Rec area being built at jail

Wayne County will be paying up to $3,000 for materials which will be used toward constructing a small outdoor recreation area for inmates who face lengthy stays at the present county jail located in Wayne.

Minimal work on the outdoor recreation area has already started, according to Wayne County Sheriff LeRoy Janssen.

Janssen said the county has until June 30, 1984, to complete the jail yard project. Other wise, the county would be in non-compliance with the State of Nebraska Jail Standards which were placed into effect in August, 1980 and later revised in February of last year.

The adopted jail standards for jail facilities statewide relate to several topics, including mail, visiting and telephone services, health services, food services, inmates' rights, inmate behavior, discipline and grievance, existing facility design and construction and new facility design and construction.

Janssen said Wayne County's jail complies with most of the required standards. But complete compliance will require that the county provide space for outdoor inmate exercise.

He said the area is to be a minimum of 600 square feet and would be increased proportionately for larger detention facilities.

THE PLANNED 20' by 30' outside area, which is to be located just beyond the southwest corner of the present jail, will allow inmates locked in the jail to have about a hour of sunshine per day for five days each week.

A brick retaining wall will be removed from the 18 year old jail site to make room for jail yard. The yard will have a concrete floor and will be surrounded by a 10 foot high fence with barb wire strung across the top of the fence.

Already the inmates are allowed to exercise inside the county jail, Janssen said, with weights or exercise bikes. But the jail yard "has its purpose," he said.

A jail yard will "allow the inmate to get fresh air, create a better attitude and make it easier to manage the prisoners," Janssen mentioned.

To assure visibility of the prisoners in the jail yard, Janssen said a window and possible mirror will also be remodeled onto the present sheriff's department office. A basketball hoop, ball plus weights will be the basic recreation equipment used by the inmates.

Most of the equipment will be stored in a tin shed on the grounds of the jail yard, Janssen said.

City hourly workers given raises

A 4 percent wage increase was approved for the upcoming fiscal year to a major share of Wayne's city hourly employees.

The Wayne City Council approved the salary hikes during an early Wednesday morning (June 6) session conducted at The Windmill.

Darrel Fuelberth and Larry Johnson, two councilmen were designated by the city council earlier this year to serve on a committee to establish salary rates for city hourly employees (which include all city employees other than department heads and administrative staff).

Fuelberth said the 4 percent wage increase will give the city employees a salary "as close to average (of other cities) as possible."

Six employees within the city's electrical department were exempted from the 4 percent salary hike. Those six employees will receive a straight dollar increase.

The "straight increase" was needed "as an adjustment to reflect more of an industrial level (of wages) than what the city was presently at," said city administrator Philip Kloster.

Freeman Decker made the motion to approved the salary recommendations of Fuelberth and Johnson and it was seconded by Carolyn Filter.

More details concerning actual dollar amount increases will appear in Monday's edition of The Wayne Herald.

The next city fiscal year will be begin in Aug. 1984 and conclude July 31, 1985. Wage recommendations for the city's department heads and the administrative staff will be presented to the city council within the next few weeks.

ALSO WEDNESDAY morning, the city council members voted 6-1 to increase the monthly allowance the city pays to retired city employees.

Darrell Heier made the motion, seconded by Carolyn Filter, to retain the current $12 monthly that the retired city employees are receiving and "add 50 cents per year of service — up to a maximum of 20 years."

Councilman Larry Johnson voted against the proposal.

A motion had first been passed to leave the monthly allowance exactly as is — which was approved by a 4-3 margin. But the council, preferring to change the existing ordinance, would not have the necessary votes to re-write the ordinance.

So the council voted on the second option proposed by Heier.

Baier maps the past

If walls could speak, there would certainly be a lot of history talking from the interiors of businesses along Wayne's Main Street.

Some of those "words of history" have been recorded by Bess (Mrs. Richard) Baier, a 60 year resident of the Wayne area.

Through tedious months of research and tiring reading, Bess has developed a map of numbers which represent past and present business locations along Wayne's Main Street from First Street to Fourth Street.

Corresponding with each number is a chronological listing of businesses that had, at one time, occupied the building. Some of the businesses were established as early as 1881, according to Bess' findings.

"I'm just getting started (on the business locations), Bess said. She is a member of Centennial Cultural and Historical Committee which is chaired by Sandra Elliott.

The Centennial Steering Committee and Mrs. Baier invite the public to use the map and "take a walking tour of Wayne's downtown from First Street to Fourth Street."

THE MATERIAL supplied in Bess' map, along with details of the August celebration, will be provided in the Centennial promotional materials and brochures to be printed soon.

Bess said she started researching the material for the business map last September. Her research began with telephone directories. "But if you go back a ways, there was a time when the telephone directories didn't list street numbers."

From there, Bess had to rely on old newspaper stories which occasionally would mention a business that was "two doors down from the German Store" or would mention a store across the street from another business.

"The most tedious task was going through the telephone directories. It was more fun reading the old newspapers," said Bess, who received most of her old newspapers from the Wayne County Historical Society of which she is also a member.

"I really wanted to know about the old businesses and stores. It might seem crazy to some people," she said. Her interest peaked when grandparents would speak of the Wayne businesses.

"There were considerably more businesses than on the map [being published with this story]. It takes a lot longer to get it all. But I would like to get it done by the time of the Centennial," Bess mentioned.

Due to space limitations, occupants of upstairs or basement rooms were not listed. Little time has been spent at this point on locating businesses from the period after 1940, according to information provided about the map.

Commonwealth committee meets

Nebraska governors are questioned

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Potential trouble at Commonwealth Savings Co. was first brought to the attention of a Nebraska governor in the spring of 1982, according to testimony last week before the Legislature's special Commonwealth Committee.

In the two days of hearings, the committee heard from three governors — Govs. J.J. Exon, Charles Thone and Bob Kerrey — and other state officials in an effort to learn about the state response to developing troubles at the insolvent Lincoln financial institution.

Actions by officials are critical to the question of possible state liability for depositor losses. Ultimately, the Legislature could be called upon to appropriate more than $30 million to cover the losses.

Thone told the committee he first learned of difficulty at Commonwealth when former state Banking Director Paul Amen brought him a list of problem institutions in May 1982, a time when Thone said the entire financial industry was distressed.

Earlier, the committee heard from U.S. Sen. J.J. Exon that he was told nothing of the difficulties at Commonwealth during his tenure as governor, from 1971 to 1979.

The committee also heard during the hearing from Exon's banking director, William Riley of Grand Island, that troubles at Commonwealth were never of a sufficient magnitude to cause concern at top levels of the Exon administration.

Serious problems began to be identified in annual banking examinations in the late 1970s, and the state declared the institution insolvent on Nov. 1, 1983.

In addition to the May 1981 discussion with Amen, Thone said he talked with his banking director about the institution in July 1982, and again in December 1982, just a few days before leaving office.

