Conditions better for replanting

The consensus of members of the University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service Agricultural Climate Situation Committee July 2 was "We'll have to wait and see"—but a lot of things need close watching.

Warm dry conditions across most of the state the past week have enabled many Nebraska farmers to catch up to some extent with late planting and replanting. For the first time this season, all areas of the state had potential evapotranspiration rates (plant water use) higher than rainfall received, Ralph Nield, NU extension climatologist said.

Although insect damage is being reported in scattered locations across the state, most of the potential danger to large segments of the state may or may not materialize. "We'll just have to wait and see," NU extension entomologist Dave Keith said.

AMONG THE INSECTS that bear watching are chinch bugs, armyworms, European corn borer (some damage is still being done, particularly in early planted corn), corn earworms (up to 1,000 per trap reported in one southcentral Nebraska county) and alfalfa webworms (high numbers reported in scattered locations in western Nebraska).

Some areas of the state are already experiencing hardening of topsoil and irrigation is beginning in scattered locations. Delynn Hay, NU extension water resources and irrigation specialist, said farmers who irrigate should begin soil moisture monitoring now.

"There's a lot of variation in topsoil moisture amounts as well as in variations in the stage of growth of crops—even within a county's boundaries," he said.

Paul Guyer, NU extension beef specialist, said there still may be some hope for flooded fields that did not dry up in time for late or replanting of row crops. "Anyone who has a livestock operation as part of his enterprise could still plant a crop for silage," he said.

Cooperative Extension Service agents across the state reported that winter wheat harvest in the eastern half of the state could be beginning anytime, with July 7-10 being a good estimate for start-up in most of that area. Wheat harvest in the north and western portions of the state will probably get under way a week to two weeks later. But here, too, Nield said, there are variations in maturity and we'll have to "wait and see."

More information needed

Wayne's Centennial celebration is drawing near and the special edition which The Wayne Herald is assembling is progressing.

There is still plenty of room for additional photos and stories.

If any organization or clubs have not submitted their histories, the deadline for inclusion is July 15.

We would also appreciate biographical information on Wayne's past mayors for a feature article being prepared. If any descendants can furnish pictures or facts about the men, it would be greatly appreciated.

Feature ideas or any other historical information are also welcome. We want to make this a complete and factual edition, so we would appreciate any help you can give us.

Cat and Mouse program set

by Chuck Hackenmiller

The Prairie Hills Girl Scout Council, in conjunction with the Girl's Club of Omaha, will be offering to area boy and girl scouts an informative program called "Cat and Mouse."

"Cat and Mouse" was developed to teach basic self-protection skills and safety awareness.

Emphasis of this program will be to teach the youth to:

- Identify potentially dangerous situations and how to avoid them.
- Practice basic self-protection skills.
- Become familiar with people in the community who can help.
- Examine their relationships with adults on who can be trusted.
- And to develop personal decision-making skills.

Parents or other interested adults are needed to lead the children who are placed in small groups.

A training session is being offered prior to the program for parents or adults interested in leading a group. There is one adult leader required for every four children and the council would like to have 50 children participate in the program.

THE SPECIAL parent leader session is scheduled for Thursday, July 19 from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. at St. Mary's School in Wayne.

The two-day session of "Cat and Mouse" will take place Monday, July 23 and Tuesday, July 24 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at St. Mary's School. A special parent orientation will be included at the first program session.

starting at 9 a.m., for anyone who would like to hear an overview of the activities, learn some helpful hints and have any questions answered.

To register, complete registration form and send to Jill Perry, 606 Pearl Street in Wayne by July 12. Each child is to bring a sack lunch both days and drinks will be provided.

To offset the cost of materials, the registration fee will be $5 per child and checks should be made payable to Girl Scout Troop 145.

Members of the "Cat and Mouse" Planning Committee include Jill Perry, Michelle Meyer, Sara Campbell and Pam Boehle.

Sales up in area counties

by Chuck Hackenmiller

Most business people have an idea what their own financial picture looked like after 1982.

But few might not realize how business sales in the city and counties compared to each other during 1982. This information was received on Wednesday from the Nebraska Department of Revenue's 1982 annual report which depicted total taxable sales and total sales tax collected during 1982.

