School board sets 1984-85 budget

The Wayne-Carroll Board of Education has approved a budget of $2,482,346 for the 1984-85 school year at their regularly scheduled meeting on Tuesday, Aug. 14.

The budget reflects an increase of just over six and one half percent over the 1983-84 budget of $2,329,742 and is $8,529 below the allowed seven percent lid.

In his budget message, Superintendent Dr. Francis Haun also informed the board that the outcome of the budget would result in an increase in the local property tax. The projected increase of $80,316 in the property tax is just under six tenths of a percent above the 1983-84 amount.

Copies of the budget will now be sent on to the county clerk, to be transferred to the county commissioner. The actual tax levy for the school will not be set until assessed valuations are compiled by county officials. The Nebraska state auditor and the State Department of Education also receive copies of the prepared budget.

DR. HAUN ALSO reported to the board on various repair and improvement work being done at the schools. The carpet replacement which had been approved at an earlier meeting has been completed at the high school and elementary school.

Roof repair on the hip roof portion of the middle school is expected to begin on schedule, according to Haun.

Concerning repair work at the elementary school, Haun told the Wayne Herald on Tuesday morning that the roofing company contracted for the project, Western Roofing of Norfolk, contacted him and materials were to begin being delivered that morning.

An agenda for the Wayne Public Schools Professional Workshop Days was presented to the board. The workshop days will be held Monday through Wednesday, Aug. 27-29, prior to the beginning of classes. Features include a kindergarten through twelfth grade faculty computer literacy session and a variety of group meetings and discussions.

Reports were received from Edith Zahniser and Ken Olds outlining recent conferences which each attended. Zahniser, German instructor at the high school, attended the Central States Conference on the Teaching of Foreign Languages in Chicago in late April. Olds, the schools attorney, reported on his attendance at the School Law Seminar held in Lincoln last week.

A donation of $1,696 was received from the estate of "Shorty" Ellis and has been earmarked for use in the area of computers, according to Dr. Haun.

IN NEW BUSINESS, the board accepted the low bid from Wells Blue Bunny on milk for the 1984-85 school year lunch program and from Jammer Photography for the school picture packages.

The board also approved the option of a choice of main dishes for the kindergarten through eighth grade lunch program.

Resignations from Jane Gannaway, secretary to the principal, and Viola Morris, cook at the Carroll school were accepted by the board.

Dr. Haun informed the board of upcoming meetings of the Nebraska School Board Association in West Point in September and the State Convention in November.

The board members also voted to allow Kent and Katherine Blaser of Wayne to send their children to the Wayne school system while transferring an acreage of land south of Wayne into the school district.

Board member Arnold Emry presented the board with the results of a survey which was conducted by a research class at Wayne State College during the month of July. The survey was a measure of attitudes of adults and contained some of the same questions used by the Gallup Poll in a nationwide survey conducted in May of 1983 and reported in the September 1983 edition of the Phi Delta Kappan.

Among the results was the grading of the public schools system in the community. Of those surveyed, 81 percent gave the system a grade of A or B, while on the national level the systems were given a similar rating by only 31 percent of those questioned.

THE BOARD went into executive session to discuss salary negotiations, but no action was taken and the meeting was adjourned.

Other centennial promotions announced

More entries sought for parades

As the Wayne Centennial draws closer, committees are beginning to finalize their plans on various events planned for the big five day event.

One of the planned activities, the Youth Parade, appears to be lacking in participants according to a recent count of the entry list.

This event, for those youths who are ages 16 years and under, is slated to begin on Saturday, Sept. 1 at 10 a.m. according to designated co-chairman Bob Jordan.

Entries in the youth parade can appear as organizational floats; horses and riders; decorated bicycles; decorated wagons; authentic or pioneer costumes; tricycles, Big Wheels or pedal tractors; marching units; pet and owner; clowns; and most original entries.

Awards will be given away in each category.

The Aug. 15 deadline for the centennial committee's receipt of entry will be extended to allow more participation. Those with possible entries are asked to fill out the Youth Parade forms immediately.

Entry deadline for the Ag and Antique Parade, and the Grand Parade had also been Aug. 15. However, those still withholding entry forms or still wanting to have an entry in these parades can do so if the forms are sent in immediately.

The forms should be mailed to: Gary L. Pick, PO Box 351, Wayne, NE 68787. Confirmation of entry will be mailed giving the entrant's number and position in the parade.

THE AG AND ANTIQUE Parade, scheduled for Friday, Aug. 31 at 1:30 p.m., will feature cars and trucks, horses and horse drawn entries and tractors and machinery. There will be three places awarded in each class.

Wayne's Grand Parade is scheduled for Monday, Sept. 3 at 1:30 p.m. and it will feature commercial, antique, bands and marching units, organizations and saddle clubs.

There will be three awards per class of entry.

The Shriner's Parade will take place on Saturday, Sept. 1 at 2 p.m.

Parade entry forms can be obtained at various Wayne businesses including the State National Bank and the Wayne Chamber of Commerce Office.

In other centennial notes, it was announced that a purchase of a "Pride in Wayne" badge will be the gateway for individuals to obtain three valuable prizes.

Before the individuals can collect on the prizes, they must be wearing the "Pride in Wayne" badge when their name is announced.

ON EACH OF the bonus bucks drawings on Thursday, Aug. 16 and the following Thursday, Aug. 23, the first name announced will have the chance of winning an additional $100 cash with the $350 bonus bucks award.

The second name announced will win two free tickets for a Nebraska Cornhusker game and $350 in bonus bucks while the third name has the opportunity to win two show tickets to "Wayne, America — A Musical Celebration."

The "Pride in Wayne" badges can be purchased for $6 at Merit's Place; The Morning Shopper; Wayne Shoe Company; Centennial Store; First National Bank; Pamida; Sav-A-Mor; Dug (The Loft); State National Bank; Tri-Travel and the Wayne Chamber of Commerce.

Purchasers of the $6 badge will be given a free ticket to one of two Charley Pride Shows scheduled for Thursday, Aug. 30 at 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. "Pride in Wayne" badge wearers will also be entitled to discounts on several upcoming centennial events.

OTHER SAVINGS announced by the Centennial Committee include discount on midway rides if tickets are purchased in advance.

Sioux Valley Shows of Climbing Hill, Iowa is offering savings on advance ride tickets.

Individuals can buy a 4-ride card for only $2 and save $1 off of the actual ticket price.

Advance tickets are on sale now at the Centennial Store, City Hall, Peoples Natural Gas, First National Bank, State National Bank and the Wayne Chamber of Commerce.

In other centennial notes, all persons interested in singing together to celebrate Wayne's Centennial are invited to rehearse on Tuesday, Aug. 21 from 6:30 to 8 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church.

This ecumenical choir, directed by Connie Webber, will rehearse only once and will sing for the Wayne Centennial "Festival of Faith" on Sunday, Sept. 2 at 7 p.m.

Also, those not building floats for Wayne's centennial parade might want to consider doing a window display.

Call 375-3369 or 375-1194 (after 5 p.m.) for reservations.

All individuals with a centennial theme are invited to decorate a business window. KTCM is giving away 24 (60 second) advertisements to the winning business window display.

Also, a Centennial Booster Trip is being planned for this Friday to distribute centennial material and sell centennial products.

Those interested in making the trip to the communities of Winslow, Carroll, Hoskins and possibly Norfolk should meet at the Godfather's parking lot at 1 p.m.

Parking restriction for Fairground Avenue

What the city council figured as a sound solution to parking on Fairgrounds Avenue has suffered a slight twist of fate.

At its last city council meeting in late July, the city council passed a resolution which would allow no parking on the south side of Fairgrounds Avenue from South Nebraska Street to South Window Street; from the east side of South Window Street to Fairgrounds Avenue North to abandoned railroad right-of-way; the north side of Fairgrounds Avenue from Logan Street to South Window Street; and the west side of South Window Street from Fairgrounds Avenue North to abandoned railroad right of way.

In the previous resolution, it was approved to allow parallel parking on the north side of Fairgrounds Avenue from South Logan Street to city right-of-way drive of the transfer station.

On Tuesday evening, the city council made an amendment to the resolution which will not allow any parking, not even on the 500 foot area which was approved for parking in the previous resolution.

Wayne will receive state funding for road improvement on Fairgrounds Avenue and South Window Street. But to obtain the funds, the city is required to comply with the state's requests pertaining to the road construction projects.

"The state has come back and said no parking. It will no longer be permissible to park on that stretch of 500 feet on Fairgrounds Avenue," Kem Swarts, Wayne city attorney, told the city council members Tuesday evening.

