Raining on a sunny day

MEMBERS OF the Carroll, Belden, Madison and Wayne fire departments participated in a training session, disposing of a condemned house that was donated for the training exercises by the Farmer's State Bank of Carroll. Drops of water falling on the firemen, pictured above, were a welcome relief from the heat of the day and the fire. The house was located on the east edge of Carroll.

Weather to blame

Treatment plant behind schedule

by Chuck Hackenmiller

Wet spring and early summer weather conditions and a rough winter are the basic culprits for the completion date delay in construction of Wayne's new waste-water treatment plant.

"At this point, they [Spencer Construction of Spencer, Iowa] are two to two months behind," said Dennis Hirschbrunner of Bruce Gilmore and Associates from Columbus, engineers of the waste water treatment plant project.

"We're hoping that when the rains quit and it dries out, they can add some manpower and add a month [decrease the delay] to that," he said.

Spencer Construction has sent a letter to the Wayne City Council. Hirschbrunner said, seeking extension of time to complete the project. They also asked for credit of time when weather conditions weren't suitable in the winter to work on the waste treatment plant project.

scaping, probably won't be completed until the spring of 1985. However, barring anymore weather setbacks, the city should be able to take over the waste water plant in January, he said.

PAPERWORK on the project began in 1975. At this time, Wayne's current water treatment plant (a lagoon system located at the end of Fairground Avenue) was studied to estimate the amount of discharge from the system.

"In Wayne's case it was over-discharging," said Kloster.

"We had to go through some preliminary planning to reduce the emission to below the federal guidelines, and then we advanced to the designing stage," he added.

Total costs, including the studies, designing and construction fees, will reach the $2 million figure when the project is completed.

Of that total, the city will receive 87 1/2 percent from federal and state funds (75 percent federal and 12 1/2 percent state) while the remaining 12 1/2 percent is raised locally.

Local funding is obtained through the city's sewer billing, which was increased last winter and went into effect on last month's sewer bill.

Kloster said the city ended up hiring an additional employee to assist in the operation of the new waste water treatment facility.

"Technically, there are four employees that do other things like help out the street department who will be working at the plant," Kloster said.

"One person will be spending a major portion of the day in the plant running tests and checking the equipment," he added.

Overnight parking sought on Sherman block

by Chuck Hackenmiller

A petition was presented to the Wayne City Council Tuesday evening requesting allowance of overnight parking on a section of Sherman Street.

Street and alley repair seemed to capture a major portion of the decisions and discussion during the city council regular meeting.

Fred Weber, a resident of 1312 Sherman Street, distributed the petition Tuesday evening to the council members. The original petition requested that the city council allow overnight parking on the west side of the 1300 block of Sherman Street from the north end of the street to the south edge of the driveway of 1300 Sherman Street.

"He said all four residents along the 1300 block of Sherman Street had signed the petition."

"We need the parking on the north end of the street," he said.

"The overnight parking on the dead-end street would not impede traffic since the road is not frequently traveled, he mentioned, and the cars would be removed by the residents from the streets if there were need for snow removal.

There is a section of the 1300 block (about 70 feet) where overnight parking would not be needed, he said. This area is located near the 13th Street-Sherman Street intersection.

A fire hydrant is also near the area where overnight parking is not necessary, he said.

HOWEVER, Wayne Police Chief Vern Fairchild advised the council to "make it [the overnight parking allowance] the full block or none at all."

"We don't want to be out there measuring distances (the 70 foot restriction) at 3 a.m. when someone calls us," Fairchild said.

Councilman Darrel Fuelberth made the motion to approve the overnight parking for the entire block, followed by unanimous approval by the remaining city council members.

An alley, currently not being used, will be abandoned to allow one adjacent property owner to build on the alley property currently owned by the city.

Kirk Hutton of 414 Logan requested that the non-used alley be placed near his property and the property to the north of the alley be abandoned and turned over to the adjacent property owners.

Hutton said he has a garden already on the property and wants to build a garage near the area. The property is needed by Hutton to meet the city's building code for the garage construction.

The city council voted to prepare a 10 foot utility easement to the property for Hutton to sign and also to compose a resolution stating the intentions to abandon the alley.

Also, a street improvement district was approved by the city council to pave an alley on the block where the First National Bank is located. The public hearing on this proposal is scheduled for Tuesday, July 31 at 7:50 p.m.

FIVE MINUTES later (at 7:55 p.m. the same date), the city council will conduct another public hearing on the creation of a street improvement district, which is an extension from East 4th Street eastward to service the new waste water treatment facility and the street near the public housing.

Also Tuesday evening, the city council returned a request of rezoning back to the city's planning and zoning commission for further consideration.

The request is that property owned by John Redel of 202 Fairground Avenue be rezoned from its present commercial status to business to allow for operation of a restaurant or coffee house of some sort.

Property is zoned Business 3 across the street from where the requested rezoned property is located. The planning and zoning commission, with five members present, unanimously approved the request.

However, the city council had questions of their own — such as if there would be the required adequate parking spaces available and whether a future proposed road project on Fairgrounds Avenue would permit any parking at all along the street.

A detailed plat of the building request, showing the parking spaces, will need to be drawn up and inspected by the planning and zoning commission before the city council decides whether or not to grant the rezoning request.

The city council also were informed by City Administrator Phil Kloster of a program sponsored by John Deere in cooperation with Logan Valley of Wayne where a non-profit organization can qualify for a lease program which he said "will cost the city practically nothing."

According to Kloster, the city would pay two $1,000 installments during one full year, with the first payment due Dec. 31 and the second due at the end of June. When the tractor (mower) is returned to Logan Valley, the lease money will be returned to the city.

The city's expense of $56.90 will go towards the operation of the leased mower, such as for gas or oil expenditures. Kloster said the city will work out an arrangement with the baseball association on the leasing program.

Area projects in state road construction plan

If all goes according to the Nebraska Department of Roads plans, work on nearly eight miles of Highway No. 9 north of Wakefield and 1.5 miles in Wayne will begin sometime between July 1, 1984 and June 30, 1985.

Director-State Engineer Louis E. Lamberty announced the plans last Thursday for the combined state system and local system Highway Construction and Improvement Program for Fiscal 1985 — calling for the expenditure of $175.6 million.

Newly announced projects for the upcoming fiscal year will total $134.4 million and the local system program for projects eligible for federal and/or state aid totals $31.4 million.

The expected cost for the 7.8 miles of grading, culverts, surfacing and resurfacing on N-9 north of Wakefield in Dixon County will be $2,053,000.

Also included in next fiscal year's road construction plans is a 1.5 mile stretch of Highway N-25 in Wayne, which will include a resurfacing project from west of the Wayne-Carroll High School to near Parinda. This project is estimated to cost approximately $405,000.

City Administrator Phil Kloster said the project would also include surfacing up to 2,000 feet of an area north of Highway 35 from 7th Street to 14th Street.

He said the city is also asking the Nebraska Department of Roads to incorporate another road section resurfacing project within the city from an area 7th Street South to near Victor Park, approximately 3,000.

KLOSTER said the city council has asked that the road construction would not interfere with celebration plans of the Wayne Centennial.

The total number of miles (including the 13 carryover projects) scheduled for improvements in Fiscal 1985 on the state system, by type of government, are: new construction, 10.8 miles; reconstruction, 129.9 miles; gravel elimination, 32.4 miles; resurfacing and surfaced shoulders, 157.3 miles; and Interstate 4R, 78.4 miles, for a total of 408.8 miles.

"We absolutely have to take care to improve the condition of Nebraska's number one highway," said Lamberty. "The interstate is of such prime economic importance to Nebraska, its needs must be attended."

Emphasis which is placed on the Interstate highway system improvements is evident on the fiscal 1985 program.

A total of 78.4 miles of Interstate resurfacing, restoration, rehabilitation and reconstruction is scheduled in the new program, compared with 28 miles in last year's program.

THE NEBRASKA Department of Roads also listed the roads which were scheduled for contracting or roadwork from fiscal 1986 through fiscal 1990.

Among area roads on the list are: Wayne

Beeks appointed to council

by Chuck Hackenmiller

Ivan Beeks of 321 East 6th Street in Wayne was appointed Tuesday evening by the Wayne City Council to fill the first ward councilman position vacated by Jim Craun.

Craun, who moved from Wayne for employment purposes, resigned from the first ward councilman position effective on June 1. Since that time, the city council had, until Tuesday evening, been conducting meetings with one less than the required eight council members and mayor. The appointment of Beeks Tuesday evening makes the required eight-member city council complete.

Beeks had served on the city council for a four-year term in the 70's, he said. He will serve the term of councilman until Dec. 31, 1984, the time when Craun's term was to expire.

An election for the first ward councilman seat will take place in November with the two top vote-getters in the May primary contest each other for the first ward seat.

Those candidates include Stanley Hansen and Kent Hall.

Settling down

WINSIDE'S ANNUAL Old Settlers celebration took place over the past weekend with numerous events, some of which were a kiddie parade and a main parade, a horseshoe pitching contest, three-wheeler pull, big wheels contest, bike races, mini-tractor pull, tug-of-war pull, adult water fight, cash drawings and a barbeque. Photos of the parade are on page 9b and results of the activities are on page 9a.

Centennial workers sought

An orientation session for anyone wishing to volunteer to help staff the Wayne Centennial Store will take place from 1-3 p.m. on Tuesday, July 3 at the Centennial Store.

The store needs each person about twice during the summer. Any questions, please call Eileen Kloster at 375-4414 or Joanie Burst at 375-4892.

Attend veterinary meeting

Drs. David Swerczek and Ken Liska of Wayne attended the recent summer meeting of the Nebraska Veterinary Medical Association held in Chadron last week.

Officer graduates

Thirteen officer candidates and more than 100 non-commissioned officers were graduated recently in open-air ceremonies at the Nebraska National Guard Military Academy in Lincoln.

Area graduates included: Les L. Cline and Kirk K. Echtenkamp of Wayne. This graduation marked the completion of the first cycle of the Primary Leadership Development Course taught here under a regional concept.

Forget-Me-Not

The National Forget-Me-Not Association is planning recognition ceremonies for POW/MIA's to occur on July 20 National POW/MIA Recognition Day.

State Chairman Tammy Jarecki is attempting to gather biographical information on the 25 POW/MIA's from Nebraska still unaccounted for in Southeast Asia.

Families are asked to contact Jarecki if they would like to give information on their loved ones still missing in Southeast Asia. Inquiries/information should be addressed to: Forget-Me-Not Association, P.O. Box 6781, Lincoln, NE 68506.

Siren testing

The city of Wayne will conduct the monthly testing of the Civil Defense Outdoor Warning Sirens at 1 p.m. on Friday, June 29. All siren signals will be tested in the silent mode, with the exception of the following: the air horn signal will be allowed to run approximately fifteen seconds to test the effectiveness of the system.

If any resident living near a siren location should fail to hear the air horn signal, please contact the police department promptly so the siren can be checked for malfunction.

Old photos at Bancroft

The John G. Nelhardt Center, a branch museum of the Nebraska State Historical Society, will display historic photos of Bancroft during the Bancroft Centennial Week July 1-8.

