THE WAYNE HERALD

City budget outlined

Bond proceeds will provide the greatest share of revenue to the city of Wayne for the upcoming fiscal year while capital improvements will comprise almost half of general fund expenditures.

These figures were released Friday by Phil Kloster, Wayne city administrator. Of the approximate $2.1 million in expected revenue for next fiscal year, bond proceeds will bring in $535,000 (or 25.1 percent) into the general fund. The general fund is the city's property-tax-supported fund.

Property tax is expected to bring in 17.3 percent of total anticipated revenue. Grants are 15.4 percent; reserves 12.9 percent and intergovernment funds are 12.6 percent of total general fund revenue.

The total property tax asking for fiscal 1984-85 will be $369,239 — approximately $33,000 more than the previous year. Other general fund revenues are received from licenses and permits, service fees, interest, special assessments, in lieu of taxes and miscellaneous.

Capital improvement projects comprise 49.3 percent of total general fund budgeted expenditures for next fiscal year. Those projects include the paving of Fairgrounds and Windom Street at $320,000; Roosevelt Park Revitalization at $110,200; and Seventh and North Main resurfacing at $535,000.

A BIG SHARE of funding for these projects will be derived from special assessments, bond proceeds or grants.

The public works 1984-85 appropriation, totaling 280,259, figures into 13.2 percent of the total $2,128,325 fiscal expenditures. The police department is 11.4 percent and administration 7.2 percent of the total budgeted expenditures.

Other expenditures listed in the general fund include fire, sanitation, parks and recreation, cultural activities and reserve allocation.

Some of the general fund budget highlights which were approved by the Wayne city council several weeks ago included the addition of a staff person to city hall; establishment of a $15,000 sinking fund for fire replacement; and the continuation of energy conservation work and building renovation ($23,000).

The total approved budget for this fiscal 1984-85 is $8.1 million. That total includes the $2.1 million in the general fund, $3.1 million in electric fund and $1.4 million in the city's water and sewer fund.

Nearly $151,800 is available for revenue sharing allocations, some of which will be used for purchase of fire equipment, police equipment, public works department equipment, auditorium equipment, Senior Citizen's Center equipment and transfer station equipment upgrading.

Opening of bids soon for project

Bids will be publicly opened and read on Aug. 23 for the grading, concrete pavement culverts and incidental work on the Fairground Avenue/Windom Street project in Wayne.

The street project is located at the southeast edge of Wayne. The proposed work will consist of 3 mile of highway construction and improvements and will include the approximate quantities:

2,737 cubic yards of excavation; 25 cubic yards gravel for temporary surfacing; 255 square yards of sodding; 73 square feet of concrete sidewalks; 76 square yards of concrete driveways; 16 cubic yards concrete for pavement; 7,272 square yards of concrete pavement; 15 sta. shoulder construction; 7,338 square yards of subgrade compaction; 1,805 pounds of cast iron covers, frames and flanges; 24 cubic yards concrete for inlets; junction boxes and collars; 1,513 pound reinforcing steel; two concrete flared end sections; 573 linear feet reinforced concrete sewer pipe.

Bids for the project will be received by the Nebraska Department of Roads in Room 104 of the Central Office Building (at the south junction of U.S. 77 and N-2) at Lincoln, Nebraska.

Library has new machine

Another new feature has been added to the Wayne Public Library.

The public library has recently purchased a microfilm reader/printer. Back issues of The Wayne Gazette (1885-1889); The Wayne Republican (1892-1904); The Wayne News (1892-1943); and The Wayne Herald from Aug. 1876 to April 9, 1984 are available.

A copy can be made of any article desired. The cost of one copy is 50 cents. This should be of benefit to area genealogists looking for family information, according to library officials.

The reader/printer was purchased in part with State Aid to Public Libraries funds.

A flying leap

ONE OF THE clowns in Olie Anderson's daredevil show leaps from a moving vehicle during Thursday night's entertainment at the Wayne County Fair.

Alert system brings good results

Wayne's first true test of its energy peak alert system got passing grades from city officials.

When temperatures in Wayne hovered around the mid-90's on a humid Monday of this week, an energy peak alert warning sounded alerting city residents and businesses to cut down on energy consumption.

The warnings consisted of two 10-second civil defense siren blasts, announcements over the city's public address system, an announcement over KTCH Radio and through the Wayne Chamber of Commerce "holine."