During the July discussion, Thone said, he encouraged Amen to continue working to assure that Commonwealth President S.E. Copple injected sufficient capital to keep the institution operating.

The subject came up in a December meeting at the governor's mansion where Amen had gone to get Thone's signature on papers relating to the takeover of the cooperative credit association at Dwlght.

Amen mentioned that the Federal Bureau of Investigation was investigating Beatrice institutions belonging to James and Nancy Gillette, and that the investigation might "stop-over" into Commonwealth.

Thone said he did nothing with the information from Amen, which he said the banking director had offered as "a very casual statement."

In his testimony, Kerrey reiterated his belief that state government is liable for depositor's losses. Kerrey said he thinks the liability is the result of inadequate regulation of Commonwealth by state government and the false guarantee of deposits by the Nebraska Depository Institution Guaranty

Corp., an entity that Kerrey said he thinks is an instrumentality of state government.

Decisions made by state regulators, Kerrey said, "fall into the category of serious errors of judgment."

The most serious errors of judgment made by state officials, including Amen and himself, Kerrey said, was clinging to the mistaken belief that Commonwealth President S.E. Copple could infuse enough capital to save the troubled institution.

Exon declined to offer an opinion to the committee on potential legal liability for depositor losses.

"From my reading of news accounts, I feel that if state government failed to prudently act to protect depositors, then at a minimum a moral obligation exists to depositors," he said.

Thone, likewise, declined to offer an opinion on legal liability. "I think the moral obligation is clear, but how do you cross over the constitutional barrier?" Thone asked. "That is one tough hurdle."

Wasted dollars

When Wayne County's jail was constructed during the latter 1800's, prisoners within the jail must have suffered insurmountable hardships.

There probably were no exercise routines available for the prisoners, no library books to scan, no toilet facilities inside the cell and the paperwork involved in jailing an individual was probably minimal.

The silliness of all this is that it was actually a bore to be a prisoner. This situation has somewhat changed within the past years.

In August of 1980, the state of Nebraska adopted jail standards which, for the most part, appears to benefit the prisoner more than the county taxpayers.

For instance, the "jail standards" regulations state that library materials shall be available to all inmates housed in all detention facilities. Those library materials are to include the current local newspaper and current daily newspaper, current magazines and a reasonable selection of books.

Also, all inmates housed in detention facilities must have the opportunity for physical exercise and recreation. Prisoners who are to be confined overnight shall be provided with a hot shower or bath daily, toilet paper, soap and appropriate personal hygiene items for male and female inmates (with the exception of when security requires deprivation of these facilities).

These are some of the prisoner privileges which could be considered as benefitting the inmate at the cost of the taxpayers.

One major project stands in the way of Wayne County completely meeting all standards as specified by the Nebraska Jail Standards Board.

The "standard" project which hasn't been completed, but must be finished by June 30 of this year, is the construction of an outdoor area which will be used by the inmates for outdoor exercises, relaxation or "just taking in the sun."

This project, which has already started, is expected to cost up to $3,000. According to the regulations, all detention facilities shall provide space for outdoor inmate exercises.

The area must be at least 600 square feet or increased proportionately for larger detention facilities.

Sheriff LeRoy Janssen said the "sunshine hour" — an hour for each of the five days each week — seems to be impractical for the amount the project will cost to construct.

If the inmate had a year or more stay in the Wayne County jail, it's more practical to have the outdoor jailyard facility. But, he said, the average stay for the county inmates is up to 60 days. The average occupancy of the jail daily is up to four people.

Putting up a basketball hoop and a tin shed to store weights and other recreation equipment in the jail yard are in the future plans, Janssen said.

Some of the standards adopted by the Nebraska Jail Standards Board are good — such as offering a range of rehabilitative services and programs of benefit to the inmates for assistance in reintegrating with the community or the training requirement of all jail facility employees who work in excess of 200 hours annually in direct or continuing contact with inmates.

But the jail yard project is one standard which would be more appropriate for larger state prisons rather than Wayne County's jail.

It would be more advantageous and constructive to revise the jail standards again and have inmates soaking up the sunshine outdoors by doing manual labor on projects which would benefit the city or county.

I OUGHTA DO YARDWORK TODAY, BUT...

Competition fierce

Teenagers looking for jobs

It is not easy being a teenager out beating the pavement looking for a summer job. A lot of sure things can turn into maybe's, and maybe's often end up as no's. And the competition is fierce.

While adult unemployment is down to below 7 percent, teenage unemployment remains stubbornly high at 19.4 percent (16.2 percent for white teenagers and a disappointing 44.8 percent for black teenagers).

Sometimes it seems that the whole world is conspiring against you. Well, maybe not the whole world, but it must be disheartening to these teens to learn that the federal government has placed a major obstacle between them and summer jobs.

That will change somewhat, and Uncle Sam will become, if not a friend, at least less of an adversary to teenage job seekers if Congress acts quickly to pass the Youth Employment Opportunity Act of 1984. This act would generate more than 400,000 additional jobs for teenagers this summer.

It is not one of those "make work" summer job plans that politicians like to ballyhoo — increasing city taxes to put the children of the mayor's campaign contributors on the city payroll. These would be real jobs, training for real skills in the real wealth-creating economy.

The legislation, introduced in the Senate by Charles Percy (R-Ill.) and in the House of Representatives by Ron Packard (R-Calif.), would establish a youth differential for the minimum wage during the summer months from May 1 to September 30.

Teenagers between the ages of 16 and 19 would be allowed to take jobs at $2.50 an hour, jobs that simply don't exist today at the regular minimum wage of $3.35 per hour.

Many teenagers entering the job market for the first time do not yet possess skills worth $3.35 an hour to an employer. And since most skills demanded in the labor market are learned on the job, teenagers find that the high minimum wage law becomes a Catch-22. Their skills aren't worth $3.35. They lack the skills because they haven't worked.

They can't get work because of the minimum wage law. It is a vicious cycle, and the politicians who passed such legislation at the behest of the labor union bosses have a great deal of explaining to do.

They should begin by going out onto the street and explaining to an unemployed 18-year-old why he is better off unemployed and on the street at $3.35 an hour rather than working for $2.50 an hour. And once a teen has that first job, he begins learning skills that will soon make him worth $3.35 an hour and then $4.00 an hour and more in the future.

The National Conference of Black Mayors recently endorsed President Reagan's Youth Employment Opportunity Act. They have seen firsthand what happens when politicians kick out the bottom rungs of the economic ladder and then murmur platitudes to teenagers laying prostrate, tangled in the social safety net.

The politicians are doing nobody any favors by teaching teenagers to rely on welfare rather than their own abilities. There are many kinds of dependencies. The administration and Congress recognize how destructive and debilitating drug and alcohol dependencies can be to young Americans. It is time to reexamine some of our nation's minimum wage and welfare laws to change those incentives which foster dependency rather than self-respect.

A minimum wage law that keeps our nation's teenagers unemployed during the summer months robs them of the opportunity to learn new skills and denies teens the self-esteem and confidence that working for a living provides.

