Council deliberates on retirement benefits

Spiraling energy costs has prompted former Wayne city employees receiving retirement benefits to seek an additional $24 in payment toward utility costs from the Wayne city council.

The group representatives also asked the city to continue contracting the insurance policy with Aetna rather than switch to Blue Cross-Blue Shield coverage.

Currently, the retired city employees are supposed to receive a $12 monthly credit off of the city's utility bill. The ordinance for the credit was established in June, 1974.

Dan Sherry said the utility charge per kilowatt hour has jumped considerably over the past years, from 2½ cents to nearly seven cents, yet the $12 monthly credit has remained stable.

He asked the county to consider raising the monthly credit $24, bring the total monthly credit to $36 for each of the eight retired group members.

Kloster mentioned two alternatives the county could consider for providing the increases. One was to supply the requested increase with a cash payment that would be added to the retirement benefits of the former city employees.

Dale Preston, a ten-year veteran of the Wayne Fire Department, has been selected as the new fire chief.

Preston, elected by other volunteers at the monthly meeting in May, was appointed to the position at the city council meeting Tuesday night.

He grew up on a farm west of town and has lived in Wayne all his life. He is currently employed at Feeders Elevator in Wayne. He and his wife, Norma, have two children.

The other "more equitable" alternative, he said, would be to pay each of the members "so much per month per years of service."

COUNCILMAN Freeman Decker made a motion to accept Kloster's proposal of offering $1 per month for each year of past service as a city employee. But he received only one vote of support of his motion (from Leo Hansen) while the remaining councilmen decided to study the request and make a decision at a later date.

Kern Swarts, Wayne city attorney, said the flat rate given to all retired city employees might be satisfactory for those retirees with less years of city service but would be detrimental to others who had worked for the city a greater length of time.

Likewise, long-time former city employees would benefit greater than employees with lesser years of service if the $1 per month per years of service proposal was approved by the city council.

Norb Brugger, a 48-year former employee of the city, voiced his concern over the city's switch of health insurance policy from Aetna to Blue Cross-Blue Shield. He said the Blue Cross-Blue Shield policy has some

Farm assistance program yields positive results

Things certainly weren't looking good for this area's farmers.

Corn producers took advantage of the above normal temperatures two weeks ago to plant half of the expected planted acreage in one week.

As of Sunday (May 20), Nebraska Crop and Livestock Reporting Service reports showed 65 percent of corn acres were planted compared to just 15 percent a week earlier.

The forecast up through May 30 calls for temperatures and precipitation near normal, but an extension climatologist Ralph Neld said "we're approaching the wettest time of the year for most of Nebraska, so near normal precipitation could be more than is desired."

Several farmers in areas of Wayne, Wakefield, Wlsner, Beldon and Carroll have increased the odds of meeting the planting deadlines despite the inclement weather, thanks in part to the Wayne Chamber of Commerce's first Farmers Assistance Program.

HARVEY Reeg of rural Wayne was one farmer who benefited from the Chamber's program. He had about 150 acres of corn to plant, but the damp weather conditions didn't allow him to work the fields.

It was "catch-up time" by the time Reeg read the article in the Wayne Herald concerning the new Farmers Assistance Program.

The Chamber placed Reeg in contact with volunteer worker Clay Ellingson of Ellingson Motors, Inc.

Reeg's corn is now planted and this week he hopes to plant the beans.

"Without Clay, I would have been about a day and a half behind," Reeg said.

"The day he came out here and worked from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. was a great help. He disked up about 20 acres," he said. "And while he was disking I went out to do something else."

Farmer Howard Flier of rural Wayne said he would have been a full day behind had he not received assistance from the Chamber's program.

HIS VOLUNTEER helper last Thursday was Chamber of Commerce President Randy Pedersen of The Diamond Center in Wayne.

"Randy had 'field cultivated' about 120 acres that day. The program is very good. I couldn't find help anywhere else and it was one of the better days this spring to do some spring planting," Flier said.

Pedersen hadn't worked full-time on a farm for nearly 14 years. He occasionally will assist his father, Don Pedersen, with fieldwork.

"So working on a farm is nothing really new to me," Pedersen said.

The Wayne Chamber of Commerce, in a recent news release, credits Arnie Reeg of Arnie's Ford Mercury in Wayne for "coming up with the original idea to help with spring planting."

He mentioned the idea to the Chamber after he thought about the extra wetness and lateness of the planting season.

"It has been of some value to those people taking advantage of it [the Farmers Assistance Program]," Reeg said.

THE PROJECT has stirred good feelings between the Wayne businessmen and the farmer. "That would be our hope because we [businesses] are certainly dependent on the farmer and we should help them in any way," Reeg mentioned.

"To have a nice relationship with the farmers is important," he added.

Wayne's Chamber of Commerce Farmers Assistance Program began on Tuesday May 15. Many of the volunteers have helped area farmers by disk, filling planters and driving tractors or other farm equipment, said the release from the Chamber's office.

SOME VOLUNTEERS, instead of doing fieldwork, helped with livestock or other farm chores which allowed the farmer more time to spend in the field and concentrate on completing the spring planting.

Those receiving farming assistance were Reeg, Don Pedersen, Joyce Sievers, Mike Dunklau, Harvey Luff and Howard Flier, all of rural Wayne; Stan Morris of rural Carroll; Jerry Bauermeister and Todd Cunningham of rural Beldon; Eldon Heineman of rural Wakefield; and Art Greve and Don Matthes of rural Wlsner.

Volunteers who have lent a helping hand to the farmers include Bob Jordan, Galen Wiser and Merrill Hale of State National Bank; Clay Ellingson and Paul Matthes of Ellingson Motors; Paul Peterson of The Sundowner; Alan Pippitt and Dave Diediker of The Wayne Herald; Randy Pedersen of the Diamond Center; Daryl Frevert of First National Bank; Randy Bloom of Arnie's Ford Mercury; Jay Langemeier of Carhart Lumber and Gary Van Meter of Mines Jewelry.

Following this weekend's rains, there is a possibility the program may be continued for the remainder of this week or until the planting season is ended.

The Chamber's efforts to assist the farmer has achieved state-wide recognition from area daily newspaper publications and television newscasts.

Medical services expand in area

Life Flight is there for people who need it

Life Flight, an emergency helicopter transport service based at St. Joseph's Hospital in Omaha, dropped in on Wayne last Friday morning.

But there were no "life or death" circumstances which prompted the Life Flight trip to Wayne. Instead, it was an opportunity for nurses, physicians and other staff members at Providence Medical Center to learn of the services provided by Life Flight.

Providence Medical Center has periodically contacted the five-year-old Life Flight helicopter service for assistance during past years. But the calls for Life Flight have become less frequent because the hospital's ambulances and rescue units are well equipped for medical emergencies.

Also, those patients seeking emergency treatment outside of Providence Medical Center usually ask to be transferred to Sioux City.

Life Flight can fly from Omaha to Wayne in about 44 minutes. The 45-mile distance between Wayne and Sioux City is covered more rapidly with the hospital's own emergency transportation, according to several medical staff members at Providence Medical Hospital.