Phil Kloster, city administrator, said the warning was activated after 1 p.m. on Monday when the megawatt count reached 8.3 at the municipal utility plant, less than one megawatt from what was considered the city's top peak load last year.

"It was the earliest peak load we've had for some time," Kloster said. Within a short period after the alert system went into effect, the peak load began dragging down to the 7.4 megawatt range. "It dropped off steadily and it never did come back up," Kloster mentioned.

THE CARRYOVER of participation on peak alert energy savings from residents and businesses continued into another humid, hot Tuesday.

The peak alert system was incorporated recently in an effort to cut the city's peak electrical load during the hottest part of the year. Keeping the megawatts out of the 8.2 to 9.2 megawatt range would save the city over $100,000 annually in costs to be paid to the Nebraska Public Power District.

This practice would, in turn, bring relief to Wayne residents from future electrical rate increases, once the savings have been realized.

This play is 'not a pageant'

by Chuck Hackenmiller
Helen Russell, a director of nearly 200 Wayne theatrical productions, faces one of the most interesting and challenging scripts of her career as she prepares the cast for a Labor Day weekend performance.

That's the holiday weekend when Wayne is celebrating another big event — the city's 100-year birthday party. And as a special gift to Wayne, a home-spun theatrical production has been created by talented artists and historians which will transport the audience through 10 decades of lively history with song, dance and acting.

"Wayne, America — A Musical Celebration" will be premiering at Ramsey Theatre in the Wayne State College Fine Arts Building on Friday, Aug. 31 at 8 p.m. The approximate two-hour production will again be performed on Saturday, Sept. 1 at 8 p.m. Sunday at a 2 p.m. matinee and possibly Labor Day at 3:30 p.m.

Those anticipating the production as a "centennial pageant" with lengthy boring narrations and a few songs will be in for a surprise, according to Russell, who last November joined Margaret Lundstrom, Mary Halvorsted and Margaret Schultz in researching the history, songs and dance of the past 100 years.

"We wanted to avoid the stand-up boring narrations where you sing a song or two. Helen wanted something which would give continuity with the characters in a real play," said Lundstrom in an interview Friday.

SO THE BASIC characters (which include Harold and Mary Wayne and family members George, Anthony and Sarah and Abner and Myrtle Bustle) never grow old — they roll along at the same age for 100 years.

Most of the Wayne historical material was received from Dorothy Hughes Nyberg's writings, George Criswell's information on Wayne State College and various newspapers or publications.

"When there was the general knowledge bringing in what was happening in the world," Lundstrom said. "Of everything that went into it (the play), there were probably 10 things that were left out."

"It's difficult to cram 100 years in a little over two hours," Russell added.

When February approached, Lundstrom and Russell began the process of assembling the research material and both wrote a script for the first scene. Lundstrom then wrote the remaining script while Russell edited the copy and placed the writings in "play form", complete with stage directions and other additions.

Lundstrom completed the writing by May 15. The editing was finished by June 15.

The finished product was two acts, each with five scenes. Each of the 10 scenes represent a decade of Wayne's 100 years, from the courthouse records were brought from LaPorte in 1884 to July 10 1982 when the Wayne family goes downtown in Wayne.

SANDWICHED IN between are remnants of familiar scenes from 1889 (Wayne Opera House's first production); 1894 and 1897 (schoolhouse and telephone troubles), 1910 (when the state agreed to take over Wayne Normal College); 1917 (dedication of the Nelhard Monument in Bressler Park); 1926 (dedication of Wayne City Auditorium); 1944 and 1945 (D Day and V J Day); 1958 (rocking around the clock); 1960 (Wayne State's 50th anniversary) and 1967.

Some of Wayne's actual historical characters are portrayed in the play, such as John T. Bressler, Phil Kohl, Henry Ley, James Britton and John Lawrence, said Russell.

There are 33 speaking parts in the play, according to Russell. Connie Smith of rural Pender directs the chorus of up to 18 members and up to 14 dancers are under the direction of Mindee Zimmerman of Norfolk. An orchestra, consisting of Clifford Fredrickson on the accordion, Wayne Gilliland on the harmonica and Ralph Olson on the fiddle, also gets into the first act.

Soloists will also be featured, along with quartet tunes and choral numbers such as Turkey in the Straw, McNamara's Band, You're a Grand Old Flag, Over There, Night and Day, Star Dust, God Bless America, Aquarius and the new hit called "Wayne."