Congress should act quickly to pass the Youth Employment Opportunity Act. We cannot allow another summer to pass with teenagers kept out of work by well-meaning but counterproductive laws.

The above was written by Richard L. Leshar, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Investigation needed for FmHA

Congressman Doug Bereuter has asked the General Accounting Office (GAO) to conduct an investigation to determine the sources of loan processing delays within the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA).

At an appearance Friday in Fremont, Bereuter said that he has asked GAO to conduct the investigation and to recommend solutions for eliminating the delays and for upgrading the internal operations of FmHA offices. Bereuter also made suggestions for improving FmHA operations.

"In a recent meeting that I had with Secretary of Agriculture John Block, I proposed that a larger share of the burden of the paperwork involved in loan applications be shifted from the FmHA to the lending bank," Bereuter said.

"This is currently the practice with the Small Business Administration (S.B.A.) loan guarantees, and both the S.B.A. and the banks seem happier with the arrangement. By shifting the loan application paperwork, bank loan officers who generally have a better knowledge of a farmer's operations have a greater role in the process.

"Also, by eliminating a large percentage of their paperwork, we would give FmHA more time to devote to counseling present customers who are having financial difficulties," Bereuter added.

Bereuter noted that, "The most serious problem that must be addressed by Congress is the cost and availability of farm credit. The situation is as bad as it has been in fifty years. Farmers must have access to operating capital at an affordable price."

While the cost of money has fallen since the 21 1/2 percent prime rate level under President Carter, with interest rates still at 14, 15 and 16 percent, there simply is not enough profitability in agriculture for farmers and ranchers to generate sufficient cash flow to repay or roll over operating loans each year.

"The issue of operating capital — the cost of it, how to get it, and where to get it — is a

"Many of the cases coming to my attention involve FmHA, the lender of last resort, and that agency's inability to handle new loan applications. In some situations, farmers have waited up to eight months or more for decisions on loan applications."

"These problems earlier prompted me to take my proposals directly to Secretary Block and to FmHA Administrator Charles Shuman, and now to ask for a GAO investigation," Bereuter said.

"Since I met with Shuman earlier this year, FmHA has indeed begun to put a greater emphasis on consolidating and rescheduling loans — though more must be accomplished. And, Secretary Block has assured me that he will give immediate consideration to proposals for change in the application process."

Dale Boyle recuperating in Iowa

To the editor:

We recently returned from visiting Dale and Harriet Boyle. His condition is very much improved but he still has a long way to go. He is confined to a wheelchair except for therapy sessions. He can see out of one eye, hear out of one ear, and speaks well. He is mentally alert but experiences some confusion at times, which appears to be related to the nature of his environment for the past eight months rather than injury. He reads and watches T.V.

Dale has full use of his left arm and can make a fist with his right hand. He is unable to use the right arm since both the elbow and shoulder joints were damaged in the accident. He will eventually have surgery on both joints. He is beginning to learn how to walk on his artificial leg and his right leg is in a brace. Unfortunately he has no sensation in that leg from the knee down.

Both Harriet and Dale are superb examples of determined human spirits. She has been with him each day and participates totally in his therapy. A large portion of his recovery is due to her constant attention and determination. They are both very angry but are using their anger to their advantage. Dale is convinced he will prove all the doctors wrong (so far his record is good!) and become an independent individual. They hope his current round of therapy will be finished in August so that he can come home for awhile.

Dale is very interested in what is going on in Wayne, especially in the business community. Cards and letters will reach him at the following address:

Wayne runs past Wausa 11-1 to remain undefeated

Three sets of brothers started for Wayne's Town Team last Sunday night in the abbreviated seven-inning game against Wausa.

Wayne easily won the game by a score of 11-1.

Shortstop Tim Pfeifer and third baseman Todd Pfeifer combined brotherly talents to score five of Wayne's runs and collected four of the team's total 14 hits in the league contest.

Brothers Dennis Carroll, at second base, and Doug Carroll at first base combined efforts to collect two hits and score one run.

The other remaining brother combination which started Sunday night's game was Bill Schwartz in left field and Todd Schwartz behind the plate.

At Nissen, the Wayne right fielder, also began the game in right field and had two base hits. His brother, Kevin, missed Sunday night's game due to an injury.

Having the hot bat for Wayne was Jeff Dion, who had three hits in four times at bat. Dion smacked two doubles and a triple, batting in four runs and scoring two runs himself.

WAYNE SCORED two runs in the third inning when Todd Pfeifer doubled. Todd Schwartz, who walked prior to Pfeifer's hit, was out at home plate trying to score on the play. A single by Tim Pfeifer scored Todd Pfeifer and a double by Dion scored Tim Pfeifer.

Five more runs were added to Wayne's score in the bottom of the fourth inning when Al Nissen and Doug Carroll hit back-to-back singles. Todd Schwartz then walked and Todd Pfeifer followed with his second hit of the game. Dion then unleashed a triple and later scored on a double hit by Bill Schwartz.

Final runs by Wayne were scored in the sixth inning after Todd Pfeifer walked and Mike Meyer uncorked a single followed by Dion's second double of the game.

BILL SCHWARTZ and Neil Blohm both drew walks and a second baseman's error on a ball hit by Rich Neely accounted for the four runs needed to finish the game under the 10-run rule regulation.

The winning pitcher for Wayne was Joel Ankeny, who went the entire distance, allowing just two hits while walking two and striking out six Wausa batters.

Wayne Town Team, the only undefeated team in the Tri County Amateur Baseball League according to player-manager Mike Meyer, sports a league record of 4-0.

The Wayne Town Team was to travel to Laurel yesterday (Wednesday). Next Sunday Wayne will journey to Harrington and the following Wednesday travel to O'Neill.

Laurel travels to Plainview on Sunday and then plays at home against Orchard next Wednesday, June 13.

Girls softball team takes win number four against Thurston

Wayne's girls softball team scored five runs in the top of the third inning on their way to claiming their fourth victory of the season over Thurston 11-1 on Tuesday night at Thurston.

Wayne will go for win number five on Thursday, June 7 when they take on Pender at Hank Overin Field in Wayne.

The team opened the game with a single run in the opening inning, and backed it up with five runs in the third, three in the fourth and a final two runs in the fifth to put the game out of reach.

Lisa Jacobsen and Kofette Frevert provided the batting power for the Wayne team on the evening. Frevert knocked out a triple with no one on in the top of the third and came up with a singled later in the game. Jacobsen rapped out two singles in her trips to the plate.

The only other extra-base hit for Wayne also came when Laura Keating drove in two runs with a double in the top of the third.

Wayne tallied 10 hits on their way to scoring 11 runs.

Roni Johnson pitched her second no-hitter of the year, striking out eight Thurston batters and walking six. Johnson has allowed only three hits in the first four games of the 1984 season.