Still, hospital staff members feel fortunate to have helicopter medical emergency service available as a back-up to its own transportation services.

OVER 2,100 patients have been transported on Life Flight since St. Joseph's initiated the service five years ago (1979), according to Chris Finch, one of two Life Flight pilots.

His 1980 Life Flight Bell Longranger II helicopter, which was put into service by St. Joseph's in 1981, can carry up to two patients and two attendants.

Home Health Care program grows in client numbers

Quality patient care in the home is the main goal of Wayne's Home Health Care program which has been in existence since 1980.

Ann Witkowski, program coordinator in the Wayne area, said Home Health Care offers skilled nursing care for anyone who is homebound and having health problems. "We help them meet their health needs," she said.

Wayne's program is a satellite of the Home Health Care unit at Lutheran Community Hospital in Norfolk. The unit in Wayne operates through Providence Medical Center and covers an area within a 25-mile radius of Wayne.

CLIENTS ARE under the direction of physicians but are in their homes instead of hospitals. "There is a tendency in our society to keep people home as long as possible for social, psychological and economic reasons," Mrs. Witkowski said, emphasizing the need for such a program.

She said Home Health Care serves as a liaison between the physician and a client. The Wayne unit is growing and is now serving more than 30 clients per month.

Wayne's staff is averaging about 120 visits with clients per month. However, during the last two months that figure has climbed to 150 or 160 visits.

People often don't hear about the Home Health Care program or don't understand it, Mrs. Witkowski said. She said the program is available to anyone who needs nursing service. Age and financial need are of no consideration.

"PEOPLE ARE becoming more receptive to the program not being only for the poor," Mrs. Witkowski said. Medicare and insurance plans assist most clients with their bills for the service, she added.

Home Health Care deals with many different types of family situations, ranging from diabetics to terminally ill patients who want to die at home.

The service is designed to help patients adjust back to their home environment, help teach family members how to take care of a patient, and help family members cope with an illness or refer them to someone who can.

Staff members of the program can give clients some medications, draw blood if needed routinely and provide a multitude of other treatments.

The program also offers physical therapy and speech therapy in the home.

ACCORDING TO Mrs. Witkowski, Home Health Care is a growing program. She is the only full-time worker in the Wayne unit but Terri Munter and Betty Reeg each work 16 hours a week through the program.

"I feel the need will keep growing. Patients are going home earlier," she said.

Doctors seem to have accepted the Home Health Care program, Mrs. Witkowski said. Some physicians refer patients to the service. "I feel doctors appreciate what we see in the home and know how patients are reacting to the physicians prescribed care."

She added that Providence Medical Center has been receptive to the service and pointed out that hospital administrator Marci Thomas helped get the program started in the Wayne area.

Mrs. Witkowski said there has been excellent communication between nurses, staff doctors, staff nurses and directors.

Holiday portrays American freedom

Today, I would like to present two points for your consideration. The first concerns some important thoughts about the idea of freedom. The second is the relationship between that idea and the event which we are commemorating today.

We are all familiar with the word freedom. It is a word representing an idea that has become a part of our learning at a very early age. It is an idea which is at the very center of our culture. While few, if any, Americans would consider it anything other than of utmost importance, I would like to offer a point of view that may be somewhat different from that with which you are familiar.

We tend to think of it as a word representing an idea — an idea that includes such things as freedom of expression, being able to say what we want when we want — within reason — being able to go, where we want to go and to associate with whom we wish to associate, and freedom to worship as we choose.

While it includes all of these, I believe the word "freedom" stands for something much deeper. I believe it stands for a lifestyle — a way of thinking, a way of feeling, and a way of understanding and responding to the world — something that permeates our very being and sets us apart from others as a people.

Since we in the United States are so used to freedom, we often fail to realize that we are a very privileged people. If one considers the entire human experience, it is readily apparent that a very, very small portion of humankind has been able to enjoy freedom in the sense that we are able to enjoy it.

Even if we limit our consideration to only the present timeframe, again we are brought to the realization that we are a very small percentage of the approximately four and one half billion souls who inhabit this planet who can really enjoy freedom as a lifestyle.

Thus, we come to the awareness that it is a rare and precious gift. Considered within that context, I believe that freedom takes on a new and deeper meaning. And I would like to call us all today to accept that deeper meaning, to embrace it more deeply. I would also call on us to be more deeply aware of the very special privilege that we enjoy.

With this first point in mind — the understanding of freedom as a lifestyle which we are privileged to enjoy — I think the occasion which we are here to commemorate today takes on a special and even deeper meaning. For it causes us to realize that the quest of freedom as a way of life has been a lengthy and painful quest.

We have pursued freedom with such intensity, that we feel that not only must we achieve it, but we must also help others throughout the world achieve it. It is that objective — our own quest and the assistance of others in theirs — that causes this occasion to exist. For the sacrifice of those who occupy the ground upon which we stand, their counterparts throughout this land, and in many other places throughout the world, represent the ultimate price that humans have to pay for this cherished way of life.

Hopefully, if we consider these two ideas in this type of relationship, it will not only help us to have an appropriate appreciation for this treasured way of life, but more importantly, it should also help us to have a deeper appreciation and respect for the price that has been paid by those on whose sacrifice this way of life has been built.

I believe that this is especially appropriate today, in view of a growing attitude among many in this country that we can retain our freedom, our way of life, and even help others to achieve it, without sacrifice.

When one observes what is expressed through the media, by the spokespersons of many of the groups in the nation today, and by many of our public officials, we see a reluctance to accept the idea that freedom does not come easily, and that indeed, it can even be lost. We seem to be taking it for granted.

I believe that this attitude not only manifests itself in regard to criticism of our foreign policy — and I don't mean that we should not critically consider our foreign policy. But what strikes me as most inappropriate, is that I perceive this attitude being directed in a negative way toward those who serve or who have served in our military.

This is due to our experience in Vietnam, in large part, and that experience can understandably cause us to be more cautious — indeed should cause us to be more cautious — in the commitment of American military forces.

However, I think that some of the extreme expressions of this attitude are totally unwarranted. As an example, compare the situation of the veterans after WWII and Korea with that of those after Vietnam. The treatment of veterans of the three periods has been quite different. For the past three days the body of an American serviceman who was killed in Vietnam has been lying in state in the Capitol Rotunda in Washington.

This afternoon there will be a final ceremony at Arlington National Cemetery where that soldier's body will be buried next to those of the unknown soldiers from World Wars I and II and the Korean conflict. This is occurring more than a decade after our involvement in Vietnam. The National Vietnam Memorial was only two short years ago today.

Stories of the problems of Vietnam veterans have appeared in the media regularly over the past ten years — stories of their inability to get help they need. It seems that we have wanted the Vietnam veteran out of sight, so that the war would be out of mind. Our rejection of the war has often erroneously been projected onto those who served in it.

As a result of the Vietnam experience, there seems to be a general feeling of withdrawal from the world — as though we can isolate ourselves and still maintain and enjoy our freedom — our "way of life." Unfortunately, such is not the case. Freedom, as we know it, is not something which, once achieved, remains possessed, like a prize in a game.