The photos will include early businesses, homes, street scenes, the old mill and pioneer farming scenes.

The exhibit may be seen during the Center's visitation hours of 8:30 a.m. and 1-5 p.m. from Monday through Saturday and from 1:30 to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

The Bancroft Centennial Celebration special dates are July 6-8, with Friday being "Royalty Day", Saturday a "Country Fair Day", and Sunday the "Centennial Day."

Competes in Horse Show

Curt and Corey Nelson of Carroll recently competed at the District 4-H Horse Show in Madison.

Corey received the second purple ribbon in senior poles and senior barrel competition. Curt received a blue ribbon in senior poles and senior barrel competition.

Both will now go to the state 4-H Horse Show in Grand Island on July 19 and 20. They will also compete at Ak-Sar-Ben in September.

They are the sons of Leroy Nelson of Carroll and Sandra Nelson of Wayne.

Tax workshop

A free Small Business Tax Workshop for new owners and managers of small businesses is being held by the Internal Revenue Service at the Norfolk Public Library on July 10 from 9 a.m. to 12 noon.

During this workshop, an IRS tax specialist and a representative from the Nebraska Department of Revenue will cover such topics as business expenses, employer tax responsibilities, business income tax returns, deposit requirements, record keeping and other tax issues essential to small business operations. Persons attending the workshop will also have an opportunity to get questions answered on tax problems affecting their particular situation.

Persons interested in attending the workshop should contact the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce at 371-4862 to make reservations.

PIPPIN musical scheduled

'PIPPIN, an adult musical comedy, is a magical combination of moving, platforms, magic tricks, singing and dancing. This delightful production will be presented Friday, June 29 and Saturday, June 30 at 8 p.m. in Ramsey Theatre.

Directors Juli Burney, Mary Halverstadt, Connie Linder Smith and Scott K. Hall have been working hard for six weeks to bring together this magical combination. The cast includes 18 very talented young people including eight year old Scott Agnew and a live duck.

The orchestra is well rounded with 16 of the top musicians in the Wayne area. Put this combination together, along with a large efficient technical crew and Wayne, America is able to view an exciting presentation of PIPPIN.

PIPPIN is the story of Charlemagne's first born son, who is trying to find a life that is completely fulfilling. He is able to try almost every aspect of life with the help of the leading characters and the players telling the story.

And at the end of the story he does find where his search for fulfillment can lead him. A lesson that each one of us also learns.

Tickets for PIPPIN are available the night of the production at the door. General admission is $3, students and staff at Wayne State are admitted free.

Fire call

Children in poverty

Economic future looking grim

by Marian Wright Edelman

Over the last two years, the Children's Defense Fund has been receiving reports of women being turned away from hospitals while in labor because they had no Medicaid card or private health care; of families breaking up under the stress of unemployment and inadequate public assistance; of parents who could not work because they could not afford child care.

Behind the anecdotes are hard numbers that portray grim but accurate pictures of the poverty facing millions of children in our country.

American's children are in deep trouble. As a result of economic recession and unjust Reagan budget cuts and economic policies, American children are more likely today to suffer death and sickness, hunger and cold, abuse and neglect, and be left alone without adequate child care than three years ago.

They are less likely to be born with adequate prenatal care, to be immunized, to have access to preventive health and dental care, and to receive supplemental education services.

OF PARTICULAR concern is the alarming nationwide erosion in prenatal care which is costly in lives and dollars as well as unnecessary. An analysis of birth data from all 50 states from 1978 to 1982 shows a nationwide shift away from early prenatal care for pregnant women and towards late or no prenatal care.

Babies born to women receiving late or no prenatal care are three times as likely to die in infancy as those receiving early care. This degenerating access to prenatal care is a portent of increased infant mortality and morbidity on a nationwide basis.

Between 1981 and 1982, mortality rates for all infants increased in 11 states; for white infants in 9 states; and for non-white infants in 13 states.

Federal cuts of $10 billion a year since 1981 in barebones health, nutrition, education, child care and family support programs have endangered the lives, health, and futures of millions of poor children.

CHILDHOOD immunizations have plummeted. President Reagan's funding requests that denied or restricted infants and toddlers' access to preventive health care have contributed to this outcome. Less than half of black preschool children are immunized against diphtheria, whooping cough, and typhoid; only 39 percent are immunized against polio.

With millions of additional women and children falling into poverty, the last places a humane, sensible, and fair administration would cut are programs providing cost-effective preventive maternal and child health care to the poor. Yet that is precisely what the Reagan Administration did without concern for the predictable consequences that are now appearing.

Medicaid has been slashed over $4 billion; Title V Maternal and Child Health Programs and Community and Migrant Health Centers have been slashed by tens of millions of dollars. As a result, every state has reduced health services for mothers and children.

Some 3.1 million children, or 3,000 a day, have fallen into poverty since 1979. This overall child poverty increase of 31 percent represents the sharpest increase in child poverty since poverty statistics have been collected. Even in intact white families, child poverty is higher now than at any time since 1965.

MILLIONS OF THESE children receive little or no federal assistance. Many more have seen their already meager benefits eliminated or reduced across the board. Between 1981 and 1982, as a result of Reagan budget cuts and rescissions, 700,000 children have been thrown off AFDC and Medicaid; 400,000 have lost Title I compensatory education; hundreds of thousands have lost Maternal and Child Health services; and many thousands of children have lost child care services.

The percentage of poor children receiving AFDC and Medicaid is lower today than at any time in the last eight years. Only 52 children receive AFDC of every 100 who are poor; only 73 children receive Medicaid of every 100 who are poor.

Although all Americans have been weathering the past recession, American's children have suffered the most. Programs serving poor children and their families did not cause and will not cure growing federal deficits. And economic recovery does not depend on hurting children and neglecting their needs.

Increasing infant mortality, decreasing prenatal care, and declining health care for children should not be allowed to continue. Immediate action is needed to reverse the erosion. The future of hundreds of thousands of children depends on a decisive response. Ms. Edelman is a President of the Washington-based Children's Defense Fund. Copyright, 1984, The National Forum.

Government helping out

Often, government is criticized for intervening in the affairs of agriculture, athletics and business.

However, in recent weeks there have been situations where local, state and federal government have been counted on — and came through — in requests from entities for assistance.

In the wake of recent flooding within the midwestern states, several legislators have traveled to the severely damaged areas and have emphasized the importance of bringing some sort of immediate disaster relief to the farming and urban communities.

In a story last week, the Wayne Herald printed an article concerning return of tax funds by the state of Nebraska (over $70,000) to the city, county, school district and natural resource district of this area.

And this week we reported on area road improvements which will take place this year in the city of Wayne and the Wakefield area — good news for those who have been waiting for years to have these state highways improved and probably bad news for those who have their road projects placed in a lower priority on the state's five-year road construction plan.

On the local level, the Wayne city council recently made a "good gesture" decision. They voted to pay a third of the cost for purchasing 50 season pass tickets to the municipal swimming pool.

These tickets would be distributed to those youngsters who cannot afford the $20 per season pass ticket rate. The other two-thirds of the cost for the tickets were to be absorbed by the Red Cross and the Wayne Kiwanis Club.

The city council could have rejected the request, saying that another service organization in Wayne could easily drum up the money to pay for the season pass tickets.

In the future, the city council will work to find a third entity to replace the city council on the purchase of the passes. But for this summer, the city has committed itself toward paying up to $333 for the swimming passes. In addition, those who receive the free swimming pool season passes this year would be exempt from paying the $4 charge for swimming lessons.

So far the program is working well, with many of the season passes being distributed in less than a two-week period.

This is one effort by the city council which might go unrecognized by the public.

Another recent effort by the city council has resulted in the state department of roads taking a longer look at the highway conditions in the northeastern portion of Nebraska.

Representatives of the city administrative staff and street department met with the Nebraska department of transportation recently to stress the high priority concerns voiced by businessmen in Wayne to maintain, through repair or reconstruction, a highway from the city limits of Wayne to the Iowa border.

They also asked the state department of roads to place additional location signs between Sioux City and Wayne, indicating the miles to Wayne and also pointing the way to Wayne State College.

"We have a fine institution and only mediocre signs," the city representatives told the state department of roads.

The state roads department has agreed to update the signs.

These accomplishments are often lost among the complaints of government sticky red tape.

It is these above-mentioned items which show that some of the concerns of government are sincere and directed toward the betterment of communities in today's "not so easy to please everyone" society.

Commonwealth still a big concern

Even though the Legislature is now in its interim period between legislative sessions, there is no lack of activity in the capitol. At the moment, one issue, the Commonwealth failure, predominates as it has most of the time since Commonwealth was closed in November.

The latest development involving Commonwealth concerns suggestions that the Special Commonwealth Committee consider writing an amicus brief on behalf of the state. An amicus brief is a document submitted to the court by someone "who is not a party to the lawsuit to aid the court in gaining information which it needs to make a proper decision or to urge a particular result on behalf of the public."

The concern is that almost everyone in a decision-making position in regard to devising or approving the Commonwealth claims against the state lives in Lincoln; the Governor, members of the Tort Claims Board, Banking Department Director and Attorney General to name a few. Faced with the day to day pressure exerted by the Commonwealth depositors, it was suggested that these decision-makers might have a very difficult time making a fair and impartial determination concerning the state's liability.

Under these conditions, an amicus brief would clarify the issues and insure that a fair and impartial voice was heard on behalf of the state's interests.

To consider this suggestion a rather unique meeting of the Commonwealth Committee was arranged. Instead of traveling to Lincoln for the meeting, a conference call among the committee members, some staff and others took place on June 11. Members of the press and television, legislative staff and interested persons gathered in a hearing room where speakers were set up so that everyone could listen to the telephone conversation involving approximately 14 persons.

After an hour and a half of discussion, the committee rejected the idea of filing an amicus brief and the conference call came to an end. As the matter now stands, the State Claims Board has held that the state is liable and has submitted its decision to the Lancaster District Court for its approval. If the court approves, the claim will come before the Legislature for rejection or approval. The Governor has mentioned the possibility of calling a special session for this purpose, however, I'm sure this will not happen until he is assured that 25 senators will vote in favor of the claim. I'm sure those 25 votes are going to be very hard to come by.

I mentioned in my last column that an interim study hearing was tentatively scheduled to be held in Wayne during the month of August. Plans have now been finalized for the hearing which will be held on August 26 at 3 p.m. in the Ley Theatre, Humanities Building on the Wayne State campus. The resolutions under consideration will include reorganization of our courts and a close look at our county attorney and public defender systems. Don't miss this opportunity to express your views on these subjects to the senators.

With all the rain we have received this year, water law has suddenly become of prime importance. Unfortunately, those of us with water problems are finding out that it's hard to determine what the law is in Nebraska. Few statutes on the subject exist. Most of it is found in Supreme Court decisions settling disputes between opposing parties. This is one area the Legislature has studied in the past and no doubt will look into more closely in the future.