SEVERAL WAYNE citizens who were present at the meeting asked if the no parking rule will affect parking on right-of-way property. Swarts said the current understanding is that parking will not be allowed on all of Fairgrounds Avenue "from curb to curb."

There is nothing in writing from the state on the requirements, he said, so there is a possibility that the parking regulation could include right-of-way property. But at the present time it doesn't, he said.

The city council also gave approval after a public hearing and discussion for a Class C Liquor License to the Lumber Company, Inc. of Wayne.

City council members had approved the recommendation of City Administrator Phil Kloster to allow restaurants to open in B-2 zoning during a work session meeting last July.

This came after it was discovered the Lumber Company (currently zoned in the B-2 district) was not in conformance to zoning regulations which originally required restaurants to be placed in the B-3 zoning category.

Swarts said many of the other restaurants in Wayne which also have a lounge area are also zoned B-2. Taking all the restaurants and rezoning to B-3 could be expensive, since the city would need to hire a consultant to change the zoning laws and rewrite the zoning regulations and have the regulations published.

Vern Russell, present at Tuesday evening's meeting, disagreed with the council's theory.

"If a business is operating illegally, it should either be rezoned to comply with the ordinance or tell them they can't do business," Russell said.

"Either update the ordinance and change

Now a law — get into spirit

Wayne city council got into the groove of the Centennial Spirit Tuesday evening when they approved a "Centennial Ordinance."

The ordinance was established to encourage support of the Wayne Centennial; provide standards and incentives for citizens' support; and to provide penalties for failure to comply.

All sections of the ordinance will be enforced and take effect from Tuesday, Aug. 14 to Monday, Sept. 3.

In order to properly carry out the spirit of this Centennial, certain standards, incentives and penalties are necessary to promote and encourage the proper spirit among citizens," read City Administrator Phil Kloster.

"From this date forward until Sept. 3, 1984, all citizens of the City of Wayne shall display the spirit of the Centennial by appropriate attire and attitude, including costumes, badges and joy for this festive occasion," he read.

Those complying with the standards will be appropriately awarded with prizes, awards or good feelings among themselves," Kloster mentioned.

The ordinance states that "any person who violates the provision of this ordinance shall, in addition to missing out on the fun and spirit of the Centennial, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor of which the penalty may include public service, such as weeding and watering the Centennial penitents or in severe cases of non-compliance, suffering the indignity of a public dunking."

Councilman Freeman Decker first made the motion to approve the ordinance and it was immediately seconded by Keith Mosely.

the ordinance and change the ordinance laws or do something to get this under control," he added.

IN OTHER ACTION Tuesday, the city council:

- Received a petition signed by 17 Wayne County residents discontinue the operation of The Tanning Hut under its present zoning status. The residents feel the business fails under the classification of a beauty shop (outlawed as a home occupation) and the business should not be permitted there.

City Administrator Phil Kloster said he and city attorney Swartz were "looking into the petition", basically to see if the tanning shop can be classified as a beauty shop.

- Was asked by Vern Russell whether the decisions made at last month's regular city council meeting would stand, since the notices of the late meeting were not posted as prescribed in the city ordinance.
- Swartz said the council was not in violation on the open meetings law and actions during the July meeting would remain on the minutes.

- Reviewed recently passed federal regulations on revenue sharing. To receive any revenue sharing, the city has to comply with several regulations, including making public facilities accessible to the handicapped individual. These handicapped accesses are to be implemented and in place by 1986, according to Kloster.
- Also, the city is required to appoint a hearing officer who will listen and take note of handicapped access to public buildings and other problems relating to this. Kem Swartz was appointed by the council to serve as the hearing officer.

- And approved the annexation of Sunnyview Park, also known as Centennial Park or Mayor's Park. Kloster said the annexation deals more with the availability of law enforcement and protection against possible vandalism in the Sunnyview Park area.

The summer's curriculum consists of orientations on jet aircraft, career opportunities, human relations education and equal opportunity training. Physical fitness and survival training is also emphasized.

The field training is four weeks, but cadets in the two-year ROTC program receive an additional two weeks of instruction in the development of air power and the contemporary Air Force.

Hansen is a student at the University of Nebraska, Lincoln.

State faces excess medical bill

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

State government is facing a medical bill in excess of $8 million as a result of a cost containment legislation passed by the 1982 Legislature.

Providers of medical services to the state on behalf of Medicaid patients, including nursing homes, have filed claims with state government for more than $8 million. The claims represent services rendered between mid-1982 and mid-1984 for which the providers say there has been no payment.

The claims reflect the service providers' interpretation of a recent U.S. District Court decision in a case brought by an association of nursing homes which overturned a state cost containment law. The law set the limit for the annual increase in the state's Medicaid budget to 3.75 percent. The limit left some medical services unreimbursed.

State officials last week were uncertain whether the decision will force them to pay off the claims. Some state officials say that the court order forces them only to abandon the Medicaid budget limitation for future payments to service providers. The state Department of Social Services may appeal the court decision.

Potentially, the Medicaid claims could leave Gov. Bob Kerrey and the Legislature with a difficult budget problem. Claims which have yet to be received by the state could add additional millions of dollars to the amount which the state may ultimately have to pay.

The $8 million in claims already received represents about 1 percent of the current state general fund budget, and adds yet one more item to the list of state spending needs which will be faced by the 1985 Legislature.

GOV. BOB KERREY was expected this week to decide on whether or not to convene a special agenda. Kerrey last week tentatively proposed a $225 million increase in state aid to local governments which would result in an estimated across-the-board reduction in local property taxes of 25 percent.

The property tax reduction would be financed through expansion of the state's sales tax base. Kerrey said, a proposal which could include extension of the state sales tax to services, a possible reimposition of the sales tax on food or both. The sales tax on food expired Oct. 1, 1983.

Kerrey's proposal, which he said is "strictly in the discussion stage," was made during a closed-door meeting in his office with about 13 state senators. The gathering was one of four meetings with all 49 senators in which Kerrey discussed the potential agenda for a special session.

Kerrey said last week that he wants a consensus on an agenda among senators before he recalls them to Lincoln.

If he proposes the property tax reduction plan in a special session, Kerrey said, he would also propose the reimposition of a statutory lid on local government spending. The current lid is scheduled to expire on Dec. 31.

Agricultural land values and the insolvent Commonwealth Savings Co. were also items that could be considered in the special legislative session.

JACK RODGERS, who has been director of the Legislature's research division for the last 30 years, will leave the post as soon as a replacement is hired.

Members of the Legislative Council Executive Board decided recently to replace Rodgers as division director, and to move him to the newly created post of senior research consultant.

Rodger, 63, will continue to work full-time and to receive his $41,925 annual salary. Rodger, who holds a doctorate in political science from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, joined the research division on June 1, 1954. When he was hired, he was only the second paid researcher employed by the Nebraska Legislature. The first, Roger Shumate, was the legislative researcher from 1937 until his death in 1954. The research division now employs 12 people.

Sen. Vard Johnson of Omaha, chairman of the Executive Board, recommended that he give up the directorship. Johnson said he believes the research division will benefit from a new director who brings to the post "a new level of energy and vitality."

Energy conscious

In past years, conservation of energy commonly was associated with winter home heating or consumption of fuel in automobiles or other vehicles. Public service advertisements appeared constantly, telling everyone to turn down the thermostat or reduce the number of miles for vacation plans.

Motor fuel conservation seems virtually non-existent today as the nation's gasoline supply increased. Home heating energy conservation still continues, branching off toward many avenues of conservation practices — such as insulation, lowering of the thermostats and solar power.

Now residents of Wayne are facing another energy conservation practice which, in the heat of the summer months, asks city electricity users to adjust their thermostats 'upward'.

Doing this, coupled with less usage of electrical appliances on extremely hot days, will squelch the threat of the city's costly financing of peak loads from the municipal power plant.

The city purchases its power from the Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) at a price of $10.55 per kilowatt. This cost, according to City Administrator Phil Kloster, is likely to rise in future months. If so, the added costs will be paid by the residents charged for their share of the power usage.

This is one incentive for residents to realize the importance of electrical power conservation. Another, according to Kloster, is that the city of Wayne could save up to $100,000 annually in what would normally go towards power payments. Instead, the funds can be distributed to other areas or used as a tool to lower the city property taxes.

A goal established by the city is to hold the municipal plant megawatt level at or below 8.2.

The highest ever megawatt peak reading recorded at the municipal plant was 9.2 megawatts and the city has the capacity of producing approximately 15 megawatts.

So unless there is a tremendous heat wave, the possibility of the city purchasing additional power in addition to the power it produces is unlikely.

