Honor bands to perform at WSC

Two high school honor bands, consisting of 209 musicians from three states, will perform Saturday, Feb. 16 at Wayne State College's 10th annual Honor Band Festival. Following a day of rehearsal, an 8 p.m. concert will follow in Ramsey Theatre. The guest conductor is Timothy Mahr, assistant professor of music and director of bands at the University of Minnesota-Duluth. He will lead musicians from 24 high schools in Nebraska, Iowa and South Dakota. Mahr is a graduate of St. Olaf College, Northfield, Minnesota and received a M.A. degree from Iowa, where he is a doctoral candidate in instrumental conducting. The musicians are divided into the Gold Band (11th and 12th graders) and the Black Band (ninth and 10th graders). Students were selected and seeded by tape audition and teacher recommendation.

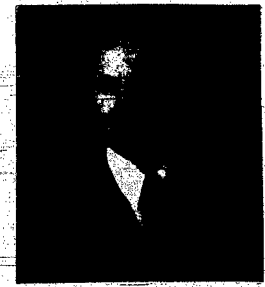

The Honor Band Festival director is Gary Davis, assistant professor of music and director of bands at Wayne State. Davis received his undergraduate and graduate degrees from Nebraska and is a doctoral candidate in music education from Iowa. Area participating schools include Emerson-Hubbard, Laurel, Wayne and Winside.

GOLD BAND AREA students include: Obbe, Krista Ring of Wayne. Flute, Sheila Cowgill, Lori Anderson of Wayne; Richele Heitzman of Emerson-Hubbard; Kristi Serven, Winside. Clarinet, Becky Schmidt, Ronda Elsberry, Julie Melteer, all of Wayne; Tammy Brudigan, Kerri Leighton of Winside; Julie Bosshart and Theresa Pallas, Emerson-Hubbard; Mikki Kosak and Shelly Buss of Laurel. Euphonium, Mark Rahn of Wayne; Gail Twiford of Laurel; Kevin Bonderson and Tony Dohrman of Emerson-Hubbard.

Dr. Ken Liska, a practitioner from Wayne, was elected president of the Nebraska Veterinary Medical Association during the recent annual convention in Grand Island. Liska has practiced veterinary medicine in Wayne since 1959 and is currently working with his brother Dr. J.J. Liska and Dr. David Swerczek at the Wayne Veterinary Clinic. He is a 1969 graduate of the College of Veterinary Medicine at Iowa State University. He and his wife Jan have three children: Jason, 13, Eric, 12 and Kim, 10. He is a member of the Nebraska Veterinary Medical Association; Interstate Veterinary Medical Association (past president); American Association of Bovine Practitioners; and the American Angus Association. Among his community activities include memberships with the Wayne City Planning Commission (two terms); Wayne Volunteer Farmers Appreciative Dinner; Masonic Lodge; Elks Lodge; Kiwanis Club past president and L.I. Governor; Boy Scout committee member and counselor for both Girl and Boy Scouts; Wayne City Board of Adjustment; Elder of the Presbyterian Church; and counselor for the Wayne County 4-H veterinary science projects. Other officers elected to the veterinary medical association were Dr. James White of Bridgeport as president-elect and Dr. Dean Wheeler of Tecumseh as secretary-treasurer. Dr. Del Heffle of Wisner was elected to the board of directors.

Ken Liska

Highlighting the convention banquet was the presenting of special "merit" awards to Dr. Norman Kruse of Lincoln—state veterinarian, and Dr. Earl Dickinson of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and the naming of Dr. Jim Edwards of Sidney as "Veterinarian of the Year."

The Drinking Age: students consider the alternatives

The following is the final article of a series prepared by The Wayne Herald editorial staff concerning Nebraska's new drinking age law.

Over the span of six weeks, viewpoints were publicized from various representatives, including law enforcement officials, counselors, educators, organizations, parents and students.

by Chuck Hackenmiller

"Alcohol is easily accessible to minors, according to several high school students who volunteered to speak with The Wayne Herald on the topic of the legal drinking age. It's easy to find a buyer for you. You just give them a couple of the beers from the six-pack they bought for you," said one student. "Twenty-one is pretty old for a legal drinking age." Lot of kids are drinking now at younger ages. Kids are getting killed coming and going over state lines to buy beer."

If they do something with the drinking age, it had better be uniform across the nation—better yet at age 19, the student said. Raising the age to 21 will not affect those underage who continue getting their beer or whatever alcohol is available. "I don't see how raising the age will make that much difference," a non-alcohol drinking student said. "If kids are going to drink, they will drink," he added.

LOWERING THE age to 19 would allow those individuals to drink legally in establishments in the community. Because the age has been raised to 21, those 19 and 20 year olds will likely carry on the drinking outside of town. "It's safer to keep them home rather than on the road," said one student. "I just hate to see a carload of kids on the road, endangering everyone and themselves. The age has got to be uniform in states nearby such as South Dakota and Iowa. "If I was a 19 or 20 year old individual who drank, I could see how they could get ficked off and see how much they can get away with," the student said. The students who were interviewed will be 19 years old in the fall. "When you are 19, you go off to college on your own or go off and serve in the military. You are expected to make adult decisions and expected to be old enough to take care of yourself," one mentioned. "At 19, the students have their morals and what they plan to do in life. The youth is probably more mature at 21 in deciding goals for the future, but are mature enough at 19 to be able to drink sensibly, the individual said. "It isn't uncommon to have someone buy alcohol for an underage individual in Wayne, particularly if that minor has acquaintances with graduates or college-level students. Carrying false identification is another method students use to obtain the alcohol supply, the student mentioned.

ONE OF THE high school students feels more enforcement by the city lawmen and the bar owners will cut down on underage drinking immensely. "Patrol the bars and check on who's supplying the beer for the minors. Have a tougher identification check on those who walk into the bars. Do these things and you will almost eliminate the underage drinking," he said. Some of the bar owners, the student said, might be afraid of embarrassing someone by checking their identification. The two seconds it takes to check the identification could make the difference between having that underage individual drink too much and get killed on the highway. The students feel keg parties could be greatly reduced if the legal drinking age was lowered from 21.

"The reason for keg parties is because it is an easy place to get beer and a place for a lot of the younger underage youths to go," said a student.

More of those under 21 will likely be attending these keg parties, he said. There needs to be better education on the consequences of drinking, added the other student.

"It's [education on alcohol abuse] not enough. It really doesn't tell what beer actually can do to us," he said.

EXCEPT IN THE driver education courses that reveal what happens to people who drink and drive. "That can scare you," he added. What should be done, the students say, is to allow a person who has been involved in a "drinking and driving" accident to talk on the alcohol-related matter. "If [drinking alcohol] should be taken more seriously in the student's home, I've seen seventh or eighth grade students drinking beer. In one instance the boy's dad just gave him a can of beer to drink in his home," said one student. The student said it would be a good idea to start education on the hazards of alcohol at a younger age, when the child is more impressionable. He suggested the fifth and six grade levels. "When I was in the seventh and eighth grade, I didn't want people telling me nothing I didn't want to do," he said.

One student said athletics has been an important tool for him in avoiding alcohol. "It made me stay away so I can stay eligible to participate in athletics."

In some schools, there are places with no athletic disciplinary rules so the coaches "don't know what the athlete is up to."

But not at his school, he said. "Sometimes the coaches know the athlete has been partying and the individual is reprimanded. Usually not for very long. But they let the athlete know they won't take it."

