Health, fitness offered to the 'over 60'

Now Wayne area individuals past the age of 60 have an opportunity to improve the healthiness of their present lifestyles.

Wayne State College's Lifestyle Improvement Program, never offered before in Wayne, is designed to mix individuals socially through recreational and fitness activities for those over 60 years of age.

Special exception will be made for those under 60 who are on cardiac rehabilitation programs.

"It includes social interaction as well as physical fitness," said Ralph Barclay, WSC professor in Health, Physical Education and Recreation who is supervisor of the program.

Areas to be covered in the program, which begins Feb. 1 and continues until May 1 (every Monday, Wednesday and Friday) include flexibility and calisthenics, walking/jogging, aquatics, musical activities (such as square dancing/social dancing, social games, (beachball-volleyball) and aerobic dancing.

THE LIFESTYLE Improvement program will be administered by Marilyn Strate and Lenny Klaver, WSC Physical Education Instructors.

"We can also utilize our own undergraduate assistants," Barclay said. "There is a need for a program like this. It is a free program. Hopefully, it can continue for next fall and winter," he added.

All participants are required to have consent of a physician before actively taking part in the program.

A file will be kept on each individual and it will contain the following information: personal profile, physician's evaluation (including do's and don'ts/exercises), consent form for the program's testing, cardiac risk factor evaluation, nutritional evaluation and all testing results and forms.

The program will have four major goals, according to information supplied by Barclay.

- To conduct research on lifestyle improvement activities.
- Provide continuing educational and training programs for those individuals interested in wellness promotional programs.
- To provide lifestyle improvement programs for all interested individuals age 60 and over.

• And to provide health promotion services in the areas of nutrition, body composition, pulmonary function, cardiac risk, cardiovascular evaluation, flexibility and aerobic training and training for potential instructors.

Particularly drivers ed program

State cuts would affect Wayne-Carroll

by Chuck Hackenmiller

A proposal to be introduced to the Nebraska legislature will apply the brakes to area school districts' state reimbursements for drivers education courses.

Governor Robert Kerrey, in his statewide December unveiling of his proposed 1983-84 budget recommendations, indicated a preference of eliminating the $1,248,145 million which the state will reimburse Nebraska school districts for driver education courses.

If the legislature sides with Kerrey's proposal, Wayne-Carroll High School will lose $7,840 of state reimbursement for the driver education courses, according to Superintendent Francis Haun.

Winside's lost share of reimbursement would be $1,280. Wakefield's anticipated reimbursement would be $1,879.75.

Wayne-Carroll school board members have already gone on record opposing the elimination of state funding for the drivers education program.

Drivers education has been incorporated into Wayne-Carroll's course selection over the past 25 years or more, Haun said. It is currently being offered to students (beyond the age of 14) once during both school year semesters and in the summer months.

TWO INSTRUCTORS TEACH the drivers education class during the summer and one individual conducts the elective course during the school year, Haun said.

"Not all the students take driver's education. It is not a required (3 hours credit) course. But I would say 65 percent of our students take the class," said Haun. State funding does not cover the entire cost of the drivers education instruction, Wayne-Carroll's total expenses for drivers education classes, including salaries, will reach an average of $12,422.

Sixty-six percent of the total expenses would be reimbursed to the Wayne-Carroll school district if the legislature decided to continue the reimbursement format.

But if discontinued, Haun said the alternatives could be the following:

• Students over the age of 14 could be charged a tuition fee to take the drivers education class during the summer months.

• What is lost through reimbursements could be added to the general fund tax levy.

• Or having the student learn the basics of driving without the assistance of the school district, with the lessons provided by parents or guardians.

Haun said school district operation of drivers education can be valuable to the students.

Students who have participated in drivers education classes will get, from some insurance companies, reduction in insurance premiums costs, he said.

THE COURSE instructs the student on defensive driving and elaborates throughout the course on the hazards of driving a vehicle after consuming drugs or drinking alcohol.

"Students are assisted in obtaining their drivers license because they go through their drivers manual very carefully," Haun said.

The proposal of eliminating state funding for drivers education courses has been brought before the legislature over the past two years. Both times the legislators vetoed the Governor's proposal and the state funding had continued.

"We don't like to cry wolf all the time. But the Commissioner of Education is no longer supporting the state reimbursements for drivers education, so there is more of a chance of the proposal getting through," Haun said.

Drivers education is not the only type of services and programs that concern Haun. He also is uncomfortable with several other possibilities — perhaps nursing services will be reduced and vocational education funding will be cut.

"I don't know what the [ESU] service unit will do [concerning nursing services]. To pick up the full cost is a $9,000 per year item," Haun said.

"We would like to maintain the level of service we have now. There is one nurse who works five hours a day here and also serves St. Mary's," he said.

Currently, the nurse at Wayne-Carroll conducts all health classes throughout the school system, assists in providing CPR classes to freshman, and shares expertise in the adult living classes.

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION reimbursement (which is federal funding distributed at the state level) to Wayne-Carroll School District will amount to approximately $10,000 this year.

Whether the school district will get an equal amount next school year is questionable, according to Haun.

According to a recent change in funding vocational education, 57 percent of the allocation will be provided to those with special needs (such as displaced workers, handicapped individuals) and 43 percent will go to program improvement (expansion of facilities, new curriculum offerings).

Haun is uncertain if Wayne's vocational education program, which include Business Education and Trades and Industry (with two teachers in each course), would fall under any of the newly established categories.

The traditional funding of vocational education is gone," he said. "The money will be distributed on the basis of economically depressed areas."

Previous federal funding for vocational education had been placed in the general fund, earmarked for instructor salaries and not purchase of new equipment, according to Haun.

Officers to be named to Wayne Industries

Four new members will be elected this Wednesday, Jan. 16, to serve on Wayne Industries, Incorporated board of directors.

Retiring board of director members include David Ley, Darrell Moore and Bob Reeg. Keith Mosely resigned from the board with a single year remaining on his three year term.

Nominated to serve on the three year terms are Randy Pedersen, Larry Johnson and Swede Fredrickson, John Vakoc has been nominated to finish out the one year remaining on Mosely's term.

Also during the noon meeting at the Lumbar Co., there will be an annual report of 1982 activities of the organization.

Membership of Wayne Industries totals 65 and annual membership in the organization is $50. Currently serving on the Wayne Industries Board of Directors, besides those who will have expired terms, are Kern Swarls, John Fuetberling, Jay Liska, Paul Orie, Bob Jordan and Bob Reeg. Phil Klester represents the city of Wayne while Dean Craun is the Chamber of Commerce liaison.

The Drinking Age: considered unsettling for business of two bar owners

The following is the first article of a six-part series prepared by the Wayne Herald editorial staff concerning Nebraska's new drinking age law.

