 each year to each person. You should consult with your lawyer about how such additional gifts may be made tax free.

Q: Does any notice have to be published in the newspaper before a person has a guardian appointed?

A: Yes. State law requires that notice of guardianship proceedings must be published at least once a week for three consecutive weeks prior to the hearing.

The notice should be published in a legal newspaper having general circulation in the county in which the guardianship hearing is to be held. The last publication of the notice should be at least three days before the time set for hearing.

Q: Are school teachers who work more than 40 hours per week entitled to any overtime pay?

A: In the absence of a negotiated agreement or a specific school district policy providing for overtime pay, the teacher would not be entitled to additional compensation for more than 40 hours worked per week. The Fair Labor Standards Act which establishes not only the minimum wage but also overtime compensation specifically excludes school teachers from its coverage.

Q: My ex-husband is in and out of a mental hospital about every other month and is not keeping up his child support obligation of $100 a month. Is there any way I could get Social Security for my daughter?

A: Yes. Under circumstances that are determined on a case by case basis, you daughter may be eligible for Social Security or other forms of public assistance. If you have specific questions regarding guidelines for receiving Social Security, contact the Social Security office listed in your telephone directory.

Planting petunias is impressive

To the editor:

I have been impressed with the Wayne Chamber of Commerce idea of planting petunias along Main Street. I hope that when they have finished blooming that they will plant tulips inbetween the rows or whatever.

They could be grown with very little extra work and many of the types will bloom without much work.

I know that tulips do not last very long but by obtaining the various types a person could have five weeks of blooms.

It has been a little difficult at my age and physical condition to do too much with them lately but the public is invited to view the place just to see what could be possible.

Idea commended

To the Editor:

May I be one of the first to congratulate the Wayne Chamber of Commerce for their tremendous idea to help Wayne area farmers.

I have never heard of anything like it, and I think it's a wonderful and very thoughtful gesture.

Family teamwork

Have you ever thought about how a family resembles a successful sports team? There are many similarities between a happy, well-functioning family and a winning team.

In team sports such as basketball or baseball, each player wants the team to win. Each player is willing to do his share towards achieving a victory. When it is necessary, the team player will toss the ball to another so the goal can be scored.

FAMILY MEMBERS must also learn to take a back seat to achieve family goals. Sometimes this means hard work without much recognition. In a strong family there is a deep commitment to each other that makes such cooperation possible. The person who doesn't get individual recognition knows that other family members are willing to do the same thing when necessary.

Most teams have a second purpose besides winning a victory. A team strives to bring out the best in all players. A player that might injure a team member won't be used during practice. The team's goal is to work together to improve each player's ability.

A healthy family atmosphere conveys a sense of trust and cooperation. Each family member knows that the others will not intentionally do something that will harm them. There is a willingness to help each other grow and develop to make the family strong.

IN BOTH the sports and family teams the players must grow and develop. Team and individual effort need to be balanced. All of the members know that the team will be less successful if anyone member does not produce up to his potential.

Another similarity is that neither the team nor the family will win all the time. There is no such thing as permanent security at home or in sports. All winning streaks must come to an end. On a team, the beginning of each season brings a new combination of players and a need to change.

The same is true in families. They are constantly changing. Family members grow older, leave home and eventually die. Each change requires the family members to adjust and develop a new game plan.

Strong healthy families continue to make adjustments. It is team work that promotes strong individuals and builds satisfied families.

HEALTH TIPS

From Your Family Physician

PREMENSTRUAL SYNDROME

The condition known as premenstrual syndrome is a recurrent symptom complex that begins during the week prior to menstruation and usually disappears soon after the onset of the menstrual flow. This symptom complex consists predominantly of edema, lower abdominal pain (including cramps), breast tenderness, headache, abdominal bloating, fatigue and feelings of depression, irritability, tension and anxiety.

The cyclic nature and timing of the symptoms are important. Symptoms generally begin one to ten days before menstruation and continue until near the end of the menstrual periods. The individual's particular pattern generally remains relatively consistent from month to month.

PMS is estimated to affect 70% to 90% of women at some time during their childbearing years. Most common in the age range of 20 to 40 years, some women first experience PMS after pregnancy, or after they stop taking birth control pills.