Not all the generators in the municipal plant are currently being used by the city. To gain complete usage of all generating facilities would require approval by the NPPD. It is not the city's discretion as to when the generators can be utilized, according to Kloster.

Still, the issue isn't how many generators are available to kick in extra power. The question is 'what are city residents willing to pay to obtain the extra power' since the city will be charged for additional power usage by the NPPD.

Those providing the argument that they are willing to pay more for the convenience of air conditioning during extremely hot days have a strong point. But as power usage increases beyond the 8.2 megawatt level (the point where Kloster feels the city can save money), greater is the share of city's expense to NPPD which is likely to be passed on as rate increases of all residents.

That would include categories from households which have minimum power usage or have no air conditioners to the heavy industrial buildings or businesses.

Thus far the peak alert system has worked in cooling down the megawatt level, once on an experimental basis and another time when temperatures hovered at 95 degrees and the peak energy alert sounded. There are more expected high temperatures expected during those "dog-days" of August.

The city isn't requiring everyone to stop using electricity altogether. Basically, on possible peak days, all the city officials are requesting is a reduction in usage. Even a few degrees upward on the thermostat can make a noticeable difference.

And that difference could become of even greater significance when the city's electrical bills arrive in the mail.

Bad eggs

It seems a shame that someone has the audacity to ruin a good thing. Something that a lad has worked so hard to complete. Something which was so fantastic that it received superior ratings and wonderful comments.

All of this until it was tampered with and left in a sad state. Bowdie Otte had worked very hard and long on his project which was exhibited in the School District art and craft display building at the Wayne County Fair. His teacher from School District 15 will readily testify to that.

That was why his school teacher phoned the Wayne Herald on Wednesday morning, telling us that she was moved to near tears when, upon entering the school district building Saturday night, she saw the time-consuming work of this eighth grade student badly damaged.

The entry had received a superior rating, good enough for a state fair entry. But state fair appears out of the question now.

Between the daylight hours on Saturday, some of the intricate details of his farmyard sculpture projects were ruined.

Along with the ruined project is young Otte's confidence and faith in the human race.

It's a pity it had to happen. Although the Wayne County Fair was considered an overall success, there always seems to be someone who likes to spoil the accolades.

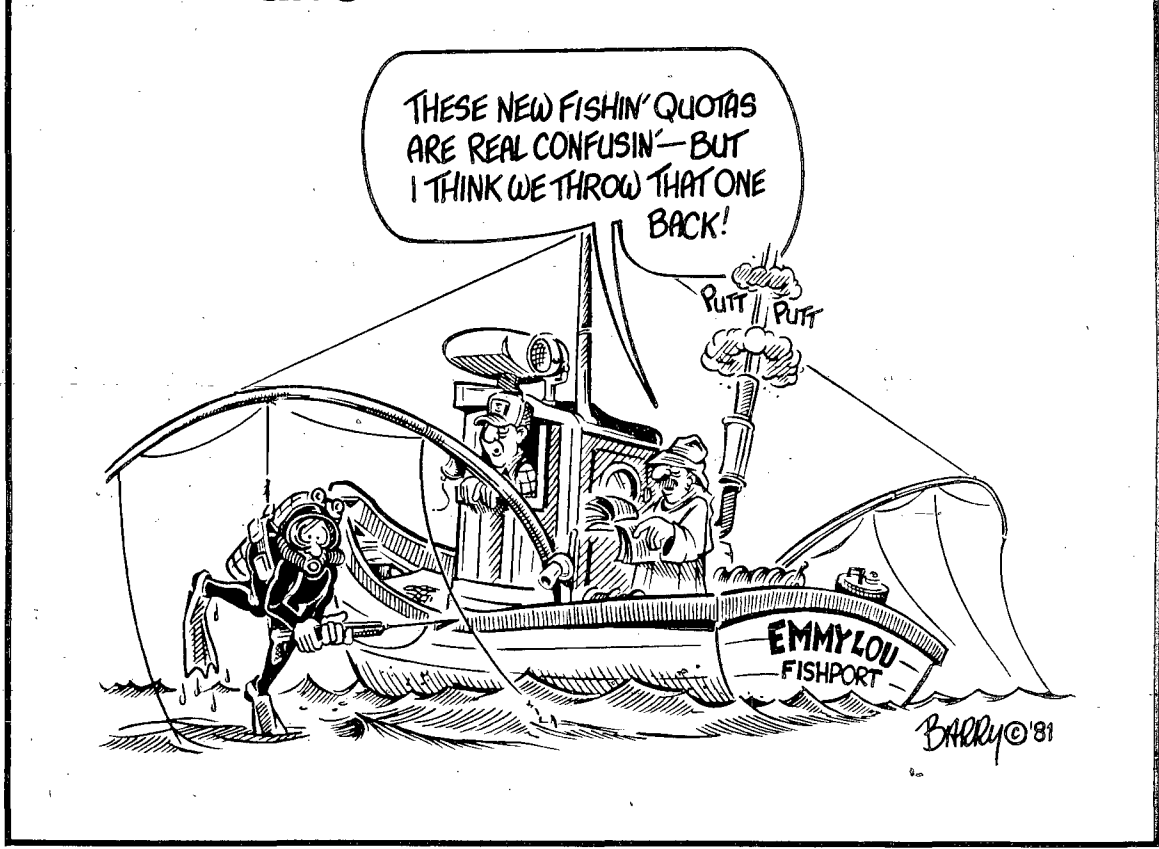

Perhaps it wasn't done with the intent to harm (it could have been a small child who wandered from his family members). But if there was malicious intent, let's hope the individual has the courage to admit the undoing.

And then the individual can try explaining to the exhibitor why anyone would want to do such a thing.

Young Otte is still looking for the answers. Meanwhile, school district officials must now face the situation and treat it with seriousness. This, according to the assistant county superintendent, could shorten the exhibit hours or possibly call for working shifts to continually patrol the building.

All this might seem unnecessary to some people and a waste of time. But try telling that to young Otte.

Resolution passed

Trade and exports to be studied

Approves Export Trade Commission

A resolution to create a National Agricultural Export Trade Commission, that I sponsored along with a bi-partisan group of House members, was passed by the House on August 6, just 45 days after its introduction.

The Commission, which would study national trade and export policies affecting agricultural trade, received favorable action by the House Agriculture Committee a week earlier. At that time I asked the Foreign Affairs Committee, on which I serve, to waive jurisdiction, permitting House action. A similar bill is awaiting action in the Senate.

This resolution is without a doubt one of the major agricultural measures to come before the Congress in many years. Agricultural exports are the lifeblood of Nebraska's farmers. They are vital also to our nation. Agricultural products are by far our nation's largest export. The $34.8 billion in agricultural exports in 1983 will almost offset the cost of our import of foreign crude oil — $36.8 billion.

Agricultural exports have declined in the last few years and no one can say with any degree of certainty what the solutions should be. The purpose of the Agricultural Export Commission is to examine the past and present trade policies of the United States and to develop a long-term policy that will help us develop new foreign markets and expand existing markets.

Some of our past protectionist trade legislation and protectionist administrative actions have been disheartening. They place an inordinate burden on American farmers, and they are an implicit recognition that many of our major industries have not stayed competitive with our foreign trading partners. Some people may see protectionism as help for one American industry, but they overlook the damage it does to other industries — especially agriculture — which has worked hard to remain competitive.

Embargoes, protectionist trade legislation and quotas are a two-way street. When we deprive other nations of access to our markets, we shut our producers off from their markets.

This National Agricultural Export Trade Commission proposal has the support of the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives, the National Association of Wheat Growers, the National Corn Growers Association, the Farm Bureau, the National Grange, the American Soybean Association, and many other agricultural organizations.

GAIL KORN stands inside the Wayne Centennial Garden at 4th and Main in an area north of The Headquarters.

Centennial project

Flowers representative of turn-of-the-century garden

By LaVon Anderson

From bee balm to coral bells, blackeyes Susans to bachelor buttons, Wayne's Centennial Garden at 4th and Main Sts. is a showy example of flowers planted during the turn of the century.

"We wanted flowers that we felt our grandmothers and great grandmothers grew," said chairman Gail Korn, who along with her committee came up with a list of annuals and perennials typical of those planted 100 years ago.

In February, the committee put out a call to local gardeners asking for donations to the garden.

"The response was tremendous," said Korn, adding that planting of the garden began in April following permission by Marion Manes to use an area next to The Headquarters.

KORN, OWNER of Garden Perennials, located three and a half miles south of Wayne, said she was approached with the idea of planting a centennial garden by Sandra Elliott as a cultural and historical project recognizing gardening efforts of 100 years ago.