Over the span of six weeks, viewpoints will be published from various representatives, including law enforcement officials, counselors, educators, organizations, parents and students.

Signed letters to the editor are welcome for people who wish to speak out on the legal drinking age, which on Jan. 1 was raised to age 21.

By LaVon Anderson

"I'm not saying there isn't a problem, because there is. And I'm not saying it isn't a problem that shouldn't be dealt with, it needs to be dealt with — but in the proper way.

This new law isn't the way. It can't help and it just won't work." Ken Jorgensen, owner of The 4th Jug, one of several liquor establishments in Wayne, adds that Nebraska's new drinking law is simply punishing the bar owners.

"Why punish us (bar owners) instead of the people who break the law after they get behind the wheel when they've had too much to drink?"

"They weren't breaking the law while they were in my business, and yet it's the bar owners who are being punished."

JORGENSEN SAYS that if the new law is intended to keep drunk drivers off the roads and highways — it just won't work.

"If I actually thought that this new law would stop drunk driving and save lives, I'd back it all the way," adds Jorgensen.

"But now the law is putting these people on the highways, on the country roads and at the keg parties."

"There won't be enough law enforcement personnel to go around. At least here (in the bar) they're drinking under supervision.

"Kids are still going to drink," adds Jorgensen, "now it's just a matter of where they're going to drink."

THE 4th JUG owner adds that while a uniform drinking age across the nation might help, it still won't solve the problem of drunk driving.

"You just can't legislate morality," says Jorgensen. "Who says that when the clock strikes midnight and you turn 21 you're suddenly mature."

"You can't take a 20-year-old and treat him like a 15-year-old," adds Jorgensen.

"Many households in Nebraska are headed by someone 20 years old or younger. They meet all their other civic obligations, and yet they're singled out."

"Because a small percentage of kids abuse alcohol, they're singling out all the others."

JORGENSEN SAYS minors are still going to get alcohol if they want it bad enough.

"You can talk to anybody who was alive during the prohibition years and they'll tell you, alcohol was everywhere," says Jorgensen.

"When it was illegal for anybody to have it, everybody had it, and they made a profit off of it."

Jorgensen adds that the new drinking law will be much the same way. "It will put money into the pockets of those who are old enough from those who aren't old enough to buy."

Ken Jorgensen

"PUNISH THESE people (drunk drivers) on the streets," says Jorgensen, "but don't punish them in my bar."

is not the result of anything the kids have done, it's the result of the environment they live in.

"You're not going to change that by raising the drinking age," says Jorgensen. "You've got to hit them (drunk drivers) hard and bring them back to reality. Tell them that if they're caught driving drunk that their licenses will be pulled until they reach 21."

"Because to tell them not to drink isn't really — it's stupid," adds Jorgensen. "You just can't take some thing away from kids that they can get any time they want."

Jorgensen says the litter problem is another area legislator probably haven't thought much about.

"Do you think a 19 year old is going to keep empty beer cans in his car? Of course not, the cans are going to go right out the window."

JORGENSEN FEELS young people need to be educated on the use and misuse of alcohol.

"Kids aren't stupid," says Jorgensen, adding that he feels there are far less drugs in Wayne today than just a few years ago.

"The kids realized it was wrong, and it wasn't good, and hence they don't use them," adds Jorgensen.

"We're not educating our kids, or we're educating them in the wrong way.

"How many times have you heard a parent tell their kids that there's beer in the refrigerator, and if they're going to drink, do it at home."

"What those parents are really saying," adds Jorgensen, "is that it's OK to drink, but just don't get into trouble. Don't slander my name."

"It isn't just the kids' fault," stresses Jorgensen, "and how can you take something away from them that they really think they deserve?"

"THE LEGISLATORS are just passing the buck," says Jorgensen. "They're saying, 'if we raise the age we don't have to worry about the problem anymore.'"

"The (legislators) have to know this new law isn't going to work," Jorgensen adds, "but they got pressured into it."

"They're going about it the wrong way. The only thing they are doing is hurting the businessman."

Jorgensen says there won't be any noticeable effect on his business until later this year because of the law's grandfather clause which still allows 20 year olds to drink.

Still, Jorgensen says that since the drinking age has gone from 19, to 20, and now 21, he figures that if he were to sell his business he would get 30 to 40 percent less for it.

"That's not even considering the daily loss," adds Jorgensen. "Remember, this is a college town."

DAN OLSON, owner of the King of Clubs, agrees that the new drinking law will have an effect on business at his bar, although probably not until next year when the grandfather clause is no longer in effect.

"It will affect bars all the way around," adds Olson, "because you base the value of your bar by how much money you take in."

Olson says that although the new law may have an effect on his business, it won't have any effect on the problems of drunk driving.

"Kids are going to find booze if they want it," says Olson. "I'd rather see them drinking in a bar than out somewhere on the road."

OLSON'S MOTHER, Etha, says if

The Nebraska American Legion's 18th annual Junior Law Cadet Program has again been scheduled in two sessions, offering identical programs for boys and girls, according to state American Legion Commander Jack Gilmont. The boys' session is scheduled June 10-14, with the girls' session set for June 17-21, at the Nebraska State Patrol Training Academy located at Lincoln Air Park. Participation in the one-week program is open to students completing the eleventh grade. Two students will be selected from each of the 15 American Legion districts in Nebraska to attend each session. Application forms are available from American Legion post commanders or local high school superintendents. Scheduled activities include classroom studies in such subjects as motor vehicle laws, court procedure, human relations, safety education and first aid; tours of correctional facilities and state law enforcement offices; and are highlighted by field activities which include marksmanship, VASCAR and radar operation and maximum performance driving. EVENING CLASSES will be devoted to the Driver Improvement Course. Each day will begin with a breakfast callisthenics. Cadets will remain in residence during the period and will be awarded certificates of achievement at concluding ceremonies at 2 p.m. on the respective Friday afternoons, June 14 and June 21. Commander Gilmont said, "This program was developed by the Legion's state Law and Order Committee and is offered in cooperation with the Nebraska State Patrol. Other states are now following Nebraska's leadership in developing similar programs which help youthful participants better understand the true role of today's professional police officer." Members of the Law and Order Committee are Virgil Ferguson of Grand Island, Waldo Smith of Arthur; Susan Lantzer of Grand Island, Michael Helm of Norcalour, Kan. and Chairman Capt. J.E. Thompson of the Nebraska State Patrol.

anything, the new law will make the drunk-driving problem worse. "I think there will be more keg parties in more residences, and more fights."

"We've been in business about a year now," adds Elta, "and basically we haven't had any trouble at all. The kids have been really good and respectful."

Elta says she's not convinced that the problems of drunk driving are any worse among the young than the old.

The way I look at it, a drunk is a drunk—no matter what age. This country does have a problem with drunk drivers, but I don't think we should single out any one age group.