The sales tax rate applies to most retail sales and is determined each year by the State Board of Equalization and Assessment.

The initial sales and use tax rate set by the state equalization and assessment board was 2 1/2 percent. The 3 percent sales tax rate went into effect in January, 1978 and was increased to 3 1/2 percent effective May, 1983.

Effective July, 1983 until $30 million is collected, the sales tax rate was increased 1/2 percent, setting the current sales tax rate of 4 percent.

EXEMPTED FROM sales tax are certain food or food products, effective Oct. 1, 1983. Food or food products which are currently eligible for purchase with food coupons issued by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, regardless of whether the retailer from which purchased is participating in the food stamp program, is exempt.

Wayne County had a 12.2 percent increase over 1981 in sales tax collected during 1982, according to the state revenue office report. The city of Wayne increased its sales tax collection by 12.5 percent over the previous year while Winslow recorded a 12.7 percent increase.

Hoskins, however, dipped below 1981 figures in sales tax collections by 3.5 percent over 1982 figures.

Dixon County's sales tax collection in 1982 increased by 10.6 percent over 1981, with Allen up over the previous year's figures by 13.4 percent and Wakefield up by 3.6 percent.

Laurel in Cedar County also experienced an upswing in retail taxable sales and sales tax collections, upping total sales tax collections by 3.6 percent over the previous year.

REASONS FOR THE delay in compiling the 1982 statistical information and presenting the information to the media are twofold, according to a representative of the Nebraska Department of Revenue.

"The figures should have been out last fall," the representative said.

"The people who designed the booklet are also the people who worked on designing the state's income tax return. So the income tax return takes priority over this," he said.

"So it [the revenue department's annual report] was pushed back. Then there was problems in the print shop. So this report is out really later than it normally is," he added.

Carhart on Education Committee

Governor Bob Kerrey today appointed 66 Nebraskans to his recently established Citizens Commission for the Study of Higher Education.

Among those selected was Robert A. Carhart of Wayne, president of the Carhart Lumber Company.

Kerrey emphasized that the purpose of the Citizens Commission will be twofold: to provide an assessment of Nebraskans' future needs in regard to higher education and to provide an assessment of Nebraskans' future needs in regard to higher education and to provide an assessment of the future role higher education should play in our State's economy.

"The caliber of individuals who applied for the Commission was truly outstanding," Governor Kerrey said. "It was a most challenging experience to select a limited number of individuals from such a strong field of applicants."

Good Neighbor Pick

Allen Ahlman of Wayne joined 187 individuals and 10 groups in being selected to receive the annual Good Neighbor Award from the Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben.

The program recognizes the neighborly acts and deeds of individuals and groups performed unselfishly without personal gain or reward during 1983. Nominations were made by friends and neighbors through Ak-Sar-Ben Ambassadors.

"Despite his own health problems, he is always helping others; cleans sidewalks, keeps lawns mowed and does anything they can't get done themselves," said the news release from Ak-Sar-Ben.

Gospel Concert

A gospel concert will take place on Sunday, July 15, 7 p.m. at Winside Auditorium, featuring the Dave Anderson Family of Hoskins, a special guest appearance by Shirley Carpenter of Randolph and other musical groups from Northeast Nebraska.

A free will offering will be taken. Proceeds will be given to the Methodist Hospital Foundation to be used for the Eppley Adolescent Chemical Dependency Services in Omaha. These proceeds will be matched by a grant from the Kiewit Foundation.

police report

The Fourth of July holiday caused problems for the Wayne Police Department during the week.

Pop bottle rockets shot at houses, loud fireworks and firecrackers being thrown off a roof were some of the complaints which the department received. A report of people sneaking into the pool was received, but the subjects were still sitting on benches near the pool. A report of a party at the Jaycees softball complex was also unfounded, when only two people were found in the vicinity.

A subject staying at K-D Inn reported her car missing, but found her boyfriend had taken it when he returned later. Two accidents involving parked cars and moving vehicles were reported to police.

An alarm sounded at Midwest Federal turned out to be false. Doors at the Perry Derby warehouse were reported open.

but police checked the building and closed the doors. Police also contacted the owner of Popo's II when the doors were discovered unlocked.