Exchange program housing needed

The governments of the United States and West Germany have set up an exchange program for high school and vocational students to better acquaint young people from the two countries, with each other's culture and industry. The program stresses the importance and benefits of close United States - German ties.

This program is directed by the Carl Duisberg Society of New York and by the American organization, Youth for Understanding. Two hundred fifty Americans will be eligible for full scholarships to study engineering, farming, or finance. The program is divided into one semester of academic study and a one-semester paid internship in the economic sector to the country visited.

Housing arrangements are an important part of the program. American families throughout the United States will have an opportunity to host these students. Families and students will be matched according to mutual interests, activities and backgrounds.

This program offers an opportunity for sharing culture and exchanging ideas. Participants can benefit through interpersonal growth and new friendships. At the international level, these relationships can contribute to the process of cooperation and accommodation among nations.

Plans are underway for the first year of a three year program. For more information, call Youth for Understanding in New York City, 1-800-424-3691.

Status of education In response to the renewed emphasis on excellence in education that we have seen in the past year, 44 states have raised graduation requirements, 42 states are reforming curricula and 42 states are revising teacher certification standards. More than half of the school districts in the country are raising the number of required credits in the educational basis — English, math and science.

In addition, after more than 20 years of steady decline, the Department of Education reports that Scholastic Achievement Test scores are rising and that all 50 states now have task forces on education.

Government check direct deposits The Department of the Treasury is again urging government check recipients to have their checks deposited to their accounts by Electronic Funds Transfer. According to the Treasury Department direct deposit is safe and convenient, and it saves tax dollars by eliminating the need to print and process checks.

For more information, write or call Direct Deposit Marketing, Department of the Treasury, Treasury Annex 1, Washington, D.C. 20226; telephone (202) 535-4337.

ask a lawyer
a public service of the nebraska state bar association

Q. What can you do if you would like to serve as a juror but have never been called? Are jurors paid for their service, and if so how much?
A. Potential jurors are chosen by a court officer called a jury commissioner, who takes names at random from the list of registered voters in each county. From this list of potential jurors, those who are unqualified are eliminated. Disqualification usually occurs only if the individual is unable to speak, read and understand English; is under 19 years of age; is not a U.S. citizen; or, is an unpardoned criminal. Because random selection is essential in providing a fair and unbiased cross-section of the county's population for jury duty, you may not actively seek to be a juror. The best you can do is register to vote and hope that you will be chosen for jury duty.
Jurors are paid $20 for each day of service, plus a certain amount for necessary mileage. Service in the district and county courts is paid for by the county; municipal court service (Omaha and Lincoln only) is paid for by the city.

June wedding vows for Fleer-Niemann

The Rev. Daniel Monson officiated at the June 16 wedding ceremony at Redeemer Lutheran Church in Wayne, uniting in marriage Jodi Jean Fleer and Michael Greg Niemann, both of South Sioux City.

Parents of the bride are Howard and Sharon Fleer of Wayne.

The bridegroom's parents are Ed Niemann, Jr. of Wayne and Nancy Niemann of New Albany, IN.

White-wicker baskets of lavender asters, white pompons and baby's breath decorated the church, along with candelabras adorned with ivory bows. Ivory, plum and orchid bows marked the church pews.

Wedding music included "Wedding Song" and "Wedding Prayer", sung by Lisa Haack of Orange City, Iowa. She was accompanied by Marilyn Wanamaker of Dakota City on the piano. Organist for the service was Mrs. Barb Meyer of Wayne.

K.C. Fisher of Westminster, Colo. was the flower girl and Cody Niemann of Wayne was the ring bearer.

Usher and candlelighters for the ceremony were Bob Reinhardt and Dennis Carroll of Wayne and Joe Niemann and Mark Niemann of New Albany, IN.

floor-length dress of candlelight ivory satin. The gown was fashioned with a Victorian neckline of silk Venice lace and schiffli embroidery.

The fitted bodice was adorned with silk Venice lace medallions and embroidery on a sheer illusion yoke. Tiny satin rosettes and pearls also accented the bodice.

The full bishop gauntlet-length sleeves of English net were trimmed with silk Venice and ribbon streamers also accented the outside of each sleeve.

The full skirt was designed with silk Venice lace, schiffli embroidery and satin rosettes and ribbon streamers. Schiffli embroidered lace encircled the hemline and cathedral-length train.

She wore a bridal hat of candlelight satin with lace edging and an illusion fingertip veil. Her cascade bouquet included ivory forever yours roses accented with Mexican pearl tip flowers, English ivy and ivory satin streamers.

Her attendants included matron of honor Deb Reinhardt of Wayne and bridesmaid Barbara Van Steenwyk of Orange City, Iowa.

THEY WORE orchid floor-length satin gowns which featured sweetheart necklines and elbow-length cinderella sleeves with ruffles at the shoulder. The full skirts were gathered at the waistline and accented with a narrow satin ribbon bow and streamers.

Hats of orchid satin with cover-all blushers completed their ensemble. They carried nosegay bouquets which featured an ivory rose surrounded by orchid mini-carnations, plum forget-me-nots, baby's breath and orchid and plum ribbon streamers.

The flowergirl's dress was of ivory satin, fashioned in a style similar to the bridesmaids. She carried rose petals in a crocheted basket which was made by the bride's great grandmother, and accented with orchid and plum streamers and bows.

Roger Niemann of Wayne was the best man, and Tom Fleer of Missouri, Mont. was the groomsmen.

The men of the wedding party wore classic charcoal grey cutaway tuxedos with light grey vests, pin-striped trousers and striped ascot ties.

The groom wore a ivory rose boutonniere with Mexican pearl tips and baby's breath to match the flowers carried by the bride. The groomsmen wore ivory rose boutonnières with baby's breath.

A RECEPTION was held following the service at the National Guard Armory in Wayne. The couple arrived at the reception in a horse-drawn carriage driven by Kathy Luft. Host couple was Bob and Diane Luft of Dakota City.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Niemann

Lori McClain of Lincoln registered the 300 guests which attended. Holly Nichols of Wayne and Kim Luft of Dakota City presided at the gift table.

Janine Stewart of Allen, Sherri Clausen of Norfolk, Sherry Murray of Wayne and Sharon Murray of Valentine cut and served the couple's wedding cake.

Leah Westerman of Hillsboro, Ore., and Norma Pollard and Terri Jeffrey of Wayne poured coffee. Cheri Jeffrey of Wayne served punch, and champagne was served by Kris Luft of Dakota City.

Helping serve the buffet supper was Sandra Nichols, Ginny Olfe, Dorothy Wert, Mardelle Mikelsen, Sharon Fleer, Mavis Luft and Sue Larsen, all of Wayne. Following a wedding trip to Kansas City, Mo., the couple will make their home near South Sioux City.

The bride is a 1979 graduate of Wayne-Carroll High School and a 1982 graduate of the St. Joseph School of Nursing. She is currently attending Briar Cliff College and is employed as a registered nurse at the Marion Health Center in Sioux City.

The bridegroom is also a 1979 Wayne-Carroll graduate and is working with McMaster Grain Company in South Sioux City.

Local author to hold signing

Laurel native Arlys Monson, author of the craft book entitled "What Now, Mom?" will hold a signing at The Shepherds in Wayne beginning at 7 p.m. tonight (Thursday).

The book features a variety of craft ideas for children and is available at the store. A widow display of the projects will also be on hand.

It is the first book by Mrs. Monson, who is the mother of four children.

Pork producers summer schedule

The Wayne County Pork Producers and the Northeast Nebraska Pork Producers hosted a barbecue for an informal exchange of information between swine coordination groups from the University of Nebraska and South Dakota State University and local pork producers on Thursday, June 14 at the Wayne County fairgrounds.

The staff and graduate students involved in swine extension research and teaching programs had toured the National Farms Hog Complex at Atkinson and the Northeast Station near Concord earlier that day.

Officers of the Nebraska Pork Producers present were Richard Eisenhauer of Bloomfield, president; Ron Keller of Monroe, first vice-president; and Terry Schrick, executive secretary. Tom Socha, executive secretary of the Nebraska SPP Association was also a representative.

The 1985 tour will be headquartered at the North Platte Station. The University staffs meet annually during the summer to tour producers' facilities, tour research facilities and examine research results.

The 1984 Wayne County Pork Producers' Queen Shelly Krummark and runner-up Karen Reeg represented the organization at the Winside Old Settlers parade on Saturday, June 23. They were accompanied by Chuck and Kathy Ruttenbeck and sons.

The Wayne County Pork Producers also assisted with the serving at the Winside barbecue on Sunday, June 24.

Porkburgers samples will be given at Ron's Jack and Jill tomorrow (Friday) and on Saturday, June 30 from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

A "Go Hog Wild" library promotion will be presented at the Winside Auditorium at 7 p.m. on July 9 for an estimated 50 children. A gift will be given at that time and pork samples will also be given out.

Volunteers interested in working at the Pork Chop Shop at the Nebraska State Fair on Sept. 1 should contact the Wayne County Pork Producers president Chuck Ruttenbeck by Thursday, July 5.

June afternoon ceremony unites Johnson-Doescher

Deborah Sue Johnson of Wisner and Kurt Douglas Doescher of Beemer exchanged wedding vows on Saturday, June 16 at the United Methodist Church of Christ in Wisner.

Rev. Robert Miller of Wisner officiated the couple's afternoon double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Roland and Janice Johnson of Wisner and Edwin and Dorothy Doescher of Beemer.

Following a wedding trip to Lake Okoboi, the couple will make their home in Beemer.

Johnson of West Point, Bradley Bayler of Bayside, Wisc. and Russell Doescher of Beemer were ring bearers.

Candelighters were Brittanie and Brandie Johnson of West Point. Ushers for the ceremony were Kerry Neilson of Pilger, Jeff Dinklage of Wisner, Rob Johnson of Beemer and John Johnson of Wayne.

The bride's personal attendant was Judy Eggers of Wisner.

She chose to complete her ensemble with a small brimmed bridal hat covered with seed pearl studded chantilly lace and chiffon. It featured a side upswing with a silk rose as well as a pout veil and fingertip-length streamers down the back.

Her bridal bouquet included robium orchids, red-roses, stephanotis, baby's-breath and springerie.

The flowergirls carried hand-crocheted baskets filled with red and pink roses and accented with springerie.

Best man was Clay Doescher of Beemer. Jim Oligmuller of Wisner, Rob Johnson of Beemer and John Johnson of Wayne were the groomsmen.

The men in the wedding party wore gray tuxedos.

The mother of the bride wore a floor-length gown of brandy rose crepe and a corsage of red roses and stephanotis. The groom's mother chose a long dress of rose georgette, which was finished with a corsage of stephanotis and ivy.

BASKETS OF white gladiolas and candelabras finished with white carnations, baby's breath and ribbons of the wedding colors decorated the church.

Wedding music included the songs "Endless Love," "Wedding Song" and "The Lord's Prayer," sung by Cammy Murphy and Dennis Vollmer of Wisner. Organist was Deb Hansen of Wisner.

Flower girls were Melissa Johnson of Beemer and Bobbie

The bride was given in marriage by her parents, and selected a traditional floor-length gown of white chantilly lace over dacron for her wedding day.