"But that's the law now," says Elta, "and we're very strict here. We're going to abide by it 100 percent."

"WHEN THE STATE policeman comes knocking on your door to say your child's been in a car accident, or when dad pulls the money out of his pocket to pay the fine, just remember," says Jorgensen of the 4th Jug, "all they did was make it illegal."

VIEWPOINT

Losing aid

Wayne-Carroll School District board members are certainly feeling the uneasiness of possible financial funding cuts and service reductions that would come from federal, state and local governmental units.

First, the federal government has changed its tradition of past reimbursements to school districts used in supplementing the vocational education programs.

Most of this vocational education reimbursements (which Wayne-Carroll school district used in helping to pay salaries of four instructors within the school's business education, trades and industry) will go to those with special needs — such as the physically or mentally disabled and also job training for displaced workers.

The remainder is to be allocated to program improvement, according to Haun.

Some students with special needs are involved in the high school's vocational education program, but not enough to qualify for the average $10,000 reimbursement from the federal government, under the proposed new regulations.

Haun said there presently is no immediate plan for expansion of vocational education facilities or added curriculum.

This reduces the school's chances even further for vocational education funding.

The second concern is the elimination of reimbursements for the school district's driver education program, proposed by Governor Kerrey and the Nebraska Commissioner of Education.

Keep drivers education in the classroom.

Teaching all aspects of defensive driving, telling about the dangers of mixing drugs or alcohol with driving, studying the drivers manual and how to handle emergency situations are topics which can often be overlooked by some (but not all) instructing parents and guardians.

When a $3 cost was tacked on to the cost of obtaining the drivers license, the increase was intended for drivers education reimbursements to school districts. If the drivers education reimbursement is not supplied by the state, will the state reduce the drivers license fee by $3?

Haun said the status of school nursing services, provided by Educational Service Units (ESU), is not concrete. ESU board members are looking at various ways to slim down expenditures, and one of those areas which had been considered as a reduction was school nursing services.

That proposal was voted down and another committee was organized to study the issue.

We had, in an earlier editorial, asked that all items within the general levy programs be researched before reductions in nursing services are considered.

What could happen — with the elimination of federal and state reimbursements for drivers education and vocational education — is that the tab will need to be collected from another source if these programs are to continue.

And that source will likely be the property taxpayer as the school districts across the state consider raising their tax levy.

Now, this poses an awkward question.

Is it the state and federal governments' intention to reduce their budget expenditures, then allow the state taxpayer to compensate the loss of state or federal reimbursement funding through increased levies of the school districts across the state?

During tough economic times like these, it just doesn't add up.

I like bowling. The sport is challenging. But it makes a person ever so humble in just one moment or so.

Nothing can be more embarrassing than to watch your bowling ball slowly sink into the unmerciful valley called the gutter. It is de-meaning, in every sense of the word.

Missing a spare is awful, but getting a gutterball is the supreme violation of the code of law designated by the Congressional National Bowlers. Tell someone that you heard he or she threw six gutterballs during bowling last night and they just might cry on your shoulders for the entire day.

But one lesson that should be observed — never laugh at another person's gutterball. Why the lecture?

One night I was bowling with friends and watched both of them drop the ball into the gutter on their first attempt.

I laughed uncontrollably.

Naturally, the bubbly confidence himself went up to the line. Cautiously, I released the ball over the foul line and watched it curve straight into the gutter.

I TURNED to my chuckling friends.

"Ah, I guess I turned my hand as I released the ball, making the projector of the ball go elsewhere in the lane and causing it not to follow its true pattern. Also my approach was not correct, due to the fact that I had to go around a wet spot on the floor. The grip on the ball was also not correct, and..."

"Shut up and admit that you threw a gutterball, will you," my friends roared.

"That made me angry."

Angrily I grabbed my bowling ball and stood stiff for a brief moment of concentration. Hastily I threw the ball as forcibly as possible down the lane.

It must have been quite a spectacle to see me sprawled head to toe over the foul line. And then hear the "kerplunk" of the bowling ball as it glided harmlessly into the gutter.

Twice in a row. Most bowlers get their bowling patches stripped off their shirts for costly mistakes like that.

My "so-called friends" were laughing hysterically. I felt like crawling into my bowling locker for the rest of the evening.

I would never live it down, throwing two gutterballs consecutively.

But I did, and now when that bowling ball moves ever so gracefully into the deep gutter of ego breakers, I never make up excuses.

That's because my bowling ball is much too heavy.

I don't know if any of our readers noticed a small article that appeared in the area daily publications concerning the topic of angel dust.

It appeared that the state of California ac-cidentalized the sale and manufacture of the drug PCP, also known as angel dust. It was a one-letter mistake in the state's effort to revise the drug laws.

The mistake, spotted by the state's attorney general office, showed up in the law's fine print, where one letter was substituted for another. The goof voided laws against selling or manufacturing PCP, or phen-cyclidine, an anesthetic used on animals.

Other laws that were accidentally repealed included those banning the sale of certain barbiturates, punishing people under the influence of PCP and making it illegal to recruit children to sell PCP.

So for one day, "angel dust" was made legal in California.

It's nice to see someone else can make mistakes — once — in a while. As one assemblyman said: "We're human beings, these things do happen."

Of course they do.

Committee ceases to exist Commonwealth debate continues

The Commonwealth Savings Co. Special legislative committee ceased to exist on Dec. 31 — but that doesn't mean that the legislative debate about the state's obligation to depositors has ended.

The committee's final report, which was issued on the last day of its existence, concludes that depositors' claims against state government for alleged negligence are legally weak.

While legal grounds for a state settlement with depositors aren't substantial, the report says, the state could have some obligation to pay depositors based on the arguments that the state was negligent in regulating Commonwealth, which was declared insolvent in November 1983, and in regulating the Nebraska Depositors' Institution Guaranty Corp. NDIGC failed to provide depositors with the advertised $30,000 per deposit guarantee when Commonwealth failed.

Commonwealth committee counsel Richard Kopf of Lexington estimated the state's liability could be 10 percent to 20 percent of the difference between the value of Commonwealth assets and the amount of deposits.

THE SHORTFALL could range from $25 million to $48 million, so the state's potential liability under Kopf's theory could be $2.5 million to $9.5 million.

Without a determination of liability by a court, the report stated, "it is neither constitutionally, legally or feasibly possible for a legislative solution to be arrived at to assist depositors."

On two occasions in 1984, Lancaster County District Court judges nullified tort claims filed on behalf of Commonwealth depositors. The judges' actions prevented the Legislature from debating last session a possible monetary settlement with depositors.

Lawmakers could have a chance to debate a settlement during the 1985 legislative session, which began Wednesday (Jan. 9). A third claim against the state is working its way through legal channels toward the Legislature, which is the final arbiter of such claims against state government.