No — it is something very tenuous, very fragile, something that must be constantly tended, constantly nurtured, and protected.

In closing, I hope that the expression of these very brief points will help you to more deeply appreciate the occasion that we commemorate today. The most cherished thing we possess — our freedom as a way of life — has been obtained and can only be maintained through sacrifice.

Sadly, that is the nature of the world in which we live. Historically, it apparently is a normal part of the human condition. On this occasion today, and every day, let us never cease to show our deepest gratitude to those who have paid the ultimate price for this most cherished way of life.

The above is the complete context of the Memorial Day address presented in Wayne by Cliff Ginn, associate professor of political science at Wayne State College.

Planting the seed

In the musical production of "Oklahoma", there is a song and dance number which identifies a problem and solution to the differences between the ranchers and farmers or crop growers.

Feuding was consistent between the cowboys and farmers because the cattlemen were disturbed that grazing ground was being upturned for planting corn, wheat or other crops. What the "Oklahoma" song conveyed was that "the farmers and the cowboys should be friends."

The musical scores to "Oklahoma" were written years ago and the situation today apparently shows no reflection to the cowboy-farmer skirmishes of the past. Farmers are now contending with even greater obstacles — low market prices on livestock and commodities, unyielding production costs and ugly spring planting weather.

And when farmers are hurting in this area, Wayne or surrounding cities also suffer because the farm industry sparks life into the community's economy.

Wayne's Chamber of Commerce realizes the vitalness of the farming community and has taken the initiative to discredit any rumors which say members are apathetic to the plight of area farmers.

The Chamber's "Farmer Assistance Program", which has been in operation for nearly two weeks, is true evidence of the area cities' concerns. Fifteen farmers from the rural areas of Wisner, Wakefield, Beldon, Carroll and Wayne received volunteer help from 15 employees of business which are members of the Wayne Chamber of Commerce.

This county only lists those Chamber representatives who have made working arrangements with the Chamber office. There have been others who have taken the task upon themselves to lend a hand and support the farmers' efforts.

A major share of the volunteer labor consisted of discing, filling the planter or driving a tractor — any task that would expedite the spring planting season before the next rainfall would leave farm equipment stuck in its tracks.

Nice days for spring planting have been sporadic, so a volunteer assisting a farmer even for just a few hours, rather than a whole day has been of equal importance.

Merits of this program doesn't stop when the volunteer accepts thanks from the farmer after a day of working in the fields.

When that employee returns to his office, shop or place of employment in Wayne, the farmer knows someone in the city cares about agriculture. And the employee or businessman is more appreciative of the farming community's situation.

The "friendliness" seed has been planted and both farmers and merchants should share the responsibility of helping it grow.

Interim studies are scheduled for area

Because of the excellent reader response to my newsletter, I have decided to continue writing it on a monthly basis. I was pleased with the response of the local newspapers which have agreed to continue printing "Merle's Message" during the interim.

"Interim" is a term signifying, in this case, the period between legislative sessions. Most legislative business during this period consists of investigations called interim studies.

Toward the end of the legislative session individual senators make recommendations for interim studies on subjects of particular concern or interest to them. Topics range from the specific (for example, LR 400, a study of the impact of a single bill, LB 1092) to the general or very broad (LR 310 for example which calls for a review of Nebraska's entire tax structure).

Most interim studies concern perceived problem areas in existing law or subjects which could pose a problem in the future. The purpose of the interim study is to gather as much information as possible on whatever topic is being considered. Using the knowledge gathered during the study, a proposed solution is arrived at which under most circumstances, takes the form of a legislative bill to be introduced in the next regular session.

Once a senator has recommended an interim study, the study is assigned to a legislative committee just as if it were a legislative bill. The committee charged with conducting the study subsequently schedules public hearings to gather information. Instead of being held entirely in Lincoln, many of these interim study hearings are scheduled at locations throughout the state.

Seeking to acquire as much public input as possible and recognizing that many Nebraskans are unable to travel to Lincoln, committees make an effort to "come to the people" for information. For example, I am a member of the Judiciary Committee which is holding fourteen public hearings at twelve locations other than Lincoln to conduct eighteen interim studies.

One such hearing is tentatively scheduled for 3:00 p.m., Aug. 26 in Wayne. Testimony will be taken on three interim studies, LR 423-Court Reorganization, LR 424-County Attorney System, and LR 448 Public Defender System. I will include further information about these studies in a later newsletter.

I urge those of you interested in the Legislature to watch closely for notices of interim study hearings. If one of the studies concerns a topic of interest to you, plan to attend the public hearing to testify or listen to what is being discussed. If you can't attend, write to the committee expressing your views or proposals.

Correspondence received by a committee on a specific interim study is made part of the study record and is provided to each committee member for his or her consideration.

Interim studies are your opportunity to directly participate in the legislative process. Don't overlook them.

Regulatory commission disbands

The mortality rate for governmental agencies is practically nil, so what happened last week in Lincoln should be considered a real rarity.

The Nebraska Bingo and Pickle Card Regulatory Commission, a state agency, disbanded itself. The demise of the agency came last Wednesday at a meeting of the three-member panel.

The agency was created by the 1983 Legislature to tax and regulate all legal gambling in the state except horse racing.

When the commission started, it was faced with a small budget and a lack of expertise, so it contracted with the state Revenue Department to conduct its day-to-day operations. The department performed the task well enough that everyone — the commission, the Legislature and the Revenue Department — agreed that there was no need to continue the commission. The revenue department, with the help of an advisory committee, will continue the task of regulating bingo, pickle card operations and local lotteries.

The 1984 Legislature ordered the commission disbanded and allowed 45 days to close out its business. That was accomplished last week.

At its final meeting, the commission heard a fiscal report which indicated that it spent about $79,000 during its brief life and collected more than $1.2 million in taxes.

Gov. Bob Kerrey has initiated a privately-funded review of higher education in Nebraska which he hopes will be completed by the end of the year.

Kerrey announced recently the formation of the Citizens Commission for the Study of Higher Education. Willis A. Strauss of Omaha, retired chairman of the board of InterNorth Inc., will serve as president of the commission, which is expected to be funded with about $200,000 in contributions.

James C. Olson, a former vice chancellor of the University of Nebraska who is retiring in June as president of the University of Missouri, will be the executive director. Joining Strauss on a three-member board of directors for the commission will be David Buntain, a Lincoln attorney, and E.N. "Jack" Thompson, president of the Cooper Foundation. About 50 others will be named to the commission.

In announcing the effort, Kerrey said he wants the commission to identify the post-secondary education needs of the state and assess the performance of NU, state colleges and community technical colleges in meeting those needs.

Olson's experience as a university administrator has taught him the difficulty of finding places to cut. "You toss out a name of something that ought to be phased down and that makes it impossible to do so," he said.

IF RECENT POLLS by the state's largest newspapers are an indication, Gov. Kerrey's political stock remains very high 16 months after his inauguration.

By a margin of 78 percent to 11 percent, respondents in a recent Lincoln Sunday Journal and Star poll indicated their approval of Kerrey's performance in office. The result mirrored an earlier Omaha World-Herald poll in which respondents indicated approval for Kerrey's performance by a margin of 74 percent to 9 percent.