Thurston scored their lone run in the bottom of the third inning when a runner scored on a sacrifice fly to the infield after reaching base on a walk.

During last week's game with Emerson, centerfielder Paula Koplin suffered a broken bone in her foot when she twisted it coming into second base. She currently appears to be lost for the season, but there is a possibility that she may back in the line-up in time for districts.

A look at four game batting statistics follows:

Sudden-death

Marchese wins Wayne Open

A family game

Errors are trouble as Midgets down Wakefield

Wayne's Midget baseball team combined for nine runs in the opening innings to take a 9-1 win over the Wakefield Midgets in action on Tuesday, June 5 at Overin Field in Wayne.

It was the second win in as many starts for the team, who will take on the Norfolk Midgets in a doubleheader tonight (Thursday) in Norfolk beginning at 6 p.m. They will play again on Friday, June 8 against Ponca at 6:30 p.m. in Ponca.

Wayne capitalized on six Wakefield errors to score four runs in the bottom of the first and five runs in the second inning for the win.

Shannon Dorcey reached first base on an error to start the inning for Wayne, and Dan Gross rapped out one of his two singles to make it to first. Don Larsen and Ted Lueders each took advantage of infield errors to get on base and eventually score.

Dorcey again led things off in the second, taking first base on an error followed by a walk by Brian Fleming and a single by Gross. Larsen and Jeff Hausman each advanced to first on a fielder's choice, and Casey Nichols smacked out a double later in the inning to produce Wayne's scoring.

Wakefield's single run came in the top of the third when Mike Nelson scored on a fielder's choice after being walked.

Ted Lueders started on the mound, notching five strikeouts and six walks before being relieved by Jason Jorgensen in the top of the fourth inning. Jorgensen struck out four opposing batters and gave up no walks.

Wakefield's pitcher, Mike Nelson, gave up two walks and struck down six Wayne batters at the plate.

Nichols went one for three in the batter's box with his second inning double. Gross collected a pair of singles in three trips to the plate. Bill Liska and Shannon Dorcey each had singles to complete Wayne's hitting.

Dorcey had a hot night on the base paths, stealing four bases of the team's nine stolen bases.

Softball tournament

WJAG/KEXL will sponsor its fifth annual men's slow pitch softball tournament on Wednesday, July 4 at the Softball Complex at Ta-Ha-Zouka Park in Norfolk.

This will be an open tournament with 12 teams playing double elimination. Entry fee is $55, due by June 22, plus one new gold stitch restricted flight ball.

Entry fee after June 22 will be $65. Entry deadline is June 27. For more information on the tournament, call 371-0780.

Fishing derby

The Izaak Walton Fishing Derby at Ikes Lake is scheduled for Saturday, June 16 from 1:30 to 4 p.m., with rain date on June 23. The event is open to the public and will feature two age divisions — ages eight and under for one group and ages nine through 14 for the second group.

First, second and third place prizes will be awarded for most bluegills caught in each division, plus 2 cents for each bluegill caught.

Tee time

A Tee Ball program will be held again this summer for boys and girls ages seven or eight (or those who will be in the second grade next year).

Practices will take place on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6:30 to 8 p.m. starting June 7 and ending with a parents game on July 17. The Tee Ball field is located just west of the softball field at Wakefield City Park.

There will be a registration fee of $2 which is to be paid the first night. This will cover the cost of insurance only.

Each child should wear tennis shoes, jeans, tee shirt and a ball cap and bring a baseball glove with their name on it. The intent of the program is to learn fundamentals of the game, develop coordination and promote teamwork and sportsmanship, said Dick Brownell who, along with Paul Ulemark Jr. will serve as coaches.

Jail

THE ESTIMATED $3,000 needed to build the jail yard is only earmarked for material costs; he added. Labor for construction of the jail yard will be provided voluntarily by the inmates.

Final approval for the financing of the jailyard has yet to be approved by the Wayne County Board of Commissioners. Bob Nissen, chairman of the board of commissioners, said the cost for the jail yard will probably be sent over to the county commissioners as a claim.

"We'll act on it at that time," Nissen said. "The state is telling us that we should do it, so I guess it has to be done. I don't know if it's actually necessary," he said.

But since the state has mandated the jail yard construction, Nissen feels the county commissioners have no choice but to approve the payment.

Janssen said the county jail (also shared by the city of Wayne) averages from three to four prisoners daily and the average stay for each prisoner is from 30 to 40 days.

Vern Fairchild, Wayne city police chief, is a member of the State of Nebraska Jail Standards Board. The jail standard was adopted, Fairchild said Tuesday, to provide outdoor exercise for the prisoners.

"Everyone has got to have fresh air once in a while," Fairchild said.

Plans are flying

Chicken show meeting

The Chicken Show, Wayne's annual "wing ding" held to honor the chicken, is scheduled for July 13 and 14.

A meeting for all who are interested in helping with the event, will be held today (Thursday), 8 p.m. at the Black Knight. Volunteers are needed for the days of the show, and also for coordinating some of the smaller activities.

If anyone has a desire to help, but cannot attend the meeting, call Gail Korn, Marla McCue or Jane O'Leary.

LOCAL ORGANIZATIONS ARE also in spirit to help with the Chicken Show by their own fund-raising activities.

A small donation toward the Chicken Show is asked in return.

Organizations are asked to contact one of the above individuals so that arrangements can be made and proper recognition given. The Chicken Show parade will be organized ed by the Wayne Eagles Auxiliary. Anyone interested is asked to call Myrl Bargholz for more information.

COLLECTIONS OF CHICKENS, eggs, or anything relating to the theme are also needed. Arrangements for displaying the collection in a downtown window can be made through Michelle Flowers.

Inquiries about this year's Chicken Show have all ready been received by the mayor's office, the Chamber of Commerce, the Wayne Regional Arts Council and the Wayne Regional Community Center.

Short articles or one-line statements about the show will appear in such publications as "Country People," "Grit," and "Reader's Digest."

The Chicken Show committee would appreciate any clippings or articles published in the show nationally.

Financial management program available to farmers, ranchers

Governor Bob Kerrey revealed details of the State's efforts to assist Nebraska farmers and ranchers with their basic financial management decision making.

"Twenty percent of our farmers and ranchers are having significant financial difficulties, and may be forced to discontinue their operations in the next few years," Governor Kerrey said in announcing the program.

"We intend to provide trained specialists in the field who can work one-on-one with Nebraskans in improving their financial conditions," Governor Kerrey said.

The program, "Managing for Tomorrow," will be directed by the Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service (NCEES) under the guidance of Leo Lucas, Dean and Director of the Service.

The education-consultation program will specifically focus on analyzing the current financial situation of participating farm and ranch families, as well as examining their goals and future plans. Current economic conditions and structural changes in the agricultural sector will also be examined.

"The importance of cooperation is essential to this program," Governor Kerrey said. "We need the help of Nebraska banks, the PCA's the FmHA, and the Federal Land Bank in reaching these farmers and ranchers. We intend to do everything we possibly can."

