Rush on Valentines

WINSIDE STUDENT Council members continued a Valentine's Day tradition of selling "misses" with Valentines and delivering them to unsuspecting students. The Valentines cost a nickel and by Tuesday noon over 1,300 were sold. When a student was asked what that amounted to, she replied heartily: "A loss." Left to right are student council members Teresa Brudigan, Tammy Brudigan, Karen Reeg and Trisha Topp.

Thoughts on Valentine's Day

Since this paper comes out on Wednesday afternoon, many of you will be reading this on Valentine's Day. This has also come to be called Worldwide Marriage Day.

There have been a couple of reader surveys by nationally-syndicated columnists lately which have prompted a lot of comment. One was by Ann Landers, and had to do with "cuddling." The second was by Mike Royko, in response to the first, and had to do with "bowling." I didn't answer either one, but I've been thinking about them as I make my Home Health Care rounds.

As I told a group last week, I gain so much more than I give when I visit my senior citizen-patients. I have gained some lasting impressions of what marriage is really all about.

We recite the traditional vows, "for richer, for poorer, for better, for worse, in sickness, and in health, until death do us part," with little thought of what we are pledging at the time.

Sickness comes in many forms. My aunt and uncle observed an anniversary today and I called to see how they were doing. (I was their candle lighter.) He's just had his third major abdominal surgery, and she's tenderly caring for him. His spirits are good, especially because of her acceptance of his altered body image.

A woman in the "I Can Cope" session gave credit for her recovery from a mastectomy to a loving husband who never failed to assure her of his feelings for her, regardless of her body changes.

AFTER FIFTY YEARS OR MORE, my wife and I have learned the habit of sleeping together. They don't sleep well apart.

I learned this after we put a hospital bed in front of a living room window for one severe arthritic. The wife told me one day that he had fallen out of bed one night and a neighbor had come to put him back. (I've learned there are many good neighbors out there.) I reminded her that there were side rails on the bed, and she sheepishly replied, "But he doesn't sleep there at night. He sleeps in our bed, with me."

Another gentleman had a depressed white count and was subject to infection, so his wife slept in the spare room because she had a cold. When I saw him, his only complaint was that she wasn't sleeping with him.

Men can be caretakers, too. One woman has been almost totally helpless and uncommunicative for seven years. She is totally cared for by her husband. He cooks, cleans, does the wash, turns her, changes the bed, feeds, and talks to her. He also cans meat and freezes corn. I think his ability to stay busy helps him to cope with the loneliness.

There are people confined to wheelchairs, unable to move two or more extremities. There are catheters, bedpans, and commodes to empty; there may be shots to give, special apparatus. Some may need help with colostomy care or dressing changes.

WHEN THERE is finally the move to the nursing home, the devotion doesn't stop. Daily visits, help with meal times, special foods prepared, and just time spent with each other continue.

Though I enjoy flowers and sentimental cards, I have a hunch that there haven't been all that much of those in these marriages. It goes much deeper. There is complete devotion, for the other, and appreciation for the years together. Often, there is little verbal communication.

Yes, Ann Landers, women like to be held. So do men. Hugs are important for survival. Touch is probably the oldest form of communication.

And it's probably good that we have an annual day to remind us of the value of expressing our love. But let's not reserve it for one day. As the 85-year old gent said to me this morning, "I just want an arm around her. She can't say she hasn't had lots of that." His wife nodded in agreement, her eyes filled with tears.

And I thought "Lucky Woman."

Administrative contracts renewed ESU analyzes levy programs

by Chuck Hackenmiller
After an hour of closed session, Education Service Unit One (ESU-1) members unanimously voted to freeze the salaries and benefits of three ESU administrative positions for the upcoming 1985-86 year.

The contracts of Harry Mills, administrator; Rodney Garwood, assistant administrator; and Duane Tappe, director of special education were all extended for another year.

Prior to the executive session, ESU board members listened to a report prepared by three ESU board members for the review of the budget and costs of ESU's services.

Randy Shaw of Wayne, Paul Steffen of Hartington and Ervin DeBoer of Walthill were appointed by Chairman Deryl Lawrence of Wayne last month to serve on a committee which would study all of ESU's general levy programs. Formation of the committee came after a proposal to change the financing of the nursing services program was defeated.

The committee recommended that nursing services be subsidized by the ESU 1 board members. The dollar figure would be used in providing as much nursing service as possible per school — on a per-pupil basis.

FURTHER SERVICES or more services would be purchased by the school. The dollar figure supplied by ESU 1 also would be used to provide for a director of nursing services, for materials and for in-service of new nurses.

"The committee feels additional costs for time must be assumed by the schools and that individual nursing services and time should be controlled by the schools who use the services," said DeBoer, who is chairman of the committee.

"After going the full circle with this, I have a great appreciation of the quality services which are provided. But we need to control the factors at our disposal to control the costs," said Steffen.

The important thing, he said, is to get the cost of the ESU nursing services program down to $180,000-$195,000 — so that a third of the ESU money is not in one particular program. The 1984-85 budget figure for nursing services was $227,000.

Steffen said that if the nursing services cost per student was $18, then the school district could contribute 10 percent of that amount ($1.80) which would raise $22,000 into the nursing service fund.

He said the present nursing services offers "an invaluable service to stress situations we have today" and added that he would hope to see school districts go back to utilizing only state-required nursing services.

The committee also recommended the following for consideration by the ESU board:

*Administration — ESU 1 should restructure the administration of the unit to reduce budget costs. The committee recommends that a special committee be appointed to develop a plan of administrative change, to create a number of directives for administrator action, specify items for evaluation and prepare a plan of administrative change in the ESU 1 leadership.

This committee should report the recommendations to the ESU board no later than the October, 1985 regular meeting.

*CO-OP PURCHASE — The cost of purchasing materials in the co-op program cover adequately all administrative and handling costs of the program by an adequate percent of charge for this service. This should include administrator's time, clerical help, warehouse and other related costs and should be charged to schools who use the co-op purchase services.

In the co-op program, school districts within ESU service areas pool together to purchase goods (either computers or simply pencils or rulers) from suppliers who provide the state-wide coordinating agency on co-op purchasing (ESU 17) with competitive bids on the products they sell.

School districts contract to purchase the supplies. They would pay the cost of the supplies, plus an added cost for expenses incurred by ESU 17 and the area ESU for handling the bidding and materials purchased.

Last fiscal year approximately $240,000 of goods were purchased by the school districts (including Wayne State College) through the co-op program.

The committee recommended that the school district's cost in the co-op purchasing program should adequately cover all administrative and handling costs.

*Media — the media delivery van service be "partially funded" by a fee charged to schools who use the service. This cost would cover film delivery, transport of repair equipment or other items repaired by the unit's service department.

Future purchases of audio-visual materials should focus on new state-of-the-art media and should de-emphasize the purchase of obsolete media such as 16 mm films or filmstrips.

*SPECIAL EDUCATION — No more than 4 percent of total mill money may be used as a contingency or supplemental fund to provide for a shortfall of funds in the special education budget.

This 4 percent contingency fund should be based on the total approved contract cost of the special education budget for each school year.

If the special education contract cost for next year is $1 million and only $700,000 is collected from the contract holders, then only 4 percent of the local special education one-mill money is allocated toward the shortfall created when the contracts are not completely paid.

*Reserve — The tax levy be kept at the legal maximum rate for the forthcoming year. See ESU, page 2a

Council approves Roosevelt Project specs

by Chuck Hackenmiller
Plans and specifications were approved by the Wayne City Council Tuesday evening for the improvement project of Roosevelt Park.

Wayne city officials were notified last August that the Roosevelt Park project is earmarked for $131,200 in Community Development Block Grant funding. That amount is 80 percent of the total anticipated cost ($164,000) to complete the improvement project.

The remaining $33,000 balance for the project is expected to be raised through general obligation type funding.

The Roosevelt Park area includes the following streets south of Fairground Avenue on the southeast edge of Wayne: two blocks of Nebraska Street; two blocks of Window Street; and two blocks of Folk Street, which is an east-west roadway.

Improvements scheduled for Roosevelt Park are to pave the existing streets, replace all the area's water systems and replace a portion of the sanitary sewer system. Of the $164,000 projected cost, $108,500 will be for street improvements; $43,600 for water systems improvements; $9,350 for sewer system improvements; and $2,550 for administration and audit of the community development block grant funding.