Serving with Korn on the committee are Nancy Jo Powers, Carole Schmidt and Lucile Larson.

Korn said the location in the area north of The Headquarters was selected because it is highly visible and surrounds one of Wayne's oldest homes.

"BASICALLY, THE garden is a display of old-fashioned flowers," said Korn, adding that the committee ruled out any hybridized varieties.

Donations for the garden included phlox, ribbon grass, asters, day lilies, hollyhocks, blackeyed Susans, yarrow, baby's breath, dianthus, daisies, coreopsis, bee balm, balloon flowers, golden glow, tiger lilies, four o'clocks, balsam, heliotrope, showy stonecrop, coral bells, gallardia, calendulas, bachelor buttons, spiderwort, cock's comb, larkspur, perennials penulnas and nasturtiums.

The garden also includes butterfly weed and columbine, both native to the plains of Nebraska.

A path through the flower bed also leads to a garden of herbs, including catnip, garlic, thyme, oregano and chives.

KORN SAID that among her favorite flowers in the garden is heliotrope, a pale pink flower that resembles Queen Anne's lace when in full bloom.

"When I think of heliotrope I think of the play 'Our Town,'" said Korn, adding that the play's characters would often go out in the middle of the night just to smell the heliotrope. Korn added that heliotrope is an extremely fragrant flower that resembles the smell of sweet vanilla.

Korn said balsam may be among the least known flowers in the garden, partly due to the fact that it is planted from seed and gardeners today tend to do less of that.

"The blossoms of balsam resemble small roses while the foliage is similar to impatiens," said Korn, adding that like impatiens, the seed pods when nearly ripe will explode if touched.

KORN SAID visitors to the centennial garden can identify other flowers with the help of a chart located inside The Headquarters.

Adding to the old-fashioned charm of the garden, said Korn, is a white picket fence which surrounds it.

The fence was taken from the farm home of her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Korn, located southeast of Wayne.

The pickets, which date back to approximately 1918, overlooked Hunter's Grove where Wayne County was signed into existence.

"The committee thought that was quite historical," smiles Korn.

KORN IS QUICK to point out that the centennial garden exists because of many residents who have donated both time and talents.

Helping construct the sign, which marks the spot where the garden is planted were Dick Powers and Cleo Sharer. The picket fence was repainted by Heritage Homes of Wayne.

Helping to maintain the garden, along with committee members, are Sheryl Poihamus, Betty Schroeder, Sue Olson, and members of Wayne Girl Scouts and the Modern Misses 4-H Club.

Korn said special thanks goes out to residents donating flowers and plants, including Mrs. Walter Benthack, Betty Schroeder, Virginia Wright, Linda Malloy, Sue Olson, Betty Jensen, Ruth Grone, Lee Brown, Manjit Johar, Maria McCue, Charlene Rasmussen, Norma Magdanz, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Cauwe and the Modern Misses 4-Hers.

KORN SAID the garden will be in full bloom from now through Wayne's Grand Centennial Celebration, Aug. 29 to Sept. 3, and visitors are welcome to walk through.

Korn added that visitors to the garden also are welcome to step inside The Headquarters to identify any of the flowers.

August ceremony in Wayne unites Barclay-Backstrom

The marriage of Lesa Ann Barclay to Perry Wayne Backstrom was solemnized in 5 o'clock rites Aug. 11 at Redeemer Lutheran Church in Wayne.

Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Barclay Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Backstrom, all of Wayne.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Daniel Monson of Wayne. Decorations included altar flowers of red and white miniature pompons and baby's breath.

Music included "God, a Woman and a Man," "Wedding Song," and "The Lord's Prayer," sung by Lisa Nuss and accompanied by Mrs. Jim Hummel, both of Wayne.

MRS. DAVID Hix of Wayne registered the guests, who were ushered to their seats by Verdel Backstrom of Wayne and Duane Backstrom of Maryville, Mo., both brothers of the bridegroom. Jay Hummel and Kevin Gade, both of Yankton, S. D., and Steve Tunik of Fremont.

Wakefield tops state after sweep of Class C tourney

The Wakefield Junior Legion baseball team clinched the State Class C Legion baseball title on Tuesday evening with a 10-2 win over Albion at Eaton Park in Wakefield.

The team finished with a 4-0 record in the double elimination tournament and ended their 1984 season with a 40-10 record.

It was the first state appearance for the team since 1980 when they finished as runner-up to Wayne in the State Class B tournament. Wakefield's most recent championships include back-to-back Class C titles in 1978 and 1979.

WAKEFIELD'S STRONG hitting was one of the key elements in the final win against Albion, a team which finished the year with a 20-6 mark.

The pitching staff also proved to be a factor, as starting pitcher Bob Utemark went the distance to strike out nine batters and give up just one base on balls in the seven-inning contest. Utemark turned in a strong performance throughout the tourney as he notched three wins on the mound, two as the starting hurler and one in relief.

Wakefield was in control of the championship game from the outset, scoring two runs in the first inning, adding three in the second and a single run in the next three innings before Albion appeared on the scoreboard. Albion's runs came in the sixth on three consecutive hits before a runner was thrown out at second and two batters struck out at the plate to close the inning.

Leading the Wakefield battery was Mark Kubik who connected four out of five times at the plate for a double, three singles and four RBIs.

Brian Soderberg was two-for-three with two singles and scored three runs while Wayne Guy rapped out a double and single in five at-bats, knocked in two runs and scored four.

Bob Utemark came up with a double and two base hits in his four trips to the plate, Troy Greve and Jason Erb each added a pair of singles.

THE PRESSBOX at Eaton Field bears the ballpark's new nameplate.

Ballpark dedication honors Eatons

Wakefield's ball park will now be known as Eaton Field, following a surprise dedication held at the park on Saturday evening, Aug. 11, prior to the start of games in the State Class C Legion baseball tournament.

The ball park, which was purchased as an addition to Graves Park in 1941, was named in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Eaton and their family. Hubert and his wife Percy operate Eaton's Nursery and Greenhouse in Wakefield along with their sons Tom and Rob, while son Paul is a teacher at Emerson and has coached the American Legion teams for the past 18 years. A daughter, Kathy, resides in Underwood, Iowa.

THE DEDICATION came as a surprise to the family, and Wakefield Mayor Merrill "Lefty" Olson said that keeping the entire idea a secret went "really well."

According to Olson, there had been talk of naming the park after the Eaton family for several years, and the hosting of the 1984 Class C State Tournament seemed an appropriate time to make it official.

The park board wanted the entire family to be recognized for their efforts," said Olson. A resolution officially seeking the naming of the park was brought before the Wakefield City Council by members of the park board and was passed at their Aug. 1 meeting.

THE EATON FAMILY has long been involved in the upkeep and improvement of the ball park, but Hubert and son Paul both stressed the fact that there are volunteers throughout the community who have put in just as much time and effort to make the facility as successful as it is.

"It is a nice honor," said Paul, "but there are so many others in the community who worked to make it what it is, too." He pointed out that while the family members might get together and start a project at the ball park, people were always coming down and helping out, willing to lend their skills, and labor whenever needed.

The players who participate in the Legion ball program are also active caretakers of the field and surrounding area, and Paul commented that even when they are through the Legion program, they take that sense of caring for the ball park with them and continue to help out.

Paul said that they knew there had been talk of naming the park after the family at one time, "no one in the family had any idea" about Saturday night's dedication.

New Depot Assured for Wayne. A Modern Brick Structure 102x30 Feet in Size to be Built North of Tracks at Main Street

As the result of the meeting of which we told last week the president of the Commercial Club and a committee named to aid him got very busy and presented the proposition to the citizens so ably that they were assured before night that the sum of $2,000 could be raised, and offered the company officials to pay that sum toward the depot and park site, the company to pay the remaining $1,000 the portion of the site they would require for depot and approaches. This offer was accepted and plans of a suitable depot were sent for the approval of the citizens here and these plans must also be approved by the state railway commission. The plans sent are the same as were used for a like depot at Laverne, and Shakopee, Minnesota, and were in the opinion of those who examined them acceptable with but few minor changes. The proposed plans show a building 102x30 feet in size, with an 18 foot platform between building and track, with a generous platform between Main street and the east end of the building over which there is to be a roof. Entrances from north and south admit to the main waiting room, 27x37, the north entrance being through a vestibule, 8x13 feet. From the main waiting room opens the ladies waiting room 18x20 feet, and wash and toilet rooms open from each waiting room. On the west will be baggage room 22x24 feet, a room for trainmen to register is but 6x7 feet. The office and operator's desk and windows will occupy a room 13x18 facing the south.