The students interviewed say the penalties for minors are not stiff enough in some respects. Some who are given work for their sentence consider the punishment as an excuse from doing homework. "Violators, he said, should know what they get for committing the crime and it should be uniform with other courts. "If there were a fine, a week in jail or taking away of licenses, they [the underage drinker] would think twice about drinking," he said.

To those who have alcoholic friends, relatives

Al-Anon brings out reality of alcoholism

Identities in this story have been changed purposely to protect the confidentiality of the individuals and family members.

by Chuck Hackenmiller

Public relations advertisements of Al-Anon/Alateen stress the message "You don't have to drink to suffer from alcoholism."

Both Peggy and Mary, members of the Wayne Al-Anon group, are not alcoholics. But they saw the lives of their closest relatives "slowly deteriorate in a world drowned by alcohol."

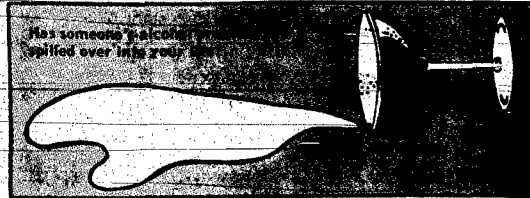

Peggy's parents were alcoholics at a time when there were no Alcoholic Anonymous (AA) groups in the area. "I grew up in an environment without knowing alcoholism was a disease."

"By the time I was 10, I was aware that my parents weren't happy or were acting differently. I didn't pinpoint why — just lived in the environment."

She was never physically abused. Both her father and mother were college educated and had good jobs. "But they always associated with people who drank. They would drink and entertain at home," she said.

Peggy's maternal grandmother and paternal grandfather were alcoholics. "It's a terrible family disease, and it spreads through the family," she mentioned.

BY THE TIME Peggy reached the age of 10, her parents were fighting terribly. She never asked her friends over for fear of humiliation. She met her dates at the door

"I was always terribly embarrassed about what father would say. When he drank, he had a personality change. He would be surly and sarcastic at times, or he could be gushy, mushy and loving—too," Peggy said.

Peggy's father was a binge alcoholic, drinking often on weekends. Her mother, who first started drinking beer and later turned to hard liquor, drank daily.

Her father had sometimes stopped drinking from six weeks to six months at a time. But her mother's constant drinking caused her father to go back. "She had lots of friends in high school. But I felt insecure deep down inside. I never felt capable and complete."

Her grades fell. Fortunately, the parents taught her good morals during the childhood years and the drug scene was not evident at the high school and "drinking wasn't the thing to do then."

"My mother was never wrong and father let her go on with her alcohol dependency. All my resentment was on my mother. I was close to my father," she said.

"When I was 15 years old, I would pray that my parents would get divorced so that I could live with my paternal grandmother." Later, as Peggy turned 25, her father was promoted to a job in South America. Because of conflicts in that country, her parents returned. The father had a nervous breakdown.

HE MADE AN attempt to try and quit drinking. "At this point I was 25 years old and never once had I said my folks were alcoholics," Peggy said.

"He quit his job and started a new job. Mother was still drinking heavily."

"My father committed suicide." Because of her role model of "Miss Fix-it" she felt responsible to find a home for her mother. She invited her mother to live with her family.

Two or three months later Peggy found bottles hidden in her bedroom. "It was then she realized her mother was an alcoholic."

"We decided she should leave us," Peggy said.

During the next 10 years she ignored her mother, maintaining her resentment. Her

Liquor license seminar

An education seminar for area Nebraska Liquor License holders is scheduled for Feb. 14. The seminar will take place at the Star Bar in Carroll, beginning at 2:30 p.m.

Chief David Nicholson will have a slide presentation showing the false identifications contained in Nebraska from minor offenders to purchase alcohol.

Nicholson will also cover new legislative actions and also the new repealing of the "two-fer" act. There is no fee and all liquor retailers in the area are urged to attend.

The seminar is scheduled to last until 4 p.m. If anyone has questions, they can contact Nicholson at 402/375-2460.

Livestock feeders meeting

The Cedar County Livestock Feeders Association will be held on Monday, Feb. 11 at the First National Bank of Belvidere meeting room. The social hour will begin at 6:30 p.m. with the dinner to follow at 7:30 p.m.

The program will include an update by Roger Wehrlein, president of the Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association on what is happening at the state association level. Another program highlight will be an Agri-First Risk Management seminar.

Larry Paulsen of Coleridge who is serving as treasurer of the Cedar County Livestock Feeders Association will be collecting the 1985 dues.

The meeting is open to feeders, prospective members and their spouses.

Seniors receive free tax aid

For the sixth year, volunteers working through the Internal Revenue Service, Tax Counseling for the Elderly (TCE) program will offer free income tax preparation assistance to Nebraska taxpayers sixty years of age and older.

The Revenue Act of 1978 allows the IRS to enter into cooperative agreements with non-profit organizations for the purpose of offering federal income tax return assistance to elderly individuals. In Nebraska, the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP), Eastern Nebraska Office, on Aging (ENOA), and Goldenrod Hills Community Action administer the TCE program.

Assistants will either instruct elderly person to prepare their own tax return or provide direct income tax return preparation of both the federal and state tax returns.

Senior citizens who need help in preparing their 1984 federal or state tax returns can make an appointment to receive assistance at the Wayne Social Services office on Mondays from 9 a.m. to noon. Phone 375-2715.

Poultry Hall of Fame inducts Wayne man

Two Nebraska poultry producers with long histories of innovation and quality production were recognized Feb. 7 by the Nebraska Poultry Industries Inc. at its annual meeting in Columbus.

Joe Claybaugh of Wayne was inducted into the Nebraska Poultry Hall of Fame and Jim Rountree of David City was named Poultry Industryman of the Year, announced Doyle Fries, general manager for NPI, the state's umbrella poultry organization.

Claybaugh operates two 60,000 and one 120,000 capacity cage houses with complete automation. Incorporating the lessons his father first taught him as a child, Claybaugh uses the cage waste on his 1,400 acres of feed grains and pasture as well as in a mixture of cornstalks. He feeds to his 130-head herd of purebred Polled Herefords.

He learned these conservation techniques from his father, who taught him the fundamentals of egg gathering and how to use poultry waste. Together they worked in a garden and saw the excellent result of using the waste product.

After serving in World War II and graduating from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln College of Agriculture, Claybaugh joined the Cooperative-Extension Service. He then managed a hatchery and broiler business before joining Dekalb-Ag Research in 1953 as hatchery supervisor for the eastern United States.

In 1959 he was named production manager and became nationally known for his innovations in chicken house design, ventilation and the handling of poultry waste. Free said.

After taking early retirement, he and his family moved to Wayne to operate their own poultry business.

Rountree, who has served in leadership positions in several Nebraska poultry organizations, is manager of the David City plant of Henningsen Foods Inc.

Lions Club to hold diabetes screening clinic

The Wayne Lions Club is sponsoring a combination event on Valentine's Day, Feb. 14.

It will be a Soup and Chili Supper in connection with a second Diabetes Screening Clinic. Both will be at the Women's Club Room at the Wayne City Auditorium, from 5:00 p.m. Cost of the supper will be $1.50 and the diabetes screening is free.

The screening will be done by using the new electronic instruments now available. A single drop of blood is used for testing and the entire process takes less than three minutes. It is anticipated that those who wish to be screened will be cared for while waiting to be served.

People may attend either event without attending the other. One may come for the supper only or only for the diabetes screening or blood sugar.

