Centennial royalty

THE WAYNE Centennial Little Mister/Little Miss winners were selected last Thursday at Wayne City Auditorium. The coronation event was relocated to the auditorium after a heavy rain forced the Jaycette Centennial Ice Cream Social inside. Jeremy Lutt (seated on floor) was chosen as Little Mister and Gina

Old Settlers Days near

New attractions will combine with the features of the past

A weekend of festivities and fun is being planned in observance of the 83rd annual Old Settlers Days June 22-24 in Winside.

This year's celebration features an even larger number of activities, including a variety of new attractions mixed with various successful ones from the past.

New features this year include a three-wheel pull and coed softball tournament with teams representing county towns competing on Saturday, June 13, as well as a musket shooting contest and a bar-be-que at the City Ball Park on Sunday, June 24.

Friday's activities include a kids parade, beginning at 6 p.m., followed by an adult water fight at 6:30 p.m. and a kids water fight at 7:30 p.m. "Kids Night at the Carnival" will also be an attraction. Children will be able to purchase a wrist band from the ticket stands for $5, which will allow them to ride on as many rides as they wish from 7-11 p.m. only. Midway rides are being provided by Strong Amusement Company.

On Saturday, the day will begin with kids contest for children up to age 14 from 12:30-2:30 p.m. Horseshoe pitching and the adult tug-of-war will begin at 1 p.m., followed by the three-wheeler pull at 2 p.m. The pull is open to everyone, but minors must have parental consent. Those wanting more information should contact Ver Neal Marotz of Winside.

The coed softball tournament will run from 3-5 p.m. Various musical presentations will be held throughout the day, beginning with a swing choir and stage band performance at the park from 4-5 p.m. From 5-6 p.m. the District 34 Polka Band from Wisner will perform.

The Old Settlers Days main parade will begin at 6:30 p.m. on Saturday. The theme for this year's parade is "The Good Old Days."

The Assurance Quartet Gospel Singers from Newman Grove will provide entertainment from 8-9 p.m.

A dance featuring Stanton Sound Video will be held at the Winside Auditorium from 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. A $2 admission will be charged and no liquor will be allowed.

A musket shooting contest at 10 a.m. will start on the final day's activities on Sunday. Those wishing more details should contact Ken Hintz at 286-4234.

The Starlettes Baton Twirlers will give a performance from 2:30-3:30 p.m. The coed softball tournament will wrap-up from 2:30-4:30 p.m. as well.

A community bar-be-que will be held from 4-7 p.m. at the ball park. The Otto Field Band will provide entertainment. The price for the bar-be-que will be $3.50 for adults and $1.75 for children. The menu will include two sandwiches, either beef or pork, beans, kraut, applesauce, potato chips, pickles, juice, milk and coffee. The Blue Ribbon Winners 4-H club will help serve the meal.

From 7:30-8:15 p.m. the Barbershop Quartet will perform at the Town Park, followed with Harlin Brugger at the Organ from 8:15-9 p.m.

The evening will close with the American Legion cash drawings for $100, $75, $50 and $25. Tickets are available from Legion members.

The Old Settlers Day Committee is made up of representatives from various Winside clubs and organizations. Chairman for the committee is Don Leighton, Colleen Jeffries is the secretary and Dean Mann is treasurer.

Balloon contest launched

A dollar will hopefully go a long ways in the upcoming annual "Centennial" Chicken Show Balloon Contest.

Those that donate a dollar to the chicken show will become the owners of a balloon which will be seen aloft with many others on Thursday, June 21.

The owner of the returned balloon that has traveled the greatest distance within a two-week period will win $100 from the Wayne Chamber of Commerce.

Send the donation to Wayne Chicken Show, Box 265, Nebraska and include your name, address and telephone number. For each dollar donated, names of family members or friends may be included. Entries may also leave their names at the Wayne chamber office.

This year's Wayne Chicken Show is slated for July 13 and 14. The event is a function of the Wayne Regional Arts Council, a Nebraska non-profit organization.