According to proposed plans the main track will remain where it now is, and branch trains will have tracks from the junction to the west end of the depot, and the platform will extend west from the depot between the main line and branch tracks, making the matter of the transfer of baggage and express very convenient. In added depot room and platform room there will be great convenience. In the appearance of the depot and surroundings there will be a marked improvement. It promises to be a happy termination of the effort made by Wayne for the past two years for adequate depot accommodations, and while some would have liked to have stood by the guns and finished the fight along the lines laid out after the request was not granted there is but little doubt but that the policy adopted was the wiser.

The May Musical Festival

This home talent entertainment given by the pupils of our schools Monday evening was a success, and was much to the credit of Mrs. Louise Murfree, the musical instructor of our schools, the teachers and pupils under her direction. The opera house was well filled by those who were anxious to be entertained and who wished to know of the progress made by their children in this branch of school work. A most excellent program was presented and carried out without a hitch or break, showing how thoroughly had been their school training. The order was excellent, the 250 pupils who took part passing the entire evening without the least disturbance or disorder. It would be hard to say which was best presented of all the seventeen numbers on the program. The orchestra was excellent and the different grades each and all showed the result of the school training they had received, for as we understand it this recital was but a bunching of the regular work which is being accomplished daily at our school. Form high school to first grade the result of excellent work was shown.

Normal vs. Wakefield

Wednesday afternoon the Normal baseball team went to Wakefield to cross bats with the high school team of that place, which is an exceptionally strong school team. In the first part of the game Wakefield had by far the best of the game, but during the last three innings the Normal boys did better work, and came out at the end of the ninth inning with nine scores to the opponent's eight. A most unfortunate accident happened before the game was half played. The Wayne catcher and Ed Herring who played third base collided when both were trying to get under a fly foul, and Herring retired with one bone of his leg broken just above the ankle.

Confirmation at Winside

On Sunday afternoon Rev. Muehling will hold services at the German Lutheran church at Winside, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, when a class of seven will be confirmed. The members of the class are: Carl Thies, Louisa Thies, Paul Gutzman, Dora Rohlf, Willy Thielholdt, Meta Koepke and Emma Koepke.

Wayne Gun Club

The Library Benefit

The "Comin' out of Mary Jane Cummins" and the specialties which it was the attraction at the opera house last Saturday evening. It was a neatly gotten up play, and put on by home talent under direction of the author. A large and appreciative audience cheered the star actors and actresses, and the local hits in the place, and one who read the play wondered that they could put so much into it by high class acting.

Among the specialties Fred L. Blair and the chorus of young ladies won much applause, as did Miss Ina Hughes and chorus. Miss Izetta Johnson and Mrs. A. R. Davis, with "Two Little Love Bees." Don Gildersleeve and Mrs. Clyde Oman also entertained with specialty and song.

The entertainment netted the library more than $50. To Mrs. Ley is due much credit for the care for the endless number of matters which must be looked after to make a success of a home entertainment. Mrs. Horace Theobald was accompanist for the musical specialties.

Death of Fritz Boetel

Fritz Boetel of Winside died at an Omaha hospital where he had been taken for treatment about three months before, April 25th of paralysis, aged 40 years, 8 months and 19 days. He was born in Hansbun, Holst, Germany, July 9, 1862, and came to America in 1885, locating at Blair in this state where he lived for seven years, and came on to Wayne county in 1892, since which time he was a resident of the county. He was stricken with paralysis about three months before his death, but nothing could stay the dread disease.

The funeral was held from the German Lutheran church at Winside, April 30, conducted by the pastor, Rev. Rudolph Moerking, and the body buried in the Winside cemetery.

The Carnival

The carnival opened yesterday with small attendance, as is usual the first day—especially as it is the first day of the entire season, and a very busy time among the farmers. The numerous attractions will draw plenty of people here before the close, Saturday evening. They have the nearest and most up-to-date merry-go-round we have seen, the bears are great attractions for the young folks. There are numerous side attractions besides the theatricals in the large tent.

Last evening they opened with the popular play, "The Price He Paid," which was ably presented for the first time in Wayne by Elwin Strong and Company. The other plays for the week are "Shamus O'Brien," "Lost and Won," and "The Call of the Woods."

Social Notes

On Monday evening the Acme club and their husbands gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Jacobs for their annual club party which marks the closing of their meetings for the season. Mesdames Jacobs, Weber and Blair presided as hostesses. Two tables were used for the dinner which consisted of three courses, one of the tables having place cards and appointments in yellow and white, the other in pink and white. Yellow jonquils, marguerites and sweet peas were used in the decorations. After the sumptuous dinner to which all did ample justice, the evening was spent in charades and other games which furnished entertainment for the guests until a late hour. The last meeting will be held in two weeks when the election of officers will take place.

The Minerva club met with Mrs. Lackey Tuesday afternoon when the lesson was opened with a discussion on current events. President Conn then addressed the club on Parliamentary Law after which the following officers were elected: Mrs. S. A. Lutgen, president; Mrs. P. S. Berry, vice-president; Mrs. J. J. Coleman, secretary; Mrs. Miner, treasurer and Mrs. E. W. Huse, journalist. At the close of the meeting Mrs. Lackey served a two course luncheon. The last meeting of the season will be held in two weeks at the domestic science department of the state normal.

The Monday club had a special meeting with Mrs. Kate this week at which they finished the year's business. After the business was over the ladies spent the remainder of the afternoon socially. Light refreshments were served by the hostess.

The Westminster Guild met with Mrs. Alexander Corkey Tuesday and continued the study on Mormonism. At the close of the lesson the hostess served ice cream and cake. A very good attendance was reported.

The Sewing Circle met with Mrs. Herman Lessman last Thursday. After a bountiful dinner the afternoon was spent in sewing for the hostess.

The ladies of the Presbyterian church met with Mrs. J. G. Mines for a social afternoon yesterday. Light refreshments were served.

The P. E. O. will entertain their state organizer, Mrs. Andrew, dinner next Monday evening at the home of Mrs. T. B. Heckert.

Mrs. James Miller will be hostess to the Auction Bridge club next Tuesday afternoon.

The Presella club was entertained by the Misses Elsie and Frances Spahr last Saturday.

Mrs. A. M. Helt will entertain the W. C. T. U., at her home next Friday afternoon.

The U. D. club meets with Mrs. James Miller next Monday afternoon.

"Jack" Fleetwood, the white battle scoured building got beneath the wheels of an automobile last evening and it is thought that he is fatally injured. He was too independent and moved too leisurely. Some few days ago he appeared to be defying fate as he crossed the railroad track in front of an approaching train without deigning to hurry or even look at the engine—but it happened that he had a foot to spare as the train passed.

Mrs. James Miller and Miss Reba Nangle are at Wausa today and this evening where they assist Prof. Abernathy in the production of the oratorio "The Messiah" at that place, where he is producing the magnificent musical production with home talent. Mrs. Miller plays the organ and Miss Nangle sings several of the solos.

Frank E. Nangle is here from Des Moines this week visiting his mother and many friends. He is engaged as sales manager of the Southern Land Sales Company, who are selling lands on the west coast of Florida.

George Mellor came up from Malvern, Iowa, Wednesday to look after his farms here and visit his brother. He reports that crops here two weeks ahead of Nebraska crops in his home.

The Price of a Load

One evening this week a Sioux City paper was boasting of the aggregate sum paid at that market for a single car of cattle, the sum being $2,100. But a Wayne county feeder has that beaten. Wm. Gildersleeve shipped a car from his home farm to South Omaha this week, and when the returns came back the price they brought was $2,207.25. The bunch sold at $8.30 which would indicate that they were petty good short fed stuff as well as good size. They brought a little more than $100 per head.

On Wednesday Mr. Gildersleeve went to the South Omaha market with five cars (98 head) of white faces from his ranch southeast of Wayne, where J. A. Schmidt has been in charge of the feeding. These are good animals, and will no doubt bring good returns. Mr. Schmidt informs the Democrat that there are yet 157 head of the same bunch left in the feed lots besides 70 head for summer feeding. These cattle have been followed by about 230 hogs. Then there are more than a dozen brood sows yet to farrow. This makes a pretty good stock showing for a farm of 320 acres, even if they do buy considerable feed.