Over 100 people were screened in the November clinic. Following that event several people asked for another opportunity to be tested. It is the hope of the Lions Club that "anyone" who wishes to be tested for the possibility of diabetes would take advantage of this free service.

Proceeds from the supper will be used to fund this and other Lions Club Service projects.

Diabetes is one of the major health problems in society. It is a major cause of blindness, kidney and heart failure and circulatory disorders. Early diagnosis and treatment are essential if the effects of the disease are kept to a minimum level.

People especially subject to the risk of diabetes include those who are related to known diabetic persons, those who are overweight, those who are over 35 years old and people who have several kinds of physical symptoms.

Residents urged to apply for new homestead in 1985

Doris Stipp, Wayne County Assessor, wishes to urge any owner-occupant of a home on Jan. 1, 1985, to come to her office and apply for a new homestead which Nebraska has this year.

This homestead is for all ages and is not to be confused with the one which was voided in 1980, or should it be confused with the one for persons age 65 and over which is based on adjusted gross income.

The new homestead will exempt up to $3,000 value on a home. Any taxpayer who continues to own and occupy such homestead shall not be required to reapply the following year.

The Homestead Exemption for persons 65 and older may qualify if their adjusted gross income for 1984 was as follows (listing household income first, followed by percentage of relief):

$35,000; 100 percent of first $35,000;
$8,401-$8,900; 90 percent of first $35,000; $8,901-$9,400, 60 percent of first $35,000; $9,401-$9,900, 40 percent of first $35,000; and $9,901-$10,400, 20 percent of first $35,000.

If "65 and older" persons have this homestead there is no need to reapply.

There are special Homestead Exemptions available for disabled veterans, unmarried widow(er) of veterans who died in action between certain dates, unremarried widow(er) of veterans who died because of service connected disability, veterans disabled by non-military causes and certain handicapped people.

Inquire at the assessor's office for details and applications forms. The individual may be required to submit a physician's certificate with the application.

Deadline for applying for either of these homesteads is April 1, 1985.

Personal property schedules are due

Personal Property schedules are due in the assessor's office by March 1, 1985. After that date, a 10 percent penalty will be applied, unless permission has been received from the assessor an extension of time in getting the schedule in.

Improvements such as homes, cabins, grain bins, and other buildings placed on real estate owned by another person must be listed and assessed on the personal property schedule as improvements on leased land.

New improvements and additions, as well as the removal of improvements must be reported to the county assessor no later than March 1, 1985. Penalties are now provided for late reporting or failure to report improvements to real property.

Improvement means any new structure or addition to an existing structure.

Age of drinking

Over the past six weeks, a series of articles on the drinking age has presented our readers with a wide variety of angles. Interviews were conducted with the underage, bar owners, law enforcement officials, judicial officials, clergy, educators and athletic coaches.

Intent of the articles was not to have the law changed. President Reagan controls authority to lift the 21 legal drinking age limit by withdrawing his threat of non-provision of federal highway funds to the states.

Federal highway funding is important to the state. Newspaper articles on the subject are not likely to change the legislature's mind.

But what the articles did dig into were how the drinking law could be better enforced; current complications of non-uniformity of age in other states; consideration of stricter or less stringent sentences for violators; the impact of television commercials as an influence on teenage drinking; and the growing number of young students at the elementary school level who have already experienced the use of alcohol.

The greatest fear among those interviewed appears to be that more and more underage drinkers will be out in the country driving the rural highways since there are a growing number of those now who cannot drink in the bars.

Young adults, age 15 to 19, comprise about 10 percent of the driving population, yet they represent almost 14 percent of all alcohol-impaired drivers involved in accidents, according to the National Safety Council. Driving under the influence of alcohol is the leading cause of death for persons 15 to 24 years old.

A stepped up effort must be made by the bar owners to check identifications so that beer is not available to the minor in the first place. As one student says, it only takes a few seconds for this procedure and could save a life.

Crackdowns must be made on the person who purchases beer for the minor. To do this will require more manpower to enforce this state. The Nebraska legislators should take this into consideration.

The liquor control agent for Wayne County also is responsible for enforcement in nine other counties. There are only 12 agents in the whole state to cover all the counties. One western Nebraska agent has charge of 23,000 miles in a 13-county area.

One other important step is to begin the education of hazards in alcohol abuse at the home level. The high school systems across the state are often criticized because they do not offer adequate education to their sons and daughters who already are problem drinkers.

It is not the responsibility of the school system to instill the moral character of sons and daughters. That must be done through actions and discussions at home and not in the classrooms.

Keeping all underage drinkers from abusing the legal age drinking law is physically impossible. But at least the problems of the law have been openly discussed and lawmakers, parents and students can work together in controlling the violations.

Federal debt

Senator Paul Simon of Illinois released the following opinion: An anniversary slipped by the other day which should have been more formally noted: On January 8, 1835, the United States Government made the final payment on the national debt. The nation was debt free.

We are now living on a gigantic credit card, spending more than we take in and we are telling those from whom we borrow to "send the bill to our children and grandchildren."

This fiscal year the national debt will be approximately $210 billion. Jan. 8, 1935.

That date should remind us that difficult things are attainable. We should honor those who achieved that goal of eliminating the national debt by achieving a more modest goal: moving toward balancing the budget.

And then I hope we can seriously talk about gradually reducing the federal indebtedness.

POLITIC NOTES

Nation
U.S. Senator Jim Exon, in speaking of the Administration's 1986 federal budget, said: "The deficit reduction proposals of the President will help those of us that have been fighting this budget bulge. However, his programs clearly fall disproportionately on an already economically devastated rural America. If passed, it will eliminate a third of the family farmers and ranchers and half of their main street suppliers."

"My initial brief review indicates he proposed to unfairly penalize rural America with agricultural and transportation cuts of a size that cannot be justified."

It should be noted, for example, that the President reduces foreign aid by 10 percent but slashes direct agricultural programs by 40 percent. What kind of priority is that?"

EXON ALSO said he and David Boren of Oklahoma informed Majority Leader Bob Dole they are prepared to delay other Senate activities until an expanded farm credit package is approved.

In a letter to the Senate Majority leader, Exon and Boren said, "we will be prepared to take whatever parliamentary steps are necessary to delay consideration of all other matters on the Senate floor until action is taken on an effective farm credit package."

The two Senators indicated they have been working on a major farm credit bill which they will be introducing soon. The legislation would include a $3 billion increase in 90 percent loan guarantee authority with no requirement to write off part of the principal. It would also allow lending institutions to write down interest rates on farm loans in exchange for federal guarantees on the principal amount.

Current federal regulations do not allow lenders to substitute a lower rate of interest. In addition, the legislation would direct bank regulators to exercise caution and restraint in adversely classifying agricultural loans.

Edward Zorinsky has announced an emergency farm credit proposal designed to assist financially distressed farmers.

It calls for the President to direct the Farmers Home Administration to hire additional personnel on a temporary basis to process and service loans; reduce the interest rate on direct loans; and eliminate certain administrative requirements that have made the debt service program and the loan guarantee program workable.

State
According to State Senator Elroy Herfer, an upcoming bill of interest will be one that will allow Nebraska banks to acquire an unlimited number of other banks and use them as branch banks; was advanced by the Banking Committee and will be put to debate before the body. The bill has drawn mixed reviews from Nebraska bankers.

Another bill, LB 432, which would allow regional interstate banking, will be reviewed by the committee this week.