Several items were found during the week including a bank bag containing a hunting knife. A stray cat was found and impounded, and a stray dog was turned over to the owner.

A BB gun was reported shot through a window on Linder street during the week. Police also received forged check reports from several businesses in Wayne.

A report of shoplifting at 7-11 was investigated by police and a male juvenile was arrested and released to his parents.

Rehearsals begin

Though the cast needs more people, rehearsals will begin tonight (Monday) for the centennial program "Wayne, America — A Musical Celebration."

Director Helen Russell invites more men and teenage boys to come out for the initial rehearsal at 7 p.m. in Ramsey Theatre of the Wayne State College Fine Arts Center.

The show needs lots of people to share the telling of Wayne's century story, Dr. Russell said. There are five speaking parts for men, at least seven for male dancers and 10 or so for singers.

Students who have performed in college or high school shows — especially males — are welcome, and if they have danced, all the better, Russell said.

Also needed is a brass band of six to eight musicians who will play one short march in the show.

Rehearsal will continue Monday through Friday evenings — except during Music Camp July 22-30 — right up to the performance dates of Aug. 31, Sept. 1, 2 and possibly 3.

White some of the cast will practice nearly every night, most of the others will have some nights off.

The chorus and dancing troupe will practice separately part of the time, directed respectively by Connie Linder Smith and Mindee Zimmer.

The show is loaded with music, some of the all-time favorite songs of romance and humor and patriotism that Americans sing and whistle.

But, Dr. Russell notes, the songs need singers and folks who just like to sing — especially male vocalists.

Fair gets $1000

The Wayne County Fair has been the recipient of a $1,000 matching grant from Ak-Sar-Ben of Omaha.

Dick Sorensen, president of the Wayne County AG Society which governs the Wayne County Fair, said on Friday morning the board members will decide today (Monday) which projects the funding will finance this year.

In past years, grants from Ak-Sar-Ben have helped finance modern restrooms, a commercial exhibit building, an inside show arena, grandstand plus buildings at the fairgrounds.

ANNA SEZ:

Hi everyone: A typical July day. Hot and sultry with a light thundershower. At home one always enjoys a freezer of homemade ice cream, usually pineapple with our good dinner. You warmed it after turning the freezer crank and pecking it to keep it nice and firm for the rest of the day.

Here at the Home it will be a quiet day with some of the residents invited out to their relatives, some for picnic, some for shopping. For our noon meal we had delicious fried chicken, mashed potatoes, gravy, corned pork and beans, roll and red white sauce frozen dessert. Who can ask for more?

We have some newcomers to the Home. Al Koglin of Wayne and Ed Hoefner of Carroll. Rick Lamour of Sioux City came to spend a few weeks here while his parents are on vacation. He is a brother-in-law of Tim Boyle. We welcome you and hope that you will enjoy your stay with us.

We extend our deepest sympathy to the families of Julie Rose, Keith McMillan and Herman Peters. We will miss them.

Several of the residents have been in the Providence Medical Center during the last week or two. Jule Pursart was in awhile, also Emma Hicks and Cindy Davis who have returned home. Clifford Warr has recently been in the Veterans Hospital in Omaha. A centennial tea was held for the women residents here. Each lady invited one friend to be her guest. We had treats of a flag design, frosting, cake and candies and nuts and coffee.

Among the activities at the home are church services, a singing group, Movies Monday afternoon with popcorn furnished by the Redeemer Ladies. On Tuesdays we have Rhythm Band with Varda Morris as organist. On Wednesdays we play cards and dominoes. Also on the third Wednesday we have our regular birthday party which will be on July 18. The birthday song will be sung and we will have treats. On Thursdays, the Senior Citizens entertain with their own Dorothy Beckenmeier as organist.

The Home here at the Home with Dorothy Beckenmeier as organist. Our ladies entertain with their own Dorothy Beckenmeier as organist. Our ladies entertain with their own Dorothy Beckenmeier as organist. Our ladies entertain with their own Dorothy Beckenmeier as organist.

by chuck hackenmiller

I don't really want to step on any chicken toes just as The Wayne Chicken Show is nearing. And I also realize that I'm chairman of the Chicken Limerick Contest (You'll see the entries in next week's Wayne Herald — as long as they are clean).