Personnel change at post office

Several office changes have been announced for the Wayne Post Office. Charles "Chuck" Thompson, a 15-year employee of the postal service, has been appointed to serve as superintendent of postal operations of the Wayne Post Office.

His position as the superintendent will become effective on June 23. Thompson has served as officer-in-charge at the Winside Post Office for a six month period three years ago. He also had been acting superintendent of postal operations at the Wayne Post Office during the absence of the postmaster and the former superintendent of postal operations.

He is a long time resident of Wayne, is married and has three children who attend Wayne Public Schools.

Joe Dorcay will also be retiring from the postal service as rural mail carrier, a position he has maintained for the past 31 years. His last mail haul will be Thursday, June 21. Other appointments concerning who will replace Thompson and Dorcay will be forthcoming from the postal service.

Evening apparel to be judged Tuesday

The fashion world will be at its finest during the Wayne Chamber of Commerce's upcoming Moonlight Madness retail promotion.

Businesses participating in the event are encouraged to dress in costume appropriate to the occasion. Moonlight Madness is scheduled for Tuesday evening, June 19.

Stores may close at 5 p.m. on Tuesday to prepare their Moonlight Madness specials and may re-open at 7 p.m. for the evening's activities.

Business owners and their employees will be judged on their costumes by a local fashion critic, Lyle Style.

Style will be placing the most notable costumes in his famous fashion critique of "Wayne's Ten Worst Dressed Lists."

—and necklines should be on the way down for the men."

"I also expect a new line of mental clothers will also be the trend," he added.

This type of clothing exists largely in the mind of the wearer, explained Style.

"I expect to see the fine employees of Wayne's fabulous business community dressing up for me, the price of pizzazz. I plan to tour the businesses that evening with my media delegation so that total and comprehensive coverage may be given to my famous 'list,'" he said.

Style plans to dress appropriately also, though he will only hint at his Moonlight Madness costume.

"I'm one of these guys who doesn't really plan an outfit until just before an event. I once was the rage of a Paris party in my bald eagle ensemble, though I do adore my Boy George get-up," he concluded.

Firemen extinguish trailer fire

Twenty volunteer firemen were on the scene when a late-night fire was reported at the Arnold Anderson residence, 1 1/4 miles north of Wayne.

A camping trailer, owned by Anderson, had started on fire around 11:27 p.m., according to police records.

Fire chief, Dale Preston, said the cause of the fire has not yet been determined.

According to Preston, the blaze was extinguished within ten minutes, but firemen were on the scene until 2 a.m., keeping the fire under control and trying to determine the cause.

Mud bath

WITH ALL THE rain during the past few days, there has been a good number of mud holes in the area. Gary Longe, Dane Jensen and Robert Longe frolic in the mud during a brief period between rain showers.

The photographs, titled "Deb," and "Lady of the Evening," were among 6,000 entries submitted to Professional Photographers of America Inc (PP of A) for critique by qualified professional juries. The nearly 2,000 winning photographic works constitute the largest exhibit of its kind in the world, gathered at one time and under one roof. In recognition of the achievement, the PP of A member received a Merit award which can be applied toward the earning of a Master of Photography degree granted by PP of A.

Alumni getting calls

If you're a Wayne State College alumnus, you can expect a phone call from the Wayne State College Alumni Association in the next couple weeks.

Some 15-20 volunteers from the Wayne chapter of the WSCAA began the process of making over 400 phone calls to WSC graduates living in the Wayne area to build the membership numbers in the new organization.

"We will be contacting all the alumni in the Wayne regional area to join the Alumni Association," said Dan Baddort, chairman of the membership committee of the Wayne Regional Alumni Association.

Baddort said WSC alumni will also be asked if they would like to be a committee member. The seven committees are: membership, governmental relations, student recruitment, scholarships and fund raising activities, social, alumni job search assistance and special projects.

By joining the WSCAA's Wayne Chapter, members will receive a library card to the college's U.S. Conn Library and a pass to all college athletic events. The dues to the Wayne chapter are $5.