PMS can disrupt family life, harming a woman's relationship with her husband and children. It can also be a handicap for a woman in the work force. Fortunately most women who experience PMS have only mild to moderate symptoms. While, popular magazines and television interviews focus on patients with severe symptoms, such cases only represent a small percentage of women.

A health diary, carefully kept by the patient on a daily basis, is the key diagnostic tool for PMS. It is useful to continue the diary after treatment has begun to determine whether therapy is effective. The patient should make a record of her symptoms and her menstrual flow each day.

An accurate record of one complete cycle may provide a good indication of whether a woman's symptoms are associated with her menstrual cycle. In most women symptoms will appear one to ten days before the menstrual period and for all women there should be a symptom-free week following the menstrual period.

Many researchers are pursuing the causes of premenstrual syndrome. No current idea about the cause has adequate supporting evidence.

The various theories as to the cause of PMS have led to varied forms of treatment. Initial treatments are safe and can provide relief for many mild-to-moderate cases of PMS. Patient education and counseling, diet, exercise and vitamin supplements may reduce symptoms. Non-prescription medication such as acetaminophen may help. Various prescription medications have also been used to help PMS patients. Natural progesterone (a female hormone), diuretics (water pills), anti-inflammatory agents and birth control pills may all help to reduce symptoms.

Until researchers identify the underlying causes of premenstrual syndrome, available treatments will only address symptoms. Fortunately, most PMS patients can be helped by available treatments.

While PMS is not a life threatening condition, it can affect a woman's well-being, and successful treatment of symptoms can help her lead a happier and more productive life.

Wayne golf team takes 5th at state

You might say that a case of three-puttitis hurt the Wayne High Blue Devils' chances of winning the Class B state golf tournament Thursday at Lincoln.

The Blue Devils overcame 41 three-putt greens to place fifth in the field of 12 teams. Defending champion Superior edged Schuyler to win the championship trophy.

Wayne golfers played pretty well but ran into trouble on the greens as the putts didn't fall.

Wayne ace Cole Froeschle, who won a gold medal at state last year, fired a 75 over the 18-hole Lincoln Mahoney Golf Course to win a third place medal. He won a sudden death playoff with three other golfers to take the third place medal.

Bob Kenney of Minden won the individual gold with a 73 and David Ward of Fairbury was second with a 74.

Tom Perry carded an 82. Rod Dahl shot an 84. Brad Moore turned in an 87 and Layne Marsh scored a 91 for the Blue Devils.

Individual scores: Cole Froeschle 37, 38-75, Tom Perry 41, 41-82, Rod Dahl 44, 40-84, Brad Moore 43, 44-87, Layne Marsh 45, 46-91.

Lady Cats finish in top 6

Western knocks WSC out of world series

The Wayne State College Lady Wildcat softball team made it to the final six in the NAIA Softball World Series before losing its second game in the double elimination tournament this past week.

WSC was eliminated from the tournament last Friday evening (May 18) by CSIC foe, Missouri Western, who handed the Lady 'Cats a 2-1 loss in nine innings. The Lady Wildcats end their season with a 29-16 record, and finished the tournament with a 3-2 mark.

The Lady 'Cats led 1-0 in the sixth inning against Western when Maggie Alberts stole home plate after advancing to first base on a walk. Teresa Durbala knocked out a single which pushed Alberts to second and a passed ball placed Alberts on third, setting up the steal.

Missouri Western tied the game in the bottom of the seventh with two out on a line drive to centerfield which was overthrown into the dugout, giving the batter position on third base. She came home on a single later in the inning.

THE WINNING run for Western came in the bottom of the ninth. They ended the game with two runs on eight hits with six errors.

WSC finished out the game with one run on just three hits and also committed six errors.

Lori Owens was on the mound for the Lady 'Cats, tossing 10 strikeouts in the loss. She finished her season at 17-6.

Earlier in the day, WSC took a pair of games teams located in Texas and Tennessee competing in the 16-team field. Wayne had a 15-3 lead over Texas Wesleyan in the sixth inning when the game was called.