Somewhat the government might have gone a bit overboard in its endeavor to create as much paperwork as possible.

I'm talking about the Internal Revenue Service rule that at one time was requiring people who wanted to claim a tax deduction for business use of an automobile or other vehicles, to keep contemporaneous records of the mileage.

That would include farmers' pick-ups, you know.

That's been changed, however, according to Congressman Brevitzer. Farmers that earn 70 percent of their gross income from farming have to keep track of mileage for "personal" instead of business uses. Or farmers don't have to keep records at all, and instead mark 20 percent of total miles as business and 80 percent of miles as personal use.

Anything that the IRS comes up with is far better than the first rule of farmers keeping track the vehicle mileage for business expenses.

Why?
In the early 1960's, as I was growing up on the farm, my father purchased a used 1959's

International green pickup. This pickup had features unlike today's pick-ups: — a knob above the dash that could turn on both wipers, or if desired, just the wiper on the passenger or driver's side.

It was noisy and it couldn't match the speed limits on open highway — but it sufficed for its purpose. The practicality of the pick-up outweighed the disadvantages.

The pick-up hauled hay from one building to larger facilities. It was used to transport feed from the hammermill to the hog house feeds. Frequent 12 mile round trips to the co-operative elevator were made with the vehicle.

Sometimes the truck would be taken out to the pasture to herd the cows together and accompany them on the path homeward.

Now, imagine if I had to keep track of all these vehicle miles for "business purposes", traveling many of those miles without even driving on a country road.

Eventually the odometer stopped working on the old pick-up and soon, the pick-up had to be banned from highway travel. It was still being used for business purposes.

Here is what I would say to the IRS agent then:
"You're kidding. You still want me to keep track of business miles — even with the odometer out of which cause it stopped at 200,000 miles?"

"Afraid so, Hackenmiller. So let's have it," the IRS agent said.

"But the headlights no longer work and the brakes function only half the time. Turn signals are not operating and it takes almost 15 minutes to wiggle the shift stick and get the truck moving."

"There is a hole in the cab floor and door handles are non-existent. The starter sticks and the thing only goes five miles per hour."

"That makes no difference. It is still being used for business purposes and the mileage is required to be reported," the agent said.

"Okay, if that's the way you want it, I'll give you just a daily tally of mileage which was accumulated yesterday and you can multiply it by 365."

"Put on 10 miles right away because that's about the distance we had to pull the pick-up with a tractor — just trying to start the blasted thing. The old truck just doesn't like to start on cold mornings. Add another five miles because once it started, it stopped."

"Tack on another three miles because it takes several chances to back the pick-up against the buildings since the reverse on the truck is not functioning."

"Yesterday we had to go out to the pasture and bring home a newborn calf. That was about two miles there. Then we had to grind some feed into the box of the pick-up and toss it into the feed bins. Put a 1/2 mile on that."

"That was about the extent of the truck's use yesterday. The engine died on us and we couldn't get it started again. That's a total of about 20 1/2 miles and in a year that adds up to 7,482.5 miles, give or take a few."

"Do you realize how long that will take to write all that up in triplicate form and present that information to the internal revenue service?" the agent asked.

"About as long as it would take myself. Don't criticize me — it was you that made the rule."

4-H project focuses on vandalism

by Cheryl Stubbendieck

Rural and urban areas share a crime problem that doesn't often get enough serious attention: the crime of vandalism. Many people, including vandals themselves, don't think of their acts as crimes. Rather, shooting at road signs or mailboxes or defacing bridges tends to be viewed as "just a harmless bit of fun."

People also often fail to make the connection between vandalism and higher taxes and insurance rates, but it exists. For example, the Lincoln Public Schools reported more than $76,000 in losses and thefts to vandalism for a recent school year.

Vandals themselves, and the public which tolerates them, tend to view vandalism as a "trivial pursuit" or as a kind of game, says Duane Olsen, University of Nebraska extension economist in leadership and public affairs. That attitude has given its name to a new 4-H program which Olsen coordinates, the Vandalism Game.

The project is designed to increase young people's understanding of the crime of vandalism and increase respect for property as a means of prevention. Although the project is targeted to youth, Olsen hastens to explain that not all vandals are young people: "Vandalism is often everyday crime involving everyday people, doing things we know better about." We've all felt the desire to beat up on a coin-operated machine, he points out.

YOUNG PEOPLE ARE the target audience for the Vandalism Game, Olsen says, because they are at a time in their life when they are subject to peer pressures and vandalism tends to be group activity. Extension agents and 4-H leaders are working with local schools in promoting the project because schools may be seen as a target for striking back against symbols of authority. Public and neglected property is the most frequent target.

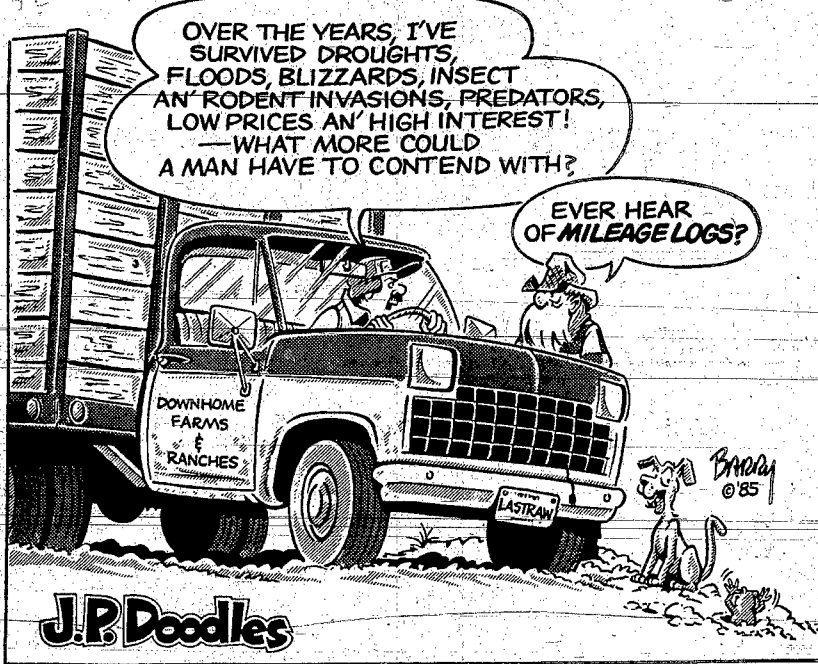

The Vandalism Game has been extensively pilot-tested in schools across Nebraska, Olsen notes. Each of five lessons contains necessary facts and concepts and useful classroom activities, but Olsen believes the most important part of the lessons is the students' involvement in a community activity.

The community may be the school, a neighborhood or even an entire small town, he says, but the important thing is to get outside the classroom. For example, a sixth grade class in Platte County interviewed residents of Humphrey, to discover how widespread vandalism was in that community and learned it had cost residents more than $3,400 in one year. They compiled their findings in a class newspaper. Another class worked with a local community improvement organization to repaint the town pump house, a traditional target for vandals.

THE PROJECT has been successful in raising students' awareness and increasing their respect for property. In an essay, two students noted, "You may think vandalism is stealing and ruining property. It is, but that's not all. Vandalism could be putting a little scratch in a desk or table, littering, writing obscene words on bathroom walls, and even sticking bubble gum on the bottom of a table. You may think this is nothing serious, but it is. All of this costs money, and money is not something that grows on trees." These students and classmates refreshed school desks as their community involvement activity.