"The membership is what is going to make this organization a success," said Bob Jordan, president of the Wayne chapter. "The more members we have the more we can do."

The WSCAA is using the Wayne Regional Alumni Association as a model for all other chapters.

Alumni not contacted during the next few weeks and who are interested, are asked to call the alumni office at WSC.

Men' away

by chuck hackenmiller

This column will reach many subscribers the day following Father's Day (June 17) — but there will be some people who receive the newspaper Saturday afternoon and still have the opportunity to purchase some sort of gift before Sunday.

I realize after having the occasion to celebrate Father's Day only once (our son was born in March, 1983) that I'm no expert on practical gifts. But if my child asked me to compose a list of what I would prefer to have on Father's Day, here is what it would be.

1. An opportunity to have at least 15 minutes of time alone in the early silence of each morning, allowing me to think through my priorities of the day and most importantly — how these thoughts affect my number one priority, my family.
2. Some miracle to prevent an outdoor barbeque fiasco (when the steak looks the same color as the charcoal) or a grill which sounds an alarm when the meat is cooked to its precise tenderness.
3. A three-hour afternoon nap every third Saturday without interruptions — free of obligations from mowing lawn, working in the garden, cleaning out the cattle lots, walking the dog, putting up storm windows or cleaning the workshop.
4. A set of golf clubs which will not distract when whacking the irons and woods against a tree after an anticipated 170-yard drive goes 15 feet and then get's lost in tall grass nearby.
5. An affidavit which allows me to shown an interest in my family's accomplishments and activities, to make the time when I'm really counted on.

6. A DAY TO take my fishing rod, can of nightcrawlers, a radio, jug of ice water and sit along a cool grassy spot near a river and relax — then come home and have the wife clean the fish.
7. A car with a motor that doesn't stop at each intersection, has tires made of non-puncture material, is coated with paint that never needs waxing and strong enough to prevent rust and scratches, and is complete with shocks which make travel on Wayne's brick streets like driving on glass.
8. A guarantee that I would never have to see toys scattered all over the driveway, that tools and string would be picked up for the sake of the lawn mower blade and that my child's frog doesn't break out of his box late in the evening and we have to call out the search party.
9. The art of communication, understanding and reasoning when things at home aren't going as expected — such as a poor report card, a broken window, not making the baseball team or whenever discipline is demanded.
10. "How to" books which translate "how to" books on do-it-yourself projects.
11. A CHANCE TO become best buddy and leader to my young son as he grows in his early years — or for that matter, as long as I live.
12. That I might never see a file given to me as a gift to go along with my five other ties now available to me within a moment's reach.

13. Emotional strength to handle any situations which may occur — from overcoming the fear of my child's solo with "dad's car" on his first date to watching him leave our family home on the steps of the church altar as he waits for his bride.

14. If I do not receive any of these gifts or ideas from him on Father's Day, I'll settle for just hearing him say "Thanks dad for all you've done. You've been a pillar of strength and an inspiration to me and I only hope I can be a father just like you were to me."

Now really. Is that too much to ask? Happy Father's Day to all who are lucky enough to be honored on this special day.

Good-bye Bert

This news item and picture of "Bert", a 750-pound Chester White boar is in my Father's Day column because I think it's worthy of some upfront publicity.

After all, this boar (posed with his owner Gene Luft and daughters Karle and Jennifer) has "fathered" over 1000 pigs during his nearly three-year stay at the Luft farm.

During that length of time he has been hand fed approximately 4,300 pounds of feed and consumed 78 bushels of corn, eating four pounds of feed daily.

"Bert" is a Christmas hog, born on Dec. 25, 1980. He was sold to Luft in Aug. 1981 from a business in Sioux Falls, South Dakota. Luft paid $350 for "Bert" when the boar tipped the scales at 250 pounds.

"Bert", who according to Luft was a fairly lame boar, will find his next destination to be Chicago, where he will likely be made into sausage or bacon for someone's breakfast table. He was sold last Thursday at Farmers Livestock in Wayne, operated by Producers Commission Company of Sioux City, Iowa.