SEVERAL OF THE dances performed will be the Irish Jig, pony dance, tap dance, Charleston, jitterbug, twist and the monkey. Just as important a part of the show will be the scene set-ups. Above the actors will be a screen which will pick up scenes of history from two rear projectors. "The rear screen projections will provide the time and the setting," Russell said.

Approximately 210 pictures, with about 90 percent related to Wayne's history, will be projected on the screen. "Some of them are really authentic from actual postcards," said Russell.

Other smaller props, such as desks and table or chairs, will be used in the production, she added.

Russell has been instructing drama at Wayne State College for 26 years and has directed many community theatre presentations. But this production is special to her.

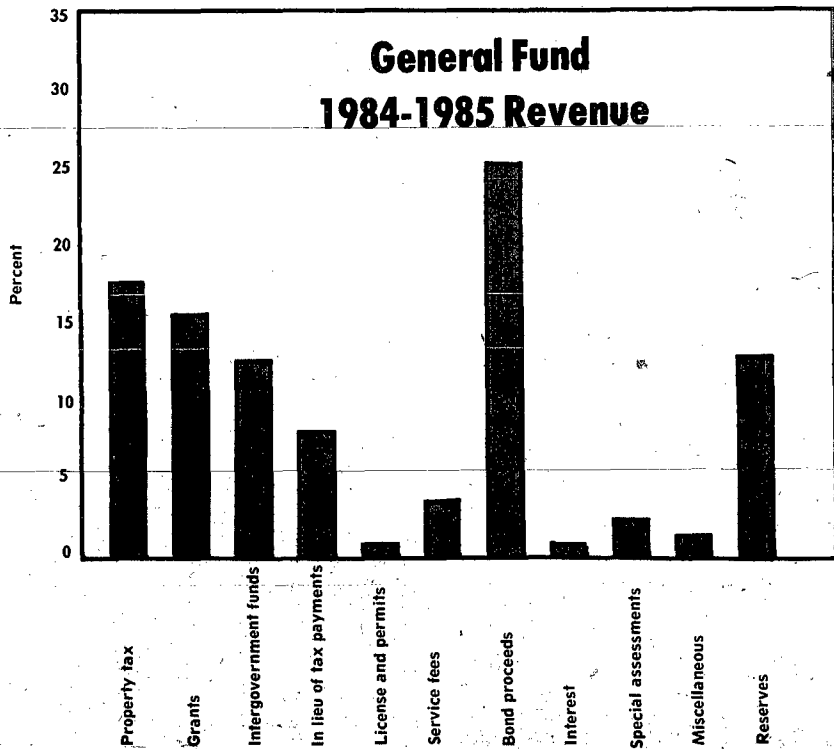

"This is totally different from anything that I have ever done. It's more exciting than any show we've done for a long time," she said.

"It's different. It's exciting. It's Wayne," she said. The young people in the show, she said, misinterpret how things were "way back when."

Once explained about the circumstances of certain items and events, the young participants seem to be surprised. "The young people are learning so much. That's why I'm so excited about it," Russell said.

Both Russell and Lundstrom confirm that "Wayne, America — A Musical Celebration" is more than a pageant. Much more.

It's a musical production which offers a rare opportunity to enjoy history as offered through the talent and determination of individuals who are determined to have the story of Wayne told to Wayne's residents through acting, dancing and singing skills.

Young men born on or after January 1, 1960 are required to register with Selective Service within a month of their 18th birthday. The registration process takes less than five minutes at the post office. A young man fills out a simple form asking only for his name, date of birth, address, telephone number and Social Security number.

Registration helps keep our country prepared with a pool of names to draw from in case of a national emergency without interfering with people's lives. When you think about it... that's not a lot to ask for a country as great as ours. IT'S QUICK. IT'S EASY. AND IT'S THE LAW.

'hacken' away

by chuck hackenmiller

Some people really don't have to be on stage or television to be good actors. I'm certainly not a born stage actor. When I was in high school, the fall play was "Harvey" — the story about this man who visualizes a rabbit which nobody else can see.

There's a one-line part in the play spoken by the cab driver who walks into a room and bellows out "Your cab's here." I was probably one of three people who auditioned for the part. Naturally, I didn't get it.