Olsen hopes to enroll between 8,000 and 10,000 students in grades 5 through 8 in the Vandalism Game, during this, its first year. Prospects look good, and the program is receiving attention nationally. Communities will benefit by giving their support to the Vandalism Game.

Looking behind employment stats

Richard L. Leshner, President, Chamber of Commerce of the United States
It is easy to look at the past two years and see the dynamism of the American economy. Since January 1983 more than seven million new jobs have been created. New business incorporations are beginning at the rate of more than 550,000 a year.

This explosion of new jobs contrasts with the period between 1980 and 1982 when the American economy had a net increase of only 984,000 jobs. Surely those years were ones of stagnation and little change. The economy "wasn't doing anything."

Let's take a look behind that 984,000 net increase in jobs. Between 1980 and 1982 some 11 million jobs were lost when businesses closed their doors. At the same time, 9.4 million jobs were created by new business start-ups. And while 7.4 million jobs were lost as a result of business contractions, layoffs and attrition, more than 10.2 million jobs were created by business expansions.

Adding up the job creation and job loss numbers, we arrive back at the net increase of 984,000 jobs, but our understanding of what happened during those years is quite different. The economy did not sit still. It never does. Individuals are constantly changing jobs, creating new businesses even as old jobs and old businesses contract or die.

OUR RESPONSE to the sluggish growth of the economy was the 1981 tax cut and the deregulation of many industries. The economy soared as a result.

But let us remember that there was an alternative policy put forward by many politicians. They argued for an industrial policy — for government to pick winners and losers among businesses, industries and regions of the nation. They pointed to job losses and plant closings and said, "We must pass laws to save those jobs and keep those plants open."

They were no doubt well intentioned, but they failed to understand that while some jobs were disappearing, others were born. If we had indeed passed laws and regulations to "save" every job, the new jobs that were born between 1980 and 1982 would not have happened. For only when resources and individuals are freed from less productive work can they be available for higher productivity and higher paying uses. Politicians do no one any favors by keeping workers at a job that is less productive than another job.

The free market is a powerful force. Without oversight by bureaucrats or congressmen, it creates new jobs and transfers capital and labor to where they are more productive. Had we listened to those who wanted to freeze the economy and keep the status quo back in 1982, we would never have had the economic growth we enjoy today, and the politicians would be wondering what happened.

To the editor:
Your paper coverage of Nebraska's drinking age law has provided us readers with interesting reports. With the exception of one of chickens in the Wayne area, I pecked the following out on my typewriter.

still drive a car home. Then more than likely encounter on a game of "chicken" and act like Chicken the Menace. In this cocky state it would be better to ride a cockhorse and enjoy a plain good drink of eggnog.

Not to drink is a feather in one's cap but those that do are not being but "featherbrains!" But to encise a drink to an alcoholic or others as chicanery fun is one of the lowest forms of human concern for his fellowman.

Membership among items on agenda at American Legion Auxiliary meeting

The American Legion Auxiliary met for their regular monthly meeting on Monday, Feb. 4 at 8 p.m. at the Wayne Vet's Club.

President Mary Kruger opened the meeting. Chaplain Ethel Johnson read the opening prayer, followed by a group recitation of the "Pledge of Allegiance" and the singing of one verse of the "Star Spangled Banner". Those gathered also repeated the preamble to the American Legion Auxiliary constitution.

Eleven senior members and one junior member answered the call. The minutes of the previous meeting were approved as read. Treasurer Evelyn Thompson read the treasurer's report.

MEMBERSHIP CHAIRMAN

Evelyn Thompson reported that the Wayne unit membership is at 100 percent, making the Wayne County membership 100 percent as well.

As County Government Chairman, Thompson told the members that County Government Day is scheduled for Thursday, March 21 in Wayne.

Member Ethel Johnson read a story on four chaplains who gave their lives to save the lives of four servicemen during a war.

The publicity book, prayer book, corsages and centerpiece are ready to be entered in the District 3 judging.

Girls-Stater Chairman Evelyn Thompson read an article to the group on Girls State.

February is designated as Heart Month, and the American Legion Auxiliary supports the program which brings foreign children into the United States for heart surgery.

LETTER WAS READ

from Department Auxiliary Emergency Fund Chairman Evelyn Dvorak, urging that Auxiliary members should care for their fellow members.

A thank-you note from the First Methodist Church in Wayne was received for a memorial given by the Auxiliary in memory of Marguerite Park.

A thank-you note was also received from the Martin Luther Home in Beatrice for the 618 labels sent to them by the Wayne Auxiliary.

It was announced at the meeting that the District 3 Convention will be held on Saturday, March 23 at Beemer. The convention will be an all-day event.

Evelyn Thompson reported on the Mid-Winter Conference which was held at North Platte on Jan. 18-20. Speaker for the Auxiliary meeting held on that Saturday morning was Thelma Foster, Northwestern Division vice president, from Millette, S.D. at the Saturday night joint banquet for the American Legion and Auxiliary, the guest speaker was Colonel Richard Keen of the F.E. Warren Air Force Base in Cheyenne, Wyo. Guest speaker at a joint luncheon held on Sunday was National Vice-Commander of the American Legion Ronald D. Blark of Gridley, Kan.

IT WAS ANNOUNCED that the Department Convention will be held in South Sioux City in June.

Chaplain Ethel Johnson read the closing prayer for peace, which was followed by the singing of one verse of "America".

President Mary Kruger closed the meeting to re-open on Monday, March 4 at 8 p.m. at the Vet's Club. The American Legion will be guests at that meeting to celebrate the birthday of the American Legion.

Serving committee members were Louise Kahler, Lulu Schular and Marge Samuelson.

news and notes

A Valentine For Your Spouse

Candy and flowers may be nice, but this year give your spouse a special Valentine gift. Give the gift of yourself and the "Twelve Day Marriage Enrichment Plan".

The plan is offered by the Cooperative Extension Service as a learn-at-home packet. The packet is a series of readings and exercises geared to increasing the intimacy in your marital relationship. Unlike other marriage enrichment programs, the learn-at-home packet allows you and your spouse to grow together in the privacy of your own home.

THE ENRICHMENT PLAN requires 20 to 30 minutes of "prime time" each day uninterrupted by children or visitors. Each spouse keeps a notebook in which to record responses to activities which are generally shared with the partner.

One activity involves a mutual discussion of the couple's levels of support for each other. Spouses are asked to rank support level from total support for an action through open disapproval. The partners then describe these situations and how each made them feel.

The materials in the packet were developed by Herb Lingren, extension family life specialist. He cautions that marriage enrichment is not the same as marriage counseling. Lingren recommends that if a marriage is in trouble, the couple should seek marital therapy to get the foundation restored. Once a good foundation exists, marriage enrichment can help to make a good marriage better.

Even strong marriages have conflicts. One section of the learn-at-home packet deals with resolving conflict. Guides help partners to discuss problems in terms that allow for solutions to be developed.

FINALLY, COUPLES may take a marriage potential inventory, which reviews 10 aspects of married life such as common goals and values, money management, effective parenting and appreciation and affection. Couples can then take an honest look at the satisfaction in their relationship. An outline for a plan of action will help couples translate their marriage potential into action steps.

WSC Wildcats, Lady Cats find the going rough in latest outings

The Wayne State College men's and women's basketball teams carried an 0-2 record in their latest road contests during the past week.