Dividing the line

The city of Wayne is facing a dilemma which could possibly affect the future operation of the community's park and recreation program.

Recently a child with Down's syndrome was turned away from participation in the city's park and recreation program. A call from the parents of the Down's syndrome child to the Nebraska Advocacy Service in Lincoln has resulted in the advocacy service questioning the actions of the city in turning down the child.

The parks and recreation board, staff members and the city council should not be cast as cruel and insensitive toward the needs of the Down's syndrome child. It is their goal and objective to achieve park and recreation programs that benefit the most children possible.

There are approximately 200 participants in the children's recreation programs. Such high participation is evidence that the program is very good for a community Wayne's size.

The parks and recreation department was provided funds through the city and United Way to operate the programs and activities this summer.

Salaries are a small expenditure in the operation of the park and recreation program. Staff members are either working voluntarily or are high school youngsters employed at minimum wage or less.

The city council is caught between two aspects of this situation — one is emotional and the other is realism.

A trend in the habilitation of developmentally disabled people is to educate them in the public schools with non-developmentally disabled people. Out on the playing field should be no different, because the ultimate goal is to achieve full recreational opportunities for all developmentally disabled, regardless of age or functioning level.

Realistically, the city council and its park and recreation board have never faced a case of participation rejection involving a Down's syndrome child and must do some research on questions raised.

Can the city, with its present park and recreation staff, be confident in knowing the child is in qualified care?

Would the city be protected from liability suits if the developmentally disabled child was injured while under the attention of the present staff members?

Would accepting the special child into the park and recreation program create a salaried position within the park and recreation staff?

The latter question is a concern to the city council and the park board members, primarily because additional expenses with the new position could possibly shut down the present park and recreation program.

The end result could be approximately 200 youngsters — instead of one — will not be participating in any type of park and recreation program because there won't be one.

Whether this becomes a harsh reality still needs plenty of investigation by both the city, the child's parents and the Nebraska Advocacy Service, which plans on continuing its questioning on the parent's complaint.

Wayne's park and recreation program is vital to the community and would be a shame to lose.

But even more of a shame would be to deny an individual, no matter what type of disability he or she has, a chance to enjoy life-if the opportunity is available.

There needs to be some sort of compromise between the three groups. Perhaps there is an alternative or avenue which might have been overlooked.

It would certainly be worth the effort to quickly find the right solution before all realism is lost and emotion takes over.

Increase causes friction

To the editor:
THOU SHALT NOT STEAL!
I'm wondering if the Wayne School Board has heard of this Commandment? Doesn't it sound ridiculous to raise the non-resident tuition $1,000 each just because there are fewer rural youth coming to high school?

One might think with fewer pupils they could eliminate one teacher instead. I challenge them to reply with an actual per pupil cost to educate a student per year, and then try to give a valid reason for increasing the tuition.

This certainly makes for friction between city and country folks. Here we are with farm foreclosures and bankruptcies on one hand and on the other hand, someone asking for MORE money for LESS pupils!

Students thank merchants

To the editor:
As a student at Wayne State College, I would like to take the opportunity to give a special thank you to three Wayne merchants. Recently a group of students took a research Biology trip to the Gulf of Mexico off the coast of Alabama.

The trip turned out to be a great success and very beneficial for both the college and the students. It wouldn't have been as great a success without three merchants who allowed us to have a fund raiser at their places of business.

The merchants that we would like to recognize and commend are: The King of Clubs, Home Town IGA (Ron's Jack & Jill), and the 7th Street Derby Station. To those merchants, we say, "thank you very much."

"It will be a trip well remembered and we will remember you when we return in the Fall."

Bereuter congratulates chamber

To the editor:
Recently I have followed with great interest the progress of the Wayne Chamber of Commerce's program to provide volunteer help to area farmers during Spring planting.

The program appears to be a great success and I want to add my hearty congratulations to the Wayne Chamber and the Wayne volunteers who took time to help area farmers cope with another "wet spring" in Northeast Nebraska.