Shortly after his inauguration last year, Kerrey scored 62 percent approval in a poll by the Lincoln newspaper, and 55 percent in a poll by the Omaha newspaper.

While Kerrey's ratings are high for the moment, they don't assure him continued favor with the voters. Former Gov. Charles Thone, who lost to Kerrey in the 1982 election, had approval ratings ranging from 55 percent to 81 percent during his first two years in office.

Hitting spree lifts Wayne past Crofton in town team action

What was played as a baseball game turned into a football score Wednesday night as the Wayne Town Team plastered Crofton in league action by a 27-10 score.

A total 37 hits were accumulated in the seven-inning game, with Wayne having 46 official at-bats and Crofton, 36.

Wayne jumped to a 3-0 lead at the top of the third inning when Neil Blohm walked. Bill Schwartz got on base via a fielders choice and Rich Neely then blasted a three-run homer.

In the second inning, Todd Schwartz (running for Mike Meyer who singled) scored to make the score 4-0. Schwartz stole second and moved to third on a catcher's error and then scored on a sacrifice fly hit by shortstop Mike Breske.

The first big inning for Wayne came in the third inning, scoring eight runs on six hits. Blohm led off the inning with a single, followed by another single by Bill Schwartz. Neely was hit by a pitch and a pitcher's error allowed Mark Gansbom to get on base. Meyer then hit his second straight single of the game. One out later, Mike Breske singled and Herman Carroll walked before Blohm smacked a grand slam home run.

CROFTON scored three runs on two hits in the bottom of the third inning — the hits by Brad Petersen and Don Hames.

Five more runs were scored by Wayne in the top of the fourth inning on four hits. All the hits were singles socked by Jerry Goeden, Carroll, Tim Pfeifer and Bill Schwartz.

A double and two singles produced one run for Crofton in the bottom half of the inning.

Wayne scored seven runs in the top of the fifth inning. Gansbom started the scoring spree with a single followed by a walk issued to Meyer. Goeden then unleashed a base hit and Breske followed with a double.

Carroll then was walked and Pfeifer hit the second double of the inning. Blohm's sacrifice fly scored one run and Schwartz reached base on a third baseman's error. Gansbom, up his second time in the inning, singled again before the Wayne side was retired.

A two-run homer by Breske in the top of the sixth inning, scoring the doubling Goeden, made the score 26-4 before Crofton came up with six runs on four hits in their half of the inning.

WAYNE'S FINAL run was scored in the top of the seventh inning on a solo home run socked by Todd Schwartz.

Winning pitcher for Wayne was Joel Ankeny, who allowed 13 hits, struck out six and walked three Crofton batters. Losing pitcher was Crofton's Randy Filip.

Goeden finished the game with four hits, including two doubles. Breske also had four hits in the game with two singles, a double and a home run plus a sacrifice fly.

Picking up three hits were Tim Pfeifer and Bill Schwartz, who also hit a home run in the game. Blohm had two hits and five runs batted in.

Ten-run ruling win

Junior league evens its season record

The Wayne Junior League team evened its early season record at 1-1 with an 11-1 win over Sioux City MRC on Saturday, May 28. The contest was scheduled to be part of the Wayne Junior Tournament on May 26-27, which was cancelled due to rain.

The team picked up the win in a five inning game that was called due to the 10-run ruling.

Wayne rapped out 10 hits behind the powerful bat of Don Larsen, who was three-for-three with a double and two singles. They also came up with a total of 10 walks.

Jon McCright and Todd Dorcey had

Wayne's only other extra base hits with doubles. McCright also came up with a single in his three trips to the plate.

Wayne was able to put the game out of reach in the fourth inning when they scored five runs to take a 9-1 lead.

Don Larsen and Jeff Hausmann combined on the mound to pitch a one-hitter, striking out nine batters and giving up six walks. Sioux City scored their only run on a passed ball in the fourth inning. They had just one hit and one run in 13 at-bats.

The Wayne Juniors will host the Bancroft team in a game beginning at 7 p.m. tomorrow night (Friday) at Hank Overin Field.

Softball season begins

Girls team downs Walthill, Homer

The Wayne Girls Softball team upped its record to 2-0 with a pair of victories during the past week of action.

On Tuesday, May 29, the team earned a hard-fought win over Homer 16-12 in seven innings. Lisa Jacobsen continued to wield a strong bat, producing a triple and a home run. Amy Jordan picked up three hits with two singles, and Sarah Lebsack knocked out a pair of hits, including a triple.

Wayne collected a total of 14 hits in the game, and five walks.

Pitcher Roni Johnson allowed just one hit and struck out nine batters at the plate, but still found control problems, walking 13 batters on the night.

The team is still missing a couple of regular players, but picked up strength through younger players such as Kathy Mohfeld, who had two singles, and Cindy Brown, who scored one run.

In the opening game of the season, the Wayne team dropped the Walthill girls 15-5 in a five inning game shortened by the 10-run rule.

In this game, pitcher Roni Johnson notched a no-hitter behind a strong defensive performance by her teammates.

Johnson had six strikeouts, but gave up nine walks which turned into five Walthill runs. Wayne scored its runs on 10 hits and received 16 walks to first base.

Six Wayne players came up with hits in the game, Koleffe Frevert going three-for-three, Lori Jacobsen and Karen Longe each collecting two singles and Lisa Jacobsen rapping out a triple, the only extra-base hit of the game.

The winning run was scored by Shelly Janke in the bottom of the fifth inning on a pinch-hit single by Kathy Mohfeld.

The next action for the softball team will be at home on Thursday, May 31 against Emerson, beginning at 7 p.m. at Hank Overin Field.

Life flight

The general public may not request the service.

A SPECIALLY trained medical team can be airborne within three minutes after St. Joseph's Hospital receives the request for Life Flight service. The uniquely designed and equipped helicopter brings the team to the requested site at speeds of 140 miles per hour and can land in an area 30 feet in diameter.

In the event of an emergency, most large and clear areas can be used as landing sites, such as parking lots, athletic fields, farmyards and major intersections. At the time Life Flight service began, there were 10 such existing programs in the nation. To day, there are in excess of 50 programs with 10 others in the state of development.

Life Flight has received approval from the Health Planning Council of the Midlands, the Nebraska State Department of Health, the Midlands Emergency Medical Services Council and all six EMS Councils bordering the Midlands Region.

Home health

STAFF MEMBERS may see a patient monthly, weekly, daily or whenever the need arises. "It depends on their needs and the physician's plans."

Mrs. Witkowski is quick to point out that clients don't have to remain in the Home Health Care program forever. "Being in the Home Health Care doesn't mean you're in it forever. Once we feel a client is stable, we'll discharge him."

The staff members have worked in various family situations and have found that their jobs can be rewarding — such as observing a client's pain being controlled with medication, involvement in the patient's recovery or seeing the client's wish fulfilled of dying peacefully in the patient's home.

Home Health Care also provides a source of consultation with patients.

Mrs. Witkowski said that anyone who would like to learn more about the program is welcome to call 375-3800 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Retirement

items that are not as generous in coverage as Aetna.