Other acting experiences have been minor roles. Like in the senior class Christmas Play I wore black leotards and wore a gunysack over my body while performing as Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer.

For speech class I did a one-act skit from Home of the Brave and thought it would drive everyone to tears. It actually drove everyone out of the room.

ACTING AT home is where I really shine. "Oh gee, I'd like to help you weed the garden but my back is just killing me."

"What a wonderful and delicious casserole you've made. One small helping is all I can eat though. I'm watching my diet, you know."

"I'm just too darn tired to mow the lawn today. Maybe after a short nap on the couch."

"If there's anything I hate more, it's playing softball and golf. I only do it because of the exercise."

"You know I'd be happy to fix the kitchen faucet leak. But all that work takes hours and somehow I misplaced my pipe wrench."

Some people call these above comments white lies. I call it acting.

AND THAT'S BEEN about the extent of my acting — until recently.

Now, I had performed in choral events so when the centennial production "Wayne, America — A Musical Celebration" announced try-outs for the chorus, I decided to give it a try.

In the process, I've picked up my first acting bit on stage — a man with three speaking parts. The man isn't the most popular character in the play, according to some people who know the person. He's sort of a radical character responsible for those 1960's sit-ins at the College — at least that's what they tell me.

People who know me will find out that radical certainly isn't my bag. When people were having these sit-ins and riots during the 1960's, I was on the farm making butter or picking sweet corn.

Probably my most radical action during this era was constant complaining about milking the cows every evening, feeding the blasted chickens and fighting with my nine brothers and sisters over what television station to watch on our black and white television.

THAT DIDN'T MEAN my friends weren't radical.

Our farm neighbor had a weather vane placed on the steep roof of his barn. On the weather vane was a replica of a Herford cow poised above the steel iron which pointed north, south, east and west.

This neighbor of ours was always bragging about his Herford herd's milk production. Just for kicks, two of my friends painted the weather vane into a Holstein cow when the neighbor was away for the day.

In those days, that was about as radical as anyone could get.

When the neighboring farmer came around to questioning who did the dirty task, my acting career once again took control as I held back whatever information I knew.

Looking back, you might say I and my cousins were radicals one time because we shot the windows out of a car, just like those riots in the 1960's.

The car was one which was retired on our family farm long ago and was there for possible rebuilding or for parts. My cousins visited one Sunday and brought with them a BB gun.

But shooting tin cans and other objects just wasn't enough for target practice. So I suggested we shoot out the windows of the old car sitting in the apple grove.

I was at an age of adventure (in my early teens) but my father just won't buy that as an excuse. One box of my ears was his way of showing disapproval.

Meanwhile, my poor cousins also faced a stiff punishment (not to mention a brief banning of use of the BB gun).

That was virtually the extent of our radical moods. Back then, there was nothing radical which our parents couldn't handle—at least not while the punishment was a crew cut or a heavy hand on the posterior.

So acting the part of the radical in this centennial production will probably require one of my most difficult acting performances.

It's only three lines, but it gives the picture and sets the mood on the era of sit-ins and riots.

I also want to thank the DAV, the VFW, the WWI Vets and the American Legion for the financing. Mr. Kaup also needs a thank

Getting ready

During the next few weeks, the pace of activity in Wayne should be fast and furious as businesses and residents gear up to celebrate Wayne's 100th birthday.

Now is the time for people to buckle down and assist the Centennial Committee in carrying out the planning and publicizing of the scheduled centennial events from Aug. 29 through September 3 (Labor Day Weekend).

Wayne businesses have received postures and brochures detailing event scheduling which should be readily available for viewing or distribution to the public.

Continuous newspaper articles and advertising have been other ways which the committee has tried in its effort to better inform the public. But contacting other areas "outside" of Wayne requires manpower. And manpower is what the Centennial Committee needs right now.

Two "booster trips" have been scheduled thus far. There were less than a handful of people who have made the trips each time.

To make these promotional trips to surrounding communities successful, approximately 50 to 100 people are needed. The more people, the greater an impact it will create.

These neighboring towns are visited to post Wayne Centennial information and to sell tickets or badges to various events. Thus far, the Centennial Committee is "discouraged" at the turnout numbers for these trips.

The committee is planning another trip to several neighboring communities on Aug. 17. If anyone can break away for a few hours on this day, the company would certainly be welcomed by the committee.