This is the type of program that keeps our rural communities vibrant and makes Nebraska such a great place to live. It also further enforces my belief that Nebraska's greatest resource is its people.

Again, congratulations on a great idea and follow-through. Hopefully this idea will spread to other communities.

1985 farm bill will set the stage for the next century

If it seems that the 1985 Farm Bill is generating more thought and discussion than similar bills in years past, the impression is correct. Although there have been 76 pieces of farm program legislation enacted since 1933, the 1985 Farm Bill is, in fact, special.

One USDA Official says the '85 bill will be the most important in 50 years, while many analysts believe the '85 program will signal the direction American agriculture will take in the next century.

The current farm bill, the Agriculture and Food Act of 1981, is due to expire with the 1985 crop year. The start-up date for the 1985 bill is equally vague, except for a general need to have program guidelines in place by July '85 for planting of winter wheat for harvest in 1986.

SO THE '85 BILL has a year to go and the '85 bill is pending. Still, Congress passed and President Reagan recently signed into law the Agricultural Programs Adjustment Act of 1984. Compared to the '81 and '85 bills, this is minor legislation. But it's reasonable to ask why a new farm program all of a sudden, just before the old bill expires.

There are at least two politically obvious and expedient reasons. One, the well-known election year propensity of Congress and presidents to tinker with farm programs, and the urge to get new money in farm pockets just ahead of election day.

Still, there is a need for this legislation and it points out why, on the average, there's been a new piece of farm legislation about every nine months for the last 50 years. Those major, four-year farm bills have tended to be inflexible, while conditions in farming can change overnight. Just about any kind of social, political or economic change has an immediate effect on agriculture.

For example, current economic conditions are a lot different than they were when Congress set target price levels back in the summer and fall of 1981. At that time, inflation was at least three times what it is now, and prices had been driven up and interest rates were higher than they are now.

BECAUSE CONGRESS acted on the assumption that inflation would continue at the same rate, a price escalator was built into the target price system. The new adjustment act prevents the escalator from moving up as scheduled next year.

In this new legislation, farmers were fortunate that Congress didn't bow to political temptation and adjust loan rates upward, which would have assured over-production at a time when supplies are already more than adequate. It's also fortunate that Congress didn't expand the federal farmer-owned reserve, which higher loan rates would have mandated. Stored commodities drive down markets and depress the prices they're trying to improve.

It is interesting to note that while Congress has been passing farm bills since 1933, the number of farmers has steadily decreased. At the same time, the number of federal employees working to "save" farmers has increased dramatically, from 24,400 in 1929 to 122,600 in 1982. And the commodities that have received the most farm program "help" are the ones having the most marketing and income problems.

THE MARKET SYSTEM is the heartbeat of a free and prosperous agriculture. It determines the vitality of our national economy and if, not government farm programs, brings improved net income to farmers and ranchers.

So, any farm bill written in summer '85 must be flexible enough to meet potential market conditions that can develop by 1989, while emphasizing and relying on the market system and setting the stage for the 21st Century.

Thus it shouldn't be a surprise that many farm leaders see nothing less than the farmer's freedom being involved in the 1985 bill — freedom to operate, to make farming decisions and to use the required land and water resources, without unnecessary government involvement.

The above was written by Cheryl Stubben-dick, director of information of the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation.

Q. My husband and I will have an estate in the range of $100,000 to $150,000. What taxes would the surviving spouse have if one spouse dies? What taxes would the estate have if we were both killed in an auto accident? We are both in our early 60s. What can we do ahead of time to decrease the amount of taxes and other expenses so that the surviving spouse or heirs would get the most possible from the estate? We both have a will.

A. In all likelihood the surviving spouse would not have to pay any estate tax. Currently the federal government has an unlimited marital deduction for estates passing completely to surviving spouses. If you were both killed in a car accident, each spouse's half of the marital estate would pass through their respective wills and (in the absence of some language in your will dealing with simultaneous death) on to the named heirs in each will. The amount of taxes your heir will have to pay depends on many factors including the size and composition of your estate, and how much of your estate each heir receives.