But there is something which I should admit to those people who entrusted this contest to me. Chickens and me go a long way back and I'm not too thrilled about poultry.

Not that I'm saying the Chicken Show won't be loads of fun. Heck, the schedule of this year's events promises a variety of gimmicks that will tickle your gizzards. And I'd be the last person to walk away from a breakfast table when omelets are being served.

But I won't egg anybody on any longer. I get plucky when it comes to chickens.

Sure, they start out as little innocent cuddly baby chicks that capture a young lad's heart. But give or take a few weeks and the chicks soon turn into creatures which resemble ugly ducklings.

Just try walking barefoot into the chicken coop and see what happens when you spill feed on your toes. Anything that falls to the floor of a chicken coop is open season — and that includes your foot.

Or when it's late evening and everyone else in the farm neighborhood is fast asleep, we're up in an apple tree trying to capture the sleeping chickens so they can be moved to the egg-laying house.

Try handling a frantic chicken which has legs that scratch like crazy, has a beak which seems to favor gouging the forearm and has a squawk loud enough to break the eardrums. And do all this while balancing on the smallest branch on the whole apple tree.

How about losing all those apples to the chickens that take a couple pecks at the fruit and then discard it. Or they shake the tree's branches till there are no apples left to make one single pie.

How many people have had their life threatened by one mean old rooster. There was always one of these around when seasonal chicken butchering arrived. Not only was the rooster mean and unafraid to chase you everywhere, but he often was evasive and knew every nook and cranny to hide beneath or above.

And about this butchering — how many enjoyed the painstaking task of picking pinfeathers off the birds.

Chickens do have definite mean streaks. Sometimes I took more than patience to remove a chicken from its nest to pick up the eggs. Most people probably think a bear's growl is fearful.

Wait until they hear a protective chicken let out a growl while it ruffles its feathers. It took an act of courage sometimes just to get a dozen eggs out of the hen house.

Feeding the chickens was one of my first chores in the morning and early in the evening. Those chickens were my responsibility. If there was a drastic drop in egg production, it was my fault — although every once in a while I'd purposely break an egg on the hen house floor and watch the poultry madly scramble for the shell.

I can count "on my fingers" a few benefits of raising chickens. First of importance is the food content which the bird provides.

Eggs sure are tasty in the morning with bacon or sausages. And the Sundays are few and far between when I can't recall whether we had fried chicken (or baked, barbecued, escalloped, stewed) for either an afternoon or evening meal.

Another nice thing about chickens is that these birds normally won't do things your ordinary pets do — like rub up against your pants leg, jump all over you and lick your face, mooch off your plate when you eat outside, wet down car tires or expect to be petted 24 hours a day.

Still, we had to contend with terribly smelly, hen houses that make eyes water, grinding corn cobs for the hen house floor until our hair turned rust-colored, chickens swooping down from the roosts only to stir dust in the face and chicken waterers.

So, the chickens can "have their day in Wayne" — I will just take me some extra time to get accustomed to it.

Limericks

Speaking of the Chicken Show, readers of this column should be aware that the deadline for entering the chicken limericks contest and sending them to Chicken Show, Box 265, Wayne, NE 68787 is today (July 9).

All entries should be mailed in by Tuesday, July 10 so most of them can be published in Thursday's edition of The Wayne Herald.

Since I can't enter the contest, some of you will just have to witness (or suffer through) some of my chicken limericks.

A rooster with clout
is one which really shouts while standing on a pole
he awakens many a soul.
Now that's something to crow about.

I guess there is no harm writing another limerick to close off this column.

There was a chicken named Cy,
a reckless bird when he'd fly.
While impressing his gal, Neil,
into a boiling pot he fell.
Poor Cy is now chicken on eye.

Hazards of drugs

Drugs are present everywhere in today's society and should not be considered as "something that will go away in time."

Abuse of drugs has been around for many years and it appears the situation isn't getting any better.

Drug abuse is considered by some as the most serious problem facing American communities today. This conclusion was among the findings of a recent national survey of United States mayors conducted recently by B.P.O.E. (Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks).