Among things not covered, Brugger said, are the medication and prescription needs.

KLOSTER said the city employee retirement group has lost in prescriptions or medications what the current general employees of the city lost in what they had to contribute in deductibles.

"So it's about the same amount of dollars for both groups," Kloster said.

He said the eight individuals of the retiree group have given a combined 160 years of service to the city and he said "something should be done to adjust for the insurance losses which have more impact on their [retirees'] age group than those of us still working."

It was decided by the city council to take possible action on the retired employee requests next week.

Two public hearings were conducted Tuesday evening concerning street improvements and creation of a storm sewer district.

The city council approved the creation of street improvement district on South Douglas Street. There were no objectors present to establish the street improvement district. However, several residents along the street wanted to know if six inches of cement on the 1,332 front footage of street improvement would be sufficient.

Dennis Hirschbrunner of Bruce Gilmore and Associates, Inc. in Columbus assured the residents the 6 inches of cement on the road would be "more than adequate."

EIGHT INCHES of cement would cost up to $2.50 more per square yard than it would for six inches of cement for the road project, Hirschbrunner said.

Another public hearing was conducted to hear objections to the proposal of creating a storm sewer district in the Western Heights 2nd Subdivision, which was given final approval by the city council later in the meeting.

The city council moved one step closer toward settling a public hearing date on a water extension district, sanitary sewer district and street improvement district in the Western Heights 2nd Subdivision.

IN OTHER action Tuesday night, the city council:

• Was confronted by Vern Russell about street conditions on Fairgrounds Avenue near the D & J Hatchery.

Russell said the road has become nearly impassible for feed trucks or other heavy vehicles. He spent $600 on gravel at the hatchery and now "you can hardly see it from all the mud."

He complained about the city's procedure of dumping street sweepings into the mire, which he added only "makes soup."

A solution, he said, would be to take the street sweepings away, have the mire dug out and then fill it with fill clay, compact it and then have the road graded.

"We know you have a problem with the street," said Mayor Wayne Marsh. "And we're going to do something about it."

"This whole thing has been aggravated by the weather," he said.

VERN SCHULTZ, Wayne street superintendent, said the city has "done the best we can do with what we've got to work with" on the street.

"We just don't have the manpower or the time right now," he said.

• Narrowed the number of computer bids sought by the city of Wayne from 13 to 3, with models from three companies (Computoservice, Inc. of Mankato, Minn., NCR Corporation of Lincoln, and Precision Computer Systems, Inc. of Sioux Falls, S.D.) to be brought to the city of Wayne on separate days for demonstration purposes.

LIFE FLIGHT paid a visit to Providence Medical Center last Friday morning displaying to staff members services the program provides.

City Hall to see changes

Wayne's City Hall will need to undergo several procedures and structural changes to comply with orders handed down by the Nebraska State Fire Marshal.

City Administrator Philip Kloster informed the city council Tuesday evening that the state fire marshal made an inspection of city hall on April 27 of this year at the request of the county commissioners of Wayne County.

Following the inspection, Wallace M. Barnett Jr., state fire marshal, ordered the city council to comply with the state of Nebraska regulations.

He ordered the council to install a minimum of five pound fire extinguishers for each floor of city hall.

An order was also issued to "seal up the old laundry chute located inside the city hall walls between floors with material of at least one hour construction.

THE THIRD order, which Kloster said could be the most costly to the city, would be to install a second exit from the second and third floors.

The fire marshal's orders said the work on the fire extinguishers for each floor and sealing the laundry chute (no longer being used) should be corrected as soon as possible.

Installing of the fireways and exits require a plan of correction needs which would be returned to the state fire marshal office stating the time limit for compliance of the order.

"All items are to be corrected within 30 days to comply with the state of Nebraska regulations.

"I guess we have no choice but to do those things," said Wayne councilman Freeman Decker.

Kloster agreed, saying "it would be a futile attempt and a waste of time to try and fight it [the state fire marshal orders]."

"It also shows they [the state fire marshal's office] are evidently concerned about our welfare," said Councilman Keith Mosely.

Estimate costs for bringing city hall to the state fire marshal's specifications "hasn't been tabulated as of Tuesday evening.

the "list of entries in the Little Miss/Little Mr. Contest" greatly outnumbered the number of contestants in the Senior Gent/Senior Belle Contest.

Entries of both classes must be submitted by June 1.

The coronation ceremony in both contests is scheduled for Sunday, June 14 (rain date June 21) during the Jaycette Centennial Ice Cream Social which will take place at the Bressler Park band shelter.

able to attend Centennial events.

JUDGING FOR the senior contest will be based 50 percent on the costume, 25 percent on personality/poise/smile and 25 percent on response to a simple question.

"Nominations of candidates are accepted also, but please contact that individual before submitting his or her name," Nolte said.

The ice cream social will take place from 6 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. and the coronation will be at 7 p.m. at the band shelter. The Chamber drawings will also take place at the shelter.

School board meets

Roof repair work approved

Members of the Wayne-Carroll Board of Education approved initial plans for roof repair work at middle and elementary school during a special meeting held on Thursday, May 24.

Lynn Jones, an architect with the firm of Davis, Fenton, Stange and Darling of Lincoln, presented plans for repair work on both a portion of the middle school roof and the east wing of the elementary school.

Of major concern to the board was the drainage system at the elementary school. After discussion, it was decided to go ahead with plans to allow water to run off the edges of the roof. The board determined that if problems should arise from the runoff, it will be taken care of as needed.

THE PLANS for the west wing will be developed at a later date, and will take into consideration the outcome of the construction of the east wing roof.

The architectural firm will now finalize plans and specifications for the roofing projects within 30 days, and the board will begin advertising for bids after that time period. Bids made on the projects will be made directly to the architectural firm and not the Wayne-Carroll School system.

In other action, the board moved to accept the resignation of becky Kelley from a social studies position at the Wayne-Carroll High School, and expressed their appreciation for the years she taught in the school system.

Special education contracts with Laurel and Winside Public Schools were voted on and approved.

The fee for drivers education instruction was lowered from $25 to $10 following a unanimous vote by the board.

The board went into executive session to discuss salary negotiations, but no action was taken. The next regular board meeting will be held on Tuesday, June 12 at 8 p.m.

Garden tips and myths

An old rule of thumb for planting vegetable seed is to plant at a depth equal to four times the diameter of the seed.

When watering is always a problem with some gardeners. Apply the equivalent of one inch of rainfall per week in a thorough slow soaking during periods when natural rainfall is lacking. Watering during the heat of the day will not burn the foliage of garden plants. The early morning hours would be the best time to water.

Planting melons next to cucumbers will not cause the melons to taste like cucumbers, any change that results from crossing of these two plants occur only within the seed. If those seeds were planted the following year there is a chance for the mixture to be evident. Do not plant sweet corn next to field corn or popcorn.

Rhubarb leaves and small berries that form on potato plants are toxic. Rhubarb leaves contain oxalic acid that might cause severe mouth burns. The berries that sometimes form on potato plants contain solanine, an alkaloid that could be fatal if eaten in large quantities.