For more information, give a call to Grant Ellingson (375-2355), Bud Froehlich (375-3144) or Rozan Pedersen (375-2240) and let them know you are interested.

Thanks for waiting

On Friday afternoon about 6 p.m., an individual in a red pick-up passed by a household located on 7th Street. A person inside the cab of the truck yelled (with certain words of obscenity) in an angry tone, asking when they were going to repair the bricked 7th Street.

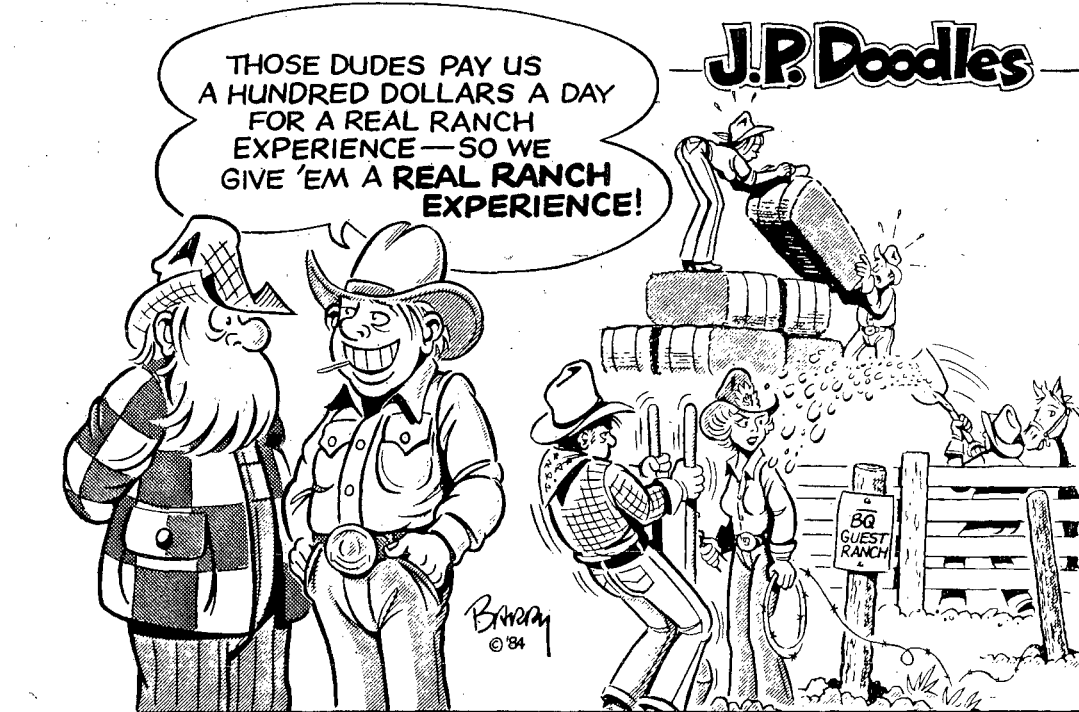

For the drivers information, Wayne had the opportunity to repair the road and get rid of the brick earlier this summer. However, they made a good choice in holding off on the streetwork until after the Wayne Centennial event is past.

Closing one of the city's major streets which is an important east-west connection from the surrounding area would be a poor choice, especially when thousands of spectators will be arriving to help the city celebrate its 100th birthday.

Some people drive the streets almost every day. Yet they are not the complainers who appear the most abusive with their words.

Have a little patience and slow down a bit, truck driver. The brick has been there for many years. A few more weeks isn't going to make that much more difference.

Q. If you want to file a small claims case in Omaha or Lincoln, how do you know whether you should go to municipal court or to the county court? Does it make any difference?

A. If generally does not make any difference whether you file a small claims case in the county or municipal court. There is no difference in procedure, filing fee or amount recoverable. The only differences are that different judges preside in each court, and the courts may meet at different times to handle small claims cases.

In the last session, the Nebraska Legislature passed a bill which will result in the merger of the county and municipal courts. Effective July 1, 1985, there will no longer be any municipal courts, so all small claims cases thereafter will be heard in county court.

Q. Does the beneficiary of a life insurance policy have to pay inheritance tax or income tax on insurance money received?

A. Generally, the proceeds of a life insurance policy received by reason of the death of the insured are not subject to inheritance or income tax in the hands of the recipient if they are received in a lump sum at the time of the insured's death. They are also fully excluded even if paid at a later date, provided that the payment does not exceed the amount payable at the time of death. (For example, when the processing of a claim results in some delay but no additional payment is made by reason of delay.)