For the Wildcats, Peru State tightened up the Nebraska Athletic Conference race with a 70-62 win over WSC on Tuesday night in Peru. Nationally-ranked Fort Hays State then handed WSC a CSIC conference loss Friday night, in a 77-38 decision in Hays, Kan. The losses moved Rick Weaver's squad to 10-12 overall and 3-6 in the CSIC, while the Tigers topped their tally to 21-3 and a 8-1 CSIC record.

THE FORT HAYS women's team got their revenge against Wayne State for downing them earlier in the year, and hit the century mark in the process, with a 100-72 victory on Friday night as part of the conference doubleheader. The Lady Wildcats fell to 9-14 overall and 1-8 in the conference. Their hosts improved to 15-7 overall and broke the 300 mark in the CSIC with a 9-4 record.

The Lady Tigers controlled the game from the outset against WSC, going on top early and building to a 53-38 halftime lead.

Bright spots for Wayne included the scoring of Barb Wraggs and Robin Wells, each with 16 points to lead the Lady Wildcats. In the team shooting statistics, WSC was just of 79 for 42 percent and Hays hit 43 of 31 or just under 60 percent.

From the line, Wayne hit 6 of 18 for 33 percent, while their hosts went 14 of 21 for 67 percent.

Sharl Krohn, Wells, and Ree Gribble shared top rebounding honors for WSC with five boards each.

ON THE MEN'S SIDE of the scoreboard, Wayne State lost out in a 97-78 game with number six Fort Hays State Friday night.

The Wildcats scrapped with Hays and held a 29-28 lead with 4:22 left in the first half following a three-point play by Tracy Penn. It was the last time that WSC was to lead, however, as the Tigers outscored the Cats 20-8 to move to a 49-37 halftime margin.

WSC tied back to within seven points at 52:45 early in the first half on a bucket by senior John Thomsen, but Hays reacted with a scoring tear that moved them to a 20-point lead which they held on to the remainder of the game.

The Cats were led in scoring by Tracy Penn with 25 points, while Calvin Sprew led 22 points and Thomsen added 12 points.

On the night, WSC shot 67 for a really poor percent in shooting, while Hays was 37 of 61 for 61 percent.

At the line, WSC hit 8 of 10 for 80 percent. Their hosts were at the line 20 times, converting 23 attempts for 77 percent.

WSC was hindered by their rebounding in the game, taking in only 16 boards compared to 39 for Fort Hays. Calvin Sprew led with eight individual rebounds.

PERU STATE WAS able to place themselves in a tie for second place in the NAAC with a 70-62 victory over Wayne State last Wednesday night. Each team has yet to face Kearney State, Chadron State and Bellevue in conference play.

Wayne State had downed the Bobcats earlier in the season in Rice Auditorium, 78-57.

Peru effectively shut down the Cats leading scorer Tracy Penn, limiting him to 11 points, well below his 19.8 ppg. average.

"Peru State came out with a box and one offense which really shut Penn down," said Coach Rick Weaver. Calvin Sprew and Ed Heritage shared the top scoring chores with 19 and 18 points respectively.

"They (Peru) are an improved team over the group we played earlier in the year. They are a good, young squad and should be interesting to see in the next couple of years," Weaver added.

Osmond tacks Winside in 84-45 loss

The Osmond Tigers had winning on their minds when they came out against the Winside boys basketball team on Thursday night, as win they did, as they set back the Wildcats 84-45 on the Tigers home floor.

"Osmond really came out to win in this game," said Winside Coach Mark Freburg. "They came into the game off a big loss to Wausau and they were out to get things moving again."

THE TIGERS CONTROLLED the pace of the game from the start, according to Freburg, making it a fast-paced contest with their fast break. Winside had turnover troubles in the first half and the Tigers took advantage of the fact to bring the ball down on the break and outdistance the Wildcats 41-22 at the half.

In the third and fourth quarters, Winside picked up their outside shooting game a bit, but was unable to make up the scoring difference. In the fourth quarter, Osmond doubled the Wildcats scoring, 26-13.

Despite the loss, Winside posted three players in double figures, led by Doug Mundt with 12 points. Mike Thies helmed 11 points and Kevin Falk dropped in 10 points. Falk also topped the Wildcats on the boards with 10 rebounds and Thies hauled in eight rebounds.

"Osmond controlled the pace of the game, and our fast break attack was really working for them," said Freburg. "We were able to work the ball in fairly well on offense, but there were times when we may have tried to force the ball to the inside, especially in the first half."

Freburg was pleased with the performance of his three top scorers. "Doug had a good game for us with 12 points, and both Kevin Falk and Mike did some good inside shooting."

IN THE JUNIOR varsity game, Winside came out on the winning end of a 26-20 score.

Mike Thies led the reserves with nine points. The Wildcats varsity, 0-15, will travel to Newcastle for their final regular season game this coming Friday, Feb. 15. Sub-district play is scheduled to begin the week of Feb. 18.

Allen nipped 34-33 by Beemer

The Allen Eagles girls' basketball team ended their regular season schedule with a narrow 34-33 loss to a visiting Beemer squad on Thursday night before a Parents Night crowd.

THE EAGLES WERE in the lead for most of the game, according to Coach Gary Troth, including a 25-20 third quarter lead. Beemer got ahead on a field goal with 25 seconds left, 34-33. Allen missed a chance to go ahead in the waning seconds of the game when a shot by senior Pam Heckathorn failed to drop, but the Eagles picked-up the rebound when Heckathorn controlled on the jump following the rebound. She got one more opportunity at the hoop, but her shot at the buzzer hit the rim and bounced away.

Allen shot 12 of 34 from the floor in the game for 35 percent, while their opponents hit 15 of 31 attempts for 48 percent. From the line, the Eagles were 9 of 19 for 47 percent and Beemer hit 4 of 13 for 31 percent.

"Our offense was able to penetrate their (Beemer's) zone defense, and we didn't feel that we had to force the ball," said Troth. "Beemer played a good defensive game, and we had some trouble handling their taller girls."

Heckathorn ended the game as Allen's leading scorer with 14 points. Mary Oswald and Shelly Boyle each netted six points.

ALLEN LOST the battle on the boards as well, being outrebounded 21 to 15 on the night. "We gave up some rebounds... it was really a physical game underneath there and we really didn't give them a good matchup," said Troth.

The Eagles' reserve squad totally dominated in their game, taking a 40-6 sweep from Beemer.

Allen's varsity, 9-7 on the year, will face Wakefield in the opening round of the sub-district C2 playoffs tonight (Monday) in Emerson at 6:30 p.m. In an earlier meeting between the two teams, Allen took a 33-23 decision from the Trojans at Wakefield.

sports briefs

Former WSC cage coach to speak

Dave Gunther, head basketball coach at the University of North Dakota and a native of Le Mars, Iowa, will speak at the Morningside College Chiefs Club Luncheon on Friday, Feb. 8 at Mynick's in Sioux City, beginning at 2 p.m.

Now in his fifteenth year of coaching at North Dakota, Gunther's record is 270-127. His UND teams have won five North Central Conference championships and appeared in NCAA Division II post-season regional and quarterfinal round tournaments eight of the last 11 years.

Prior to assuming the head coaching job at North Dakota, Gunther was head basketball coach at Wayne State College from 1967-70. A 1959 graduate of the University of Iowa, where he was an All-Big Ten forward and the Hawkeye's Most Valuable Player three times and captain twice, Gunther grew up in Le Mars, where he was an All-State player in basketball twice.

Gunther was inducted into the Iowa High School Basketball Hall of Fame in 1978 and into the Wayne State College Hall of Fame in 1981.