According to a 1982 report by the National Institute on Drug Abuse, roughly 2/3 of all young people in America have tried an illegal drug by the time they graduate from high school.

Additionally, about one in 16 high school seniors smokes marijuana daily. More than a third of all American young people have used illicit drugs other than marijuana, according to the National Institute on Drug Abuse report which detailed national drug use trends from 1975 to 1982.

A number of organizations have formed throughout the country addressing this problem, and other long-standing civic organizations such as the Elks have joined the war against drugs.

As a result, a significant volunteer effort throughout society now is mobilizing to combat the drug problem that is producing a severe, long-term negative effect on children.

But it isn't children alone which suffer from the consequences of drug abuse. Reports of federal government sieges on cocaine from adult criminals are heard constantly. And many of the children probably wouldn't have obtained any of the drugs if an adult would not have supplied the abuser with the health-damaging products.

In upcoming few issues, an educational series of articles provided by the Drug Awareness Council of B.P.O.E. will appear on these editorial pages to serve as a reminder to the public as to the repercussions of drug abuse.

The program targets youth from fourth to ninth grade, their parents and also teachers with information about the health risks of two commonly used drugs — marijuana and cocaine.

Each of the five upcoming articles details the consequences of using these drugs.

It is essential that young potential drug users, and the adults who influence them, know about the facts of drug abuse.

These articles won't put a stop to all drug abuse in our readership area. But it might discourage usage.

And by publishing this informative series, perhaps we can help prevent some good kids from making the wrong decision about using drugs.

Marijuana, the Brain and Learning

Daily doses of marijuana's active ingredient, THC, administered to laboratory monkeys over a two to five year period has been found to cause brain damage, said Dr. Ethel Sassenrath, acting director of the Behavioral Sciences Laboratory in the department of psychiatry, University of California at Davis.

She recently reported that CAT scans of brains of five rhesus monkeys given an amount of THC equivalent to human intake of one marijuana cigarette per day for two to five years showed enlargement of the frontal horns of the brain — indicating cell death in the fore brain — when tested one year later.

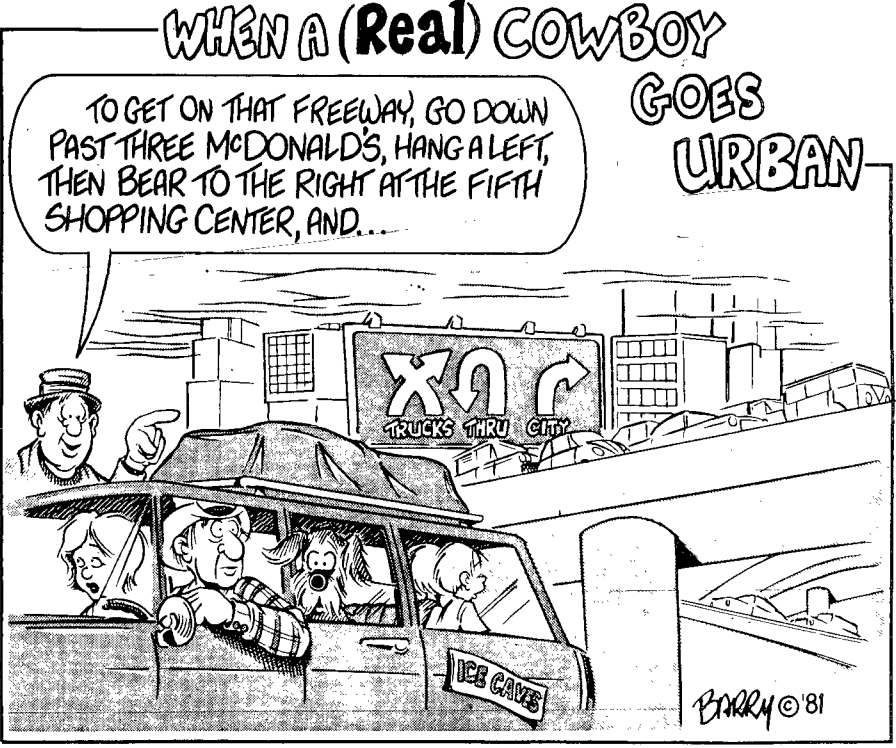

The fore brain, the most developed part of the brain in humans and primates, is thought to control self-awareness, initiative and planning and to stimulate the cortex, where abstract thinking takes place.