If the proceeds are payable in installments, the portion of each installment representing interest on the amount held by the insurer is taxable, except that a surviving spouse is entitled to exclude during each taxable year the first $1,000 of the installment payments which otherwise is treated as taxable.

Life insurance proceeds will generally be considered part of the gross estate for federal estate tax purposes and taxability will depend on the size of the estate, the beneficiary and any clause in the will which might apportion the federal estate taxes.

Q. I am divorced and have custody of my children. I have made a will naming my sister as guardian of these children should something happen to me. How can this be done if it will have been made and a guardian named? I made this will to keep her in from getting them, as he is unfit to care for them. The children range in age from 11 to 18.

A. Nebraska law states that the father and mother are the natural guardians of their minor children. Therefore, if either dies the other parent gains full guardianship. However, the law also provides that "the court may appoint a guardian for a minor if all parental rights of custody have been terminated or suspended by circumstances or prior court order." The court may, therefore, appoint someone other than your ex-husband as guardian if he is in fact judged unfit or has previously lost all parental rights by court order.

If your ex-husband is disqualified as guardian, it is very likely that the court would appoint your sister as your will directs. However, any such "testamentary appointment" (appointment made in a will) is subject to certain rights of the children under a related law. This law provides that children 14 years or older can prevent an appointment of the testamentary guardian from becoming effective, or could cause a previously accepted appointment to terminate, by filing an objection within 30 days of the guardian's acceptance.

In determining guardianship of minor children, the court has one overriding objective: to serve the best interests of the children. Therefore, the court will weigh all relevant factors before making an appointment. You cannot prevent your ex-husband from being named guardian simply by naming someone else in your will. However, if he is disqualified from guardianship, the courts will very often honor your wishes in appointing a guardian.

Recognizing the woman's role in agriculture

To Americans accustomed to thinking of farmers as men, it may come as a surprise that half of the world's food is produced by women. The Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations considers that a conservative estimate; it could well be more.

Women are the majority of the Third World's rural population and many are extensively involved in farming, although this isn't always apparent at first glance. According to Jean Wiedemann of the Board for International Food and Agriculture Development, in many cultures, admitting that the women work involves a loss of status for the family.

"IN LATIN America, it is improper for women to admit to working as farmers and a woman will deny this, even though she has just put down her hoe."

Women also are involved in food processing, and this, too, is often not apparent. In many Islamic countries, Wiedemann said, women live in seclusion, rarely leaving their homes. Yet they may be involved in manufacturing, such as the production of bean cakes, which their children sell in local markets. This kind of work doesn't often show up in formal statistics.

In many developing countries, husbands and wives have separate incomes. It is the women's responsibility to produce and process food for the family and provide for the education of children. A woman may have her own field where she grows crops for family use or to barter for other needed goods. When her children are old enough to go to school, she loses an important source of labor. With the children not around to scare birds away, her crop may fail.

Perhaps because of the "underground" nature of women's food production, extension efforts aimed at improving agriculture in developing countries have been directed toward men. To be sure, it was often not possible for male extension agents to work with women where cultures did not allow this, and the hope was that information

Townners season ends with 9-8 loss to Laurel

The Wayne Town Team saw their 1984 season come to an end on Friday evening when they fell to Laurel in the deciding game of the semi-final series in the Eastern Division of the Tri-County Amateur Baseball League play-offs.

Wayne took the first contest in the best two-out-of-three series last Sunday night by a score of 9-6 on the road before losing in two straight games to Laurel by scores of 8-3 and 9-8.

The team ended the summer with a 17-7 record.

Laurel advanced to the Eastern Division finals which were scheduled to begin last night (Sunday) with Hartington.

A SINGLE RUN separated the winner from the loser in the 9-8 Laurel win on Friday night.

Wayne opened an early 2-0 lead in the first inning on a home run by Neil Blohm with no one on after Mike Breske reached base and scored. Laurel bounced back in the third when Joe Olson knocked out a three run homer and another run scored for a 4-2 lead.

Wayne was able to tie the game briefly in the top of the fifth inning when they scored two runs, but again fell behind when Laurel added a single run in the bottom of the same inning.

Each team scored a pair of runs in the sixth inning before Wayne sent the game into its second tie with a single run in the top of the seventh inning.