The gown's fitted natural waist bodice featured a lace and seed pearl edged slit neckline and a victorian V-lace, overlay with iridescent sequins. A satin ribbon belt with silk Venice lace appliques accented the waist.

Full bishop sleeves designed of chantilly lace ended with a lace ruffle at the wrist. The flowing cathedral-length train was edged with two lace-edged tiers that swept up to the waist on the front of the skirt.

BRIDAL ATTENDANTS included maid of honor Sandie Johnson of Lincoln and bridesmaids Beth Oswald of Wisner, Kathy Johnson of Beemer and Nancy Johnson of Wayne.

They wore floor-length gowns of daphne rose and burgundy poly-interlock lace.

The gowns featured spaghetti straps and a fitted bodice which gathered at the waist. A full crystal pleated skirt fell from the empire waistline.

A dyed-to-match lace jacket and white crocheted lace gloves completed their dresses.

They carried lace fans with

A RECEPTION was held following the ceremony at the Indian Trail Saddle Club in Beemer. Host couples were Bill and Darlene Johnson of West Point and Randall and Sharon Bauer of Bayside, Wisc.

Registering guests were Brenda Nilges of Wisner and Denise Heermann of Columbus.

Mr. and Mrs. Kurt Doescher

Presiding at the gift table was Jeff Nilges and Kandl Meyer, both of Wisner.

Cutting and serving the wedding cake were Elaine Vuille of Juneau, Alaska and Jean Hunke of Beemer. Lois Johnson of Wisner and Luella Janke of West Point served coffee, while Brittanie and Brandie Johnson served punch.

The bride is a 1979 graduate of Wisner-Pilger High School and is employed at the Citizens National Bank of Wisner.

club news

Just Us Gals celebrate birthday

The Just Us Gals Club met for a regular meeting at the Wakefield Care Center on Wednesday, June 20.

Julie Gronie was hostess for the meeting which was attended by 11 members and two guests. Roll call was answered by relating an experience driving a first car.

The group celebrated the birthday of Helen Hupp, a resident at the Center. Florence Van of Madison and Inez Soderberg of Wakefield, sisters of Mrs. Hupp, were present for the occasion.

A carry-in lunch was served and the afternoon was spent visiting.

The next regular meeting will be on Wednesday, Sept. 13 with Gail Spar as hostess. They also plan a picnic for sometime in August.

Sunrise Toastmasters meet

Members of the Wayne Sunrise Toastmasters Club met for their regular meeting on Tuesday morning, June 26.

Anne Svoboda was toastmaster and Dave Merchant served as topic master.

Sam Schroeder and Doug Temme were the morning's featured speakers.

The officers of the group plan to attend a training session to be held in Norfolk on June 30.

Evening Circle holds meeting

The St. Paul's Lutheran Church Evening Circle met on Monday, June 25.

Six members were present at the meeting.

Nancy Jo Powers presented the devotions.

The craft project which was begun last month was completed. It was also reported that tray favors will be presented to the residents at the Wayne Care Centre at a later date.

Gloria Leseberg served lunch.

Regular meetings will resume in September.

Monday Mrs. tour Sioux City

Four members and two guests of the Monday Mrs. Home Extension Club met on Monday, June 25.

Guests attending were Iona Roeber and Eleanor Rauss.

A tour of Sioux City had been arranged by Becky Wilson, Wilma Moore and Barb Heier. After leaving from the Wayne County Courthouse, the group stopped for coffee and then proceeded to tour Briar Cliff College.

The group then drove through Granview Park to view the roses in bloom on the way to lunch at O'Garrahy's.

In the afternoon, the club toured Marion Health Center, including the areas of the emergency trauma room, the cancer treatment facilities along with the radiology and obstetrical departments.

Following a stop at KTVI-Channel 4, the group stopped at the Green Gables for an afternoon dessert.

A picnic is planned for the month of August to prepare for a float for the Wayne Centennial parade.

Iris Society has guest speaker

Dr. Robert Bledsoe of Augustana College in Sioux Falls addressed the Elkhorn Valley Iris Society at its June meeting.

He is recognized as an authority on the Louisiana Iris and has the largest collection in the world in his garden. He also has established an Iris garden at Augustana College which contains over 300 varieties.

Plans were also made at the meeting for the annual picnic and auction which will be held in Wayne on July 22.

The Region 21 fall meeting and auction will be held in Sioux Falls on July 28 and 29.

Gene Gaddie displayed a spuria Iris seedling which he has hybridized and asked the group for suggestions of a name.

Five new members were introduced, Leo and Mildred Daniels, Edna Moss, Rosalie Sanders and Wanda Mark.

The Friendship gift, a collection of beardless iris, was given by Gene Gaddie and won by Carolyn Lingentefer.

Wedding policy

Due to the fact that the upcoming months are quite hectic with weddings, the Wayne Herald would like to again remind all brides of the policy regarding publication of weddings.

The deadline for running a full wedding story with picture is 10 days after the date of the ceremony. Information submitted after that deadline will not be carried as a story but will be used as a cutline underneath the picture. Wedding pictures submitted after the story appears in the paper must be in our office within three weeks after the ceremony.

The Wayne Herald would like to urge all brides to bring in the detailed information about their wedding as soon as possible following the date of the ceremony, regardless of whether a picture is enclosed or not. Pictures may be brought in later to be used either with the full story or with a cutline, as they fit within the deadline.

Win streak at 9

Girls overcome scare to defeat Homer

The Wayne 18-under girls softball team kept their winning record intact despite a scare by the Homer team on Tuesday evening, taking a 17-12 win at Hank Overlin Field in Wayne.

Lise Jacobsen scored the initial run for Wayne in the first inning when she walked to first base and came home on a single by Sarah Lebsock with one out.

Wayne scored again in the second inning when Ron Johnson crossed the plate on sacrifice by Frevert, Sarah Lebsock, Karen Longe, Laura Keating and Kathy Mohfeld all scored runs in the inning after taking a base on balls. Ron Johnson started off the inning with the only hit, a single.

Wayne iced the victory with six runs in the fifth inning, again taking advantage of seven Homer walks, six of which led to Wayne

Homer finished out their scoring with a run in the top of the fifth inning and two in the top of the sixth to give them their final tally.

Kathy Mohfeld after cracking out a double to reach base, Sarah Lebsock also scored on a passed ball after reaching base on a single.

Homer then took advantage of six walks by the Wayne pitching staff and knocked out two singles to score eight runs and take a quick 8-4 lead.

The Wayne girls roared back in the fourth inning, scoring seven runs of their own to reclaim the lead, which they never gave up.

Lisa Jacobsen, Kolllette LEADING WAYNE in the hitting department was Roni Johnson, who claimed the only extra-base hit with her second inning double. She finished with two-for-four on the night, her other hit being a single.

Lisa Jacobsen scored each of her four times at the plate, reaching base on a walk each time.

Sarah Lebsock also recorded two singles in her five trips to the plate, scoring one run of a single and two runs after reaching first base on a walk.

On the mound, Johnson gave up a total of 16 walks, but managed to strike out 14 Homer batters at the plate.

Homer's pitching staff also had control problems on the evening, allowing 15 Wayne batters trips to first base, and striking out five. The girls are scheduled to be in action tonight (Thursday) at Emerson, beginning at 7 p.m.

Victor tries reviving the Populist Party

By Chuck Hackenmiller
For the past four weeks, Rollie Victor has had the task of resurrecting a political party not as commonly heard of as the Republicans or Democrats.

He's out to prove that Ronald Reagan and Democratic presidential candidate Walter Mondale won't be the only two people vying for the role of United States President.

Victor, who farms 320 acres nearly seven miles north of Wayne and is past president of the Wayne National Farmers Organization, is the recently appointed chairman of the Wayne County Populist Party.

He and other Populist Party members have been spreading the word around the county about Bob Richards, who won two Olympic gold medals in 1952 and 1956 — the Populist Party presidential candidate.

Right now, he and other Nebraskans committed to the Populist party are joining efforts state-wide to gain enough support which would allow the political party to be placed on the upcoming fall election ballot.

This measure, he said, will allow the Populist Party to "run people for public office. Once we get to that point, the elected candidate [from the Populist Party] will have the ability to influence policy."

Seventeen states have already qualified for the ballot, he said. "The Populist Party is gaining a lot of people from other third parties who haven't been able to get enough steam on their own to get something really done," Victor said.

Over the past few weeks, Victor has been handing out the platform of the Populist Party and is joining those in the other political parties in gaining signatures on petitions which request issues be placed on the November election ballot.

THOSE PETITIONS INCLUDE:
•Amending the Nebraska State Constitution to require officials of subdivisions in the state to limit property taxes to an amount no more than 1 1/2 percent of assessed valuation; the valuation of the property established not be increased at intervals of less than three years; value of improvements for maintaining a property should not be the basis for an increased valuation.

•Amending the Nebraska State Constitution to prevent expenditure increases in one fiscal year over the prior fiscal year by the state of Nebraska at a rate greater than one-half that of the rate of increase of personal per capita income of Nebraska residents; provisions that the total increase shall not exceed 5 percent in a single fiscal year except for an approved emergency; state revenue collections in excess of expenditures be impounded by the state treasurer and furnished as general fund revenues in the year of approved use; and provision for implementation.

•And that the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court be elected by the electors of the state at large and the judges of the Supreme Court, other than the Chief Justice, be elected by the electors of the districts.

VICTOR SAID the Populist Party is nothing new. The last really heard from the Populist Party, he said, was during the years when William Jennings Bryan ran several times for a seat in the presidential office.

"What we're trying to do is rouse the interest of the people, to alert them to the problems our country is facing," he said. "It isn't that we should certainly worry, but we should be concerned about maintaining what we have for our future generation," he added.

Before his appointment to the chairmanship of the Populist Party, Victor said he was "not much on politics."

•And Foreign Policy — Reestablish the America first tradition of armed neutrality, restrict foreign pressure groups, reduce foreign aid, revitalize America's national defense, and reward friends.

During the next few weeks, Victor and others will be working hard to make the Populist Party a popular party.

"But I became more or less disgusted with the present system. I believe in changing a law if it is unjust," he said. Bankruptcy laws are now "unheard of," he said, and farm prices have been low for too long.

THE PLATFORM of the Populist Party, he said, is as follows:

•Economic — Repeal the income tax, reassert sovereignty, repudiate the national debt, reactivate anti-usury laws, rejuvenate American industry by the enactment of fair tariff laws, revitalize the family farm, rebuild America internally, and reclaim free enterprise.

•Family — Resurrect anti-degeneracy laws and crack down on crime, reject the Equal Rights Amendment and Gay Rights.

•Culture — Restore freedom of choice (forced racial busing must end and government interference with religious schools must cease), respect racial and cultural diversity, repulse immigration and reconsider the welfare program.

•Legal — Renew constitutional government by restricting judicial review, reaffirm the right to keep and bear arms, reserve the rights of individuals to seek medical help free of government interference, reassert American creativity, and rejuvenate democracy by allowing more participation in government by the people.