WAYNE CITY Administrator Phil Kloster recommended two alternatives be added to the plans and specifications. Bids for the project will be opened at 8 p.m. on March 12.

Alternatives to the plans and specifications would be "for placement of all sidewalks, where sidewalks do not exist or where ever there are deteriorating sidewalks," Kloster said.

Another alternative would be to extend the paving on South Window Street approximately 120 feet south beyond the barricade set up near the Connable Street intersection. The extra paving will likely result in building up the road and extending it down into the flood plain.

The additional paving is expected to cost about $7,000. However, Kloster said the cost of the proposed project, along with the two alternatives, should still remain at $164,000. "What's the advantage of extending the paving?" asked Council Member Carolyn Filter.

"It will open up the lots for potential development," Kloster answered.

In other action, the Wayne city council:

*Passed two ordinances, one providing for candidate qualifications and another for providing for definitions and procedures for Recall Elections.

*And passed a resolution allowing the Police Retirement Commission to deposit their retirement funds in the International City Managers Association Retirement Corporation.

*And conducted a public hearing on the proposed road construction project of Highway 35 and North 15 Street Improvement District.

At the next council meeting, the council can act on making the road improvement project into an ordinance which will specifically designate the project into a street improvement district.

This procedure is required before the state highway department can go to bid letting for the road improvement project.

Wayne-Carroll athletic director resignation approved

by Chuck Hackenmiller
Harold (Mac) Maciejewski, long-time instructor, coach and athletic director at Wayne-Carroll High School, submitted his letter of resignation to the Wayne-Carroll School District.

The board members approved the resignation Monday during their regular meeting.

Also, the board members accepted the resignation of Marie Skokan, currently the sixth grade social science instructor at the Wayne-Carroll Middle School.

Maciejewski began teaching at Wayne High School in 1953. For the first nine years he taught Social Science American History before becoming a physical education instructor in 1962 — a position he has maintained at the high school for 22 years.

Maciejewski has also been athletic director at Wayne-Carroll for 31 years, working with contracts, scheduling games, buying of athletic equipment, handling entry fees and obtaining officials for high school athletic events.

Skokan is retiring from teaching after 20 years with the Wayne-Carroll school system. She started in 1964 as instructor of the sixth grade class. As the curriculum became more departmentalized, she basically taught in the Language Arts and Social Studies areas.

IN OTHER action Monday, the school district board members have received a letter requesting that the Wayne Education Association be recognized as the official negotiating agent of the teachers for the 1985-86 contract year.

Joyce Reeg, Neil Sandahl and Cap Peterson were appointed as team members of the school board negotiating team.

Employment matters which will be negotiated through good faith include salaries, insurances and the number of days in the school calendar, voted the school board in responding to the Association's requests.

The school board will not negotiate any items which are not considered negotiable items according to the rules of Industrial Relations.

A new law will require elementary and middle school students to complete 1,032 hours of instructional programs during the course of a school year. The high school instructional program will be 1,080 hours, according to Haur.

Haur said the instructional policy for instructional programs did not have to be submitted until February of 1986. "But it is wise to do it early so now we know we can do it," he said.

For many years, he said, the Wayne-Carroll school district has had an 180 day instructional program, with teachers on an 185 day contract.

"It will not affect the high school as much as the elementary school," Haur said.

Classes will convene at the following times: for grades 1-4, from 8:35 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.; grade five, classes will convene each day at 8:35 a.m. and conclude at 3:35 p.m., creating 1,068 hours per school year; for sixth grade, classes will begin at 8:35 a.m. and conclude at 3:45 p.m., with 1,128 hours of instruction per year; for seventh and eighth grade, classes would start at 8:35 a.m. and go till 3:50 p.m., creating 1,155 hours per year; and for the high school level, classes would begin at 8:38 a.m. and go till 3:50 p.m., yielding a total of 81 extra hours over the new 1,080-hour regulation.

The board took no action on the policy of school hours.

The "hours regulation" over the "180 or so day" schedule was the recommendation of the Governor's Task Force for Excellence in Education, which convened in the summer and fall of 1983. Wayne-Carroll School Board President Becky Keidel was a member of that committee.

KEIDEL SAID some school districts (particularly those in western Nebraska) which traveled great distances to school events had requested the regulated "days" be switched to "hours" so the districts could fulfill state regulations.

"Some were looking at scheduling classes four days a week at longer hours. That way they would get the class time in and spend Friday as an activity day," Keidel said Monday.

Closing schools on Friday would also save on energy, she said.

Keidel also released a "philosophy statement" from the subcommittee of the school district's Gifted Task Force, focusing on one group — which is the academically talented. Pull-out programs are not a desirable method of meeting the needs of the academically talented. Acceleration works well in the area of mathematics but acceleration is not the answer for the academically talented, according to the subcommittee's statement.

All teachers must learn to recognize the needs of the academically talented students and to differentiate their assignments and teaching strategies — just as they would for budget. The committee further recommends that schools must be assessed for at least a portion of all actual services cost. "The committee urges the board members to take this action in order to bolster the reserve, in light of declining property valuation and anticipated shortages in tax collections," DeBoer said. "Adequate reserve is also needed to provide opportunities for the unit to meet anticipated legislative mandates," he added. Board member Robert Jacobs of Verdigré agreed with the theory of bolstering the reserve. "We could be dangerously close to running out of money," said Jacobs. Another way to save in the areas of nursing service, was brought up for discussion by Lawrence. That is to consider not contracting, through ESU, nursing services to parochial schools. "I'm sure nobody here would like to see the services discontinued (at the parochial schools)," Lawrence said. He said there is a way to solve the problem legally. ESU, he said, is legally bound to contract with public schools. The public schools are under different requirements, he said, and can develop a program locally with schools existing in the area and work it out themselves, he said. Parochial schools could buy into the nursing services from public schools, he said. Action on the committee's recommendations were tabled until the March meeting, with instructions for Garwood to accumulate additional data on several of the recommendations.

talented and plan for implementation in the student's classroom. "Once implementation begins, teachers would share their successes and failures among themselves and other staff members, changing and refining. "And an in-service should be conducted for all staff to share insights, heighten awareness concerning the needs of the academically talented, and set the stage for all staff to begin implementation of a more differentiated approach to classroom teaching. In other action, the Wayne-Carroll school board: "Extended the contract of Superintendent Francis Haun another year. Haun is currently serving a three-year contract. "Gave permission for the school district superintendent to employ a speech clinician. "Why contract? speech clinician services with the service unit for $25,000 when we can get one here for no more than $19,000," Haun said. "And received a report from Cas Peterson, representing the school district board on the Legislative Relations Network. Legislative bills of recent concern are LB 397, which would, if passed, increase the state sales tax two cents. One and one-half cents would be distributed to local school districts while the remaining 1/2 cent would be used in allowing teachers to receive supplemental income payments from school districts; and LB-560 deals with the budget bid, making the bid at 5 percent with the option of the board to take the bid to 7 percent with a public hearing. Current budget increase bid is 7 percent.

Bills would shift local property tax burden to state

Nebraskans would shift a large portion of their local property tax burden to the state sales tax under two bills advanced last week by the Revenue Committee to the full Legislature.

The bills, LB 38 and LB 712, would increase the state's 3.5 percent sales tax rate by one percentage point, and thereby generate $90 million to $100 million annually. The new revenue from the sales tax increase would then be returned to homeowners to offset their local property tax bills.

LB 38, introduced by Sen. Howard Lamb of Anselmo, would return the money in the form of a direct rebate check to the taxpayer from state government, and would offset approximately 70 percent of his or her annual local property tax bill. The exact amount of the offset would depend on how much the extra percentage point on the state sales tax generates in a year.

LB 712, introduced by Sen. Vard Johnson of Omaha, would return the sales tax revenue through the general homestead exemption program. Thus, the payment from the state would be reflected as a credit on annual property tax bills rather than a check from state government.

During the Revenue Committee executive session on the subject, Sen. Dave Landis of Lincoln proposed the amendment which would tie the sales tax increase directly to each of the property tax proposals. The committee adopted the Landis amendments and voted 6-1 to advance the Johnson bill, and 7-0 to advance the Lamb bill.

REVENUE COMMITTEE members agreed that both bills should be advanced to give their colleagues a choice of methods for returning the aid payments to local taxpayers.

Asked by reporter about the advancement of the property tax relief initiatives, Gov. Bob Kerrey reacted coolly.