"The economic health of Nebraska depends directly on our agricultural economy," the Governor went on to say. "Our goal is to help farmers and ranchers collect, assess, and interpret information which will help them make prudent management decisions, not only for their future, but for Nebraska's future as well."

Funding for "Managing for Tomorrow" will be obtained from the Nebraska Department of Agriculture and the Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service.

AS PART of Governor Kerrey's economic development budget request this year, the 1984 Legislature appropriated $100,000 to the Department of Agriculture, which has been working with the Cooperative Extension Service to develop the program.

Program leaders will be Larry Blitney and H. Doug Jose of the University of Nebraska. Both are extension farm management specialists.

Farmers and ranchers interested in "Managing for Tomorrow" should contact their local extension office or any of the district Research and Extension Centers in North Platte, Scottsbluff, Clay Center, Concord or Lincoln.

A combination of small group meetings and individual consultations will be used in the program. The group seminars, which will begin across the State after the 1984 fall harvest, will be limited to 20 couples per seminar.

Participants will receive approximately 24 hours of instruction. Areas to be covered include practical financial management, techniques for analyzing farm and ranch operations, and methods for gathering and organizing data for a thorough analysis of situations which will identify opportunities to make adjustments to improve operations.

Following the group meetings, participants will meet with a specialist at their respective farm or ranch for an analysis of their individual situation and discussion of short to long-range plans and feasible alternatives.

Later, a series of individual consultations will take place, where a computer model will be used to help make operational projections based on current planning and options which are available. The next phase of the program will include an evaluation by a review committee and follow-up visits by the extension farm management specialist.

The lilacs were late for Mother's Day, and the peonies didn't make it for Memorial Day. They are making up for it now. In fact, everything here in the "Rain Forest" looks so lush now.

That's what my brother calls Nebraska these days. He was here last week, and kept remarking about how beautiful everything was. I tell him it should be, for all the moisture we've had.

He flew in from South Carolina to Omaha, where my sis met him and brought him to Lincoln. "One of the other 'sad glad' days for me last month was my newly-retired mother going for exploratory surgery because of a shadow on a lung, seen on a routine chest x-ray.

WE COULDN'T believe it was cancer, but the chance of it colored our plans, our conversations, our thoughts, and our prayers.

It wasn't; it was scarring from a previous bout with pneumonia, but the illness was long and the pain was intense. Especially when the respiratory therapist came every two hours to make her breath into the machine.

When we looked around us in intensive care, we shuddered. The surgeon and the anesthesiologist both assured us, "She'll do well. She's a non-smoker."

But all around us in the waiting rooms, people smoked. In the hospital cafeteria, nurses smoked.

I KEPT remembering the statistics about 60 percent of all hospitalizations having to do with our lifestyles.

And then I visited the Cardiac Rehab Center, and watched a dozen men who have had coronary bypass operations do their aerobic exercises. A list of class scheduled announced sessions on stress management, nutrition, medications, etc.

It struck me that they had time for exercise and information now. Too bad we can't take the time earlier and avoid the surgery.

Everyone was kind; but I remembered again how long the days on the patient's side of a hospitalization are.

MY BROTHER will have another good story to tell about Big Red fans. He had just finished telling us that the trucks in his company complain that when you drive Interstate 80 through Nebraska, all you can get on the radio is talk about football.

My aunt said she didn't get too caught up in football fever, and remarked that Nebraska always seemed to flub up in crucial games.

A little dietary employee seated at the next table turned around and announced in no uncertain terms that "they didn't flub up at Penn State. They had that game robbed from them!"

We all smiled and agreed. But that didn't stop her. "When that fellow caught that pass, he was out of bounds, but those crooked refs said he was in."

We nodded and tried to resume our conversation. "My boss was there. Further more, they were rude to the Nebraska fans."

We got up and headed for the door. "But we showed 'em. We beat 'em good the next time!"

By this time, we were giggling so hard, we could barely stagger to the elevator. By that time, we needed a good laugh.

A LOT of corn has been put in the ground the past two weeks, and a lot of it is up. It still could be "knee high by the Fourth of July." Don't know what's going to happen to the spots where the water's still standing.

The calves that were such a struggle to get here and such a worry through the cold wet and are now sunning themselves in lovely pastures.

I noticed the smell of "cooking hay" as I drove by the Dehy.

I finally have two loads of gravel on the driveway. It's like a super highway. In fact, there's gravel on most of the roads now. Come see us.

4-H program celebrates anniversary

Nearly 200 individuals, organizations and businesses contributed to the Nebraska 4-H program through the Nebraska Association for 4-H Development in 1983, said Bill Caldwell, the association's secretary-treasurer.

The association, which is celebrating its 25th anniversary this year, is a non-profit organization chartered by the State of Nebraska to generate funds for the Nebraska 4-H program.

"The funds have been used for adult and teenage leader training, 4-H recognition and incentives, scholarships, trips and awards, 4-H leader incentives and development, and capital construction at the State 4-H Camp, Eastern Nebraska 4-H Center, South Central 4-H Center and Lodgepole Valley 4-H Camp," said the University of Nebraska assistant director 4-H youth and development.

EACH YEAR the 4-H program, through the Cooperative Extension Service, receives federal funds which must be equally matched by state funds. These funds cannot be used for ribbons, medals, other recognition awards or camps, but must instead be used for staff and educational materials.

Financial support for the ribbons, medals, awards, camps, etc., is provided through private funds generated by the association. Such funding comes in the form of annual donations, program fees, funds donated by various organizations and businesses, outright contributions, endowments, gifts and memorials.

Of the Nebraska 4-H Activities receipts this past year, Caldwell said, 47 percent went to youth incentive programs, 12 percent went to leader incentive programs, 17 percent went to international 4-H programs, 10 percent went into outdoor education, 9 percent went into the horse program, 3 percent went into the leader development program and the final 2 percent went into visuals and miscellaneous.

AS FOR the association receipts, Caldwell said, 53 percent went into completion at the Eastern Nebraska 4-H Center, 15 percent for the energy grant, 9 percent for insurance, 8 percent for the audit and taxes, 8 percent each for computer purchase, bookkeeping and miscellaneous, and 2 percent for the Ak-Sar-Ben purple ribbon endowment.

Several substantial contributions were received in 1983, Caldwell said. Donors included the Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben, Hall County Livestock Improvement (Fonner Park), Nebraska Bankers, Nebraska Rural Rehabilitation, Walter Scott Jr. Abbott Foundation, Burlington Northern, Farmland Industries Inc., KFAB Broadcasting, Lincoln Chamber of Commerce, Ag Committee, national bank campaign, Nebraska Council of Home Extension Clubs, Norden Laboratories, McGraw Hill Book Company, Pioneer Hi-Bred International Inc.

Caldwell summarized some of the activities and highlights of 4-H projects made possible by the association through the support of the donors.