Kopf's report cast doubt on the legal strength of that claim, too.

ELEVEN OF THE 16 members of the Commonwealth committee voted to approve Kopf's report, while reserving their option to disagree with some of its specifics.

In a minority committee report, Sens. Chris Beutler and Jerome Warner of Waverly said they believe the letter of the law and the spirit of the law suggest that the Commonwealth depositors should be compensated for all or most of the $30,000 guaranteed amount.

They said Kopf analyzed the tort and contract claims in narrow legal terms without questioning whether current law is fair or whether courts would interpret it the same way now as they did half a century ago.

They also said Kopf failed to analyze the theory of the state's moral obligation to its citizens.

"His claims process 'has regularly been used to make payments for which the state owed a moral obligation but for which no legally enforceable claim could be made,'" the minority report said.

For example, they noted, the Legislature voted to give $15,000 to the widow of a slain state trooper in 1973. In a case in which there was no finding of state liability.

"THE LEGISLATURE is, indeed, the repository of the conscience of the state. If the state will not treat its citizens fairly, how can it demand that citizens treat each other fairly?" the minority report asked.

Meanwhile, state Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh says he is drafting a bill that would allow reorganization of Commonwealth Savings Co. and eventually provide repayment to depositors of some if not all of the money they've lost.

"A solution legislatively is possible and even probable, done very carefully and in the right manner," said DeCamp, a member of the special Commonwealth committee and chairman of the Banking Committee.

Reimbursement of depositors by the state cannot be based on theory of legal liability, DeCamp said. Rather, he said, any legislative action must be based on the theory that it justifies a public purpose and solves any potential liability the state might have.

Tips to assist rescue personnel

Do you know what to do when the Rescue Squad or Ambulance comes?

Many people think that once the trained professionals get there, the patient is in good hands.

They are.

But there are still several things a person can do in offering assistance.

Rick Noyes, executive director of Northern Nebraska Emergency Medical Services Council, supplied the following information on what an individual should do in helping the rescue units.

• Stay on the telephone until the dispatcher hangs up. Then you know that the dispatcher has all the information you need.

• Make it easy for the rescue squad to find you — turn your porch light on, send someone out to the curb to signal them.

• Be available for information such as patient history, background information, mechanism of injury/illness and patient's wishes.

• Be available to help move furniture, open doors or pick up equipment.

• And lastly, listen to the squad members. They are trained Emergency Medical Technicians (EMTs). By doing this, the EMT's can do their job well and you can be of benefit and also help the patient.

The above information was submitted by Rick Noyes of the Northern Nebraska Emergency Medical Services Council, Inc. which is headquartered in Norfolk, Nebraska.

TROY HEITMAN rips through the Wynot defenders enroute to the hoop.

Bears dead-eye free throw shooting preserves victory

A dazzling free throw shooting display in the fourth quarter made the difference in the game as the Laurel Bears hung on to a first half lead and notched their second win of the season over the Wynot Blue Devils on Friday evening in Laurel.

The Bears hit 11 of 12 free throws in the final eight minutes of the game to preserve a lead which they had built to as many as 13 points near the end of the second quarter.

"THERE'S NO DOUBT that hitting those free throws down the stretch made the difference in the game for us," said Bears Coach John Held. "We have lost a lot of games the same way in the final quarter, and it was really nice to win one that way."

The Bears trailed in the opening moments of the game 6-9 before coming a shot from underneath to get their first points on the scoreboard. They were able to pull within one point minutes later on a scoop-in by Scott Rath from in the lane off an assist by Mike Granquist.

Laurel took the lead on a pair of free throws by Troy Heitman with 1:46 left in the quarter, 7-6, and built that to 11-9 at the end of the period on a short shot by Rath with 10 seconds on the clock.

Both teams traded baskets on their first possessions of the second period, but Laurel opened up a seven point margin when Scott Rath netted a two point shot of one and one situation, 19-12. The Blue Devils climbed back to a three point deficit with five minutes remaining in the half before their scoring game developed a chill and they were held off the board until the final seconds of the half.

In the meantime, Brent Haisch and Troy Heitman each dumped in four points and Mike Granquist added a lay-up off a steal to boost the Bears advantage to 29-16 with 1:23 left. Wynot snuck in a pair off free throws with one second on the clock to trail at the half, 29-18.

The Blue Devils came out in the third quarter and switched to a man-to-man defense, which limited the Laurel scoring attack and allowed Wynot to outscore the Bears 19-9 and pull to within one point at the end of the quarter, 38-37.

BRENT HAISCH SCORED Laurel's only field goal in the final quarter with six minutes left to put the Bears ahead 40-37. From that time on it was the Laurel free throw shooting which put the points on the scoreboard and held off a strong Wynot threat.

In the quarter, Troy Heitman and Scott Rath each hit two of two attempts early on to keep the Laurel lead at three points, along with Mike Granquist who hit both ends of the one and one on back-to-back trips to the line, the second coming with 36 seconds left in the game.

Underneath the Wynot basket seconds later and iced the Laurel victory with two shots to make the score 50-45 with 22 seconds left.

A single free throw by Haisch with 13 seconds left gave the Bears their final margin of victory.

"This win was just what the doctor ordered," said Held. "It was a conference win for us and put us at 2-1 in the division. The kids know that we are still in there...we just have to take care of business between now and the end of the season."

The Bears logged three players in double figures, Troy Heitman with 15 points, Brent Haisch with 14 points and Scott Rath with 10 points.

"What really helped us was that Scott Rath came out and got eight points in the first half of the game...that made a difference. We were looking to go to the inside, and that is something that we weren't always aggressive enough to do."

On the boards, Laurel held a slight 27 to 25 margin. Laurels in rebounding were Heitman, Haisch and Rath, all with eight rebounds.

Wynot's switch to a man defense in the third quarter was a key to the lack of scoring in the period, according to Held. "We didn't adjust well when they made the change, we were getting shots but our kids weren't used to having someone there with a hand in their face."

On defense, Held said that his players did was needed of them, adding that they still have some lapses on the court and that was part of the problem in the second half as well. "We started playing like we didn't want to lose rather than playing like we wanted to win."

Laurel was also a winner in the reserve game, taking a 49-21 victory over Wynot. Leading scorers were Scott Rath with 14 points, Duane Anderson with nine points and Jody Cunningham with eight points.

The Bears' 2-6 will come off the win into their next outing with the Wildcats of Harrington High on Friday night, Jan. 18.

Wayne offensive machine hits stride with Stanton win

Wayne's Blue Devil basketball team shifted their offensive machine into high gear and recorded win number 10 with a 75-53 victory over Stanton at home on Friday evening.

Wayne came out to log 19 first quarter points, while Stanton took advantage of a slack Wayne defense and netted 14 points of their own.