"I think it's foolish to launch off a $100 million expenditure for state aid when we haven't even decided on our overall expenditures for state operations," Kerrey said. Kerrey said questions of funding state government must be answered before embarking on a major property tax reduction initiative. He said he is hearing conflicting signals from legislators and others on his own proposed budget of $864 million.

His spending proposal has been criticized as being too high, but at the same time, lawmakers have reacted negatively to the individual cuts he has proposed in the budget.

Kerrey also criticized the two property tax bills for proposing a sales tax rate increase. If a property tax reduction plan is to be funded by state government, Kerrey said, the needed revenue should be generated by a broadened sales tax base rather than by an increase in the sales tax rate.

In his budget, Kerrey has proposed the elimination of sales tax exemptions — mostly those enjoyed by business — which would raise an estimated $44 million annually for state government.

The 1985 tax values of Nebraska farmland and ranchland would remain unchanged from 1984 values under a bill which is moving rapidly through the Legislature.

Sen. Cal Carsten of Avoca introduced the bill, LB 30, in response to the approval last November by voters of the Constitutional Amendment permitting a separate lower tax classification for agricultural and horticultural land.

Carsten characterized his bill as a short-term response to the Constitutional Amendment — a short-term proposal such as Carsten's must be enacted before March 1 if the annual property tax cycle is to continue uninterrupted. Counties are required to inform property owners of their annual valuation before April 1, and county assessors need time to prepare for the mailing.

The Revenue Committee has pending several proposals for a more permanent response to the Constitutional Amendment. Sen. Dave Landis of Lincoln is in charge of a committee task force which is developing a long range response to the valuation issue.

Child safety seats

Automobile accidents happen daily and all too often they involve children. The scenario is many times the same: "We were just going to the store and I was short on time so I didn't put the baby in its seat and..."

It doesn't even take an accident for a child to sustain serious injuries. A swerve into another lane or a sudden stop is enough to send a small child tumbling. During a 30 MPH crash, an unrestrained child will hit the dashboard or windshield with a force equal to a fall from a three story building.

The worst possible place for a child to ride is in the arms of an adult. Even a seat belted adult is not strong enough to hold onto a child in a crash. An unrestrained adult will literally crush a child against the dashboard.

The solution is simple — child safety seats. Child safety seats hold the child in a crash and keep the child from hitting dangerous objects or from being thrown out of the car. When used properly a child restraint will provide tremendous protection. There is 90 percent less chance of a child being fatally injured and 78 percent less chance of a child being seriously injured when riding restrained.

Currently all states in the United States excluding Wyoming have child restraint laws. Nebraska's law requires all children under 4 to be restrained in every motor vehicle except taxicabs, mopeds, motor cycles, and any motor vehicle made before 1963. The fine is $25 for violation and it can be dismissed if you can present proof of purchase or rental for a year.

Let National Child Passenger Safety Week serve as a reminder to buckle up your children and yourself and protect them from the most deadly childhood killer — automobile accidents.

Bereuter deals with ag crisis

Most of my time and much of the time of my colleagues from agricultural states is spent dealing with the agricultural credit crisis.

In the past two weeks, I have:

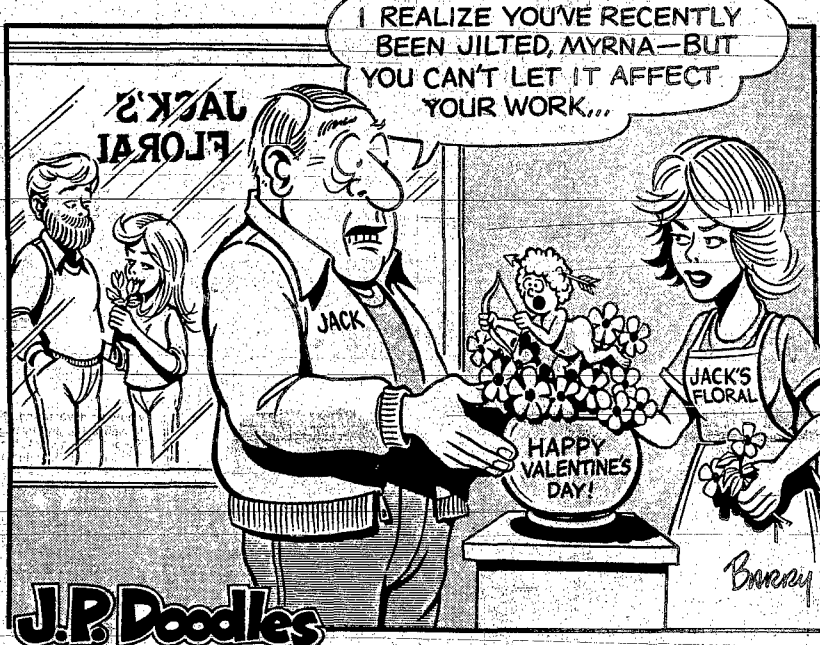

- Discussed farm credit problems and the effects on the rural economy with agribusiness representatives from Nebraska.
- Met with representatives of the Nebraska Soybean Association to discuss agricultural credit problems, the 1985 Farm Bill, and the 1985 federal budget.

- Attended a Congressional Farm Emergency Group meeting on the farm credit crisis with Farmers Home Administration and Department of Agriculture officials.
- Participated in two Congressional Farm Emergency Group bill-drafting sessions.
- Convened a Nebraska congressional delegation meeting on the farm credit problems in Nebraska.
- Met with representatives of the American Soybean Association to discuss expanding exports to the Soviet Union.
- Talked with Nebraska Pork Producers about agricultural problems.

- Discussed farm credit problems at a meeting with Nebraska bankers and the state's other two representatives, Virginia Smith and Hal Daub.
- Attended hearings in the House Agriculture Committee on Conservation and Credit concerning agricultural credit problems.
- Discussed an emergency farm credit bill proposed by Representative Tom Daschle of South Dakota that would provide advance price support loans equal to 50 percent of a producer's crop for those who participate in the 1985 farm program.
- Cosponsored a bill introduced by Representative Tom Coleman of Missouri that would incorporate some of the best features of both bills and would require the FmHA to either approve or reject a farmer's loan application within 30 days of receipt. Loan guarantees would be set at 80 percent and no showing would be required that credit is not available from a commercial lending bank.

- Begun to review a proposal by the Independent Bankers Association to increase funding for the FmHA loan guarantee program from the current $650 million to $3 billion and provide on an expedited basis a joint federal/private lender program to "buy down" interest rates on operating loans to farmers by four percentage points.
- Begun to review loan guarantee, interest buy down and credit assistance programs proposed by Nebraska, Kansas, North Dakota, and Minnesota Banking Associations.
- Called on the chairman of the House Banking Committee to have that committee investigate the farm credit situation and to hold hearings on the financial crisis affecting agricultural banks.
- Requested that the President meet with a bipartisan group of House members from agricultural states to discuss the crisis situation facing America's farmers and our agricultural communities.
- Requested that the Secretary of Labor notify governors of all states of the option to serve dislocated farmers who could benefit by job training programs.
- And met in Nebraska and in Washington with Nebraska Farm Crisis Committee leadership.

Proposed cuts threaten higher education

The Reagan Administration's proposed cuts in federal financial aid programs for students would have a devastating impact on access to higher education, said Laura Hein, chairperson of the government Liaison Committee at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. According to the U.S. Department of Education, federal financial aid would be cut off to over 1 million students if the president's recommendations were adopted.

Proposed changes for 1986-87 include the following:

- Eligibility for Pell grants would be limited to students whose families have an annual income of $25,000 or less.
- Guaranteed Student Loans (GSLs) would no longer be available to students whose parents have an annual income over $32,500. For example, a student from a family with an annual income of $32,500 would not be eligible for a GSL even if that family had several students in college at the same time. In addition, those students whose parents have an annual income over $32,500 would have to demonstrate need in order to qualify for a GSL. This is especially difficult for students from farm families whose assets on paper appear large, but who in fact cannot liquidate those assets to provide cash for their son or daughter to attend college.

No student would be allowed to receive more than $4,000 per year in federal financial aid. The cost of attending the University of Nebraska-Lincoln for one year, for example, is currently estimated to be $5,300 (living on campus), and Nebraska does not at this time have any state based financial aid programs which students could utilize as an alternative to federal aid.