The deciding inning proved to be the eighth when Wayne scored a run to take a 8-7 lead. In Laurel's turn at the plate they came up with a pair of runs to take the lead, including a home run by Cleve Stope with no one on.

Wayne's hitting was topped by Neil Blohm who rapped out a home run and two doubles in five at-bats.

Laurel's big hitters included Joe Olson with his homer run and two singles and Cleve Stope with a homer and double. Brian Marquardt also blasted a home run in the nine inning contest.

Jerry Goeden was on the mound for Wayne until part way through the bottom of the eighth inning when he was relieved by Joel Ankeny.

THE WAYNE LOSS to Laurel on Wednesday evening was a hard hitting affair, as both team combined for 21 hits.

Laurel began their attack right from the first inning when they scored two runs including a home run by John Manganaro with two out and no one on and a double by Brad Erwin who came in on a single by Steve Thompson.

The score remained 2-0 in favor of Laurel until the fourth inning when Wayne's Mike Meyer got on board with a single and scored on an error by the Laurel shortstop.

A run by Neil Blohm in the bottom of the sixth put the game into a 2-2 tie when he scored on a single by Jerry Goeden after reaching first on a base hit of his own.

A three-run performance by Laurel in the seventh inning gave them a 5-2 lead which they maintained for the final innings. Brian Marquardt advanced to first on a single and scored on a double by teammate Cleve Stope. Stope and John Manganaro each crossed the plate later in the inning to account for the two remaining runs.

Laurel socked in three more runs in the top of the ninth to build their lead to 8-2. Al Nissen gave Wayne their final score in the bottom of the inning when he notched a double and scored on a single by Doug Carroll.

Mike Meyer led Wayne's hitting with a double and two singles in five trips to the bag. Neil Blohm added a pair of base hits in his four at-bats.

Joel Ankeny pitched the entire game for Wayne, giving up 11 hits and one walk on his way to striking out six Laurel batters.

Over 80 players expected at start of WSC football camp

Some 80 football players were expected to report for fall camp at Wayne State College, which began on Saturday, Aug. 11.

The 1984 football season will be the second one at Wayne State for head Coach Pete Chapman and he is looking forward to a year much better than his first.

Among the 80 hopefuls are 24 letterwinners, 15 transfers who practiced last spring and some good freshmen who could make an immediate impact.

The Wildcats are in the second year of a major rebuilding project. Many faces new to the program started during last fall's 1-9-0 season and more new players are expected to see a great deal of action this year.

BOTH THE coaches and players are really looking forward to this season and we're ready to go with fall camp," said Chapman.

"Even though the team is young, we think we have some talented young players who will represent Wayne State well. We're very anxious to see how all of our hard work has paid off over the summer."

The Wildcat football team was to report on Saturday night for physicals. Sunday, the squad was scheduled to check out equipment and take a variety of physical tests in the afternoon, followed by evening meetings. The first official practice was to begin today (Monday).

That will give the 'Cats 19 days before their Sept. 1 season opener at Morningside College in Sioux City, Iowa, Wayne State and the MC Chiefs, an NCAA Division II opponent from the North Central Conference, have not met on the football field since 1971.

THE 1983 WILDCAT team was plagued by inexperience and a lack of depth and speed. Chapman has, he believes, improved all three areas.

Among the transfers are some speedy wide receivers and defensive backs. Transfers have also improved the depth problem at most areas and they have added some experience also.

Four freshmen recruits played in recent Nebraska all-star games. Rich Ruffcorn of Omaha South, Steve Wichman of Pierce and Ben Lehr of Omaha Central were all starters in the Nebraska Shrine football game and Coach Chapman commented that "all played very well, and we're encouraged by their performances." Glenn Matthews, also of Omaha Central, played in the Coaches Association All-Star basketball game.

Among the 24 lettermen are some who had fine seasons in 1983. All four quarterbacks return from last year including juniors Tom Lellschuck of South Sioux City with 1,187 yards passing and Ed Jochum of Norfolk Catholic with 345 yards.

A pair of tight ends were good targets last season as freshmen, Darin Blackburn of Malvern, Iowa with 23 catches and 399 yards and Larry Voss of South Sioux City with five catches for 38 yards. Voss played in only four games before being shelved with a thumb injury.