•And Foreign Policy — Reestablish the America first tradition of armed neutrality, restrict foreign pressure groups, reduce foreign aid, revitalize America's national defense, and reward friends.

During the next few weeks, Victor and others will be working hard to make the Populist Party a popular party.

Open for business

THERE'S A NEW restaurant in Wayne — The Lumber Co. — that opened for business on Tuesday.

The restaurant, which will employ up to 35 people, will be managed by Frank Gillaspie and Audrey Fredrickson.

Inside the establishment is the main dining room on the first floor, a private dining room and an upstairs lounge area. It features a full evening menu and luncheon menu and a full bar.

Live entertainment will be provided at the restaurant during the weekends and the restaurant will feature prime rib every evening, according to Gillaspie.

The Lumber Company will be open six days a week, opening at 11 a.m. and closing at 1 a.m.

Food will be served at the until 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday and until 11 p.m. on Friday and Saturday. The lounge will be open each of those days till 1 a.m.

At the present, the restaurant will not open on Sunday.

Chicken fever becoming contagious

Chicken fever is becoming contagious across the nation as people are learning about Wayne's annual Chicken Day Celebration.

Over 30 radio stations across America have done features on the Chicken Show and many are thinking about attending, according to Mylet Bargholz of Wakefield, a member of the Chicken Show Committee.

The Disney Cable Network, That's Incredible, Real People and NBC have expressed a strong interest in the event, he mentioned.

Bargholz extended an invitation to organizations or any individual to participate in the Chicken Show Parade, officially scheduled for Saturday, July 14 at 10 a.m. in downtown Wayne.

Any entry, large or small, chicken-related or not is welcome. Those with entries are to notify Bargholz at 402/375-3246 by July 10.

Prizes will be awarded to all children under 12 who enter the parade.

There are several new events added to the schedule for this year's two-day celebration. They include a Chicken Show Box Social which will follow the annual KTCH Fowl Players Talent Contest on Friday evening, June 13; and on Saturday, a Rooster Crowing Contest at 8:30 a.m. outside the city auditorium; the Running of the Chickens at 9:30 a.m.; the Chicken Flying Meet at 10:30 a.m.; and the Chicken Chariot Races at Bressler Park at 6 p.m.

These events are added to numerous other events, including the fun run from Wakefield to Wayne; bake sale and contest benefit for the American Cancer Society; chicken arts and crafts fair, with Bon Ami Pane-flick offering a $250 prize; fancy chicken display; chicken hat contest; egg drop/catch contest; hen-pecking contest; hard-boiled egg eating contest, a chicken barbecue and the National Cluck-Off outside of City Hall.

The rescheduled balloon release contest is scheduled to take place this Thursday evening (June 28) sometime around 6:30 p.m.

Also, the deadline for entry in the Wayne Herald Chicken Limerick Contest is July 9. The winning entry will receive $10 and other limericks will be published in the newspaper.

Chicken shirts and chicken buttons are the primary source of support for the chicken show and they can be obtained at downtown Wayne stores or at the Chamber of Commerce office. During the Chicken Show, they will be available in limited quantities at the "Chicken Coop."

For a complete listing of all chicken show events, call the "chicken hot line" at 375-2714.

Flooding creates hazards

With current flooding in many parts of the state, the Nebraska Department of Health is concerned health hazards may exist in drinking water or water used in cooking.

Water from flooded wells should be considered "not safe for drinking" until proven otherwise.

Small quantities of water for drinking may be disinfected by any of the following treatments until the well water has been proven safe by a laboratory water sample.

- Boiling for three full minutes.
- Disinfecting by chemicals using iodine or chlorine tablets, used as directed on the package label.
- Disinfecting by adding tincture of iodine (from the medicine chest), adding three drops to each quart of water, mixing well and letting stand for 30 minutes.
- Disinfecting with household chlorine bleach by reading the label for percent chlorine and using the following table: chlorine, 1 percent-10 drops per quart of water; chlorine, 4-6 percent-two drops per quart of water; chlorine, 7 to 10 percent-1 drop per quart of water.

Mix the chlorine well and let stand for 30 minutes. Very cloudy and/or turbid water may be strained through a clean cloth before disinfecting or boiling, but double the disinfectant.

After properly disinfected, water should be stored in clean, covered containers and used for drinking, cooking, making any prepared drinks, ice or brushing teeth.

The above treatment should impart a distinct chlorine taste to the water. This taste is harmless, but indicates that enough of the chemical has been used to disinfect the water.

DESTROY ALL FOODS, cosmetics and medicine that have been exposed to floodwaters unless they are in hermetically sealed (airtight) containers. Seepage can carry harmful bacteria into corked or crown-capped bottles, screw-top glass containers, cans that are punctured, bulging or leaking; all of these should be destroyed.

If refrigeration has been off more than six hours, destroy foods needing refrigeration. Do not refreeze frozen foods that have been thawed.

If they have thawed less than four hours and are still cold, cook and use them immediately, but if thawed more than four hours, throw the foods away.

To salvage foods in hermetically sealed containers, remove labels and wash in warm soapy water. Then soak for at least one minute in a disinfecting chlorine solution made by mixing four tablespoons of liquid chlorine bleach with two gallons of water.

Pots, pans and other metal objects can be sterilized by boiling for at least 10 minutes. Throw away cracked or chipped dishes.

BOIL FOR THREE minutes all water used in preparing food. Wash hands and cooking utensils in a disinfecting solution of one tablespoon of liquid bleach in one gallon of water. Save liquid from canned fruits and vegetables to substitute for scarce water in soups, stews, desserts and beverages.

If you lack refrigeration, cook only as much as can be eaten at one meal. Avoid foods that spoil quickly such as creamed foods, hash, ground meats, custards, pies, salads and sandwiches mixed with mayonnaise or other perishables.

Do not keep prepared or cooked food at room temperature. Keep hot foods hot and perishable foods cold. Recommended are commercially canned or packaged milk, meats, fish, fruits, vegetables, juices, staples, crackers, breads and dried or dehydrated foods.

In order to obtain laboratory water sample bottles, contact the local health department which is addressed to John Kouba, R.S., Director, Norfolk Health Department, 111 S. First Street, Norfolk, NE 68701 or phone 402/379-4810.

Reunited

FIFTEEN former employees of the Dahl Nursing Home gathered Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chalk Manske for a dinner in honor of Mrs. Luella Dahl, Loveland, Colo. Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Dahl, former owners of the Dahl Nursing Home, came to Wayne in 1948, purchasing the former Lutgen Hospital and establishing nursing home facilities, now the Wayne Care Center. Some of the former employees present were in the employ of the Dahls from the start of the nursing home facilities. They are: front row, left to right: Anna Cross, Luella Dahl, Vera Peterson; middle row, left to right: Corlie Farney, Eva Malchow, Grace Mellick, Malba Grimm, Dorothy Hubbard, Wanda Pagels, Ruth Chapman, Louise Koeltter; back row, left to right: Dorothy Zapp, Dorothy Parenti, Lorraine Manske, Esther Hughes, Matilda Barelman.

Bids received

by Chuck Hackenmiller
Wayne's city council opened bids on three city projects, but only acted on two during Tuesday night's regular city council meeting.

The first bid opening was for a sewage lift station renovation in Wayne. A bid submitted by Risor & Barney, Inc. of Wisner was accepted by the city council for a total cost of $16,290.

Starting date for the lift station construction is scheduled for July 16 and the project is expected to take approximately 180 days to complete.

Penro Construction Company of Pender had the next low bid of $19,500.

Seven bids were received for the ball field irrigation systems at Overin Baseball Field at 4th Street and Windom Street. Rain Kings of Grand Island turned in the lowest bid for the project at $11,340 and the next low bid was from D. F. Lanoha of Elkhorn at a cost of $11,500.

THE CITY COUNCIL delayed action on selecting the low bid for the ball diamond irrigation system until more information could be obtained on the name brands of the irrigation systems which the companies had bidden on.

Whichever firm is awarded the bid will furnish all the labor, tools, materials and equipment for the design and construction of underground irrigation systems to serve the three-field complex.

Also on Tuesday night, the city council awarded the work on the storm-water sewer district to Carlson Construction Company of Wayne at a total base bid of $9,721.40.

Work will begin on or after Aug. 1 and should be completed in 30 days in the Western Height's Subdivision storm-water sewer district.

BD Construction of Columbus came in with the second lowest base bid of $11,200.10.

Safe Walking Tips

1. Carry or wear something white at night to help drivers see you.
2. Cross only at crosswalks. Keep to the right in the crosswalk.
3. Before crossing—look both ways. Be sure the way is clear before you cross.
4. Cross only on proper signal.
5. Watch for turning cars.
6. Never go into the roadway from between parked cars.
7. Where there is no sidewalk, and it is necessary to walk in roadway, walk on left side, facing traffic.

COMING

Events in Wayne—Promised Building Activity on Wayne-Pierce Highway—Best Kind of Support—Green Responds to Moisture—Contrast

We have announced of three major public activities in Wayne during June—first, the 25th anniversary of the district Federated Women's club, twenty-fifth anniversary celebration of the Wayne State Teachers college and the Epworth League Institute of the Norfolk district. These three meetings will bring together different types of individuals from many different communities to Wayne, and Wayne will be rewarded in a richly rewarding fashion.

The women's institute is scheduled for June 12 and 13. The club stresses first, the home, second, the church, and third, the community and fourth, the state, nation and world. The Wayne institute will emphasize the fourth subject, and it would seem the field is open to a wide variety of speakers available in a two day session. Around 400 visitors will attend this institute.

The college's quarter of a century as a state institution will be celebrated for an appropriate celebration, planned and carried out largely by former students of the school. On June 21 and 22, it will be a grand homecoming for former students, and the town may be dependent on the presence of the finest attitude and assist in every way the two days' series of happy and long remembered success.

The Epworth institute lasts a week—beginning June 19, and the reaction of many people who have attended with wholesome training has gained deservedly popular favor. The young people who come for the institute will learn right lines of thinking and living, and the time spent will be made pleasant and enjoyable. This latter promise is remembered, and is an inspiration for the coming institute.

Wayne-Pierce Highway. It is reported that a grading crew working on No. 81 south of Norfolk, will soon be moved into Wayne county to begin grading the Wayne-Pierce highway. This is supposed grading will follow the spine to Carroll and Winnside were long ago graded. As we understand, gravel awards complete all of the grading work started on the Wayne-Pierce road in the fall of 1983—nearly two years ago. Contract for the grading of the project on the start seemed to be to give employment rather than to get the job done. It is reported that the road after nearly two years it is still far from finished. The reason for delay is the gravel until completion of the entire project does not harmonize with the fact that one part of the road is being graded that it has been improved and accordingly that it will deteriorate before the road is completed.

When Support Is Support. Best proof of a fellow's support of an organization or institution he thinks is worthy is the amount of cash he is willing to take from and earnings to bring to its aid. Enthusiasm has a way of detaching around a worthy cause if substantial evidence of support is in the field. Money words when something more real is needed, as a good deal like reading religious tract to satisfy a hungry stomach.