Nebraskans would be particularly hard hit by these cuts, given the current agricultural problem and the president's expressed desire to reduce farm supports.

"Students need to let their elected representatives know what kind of an impact these changes would have on their ability to go to college," said Hein. Students and their parents are urged to write to their congressmen and congresswomen at the following addresses to encourage them to resist these proposed cuts. If students or other interested parties have further questions or wish to become more involved in the Government Liaison Committee's efforts to fight these cuts, they can reach the Committee at (402) 472-2652 or (402) 472-2581.

"One of the reasons for this country's success is that it has made an investment to provide accessible education for its citizens, thus insuring itself a large pool of trained leaders. It would be a tremendous step backwards to revert to a system where education is accessible only to the wealthy," concluded Ms. Hein.

Spending cuts key to deficit decrease

Spending cuts, not tax increases, will decrease deficits by Cheryl Stubbendieck

It's good to hear Reagan Administration sources and voices on Capitol Hill continuing to resist raising taxes to decrease the federal deficit. On the surface, taking in more revenue through taxes would seem to easily generate dollars needed to get us out from under our burden of debt service.

But the thing about increased taxes is that they cause decreased economic activity, and when the economy is down, the need for federal outlays goes up.

Cutting federal spending is a far more fertile field for reducing the deficit, which was reported at $175 billion in 1983.

Stories of the military spending $91 for a three-inch screw or more than $7,400 for three-inch steel pins, some hardware stores giving away, get the headlines, but there are many more ways the government can cut its outlays.

The President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control recommended 2,478 ways to save the government more than $400 billion over three years. Headed by industrialist J. Peter Grace, the survey was reported to President Reagan last year. So far, some of the recommendations have been put into place, and are expected to save $26 billion during the next few years.

THIS IS WORTHWHILE. As the late Senator Everett Dirksen said, "A billion here and a billion there, and pretty soon you're talking real money." Nebraska does not at this time have any state based financial aid programs which students could utilize as an alternative to federal aid.

Nebraskans would be particularly hard hit by these cuts, given the current agricultural problem and the president's expressed desire to reduce farm supports.

Entitlement programs include Social Security, military and civil service pensions. Although promised to the people, the government hasn't set up adequate reserves to fund these payments. Current liabilities for payments due in the future amount to more than $2 trillion, and amortizing this obligation over the next 40 years adds more than $186 billion to the debt each year.

All of these programs contain cost of living adjustments. As a first step, these automatic COLAs should be frozen until the deficit is under control.

Grace and his commission also suggested that the government look at the number of social programs it funds. When the commission began its work, it asked government sources how many social programs the country has. The sources estimated about 125, but the commission found 963. The discrepancy is one example of the government not knowing its own size, Grace said.

HE SUGGESTED that government could get a better idea of its obligations if all recipients of government aid, from food stamps to low-interest loans, were required to fill out the equivalent of W-2 forms every year.

Without any action to cut government spending, Grace said the federal deficit in the year 2000 will hit nearly $2 trillion, threatening the freedom of future generations. He called this "taxation without representation," and more graphically, "intergenerational rape" because it visits the spending excesses of today upon future taxpayers.

More of the Grace Commission's recommendations merit another look if the deficit is to be controlled anytime soon. Certainly spending cuts — rather than tax increases — are the way to go.

Jaycee Women thank media

To the editor:

The Wayne Jaycee Women are celebrating National Jaycee Women Week this week, Feb. 10-16. We have been active in the Wayne community for the past 30 years.

It is during this week that we would like to stop and say "thank you" to the members of our community for their support during these years. We would especially like to thank the members of the local media — The Wayne Herald and KTCH radio. We attribute much of our success to the terrific cooperation and support these two news sources give our organization, for without them, word of our activities would have difficulty traveling beyond our own group.

We realize that these two groups rely on teamwork to get their jobs done, but these "teams" contain some key people who have made our job of publicizing our organization so much easier. That is why we would like to extend extra-special thanks to LaVon Anderson and Chuck Hackenmiller of The Wayne Herald and Mike Mascoe and Dan Bader of KTCH Radio. These two people work patiently with us in every way. They are always willing to try and work in a last minute news item. Their dedication to their jobs and community is evident.

So, thank you Wayne media. We hope to have your continued support in the many years to come. Keep up the great work!

Block's sincerity questioned

Recent statements by Secretary of Agriculture John Block in a Nebraska wide radio call-in program and on the nationally televised "Face the Nation" prompted me to question Mr. Block's sincerity in directing policies that are beneficial for the nation's food system.

Mr. Block has directed the U.S. Department of Agriculture during a period of record farm foreclosures and farm bank failures. Many of these failures are due to policies promoted or instituted by the Department of Agriculture.

The main problem with Mr. Block is that he lacks a coherent understanding of the development, cause and effect of agricultural policy in America. Furthermore, he lacks an elementary appreciation of economics.

Mr. Block talks about getting government out of agriculture and refers to excessive intervention by government in American agriculture. If American agriculture policy has failed, why does our country have the strongest food system in the world and the lowest per capita expenditure of disposable income on food? Agricultural policies in America have not been a failure, nor can they be considered an intervention.

The real intervention in our food system has been the federal deficit which has strangled agriculture with high interest rates and unbearable debt burdens. Mr. Block added to that problem by creating the astronomically expensive Payment-in-Kind program which has caused more problems than it solved.

To understand agricultural policy in America one needs to return to the settling of our country. Agricultural policy included the Homestead Acts, which gave us the premise of small, independent, owner-operated land holdings. Efforts to build systems of transportation and communication came next to link the trade centers with the farms and ranches.

We created the Land Grant College System to improve our productivity. Our natural resources were managed through efforts by the soil conservation service, the Corps of Engineers and the Bureau of Reclamation. When supply of our commodities far outstripped demand, we developed the commodity price support programs to assure a reliable supply of food and stable prices. Recognizing the need for credit in agriculture, the federal government provided low interest financing.

All of these policies have given us the strongest food system in the world. Just starting those policies is not sufficient. We must maintain the structure as well.

Today's food producer faces these grim realities:

1. The business of agriculture requires a heavy investment of capital.
2. The federal government sets the prices of the commodities in the international market places.
3. The federal government sets the interest rates and the U.S. Department of Agriculture is a major supplier of agricultural credit.
4. The survival of the individual growers and our communities depends on the ability of the federal government to maintain agricultural policies and the economy of our country.

Thus far in the 1980's the U.S. Department of Agriculture has failed to build on these policies to assure a reliable food supply. John Block's statements hold even less hope for the future and should inspire us to protest and call for alternate action.

Sincerely,
Bob Kerrey
Governor

Road conditions

To the editor:

When it becomes apparent that even people serving on county boards are not always responsive to serving the needs of their constituents, so that more and more of their rural residents are forced to make do with increasingly substandard road maintenance, yet are expected to pay ever higher taxes to pay the increasing salaries of those whom the boards hire, we see one of the reasons why our legislators can't do get caught in this game of making ever increasing amounts of tax dollars to provide ever deteriorating public services.

THE FATHER Kearns-Council of the Knights of Columbus, Wayne, recently donated a special positioning seat for handicapped children to the Educational Service Unit One program in Wayne. The tumble forms positioning seat is an aid to the handicapped child's therapeutic positioning program at school. The specially designed chair is made of a firm density urethane foam which retains its shape. The smooth upholstery is acceptable to the tactilely defensive child who cannot tolerate the textures of cloth. Many of the children in the ESU residential program has physical disabilities and correct positioning is a vital part of the programming for each child. From left to right are Pat Gross, program chairman for the Knights; Carol Sheldon, an ESU physical therapist; student Grandi McCall; head teacher Dee Beckenhauer; and Maynard Wayne, the Grand Knight of the Wayne KC's.

Kris Blomh will appear in the United States Achievement Academy Official Yearbook, published nationally. She is the daughter of Bob and Karen Blomh.

ESU

"I'm sure nobody here would like to see the services discontinued (at the parochial schools)," Lawrence said.

He said there is a way to solve the problem legally. ESU, he said, is legally bound to contract with public schools.

The public schools are under different requirements, he said, and can develop a program locally with schools existing in the area and work it out themselves, he said.

Parochial schools could buy into the nursing services from public schools, he said.

Action on the committee's recommendations were tabled until the March meeting, with instructions for Garwood to accumulate additional data on several of the recommendations.