THEY INCLUDE:

- To date, all 4-H camps and centers are debt free.
- More than 3,740 medals, certificates and pens were awarded to 4-H youth at the county level for their achievements in a variety of projects and activities.
- Nearly 2,000 4-H volunteer leaders receive recognition for two, five, 10, 15, 25, 30 or 35 years of service to the Nebraska 4-H program. A mother and her two daughters were recognized for a combined effort of 100 years of service as volunteer 4-H leaders in Nebraska.
- A history of the past 25 years has been written and is currently being printed. Copies will be available through the Cooperative Extension Service.
- An endowment program, "Pursuit of Excellence 4-H Endowment Campaign," is being instituted to provide additional opportunities for 4-H in the future.
- The banks in Nebraska communities continue to strongly support the National 4-H News subscription program for 4-H volunteer leaders. The magazine serves as a practical training tool for leaders.
- And 35 Nebraska bankers participated in the Nebraska/National 4-H Bank Campaign, generating funds for both the Nebraska and national 4-H programs. In Nebraska, these funds are used for the 4-H Awareness Team program — a group of 20 older teens who represent the Nebraska 4-H program to many groups and organizations throughout the state.

Ticks

I've had reports that ticks are a special problem this year. Increased outdoor activity, especially in moist, woody or grassy regions, increases the chance of becoming a host to ticks — small, flat, brownish, blood sucking insects.

Three species of ticks are most often found in Nebraska. The dog tick, Rocky Mountain spotted fever tick and the American wood tick. And because of a long, wet spring, an increased tick population can be expected this year.

Ticks are disease — carriers that can, in rare cases, cause Rocky Mountain spotted fever, an acute disease characterized by chills, fever, prostration, pain in muscles and joints and a red to purple eruption.

The adult tick will attach itself to almost any host. Because it likes to be secluded, a tick most often can be found in or near hairy areas of the human body — on the head, under the arms, in the groin area, as well as on animals. Ticks also are fond of hiding in constricted areas like shirt cuffs or in socks.

The best way to avoid ticks is to avoid woody area. Those who spend much time outside should check themselves and their pets every hour and also could spray themselves with a tick repellent.

If ticks are a problem in the yard, especially where children play, spray the area with Sevin.

The best way to remove a tick is by gently pulling it. If yanked out too quickly, the tick's head and mouth parts may stay buried in the skin, causing irritation and possible infection.

Improving alfalfa hay operations

Leaves remaining in the field after alfalfa harvest can result in a 15 to 25 percent loss attributed to the haymaking operation. About 50 percent of early flowering forage is leaves and of this amount, 30 percent of the protein is in the leaves, while only 18 percent is in the stems. The amount of useful energy in the leaves is about twice that of the stems. However, much of this is lost because of inefficiency at harvest time.

To help reduce leaf loss, harvest at an early flower stage. Using a crimper or roller allows rapid drying of stems but, do not overdry.

Some farmers allow dry forage to wait until morning and harvest with a little dew on top or even pick up forage during the humid evening hours.

Keep windows reasonably small or light and avoid turning them unless necessary to prevent molding.

You should make hay crop into silage to keep the most leaves if the weather is not ideal for putting up hay. If the farmer's decision is to do this, the alfalfa should be cut while the forage is immature. Chop hay enough to assure the proper moisture content for storage, which is 60 to 65 percent moisture for uprights and 65 to 70 percent for trench, bunker or stack storage.

Storing silage at low moisture content causes overheating or molding and serious losses of both quantity and quality of forage. High protein, high energy, palatable feed is best obtained if it is harvested at early maturity and leaves aren't left in the field.

Hot weather near Livestock preparation needed

Hot weather is on the way, and two University of Nebraska extension specialists say the only way to alleviate the heat's harsh effects on livestock is to prepare for it now.

According to NU Extension Dairyman Phil Cole, "A cow should be cool, comfortable and free from flies."

Cole said one of the most important questions a farmer should be asking himself right now is, "Where are my cattle going to find shade this summer?"

A cool, shady area — whether natural or artificial — for cows to both eat and rest in, plays a critical role in preventing heat stress in livestock, the specialist said, especially on still, windless days.

Hot weather stress on livestock will be discussed on "Farm & Ranch Report," Thursday, June 7, at 12:30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. The show airs on the Nebraska ETV network, repeating a second time Saturday, June 9, at 7:30 a.m.

Overheating can cause various costly losses in production. These losses can be reduced or alleviated through the use of integrated heat stress prevention practices, Cole said. Besides protection from the sun, these include:

- Cool, clean water available at all times. A responsible fly management and sanitation program.
- Adjusted feeding schedules, shifting major food intake periods to cooler parts of the day.
- Like humans, when livestock are hot and uncomfortable, they eat less, Cole said. Although this is good because it limits energy expended for digestion, reduced food intake also results in lowered consumption of important vitamins and minerals that must be compensated.
- Paul Geyer, NU extension beef specialist, said the following top designs and farm management techniques also will aid in reducing hot weather stress on livestock:
- Avoid handling or movement of cattle to minimize internal heat production. If transport is necessary, do so only in a well ventilated truck, using wet sand as bedding and transporting only a few animals at a time. Move animals the cool hours of the early morning or evening.

- Avoid bunching cattle which results in poor insect control.
- Keep markings current.
- Remove any obstacles blocking movement of cool summer breezes. Use wire fences instead of boards; keep pens far from buildings and other structures.
- Provide adequate ventilation if cattle or swine are in a building.
- According to Cole and Geyer, without an integrated prevention program, as high temperatures and humidity levels rise, so will stress levels — resulting in costly but avoidable losses.
- Signs of heat stress include sweating, loss of appetite, rapid breathing and panting, the specialists said.
- Lowered beef cattle production does occur on pasture but probably not to the extent of justify-

Dairy entry rules clarified

Eighteen age classes of either registered or grade individual dairy animals are available for 4-H or FFA youth to enter animals in the 37th annual series of District Dairy Shows to be held in Nebraska and Iowa this summer.

That's the word from Phil Cole, University of Nebraska extension dairyman, who said wording of an earlier news story may have given the erroneous impression that younger animals, calves and heifers, are not eligible to be shown.

Only animals born after April 30, 1983, are not eligible to show in individual classes or in dairy herds, Cole said.

Confusion may have arisen from a reference to the story to a show rule on animal health, Cole said. The complete rule reads as follows: "All animals must be accompanied by an official health certificate."

The health certificate must indicate that the animal is negative to a Brucellosis test not more than 60 days prior to show date or "under 20 months of age" and officially calthood vaccinated. Tuberculosis — no test required since state is accredited free."

The 12 shows serve as elimination contests for the 1984 Ak-Sar-Ben Dairy Show, as 4-H exhibitors receiving blue or purple ribbons on their entries may exhibit them at the Omaha competition. The Ak-Sar-Ben Show is Sept. 22, not Sept. 24, as listed in the earlier release and the District Dairy Show files recently distributed, Cole said.