The goal of giving your heirs the most possible out of your estate can only be accomplished through good estate planning. Such a plan can be tailored to your particular situation and needs by your attorney through the use of a variety of estate devices including, among others, life insurance, trust arrangements, and a gifting program utilizing the gift tax laws.

A LEARN-at-home course is ideal for anyone who can't attend workshops. It's also nice for people who like to learn at their own pace. Each course covers one topic thoroughly and there are no quizzes or papers to turn in for grading. Check at the county extension office for a complete list of topics and the costs. Included in this course is a multi-size pattern for a toddler sized t-shirt. You will also learn how to personalize your work with decorations. Growing children make learning how to alter a t-shirt a must. And there are some general guidelines you can use when sewing other garments for your child.

Try sewing a t-shirt for your tot by using this learn-at-home course.

PARENTS OF older children will be interested in another learn-at-home course entitled "Effective Parenting for Greater Family Well-Being." Most parenting courses focus on infant care, but this course will help parents of older children.

Thirty players from each division across the state will participate.

Rain dates

Two of the softball and baseball games that were postponed due to rain during the past week have been rescheduled according to the team's coaches.

The Wayne Midget and Junior Legion baseball doubleheader that was originally scheduled with Pender for Monday, June 11 has been rescheduled for Tuesday, July 17 in Wayne, beginning at 6:30 p.m.

The Wayne 18-under girls softball tournament that was to be held this past weekend (June 15-17) in Walthill has been moved to this coming weekend, June 22-24. The playing schedule and times for all games will remain the same.

Towners ease by O'Neill 4-3

Wayne survived a ninth inning rally by O'Neill and drove away with a 4-3 win in town team baseball Wednesday night.

It wasn't until the third inning when Wayne scored and broke the 0-0 deadlock. Three more runs were scored by Wayne in the top of the eighth inning which spotted the local town team to a 4-0 lead over O'Neill going into the final half-inning of the game.

Wayne pitcher Jerry Goeden, who had allowed only two hits until the final inning, gave up his first walk of the game in the ninth inning which was followed by consecutive singles by John Miller and Joe Wisniewski. An error by the Wayne shortstop allowed another run to cross the plate, bringing the score to 4-3 with a runner on first base for O'Neill.

O'Neill's Gary Schnieder then hit a fly ball that was heading for shallow right field which looked like it was going to drop in. But Mike Meyer, Wayne player-manager, said second baseman Todd Pfeifer made an outstanding play and made the game-saving catch.

"Jerry did a good job on the mound until the last inning. He was losing control with his fastball and went to the breaking curve more to retire the batters," Meyer said. Goeden recorded 11 strikeouts in the game and gave up a total of only four hits while walking just one.

"Mike Breske at shortstop showed a strong arm on some hits that were hit deep in the hole," he added.

Wayne's first run of the game came in the third inning when Doug Carroll singled and later scored when the O'Neill shortstop booted a ball hit by Neil Blohm.

Three insurance runs were added by Wayne in the eighth inning after Neil Blohm walked, Bill Schwartz singled and Jeff Dion clubbed his third hit of the game—a three-run homer.

"The hits were pretty spread out," Mike Meyer said.

Dion had three of the total five hits, including a double and home run, with three runs batted in.

Losing pitcher of the game was Doug Rowse, who struck out eight and walked one Wayne batter.

This Sunday (June 17) the Wayne Town Team is at home against Battle Creek and on Wednesday, the club travels to Neligh in Tri-County Amateur Baseball League action.

The record for the Wayne Town Team now stands at 5-1.

Wayne State College

Wildcat camp June 18-29

Over 80 participants are registered for the upcoming Wayne State College Basketball Camp to be held June 18-29 at Wayne State College.

This year's camp is divided into two sections for both boys and girls.

They are June 18-22, from 9 a.m. to noon, boys grades 5-8; June 18-22, from 1-4 p.m., girls grades 5-8.