Harvesting asparagus

When the spear size of asparagus begins to decline in the asparagus bed, it is time to stop harvesting the crop. Eight to ten weeks of harvest is usually maximum harvest for a mature asparagus bed.

After the harvest is complete, several maintenance steps should be taken to assure an equally good harvest next year.

Two pounds of urea or ammonium nitrate per 1,000 square feet side dressed on the rows after harvest will increase vegetative growth and strengthen the plant for next year's production. If fertilizer is unavailable, compost or well rotted manure should be used on the asparagus bed after harvest.

Simazine, a pre-emergent herbicide, could be used in the asparagus bed after harvest is completed. If label instructions are followed, many weed problems will be solved after using simazine.

Strawberries

When harvest period for June bearing strawberries is completed, only vigorous plantings of June bearing strawberries should be maintained for next year. Weak, weedy, or diseased plants should be destroyed following harvest.

June bearing strawberry beds should be renovated immediately after harvest. Yields and size of berries are usually less in second and third year beds.

Row widths of June bearers should be narrowed with a cultivator or plow. Original plantings in the center of the row should be plowed leaving a row six inches wide to the right or left of the original row. Spacing between new rows and use mulch or herbicides to kill competing weeds.

New rows should be irrigated and treated as young transplant. The Extension Office has a supply of Neb Guides on Strawberries.

Hog prices could strengthen during early summer months

Reductions in both seasonal and year to year slaughter of hogs should cause market prices to trend upward in June and into the summer, moving Omaha prices for market hogs to the $52 to $55 per hundredweight range by late June.

That's the prediction of Al Wellman, University of Nebraska extension economist for livestock marketing. Wellman said slaughter has declined moderately from April levels and has dipped below a year ago in recent weeks.

If prices move up as expected, this would end a three month period of relatively stable hog prices, he said. Slaughter is expected to continue declining into the summer and drop further below last year, adding strength to the market in July.

He forecasts July September prices to average in the high $50s, with the peak to reach the low to mid $60s range. Since mid March, prices have generally been in a $46 to $49 range, with mid-May prices from $48 to $50.

Recent slaughter totals have been close to the USDA's 10 state March hog inventory estimate, Wellman said. Second quarter, 1984 slaughter is predicted to be down 3 percent to 5 percent from 1983, with third quarter slaughter possibly 12 percent to 15 percent under a year earlier.

March May farrowing plans by producers indicate that October December slaughter will continue below the corresponding period in 1983, perhaps by 10 percent to 12 percent, the economist said.

Wellman said that while these reductions in slaughter should mean strong hog prices the last half of 1984—it could lead to a fairly quick upsurge in farrowings and an upturn in slaughter by late next spring.

Expansion in hog numbers is especially likely if 1984 corn prospects are favorable and lower feed costs are indicated late this year and in 1985, Wellman said. Producers likely will begin holding back gilts for herd expansion by late summer. And some year to year increase in farrowings could occur by late 1984 or early next year, Wellman said.

Expanded farrowings are likely through 1985, he added. Wellman said it's likely that there will be at least a moderate year to year reduction in slaughter in the first quarter 1985.

Control effective

Because many weeds grow well in water, weeds around water areas can become a problem. Ordinarily, it would be best to prevent weeds from taking over an area.

However, a more realistic approach is to control the weeds around waterways, according to John Furrer, extension weeds specialist at the University of Nebraska.

"Usually people don't get excited about the weeds until they see them, and most of the time the weeds are a real problem. I feel we must talk about control more so than prevention," Furrer said.

Weeds can be a problem around farm ponds, stock tanks, beaches and stock and nurse tanks.

When controlling the weeds around or in farm ponds, do not try to control all types of weeds at once, Furrer advised.

When all the weeds are treated at the same time, a decaying process occurs, he explained. This process consumes all the oxygen in the pond water, and the fish could die from suffocation.

He recommends treating one-half of the body water at a time to ensure the fish have oxygen.

Suggested applications are Aquathol (Endothal), Aquazine (Simazine), Aqua Clean (2,4-D), Diquat, Banvel and Casoran.

weed control along the shoreline includes several options.

"You must consider whether or not you want to complete control of vegetation," Furrer said.

The chemicals used to control weeds along the shoreline do different things. Use 2,4-D if keeping grass around shoreline is desirable. To clean up everything, Rodeo (a purified form of Roundup which is not toxic to fish) is used. Princep also can be used to treat weeds along the shoreline.

The most common concern with beaches is sandbar control. "I get many phone calls about preventing sandbars on beaches. This weed must be treated before it occurs," Furrer said.

Sandbars can be controlled with Princep, which, controls most weeds and is safe for trees when used in correct proportions.

Stock and nurse tanks need to be controlled against weeds. To control weeds in tanks, use a small amount of copper sulfate (CuSO4). According to Furrer, the one-half parts per million of copper sulfate is obtained by first mixing one ounce of copper sulfate in a pint of water, then adding dilutions of water.

Because many weeds grow well in water, they must be controlled before they become a major problem.

Precautions needed for storage pits

A University of Nebraska extension safety specialist, referring to the deaths of two Creighton, Neb., men (May 19) after inhaling poisonous gases while cleaning a hog manure pit, said if farmers and rescue personnel observe a few safety precautions, similar accidents can be prevented.

Rollin Schnieder said toxic gases caused by bacteria working to decompose the stored waste can be fatal and are irritants to both humans and animals.

Preventing deaths caused by gases in manure storage pits will be discussed on the "Farm and Ranch Report" Thursday, May 31, at 12:30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. The show airs on the Nebraska ETV network, repeating a second time Saturday, June 2, at 7:30 a.m.

It's easy to think it's safe, Schnieder said, because gases like carbon dioxide, ammonia, hydrogen sulfide and methanogen, generated in the confined pit, cannot be seen because they are colorless. The sharp odor of ammonia and "rotten-egg" smell of hydrogen sulfide can be identified, he said.

But after a few minutes people think the smell is gone when actually the sense of smell has been paralyzed, he said.

Agitation of the waste, usually done during draining, releases the water soluble gases held by the water and even with proper ventilation, they are lethal, Schnieder said.

Schnieder recommends the following safety precautions:

Never overfill a storage pit. Prevent the accumulation of noxious gases by using a good ventilation system along the sides of the pits and between the slats and the manure level. Always vent exhaust to the outside and install a power failure alarm as an alert that the system is not working properly.

And if you must enter a pit, do so only if it is very well ventilated and some sort of self contained breathing apparatus is worn. Never work alone. Use a safety rope while your partner waits at the top.

Another topic to be covered on "Farm & Ranch Report" is cattle bloat.

Paul Guyer, an NU extension beef specialist, said this is the time of year dairy and beef cattle may bloat on pasture.

Bloat, indigestion caused by a collection of gas in the rumen, occurs when the gas cannot be released through belching. Pasture bloat usually occurs in animals grazing on red and white clover and later in the season on alfalfa, Guyer said.

Cattle suffering from bloat experience a fullness of the stomach area, especially on the upper left side, have difficulty breathing and tend to lie down after moving short distances, he said. Acute bloat must be treated promptly. A deflating agent poured down the cow's throat through a one-inch in diameter, eight to 10-foot long hose usually provides quick relief, he said. If not, a large trocar and sharp knife may be needed to puncture a small incision in the rumen.