Conservation Till-Age day

A "Conservation Till-Age" day will be held 1/2 mile north of Walthill, Neb., on June 28 at 3:00 p.m. Extension Agent, Andrew Christiansen, announced the program as a part of the University of Nebraska conservation target area project with cooperation from the Soil Conservation Service and Middle Missouri Natural Resource District.

The day will begin with demonstrations of several planters and tillage equipment designed for minimum tillage planting. The UNL rain-simulator will show the positive effects of ground cover in reducing soil erosion. According to Christiansen, the demonstrations will be followed by a tour of five sites where 1984 crops were established using a variety of conservation methods including no-till, tillage, drilled oats in heavy residue and parallel terraces. Following the tour, dinner will be served, courtesy of the equipment demonstrators.

"The demonstration will show three things," says Christiansen. "First, the importance of residue management. Second, that the systems will work, and finally, it will show the farmers the quality equipment must have to work in a reduced tillage situation."

The target area project was initiated through joint funding by the University of Nebraska, The N.U. Foundation and Governor Kerrey's Energy Overcharge Fund.

Planting deadlines

The final planting date for insured grain sorghum in Antelope, Boyd, Brown, Cedar, Cuming, Dakota, Dixon, Holt, Keya Paha, Knox, Madison, Pierce, Rock, Stanton, Thurston, and Wayne Counties in Nebraska is June 15 according to Donald Harmer, Supervisor for the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation (FCIC). "Acres of grain sorghum planted by June 15, insured by FCIC (or by a private company reinsured by FCIC), must be reported by June 30 to receive full crop insurance coverage," says Harmer.

Acres planted after June 15 should also be reported on the June 30 acreage report (in the "remarks" section) as being planted too late for insurance coverage.

"The final planting date of June 15 is the latest date established by FCIC to plant and expect a normal crop to be produced. Crops initially planted after this date are not insurable unless a late planting agreement is signed by the final planting date," Harmer said.

June 25 is the final planting date for insured soybeans in Antelope, Cedar, Cuming, Dakota, Dixon, Holt, Knox, Madison, Pierce, Stanton, Thurston, and Wayne Counties in Nebraska. "Acres of soybeans planted by June 25, insured by FCIC (or by a private company reinsured by FCIC), must be reported by June 30 to receive full crop insurance coverage," says Harmer.

Acres planted after June 25 should also be reported on the June 30 acreage report (in the "remarks" section) as being planted too late for insurance coverage.

"The final planting date of June 25 is the latest date established by FCIC to plant and expect a normal crop to be produced. Crops initially planted after this date are not insurable unless a late planting agreement is signed by the final planting date," Harmer said.

Thurston county horse show

The 4th Annual Thurston County 4 H Horse Show will be held June 9 at the Walthill arena, beginning at 3 p.m. The event is a fun-up for the District 4 Horse Shows, but is not restricted to 4 Hers.

The show includes open fun events such as tandem bareback egg and spoon, hat races, horseshoe pair, ribbon race and flag race. Northeast Nebraska Saddle Club rules will apply. Paybacks on each event will be 30 to 50 percent.

Lunch will be available at the arena. Further information can be obtained from chairperson, Janet Nielsen, at 837-5668, or the Thurston County Extension Office at 846-5656.

Learn to preserve foods

Fruits and vegetables are coming in season now. Both can be purchased in bulk at a low cost and can be preserved for use this winter. Freezing and canning fruits and vegetables are good methods of preserving large amounts of foods.

If you have never canned before, the Cooperative Extension Service office in Dixon County has a packet that will answer many of your canning questions. This packet also provides instructions on blanching and freezing foods. The learn at home course called "Home Food Preservation" allows you to learn the art of food preservation in the comfort of your own home, at your own speed.

Take advantage of the foods in season now. Ask the Dixon County Extension Office to order your learn at home food preservation course. Cost of the materials is $3.25. The packet will be mailed to you.

Not to early to scout for cut worms

Now is the time to begin scouting corn fields for cutworm damage, according to Stan Starling, Dixon County Extension Agent.

Very small cutworms only feed on the leaves, as they increase in size they begin to cut plants. Watch for large shotholes or chunks eaten from leaves. Other insects can cause similar damage, so dig around plants to confirm the presence of cutworms.

Cutworms will usually be found at the point where the soil becomes moist and within two to three inches of the plant. They are recognized by the dark color, and the usual fat body curled into a C-shape.

Make counts in five different areas of the field. Examine 20 plants in each for damage, or a total of 100 plants. If five percent of the plants show cutworm damage and the worms are less than one inch long, treatment is justified.

The larger the percentage of damaged plants, the greater the returns from the cost of spraying. In border line cases, you may want to repeat your counts two or three times and average the results.

Several insecticides are effective on cutworms, among those recommended are Pydrin 2.4 EC and Lorsban 4E, for broadcast application. Likely problem fields are those coming out of PIK, those with late season weed problems, and those following rye, sod, soybeans, or small grain stubble.

Dairy show at Wayne

The Northern District Holstein Association is holding their annual dairy show at the Wayne County Fairgrounds June 12 starting at 10:30 a.m.

Judging classes will be held and trophies will be given to junior members while adults will receive recognition. Everyone is invited to attend. For further information call 375-3315.

Be on the lookout for beetles

Scouts are seeing noticeable numbers of bean leaf beetles in alfalfa, reports Stan Starling, Dixon County Extension Agent. Those are not a problem in alfalfa, but may move into seedling soybeans when the alfalfa is cut.

Several different color patterns of bean leaf beetles may be observed, but all will have a black triangle shaped marking behind the thorax and a black underside. The upper side may be yellow, brownish, or reddish color. Some have two or four prominent black spots and a black outside border on each wing cover. Length of beetles is about one fourth inch.

To scout soybeans, check several areas of the field. If one or more colyleptons per foot of row are destroyed, and five or more beetles per foot of row are found, treatment is recommended. Insecticides registered for control are: (non restricted) Orthene 75S, Sevin 80S or XLR, Lorsban 4E, and (restricted use only) Guthion 50 WP, Pydrin 2.4 EC, Lanate, Nudrin, Methyl Parathion (Pencap M), and Pounce 3.2 EC.

Herbicide warning

Farmers, ranchers and agribusiness proprietors should be wary of a current scheme involving sales by telephone, a University of Nebraska extension weed control specialist said this week.

"Early morning telephone calls from New York extol the wonders of these less expensive weed killers," according to John Furrer. Furrer said similar calls have been reported by Wyoming officials.

The same warning was issued a few years ago about individuals trying to sell a "miracle herbicide" by phone, Furrer said, "and salespersons are again using high pressure to sell the same old product with a new name."

Furrer said Nebraska and Wyoming weed control specialists have examined the product and found it to contain a very low percentage of active herbicides (2, 4-D, bromacil and pentachlorophenol) and about 96 percent to 98 percent petroleum oil. The products sell for $25 to $40 a gallon with a suggested application rate of 80 to 200 gallons per acre.