IN THE SECOND quarter, Wayne Coach Bob Uhling said his squad picked up the defensive pace of the game and was able to somewhat limit the Mustang's scoring in the final two periods.

"We were allowing Stanton to get too many good shots in the first half," said Uhling. "The big key for us was that we were mentally ready to play this game, and the kids played really hard throughout."

Scoring was balanced in both halves of the game for Wayne, as they scored 38 points in the first half and 37 in the second for their final tally. As a team, the Blue Devils hit 32 of 61 shots from the field for 52 percent, compared to 21 of 45 shots for 47 percent by the

"Stanton shot the ball well, and they played us a good game," Uhling said.

The official scorebook logged four players in double figures for Wayne, led by starters R. Dahl with 18 points, Brent Pick with 16 points and Don Larsen with 13 points. Carl Urvler came off the bench to score 14 points on the night.

Dahl also topped the rebounding charts for Wayne with 13 boards. Brent Pick added nine and Don Larsen and extra eight rebounds.

"Our offense did a good job, they reversed the ball well and were patient on offense," Uhling said. "They were also pretty unselfish out there, looking for the open man and getting the ball to him when possible for the score."

UHING WAS AGAIN pleased with his players off the bench. "Those kids do a good job when they come in, they come into the game and do the things they are capable of...and they really pay attention to what is going on when they are out of the game."

Wayne's junior varsity also logged a victory, taking a 67-57 win over Stanton. Scott Baker led the Blue Devils with 21 points and Tom Perry netted 18 points.

The 9-1 Blue Devil varsity will face a rematch with Harrington Cedar Catholic in a game on the Trojans home court this Friday, Jan. 17.

Blue Devils girls home court advantage not enough in 33-28 loss to Howells Bobcats

The Wayne High girls basketball team returned to their home court for their second varsity game this season Thursday night and were ragged with a 33-28 loss by the Howells Bobcats.

The Blue Devils were strong out of the opening huddle and cranked up a 8-4 lead on a bucket by junior Shelly Pick with three minutes left in the first quarter. The Bobcats dropped in a basket a couple of minutes later to slim the Wayne lead down to 8-6 at the end of the period.

HOWELLS TIED the game up with a little over a minute gone in the second quarter at 8-8 before Wayne regained the lead on a basket by Amy Jordan, 10-8.

Shelly Pick added two points from the baseline to boost Wayne, but a discrepancy in the official scorebook later showed that the basket was not credited to the Blue Devils and didn't show up in the score.

The Bobcats put on a scoring drive midway through the period and scored six points to open a 14-10 lead before Wayne got on the board again with the front end of a one and one by sophomore Jodi Dilman. Howells ended with a basket with 30 seconds left to insure a 16-11 halftime margin.

Wayne came back in the initial minutes of the third period to close the gap to 16-15, but the Bobcats reeled out 10 straight points to increase their control of the game to 26-15 with just over two minutes left in the quarter. A pair of free throws by Kecia Corbit broke the scoring ice for the Blue Devils with 2:02 on the clock.

Another free throw by Corbit and a hoop by Laura Keating from the outside brought Wayne back to within four points at 26-22 with 6:45 remaining.

HOWELLS SCORED on their next possession to make the score 28-22, before Wayne's Lisa Jacobsen hit a jumper from the key and Shelly Pick laid one in from underneath off an assist by Corbit to pull Wayne to a two point deficit at 28-26 with 4:20 left.

The Blue Devils threatened at the free throw line several times in the closing minutes when Laura Keating and Kecia Corbit hit the front end of one and one situations, but fell shy on their second attempts. A free throw by Howells with 30 seconds left gave them a 33-28 margin to put the game out of reach for Wayne.

Shelly Pick ended the game as the Blue Devils leading scorer with eight points, followed by Kecia Corbit with six points and Laura Keating with five points.

Wayne held an advantage on the boards, 40 to 30 with Corbit leading the way with 12 rebounds.

Howells, ranked among the top teams in Class C earlier in the year, went to 4-5 with the win.

In spite of the loss, Wayne Coach Dale Hochstein said that his team showed better patience on offense and improved their movement with the ball and their shooting selection. "I'm happy with the fact that they were moving the ball well, even if we did put the ball up out of our range a couple of times."

"Our post people played a good game inside and read the defense well, going to the bucket when they had the opportunity," Hochstein added. "The guards were also able to keep our offense running and under control in the game."

THOUGH WAYNE held the advantage on the boards, Hochstein said that Howells picked up some rebounds off of free throws in the fourth quarter which may have hurt the scoring comeback by the Blue Devils. "Their shots came off the boards hard and Howells was able to bring in the ball."

Wayne exhibited a new flexibility on defense, switching between a 1-3-1 and a 2-3 throughout the night. "We pressed a little bit in the fourth quarter...we were worried about our break, but we got the ball off of it a couple of times."

About the basket that was omitted from the score book in the second period, Hochstein said that "we can't really know the effect of those points now...and there's nothing we can do about it. We just found ourselves in the position of always catching up rather than having the chance to tie or lead in the game."

Wayne's reserve team had better luck, taking a 29-23 win over Howells. Leading scorers for Wayne were Shelly Pick with eight points and Jennifer Moore, Kecia Corbit and Andrea Marsh, all with four points. The Blue Devil varsity now 1-9 goes on the road to Stanton Tuesday, Jan. 15.

Wakefield Trojan boys seize opportunity to take 40-32 victory over Winside Wildcats

A slow start proved deadly for Winside's boys basketball team Friday night, as the Wakefield Trojans pounced on the opportunity and headed up a 40-32 win over the Wildcats.

The Wildcats were only able to hit five field goals in the first half of the game and scored four points in the opening quarter, while Wakefield notched 13 points to open up a lead and increased the margin to 10 points at the half, 32-22.

LED BY the double figure scoring of Brent Soderberg and Wade Nicholson, Wakefield maintained their lead in the closing quarters and held off a momentary comeback by Winside to preserve their fourth win against six losses.

The Trojans were led by Soderberg with 15 points and Wade Nicholson with 12 points, while Winside's scoring was headed up by Kevin Falk with 14 points and Mike Thies with eight points.

Neither team shot the ball excessively in the game, with Wakefield hitting 16 of 39 shots for 41 percent. Winside improved their shooting in the second half and ended the game 14 of 35 for 40 percent.

The Wildcats held a 28 to 18 lead in seconds, with Mike Thies hauling in 11 and Kevin Falk eight rebounds. For Wakefield, Jeff Rose logged seven boards and Nicholson an additional five rebounds.

"Winside is a hard team to play against...we just did what we had to do to win," said Wakefield Coach Clark Coco. "We had some offensive trouble in the third and fourth quarters, but we got the key baskets when we needed when it got close."

WINSIDE COACH MARK Freberg admitted that his team was slow getting started in the outing, and missing the easy shots underneath hurt them in the first half of the game. "We started playing ball much better in the second half, but we weren't able to get the ball up a lot because of the Wakefield defense."