Abandonment of Rain. A trip to Lincoln reveals rich green on both sides of the road the entire distance. Affairs and small gains are growing luxuriantly. Sunday the area between Fremont and Lincoln was having its rains in the way of rain. Previously more moisture had fallen this side of Fremont. Appearance of the cloudy refutes every suggestion of drought or crop shortage.

Wallace and Joseph. It is high time the president invited Publisher Hearst to the White House to dine again. Hearst's best attack on the administration has to do with the farm branch. The acts of Secretary Henry Wallace are contrasted with those of the famous biblical character, Joseph, who was secretary of agriculture under the ancient Pharaoh. Joseph tipped off to the king the safe rule of getting ready for lean years during fat years. Joseph's wisdom was justified by periods of plenty and periods of scarcity, and the ten provident natives of other countries had to buy, borrow or beg from Egypt. The Hearst writer approves the quality of Wallace's judgment, considerably below that of the ancient Joseph.

Plan Memorial Service. Legion post met Wednesday evening to plan memorial service to make the country club. Coach W. H. Hickman and Carl E. Wright are in charge of arrangements for the memorial service. Two track meets for the club will be held on June 21 and 22.

WASTE OF MONEY WITH CHARACTER

ROGER W. HANSON, county auditor, expressed his over huge spending program of the government and over the prospect of a waste of money in the government for support people who are more and more developing habits of shifting responsibility from themselves to the government. Hanson says relief jobs have increased more than fifty per cent during the past year. He suggests a way to build a more efficient machine that all receiving relief be made ineligible to vote.

Average dairy cow not making up for farmer's labor

The average dairy cow in Nebraska, one producing about 11,000 pounds of milk per year, is returning nothing to its owner for his labor, according to an extension dairyman at University of Nebraska.

The average cow is paying for the capital invested in her, and the feed she consumes, but nothing for labor, let alone risk or management, Cole said.

Dairyman in the next year, particularly those involved in the dairy production stabilization act ought to be getting rid of their poor cows and trying to raise their herd average up to at least 16,000 pounds of milk, Cole said. "And I'd say a minimum ought to be 14,000 pounds of milk per year per cow."

The dairy industry now is going through a transition to a lower price than dairymen have been used to, Cole said. The support price, since the enactment of the dairy production stabilization act is $12.60 a hundredweight, but that's not a net price, because of deductions amounting to 50 cents a hundred for Commodity Credit Corporation payment and 15 cents a hundred for dairy promotion.

This price situation will remain until March 31, 1985, when prices could go lower if surpluses are not decreased or higher if surpluses are depleted. If the current surplus of 20 billion pounds is not reduced to 6 billion pounds by April 1985, the price will drop another 50 cents. Then, in July of 1985, if the anticipated surpluses exceed 5 billion pounds, the price could drop another 50 cents.

"So, we certainly have prospects for a considerably lower price in the dairy business and we should take a look at what kind of break-even prices we need at given levels of production, and what levels of production we are going to have to aim at if we're going to make a good living in the dairy business," Cole said.

A LOT OF COWS in Nebraska are producing 10,000 pounds of milk per year. In order to pay the producer a wage—a labor return—and pay for his capital investment, whether he owns the property or is borrowing money, and also pay for all the operating costs, the owner of this quality cow has to be looking at a break-even price of $15.40.

"We're no where near that," Cole said. We're looking at a new support price (minus deductions) of about $11.95, Cole said.

"Even looking at a 12,000-pound producing cow, which we used to think was a pretty good cow, the break-even price is $13.95, which is above what we're currently getting."

At 14,000 pounds the producer needs a break-even price of $12.20.

So, just what are dairymen making on these cows? At the $11.95 figure, the return to labor after paying for all the capital used, whether owned or borrowed, and paying for operating costs, for the 10,000-pound level of production is minus $70 per year per cow.

"In other words this producer is not getting paid anything for his labor and he's finding that he's not getting market value for his capital that he has invested in his operation. Multiply that by 50 cows and that's quite a price the dairyman has to pay just to milk."

At 12,000 pounds the dairyman is getting about 83 cents an hour for his labor.

At 14,000 pounds he's getting about $2.80.

At 16,000 pounds about $4.17 per hour of labor.

IN COLE'S calculations the producer is getting about 14 percent on his capital and market value for his feed. His own financial statement may not show these returns to labor, but figuring all costs at market value, these are the returns per hour of labor that he's getting.

"Even though dairying still is one of the most competitive and best agricultural enterprises compared with other enterprises that farmers can be involved in, we're seeing that it is not nearly as good as it was in the past.

Because it was so good and we overproduced. Now we have to get rid of milk surpluses, and decreasing the price is one way."

Cole said he thinks that dairyman ought to look (on a per cow basis) at better cows and fewer cows in their herd in order to get a better return for their labor.

One dairyman can take care of about 45 cows, regardless of their level of production. "It's much better to have 45 good cows rather than 45 poor ones," Cole said.

Cole said he thinks one of the problems dairyman had in the last few years is that when the price of milk was good—and it was good compared to other commodities—they expanded their herds.

IN THE PROCESS of expanding they either bought or kept poorer-producing cows, decreasing their average production per cow, he said. They may have gone to more cows than they could easily manage and do a good job with. So, even though they were producing more milk, their cost per hundredweight of producing that milk was much higher and their returns were much lower.

"When you look down here at these cows producing 10,000 pounds, there's just no way you should increase herd size of those kinds of cows; all you would do is lose more money," Cole said.

Interest rates also have affected dairy profits. Dairying has a high capital requirement per cow, and the interest rate on that capital has made a difference on the profitability of dairying. A cow producing 16,000 pounds in Nebraska is worth about $1,100, but the initial livestock (including replacements), equipment and building investment will run over $3,000 per cow, Cole said.

"I think what dairyman ought to do now is what successful dairyman have done over the years: That is to be concerned not over how much milk they produce but to be concerned with how many dollars profit they get from the business, or how many dollars return they get for their labor and management."

Dairyman can do a lot better with a few cows than they can with a lot of them, Cole concluded.

Wind damage doubles

Wind damaged more than twice as much land in the Great Plains during the seven-month period ending May 31 than during the comparable period in each of the two previous years.

Peter C. Myers, chief of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service, said today 12.3 million acres were damaged in the 10-state area between Nov. 1, 1983, and May 31, 1984, compared with 5.5 million acres in 1982-83 and 5.1 million acres in 1981-82.

In the 49 years the agency has been keeping records on wind erosion in the region, only the 15.8 million acres damaged in 1954-55 and the 12.5 million acres damaged in 1980-81 exceeded this year's total, Myers said.

He said most of this year's damage occurred because of inadequate crop residue and lack of plant cover in areas of clean-tilled crops and seedbeds.

Land is considered damaged when the wind has removed or deposited so much soil that the land is subject to further damage or when the erosion has reduced the soil's productive capacity.

Of the land damaged, 84 percent was cropland, 15 percent was rangeland and 1 percent was other land.

TEXAS AND New Mexico

received below-normal precipitation throughout the winter and spring, so the soils were dry and readily moved by wind. Partly as a result of the dryness, Texas reported more damage than any other state—5.7 million acres, or 46 percent of the total for the entire Great Plains.

New Mexico reported the sharpest increase in damage.

The 857,800 damaged acres are nine times last year's total. During one severe storm in the eastern part of the state in late April, winds as high as 60 to 70 miles per hour completely stripped off the topsoil in some places and blew it into Texas.

In Wyoming, snowfall was heavier than normal, so the ground was protected by adequate snow cover for much of the reporting period. As a result Wyoming was the only state in the region to report fewer acres damaged this year than last and the 79,200 damaged acres were less than reported by any other state.

THROUGHOUT THE Great Plains, windblown soil particles destroyed crops or cover on more than 1.3 million acres of land not damaged by soil loss.

Another 19.5 million acres of land not damaged were reported unprotected by plant cover or residue and susceptible to damage by high winds. Summer winds over the region generally are not strong, so the likelihood of further extensive damage is minimal.

Each year, the Soil Conservation Service compiles wind erosion data from 541 counties in the 10 Great Plains states. Data cover the seven-month period November through May, when winds normally are highest and soils are driest. Under these conditions, wind erosion is more severe than during summer and early fall. The agency issues wind damage reports after the second, fourth and seventh months of the blowing season.

Ridge-till demonstrated

A clean, completely weed-free field of corn is a goal some farmers search for, along with hopes of high yields.

Emphasis on clean corn and bean stands is even more important to Merle and Ron Ring, a father-son farming partnership, who farm over 600 acres of land several miles east of Wayne.

After all, the farm magazine "Farm and Ranch Living" recently displayed a several-page article on the Ring farm—titled it one of the "prettiest places in the country."

So the Rings are not ones to tolerate weed infestations on their crop ground. To back their beliefs in conservation tillage and weed control, the Rings have subscribed to the method of ridge-till planting.

Ridge-till planting is a conservation tillage system which involves planting in ridged rows. It is gaining momentum on the rolling hills of northeast Nebraska.

Merle said Tuesday, during a ridge-till field demonstration sponsored by Monsanto at the Ring farm, that this is the second year they have gone entirely to the ridge-till planting system "although we've been practicing minimum tillage practices for the past 10 to 12 years."

He said approximately 380 acres of corn were planted in 1984 using the ridge-till method. Results from last year's ridge-till planting was positive, he said, either matching or gaining in yields of other years when more conventional planting methods were practiced.

"The fuel savings this spring has been tremendous because we've limited our days in the field. It's been a tremendous plus," Merle said.

HE SAID soil conservation was the top reason for participating in the ridge-till program. Second was time and third was fuel savings. Finally, he said the system cuts down on wear and tear of the farm equipment.

"But soil conservation has always been the number one priority. I've never seen the amount of soil loss that I have this spring," Merle said.

"It takes about a year to get used to seeing the trash and crop residue along the ridges. But once you go through it with the cultivator, six weeks down the road you'll have the prettiest rows in the county," he said.

"I'll never go back to the way it was over 25 years ago. Then, tractor passes in the field included plowing, harrowing, disking and harrowing again, planting and two or three times cultivating," he recalled.

"Now [with ridge-till], you can do it all in two passes," Merle said.

Merle, who has been farming for over 33 years at the present location, said his father and uncle were one of the first in the area to practice tillage conservation with contour, terracing and grass waterway practices.

RING demonstrated the ridge-till planting system at his farm Tuesday.

HIS SON RON, in a news release contributed to Monsanto, said that by switching to ridge-till "we've been able to save an additional $8 per acre. Our corn production costs, excluding harvest, are approximately $20 lower than those in a conventional, dry-land tillage system."

"The majority of our farmland is quite rolling and the main soil type is silty clay loam. Ridge-till works extremely well on our land, and this system's benefits include greater moisture savings, erosion control, less soil compaction and reduced wear and tear on the equipment because we're running fewer hours," Ron said.

"Because we have approximately 600 cattle on hand, the time savings has been a tremendous advantage," he added.