The Lady 'Cats had 10 hits in that game, all singles, and three errors. Texas Wesleyan managed six hits and gave up eight errors in the loss.

Teresa Durbala was two for five with five RBIs. Freshman pitcher Mary Lingelbach started the game before being relieved by Lori Owens, who was credited with the win, putting her record at 17-5.

A SACRIFICE fly by Suzy Todd in the bottom of the seventh inning kept the Lady 'Cats alive as they took a 9-8 win over Tusculum (Tenn.) University in the opening game on Friday.

WSC had a big sixth inning, scoring five runs with two coming on an error by the opponent. With the score tied at eight in the bottom of the seventh, Todd rapped out a fly ball with one out to bring Teresa Durbala across for the winning run.

WSC finished the game with 11 hits and two errors, and Tusculum knocked out 10 hits and gave up six errors. Legs Finger started the game before Owens relieved her in the fifth and picked up the win.

The Lady 'Cats suffered their opening loss of the tourney to Indiana University/Perdue University at Indianapolis 7-2.

WSC was down 7-0 before scoring two runs in the seventh inning to close the gap. Senior Cindy Gessman had a good game at the plate, going 2 for 3 with a pair of singles. The loss left pitcher Mary Lingelbach with a 6-3 record.

In the opening game of the tournament, WSC upset sixth-seeded Quincy College (Ill.) 2-1 to advance. The Lady 'Cats scored their runs in the third inning behind the hitting of Carmen Doeschot, who was 2-for-3 with one RBI, Teresa Durbala's triple, a double by Suzy Todd and a single by Cindy Gessman. Maggie Alberts got credit for the other Lady 'Cat RBI.

Lori Owens threw for WSC and struck out eight batters in the game.

WSC baseball wraps season

The Wayne State baseball team lost to rival Kearney State in the NAIA District 11 championship game Saturday, 13-6, to end Coach Lenny Klaver's first season. WSC was 10-22.

The two teams had split six previous games. The Lopers forced the Saturday game when they upended WSC Friday afternoon, 9-5. Kearney State came through the losers' bracket, and its win over the Cats on Friday forced the second championship game.

Wayne State was the only unbeaten squad after the first round of the four team tourney when the Wildcats defeated Doane, 5-4, and Kearney State, 15-4.

State Track meet Stelling still in the running

Suzanne Stelling of Wakefield was the only area athlete to advance into Saturday's finals at the Nebraska Track and Field Championships which opened Friday at Omaha Burke.

Stelling ran the 400 meter relay in 1:00.17 to place second in her heat and qualify for the finals.

No full reports were available at press time but most of the events involving area state qualifiers were scheduled on Saturday.

Senior John Hawkins of Winside, a returning state gold medal winner, suffered a disappointing setback on Friday. Leading his heat of the 100 meter dash, Hawkins pulled up with a hamstring injury.

Because of the injury he also was forced to drop out of the 200 meter dash and the 400 meter relay race. Winside coach Mark Freburg planned to find a replacement for Hawkins in the relay so his team could still compete.

Art Project
 Carolyn George, a senior at Laurel-Concord High, artistically drew a shadow. Carolyn, a three-year art student, used the word shadow and created a growing dark image inside the letters. Earlier this year Carolyn drew the word hungry, with bites out of it. Carolyn's shadow drawing took her about an hour, with the longest part being, filling in the shades. Another name for her drawing is called a value sketch. Value sketches are the lightness and darkness of a drawing.

Carolyn's shadow took three easy steps: 1. drawing the letters, 2. spraying the letters with hair spray, 3. filling in the letters. Carolyn was pleased with her sketch but liked her hungry sketch better. "My drawing has improved through the years. I've improved because of the practice I get everyday," Carolyn stated. "Art has been a lot of fun, and I don't have a lot of homework. You can relax and create using your imagination."

By Paula Seibert
A Vietnam experience
 More than 300,000 men suffered injuries. Sixty thousand died. Many more men were lost missing in action. America's total of participants in the Vietnam War soared 9,534,000.