E. A. Cichester also went to the market with two cars of fat cattle on the same train.

S. R. Theobald has received a letter from Theo. Duerig now of Chico, California, stating that himself and family arrived there in the season safe and sound and are now settled in a neat modern cottage, not far from the normal school, which he says is not any ahead of our normal in the matter of buildings, but in the beauty of grounds is far ahead. He has not yet been there long enough to tell how well he will like the place, which has a population of about 4,000, but is in the midst of a community so thickly settled that one cannot tell where the town and country join. He was surprised to note slight frost there two mornings recently, something unusual, and not enough to be of damage to crops. He says that C. O. Johnson has purchased an acre tract about a mile out and that they are settled there. He is now engaged in viewing some of the neighboring towns and the country around. Land prices seem pretty high to him, and he is not sure how the many foreigners, though he admits that they appear to be a harmless class of people.

School Notes

The schools will be dismissed tomorrow afternoon because of the circus in town. Hays Main was given fourth place in the State Oratorical Contest at Hastings last Friday. This is a commendable showing for one who has only recently taken up this kind of work. At Hastings Hays competed with the strongest students in the Nebraska high schools and in the class of seven he made a good record.

On Wednesday morning Rev. Glofferty, pastor of the M. E. church, spoke to the high school on "Education." He said in part "Education is the process of leading ourselves out away from self to other human beings for the purpose of service. The measure of one's greatness is his capacity for doing for humanity. Let him who would be chiefest among you be the servant of all. Let your purpose in life be to help your fellow men." Students and teachers enjoyed Rev. Glofferty's address.

Claus Ott's Barn Burns

At an early hour this morning the large nearly new barn on the farm of Claus Ott, about eight miles northwest of Wayne was discovered on fire, the flames coming out around the doors when first seen by Mr. Ott's son who is on the farm. Barn and contents were completely destroyed. Eight head of horses, 50 tons of hay, 1000 bushels of oats, are known to have been destroyed. The barn and horses were partially covered by insurance, but on grain and hay the insurance was light. The cause of the fire is not known.

The members of the executive committee of the district brotherhood for this district were entertained at dinner Tuesday at the home of Prof. I. H. Britell and wife. In addition to the members of the committee residing at Wayne, H. B. Garwood of Carroll and Rev. Langley of Laurel were present.

Edison's Masterpiece

The Edison Disk Phonograph shown for the first time at Jones Bookstore

A successful culmination of thirty-five years spent by Mr. Edison in his endeavor to perfectly reproduce sound.

In 1878 Mr. Edison invented and patented the first disk phonograph, but not until this 1913 has the great master permitted a disk phonograph to be offered to the public in his name.

Mr. Edison has discovered the secret of recording and reproducing tone and color, a new and superior method of recording only known in the Edison Recording Laboratory.

Until now the delicate beauties of music have baffled reproduction as were either lost in recording or so weakly reproduced as to be entirely lost in noises common to disk records.

This wonderful musical instrument can be heard at JONES BOOKSTORE. Come in and listen. You cannot help but marvel and applaud.

Mr. Edison said: "Let the public hear and decide."

Host family weekend

Nebraska International 4-H Youth Exchange alumni and host families are inviting anyone interested in learning about foreign countries to attend a Host Family Weekend Sept. 28-30.

The event will take place at the Nebraska State 4-H Camp near Halsey. Presentations by past exchange participants will highlight the Saturday and Sunday programs, according to John Orr, University of Nebraska extension 4-H specialist. Recreational activities will feature canoeing and archery.

Orr said that visitors may attend any of the activities during the weekend. The program will get underway Sept. 28 at 7 p.m. with registration and dinner. It will conclude on Sunday, Sept. 30, at 1 p.m. with an IFYE Alumni and Host Family Association officers meeting.

For more information, write John Orr, 116 Agriculture Hall, East Campus, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, NE 68583-0700 or call (402) 472-2838.

Ak-Sar-Ben Youth Leadership Teams

Four-H youth interested in being on the Ak-Sar-Ben Youth Leadership Team must submit a completed application form to their local extension office by Aug. 17. Application forms may be obtained from extension offices. Applicants will be notified of selections early in September.

The Ak-Sar-Ben Youth Leadership Team is directed toward 4-H youth interested in working with the professionals who conduct the Ak-Sar-Ben 4-H Livestock Exposition in Omaha Sept. 19-25. Several positions are available on the 1984 team which include the following divisions: market lamb, dairy, swine, feeder calf, horse, breeding helper and herdsmanhip.

According to Ken Schmidt, University of Nebraska extension specialist-4-H, "the purpose of the teams is to give older 4-H members experience in conducting the world's largest 4-H livestock show. Team members will work directly with division superintendents and get first-hand experience at such duties as clerking, announcing, animal weight and check-in, serving as a ring steward and planning for the next year's show."

Members must be at least 15 years old and have exhibited at a previous Ak-Sar-Ben show. "They cannot exhibit in the show where they are assigned, but may exhibit in other areas that do not have a time conflict," he explained.

Near 1982 level corn production

Nebraska's corn production based on August 1 conditions is forecast at 775.2 million bushels, 66% more than last year's small crop and 4% above 1982, according to the Nebraska Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. Planted acres of all corn at 7.4 million were 40% higher than last year but only 1% above 1982.

Acres for grain harvest at 6.8 million acres equals 1982 and is 91% of planted, compared with 91.3% in 1983 and 93.2% in 1982. Yield estimate at 114 bushels per acre is up 18 bushels from 1983, 4 bushels above 1982, and is 1 bushel below the 1981 record 115-bushel yield.

Irrigated corn production is forecast at 595.2 million bushels. Yield is forecast at 128 bushels per acre, up 13 bushels from 1983 and 6 bushels above 1982. Acres for grain harvest is estimated at 4.65 million acres, 1.4 million acres more than last year. Nebraska's irrigated acreage represents 68% of the acreage for grain and accounts for 77% of total corn production.

Dryland corn production is forecast at 180 million bushels. Yield is forecast at 83.7 bushels per acre, 26.3 bushels above last year but .6 bushels below 1982. Acres for grain harvest, at 2.15 million acres, is 550,000 acres more than a year ago.

Other crop production

Production of soybeans is forecast at a record 84.2 million bushels, 47% above last year's small crop and 7% above the previous record of 78.8 million set in 1982. Planted acreage, at 2.6 million acres, and harvested for beans, at 2.53 million acres, are both up 24% from 1983.

Expected yield per acre of 33 bushels is 5 bushels above 1983, but 2 bushels below 1982 and 5 bushels less than the record 38 in 1981.

Oats production is estimated at 15.4 million bushels, 13% above last year. Rye production of 1.3 million bushels is up 2% from 1983. Sugar beet production of 1,476,000 tons is up 20% higher than last year's crop. Dry edible bean production forecast at 2,475,000 cwt. is up 13%. Hay production, at 7.8 million tons, is 2% above a year ago.

Season for insect stings

Most insect stings occur in the late summer or fall when the stinging insects are most abundant, and sooner or later most Nebraskans will have the unpleasant experience of being stung by a bee or wasp, according to University of Nebraska extension entomologist David Keith.

"Insect stings are normally characterized by moderate or severe pain, localized reddening, swelling and occasionally mild headache and fever," he said.

Treatment involves disinfecting the sting with soap and water. Meat tenderizer, which contains an enzyme that breaks down the proteinaceous components of the venom, may be applied to the bite site. A baking soda paste may also be applied to help relieve pain, he said.

Stings to allergic individuals can cause serious problems and, since there is no way to completely avoid stinging insects, these people should be desensitized and have an emergency kit available at all times.

Some stinging insects, such as social bees, yellow jackets, honeybees and hornets, use their stingers only as defensive weapons. But, Keith said, when forced to defend themselves or their nest, they will often aggressively attack the intruder in large numbers.

Swine disease affected by environment

The environment affects the frequency and severity of respiratory diseases in swine. As producers move swine from the fields to the barns, the air environment has changed greatly, according to Stanley E. Curtis, professor of animal science at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

The problem air pollutants in swine houses are the airborne bacteria, which affect the respiratory tract. "Those that deposit in the tract must be cleared," Curtis said.

Curtis spoke at the 25th annual George A. Young Conference for Advances in SPF Swine Production Monday (Aug. 6) held at the University of Nebraska Center for Continuing Education here.

"In order to reach lower concentrations of aerial bacteria, relative humidity should be kept in the range of 50 to 60 percent with supplemental heat," Curtis said.

Curtis cited a study finding that aerial concentration of bacterial particles was reduced, when relative humidity fell below 60 percent during a cool, dry interlude between two mild, humid periods. This was especially true for the small particles capable of reaching and depositing in the lungs.

The study, which included adjusting the relative humidity to 50, 65, 80, or 95 percent, found aerial bacterial counts to be lower at the lower relative humidities, especially the smaller, lung-depositable bacterial particles. This is favorable for the air's vapor pressure is a very important determinant of the concentration of bacteria in the air of an animal house.