In the junior varsity game, Winside recorded their first win of the year with a 23-18 win over the Trojans. Kevin Jaeger and Brent Nau each netted eight points for the Wildcats.

The Wakefield varsity, now 4-6, hosts

Emerson-Hubbard on Tuesday, Jan. 15, while the Wildcats, 0-9, were scheduled to host Stanton Saturday night, Jan. 12 and will again play host on Tuesday night, Jan. 15 when Homer comes to town.

Lady Bears first half lead outlasts Wynot 45-33 for win number nine

Building up a first half lead and holding onto it in the second half turned out to be the game plan for the Laurel Lady Bears Thursday night when they handed visiting Wynot a 45-33 win in a Clark division match-up.

The win wasn't as easy as it appeared on the scoreboard for the Laurel squad though, as three of their starting five fouled out of the contest and several other players ended the night in foul trouble.

"Both Sara Adkins (starting guard) and Donna Sherry had four fouls at the end of the first half," said Laurel Coach Gale Hamilton. The Lady Bears recorded 29 personal fouls in the contest, and Wynot added 22 fouls.

LAUREL BUILT UP a sizable 10 point lead in the first quarter and widened it to 31-10 at half-time with their shooting from the field.

In the second half, the Bears came out of the locker room and maintained a stall game throughout the third and fourth quarters in hopes of taking time off the clock and helping themselves out of foul trouble.

"Wynot was able to pick the ball off a few times on the steal, and that helped them get some of their second half points," said Hamilton. The Blue Devils outscored Laurel in the second half 23-14.

Gail Twiford and Renee Vanderhelden shared scoring honors with 12 points each, and Michelle Joslin added nine points.

Joslin and Twiford also had strong performances on the boards for the Lady Bears, hauling in 12 and 16 rebounds respectively.

Laurel shot 28 percent from the field in the game, hitting 17 of 60 shots. Wynot netted 11 goals from the floor and 11 of 32 shots from the line. Laurel sank 11 of 27 from the line.

Team statistics showed that much of the night was spent on the boards by both teams, as Wynot held a 77 to 56 advantage over Laurel in the rebound department. It was only the second game of the season in which the Lady Bears were outnumbered in that category.

"We had trouble underneath the boards all night," said Hamilton. "Some of the fouls weren't getting called underneath (on Wynot) and our girls were not able to box out as effectively as they usually can."

HAMILTON SAID THAT his team had been prepared for a tough and physical contest with the Blue Devils. "I was worried, because Wynot has the potential to do good things with their defense." He added that Laurel's game against Ponca in the finals of the Ponca Invitational over the past weekend was a good preparation for the Wynot game, since both teams play a similar style of ball.

"I was really pleased with the play of senior Renee Vanderhelden; she logged nine steals and ended the game with three fouls along with scoring 12 points," said Hamilton. "She played smart ball when she had three fouls and made things happen on the court for us when some of the others were in foul trouble."

He also cited the play of junior Michelle Joslin, who has been averaging 10 points in each of the games played since the holiday break. "She had 17 boards, along with nine points, and has been coming out and playing really well for us."

"It's good to see that we have team depth and people who can come off the bench and score for the team."

Laurel, now 9-0 and rated fourth in the latest Omaha World-Herald Class C girls poll, faces the Wildcats of Harrington High on the road Tuesday night, Jan. 15.

Wildcat matmen log third victory with 48-23 dual win over Stanton

The Winside wrestling team racked up its third dual win in as many outings on Thursday evening when they downed the Stanton Mustangs before a home crowd of 43.

With the exception of the opening match at 98 pounds, all of the matches wrestled were decided by pins. The Wildcats carded five pins to account for 30 of their points and added 18 points in three open weight classes to their score. Stanton, which finished as the runner-up to Winside in the Wildcats invitation on Saturday, took home three pins and a superior decision for their point total.

THE DUAL OPENED with a decision by Stanton's Gene Daniels over Mace Kant, who "suffered" only his second loss of the season in the match at 98 pounds. At 105 pounds, Winside's Doug Paulsen took control and recorded a pin over John De Tour with 51 seconds left in the first period.

Stanton came back in the next two matches to takes pins over Jeff Bolich at 112 pounds and Darin Gruenke at 119 pounds. Darin Schellenberg put his opponent to the mat at 4:56 into this match at 126 pounds, and Chris Olson followed suit at 132 pounds with a pin at 54 seconds into the first period.

Rodney Dierdrichsen picked up the win at 138 pounds with a torthet by the Mustangs. Wildcat Randy Leaply was taken down for a pin by Brad Brauer at 3:12 into the match.

AT 155 POUNDS, Mike Jaeger picked up a pin of Brett Chapman at 1:27 into the first period, and Jeff Thies rounded the evening out with a quick takedown and pin of Keith Drott in the heavyweight class with just 45 seconds off the clock.

In reserve wrestling action, Steve Jorgensen of Winside pinned Stanton's Nick Daniel at 1:07 in the 67 pound weight class. "We're looking good right now at this point," said Wildcat wrestling Coach Pajul Sok. As he has stated in the past, he feels the team "still has work to do on some of their technique skills, but otherwise they are coming along OK."

He added that his squad felt confident going into the dual with Stanton, after having the chance to see the Mustangs perform in the invitational on Saturday. "Most of our kids placed higher in the invitational than Stanton did, and we felt confident coming into this dual."

The full Wildcat varsity squad will not be in action over the weekend, but the ninth and tenth grade members will participate in an invitational tournament at Pender on Saturday, Jan. 12.

The next dual meet for Winside will be on Tuesday, Jan. 15 when they travel to Plainview for a match-up with the Pirates.

Allen Eagles sluggish performance costly in 48-37 loss to Bancroft-Rosalie

Allen's boys' basketball team suffered from a sluggish performance and dropped a 48-37 decision to Bancroft-Rosalie on the road Friday night in a Lewis division outing.

The Eagles were hampered by poor shooting throughout the night, which began with a scoring freeze in the first quarter when Allen was unable to score in the first four minutes of play.

THAT DROUGHT LED them to a 10-4 deficit at the end of the first quarter. The Panthers then poured on the power in the second quarter to run up an additional 21 points on the scoreboard while holding Allen to 13 points for a 31-17 halftime advantage.

The Eagles were able to outscore Bancroft-Rosalie in both the third and fourth quarters of the game, and narrowed the gap to 10 points with three minutes remaining. Allen's pressure defense, which had been successful up to that point in the quarter, gave up a pair of quick buckets in the closing moments which spelled the outcome of the game.

"We would go without scoring for four minutes in the first quarter of the game, and then we had trouble again in the second half. When you score your points in groups like that, it's hard to make up any ground that way," said Uldrich.