Sophomore Sonny Jones had 14 receptions for 306 yards as a wide receiver and was the team's leading scorer. He was second team all-Central States Interscholastic Conference as a kick returner last fall.

On defense, senior linebacker Steve Besch of Humeston, Iowa comes back to the 'Cats with 138 tackles from last year. Sophomore cornerback Lamont Lewis of Milwaukee, Wis., returns with 70 tackles, three interceptions and 14 broken-up passes.

Wakefield hosting state tourney

Baseball action will continue for northeast Nebraska fans tonight and tomorrow as play is scheduled to continue in the American Legion State Class C Tournament being hosted in Wakefield.

Games began on Friday evening, Aug. 10 in the Junior Legion Division, with Albion and Lawrence meeting in a contest, followed by a match-up with Alma and Plainview. Wakefield's team received a bye in first round competition following their chamionship in the Area A play offs last week, when they defeated Plainview in two straight games, 14-4 and 13-3. Their first game in the tournament was scheduled for 7:30 on Saturday night, Aug. 11.

In the Midget division of the tournament, Bertrand Loomis met up with Syracuse in the opening game, and Arlington and Wisner Pilger faced off to determine who would advance in the single elimination tournament. Games scheduled for tonight include the semi-final game of the Junior Legion division beginning at 5 p.m., preceding the Midget championship game.

The Junior championship game is currently set for 7:30 p.m. tomorrow (Tuesday) night. The schedule may change depending on the records of the teams involved in the double elimination competition.

HEALTH TIPS
 From Your Family Physician

FLUORIDE AND GOOD TEETH

Primary teeth begin to form before birth, usually erupting through the lower gum at 6 to 8 months. By age 2 or 2 1/2 the child shows a full set of 10 upper and 10 lower teeth. The first permanent teeth, the "6-year-molars" usually appear at age 6 to 7. After these molars, for about 6 years the primary teeth loosen, fall out, or become extracted as the permanent teeth push through behind them. Much later, between 17 and 21, four "wisdom teeth" come in at the back of the mouth. Dentists and physicians agree that fluoride for all infants and preteen children as their teeth are developing is important for cavity prevention. Fluoride is an essential mineral. Taken in appropriate amounts, fluoride results in a significant reduction in cavities in children. In developing tooth buds fluoride is incorporated into the hard enamel structure of the tooth. This promotes resistance to the constant acids which cause cavities. After tooth eruption, the enamel outer surfaces acquire fluoride from food and water or supplementary sources. The most effective way to get fluoride into the enamel is to have fluoride present in the child's body while the teeth are forming. Traces of fluoride are found in foods. This is not adequate to meet the needs of children. Where the water is not adequately fluoridated by nature many communities have chosen to fluoridate their water supplies. Water fluoridation at 1 part per million is approved by all established dental and health associations. The incidence of cavities is 45-60% less among children exposed to fluoridated water than those without. When adequate water fluoridation is not available and for breast fed infants there are several alternate methods of providing fluoridation. Fluoride is also available through tablets or drops, topical application to the teeth, adding fluoride to one's own drinking water or using a fluoride toothpaste daily. Check with your physician or dentist about the right amount of fluoride for your family.

LOCALLY!

SHOPPERS

Merchants make it their policy to "stand behind" what they sell

Providing customers with extra "follow up" service makes a good store even better. Local merchants' interest in your complete satisfaction does not stop after you've paid for your purchase and left the store. They are happy to assist you should problems arise later. Your business is important to them and they want you to know you can depend on them.

When you shop locally, everyone benefits. It's more convenient so you save gas and time. You get friendly, knowledgeable service because local merchants "know" you and appreciate your business. They depend on you to keep their stores going strong. And some of what you spend goes back into the community in the form of taxes and charitable contributions paid by the merchants.

Remember...
Your money buys more when you shop at a local store. It's good for you, good for us, good for the community.

From pickups to pork; fair has variety

AMONG THE EVENTS at the Wayne County Fair was the Olie Anderson Auto Thrill Show which featured the Big Red Express (above, left) whose size is demonstrated by Jeremy Jenkins and Jamie Holdorf of Carroll. A motorcycle daredevil was also a part of the show and his stunts included breaking through a flaming fence in mid-air (above, right). Below, left, 4-H member Matt Stoeffel carefully prepares his hogs for the Friday swine show and a group of volunteers clean the grandstands in preparation for the fair-going crowds (below, right).