Laurel-Concord High School juniors and seniors have taken a look at the seriousness of the Vietnam War. "Vietnam: A Television History," a PBS series took six years to complete. The series seeks to figure the costs and consequences of the Vietnam War from the American and Vietnamese perspective, according to Rick Ansoarg, writer for the "Omaha World Herald."

The Laurel students are reviewing a series which compiled more than 100 hours of footage in 11 countries. The production units of the show visited Vietnam twice in 1981 and 1982, to interview Communist members, soldiers, and citizens. The television series was based on a book written by Stanley Karnow. A Harvard graduate, Karnow conducted extensive surveys and spent three decades in Southeast Asian affairs. In interviews conducted, Karnow stated that he wants the American viewers to reach a conclusion on their own.

Mr. Jim Clark, history teacher at LCHS, stated, "My students should understand what people went through while they were in Vietnam. The 13-part series takes the viewer through a time of war that raised controversy in all parts of the world. The United States involvement in the Vietnam War was one of chaos and unpopularity. According to the "World Book Encyclopedia," Americans argued about Communist take overs in Vietnam. Some people felt that the United States involvement would worsen relations with U.S.R. Paula Seibert, a senior at LCHS, stated, "I never realized how confusing the Vietnam War was. I understand it a lot better now."

Tragedies of the Vietnam War clung to high numbers. Jean Lute, a senior, said, "Physically it makes me sick and mentally I get a stronger feeling that the United States shouldn't have been there. I get upset knowing that innocent lives were killed for a reason that's hard to understand."

"Why should American men get killed in a country where the American people don't know why they are there?" asked Tom Roeder, a junior at Laurel High School. As questions remain unsolved, students find new understandings and look for new news about the Vietnam War.

 Being an only child was a lone experience for Diane Eberer of Laurel. When she was younger, Diane didn't have sisters and brothers to play with, and as she got older she depended on friends for companionship. "I think I have a better relationship with my parents than I would have had if I had sisters, and brothers because they devote all their time to me. I guess that's how I got to be so spoiled," said Diane.

Being an only child has influenced Diane's decision. "I'm definitely going to have more than one child," said Diane. Only children enjoy and appreciate original thinking which makes them more daring than other first born children, according to "First Child, Second Child," a book by Bradford Wilson and George Edington. "Of all birth orders the only child is by far the most conscientious and reliable yet having developed the personality of a firstborn at an unusually early age, they are inclined to show less rowdiness disrupted by the needs, demands or competitiveness of others."

It can become difficult for an only child to live with other people unless they are willing to let them manage things. By Suzy Hintz
 Guess again
 What does tu-wit-who really mean? Many Laurel-Concord high school students were puzzled when asked the meaning of this word chosen from Webster's dictionary.

Students guessed that a tu-wit-who was a shish ke-bob, wig worn on the head, a ball that is too wet and heavy to throw, a very old Silan religious "high", and a word someone uses when they don't know what they're talking about. Some closer guesses included a bird with a lisp, a bird that lives in Africa, a species of birds, and a sound that a tu-bird makes. Have you figured out the meaning yet? Tu-wit-who is the cry of an owl according to Webster's dictionary. By Suzy Hintz

Students talk about commercials Mr. Whipple, Snap, Crackle, and Pop, and Sara Tucker and Tucker Inn might never have risen to stardom without the 30 second commercials that are regularly seen on television.

Recently, about one half of the seniors at Laurel-Concord Public School told their favorite and least favorite commercials they had seen on television. Michael Jackson's Pepsi commercial along with the Burger King and Wendy's "Where's the Beef" advertisement ranked high among the seniors.

Low rankers included the 7 up commercial which features—the Jamaican man with that deep laugh, and Taster's Choice coffee slogan, "Times like these were made for Taster's Choice." Also Lancers Unlimited advertisement was quoted to have "bad singers of bad songs. The real home-movie look!"

A commercial jingle is a song which the sponsor uses to catch the consumer's attention, and of course, to sell them something. Some of the students' favorite songs include "Coke is It," "You're the Pepsi Generation," Shasta's theme, Wrigley's spearmint gum (it really keeps you moving), and of course the legendary "The little blue jug is Dynamo."