Treatment would cost a farmer more than $5,000 per acre at these rates, Furrer said, "which is prohibitive for annual or perennial weed control." Sales personnel have been offering color television and other premiums to individuals purchasing 30-gallon drums, he said.

The same chemical herbicides can be purchased from reliable companies for about $3 per gallon. The "miracle" effect is caused by the oil burning up the vegetation, Furrer said.

Furrer advised individuals contact to buy the product to request the salesperson to provide a label that shows active ingredients of herbicides in the mixture. Growers should be suspicious if the product contains only a small amount of active chemical herbicides, he emphasized.

"If a purchaser says 'yes' to the smooth talking huckster calling early in the morning, it's not too late to change your mind. Simply refuse to pay the COD charges when the material arrives," Furrer advised. Some transportation companies are now refusing to handle questionable shipments because of COD charges, he said.

The 22nd Annual Horse Show sponsored by the Carroll Saddle Club will be held on Sunday, June 10 at the arena located at the south edge of Carroll.

The junior events will begin at 8:30 a.m. Halter classes and junior senior events will follow.

Trophies and payback will be given for the four place winners. Rain date is Saturday, June 16 at 1 p.m.

Club president is Gordon Davis, with Steve Schumacher vice president, Mrs. Edward Fork, secretary and Mrs. Steve Schumacher, treasurer. The food stand will be run by the Pleasant Valley 4 H Club.

Centennial sampler

The time-honored tradition of quilting has become a part of the Wayne Centennial celebration thanks to the efforts of Sandy Wriedt and a group of Wayne senior citizens.

This sampler quilt, which is currently on display in the Peoples Natural Gas building at 208 Main, will be raffled at a later date. Another is being made for auction during the week-long Centennial celebration.

Sandra Wriedt, owner of Just Sew, volunteered to help with the quilting project and made up individual kits for each of the blocks in the quilt. Customers who came into the store were offered the opportunity to complete a block kit and bring it back to later be part of the finished project.

A group of Wayne senior citizens volunteered their time and efforts in quilting the sampler which measures approximately 8x10 feet. A complete listing of their names is posted next to the quilt at Peoples Natural Gas.

First fine arts camp to be held in Nebraska

A unique and exciting summer camp for students in grades 5-8, called FUN, is being sponsored by Wayne State College's Extended Campus Division.

According to Cyndi Swarts, Wayne Middle School teacher and coordinator of the summer camp, FUN is the only opportunity of its kind in Nebraska, because any student may apply. Swarts expects anywhere from 100 to 150 children to participate. FUN, which stands for Fine Arts and Unique experiences in Northeast Nebraska, is a camp devoted to better meet the creative needs of students. These students will have a unique opportunity for creative learning not ordinarily possible in the regular classroom.

FUN, WHICH runs from June 18 through June 22 on the Wayne State College campus, will offer courses in creative problem solving, creative movement, creative music, creative theatre, creative writing, visual arts and American (American Sign Language).

The week and events will end with a dinner and special presentation by FUN participants entitled "Connecting the Rainbow."

Any student who was in fifth, sixth, seventh or eighth grade is eligible to take part in FUN. Nominations to FUN may be initiated by teachers, parents, guardians and students. All students wishing to participate must complete the official application form and accompany it with three letters of recommendation, one each from a teacher, parent or guardian, and the student.

Each letter of recommendation should explain why the nominee would benefit from the creative experience of FUN.

FACULTY MEMBERS for FUN include Mary Ann DeNaeyer, Joyce Mitchell, Ted Blendenman, Diana Runestad, Mary Halverstad, all of Wayne, and Eleonor Jones of Omaha and Nigil Buss of Neligh.

BIBLE SCHOOL
May 28-June 1 week was a busy time for the twenty students and six teachers who participated in Bible School. The theme for lessons was "Share the Good News." Such Bible characters as Paul, Jonah, Queen Esther, Nicodemus, and Mary and Martha were studied. On Wednesday all the classes learned about Pentecost, which our church observes next Sunday.

Shelley Smith had six kindergartners—Kari Baker, Michael Blohm, Corey Hansen, Bobbie Placek, Greg Rastede, and Brad Smith. Michelle Harder was organist and teacher for the seven primary students—Dawn Diediker, Jeanne Hansen, Nicki Hansen, Brian Liebig, Jeff Mulhair, Mike Placek, and Kelli Smith. Marge and Loree Rastede taught the junior students—Brent Blohm, Carol Hansen, Jason Reuler, and Lynell Wood, and helped serve the daily refreshments and Thursday picnic, furnished by the Ladies Aid. Marian Stolle, returned after several years of absence as a teacher, to work with the junior high girls—Kandace Anderson, Jennifer Liebig, and Deanna Mulhair. Mary Rastede and her assistant Kristi Blohm and substitute Tille Rastede helped the students with art projects.

We hope you will go to the base ment after our Bible School program on Sunday, June 3, following morning worship to view these art projects and lessons. Each day concluded with a chance sermon conducted by Pastor Kramer.

Closing services were held Sunday morning with the Rite of Ordination of 3 candidates—Dianne Blomker, Donald Hunzeker, Scott Larson, followed by a Communion Service.

ANNA SEZ:

June 3 morning. It sounds like the birds are trying to beat one another in their singing.

A few of the residents here are in Providence Medical Center. Hattie Straight was taken there on May 20th. Julie Haas, who came to the home recently, fell in her room and injured her spine, was taken to the hospital. Viola Raaber was taken to Providence on Sunday and is expected back today. Last Monday morning, we were treated to a movie of slides of Lake Superior and the Wisconsin Delta. These slides were taken and shown by Roberto Carman on their trip there. Among the activities at the home are movies on Monday afternoon. On Tuesday afternoon we have rhythm band with Mrs. Vardo Morris as organist. On Wednesday afternoon there are cards and dominoes for those who enjoy them. The Senior Citizens come the first and fourth Thursdays of each month to entertain us. There is singing on Saturday afternoons with Dorothy Beckenhour as organist. On June 20th, we will have our regular birthday party for the month. There will be 5 residents seated around the birthday table - Emma Hicks, June 2; Paula Stark, June 7; Kattie Gillespie, June 28; and Fella Marks, June 20. We will sing the birth day song and have treats.

The St. Mary's ladies come on the second Monday of the month with treats. The Taste Testers dinner was held on Friday, May 25.

Guests were Minnie Ulrich, Mrs. Elhart Paschall, Mrs. Fues, Bill Gross, Mrs. Elizabeth Jindra and Betty Jindra of Hilger, Rev. Barbara Maxson, Mrs. Maxson, Roberto Carman, Linda Waldo, Edna Tjotgen, Lorne Spittgenber and Joyce Marzetta.

Menu: BBQ beef ribs, mashed potatoes, glazed carrots, bread and butter and Hubbard crop.

Until next time have a dog-gone good week.