Tickets for the luncheon are $4 and will be available at the door.

Women's rec basketball offered

Wayne City Recreation Director Hank Overin has announced that beginning this coming Wednesday, Feb. 13, women's recreation basketball will be offered at the Wayne area.

Those interested in participating in the program must be a resident of Wayne county or have a mailing address of Wayne rural routes one or two. College students will not be allowed to participate unless they are from the eligible Wayne area. Seniors at Wayne-Carroll High School are exempt if they are not currently participating in the school's girls' basketball program.

Games times will run from 6:15 to 7:30 each Wednesday night until approximately the second week of April. Overin added that he hopes to have a sign-up list with 15 to 20 participants for the league.

Playing gear consists of tennis shoes and sweats, shower facilities are available.

ETV to broadcast state wrestling

For the 16th year, the Nebraska Educational Television Network will provide coverage of the 1985 Nebraska State High School Wrestling Championships, to air Saturday, Feb. 16 at 8 p.m.

The three-hour sports broadcast, videotaped earlier in the day at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, Bob Devaney Sports Center, features the finals in all classes of the state wrestling championships.

Lincoln sportscaster Don Gill will provide match action, with UN-Omaha men's wrestling Coach Michael Denney giving color commentary for the telecast. A special quad-split screen technique enables simultaneous coverage of all four high school classes in the different weight divisions.

Laurel battles Wausau in 47-42 home court loss

A good solid effort may not have meant a win for the Laurel Bears basketball team in their 47-42 loss to Wausau on Friday night, but the performance gave the coaching staff and players a boost going into their final two games of the season.

"WE ARE PLAYING really good basketball right now... we have two games left to play before we head into the district tournament, so we're not about to hang anything up yet," said Held.

Laurel was outscored 14-8 in the first period of the game, while a tight zone defense by Wausau forced the Bears to go for the outside shot, which they had difficulty hitting. Through the remainder of the game, the Bears either scored evenly with Wausau or outscored them in each period.

After trailing Wausau 27-21 at the half, Laurel was able to shut down the Vikings scoring, but fell prey to a split split at the basket as well and was unable to capitalize on their opportunities.

A 10 for 12 free throw shooting performance by Wausau in the final minutes of the game proved to make the difference in the game for Laurel. "If it hadn't been for our intention to shoot towards the end of the game, Wausau wouldn't have come up with their five-point winning margin," said Held.

Scott Rath hit double figures for Laurel with 13 points, while Brent Haisch, Mike Granquist and Mike Forsberg each adding eight points. Rath also led the Bears in rebounding with 10 boards.

"IT WAS A GOOD effort by our team... they played a solid game all-night long," said Held. He was also pleased with his team's defensive effort, which held Wausau's leading scorer to 16 points, six points below his usual 22 points per game average.

The Bears, 4-9 on the year, were scheduled to travel to Plainview for a game Saturday night.

Beemer boys continue winning roll with 58-37 win over Allen

Hot off their recent Lewis and Clark conference championship, the Beemer boys basketball team rolled past the Allen Eagles 58-37 on Friday night in Allen.

The Eagles were slow coming off the bench following a nearly two-week long layoff after being beaten out by Ponca in the first round of the conference tournament.

"THE LAYOFF PROBABLY cost us about 10 points in the game," said Allen Coach Dave Uldrich. "We just had trouble running our offense all night and never really got into it."

The Bobcats hit the hoops early and built up a 7-5 lead at the end of the first quarter. The Eagles had problems in the passing department and gave up several turnovers which Beemer capitalized on to open their scoring margin.

"They took us out of our game, and that turned out to be a key in their win," Uldrich explained. He added that the Eagles had wanted to run a slower-paced style of play and they weren't able to do that when Beemer went ahead early.

Beemer remained in the driver's seat throughout the game, putting ahead by as many as 22 points before faking the 58-37 win to improve their season record to 17-1.

Craig Noe led Allen's scoring with eight points, while Jay Jones added six points. Kevin Malcom topped the boards with 10 rebounds. Overall, the Eagles held a 39 to 39 advantage on the boards.

"It was a physical game, and I felt that we would have the advantage if it came to a game like that. We told the kids before the game to play hard underneath the basket...but defensively we were out-rebounded," Uldrich said.

Uldrich agreed that Beemer's Arvid Hass, ranked among the top scoring leaders in the conference, was a factor in the game. "We were hoping to keep him from penetrating underneath the basket, but he was able to do that and did plenty of damage to us," he said. Hass scored 15 points in the win for Beemer.

"WE DIDN'T HAVE anyone that really took charge for us offensively on the court, and our ball handling and passing was poor at times."

Allen fell by four points to Beemer in the reserve contest, 29-35. Leading scorers were Craig Hoffman with 13 points and Jyoti Kwankin with 10 points.

The Eagles will travel to Wynot this Friday evening, Feb. 15 for their last regular season game before beginning subdistrict play the following week.

Wayne 'picks' up lucky 13th win over South Sioux City

Win number 13 proved to be lucky for the Wayne Blue Devils boys basketball team, as they took their third win of the season over South Sioux City, in a 57-44 contest Friday night on the road.

The Blue Devils, ranked eighth in the latest Omaha World-Herald Class B poll, upped their record to 13-2 going into a game with Elkhorn that was scheduled for Saturday night in Wayne.

"We played a good defensive game in the first half and we had strong rebounding, which was a key to the game for us," said Wayne Coach Bob Uhing. "We played more aggressive on both offense and defense, which I was really happy with."

JUNIOR-BRENT PICK turned in his finest scoring performance of the season, ripping the nets for 26 points on nine field goals and 9 of 11 shots from the line. "Brent played an aggressive game, and the other players on the team got the ball to him when we was open," said Uhing.

Wayne took a 14-9 lead at the end of the first quarter and piled on 14 more points in the second period to hold a 28-14 halftime lead. Uhing said his team got some good offensive boards in the first half and was able to score off them to help pad their lead.

The Cardinals came on to make up two points in the score during the third quarter, but Wayne churned out 19 points in the final eight minutes to leave South Sioux City in the distance.

Along with Pick's double figure scoring, Don Larsen hit the nets for 15 points, and Rod Dahl carded nine points. On the boards, Larsen brought in 10 rebounds and Pick pulled in seven rebounds.

"I was really pleased with the team's play, we had a good week of practice and were mentally ready to play the game, which is an important factor for us," said Uhing. "It was a good team effort from the starters and the players off the bench to their."

Uhing added that the Blue Devils moved the ball well and showed a strong passing game. "Our passing is getting better, we're able to get the ball to the open man most of the time."

"SOUTH SIOUX CITY is tough to beat at home and it was a nice win for us," Uhing said. Wayne took a win over South Sioux in the finals of the Wayne State College Holiday basketball tournament in late December and defeated them a couple of weeks later in a regular season game played in Wayne.

"We still need to improve on things, the kids are working really hard right now and they have good attitudes."

Wayne's reserve team fell to the Cardinals in a 65-40 contest. Troy Wood led Wayne with 10 points. Corey Dahl, Scott Baker and Casey Nichols all added six points.

Free throw shooting in clutch lifts Wayne girls to 42-38 overtime victory

Solid free throw shooting in the final moments of the game made the difference for the Wayne High girls basketball team on Thursday night in a 42-38 overtime win over Emerson-Hubbard on the road.

The Lady Blue Devils hit six of their last seven attempts at the line in the game, including four during the overtime period to come from behind and clinch the victory.