Herb Raab, product development associate with Monsanto, said on Tuesday that the farm demonstration at the Ring farm was to educate and give farmers an opportunity to see the ridge-till planting method in person.

He said a majority of northeastern Nebraska ridge-till planting farmers are using Lasso for their weed control program in both corn and soybeans. This simplifies the farmer's weed control program because he needs just one herbicide and one storage site, eliminating time-consuming mixing and handling chores, Raab said.

BY COMBINING an effective herbicide program with recommended cultural practices, the farmer can obtain both excellent and economical weed control in his ridge-planted fields, he added.

"By broadcasting instead of banding, we feel we can eliminate the need for the first cultivation, providing us with more time needed to attend to other farm operations," Ron Ring said in the Monsanto news release.

"We've used Lasso for more than 10 years and obtain consistently good weed control. In fact, we've virtually eliminated our grass problems. Ridge-till has saved us time and money, but it is also helping to preserve our soil for future generations," he added.

For the first time in more than 20 years, I'm going to miss The Winside Old Settler's Reunion. I agreed to do a 3-11 shift at the hospital for a gal who had a wedding to attend. I've often threatened to leave town during this annual celebration, but the fact is, I enjoy it.

You've already figured out that I appreciate tradition, and Old Settler's is a tradition. Just as is the Fireman's Picnic at Waco, Czech Days at Clarkson, Kolach Days at Verdigre, Swede Days, Vetch Days and on and on.

I even have a cookbook called the Leola Bicentennial Rhubarb Recipes, from the "Rhubarb Capital of the World," Leola, S.D. They have an annual celebration to honor the lowly pie plant, complete with a parade, tug of war, speakers, and a Rhubarb Queen. My friend Carol Remfer provided me with this unique keepsake, and I use it every spring.

For years, Old Settler's was held on the third Thursday in July. It was like an extra vacation day for those of us in the area. The kiddie parade began at 10:30, followed by the main parade at 11. I never cooked that day. We watched tractor pulls, baton twirlers, barbershop quartets, and anything goes contests, and listened to the high school band. We got sunburned, dirty and tired.

WHEN SUE AND Jon were little, they were always in the kid's parade. I made astronaut costumes from old sheets. We built an airplane for Orville and Wilbur Wright, and they wore swim caps and goggles.

Our biggest project was a giant covered wagon the year of the bicentennial. We built it in the garage, hauled it halfway to Winside in the pickup, heard on the radio that the parade was cancelled because of rain (it always rains for Old Settler's)—and finally got there the next day.

Then we took it to my sis for Pappillon Days. We tied it to the top of the station wagon and got stares from autos we met as they saw a real prairie schooner coming down the highway!

We O.D.'d on parades and celebrations the year of the bicentennial. We watched everyone in northeast Nebraska. Now we're looking forward to Wayne's Centennial.

FOR SEVERAL years in a row, a bunch of we old housewives rode three-wheelers in the parade. Since I don't ordinarily drive the thing, I was dangerous! The most fun was the year I wore my red nightgown trimmed with black lace and my "floozie" wig. A feature this year was a three-wheeler pull; and rumor has it some local ladies fell off.

Our church always has a food stand. Every member of the congregation takes a turn working in it. And they go alphabetically in assigning you to "The Committee."

When you are on the Committee, you (and your husband) are in charge of constructing it, ordering supplies, planning work schedules, and hauling hamburger and pop to and from it. Two men even stay all night to guard it. It's a lot of work, but part of the tradition.

It was always my ambition to get to Czech Days. So, one year, the Mundt's took us to Clarkson. We ate dumplings and sauerkraut and kolaches, and watched Czech dancers in native costume dance ethnic dances.

I kept asking the Bohemian accordion players to play "Du, du, Iichst mir im herzen." And they kept saying, "We only play Czech songs." But, before I left, they played it, and the Big Farmer was muttering, "I don't know that woman!"

Stopped at North Bend on Sunday on my way to a family reunion in Lincoln, and guess what? They were celebrating Old Settler's Days. At least they had gorgeous weather for it. Maybe it's going to dry up at last.

Rainfall increases mosquito threat

Because of the increased rainfall, mosquitoes are out in full force this year, according to David Keith, University of Nebraska extension entomologist. Mosquitoes are not really a nuisance, but also a potential health threat because they can transmit certain diseases, such as encephalitis, malaria and heartworms in dogs.

These pests breed in just about anything that collects and holds water for a few weeks; not just in natural floodwater sites, Keith said.

Floodwater mosquitoes winter in the egg state, typically in low spots subject to flooding, Keith said. Hatching is triggered by low oxygen tension in stagnant water, and it takes about two to three weeks to complete a generation.

ONLY FEMALE MOSQUITOES can bite—the males feed on nectar in flowers and are seldom noticed. They are attracted to the sound of the swarming females for mating. Female mosquitoes, if they are successful in obtaining a blood meal, can produce 200 or more eggs. "Unsuccessful" female mosquitoes can still produce a few eggs, digesting their wing muscles for the energy required to produce them.

Keith offered these recommendations to reduce mosquito problems:

- Drain all standing water.
- Use repellents when going outdoors if mosquitoes are abundant.
- Keep dogs indoors during the following insecticides are necessary to vegetation around homes and patios if outdoor activities are planned.

The following insecticides are used to spray most shrubs and ornamental plants for resting mosquitoes: malathion 57EC, carbaryl (Sevin 50 WP), or naled (Dibrom 36 EC). Check labels for specific instructions, precautions and restrictions.

Beef is promoted

Dozens of members of the Nebraska Feeders Auxiliary donated their time and travel to promote "BEEF for Father's Day" at Baker's Supermarkets in Omaha the two days before June 17.

Each 'team' took electric grills to cook the beef furnished by the meat department of the stores and handed out samples of the ranch grill steak, which used the economical top blade chuck steak.

Every store was sold out of their supply of the cut during the first day, so another economical cut of beef was used.

Promotion of BEEF, the product from their family operations, is one of the prime functions of the Nebraska Feeders Auxiliary.

Russ Shultz, resource conservationist for the SCS in Lincoln, said the rains for the most part have not been that intense. The erosion that is occurring is washing out or covering the plant stands in the bottomland areas. The soil is saturated, making it vulnerable to more erosion. In addition, the wet soil delayed the crop planting so the plant growth to provide a canopy over the soil is behind schedule too, he said.

Shultz said, while these rains demonstrate the need for more conservation practices to be put on the land, it is important to remember the conservation work that has been done. Nebraska farmers and ranchers invested $14 million dollars of their own funds last year in conservation practices.

However, northeast Nebraska trails the rest of the state, as only 35 percent of the land is adequately protected. Spring rains have caused as much as 200 tons of soil loss per acre on some unprotected fields. 5 tons is considered allowable on most soils. This severe erosion caused stand loss on hilly land as well as silt covering emerged crops on lower lying areas in the field.

Two guests, Laura Maloney and Leslie Reeves of Omaha, visited the Gingham Gals 4-H Club meeting on June 20. 14 members answered roll call by reporting on their project progress.

Did You Know?

If a pair of house flies mated today, and if their descendants all lived and reproduced normally, their offspring could cover the earth several feet deep 4 months from now. In mature or garbage one pair of flies can increase to 1.8 million pairs within six generations or 12 weeks.

Early Summer Pruning Practices

Spring and early summer flowering trees and shrubs have already passed bloom. Unless you care to use the dried seed heads for decorative purposes, it would be desirable to remove fading flowers.

These same plants will form flower buds this fall on growth made this summer. Therefore, any correctional pruning to modify the shape of these plants should be done now. Depending on your personal preference, older cones can be removed, and new growth pinched to encourage branching and more bud wood this fall.

Evergreens with their new growth fully expanded can be shaped before the wood hardens. This type of pruning can be severe enough to contain the size of an evergreen. A natural unpruned growth of evergreens may be your preference if the tree or shrub isn't crowding the house or sidewalk.

Shade trees, especially those that bleed, are best pruned in early summer after full leaf occurs. Many an experienced arborist will say pruning in the summer restricts growth while pruning in the winter initiates growth.

Therefore, if you want to remove a double leader of a shade tree, or remove basal branches, pruning this time of year will not produce as much lost new growth.

Limbs or branches damaged beyond repair should be pruned immediately.

Propagate Shrubs

Now is the time to propagate shrubs from softwood cuttings. Plants easily rooted from softwood cuttings are euonymus, forsythia, honeysuckle, viburnum and willow.

Stems can be collected from new growth that has turned from succulent green to brown and is average in size. Cuttings should be 3 to 5 inches long with at least two nodes.

The leaves need to be removed from the bottom half of the cutting and this part treated with a rooting compound to increase rooting. Insert the cutting in a well-drained container which is covered with a plastic tent to create a humid condition.

Irrigation scheduling saves money

Water running out the end of the row is money out of the irrigator's pocket! Managing irrigation water is a procedure gravity irrigators can use to produce optimum yields with the least cost.

Irrigation water management (IWM) is the act of timing and regulating the amount and rate of irrigation water application to meet the needs of the growing crop. In addition to saving dollars, IWM will also minimize soil erosion and nutrient loss and will help protect water quality.

To determine how much irrigation water is needed and when to irrigate the land user needs to consider the length and slope of the furrows, the crop rooting depth, the infiltration rate of the soil, the consumptive use of the crop, the amount of rainfall received, and present available soil moisture.

DATA ON THE CROP water use and rainfall can be secured from the Irrigation Hotline made available by Natural Resources Districts (NRD).

The key to efficient use of irrigation water is to supply the crop with adequate, readily available soil moisture and not get deep percolation or runoff of the irrigation water.

Equipment available to help schedule irrigations include tensiometers; soil moisture blocks, moisture meters, soil probes, maximum and minimum thermometers and rain gages. Other means of managing irrigation water involve cut-back furrow application and irrigation reuse pits.

Irrigation water running out the end of the rows wastes money through the loss of water pumped, soil erosion losses, loss of fertilizer and chemicals attached to soil particles and in solution and contributes to water pollution in out streams.

For information on developing a plan to schedule irrigation, contact your local Soil Conservation Service (SCS) or NRD office.

Erosion is still a concern

The rain this spring has accelerated soil erosion throughout eastern and southern Nebraska but it could have been and still could be much worse according to Soil Conservation Service officials here today.

Russ Shultz, resource conservationist for the SCS in Lincoln, said the rains for the most part have not been that intense. The erosion that is occurring is washing out or covering the plant stands in the bottomland areas. The soil is saturated, making it vulnerable to more erosion. In addition, the wet soil delayed the crop planting so the plant growth to provide a canopy over the soil is behind schedule too, he said.

Shultz said, while these rains demonstrate the need for more conservation practices to be put on the land, it is important to remember the conservation work that has been done. Nebraska farmers and ranchers invested $14 million dollars of their own funds last year in conservation practices.

County roads require a lot of maintenance to repair damage to bridges and siltation to road ditches.

To control erosion on most soils will require terracing to catch and slow runoff water. Leaving residues between terraces will increase the soils ability to take water and hold soil particles in place.