These recent findings are consistent with existing psychological profiles of long-term marijuana users. Lack of motivation, inability to relate to others, impaired memory and the inability to express emotions are common psychological effects of marijuana use over several years. Short-term effects of the drug can include impaired immediate memory and reduced ability to think and learn.

A 1982 study by the National Institute on Drug Abuse of seniors in high schools across the U.S. indicated that six percent used marijuana daily and 29 percent had smoked marijuana within the last month prior to the survey.

These statistics indicate a potential for serious — and possible long-term — consequences on the learning processes of American youth and subsequently on the entire educational system.

The above information is part of an educational series of articles provided by the Drug Awareness Council of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks.

Election nears for the Populist party

To the editor:

It is the first of July and we are another month closer to the November election. Things are really getting exciting and the Populist party is really buzzing all over this nation. The mood of the people is right for a change and we are willing to try something different from what we have had—the old established captured and controlled parties.

We, the people, are going to have to take control, as we did in 1776. The productive people have suffered long enough and we are ready to get the Establishment off our backs. We are fed up, sick, and tired of the same old diet of high taxes and low farm prices.

There is a need for a Populist party at this time and it is the only one that speaks for the working people, small businessmen, and farmers, and it deals with real issues of concern to all voters, taxpayers, and consumers.

Populism is really the only viable alternative—the principles of Populism and nationalism can save America from the otherwise inevitable internationalization and destruction of our Constitution, our national sovereignty, our Christian culture, and our liberties.

Populism is America's lost political tradition—as old as Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson, the president who brought men with frontier mud on their boots into the White House. Populism shares a great many conservative ideas but we do not want to conserve things the way they are now.

We are making an appeal to the people. We feel that patriotism and the American way have been abandoned by the Establishment, but not by the people. Conservatives defend the Establishment, at least in principle, while they know the Establishment is destroying this country.

If the American people would quit feeling that they have to vote for the lesser of two evils and would vote according to their consciences, the Populist Party will be the party of the future.

It is the party that represents me, my interests, and my America, the real America.

Marjorie M. Victor

Alley repair is best solution

To the editor:

The City Council seems to be throwing out the baby with the bath water. Because a few alley ways are in bad shape someone has proposed that all garbage pick up be done on the street rather than most in the alley ways as we now have. Fix up the alleys and leave the garbage pick up as it is!

Street curb garbage service would mean unsightly cans, bags, boxes and junk would be in open view, furthermore, curbside garbage would be more exposed to wind storms and the passing jerks who may view them as irrefutable opportunities.

Those of us who have alley garages depend on the garbage trucks to open the alley

Emergency measures to aid affected producers

Representative Doug Bereuter was notified recently by Deputy Secretary of Agriculture Richard E. Lyng that expanded emergency measures to aid producers in areas affected by flooding and other adverse weather conditions will be implemented.

Bereuter said the measures include expanding the emergency feed assistance program, allowing haying and grazing on land taken out of production in 1984 farm programs and assisting livestock producers in locating hay or roughage.

"A special U.S. Department of Agriculture fact-finding team toured Nebraska at my request reported that excessive rain has created some serious conditions for producers," Bereuter said.

Many counties nationwide are already eligible for the emergency feed assistance program due to the 1983 drought. Producers may use current growing season loss of hay and grass or a combination of 1983 drought and current growing season losses in determining eligibility.

COUNTIES WHERE ONE or more producers have suffered 40 percent or greater losses of haying and grazing due to adverse weather this spring will also be considered for the program. Payment-in-kind feed grain will not be counted as feed on hand in determining eligibility unless the producer still has it on hand or sold it since June 1, 1984.

In counties designated eligible for the program, lower grade corn will be available at reduced rates from USDA's Commodity Credit Corporation to livestock producers who have suffered a reduced feed harvest due to adverse weather or other natural disasters and have sufficient feed available to preserve their foundation livestock.

About 10.3 million bushels of U.S. No. 4, 5 and Sample grade corn are available for sale. This corn is stored in Colorado (79,000 bushels); Iowa (58,000); Kansas (29,000); Maine (2,000); Minnesota (1.5 million); Missouri (10,000); Nebraska (2.5 million); North Dakota (200,000); South Dakota (100,000); and Texas (5.8 million).