IN OTHER ACTION Tuesday evening, the ESU board:

- Appointed insurance salesman Ken Lahrns of Ponca to replace Burneal Gustafson as the Dixon County board member.
- Gustafson's ESU term expired on Jan. 1.
- Approved a cooperative purchase agreement with ESU 17, the state-wide coordinating agency for co-op purchases.
- The contract is the same as in the past with a minimum charge of 3/2 percent of the total order paid to ESU 17 for handling costs.
- Accepted the resignation of Mrs. Tamara Dalin, speech therapist assigned to the Wayne Public School, upon completion of the 1984-85 school year.
- Heard a report from Tappe on all special education programs.
- Chairman Lawrence appointed John Post to the board policy committee; Steffen and Marvin Berg of Concord to the insurance committee; Claire Hanson of Coleridge to the Legislative Relations committee; and Shaw, Leo Krampfer, Dakota City and Jackson to the negotiations committee.

labeled and plan for implementation in the student's classroom.

- Once implementation begins, teachers would share their successes and failures among themselves and other staff members, changing and refining.
- And an in-service should be conducted for all staff to share insights, heighten awareness concerning the needs of the academically talented, and set the stage for all staff to begin implementation of a more differentiated approach to classroom teaching.
- In other action, the Wayne-Carroll school board:
  - Extended the contract of Superintendent Francis Haun another year. Haun is currently serving a three-year contract.
  - Gave permission for the school district superintendent to employ a speech clinician.
  - Why contract speech clinician services with the service unit for $25,000 when we can get one here for no more than $19,000? Haun said.
  - And received a report from Cap Peterson, representing the school district board on the Legislative Relations Network.
  - Legislative bills of recent concern are LB 397, which would, if passed, increase the state sales tax two cents. One and one-half cents would be distributed to local school districts while the remaining 1/2 cent would be used in allowing teachers to receive supplemental income payments from school districts; and LB 560 deals with the budget lid, making the lid at 5 percent with the option of the board to take the lid to 7 percent with a public hearing.
  - Current budget increase lid is 7 percent.

Student aid cuts will hurt various programs

After reviewing proposed budget cuts for federal student aid for 1986, Nebraska State Student Association Executive Director Deb Chapelle called the plan "devastating and appalling."

Federal student aid programs have faced budget cuts and proposals for structural change in the past," Chapelle said, "but the severity of the current proposals would be devastating to students in Nebraska, and throughout the nation. The budget plan calls for a 22.3 billion reduction in student aid programs overall."

Included would be absolute family income caps of $32,500 for students applying for Guaranteed Student Loans, and $25,000 for students applying for grant aid such as Pell Grants and College Work Study. The proposal would also place a $4,000 annual cap on the amount of aid any student could receive. According to Chapelle, the plan could prevent over a million students, nationally, from receiving financial assistance.

"I am appalled that the federal government would devise such a plan at a time when educational costs are on the rise, and the economic hardship in agricultural states such as Nebraska is so severe," Chapelle said. She went on to explain that the Nebraska State Student Association intends to educate its members on the specifics of the proposal and encourage them to speak out. "It is clear we must fight this plan. Congress must hear from students and their families so that they can understand just how devastating these proposals are," concluded Chapelle.

police report

Bills would shift local property tax burden to state

Nebraskans would shift a large portion of their local property tax burden to the state sales tax under two bills advanced last week by the Revenue Committee to the full Legislature.

The bills, LB 38 and LB 712, would increase the state's 3.5 percent sales tax rate by one percentage point, and thereby generate $90 million to $100 million annually. The new revenue from the sales tax increase would then be returned to homeowners to offset their local property tax bills.

LB 38, introduced by Sen. Howard Lamb of Anselmo, would return the money in the form of a direct rebate check to the taxpayer from a state government, and would offset approximately 10 percent of his or her annual local property tax bill. The exact amount of the offset would depend on how much the extra percentage point on the state sales tax generates in a year.

LB 712, introduced by Sen. Johnson of Omaha, would return the sales tax revenue through the general homestead exemption program. Thus, the payment from the state would be reflected as a credit on annual property tax bills rather than a check from state government.

During the Revenue Committee executive session on the subject, Sen. Dave Landis of Lincoln proposed the amendment which would tie the sales tax increase directly to each of the property tax proposals. The committee adopted the Landis amendments and voted 6-1 to advance the Johnson bill, and 7-0 to advance the Lamb bill.

REVENUE COMMITTEE members agreed that both bills should be advanced to give their colleagues a choice of methods for returning the aid payments to local taxpayers.

Asked by reporter about the advancement of the property tax relief initiatives, Gov. Bob Kerrey reacted coolly.

"I think it's foolish to launch off a $100 million expenditure for state aid when we haven't even decided on our overall expenditures for state operations," Kerrey said. "Kerrey said questions of funding state government must be answered before embarking on a major property tax reduction initiative. He said he's hearing conflicting signals from legislators and others on his own proposed budget of $854 million.

His spending proposal has been criticized as being too high, but at the same time, lawmakers have reacted negatively to the individual cuts he has proposed in the budget.

Kerrey also criticized the two property tax bills for proposing a sales tax rate increase. If a property tax reduction plan is to be funded by state government, Kerrey said, the needed revenue should be generated by a broadened sales tax base rather than by an increase in the sales tax rate.

In his budget, Kerrey has proposed the elimination of sales tax exemptions — mostly those enjoyed by business — which would raise an estimated $4 million annually for state government.

The 1985 tax values of Nebraska farming and ranchland would remain unchanged from 1984 values under a bill which is moving rapidly through the Legislature.

Sen. Cal Carstén of Avoca introduced the bill, LB 30, in response to the approval last November by voters of the Constitutional Amendment permitting a separate lower tax classification for agricultural and horticultural land.

Carstén characterized his bill as a short-term response to the Constitutional Amendment.

County officials have told lawmakers that a short-term proposal such as Carstén's must be enacted before March 1 if the annual property tax cycle is to continue uninterrupted. Counties are required to inform property owners of their annual valuation before April 1, and county assessors need time to prepare for the mailing.

The Revenue Committee has pending several proposals for a more permanent response to the Constitutional Amendment. Sen. Dave Landis of Lincoln is in charge of a committee task force which is developing a long range response to the valuation issue.

Child safety seats

Automobile accidents happen daily and all too often they involve children. The scenario is many times the same: "We were just going to the store and I was short on time so I didn't put the baby in its seat and..."

It doesn't even take an accident for a child to sustain serious injuries. A swerve into another lane or a sudden stop is enough to send a small child tumbling. During a 30 MPH crash, an unrestrained child will hit the dashboard or windshield with a force equal to a fall from a three story building.

The worst possible place for a child to ride is in the arms of an adult. Even a seat belted adult is not strong enough to hold onto a child in a crash. An unrestrained adult will literally crush a child against the dashboard.

The solution is simple — child safety seats. Child safety seats hold the child in a crash and keep the child from hitting dangerous objects or from being thrown out of the car. When used properly a child restraint will provide tremendous protection. There is 90 percent less chance of a child being fatally injured and 78 percent less chance of a child being seriously injured when riding restrained.

Currently all states in the United States excluding Wyoming have child restraint laws. Nebraska's law requires all children under 4 to be restrained in every motor vehicle except taxicabs, mopeds, motorcycles, and any motor vehicle made before 1963. The fine is $25 for violation and it can be dismissed if you can present proof of purchase or rental for a year.

Let National Child Passenger Safety Week serve as a reminder to buckle up your children and yourself and protect them from the most deadly childhood killer — automobile accidents.

Bereuter deals with ag crisis

Most of my time and much of the time of my colleagues from agricultural states is spent dealing with the agricultural credit crisis.

In the past two weeks, I have:

- Discussed farm credit problems and the effects on the rural economy with agricultural representatives from Nebraska.

- Met with representatives of the Nebraska Soybean Association to discuss agricultural credit problems, the 1985 Farm Bill, and the 1985 federal budget.

- Attended a Congressional Farm Emergency Group meeting on the farm credit crisis with Farmers Home Administration and Department of Agriculture officials.

- Participated in two Congressional Farm Emergency Group bill-drafting sessions.
- Convened a Nebraska congressional delegation meeting on the farm credit problems in Nebraska.

- Met with representatives of the American Soybean Association to discuss expanding exports to the Soviet Union.
- Talked with Nebraska Pork Producers about agricultural problems.