Money to perform terrace work will be available this fall from the ASCS, Lower Elkhorn NRD and the state soil and water conservation program. If you plan to do conservation work you should contact your local Soil Conservation Service office to make an application for cost-sharing.

Dams create good water management

Dams that create small farm ponds are a safe, effective and integral part of soil and water management systems.

These dams provide many benefits, for livestock, wildlife, and recreation. However, regular inspection and maintenance measures are necessary to keep a dam operating dependably and safely. Controlling the growth of trees and shrubs on a structure is one such important measure.

Trees and large shrubs allowed to grow on the embankment or in the spillway can develop extensive root systems. The deterioration of larger roots will result in open channels, creating potential water seepage paths. On the downstream side of the dam especially, this condition could be extremely serious.

TREES AND BRUSH can also restrict the inlet of the principal spillway, reducing the flow through the pipe. Such a restriction can cause over use of the emergency spillway or overtopping the embankment. Grass cover is reduced in the shade of trees and shrubs allowing the embankment to erode more rapidly.

To prevent the growth of trees and shrubs regular mowing, spraying, or cutting while the plants are small will be necessary. Remaining stumps should be chemically treated to prevent regrowth.

For good maintenance of your dam a few things to remember are 1) eliminate trees and shrubs, 2) keep a good grass cover on the embankment and in the emergency spillway, 3) prevent cattle trails by controlling livestock access to the area, 4) keep any holes filled in, and 5) control musk thistles.

For more information regarding the maintenance of your dam contact your local Soil Conservation Service personnel.

Allen news

CHATTER SEW CLUB
The Chatter Sew Club, south of Allen, celebrated their 50th anniversary Saturday at the First Lutheran Church in Allen. Sixty persons attending were registered by Mabel Wheeler. Hostesses were Anita Rastede and Tjilje Rastede. On April 19, 1934 at the Gus Swanson home the Chatter Sew Club held its first meeting with 21 members from the neighborhood attending. Five of the nine charter members still living were in attendance. They were Bertha Anderson, Opal Wheeler and Helen Gustafson, all of Wakefield; and Ruby Roberts and Mabel Wheeler, both of Allen. Mabel is still an active member.

Norman Warner was mistress of ceremonies. Charter members were honored by Norma and Anita Rastede. A piano solo was played by Amy Morgan. The history of the club was given by Jean Morgan and a reading, "Club Fever" by Mabel Wheeler. Gail Folsom and Phyllis Swanson sang a duet. Correspondence and a memorial service was given by Phyllis Swanson and Phyllis Geiger. Joyce Benstead sang a solo to close the afternoon program. Kalle Thrownson, a guest of Gail Folsom, came the farthest distance from Prescott, Ariz. Cecil Potter was the oldest present. Jessica Warner, the youngest present. Lunch was served at the close of the afternoon.

PARK CLEANUP
Volunteers from the community gathered in the park to clean and trim trees in the park and some of the areas of the town the evening of June 18. The rest of the street signs were also posted along with the house numbers. When they were finished a potluck supper was held in the park. The Community Development Club with Jim Decker, president, sponsored the work night.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY
The Dixon County Historical Society met the evening of June 19 with about 25 in attendance. A 30-minute musical program was given by the youth group of Wesleyan Church of Wayne. Both vocal and instrumental numbers were presented. Rev. and Mrs. Dixon Main and Rev. and Mrs. Roger Green were in charge. Vern Jones, vice president, conducted the business meeting after lunch was served by Margaret Puckett and Grace Green. Joyce Grosvenor, secretary, read the minutes. Marvin Green moved that the museum pay for extra museum work. All bills were allowed. It was suggested by Marvin Green to make arrangements to correct the heavy moisture in the basement as it is ruling displays. This problem was delegated to grounds committee. They decided to try Carpenter's dehumidifier first. If that can be arranged, Wayne Chase has a solution for the water-pipe problem. He also will move the trip hammer. Margaret Puckett will be cleaning the museum, paid by the government aid to tax-free programs and buildings. Discussion of dead trees resulted with Marvin checking on fuel.

It is planned that there will be exhibits most Sundays that the museum is open. Among those showing pictures June 17 were Mrs. K.R. Mitchell, Mrs. Fern Hanson and Marvin Green. The meeting closed with a poem read by Joyce Grosvenor about the 1880s "Shall We Build An Ark?" That spring had been much like the spring of 1984. Old books were given to the museum by Fern Hanson. Loyla Carpenter, reporter.

SCHOOL NOTES

A HOUSE at the east edge of Carroll that had been condemned was burned Sunday by local and area firemen during a training session. There were three state fire instructors and 12 firemen from Carroll, Belden, Madison and Wayne participating in the session. The group practiced using survival air masks, how to control an interior fire and an exterior fire and best practices in controlling any fire. At left, two firemen brace each other as water is sprinkled in the raging fire. Above, the sign "No Trespassing" and fire in the window is enough to keep anyone from "trespassing."

HOSPITAL MEETING
Eight-one local people attended June 14 to fill the West Lobby at Wakefield Health Care Center for the first annual meeting to be held since the addition of the extended care wing some ten years ago.

During the meeting financial reports were covered, new Medicare payments system was briefly explained, letters read concerning a new doctor coming, discussion was held on election board members and publishing activities of the board.

Summary comments and copies of financial statements passed out to those in attendance with Administrator John Viken and board chairman Weldon Schwarzen explaining the statements and answering questions.

The care center's extended care wing operated at nearly 100 percent occupancy during year ended March 31 showing a profit while at the same time maintaining average daily rates substantially below that of comparable facilities the CPA firm reported.

Concerning the hospital the accounts comments noted a 40 percent decrease in patient occupancy for the year resulting in a loss of revenue and operating loss.

Utilization of the hospital's facilities by the community must be increased substantially if the hospital facility is to remain in operation without outside support the firm commented.

Mr. Viken read a letter from Dr. C.M. Coe reporting that Dr. Darrel Lee will be taking over his practice on July 2. Dr. Coe's letter said he would continue to work with Dr. Lee who was unable to attend the meeting.

With over 60 percent of the hospital's patients provided services by Medicare the new payment system being instituted by the government affects the local institution greatly.

A sometime heated discussion was held over whether or not to elect members to the board of directors this year or wait until next year. The three members whose terms expired in April were reappointed to that time and will continue to serve.

LEGION AUXILIARY
Mrs. Lois Schilnes was elected president of the American Legion Auxiliary June 11 at the Legion Hall. Others elected included Mrs. Alice Johnson, first-vice president; Mrs. Elizabeth Ikerberg, second-vice president; Mrs. Carolyn Kraemer, secretary; Mrs. Linda Anderson, treasurer; Mrs. Arlene Benson, chaplain; Mrs. Fanny Johnson, historian and Mrs. Betty Bressler, sergeant-at-arms.

Elected to serve on the executive board were Lois Hollman, Phyllis Swanson and Marlan Christensen.

Mrs. Dixie Prokop of Emerson, third district president, installed the officers and spoke to the group about her projects for the coming year. She is using the theme "Coins for Service" and her project will be to purchase bingo cards for the Norfolk Veterans Home.

Mrs. Dale Anderson presented Lois Hollman with a past president's pin and invited her to join the past president's group.

A discussion was held on holding a Leadership School for all members locally and inviting neighboring towns. Alice Johnson was appointed to head the committee to work at the concession stand for the state baseball tournament to be held August 10-14.

Hostess for the evening were Mrs. Lois Schilnes, Linea Olson and Virginia Johnson.

Their next meeting is Monday, July 9 at 8 p.m. at the Legion Hall.

COMMUNITY CLUB
Mike Salmon, past president of the Wakefield Community Club, and a member of the Community Improvement Committee, presented a form of committee structure to members of the club at their regular meeting on June 14 in the City Council room. Wakefield Refuse hosted the event.

The structure involves eight standing committees with current board members and officers and chairperson of the eight committees.

He presented the two or three persons on each committee with the chairperson who will be responsible to set up meetings and reports each month.

Committee chairpersons include Marty Burgus, communications and public relations; Alden Johnson, finance and membership; Ron Larson and Tom Anderson, retail and business district; Marcia Kraefke, community and cultural affairs; Lowell Johnson, rural affairs; Joyce Kuhl, holiday committee; Bill Benson, economic development committee, and Mike Salmon and Connie Navrkal, community improvement.

Marty Burgus, secretary, read a letter from the Nebraska Public Service Commission informing the club of public hearing dates on telephone rate increases.

Salmon reported on the progress in making a community float design and putting on the final decorations. The club secretary will be responsible in finding transportation to the various parades.

Terry Baker reported the Lions Club will be holding a drawing on July Fourth in the evening. Harry Mills reported on the tax-cut petition and drew the club's attention to what it would do to our education system.

Dan Gardner urges everyone to attend the Hospital Board meeting for the concern of the community.

A letter was read from the Wakefield Centennial Committee of Wakefield, Mich. Bill Rischmuller moved the Community Club purchase a Wakefield history book and sent it along with a letter to Michigan.

CELEBRATING CENTENNIAL
Wakefield, Michigan is celebrating its centennial this year and Wakefield, along with all other Wakefield's in the United States and other countries, have been asked to join in the observance.

Mayor Merlin Olson received a letter from the Michigan town concerning the event. In responding to the letter Mayor Olson sent the centennial committee a copy of Wakefield's Centennial logo and an aerial picture postcard of the town. He also sent a message to be featured in their souvenir booklet and newspaper.

At a Community Club meeting it was voted to send a copy of Wakefield's History Book, "Seedlings in a Shoebox" for the Michigan city's library.

A Grand Centennial Parade is scheduled for 1 p.m. on July 4 and their float theme will be a salute to all Wakefields. Each Wakefield will be featured on an outline map of the state or county in which it is located along with a message from each town.

FOURTH OF JULY
Wakefield's Fourth of July observance will get underway at 5 p.m. when the Wayne Midget baseball team faces the local Midget team in the first of two ball games. A Junior League game will begin at 7 p.m. between the two towns.

Following the games a fireworks display will be held. Admission will be charged for the games and fireworks and season tickets for Legion and Midget games will not be honored.

The activities are being sponsored by the Wakefield Community Club.

NEW OFFICER
The Board of Directors of the Wakefield National Bank announced last week that Randy Lanning of South Sioux City has been elected Executive Vice President of the Wakefield Bank effective July 1. He has been associated with Nebraska State Bank in South Sioux City for the past nine years.

The board also announced that Donald H. Kuhl will be assuming the duties of vice president effective July 1. Don will be continuing his responsibilities in lending and customer service. He has been associated with the Wakefield National Bank since 1975.

Lynne D. Hutton Jr., Attorney (Publ. June 28, July 5, 12)

NOTICE OF MEETING
 The Wayne County Board of Commissioners will meet in regular session on Tuesday, July 3, 1984 at the Wayne County Courthouse from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. The agenda for this meeting is available for public inspection at the County Clerk's office.
 Gregoria Morris
 County Clerk
 (Publ. June 28)

Every government official or board that handles public moneys, should publish at regular intervals an accounting of it showing where and how each dollar is spent. We hold this to be a fundamental principle to democratic government.