THE COST TO eligible producers will be 75 percent of the 1983 basic county loan rate in the county where the corn is stored. Producers will be responsible for transportation costs in moving the corn to their livestock. The emergency feed assistance will be available to eligible producers for a feeding period of 90 days or until feed would be normally available.

Bereuter said the haying and grazing privileges announced today will only apply to cropland taken out of production in the 1984 farm programs. In general, to be eligible, producers must show a 40 percent loss of haying and grazing in the current growing season. "Lyng has directed the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service to give these requests highest possible priority with a turnaround time of no more than 48 hours."

County ASCS offices will also maintain updated lists of producers who have hay or other roughage available for sale in each state. Bereuter said producers should contact their local ASCS office for additional information concerning any of the expanded emergency measures which were announced today.

"While farmers need many other forms of disaster assistance, this is one step which the U.S.D.A. can easily and quickly implement," Bereuter commented. "I am continuing to work with the U.S.D.A., the Farmers Home Administration and the Small Business Administration to provide all available assistance to farmers and agribusiness in this very difficult year for agriculture."

New device may save lives
The GFCI is a new, sensitive device that just might save your life. GFCI stands for ground fault circuit interrupter. It reacts immediately to the smallest electrical current leak and breaks the electricity flow.

Each year 400 Americans die from electrocutions in or around their homes, according to the U.S. Product Safety Commission. It is recommended that GFCI's be installed to prevent such tragedies.

How does this device work? Electrical current always seeks a path to the ground. If the electrical product you are using has the slightest current "leak," it will flow to the exposed metal parts of the product.

With the right conditions, that "leak" will flow through you to the ground. Or it will flow through any object you are touching, that in turn touches the ground such as a faucet, metal pipe or ladder.

The result is a ground fault which can range from a mere tingle to immediate electrocution.

THE GFCI would prevent any shock by interrupting the flow of electricity. There are three types of circuit interrupters you could use.

The first type is a portable unit that is simply plugged into any standard outlet. These can be purchased at your local hardware store. A portable unit will protect you only from leakage out of products plugged into that outlet.

A second type is installed by an electrician in your circuit breaker box and protects all outlets on that circuit. Installing this type could provide protection throughout your home.

Residents being asked to help support Community Theatre

Wayne area residents are once again being asked to help support Wayne Community Theatre as it begins its sixth year summer.

Community Theatre President Dick Manley said residents contributing dollars in past years have helped fund such musicals as "Carnival," "Fiddler on the Roof," "My Fair Lady," "Music Man" and "South Pacific."

This year, in recognition of Wayne's centennial celebration, the Community Theatre will present an original show of the city's history.

The musical drama, entitled "Wayne, America - A Musical Celebration," was created by Helen Russell and Margaret Lundstrom, who researched the history and wrote the story and script.

The pageant is scheduled to be staged during the grand Centennial Week with shows on Aug. 31 and Sept. 1 and 2.

MANLEY SAID he feels the written-in-Wayne musical drama will be "the grandest event in Wayne Community Theatre's six years of staging live drama."

Manley stressed that while residents are needed as actors and helpers, for community theatre productions, valuable dollars also are needed to "guarantee life for live drama in Wayne."

Residents who would like to join in supporting Wayne Community Theatre are asked to send their checks before Aug. 11 to insure that they receive tickets for the centennial pageant and annual spring play.

Checks should be made payable to Wayne Community Theatre, Box 345, Wayne, Neb., 68787.

A COMMUNITY Theatre gift of $5 entitles the contributor to vote for board members and other business at general membership meetings.

A patron membership ($30) includes the listing of the contributor's name on all theatre programs. Patron members also receive one patron ticket for two admissions each to the summer musical and spring play.

Sustaining memberships ($60) entitle the listing of the contributor's name on programs as a sustaining member and two patron tickets.

Persons who become benefactor members ($100) will have their names listed on programs as a benefactor member and will receive two patron tickets.

Manley said residents who wish to contribute to Community Theatre are asked to include their name, phone and address with their check.