- Discussed farm credit problems at a meeting with Nebraska bankers and the state's other two representatives, Virginia Smith and Hal Daub.

- Attended hearings in the House Agriculture Committee on Conservation and Credit concerning agricultural credit problems.

- Discussed an emergency farm credit bill prepared by Representative Tom Daschle of South Dakota that would provide advance price support loans equal to 50 percent of a producer's crop for those who participate in the farm credit program.

- Cosponsored a bill introduced by Representative Tom Coleman of Missouri that would provide federal loan guarantees of 75 percent to the lender for operating loans and make operating loans at three percent below the going operating rate to farmers in areas designated as natural disaster areas for at least three of the last five years.

- Worked on a proposal I will introduce that would incorporate some of the best features of both bills and would require the FMHA to either approve or reject a farmer's loan application within 30 days of receipt. Loan guarantees would be set at 80 percent and new lending would be required that credit is not available from a commercial lending bank.

- Begun to review a proposal by the Independent Bankers Association to increase funding for the FMHA loan guarantee program from the current $650 million to $3 billion and provide an explicit basis for federal lending.

- Begun to review a proposal to "buy down" interest rates on operating loans to farmers by four percentage points.

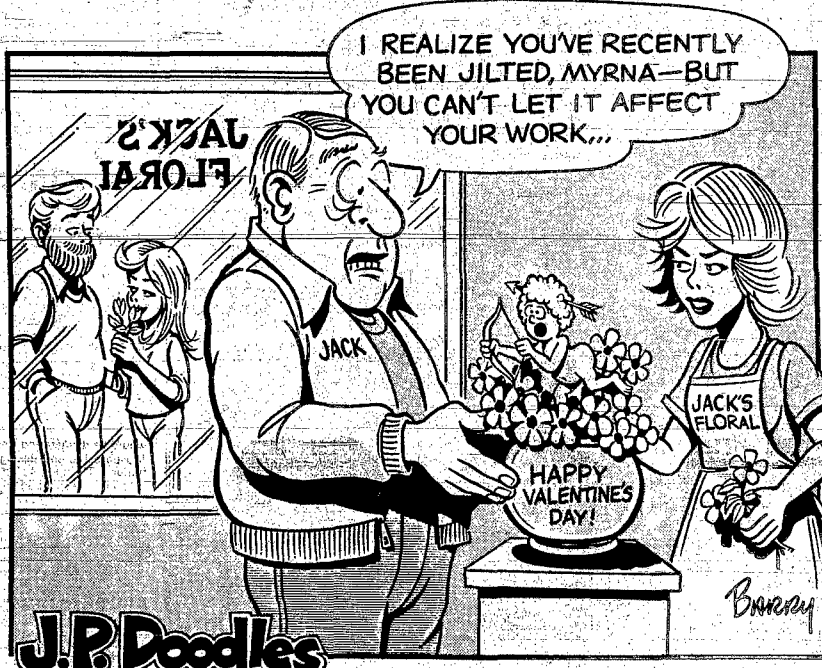

- Begun to review loan guarantee, interest buy down and credit assistance programs proposed by Nebraska, Kansas, North Dakota, and Minnesota Banking Associations.

- Called on the chairman of the House Banking Committee to have that committee investigate the farm credit situation and to hold hearings on the financial crisis affecting agricultural banks.

- Requested that the President meet with a bipartisan group of House members from agricultural states to discuss the crisis situation facing America's farmers and our agricultural communities.

- Requested that the Secretary of Labor notify governors of all states of the option to serve dislocated farmers who could benefit by job training programs.

- Met in Nebraska and in Washington with Nebraska Farm Crisis Committee leadership.

Changes outlined

Proposed cuts threat to higher education

The Reagan Administration's proposed cuts in federal financial aid programs for students would have a devastating impact on access to higher education, said Laura Hein, chairperson of the government Liaison Committee of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. According to the U.S. Department of Education, federal financial aid would be cut off to over 1 million students if the president's recommendations were adopted.

Proposed changes for 1986-87 include the following:

- Eligibility for Pell grants would be limited to students whose parents have an annual income of $25,000 or less.

- Guaranteed Student Loans (GSL's) would no longer be available to students whose parents have an annual income over $32,500. For example, a student from a family with an annual income of $32,500 would not be eligible for a GSL even if that family had several students in college at the same time. In addition, those students whose parents have an annual income under $32,500 would have to demonstrate need in order to qualify for a GSL. This is especially difficult for students from farm families whose assets on paper appear large, but who in fact cannot liquidate those assets to provide cash for their son or daughter to attend college.

No student would be allowed to receive more than $4,000 per year in federal financial aid. The cost of attending the University of Nebraska-Lincoln for one year, for example, is currently estimated to be $5,300 (living on campus), and Nebraska does not at this time have any state based financial aid programs which students could utilize as an alternative to federal aid.

Nebraskans would be particularly hard hit by these cuts, given the current agricultural problem and the president's expressed desire to reduce farm supports.

"Students need to let their elected representatives know what kind of an impact these changes would have on their ability to go to college," said Hein. Students and their parents are urged to write to their congressmen and congresswomen at the following addresses to encourage them to resist these proposed cuts. If students or other interested parties have further questions or wish to become more involved in the Government Liaison Committee's efforts to fight these cuts, they can reach the Committee at (402) 472-2652 or (402) 472-2581.

"One of the reasons for this country's success is that it has made an investment to provide accessible education for its citizens, thus insuring that a large pool of trained leaders, it would be a tremendous step backwards to revert to a system where education is accessible only to the wealthy," concluded Ms. Hein.

"Students need to let their elected representatives know what kind of an impact these changes would have on their ability to go to college," said Hein. Students and their parents are urged to write to their congressmen and congresswomen at the following addresses to encourage them to resist these proposed cuts. ## Spending cuts key to deficit decrease Spending cuts, not tax increases, will decrease deficits.

It's good to hear Reagan Administration sources and voices on Capitol Hill continuing to resist raising taxes to decrease the federal deficit. On the surface, taking in more revenue through taxes would seem to easily generate dollars needed to get us out from under our burden of debt service.

But the thing about increased taxes is that they cause decreased economic activity, and when the economy is down, the need for federal outlays goes up.

Cutting federal spending is a far more fertile field for reducing the deficit, which was reported at $193 billion in 1983.

Stories of the military spending $91 for a three-inch screw or more than $400 for a three-inch steel pins some hardware stores give away, get the headlines, but there are many more ways the government can cut its outlays.

The President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control recommended 2,478 ways to save the government more than $400 billion over three years. Headed by industrialist J. Peter Grace, the survey was reported to President Reagan last year. So far, some of the recommendations have been put into place, and are expected to save $26 billion during the next few years.

THIS IS WORTHWHILE. As the late Senator Everett Dirksen said, "a billion here and a billion there and pretty soon you're talking real money."

But the big bucks still remain to be trimmed, and no doubt the easier-to-implement changes were the first to be made. Others will be harder. The wisdom of entitlement payments is the most difficult.

Entitlement programs include Social Security, military and civil service pensions. Although promised to the people, the government hasn't set up adequate reserves to fund these payments. Current liabilities for payments due in the future amount to more than $3 trillion, and amortizing this obligation over the next 40 years adds more than $186 billion to the debt each year.

All of these programs contain cost of living adjustments. As a first step, these automatic COLAs should be frozen until the deficit is more under control.

Grace and his commission also suggested that the government look at the number of

Jaycee Women thank media

To the editor:

The Wayne Jaycee Women are celebrating National Jaycee Women Week this week, Feb. 10-14. We have been active in the Wayne community for the past 30 years.

It is during this week that we would like to stop and say "thank you" to the members of our community for their support during these years. We would especially like to thank the members of the local media — The Wayne Herald and KTCB radio. We attribute much of our success to the terrific cooperation and support these two news sources give our organization, for without them, word of our activities would have difficulty traveling beyond our own group.

We realize that these two groups rely on teamwork to get their jobs done, but these "teams" contain some key people who have made our job of publicizing our organization so much easier. That is why we would like to extend extra special thanks to LeVon Anderson and Chuck Hackenmiller of The Wayne Herald and Mike Mascoe and Dan Baddorf of KTCB radio. These four people work patiently with us in every way. They are always willing to try and work in a last minute news item. Their dedication to their jobs and community is evident.

So, thank you Wayne media. We hope to have your continued support in the many years to come. Keep up the great work!