June 23-29, 9 a.m. to noon, boys grades 9-12; June 23-29, 1-4 p.m., girls grades 9-12.

According to WSC head men's basketball coach Rick Weaver, the three-hour sessions will be broken down into three parts, to allow for as much individual attention as possible.

There are approximately 25 enrolled in each of the boys sections, and about 20 in the girls section, said Weaver.

"This camp is designed to help each participant improve on the fundamentals and individual skills," Weaver said, "and also to help point out personal weaknesses so that the players can do special work in that area to build up and correct the problem."

The camp sessions will include work on the basic fundamentals through the use of a station-to-station method. Participants will spend time working on skills such as shooting, passing, rebounding, ball handling and defensive moves.

Another of the camp features is the use of video tape recording and playback, allowing both players and coaches to analyze styles and possible weaknesses.

Also included in the sessions will be one-on-one and full court team drills, and free throw competition throughout the week.

Special presentations on shooting, rebounding, conditioning and defense will also be conducted.

The college weight room facilities will be available for use, and instruction on proper lifting techniques and guidance will be provided.

Campers will also be able to use the college swimming pool at the close of each session.

Camp t-shirts will be available to all participants. At the close of each week of camp, awards such as best free throw shooter and huster of the week will be given.

Helping Weaver with the camp will be head women's basketball Coach Lenny Klaver, who will be working primarily with the girls sections each week.

Numerous WSC Wildcat basketball players and area coaches will also be assisting with the instruction.

Head baseball Coach Lenny Klaver announced his first signings of the year last Friday.

"We will only return 10 players for next year, so we needed a number of players, especially pitchers," Klaver said.

The five signees include: —Dean Heying, an infielder from Granville, Iowa and graduate of Spalding High School. The 5-10, 160-pounder is the brother of former WSC baseball player Randy Heying and the nephew of former Wildcat baseball All-American Steve Heying.

—Mark Priggenitz, a right-handed pitcher from Johnson County Community College in Overland Park, Kan. He is a 6-0, 175 lb. native of Evergreen, Colo.

—Mark Tellkamp, a right hander from Illinois Valley Community College is from LaSalle, Ill., and comes in at 6-1 and 210 lbs.

—Jeff Rothrock, a right-handed pitcher from Olney Central Community College in Olney, Ill. Rothrock, 6-0 and 160 lbs. was an Illinois Junior College All-Star player and is originally from Findlay, Ill.

The water's fine

CRISTINE EWING, 2½-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David P. Ewing of Wayne, enjoys a dip in the wading pool at the Wayne Municipal Swimming Pool during last week's hot and humid weather. With summer near, the city swimming pool and places like it are certain to become popular spots as adults and children alike try to cool off and "beat the heat."

Horsing around

SEVERAL PEOPLE from the Wayne area participated recently in the White Horse Ranch Round-up. The events included a 10 mile trail ride and pork barbeque on Saturday and a horse show on Sunday.

WSC hires athletic trainer

Wayne State College athletic director Ron Jones recently announced the hiring of a Waterloo, Iowa native, as the college's athletic trainer. Sue Reynolds, a 1983 graduate of Iowa State University, was hired on a one-year appointment to fill the position vacated by Kurt Czupryn, who is taking a year's leave of absence to work on his doctoral program at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. She earned her masters degree from Ohio University this month and is certified by the National Trainer's Association.

At Iowa State, Reynolds was a student trainer for over three years. She worked with many of the Cyclones' sports including softball, women's basketball and football. She also has experience working with central Iowa high school football teams for three seasons.

During the past year she was the head athletic trainer at Crooksville (Ohio) High School.

A 1978 graduate of Waterloo West High School, Reynolds was a varsity swimmer at ISU for three years and has coached summer swim teams in the Waterloo area.

"I'm very pleased to have Sue on board with us in our division," said Ron Jones. "She comes to us very highly recommended from the institutions she has worked at."