"Time" magazine reports that there are about 10 minutes of commercials for every prime time hour of programming. Sports programming and late night television boost that number to 16 minutes of commercials for every hour. There is no low at the present time which limits the amount of commercials, but as "Time" reports, the networks say they will not cram in any more commercials because the television viewers would lose interest in the show and change the channel.

"Time" further states that the sponsors of commercials don't make them just to entertain people. Its main purpose is to make the company a lot more money. For example, Wendy's Old Fashioned Hamburgers spent eight million dollars on a commercial where three elderly ladies walk into a fictitious restaurant "Home of the Big Bun." The three ladies examine the "big fluffy bun" and the microscopic hamburger.

Then the star of the commercial (Clara Peller) hollers out that famous phrase "Where's the Beef?" The eight million dollars for this ad campaign was not wasted considering the 15 percent growth in sales after the commercials were aired. The vice president of Wendy's said that they accomplished as much with the new slogan in five weeks as they did in 14 1/2 years. Also, another $30 million was made by selling "Where's the Beef" products including: T-shirts, records, albums, caps, mugs, and many other things. At Laurel, however, most of the students said that they had not bought anything because of the advertisement.

 Journalists freed
 In the early 1970's the federal government passed the Freedom of Information Act, giving reporters freedom to investigate and to research topics thoroughly. The information act gave reporters the chance to look at guarded documents and to talk to more government people.

Reporters could sit in on all board meetings of city local organizations.

Steve Liewer, local newspaper manager, said, "Having open meetings gives the press a chance to hear the correct proceedings—and minutes of the meeting. The only time the press is limited in its freedom is when the board goes in to executive session."

"Executives sessions are rarely held," said Liewer. According to Mr. Liewer, the community of Laurel is helpful and allows the press to sit in. Steve Liewer always wants to make sure of his information when writing. He attends the public meetings, searches for documents, and listens informally to what the townpeople have to say about the topic. Steve says, "You can get a lot of information in interviews when you're not asking tough questions, and depending on the situation." In Laurel, the freedom of the press described by Liewer is "limited" in a small town, especially for what you do and say, being prudent about what you say without keeping news away from the public. Steve says he hasn't had any complaints about his freedoms, but he says he always wants to be sure to get all of the information and right words when he uses quotes. "We, in America, are quite lucky for having the freedom of press because one may, do his own research, ask about information and write about the findings and let everyone read it, while in the communist countries, they have political officers write the papers, giving the information they want!" Steve said. By Mark Herrmann

LOWER ELKHORN NATURAL RESOURCES DISTRICT

LOWER ELKHORN NRD PROGRAMS

Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District is one of 24 natural resources districts in Nebraska, which were established by the legislature, and began operation July 1, 1982. NRD boundaries were set up along drainage boundaries of the 12 river basins in the state. Lower Elkhorn NRD covers all or part of 15 counties in northeast Nebraska and is governed by a 19 member Board of Directors, elected by the people of the District. NRD's have responsibilities in the following areas of resources conservation:

1. Erosion prevention and control
2. Prevention of damages from flood water and sediment
3. Flood prevention and control
4. Soil conservation
5. Water supply for any beneficial use
6. Development, management, utilization and conservation of groundwater and surface water
7. Sanitary drainage
8. Pollution control
9. Drainage improvement and channel rectification
10. Development and management of fish and wildlife habitat
11. Development and management of recreation and park facilities
12. Forestry and range management

NRD's may levy up to .035¢ per $100 valuation local property taxes to carry out these responsibilities and additional funds may be obtained from various state and federal sources. Lower Elkhorn NRD carries on the following programs and activities in order to manage natural resources for the benefit of the residents of the District.

LAND AND WATER DEVELOPMENT ASSISTANCE PROGRAM
Provides cost share funds to landowners for installing soil conservation practices which are part of the Federal Agriculture Conservation Program (ACP). Cost share rates are the same as ACP rates in each county, but are available only after ACP funds are exhausted or the limit for that landowner has been reached.

LANDS FOR CONSERVATION
Pays landowners $60 per acre to construct conservation practices from May 1-July 15 or $40 per acre to construct conservation practices between June 1 and September 15. The purpose is to extend the construction season through the summer months, thus allowing more construction. Landowners may plant a cover crop or raise a small grain crop on the contract area, and may participate in cost share programs in combination with this program.