Guyer suggested the following bloat prevention methods: Plant and manage pasture for no more than 50 percent alfalfa or clover; fill cattle on dry roughage or grass pasture before turning to legume pasture; feed grain or grain roughage mixture to reduce pasture intake; don't run cattle on wet pasture; and feed Potoxalene, an anti-foaming agent that can help prevent bloat for up to 12 hours.

Farm community is CBS feature

A look at the demise of the small farm community in Nebraska will be part of a national, three part CBS News series with Dan Rather on the CBS Evening News that was to start Tuesday and continue through tonight (May 29-31).

It looks at the agriculture economy, its effects on small towns, and possible policy alternatives and issues.

Dr. Larry Swanson, director of policy studies for the Great Plains Center at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln (UNL), will be featured on the stories taped in Tilden, Fullerton, Polk and Walthill.

Swanson said he was called by a CBS news team as a result of his survey on the disappearance over the past 40 years of small towns that depend on the farm economy.

"They wanted the 'big story' behind all the farm auctions that had been covering this year," Swanson said. A CBS crew out of Chicago and reporter Meredith Viera came to Nebraska after reading a reprint of Swanson's report in the Des Moines Register.

The prognosis for small towns looks bad over the next five years, according to Swanson.

"The message is that as we lose more and more farms in the state, all types of rural institutions are deteriorating. Businesses are affected, and the age structure of the rural population becomes much older than the urban population."

Until now the presumption was that the trend would stabilize and so would the rural population, Swanson said.

"But right now all conditions are set for this decline to accelerate. We are at that point we need to increase entry into agriculture. We have not effectively squeezed out entry into agriculture, but have greatly speeded up the process of leaving agriculture."

As the trend to leave has continued, the rural population has aged, he said. In 1950s the rural population was younger than the urban. But today 20 percent of the rural population is over 65 as compared to 11 percent of urban dwellers.

He believes that "the key ingredient to survival is whether or not we are going to be able to stabilize the number of farms in the state that will determine the future of rural agricultural communities in Nebraska and other states."

Dates scheduled for district dairy shows

Twelve District Dairy Shows have been scheduled for 1984, nine in Nebraska and three in Iowa, according to Phil Cole, University of Nebraska extension dairyman. All 4-H club members and FFA students are invited to exhibit at one of the district shows.

"There are no entry fees," Cole said. "The entries for both individuals and herds should be made of Ak-Sar-Ben farms and then sent to the exhibitor's extension agent or vocational agriculture instructor who will forward them to the host county at least five days prior to the show."

According to Cole, requirements for the district show are as follows: Individuals can exhibit at only one of the 12 shows; the animal must have an official health certificate indicating that it has tested negative for Brucellosis. This needs to be done more than 60 days prior to the show date; the animal must not be under 20 months of age and the animal must be officially calfhood vaccinated.

"No tuberculosis test is required since the state is accredited free," Cole said. "An exhibitor may show three animals; and if these three qualify as a herd, they may be shown in the herd class," he continued.

To be eligible to exhibit at the Ak-Sar-Ben Dairy Show on Sept.

24, all candidates must be 2 years old or older and receive a purple or blue ribbon at the district show.

In addition to dairy entries, each county is invited to nominate one queen candidate per show. The candidates must be 16 years of age or older as of Jan. 1, 1984, and be enrolled in the 4-H dairy project.

Breeds eligible for entry include: Arysthere, Brown Swiss, Guernsey, Holstein, Jersey and Milking Shorthorn. According to Cole, both grade and registered animals may be shown.

Show sponsors include the Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben, Nebraska Dairyman's Association and Nebraska-Iowa dairy interests in cooperation with the Nebraska and Iowa Cooperative Extension Services.

Area dates, locations and participating counties for this year's shows are as follows:

July 30: Fremont (Christensen Field) — Burt, Colfax, Cuming, Dodge, Douglas, Saunders and Washington.

Aug. 6: Norfolk (Norfolk Livestock Auction Co.) — Antelope, Boone, Boyd, Garfield, Holt, Knox, Madison, Pierce, Platte, Stanton and Wheeler.

Aug. 7: Laurel, Iowa (Lumberyard) — Cedar, Dakota, Dixon, Thurston and Wayne in Nebraska; Clay, Lincoln, Turner, Union and Yankton in South Dakota.

The final planting date for insured corn in Antelope, Boyd, Bron, Cedar, Cuming, Dakota, Dixon, Holt, Keya Paha, Knox, Madison, Pierce, Rock, Stanton, Thurston, and Wayne Counties in Nebraska is June 5, according to Donald E. Harmer, supervisor for the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation (FCIC).

"Acres of corn planted by June 5, insured by FCIC (or by a private company, reinsured by FCIC), must be reported by June 30 to receive full crop insurance coverage," says Harmer.

Acres planted after June 5 should also be reported on the June 30 acreage report (in the "remarks" section) as being planted too late for insurance coverage.

"The final planting date of June 5 is the latest date established by FCIC to plant and expect a normal crop to be produced. Crops initially planted after this date are not insurable unless a late planting agreement is signed by the final planting date," Harmer said.

Farmers wishing to discuss local conditions, such as excessive moisture, that may affect planting should contact their local, authorized crop insurance agent as soon as possible.

Weevils invade

Some reports of alfalfa weevil activity are beginning to come in, reports Stan Staring, Dixon County Extension Agent.

The small green larvae (worms) leave small holes in the leaves at the growing point of the plant. Exposure to sunlight following alfalfa cutting will kill many of the smaller larvae, and others will starve.

When 30 to 40 percent of the growing tips show weevil feeding damage, the field should be cut within one week. If the field will not reach the bud or early bloom stage within one week, then immediate treatment should give a profitable increase in first cutting yield.

If the field does not need treatment now, but re-growth is delayed and slow, then treatment may be needed later. A number of different insecticides give effective control. Your dealer will probably have a choice of several on hand.

Treatment of blooming alfalfa is both impractical and destructive to useful honeybees. Different varieties of alfalfa have widely different degrees of resistance to alfalfa weevil, so scout each field and treat separately.

Further details can be found in the Insects and Pests Nebguide G7330, "The Alfalfa Weevil." Your local library probably has a bound copy of Nebguides, or contact the Extension Office for a copy.

Dairy poll given

Affected dairy farmers will be polled to determine if they approve a U.S. Department of Agriculture emergency final decision to amend the advertising and promotions programs in six federal milk marketing orders.

Edward T. Coughlin, dairy official with USDA's Agriculture Marketing Service in Washington, D.C., said the decision, based on the record of a public hearing, would make orders compatible with provisions of the new national dairy research and promotion program that became effective May 1.

The six milk orders that would be amended are the Middle Atlantic, Eastern Ohio-Western Pennsylvania, Indiana, Greater Kansas City, St. Louis-Ozarks, and Nebraska-Western Iowa milk orders.

Coughlin said the amendments would: Provide a fixed withholding rate of 10 cents per hun-dredweight while the new national dairy research and promotion program is in effect.