She will begin work at Wayne State in early August. Along with her training duties, she will also serve as an instructor in the college's health, physical education, recreation and athletics division.

EMMA SOULES and Myrth Splittgerber "dance up a storm" while the Senior Citizens Band strikes up the beat.

A "LITTLE MISS" contestant has the honor of pulling out the time capsule in Bressler Park.

A "SENIOR" band member strums the washboard while singing a familiar melody.

LOWER ELKHORN NATURAL RESOURCES DISTRICT

Understanding water erosion

The greatest amount of water erosion in the United States occurs as sheet and rill erosion, and most of it occurs on cropland. Water erosion occurring naturally is called geologic erosion, but man's management of the soil for crop production frequently results in accelerated erosion. With increased cropping intensity, water erosion has more than doubled on much of our cropland during the last 30 years.

Sheet erosion begins when a raindrop hits the soil surface. Raindrop impact separates soil particles from the soil body. Some of the soil particles become suspended in the water. When runoff occurs, the suspended soil particles go with it. Rills are then formed.

Water erosion control practices are designed to:

1. Stop or reduce detachment of soil particles; and
2. Stop or slow down water runoff.

Factors that effect the quantity of erosion that takes place include: 1. Amount, intensity and duration of rainfall. 2. Soil characteristics. 3. Length of slope. 4. Steepness of slope. 5. Kind of crops and their management. 6. Conservation practices applied to the land.

Much can be done in cropping and management to influence the amount of erosion. Some of the specific soil conservation practices that reduce water erosion are:

1. Crop residue management. Crop residues can be utilized to control erosion on cultivated fields. To accomplish this purpose, the residue must be on the land during critical erosion periods. Residue is most effective when left on the soil surface. The higher the percentage of soil surface covered by residue, the lower energy in the falling raindrop is dissipated and the drop trickles to the soil dam, slowing runoff and increasing infiltration. Residue worked into the soil surface also increases water infiltration. Adoption of tillage systems using some form of non-inversion tillage that retains protective amounts of residue mulch on the soil surface throughout the year is essential for erosion control with intensive cropping. These include non-till, eocofallow, strip till, stubble mulching chiseling, discing, and other kinds of tillage that maintain the residue on the surface or that mix residues in the top few inches of the soil surface. Proper management or residues is the key to the success of this tillage practice. Residues plowed under by conventional tillage are less effective in controlling erosion than those mixed into the top few inches or left on the soil surface.

2. Terracing. To make a terrace, an earth embankment, channel, or a combination ridge and channel is constructed across the slope. Terraces are used to (a) reduce slope length, (b) reduce sediment content in runoff water, (c) intercept and conduct surface runoff at a nonerosive velocity to a stable outlet, (d) retain runoff for moisture conservation, (e) prevent gully development, (f) reduce flooding, and (g) improve farmability. Terraces reduce erosion by reducing slope length. The shorter the slope length the less the erosion. Most terraced fields are farmed on the contour, however, some farming is done up and down the slope between terraces.

3. Contouring. Contouring means to fill, plant, cultivate and harvest sloping land on the contour. The purposes of the practices are to conserve water and control erosion. Some water is trapped between the crop rows and soaks in, thereby reducing runoff and erosion.

4. Contour stripcropping. This is the production of different crops in a systematic arrangement of strips or bands on the contour to reduce water erosion. The crops are arranged so that a strip of grass or close-growing crop is alternated with a strip of clean-tilled crop or fallow, or a strip of grass is alternated with a close-growing crop. The purposes of contour stripcropping are to reduce erosion and conserve water.

5. Cover and green manure crops. These are usually close-growing grasses, legumes, or small grains used primarily for seasonal protection and soil improvement. They are usually grown for one year or less, except where a permanent cover is needed, such as in orchards. The purpose of growing cover and green manure crops are to control erosion during periods when the principle crops do not furnish adequate cover; to add organic material to the soil; and to improve infiltration, aeration, tilth, and moisture retention. Legumes grown as green manure crops also produce nitrogen that can be used by the succeeding grain crops.