CONSERVATION TILLAGE DEMONSTRATION PLOTS
This program will allow farmers to develop a conservation tillage system on a small field, that can be used on the rest of the farm with perfected. The plots will provide a site for other farmers to observe the various operations and results. The NRD will provide payment to farmers on 5 to 10 acre plots in the amount of $25 per acre, where adequate planning has been done to insure, as much as possible, a successful planting. The payment is an incentive to try conservation tillage on a limited basis and compensation for inconvenience, custom work and additional herbicides.

WILDLIFE HABITAT IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM
Pays landowners for protection or establishment of wildlife habitat and to allow public access. Contracts range from 2 to 5 years, and the area must be protected from burning, grazing, mowing or harvesting. Landowners may also receive 100% reimbursement for seed and trees planted on the area. Lower Elkhorn NRD cooperates with Nebraska Game & Parks Commission on this program which is funded 25% by property taxes and 75% by habitat stamps sold with hunting licenses.

TREE PLANTING
Lower Elkhorn NRD provides a low cost tree planting and weed control service to landowners, who purchase seedlings through the Clarke-McNary Program. A variety of conifers, hardwoods and shrubs are available. Soil Conservation Service (SCS) personnel assist landowners in designing plantings and ordering seedlings. Cost share payments for tree planting are available through local ASCS offices in many counties.

GRASS DRILLS
Lower Elkhorn NRD maintains two grass drills for rent by landowners on a first come-first serve basis. The drills may be used free of charge by counties or landowners for seeding county road ditches. This is part of a Roadside Seeding Program in which the Game and Parks Commission will reimburse counties for seed used in road ditches.

WELL MONITORING PROGRAM (Groundwater Level)
As part of a statewide effort, Lower Elkhorn NRD monitors groundwater levels twice a year in nearly 300 irrigation wells around the district. The groundwater level measurements are taken before and after the irrigation season, to determine the effects of pumping and the amount of recovery during winter months. The data gathered in this program may expose potential problems before they become critical and will help water resources agencies make long range management decisions.

IRRIGATION SCHEDULING
Lower Elkhorn NRD and the Cooperative Extension Service operate 3 weather stations around the district during irrigation season. The UNL computer converts the weather data to daily crop water use, which is made available to irrigators by local radio stations. When used in combination with soil probes, moisture blocks, and flow meters, this information can help irrigators conserve water, fuel, fertilizer and reduce potential leaching of nitrates into groundwater.

ROAD STRUCTURES
Lower Elkhorn NRD cost shares dams which replace bridges on county roads. These dams provide flood control, grade stabilization, fish and wildlife habitat, recreation and water for the landowners use. They also replace narrow, unsafe, and high maintenance bridges with low maintenance, safe roadways. Road structures on the average are one-third to one-half the cost of building a replacement bridge. Structures are designed by the SCS or County Engineer and cooperation of neighboring landowners is a key to the success of this program. Construction costs are shared by Lower Elkhorn NRD and the respective county, and maintenance is done by the county.

RECREATION
Lower Elkhorn NRD encourages cities and towns to develop high quality recreation facilities and program. The NRD will pay 30% of the cost of hiring a professional to do recreation planning. The NRD board considers such requests on a case by case basis.

Lower Elkhorn NRD also sponsors multiple use projects which include recreation.

SOIL SURVEYS ACCELERATION
Soil surveys are beneficial to people in a variety of professions who work with the land. They not only catalog soil types, they also list fertility, soil characteristics, and suitable uses of each soil type. LENRD and counties jointly fund soil surveys to accelerate their completion and make this information available. Landowners may receive a free copy of their soil survey at the local SCS and Extension offices. Northeast Nebraska counties completed: Antelope, Boone, Burt, Colfax, Cuming, Dakota, Dixon, Dodge, Pierce, Stanton, Thurston, Wayne.

For information or to sign up for Lower Elkhorn NRD Programs, contact your local Soil Conservation Service Office, or LENRD office at Norfolk, Nebraska, Ph. 402-371-7313.