Honor producer requests for refunds by directing the monies either to the national promotion board, or to other qualified state or regional programs designated by the producer.

And provide, except for the Middle Atlantic order, that the uniform price be announced without reflecting the rate of withholding for advertising and promotion.

A recommended decision was eliminated because of the urgent need to coordinate the Federal order advertising and promotion programs with the national program, Coughlin said.

The emergency final decision will be published in the May 18 Federal Register. Copies also are available from the respective administrators for the orders, or from Dairy Division, AMS, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Nebraska IFYE delegates announced

This summer, nine young Nebraskans will have the chance to increase their international awareness — but their knowledge won't come from a book or from a classroom lecture.

Rather, these young people will be learning about various countries around the world by living in them for four to six months as part of the 1984 International 4-H Youth Exchange program.

IFYE representatives live mainly with farm families for three weeks at a time, said John Orr, University of Nebraska extension 4-H specialist. By living with seven to nine families, the IFYE's see various crops grown and learn of the economy, geographic differences and cultural differences of various areas of a country.

For their group project, the IFYE's will create a special slide set observing "1985: International Year of the Child," Orr said. He added that this slide set and a videotape will be made available to groups through the Cooperative Extension Service.

One of the area delegates selected for participation in the program is Lon Kevin Swanson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Swanson of Wayne, who will be the guest of families from Egypt.

4-H coordinators named

Eight University of Nebraska students have been named coordinators for the 48th annual Nebraska State 4-H Conference to be held June 18-22 in Lincoln, Ken Schmidt of the NU extension 4-H youth development specialist announced this week.

Among the eight students is Cynthia Waide of Winslow. The coordinators have assisted in conference planning and will be responsible for conducting the conference in conjunction with the State 4-H Department of the NU Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

4-H Citizenship dates set

Nearly 200 youth from throughout Nebraska will be attending the 4-H Citizenship-Washington Focus summer program at the National 4-H Center in Chevy Chase, Maryland, according to Ken Schmidt, University of Nebraska extension 4-H specialist.

Area Nebraska groups attending the 4-H Citizenship-Washington Focus program in 1984 include the following: From June 10-16, Cedar, Dakota, Dixon, Thurston and Wayne Counties.

COMMUNITY CLUB

The Allen Community Development Club met the evening of May 21 for a dinner meeting at the Silver Dolphin and the program on Childfind at the Allen fire hall. The Childfind group from Sioux City presented the program telling some of the facts about missing children in which 150,000 children are reported missing in the United States each year, 100,000 are victims of illegal noncustodial parental kidnappings. They explained how the Childfind program works in helping to locate missing children and how we can help. Each person was given a sheet of instructions on how to teach your child the facts of abduction early. If handled matter of factly and simply as another fact of life — another coping skill — children need not be inordinately frightened by the idea of abduction. One help was to make an identification file which would include fingerprints, fingerprints, birth certificate, photographs (full facial portraits, pre-schoolers should be photographed at least four times a year), photographs of birth marks, moles, scars, deformities — any distinguishing marks; dental records, medical records, blood type, illnesses, disease, immunizations, allergies, speech impediments, X-rays of bone fractures, etc.; physical description: height, weight, color of eyes, color of hair; lock of hair; sample of handwriting; passport and tape recording of child's voice. The persons speaking at the club meeting were from the Friends of Child Find, a non-profit organization out of North Sioux City, S.D.

HEALTH TIPS
From Your Family Physician
FEVER IN INFANTS AND CHILDREN (CLIP AND SAVE)

One of the most common symptoms eliciting a call or a trip to your physician is fever in an infant or child. Fever is the body's response to inflammation or infection. Fever is often the first sign there may be a problem. It does not always indicate a dangerous infection.

Guidelines on when to notify your physician or bring your child in for an elevated temperature are difficult to define. It would be important to call or visit your doctor if:

- The child is under six weeks old.
- The temperature does not come down or return to normal within 48 hours.
- The child complains of pain or seems to rub or pull at ears.
- The child begins to vomit and is unable to keep fluids down.
- The child has a fit or convulsion.
- Spots or rash appears.

Whether the child is rechecked or not will depend upon your report to the doctor. Therefore, tell him everything you feel is important. Behavior changes are important. If a parent is worried, we feel they should call if for no other reason than for reassurance about the child's condition and how they are doing. Always feel free to call.

Do's and Don'ts With A Fever:

- DO take the temperature every four hours. Normal temperatures: Oral-98° Rectal-99-100°
- DO encourage fluid intake. Clear liquids are good choices.
- DO follow the doctors orders and continue any medication for the full-time that you were instructed.
- Give the child an analgesic to help control the fever. Following is a list of choices with the recommended dosages.
- DON'T overdress the child too much in bed.
- DON'T give alcohol rubs or apply ice to control the fever. Give a recommended analgesic. If the fever remains above 103°, you may give a lukewarm bath for 30-45 minutes.
- DON'T give any medicine to an infant under 3 months old without calling your doctor first.

Analgesic medicine should be given every four hours when needed. These can be purchased without prescription at any drug store. Below are listed commonly used medicines for fever and their dosages.

Landlord Mossman of Carroll is adding a large addition and making other improvements in his hotel at Carroll, so that it will soon be one of the best hotels in this part of the state. Byron is a hustler.

When Martha Bollob, the fair daughter of a wealthy Georgian planter, married Theodore Roosevelt half a century ago she little dreamed that her name would be handed down as the mother of a president.—The pretty romance of her meeting with the New York man, their courtship and marriage, and the long business journey in a stagecoach, form a new and interesting chapter in connection with the life of the present Theodore Roosevelt. In the number of The Ladies' Home Journal this romance and many unknown facts concerning the President's mother are told by a cousin of Martha Bollob.

Young Men's STYLES

One of the most successful of popular clothing styles for young men ever designed was a "Harrington's" style. This season's style is quite different in cut but not in its great popularity. Among men who seek the latest and best style, Harrington's is the "Harrington" in the market. It is the style all right. If you want to have the right thing you must find the H. S. & J. label; other makers may try to imitate the style, the label is your clothes' insurance policy. We put in the maker's own guarantee of your satisfaction.

The Gregory County State Bank has obtained a private office in the front of its building. It is separated from the main office by bronze wire netting and fitted up with a handsome office desk. The interior of this bank is very attractive.—Fairfax News in Gregory County Times.

A friend of mine writes me that he is at a loss to know what the Teeswater breed of cattle are. In their early history Short-horn cattle were known as "Teeswater" as named after the locality of their origin on the banks of the river Tees in England. The name has long been obsolete. Durham cattle was a name used later, but now the breed are almost universally called Short-horn on both sides of the water.—Huronist.

A series which should have been named "The Embellishments of our Modern Aladdin" if considered worthy of the poet of romance, is begun in the May Cosmopolitan. But these sketches possess as well a business interest equally for clerk and capitalist, for manufacturer, farmer and merchant. The man who would understand the drift of our news in finance and business must read these lives, so full of incident, of chance, of hard labor and marvelous success. As it is, the series, receives only the common-place name of "Captains of Industry." Each character is treated by a noted writer familiar with his subject.