The RIDEA test is also useful in detecting active infection in individual animal testing and for a routine test for herd clean-up procedures.

"This test is new and not yet on the market," Thawley said. "The drawback to the practitioner may be the cost of the machine that is needed to read the results."

Veterinary practitioners are now able to use undiluted body fluids such as whole blood, milk, serum and urine to test for pseudorabies. All are easily accessible, he said.

THE TEST OFFERS these benefits:

- Faster turnover time for the practitioner.
- Use of micro-volume samples.
- Prevention of shipping problems.
- Enhancement of the practitioner's role as a health maintenance expert.

"Source of income for practitioner."

"Less expense for the producer."

Thawley notes the possibilities of problems with the test. Herd may need to be quarantined after the test is administered and found positive. Whose responsibility is it to quarantine the herd?

Other possible problems include: test quality and reliability, loss of professional interpretation and potential loss of data for area disease surveillance. Other are use of practitioner's time, a requirement for suitable facilities and the fact that practitioner, client and regulator roles may be uncomfortable.

The test is still being studied for large animal usage, but it should be available soon for practice. "Its sensitivity and reliability, together with its ease of performance, makes this test look very promising," Thawley said.

Amid the tassles

AN OLD farm structure is surrounded by corn tassles along Highway 15 north of Wayne. Absence of rain has become a concern to some farmers as the summer continues.

Wine contest fair winners

Forty-one bottles of wine were on display this past weekend at the Wayne County Fair.

The displays included peach, black cherry, choke cherry, Nan King cherry, grape, wild grape, Muskat grape, Zinfandel grape, emporia grape, apricot, apple, rose hip, dandelion, blueberry, marion berry, cranberry, strawberry, raspberry, elderberry, wild plum, rhubarb, raisin, musk thistle, beet and sugar beet.

Bill Arnold and Margaret Cooper's dry choke cherry won grand champion. Bill Arnold and Margaret Cooper and Harvey Brasch tied for reserve champion.

There were many blue and a few red wines and a couple white.

The Olympics are over, and we can start getting to bed at night. That Pacific time makes for late hours. But the games were worth the late sleep. There were some great human interest stories.

The U.S.A. women's volleyball coach, a Jew, was on his way to a concentration camp when the train broke down and there was a miraculous escape. His father perished at Auschwitz.

One of our women swimmers has a brother in a wheelchair, and her medal went to him. One of our boxers had literally been dragged from the ghetto by a cop; and his medal went to his mother, who raised eight children without their father.

The first woman to win three golds since Wilma Rudolph gained 40 pounds with her pregnancy 2 years ago, and had to be talked into going back into training. Wonder if I could run the extra pounds off. Probably only takes a few hours a day!

I got to see Carl Lewis win all four of his gold medals. The one that moved me to tears was America's one-two-three finish in the 200 m. The three teammates knelt together on the track, and then took their victory lap with a huge flag.

I thought the gymnasts were super showmen, and I'm going to be president of the Bart Conners fan club. I was agghast at the way the 16 year old girl handled the pressure during her vault.

I MISSED our men's volleyball win over Brazil, but saw laps of the frenzy following the third set. Sure would hate to be in the way of some of those spikes.

I loved ABC's "Ode to Joy" set to clips from the events. I even liked the cute commercials, especially the ones from Arco that featured kids.

I got goose-bumpy every time I heard the national anthem, and cried right along with the athletes. I cheered when some countries won their first-ever medal, as when Spain received the silver in men's basketball.

The Big Farmer voted against the Willow Creek recreation project. But we live in a democracy and the majority rules—and the dam was built. None would ever have believed that it would fill in one year, but this was a perfect year for it.

The NRD board and we wives were entertained at a picnic there last week, and treated to free boat rides on the lake. I took my trusty camera; there is some beautiful scenery there.

The dedication and grand opening were on Sunday afternoon, the last day of the fair. It was hot, and I was tempted to stay home. I left my camera at home because I had finished the film at the fair.

THERE WAS a nice crowd, peacefully sitting at picnic tables under big old cottonwood trees. I sat down to visit with some nurse friends. The NRD director insisted I sit in the front row beside the Big Farmer. So I put on my new cap that says Willow

Lake; and sat down to wait impatiently for the governor, who was holding up the show.

He finally appeared, and there was a dark-haired, petite gal hanging on his arm. I said to the gal next to me, "You don't suppose that's Debra, do you?" I could hear an excited buzz around me.

The director came for another chair, and we said, "Steve, is that —?" He answered, "Yes, it's Debra. Now let's get on with this." All the time, he had this silly smile on his face.

THERE I WAS, in the front-row seat I had spurned, without a camera, staring at this gorgeous creature!

She really is cute, folks. She had on white slacks and sandals, blue blouse and a big blue straw hat. The blouse had a very large neck.

All the speakers immediately referred to Debra, not Miss Winger. It really made my day! We didn't get her autograph — the state patrol whisked them both away.

I hate to say it, but it's time to pray for rain. They kept telling us we would and how we are. Going across country, the center pivots are shooting water. But dry-land corn is hurting, especially in Pierce County's sandy soil. The dust is getting thick. The air conditioners are working over-time. Pastures are getting short; cows are trying to get out.

Time for last-minute summer flings. Time for corn-on-the-cob, watermelon, and pickles. Time to end this!

Now not the time for ignoring lawn

Late summer and fall are not times to ignore lawn care, according to University of Nebraska specialists who have provided home owners and turf managers with a number of tips for consideration now.

NU extension turf specialist Dave Bishop said that summer fertilization of cool season grasses such as Kentucky bluegrass, perennial ryegrass and tall fescues should be avoided during August.

"Heavy applications of nitrogen at this time results in succulent growth that may not be able to withstand the heat and drought stress" being experienced over much of the state, he said.

COOL SEASON turfs fertilized during the heat of summer are more susceptible to diseases such as fusarium blight and brown patch, although light applications of 0.5 pounds of nitrogen per 1,000 square feet can be used to enhance turfgrass color and aid in recovery from insect damage, he said.

"Warm season grasses, such as zoysia, buffalograss and blue grama, are fertilized on the opposite schedule of cool season species," he said. "Warm season grasses should be fertilized during this period."

"It won't be long before white grubs begin heavier feeding in turf," according to NU extension entomologist Fred Baxendale.

White grubs, the larvae of May or June beetles, feed on grass roots after hatching, he said. "The infestation can appear similar to other turf problems such as disease, heat or drought stress."

LOCALIZED PATCHES of drying turf become evident if grubs are present, he said. "These patches may enlarge and come together as grubs enlarge their feeding sites." The presence of white grubs can be confirmed by examining the root zone and the first three or four inches of soil in affected areas.

Baxendale said control treatments must reach the area where grubs feed. Granular formulations of registered insecticides followed by a thorough irrigation are very effective and should be applied soon if infestations are present, he said.

"Products that may be used for grub control include diazinon, D-phenothrin and fenitrothion. Fenitrothion is difficult, he added, when a thatch layer of 1/2 inch or more is present.

Further information on white grubs in turf is provided in NU NebGuide F-3, available from local extension offices.

Scout crop acres now

While damaging levels of European corn borers (ECB) and spider mites have been reported in only a few fields so far, activity is increasing and now is the time to be scouting fields for both.

David Keith, University of Nebraska extension entomologist, said that ECB adult counts are increasing and corn fields should be scouted for the presence of egg masses and larvae at this time.

"If a farmer needs to treat for borers," he said "this could have a definite effect on mite population in the field. Some insecticides/miticide have been shown to actually increase the level of mite reproduction after an initial reduction in mite numbers. The end result may be more mites than he started with."

ALSO, KEITH SAID, many chemicals are destructive to beneficials that prey on mites. At least one species of thrips, a ladybug, and a small predaceous mite are important natural enemies of the spider mite.

"Given cooler conditions, these beneficials may be able to hold mites to below damaging levels," he said.

But some fields will need to be treated. Keith made the following recommendations: "Granular materials (Counter 15G, Furadan 20G, Dyofanate 20G, Lorsban 15G, Diazinon 14G) and the liquid (Lorsban 4E and Furadan 4F are perhaps less likely to affect mite levels adversely and in the case of Counter 15G and Furadan 4F should provide either control or reduction of mites when used for ECB control."

When corn borers alone are involved, materials such as the pyrethroids (Pydrin, Ambush, Bounce) or Penncap M should provide good control. But, Keith warned, Penncap M is especially hazardous to honeybees if applied to corn fields that are shedding pollen.

Keith said reports received last week indicate that reasonable mite control is being obtained with Thimet 20G, but some applicators were having difficulty controlling mites in some fields with Cygon, although it appears to be working in other fields.