"Our free throw shooting really made the difference in the end," said Wayne Coach Dale Hochstein.

WAYNE TOOK THE upper hand from the opening buzzer and opened an 8-4 lead in the first quarter and expanded that to a 16-9 halftime margin. Both teams remained at a standoff in the third quarter, but Emerson-Hubbard bounced back in the fourth period to make a game of it.

With 1:30 left, the Pirates knotted the score at 24-24. Wayne's Laura Kesting brought Wayne back on top 36-34 when she hit both ends of a one and one attempt with a minute left. In the final seconds, Emerson-hit a field goal to put the game into overtime after a Wayne shot at the buzzer fell no good.

The Pirates went to the hoop and scored in the initial seconds of the overtime period, but Wayne answered back with a field goal by Shelly Pick and a pair of free throws by Lori Jacobsen and Sonja Skokan to ice the win.

Kecia Corbit ended the game as Wayne's leading scorer with 16 points, while Shelly Pick also hit double figures with 12 points. On the night, Wayne shot 17 of 53 for 32 percent and the Pirates were 18 of 57 for a similar 32 percent.

"It was a great win for us going into our two home games at the end of the season," said Hochstein. "Right now we need to work on some fundamental things...execution will be a key for us in these next two games."

"We didn't execute our offense well, but we were patient with the ball. Our loss pass to the player under the bucket worked well and we were able to score off it several times," Hochstein added.

ON THE BOARDS, Wayne held a rebounding 41 to 23 advantage, but Hochstein said that his team got into foul trouble early underneath the basket but were able to get better position in the second half.

In the junior varsity game, Wayne took an easy 35-19 win. Kecia Corbit was again the leading scorer with 10 points, and Missy Jones and Shelly Pick each added six points. Wayne's varsity, 2-14, will host Pierce tomorrow (Tuesday) night.

Lady Bears dealt second loss by Wausa 61-48

For only the second time in their successful 1984-85 season, Laurel-Concord's girls basketball team was dealt a defeat, as Wausa gained revenge and posted a 61-48 victory over the Lady Bears in their regular season finale.

Less than a week ago, Laurel came out on top of a 41-40 battle with Wausa to advance to the championship round of the Lewis and Clark Conference playoffs.

BOTH TEAMS PLAYED a very hard game, but we just couldn't get into the run and gun type of game that Wausa was playing," said Laurel Coach Gale Hamilton. "Wausa was just a little more hungry for the win than we were this time."

Wausa jumped out to an early 15-5 lead in the first quarter before Laurel got on track and came back to make it a 15-13 game going into the second quarter. "Wausa was shooting very well in the first half of the game...I wasn't that we weren't going with our shots," Hamilton said. "Wausa hit four or five good shots early and we gave them a couple of easy inside buckets."

The Lady Bears outscored Wausa 12-10 in the second quarter to tie the score at the half 25-25.

Both teams continued to head for the hoop in the third quarter and Laurel took as much as a five point lead before Wausa lightened the score at 40-39 going into the final period.

It was at that point that the "bottom seemed to fall out," according to Hamilton. "We got four points down, and Wausa went into a press and picked off a couple of steals which resulted in scores and suddenly we were down by eight. It was just too much to late in the game."

LAUREL WAS ALSO hampered by injuries to two of their starters, Wendy Robson and Gail Twiford. Robson was slowed by knee problems, while Twiford suffered a back injury during the game's fourth quarter.

"I'm not going to make any excuses...right now we just have to pull our heads together and come back to play in our subdistrict," said Hamilton.

Renee Vanderheiden went on a scoring tear in the loss, netting 24 of Laurel's 40 points on 12 of 22 shots from the floor. Robson was the only other Lady Bear in double figures with 12 points, and led in rebounds with seven. Michelle Jostin added five boards.

The Laurel reserves scored a win over Wausa in a close 25-22 contest. Penny Dempster led the scoring for the Lady Bears with eight points.

Laurel's varsity, 15-2, will match up with Emerson-Hubbard in the opening round of C1-10 subdistrict play this evening (Monday) at Rice Auditorium at 6:30 p.m.

she would go to AA," she said.
 "It was a wonderful way to unleash all the feelings that I had stuffed away. I got rid of all my resentment toward my mother," she added.
 "Al-Anon is a wonderful type of program for anyone, especially if they know of an alcoholic or
 "You don't go to sober people up. You go to see how to be happy, correcting the shortcomings while making friends," she mentioned.
 "We learn how to moderate our own lives so we don't trigger things that could cause unhappiness."
 Peggy's mother is still drinking. Her mother must make the first move for treatment. "But, because of Al-Anon, I no longer punish-my guilt but rather, I say 'Poor mother, Daddy's gone.
 I've got to do something,'" Peggy says.
 The situation for Mary was opposite.
 Mary grew up in a nonalcoholic home. "Most people view an alcoholic as a down-in-the-gutter bum and have a misconception of the disease. It could be the next door neighbor, best friend, wife or husband."

 In Mary's situation, it was her oldest son.
 She paid heed to her son's drinking following a senior party.
 "We didn't think he had a drinking problem before that."
 "When he went to college, he got worse. We were hoping that it was just a phase and he would grow out of it."
 Mary blamed her son's friends.
 She thought her son had some problems he was drowning out.
 There were lots of things to blame his drinking on or find reasons to justify his drinking, she said.
 "Things had to get really, really bad before the admitting came of being powerless to alcohol," she added.
 "I found myself very defensive when talking about drinking.
 Denial by alcoholic and the family is a classic system of alcoholism."
 SHE GAVE HER son the choice of treatment or moving out of the home. "It was very hard telling your child to go when you know he had no place to go."

"I was hung up on not putting a label [of alcoholic] on my son."
 The son chose the treatment center. He is now in his second year of sobriety.
 "What we learned, the most important, is to be less judgmental and be more open in expressing our love," Mary said.
 "A lot of my feelings before Al-Anon involved a lot of misconceptions. I couldn't see how it could be helpful or how it would make any difference," she said.
 "Anytime drinking creates a problem in somebody's life, Al-Anon will help to see the problem and help the person deal with that problem. Al-Anon may help you, and in turn may help the problem drinker."
 "We found that we have no control over his drinking or any other drinker. We're there [at Al-Anon] to help ourselves," Mary said.
 Parents, she said, have the tendency to feel guilty as to what they might have done to cause a son or daughter to become an alcoholic.
 The first step is to get over that whole thought, she said.

THREE TELEPHONE numbers are available for those in the Wayne area who wish to learn more about Al-Anon and Aleatone, which is a branch of Al-Anon designed primarily for children who are touched by alcoholism. Most of the situations are child-parent oriented.
 "Kids can find by attending Aleatone that there is hope for all kids, even if they live in a home with alcoholics," said Peggy.
 Those numbers are: 375-1838, 375-4245 or 375-4933.
 The Al-Anon group meets every Wednesday night on the third floor of the Wayne City Hall, beginning at 8 p.m.
 "The problems are out there. I wish we could reach all the desperate people where alcohol is creating a problem in their life," Mary said.
 "Looking back, people have a hard time accepting alcoholism is a disease, but instead treat the problem as a matter of willpower or of low morality."
 "In the beginning, alcohol is a way to relieve some of these feelings, but it becomes a problem when it has progressed and become of diseasestate."

SENIOR CITIZENS.
 The Senior Citizens held their monthly business meeting, Feb. 5 at the auditorium.
 Ella Miller conducted the meeting. The secretary and treasurer reports were approved