Uldrich said that the statistics revealed the Eagles shot under 30 percent in the first half of the game and ended the night hitting 23 percent from the floor on 15 field goals from 44 attempts.

Craig Noe was the only Eagle in double figures with 12 points. He also led the attack on the boards with 10 rebounds, followed by Jay Jones with eight and Max Oswald with six rebounds. As a team, Allen scored a 48 to 34 margin over Bancroft on the boards.

"Our offensive rebounding was the highlight of the game, but we just weren't able to get those easy shots from underneath to go down," Uldrich said. "We also had 21 steals in the game, but didn't convert on very many of them."

THE EAGLES HAD downed Bancroft in the opening round of the Ponca Invitational tournament over the past weekend, 43-36. "We had a chance to see Bancroft in that tournament, and they played just as we expected them too...we just didn't play in this game."

Bancroft also picked up a win in the junior varsity game, downing Allen 41-25. The Eagles were led by Brian Malcom with 12 points.

Allen, 6-4 on the year and 1-2 in the Lewis division, will host Walthill this Friday, Jan. 12.

"IT IS NOT A FIELD OF A FEW ACRES WE ARE DEFENDING, BUT A CAUSE."

TOM PAINE

The cause we are defending is not limited to farmers or the family farm. It includes all of the businessmen on the mainstreets of rural America. The following quote from Nebraska Governor Robert Kerrey's office illustrates our point. "We will lose 4,000 farmers in 1984 and expect to lose another 15% in 1985."

According to a current state banking survey, that will be 4,000 in 1984 and 9,500 in 1985 - a total of 13,500 farmers in two years. In other words, if statistics hold, one small business will fail with each five farmers or a total of 2700 small businesses will fail in Nebraska in 1984 and 1985.

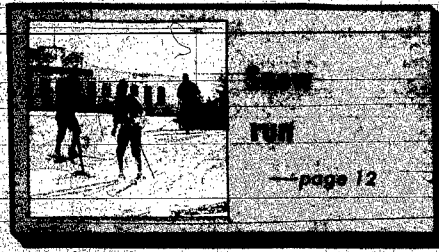

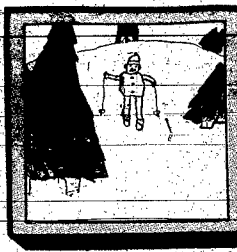

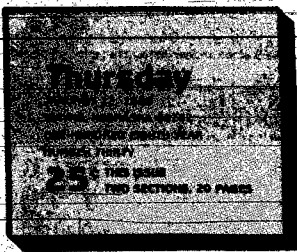

In an effort to address the above mentioned problems a FARM CRISIS COMMITTEE has been growing over the past six weeks. This committee which is headquartered in Emerson, Nebraska, has completed its draft of the 1985 Farm Bill and will explain it at 1 p.m., January 17, 1985, at the Sioux City Auditorium. All concerned persons are urged to attend this important gathering in order that a unified voice from rural America can be heard all the way to Washington, D. C.

"Total interest payments by farmers exceed net income. Interest payments in 1982 totaled $23 billion, while net farm income was only $20 billion."

Taken from North American Farmer
Fall/Winter, 1984

"Burn down your cities and leave your farms, and your cities will spring up again as if by magic, but destroy our farms and the grass will grow in the streets of every city in the country."

Wm. Jennings Bryan

THE WAYNE HERALD

DAVID LEY received the 1984 Citizen of the Year Award Sunday evening during the annual meeting of the Wayne Chamber of Commerce.

Ley selected Outstanding Citizen

David Ley, bank president at the State National Bank of Wayne, was selected as Wayne's 1984 Citizen of the Year. The announcement was made during the annual meeting of the Wayne Chamber of Commerce, which took place last Sunday evening at The Lumber Company. Stan Morris, a former recipient of the honor, presented the special plaque honoring Ley as Citizen of the Year. "Many of us serve our community not only through our individual business efforts, but in a number of different organizations and clubs as well," said Morris before presenting the award. "If only a few of us had remained as dedicated as this year's recipient — to the commitment of making Wayne, Nebraska a better place for all of us to live," he added. Ley attended the University of Lincoln for one year before entering military service. He was a private, first-class in the army for two years, stationed part of that time in Vietnam. After release from military service, he returned to Lincoln where he received a Bachelor of Science degree in Business Administration and is currently serving on the President's Advisory Council to the University. His association with Wayne's State National Bank and Trust began in 1970. Ley has been involved with many areas of the community and its development.

He is also a past president and still active member of Wayne Industries. Since the Wayne Airport Authority's organizational existence, he has been a member. He also serves on the Police Retirement Fund committee and has been a member of the Wayne County Ag Society for over 10 years — now holding the office of secretary-treasurer. Ley is also an advisor to the Boy Scout Council and is a three-year Ak-Sar-Ben team member. "In his endeavor to see that the level of academic achievement at Wayne State College will remain high, and that the future of Wayne State will be secure, he is currently

Manufacturing firm considering Wayne facility

by Chuck Hackenmilller
A major metal manufacturing firm is considering establishing a manufacturing facility in Wayne. The company's name and what it manufactures has been kept confidential and will not be released at this time. "Most individual companies do not like to have people know who they are until they have changed their location, so the name has to remain confidential," said Anne Svoboda, executive vice president of Wayne Industries. This company has requested than an inventory be made of the work force in the area. This work force inventory is one of such magnitude that it covers from 25 to 30 miles surrounding Wayne, according to Svoboda. According to the work force inventory information which was mailed to homes and businesses, the company will offer permanent, full-time jobs with excellent working conditions, wages and fringe benefits and an opportunity to grow with the company.

THE PURPOSE OF the inventory is to determine the amount of available workers in the area — for the metal company or for any company within the next few years that expresses interest in locating to the Wayne area. The inventory requests data concerning the individual's age, education, distance from Wayne, present employment, present hourly earnings, distance traveled from home to work and areas where the individual had significant work experience. It also asks the individual if he or she would consider an offer of employment from the manufacturing firm if located in Wayne and if students, upon completing their education, would consider remaining in the Wayne area if the manufacturing firm had offered good employment opportunities. Once the confidential inventory is penciled in, the information can be sent, postage free in the accompanying envelope, to a box number in Columbus, Nebraska. Svoboda said it should be stressed that all people should fill out the form, regardless if they currently have a job now, in the future or are now unemployed. "It helps us determine what the labor force is out there," she said. Results of the inventory will not only reveal the available work force, but also will give industrial firms an indication of what the average hourly earnings would be for the employees in the Wayne area and the number of workers would have the experience which the company desires. The deadline for mailing the questionnaire is Monday, Jan. 21.