Mindy Lutz and the Wayne Jaycee Women

Block's sincerity questioned

To the editor:

Recent statements by Secretary of Agriculture John Block in a Nebraska wide radio call-in program and on the nationally televised "Face the Nation" prompt me to question Mr. Block's sincerity in directing policies that are beneficial for the nation's food system.

Mr. Block has directed the U.S. Department of Agriculture during a period of record farm foreclosures and farm bank failures. Many of these failures are due to policies promoted or instituted by the Department of Agriculture.

The main problem with Mr. Block is that he lacks a coherent understanding of the development, cause and effect of agricultural policy in America. Furthermore, he lacks an elementary appreciation of economics.

Mr. Block talks about getting government out of agriculture and refers to excessive intervention by government in American agriculture. If American agriculture policy failed, why does our country have the strongest food system in the world and the lowest per capita expenditure of disposable income on food? Agricultural policies in America have not been a failure, nor can they be considered an intervention.

The real intervention in our food system has been the federal deficit which has strangled agriculture with high interest rates and unbearable debt burdens. Mr. Block added to that problem by creating the astronomically expensive Payment-In-Kind Program which has caused more problems than it solved.

To understand agricultural policy in America one needs to return to the soil.

Road conditions

To the editor:

When it becomes apparent that even people serving on county boards are not always responsive to serving the needs of their constituents, so that more and more of them rural residents are forced to make do with increasingly substandard road maintenance, yet are expected to pay ever higher taxes to pay the increasing salaries of those who the boards hire, we see one of the reasons why our legislators can also get caught in this game of spending ever increasing amounts of tax dollars to provide ever deteriorating public services.

No longer 'just a housewife'

Farm women topic at conference

The phrase "just a housewife" has no place in the farm or ranch woman's vocabulary, Dixon County Farm Bureau women attending the Nebraska Farm Bureau Women's Conference on Feb. 25 in Grand Island were told.

The speaker was Cheryl Tevis, farm management editor and columnist for "Successful Farming" magazine.

The Dixon County Farm Bureau was represented by Mildred Fahrholz, Loretta Jackson and Mary Lou Koester of Allen and Joyce Grosvener of Dixon, at the annual mid winter meeting.

THE SELF-IMAGE of farm women needs to be positive and professional, Tevis said, and farm women need to play a role in solutions to farm problems.

"We formerly looked to the cities for solutions, but we can be part of the solutions, too," she said.

Tevis encouraged the Farm Bureau women to take an active role in informing the non-farming public about agriculture, its problems and its future.

Tevis noted that advertisers are beginning to acknowledge the changes in the farm women's role by changing the way women are portrayed in farm product ads.

Women are beginning to be shown as involved in marketing and production decisions, as well as in more traditional ways, she said.

While at the conference, the women participated in a three hour stress workshop conducted by Dave Hawthorne of the County Companies of Illinois. Hawthorne encouraged the women to think of stress as "the fertilizer of life".

"If you control the amount of fertilizer, it's going to make the crop do better. If there is too much, it sets you back, burns you out or kills the crop dead. Too much stress makes you unhappy, cynical and angry," he said.

"Stress is a response to situation, not a stimulus," he emphasized, "and people's reactions to situations produce the excess energy that is stress. If we can control our reactions to what's going on, we'll feel better and perform better."

Situation over which people have no control, such as high interest rates, are the most difficult to deal with, he acknowledged, and noted the tendency of the farm community to "tuck itself away" when there is a problem.

"It's better to have contact with people, it's nice to know other people have the same problem."

HAWTHORNE CALLED the current situation in agriculture "the winter season" of many farmer's lives. "We don't know how long it will last. It might be two or more years, but we need to remember that spring always follows winter. We need to have faith that it's coming and prepare for it."

Other conference sessions included an update on current agricultural legislation in the Nebraska Unicameral, the farm woman's role in farm safety and a session on new craft ideas.

District tournament nets four Wayne Blue Devils a trip to Lincoln

The Wayne Blue Devil grapplers will send four state qualifiers to the Nebraska State Wrestling tournament this weekend following a sixth place finish at the Class B-2 District tournament held on Friday and Saturday at West Point.

"We're really pleased with four state qualifiers," said Wayne Coach Don Koenig. "We had been hoping for anywhere from two to five going down, so four was a good figure for us, plus we had some other wrestlers that came very close in their final matches."

Representing Wayne at the state meet will be senior Kevin Koenig (first place, 185 pounds, 28-0); senior Todd Dorcey (second place, 138 pounds, 23-10); senior Tim Book (fourth place, 167 pounds, 23-5); and junior Mark Janke (fourth place, 112 pounds, 24-10).

Koenig will enter the tournament as the reigning Class B champion at 185 pounds after bringing home Wayne High's first state championship in that weight class last year. Janke will also be making a consecutive trip to the state meet after qualifying for the trip at 105 pounds in 1984.

Book is also a state tournament veteran at 167 pounds, while Dorcey will be making his first appearance.

"It means a lot for those that have been state before. That experience really helps them," because it is pretty overwhelming down there," said Koenig.

In the team standings, Wayne finished in sixth place with 81 points. Elkhorn won the district team title with 147 points, ahead of runner-up Bennington with 127 points.

Highlights of the district tournament for the Wayne team included senior Kevin Koenig picking up the 100th win of his career in his second round match on Friday afternoon. Koenig pinned Dennis Krecklow of Elkhorn at 4:36 to hit the century mark.

"As a team, we placed just about where I expected us to, and I'm pleased with the way we wrestled as a group," said Koenig. "The kids all came on at the right time of the season, and that is a credit to them."

"We really look forward to the state tournament, it proves to be the ultimate goal," Koenig added. "When you reach that point you are already among the top 16 in the state, and you have to work even harder to become part of an even more elite group when you get there."

State Wrestling Tournament February 14-15-16 Lincoln

Seven qualifiers lead Winside Wildcats to state tourney

For the Winside Wildcat wrestling team and Coach Paul Sok, seven out of twelve isn't a bad percentage at all.

The Wildcats went into last weekend's D-2 District wrestling tournament with eight seeded wrestlers and a full card of competitors. On Saturday evening, they came away with a third place team finish and trips to the Nebraska State Wrestling tournament this weekend, Feb. 14-16 for seven of the squad members. The district tournament was held at Elgin Pope John High School in Elgin.

THOSE WINNING A berth at the state tournament — include — senior Mike Woerdemann (first place, 167 pounds, 27-4); senior Mike Jaeger (second place, 155 pounds, 20-4); senior Jeff Thies (third place, 185 pounds, 26-1); freshman Mace Kant (third place, 98 pounds, 22-6); freshman Doug Paulsen (third place, 105 pounds, 23-4); sophomore Darin Schellenberg (third place, 126 pounds, 21-3); and senior Chris Jorgensen (fourth place, heavyweight, 16-9).

Jeff Thies, who finished in third place last year at 185 pounds is the only Wildcat making a consecutive return trip to the state tournament.

Winside finished third in a close race with 119 1/2 points behind Clarks (134 points) and host school Elgin Pope John (124 points). The Wildcats moved up from fourth place, where they had been at the end of the first day of competition.

"Everyone on the team wrestled well at the tournament," said Sok. "I know our attitude is good, they are all excited about heading down to the state tournament and they are going to give it their best shot once they are down there."

Sok was pleased with the overall performance of the team, although he admitted that following the first round of action on Saturday he felt the Wildcats might be lucky to have five or six making the trip to Lincoln. "Everyone really pulled together on Saturday. It's a tradition around Winside to want to get down to state, and those guys just kicked it in gear and got there."

He also commended on the community support which the team received during the tournament. "We had really good support and one of the largest followings at the tourney. The team appreciates it and thanks everyone for what they have done this year."

ONE OF THE BIG SURPRISES came during the second round of 185 pounds when previously undefeated Jeff Thies was disqualified in his match with Matt Osborne of Waterloo for a slam. The disqualification dropped Thies into the consolation bracket.

MIKE JAEGER in championship round action.

where he worked through and posted his third place finish. "Jeff has never had that called on him before, but I don't think it hurt him as far as seedings in the state tournament are concerned."

With seven wrestlers competing at state, Sok feels that the Wildcats have a good chance of making a team finish among the Top 10 teams. "If things go right, we could do as well as fifth place, but a lot can happen between now and then."