"The mite control picture may be complicated by the fact that one or both species of spider mite may occur in a given field," Keith said.

Identification important

The only species known to infest corn in Nebraska are the Banks grass mite and the twospotted spider mite. "Proper identification is important," he said, "since the twospotted mite is considered more difficult to control."

Species composition may vary from one part of a plant to another, from plant to plant and from field to field. "Mites from several leaves on a plant and from several plants in a field should be examined," Keith said.

The most useful characteristics for differentiating between the two species are the overall shape of the body and the pattern of pigmentation spots. Twospotted spider mites appear to be slightly larger because of a more robust shape, while Banks grass mites appear to be narrower and slightly flatter.

The pigment spots accumulate from the edges in a more forward area of the body enlarging toward the rear in twospotted mites. As Banks grass mites age, the pigment tends to accumulate equally from the side edges of the body and appears to enlarge toward the front, center, Keith said.

Generally, twospotted spider mite colonies tend to produce more webbing than Banks grass mites. Banks grass mites tend to develop earlier in the season and remain on the lower leaves of corn longer," he said.

"Twospotted spider mites tend to develop later and can be found anywhere on the plant."

FHA amendment to up lending authority

The U.S. Senate approved an amendment co-sponsored by U.S. Senator Jim Exon to increase the lending authority of the Farmers Home Administration to $650 million for 1984 and 1985. The amendment was added to the Supplemental Appropriations bill by a voice vote.

"We attached this funding to the Supplemental Appropriations and the Agriculture Appropriations bills to guarantee that farmers and ranchers would have adequate credit available," Exon said. Exon was instrumental in having the $650 million included in the 1985 Agriculture Appropriations Bill, which is pending in the Senate.

In June, Exon introduced legislation to increase the FmHA lending authority to $450 million. The House of Representatives provided only $150 million in FmHA lending authority for 1985. In July, Exon encouraged the Senate Agriculture Appropriations to increase the amount to $650 million for the remainder of 1984 and all of 1985 which it did.

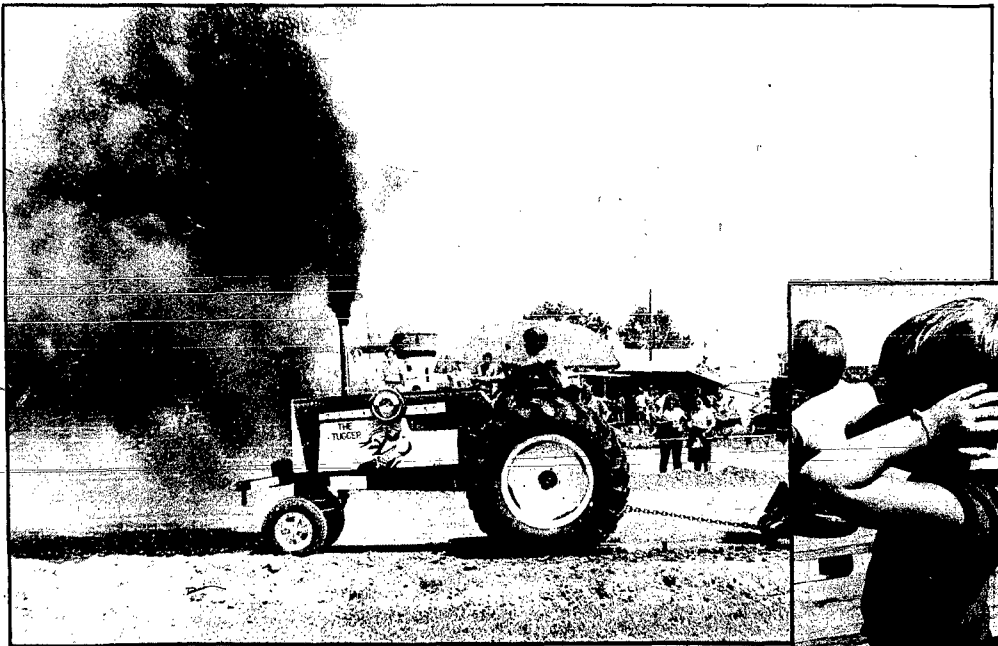

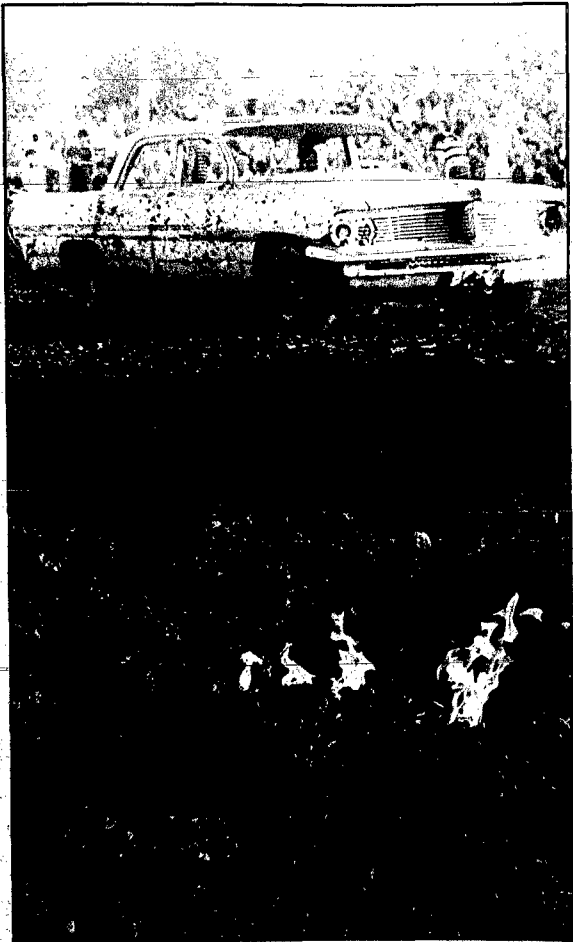

"Farmers and ranchers are going through some of the worst times since the 1930s. This will provide some relief to the many financially sound farmers and ranchers who are facing financial difficulty," Exon said.

"I will continue to fight for the family farming operations which are being threatened by high interest rates and operating costs and low commodity prices," Exon said.

Fair Days

THE WAYNE County Fair ended Sunday on a positive note as the grandstand was filled to view the evening's demolition derby. Entertainment and competition brought in large crowds during the four-day event. In photos (clockwise from lower left), flames shoot from the gas-soaked ground as one of the demolition derby cars is pulled off the track. Above, a young merry-go-round fan takes delight in her ride on the midway. Several sheep exhibitors catch a ride on the wagon as they pass before the crowd during the livestock parade Friday evening. As the fair began winding down, the rides on the midway became less crowded. One girl finds herself a lone rider on one of the rocket rides. Others soar through the air with the greatest of ease against the background of a setting sun. Saturday afternoon's tractor pull was fun to watch, but hard on the ears for one young spectator.

Field Day grows near at Northeast Station

Tuesday, Aug. 21 is the date set for the 1984 Field Day to be held at the Northeast Station near Concord.

A special invitation is extended to all interested persons to attend the event and learn about the various research projects that are in progress at the station. It will also provide an opportunity to find out about the station and its many activities.

The first tours will leave the farm headquarters at 2 p.m. Tours will be leaving approximately every one and one-half hours thereafter with the last tour leaving around 8 p.m.

There are a variety of tours available, and to participate in all will include the entire day. Lunch will be available on the grounds. Since the tours will continue until 8:30 p.m., it allows a good opportunity for interested business people to attend as well. Included on the tours will be reports on the various research projects by the specialists involved. These will include the following:

amounting to 67 cents savings per pig.

— Paul Jasa, Extension Engineer, will be discussing crop residue studies which show that a 20 percent residue cover can reduce soil erosion by one half as compared to a residue-free soil surface.

— August Dreier, Extension Crops Specialist, will be discussing results of the Nebraska Agricultural Experiment Station testing program which involves 150 public and private varieties of soybeans planted at the Northeast Station.

— Bruce Anderson, Extension Forage Specialist, will be discussing better methods of weed control for establishing cold and warm season grass species utilizing various experimental herbicide treatments.

The Boyd Hotel, which was located at 2nd and Main where Coast-to-Coast stands today, was a thriving Wayne business for almost 70 years. The hotel was listed as a "going" business already in 1884 and was torn down in the early 50's. It was built shortly after H.B. Boyd bought the lots from Frank H. and Mary D. Peavy for $1. The deed transferring the property to Boyd was dated May 11, 1883. The hotel was the scene of many social affairs, including dinners and parties in the formal dining room.