Message from Wayne Industries

You will be receiving, by mail, a Labor Inventory survey. A major manufacturer that is considering locating a plant in Wayne requested that the survey be conducted. The results of this survey will help the company determine if Wayne and surrounding communities supply the needed force for their operation. Whether or not you are currently employed, it is important that you complete this survey and return it immediately. All replies will be held strictly confidential by the inquiring company. Information for more than one family member can be included on the form. More forms are available at the State National Bank and at First National Bank. Your attention to this matter could have a significant, positive impact on the economy of the Wayne area.

The Drinking Age: enforcers fear more kegger parties

The following is the second article of a series prepared by The Wayne Herald editorial staff concerning Nebraska's new drinking age law. Over the span of six weeks, viewpoints will be publicized from various representatives, including law enforcement officials, counselors, educators, organizations, parents and students. Signed letters to the editor are welcome for people who wish to speak out on the legalized drinking age, which on Jan. 1, 1985 is not old enough to meet the drinking age requirement. Nicholson, as an agent of the Nebraska Liquor Control Commission — who enforces within a 10-county area (including Wayne County), sees problems ahead. "More underage people will be using false identifications to obtain liquor or alcohol. People who are of legal drinking age will continue procuring liquor to the minors. There will likely be more keg parties. Those who are age 19 who got their drinks in the bars will go out on the street and find other areas where they can drink," Nicholson said. The new drinking age law will likely lessen the number of those who are 11 to 17 years old from gaining alcoholic beverages from those "of age."

"A lot less 16 and 17 year olds have that knowledge of association now since the age expanded from 19 to 21," Nicholson said. What will happen is that the 18 year old will ask the 20 year old to obtain the alcohol from the 21 year old, who then procures the alcohol to the 20 year old and the 18 year old, according to Nicholson. Two types of kegger parties could be on the rise — the college kids who have parties in frat houses and attend the Thursday night keggers; and high school kids who tend to frequent the countryside with their parties. Nicholson said. At one time, keggers within the town were a problem. Not as much anymore, Nicholson said. "It didn't stop the keggers, though. It just made them move out of town and into the country," he added. "One problem is that they [those conducting the keg parties] don't realize that it is against state and federal law to charge admission to the party because they are selling liquor and beer without a state liquor license," he said. "Their first defense is that the admission money goes for the food and band. They should know that any part of the funds received that go to alcoholic liquor is a violation of state and federal laws," he said. Nicholson said property owners who permit keg parties on their land and also the individuals sponsoring keg parties are liable if injury or accidents occur as a result of the party. HE CITED a test case in Massachusetts where an individual was killed after leaving a kegger. An $800,000 lawsuit was filed by the parents against the party sponsor and landowner and the parents won the suit. An attempt failed to reverse the decision when brought before the Massachusetts Supreme Court. Trafficking across state lines those fake identification laminated cards purchased by underage individuals must also be curtailed if any control is to be obtained by bar owners and law enforcement officials in limiting under-age alcohol drinking.

Several nationwide magazines actually publish ads specifying the services of producing a fake identification card, printing and laminating service at a cost of from $5 to $15, Nicholson said. Law enforcement officials are currently pushing for legislation which would retain the pictures of individuals on drivers licenses, since it is helpful to law officers and bar owners in providing a description of the subject's physical appearances along with the individual's name and age. Governor Kerrey had proposed in his fiscal budget to eliminate the photographing on drivers licenses. WITH THE ANTICIPATED increase in violations, Nicholson said more manpower could be used in controlling the abuse of underage drinking. "There are only 12 liquor commissioners in the whole state to cover 78 counties. In western Nebraska, one agent has charge of 25,000 miles in a 13-county area," he said. Nicholson has relied on the support provided by the local police and sheriff department. Last year he was aided by local law enforcement authorities in breaking up or investigating up to six keggers in Wayne County alone (a total of over 30 in his 10 county area). "I'd say we only got about 1/5 of them, though," Nicholson said. "Sometimes the police or sheriff's department conducts their own investigations [of keg parties] and then turns the information over to me," he said. Agents and law enforcement officials are currently lobbying on a law which would make keg beer sales available only to establishments such as Pizza Hut. "If those [throwing the party] would have to buy cases of beer for their parties, that [cases of beer] would certainly be much more visible to us than a keg. You are more likely to find 15 cases of beer in a car than a single keg," he said. NICHOLSON would have liked to see the drinking age law changed to say those of the mandatory 21 age be entitled to on and off state liquor, and allow the 19-year-olds to be served in bar establishments but prohibit the 19-year-olds from purchasing alcohol and carry it outside the establishment. Wayne County Sheriff LeRoy Janssen said he would prefer seeing a uniform drinking age from state to state, no matter what age all states finally settle on. "With today's mobility as such, almost any kid has access to interstate land some place, he said. "There's really no way to enforce the law until the age is uniform. It's just essential," Janssen said. He said restrictions on drinking don't have any effect unless parents and other significant persons set an example. If the parents have it around, he said, age isn't going to make any difference. "It seems that teenagers are especially susceptible to addiction because they are going through a lot of stress and changes in their lives. Any crutch that can be utilized will be," Janssen mentioned. People who are susceptible to alcohol are persons who need to forget something, and kids haven't quite learned the coping mechanisms. "Alcohol itself isn't the problem necessarily, because kids just don't have the coping mechanisms to cope with life," he said. "A lot of AA people have said that until there completely sober and away from using the crutch. They never really grew up." "What I'm saying is that there is a certain percentage of teens and people in their early 20's who are more susceptible than others to addiction. Not all teenagers are in that bag, but the people who haven't developed coping mechanisms are more prevalent in that age group than those who are older," Janssen mentioned. UNTIL THEY LEARN to cope (called state of complete adolescence) the problem is going to be there, he added. "People who are the loudest in that age group are generally the least mature." Nicholson said he is one of three agents from the state of Nebraska who schedules speaking engagements throughout the year in talking to organizations and schools about alcohol, regulations (both federal and state) and slides of accidents or incidents involving a controlled substance. He also meets one a year with the liquor retailers within his district to discuss legislative bills that are being introduced, new types of fake identification cards that are being circulated and federal law changes. "Passing the information is an important factor in good law enforcement. "Public education really helps," Nicholson said.

Great Plains yard closes in Laurel

Great Plains of Laurel was notified last Friday by its head office in the Twin Cities to close its lumber yard. Rod Smith, from the Communication Department of Great Plains in the Twin Cities, told the Wayne Herald Tuesday that about 40 of the total 82 lumber yards in Nebraska, Minnesota, Iowa, North Dakota, South Dakota and Montana were released from the ties of Great Plains.

"Of part of that number, there have been negotiations for sale of some of the yards," Smith said. "Some of the companies, within the next week or two, will be under a different name, with minimal disruption to the community," he said. As of Wednesday morning, it was not clear how many of the yards would be sold. See GREAT PLAINS, page 10a