The Juniors fell in opening play on Monday, July 2 against Wisner in a 6-2 ball game that went seven innings.

Wayne's two runs were both scored by Kevin Maly in the top of the first and seventh innings after he reached base on singles. He scored his first run on a sacrifice by Steve Overin with no outs in the first inning, and crossed the plate a second time when Overin drove out a single with no outs in the seventh.

Wisner was able to tack together two runs in the first inning and two again in the second to take a 4-1 lead and added a pair of runs in the sixth for the final margin.

Weiseler was a perfect two-for-two at the plate with a double and single, while Overin was two-for-three with two doubles. Maly went two-for-four with a home run and triple.

Pitching for Wayne was Steve Overin, who threw 11 strike outs and gave up just two walks.

Both teams remained scoreless until the fourth inning, when Wakefield brought in a run on a Wayne error with two outs.

They scored a single run in the fifth inning and then added three in the sixth to seal the win.

Wayne began their scoring late in the contest, as Randy Gamble came across the bag after reaching base on a Wakefield error in the sixth.

The Juniors are scheduled to host Pender in an 8:15 p.m. contest this evening (Monday).

Wayne girls suffer first loss of season to Pender

The Wayne 18-under girls team experienced their first loss of the season and added another win to their record in a pair of games played last week with Pender and Thurston.

On Tuesday night, July 3, the Wayne team staged an comeback behind 16-15 win over Thurston in a game played at the Wayne State College softball field.

Thurston leapt to a 6-2 lead after the first inning and moved to go ahead by a 13-4 margin in the second.

Wayne's defensive play then came into action and allowed only two more runs in the next six innings of play.

The local girls evened the score at 15 at the end of seven by scoring six runs in the bottom of the third, four runs in the fifth and one run in the seventh to extend the game into extra innings.

In the eighth inning, Thurston was two down at the plate before notching a solid hit to place a runner on base. A second hit was nabbed by Jody Allen in left field to retire the side.

VITAMIN AND MINERAL SUPPLEMENTS

WHAT ARE VITAMINS AND MINERALS AND ARE THEY NECESSARY?
 Vitamins are chemicals to help your body use the nutrients contained in food — proteins, carbohydrates and fats. They also help in the production of blood cells, hormones and contain other chemicals.
 Minerals such as calcium, iron, phosphorus and zinc perform a variety of functions essential to well-being. For example, bones need calcium, but also the cells of your muscles and nerves need calcium.
 The body needs only small amounts of each. "Recommended Dietary Allowances (RDA)" are determined for each vitamin and mineral.
DOES MY DIET CONTAIN THEM?
 Healthy people eating at least 1,400 calories daily with a variety of foods from the four basic food groups are unlikely to be lacking in any vitamin and mineral.
MULTIVITAMIN/MINERAL SUPPLEMENTS?
 Few healthy people need a supplement. Those on a weight loss diet of less than 1,400 calories/day should have one. Other possibilities are: (1) junk food eaters, (2) if you are pregnant or breast feeding, (3) a vegetarian who eats no food of animal origin, (4) recovery from an operation or illness that causes you to lose weight.
SPECIAL NEEDS
 Infants and children need a fluoride supplement if their water is unfluoridated. Fluoride has dramatically reduced the number of cavities. Breast fed infants need a source of fluoride and some recommended iron.
WHAT FACTORS AFFECT THE NEED FOR VITAMINS AND MINERALS?
 Your lifestyle may increase your body's needs. For example, smokers need more vitamin C and drinkers need more vitamin B and Folate.
CAN TAKING VITAMIN AND MINERAL SUPPLEMENTS BE HARMFUL?
 Large doses (megadoses) of vitamins and minerals can endanger your health. Vitamins A, D, E and K are stored in the fat and can act like poisons. For example vitamin A may cause headaches, nausea, vomiting, diarrhea and may even damage nerves.
 Other water soluble vitamins, such as C may lead to kidney stones. Increased B₆ may lead to nervous disorders.
 Minerals in megadoses also can be harmful. Sodium will cause fluid retention and high blood pressure. Potassium in excess may cause dangerous abnormal heart rhythms. The trace minerals — iron, copper and iodine are all toxic in large amounts.