He expects "Muller" who finished their district tournament with six champions, to be a contender for the top spots in Class D, along with District D-2 foes Clarks and Elgin Pope John.

First round pairings

Girls subdistrict basketball at WSC, Emerson-Hubbard

Allen advances with 38-12 win over Trojans

For the Allen Eagles girls basketball team, a win over the Wakefield Trojans Monday night meant the chance to play in the finals of the Class C-2 subdistrict tournament on Thursday night in Emerson. For the Trojans, the loss meant the end of the 1984-85 basketball season.

The Eagles came away a 38-12 winner in the first round game of the subdistrict tournament played in Emerson, and boosted their season mark to 10-7 going into tonight's game. Wakefield ended the year at 1-16. Allen will face Homer in the final round game slated for this evening at Emerson, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

THE TROJANS WERE hampered by a dismal 14 percent shooting performance from the floor, while Allen was 17 of 36 from the floor for 47 percent.

After a low scoring first quarter, Allen held a slim 6-2 lead before letting go for 14 points to take a 20-4 halftime lead into the locker room.

In the third and fourth quarter, Allen continued to limit Wakefield's scoring to eight points and tacked an additional 10 points to their own side of the scoreboard.

Mary Oswald led Allen with 10 points and 10 rebounds. Teammates Shelly Boyle and Larne Erwin added six points and Boyle pulled in six rebounds.

For Wakefield, Roni Starzl logged five points. "We had a poor night offensively," said Trojan Coach Arnold Ceray. "We ran our offense early in the game and then quit. When we got the open shot we tended to rush it and hit hurt us."

Allen Coach Gary Troth said that his team came out shooting poorly in the early portion of the game, but were able to increase their advantage once they penetrated the Wakefield zone defense. "We got better shots in this game against Wakefield, but tonight-most of our points came off our offensive performance rather than defensive points from turnovers."

Ceray was pleased with his squad's defensive performance, and their ability to break the full court press, which has posed problems for them all season long. "That part of the game has really improved for us throughout the season."

Seniors playing their final game for Wakefield included Darla Hartman and Roni Starzl.

CONCERNING THE upcoming game with Homer, Troth said that the Lady Knights are currently playing hard basketball and are an improved team since the two teams met earlier in the season. Allen came away a 54-37 winner in that contest. "It will be a tough game for us, Homer is playing with a lot of confidence and we are going to have to watch our game, especially our turnovers."

Twiford leads Laurel past Emerson

Laurel's Gail Twiford proved she had no intentions of letting a knee injury suffered last week slow her down as she dominated in 20 points and ripped down 15 rebounds to lead the Lady Bears to a 42-19 win over Emerson-Hubbard in the opening round of action in the Class C1-10 subdistrict tournament on Monday night in Rice Auditorium on the Wayne State College campus.

THE LADY BEARS, 16-2 with the victory and rated seventh in the latest Class C1 ratings, advanced to the subdistrict final round game against Pender to be played this evening (Thursday) at Rice Auditorium, beginning at 7:30 p.m. The winner goes on to play the winner of the Class C9 subdistrict championship, either Battle Creek or Norfolk Catholic, for the right to advance to the Nebraska Girls State basketball tournament Feb. 28 through March 2. Laurel held Emerson-Hubbard to nine points in the first half while running up 26 points of their own on the board. Scoring was more closely balanced in the second half, but the Lady Bears had no trouble holding on to their winning margin. Along with Twiford's top performance, senior teammate Wendy Robson added 12 points and Michelle Joslin brought down eight rebounds.

"Right now, I'm happy that we are healthy and hustling out there on the court," said Laurel Coach Gale Hamilton. "We were able to get the ball inside to Gail and that was the key for us. The entire team was rested and ready to go in the subdistrict tournament."

Laurel hit 21-42 shots from the floor for an even 50 percent shooting percentage. "Looking towards the Thursday night game with Pender, Hamilton said that the Penderagons are a team with good ball handlers and the ability to get off the quick shot. "Our defense will really have to hustle out there to hold them down," he said.

HAMILTON ALSO ADDED that Laurel will have a slight height advantage over Pender, but that his Lady Bears may have to open up their game shooting from the outside and eventually work the ball to the inside.

Pender earned their berth in the subdistrict finals via a 50-37 win over Ponca on Monday night at Wayne State College.

Wildcat season ends in loss to Lady Knights

The Winside girls basketball team saw an improved 1984-85 season come to an end Monday night when they lost a 50-42 decision to the Homer Lady Knights in the opening round of the Class C-8 subdistrict tournament held at Emerson.

THE WILDCATS ended the season with a 4-15 record under the direction of first-year Coach Jill Stenwall.

Homer opened to an early 13-7 lead in the first quarter before both teams hit the hoops in the second quarter to make it a five point game at the half in favor of the Lady Knights, 29-24.

That margin was narrowed to four points when Winside scored eight points in the third period to pull to a 36-32 deficit. In the fourth quarter, Homer was able to drop in two additional baskets to put the game out of reach for Winside and held out for the win. Senior Tammy Brudigan led the Wildcats scoring with 12 points and brought down 11 rebounds in the game. Kay Meierhenry dropped in eight points and Christi Thies added six points.

"We just didn't seem to run our offense," said Stenwall. "It wasn't one of our better games, we just didn't seem to get into it." Stenwall added that her team was hurt by giving up the ball on turnovers 20 times in the game. Her squad also got into early foul trouble which plagued them the entire game. The Wildcats committed 26 personal fouls in the loss, while Homer was logged with 27 personal fouls.

A POOR SHOOTING performance at the free throw line hindered Winside in the loss, as they hit 14 of 32 shots for 44 percent. "This season was better for us than the past, although we could have done better. We just have to look towards next year now," Stenwall said. Seniors appearing in their last varsity game included Tammy Brudigan, Leah Jensen, Missy Jensen and Trisha Topp.

TV to broadcast state wrestling

For the 16th year, the Nebraska Educational Television Network will provide coverage of the 1985 Nebraska State High School Wrestling Championships, to air Saturday, Feb. 16 at 8 p.m.

The three-hour sports broadcast, videotaped earlier in the day at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Bob Devaney Sports Center, features the finals in all classes of the state wrestling championships.

Lincoln sportscaster Don Gill will provide match action, with UN-Omaha men's wrestling Coach Michael Denney giving color commentary for the telecast. A special quad-split-screen technique enables simultaneous coverage of all four high school classes in the different weight divisions.

Softball agreement reached

In December of 1984, the United States Softball Association (USSSA) and the Amateur Softball Association of America (ASA) reached an agreement to end their recent dispute over certain classification rules of some ASA local affiliates.

At issue were rules of the Nebraska and Pennsylvania state associations which provided for reclassification or review of classification of teams which competed in certain non-ASA sanctioned tournaments.

While the ASA felt that the rules themselves were not intended to prevent any player or team from registering to play or competing in USSSA tournaments, but were merely for the purposes of assuring that teams competed at their proper level of play, it understood the concern of the USSSA and the possibility of interpretation by its officials or by teams or leagues which might have been concerned about the effect of dual registration.

Consequently, the Nebraska ASA has agreed to delete or modify those rules so as to make clear that competition in USSSA tournaments would in no way affect any team's standing or classification to compete in ASA competition.

Wayne Blue Devils erase Antlers lead with second quarter rally to down Elkhorn 63-52

The Wayne Blue Devils availed for 21 points in the second quarter to erase a five point Elkhorn lead and ease to a 63-52 win over the Antlers before a parents night crowd in Wayne.

On the boards, Wayne held a commanding 28 to 11 lead, a feature which Uning felt was key to the outcome of the game. "Rebounding is a big key for us, especially the defensive boards," said Uning. "In the last few games we have been playing better on the boards, and it does make a difference."

of the keys for us will be our mental preparation. Everyone is contributing to the team and playing hard at this point," Uning said.

The Wayne reserves came away with a 52-42 victory over Elkhorn. Corey Dahl netted 16 points in the win and Scott Baker, tossed in 11 points.

Wayne seeded second in the eight-team B-4 district tournament which begins next week, is slated to matchup with Columbus Scotus next Friday, Feb. 22 in opening round action at Wayne High, beginning at 7:30 p.m. They will finish out their regular season schedule tomorrow night on the road at Pierce.

WAYNE MOVED TO 14-2 overall on the season with the victory and improved their standings in the Omaha World Herald Class B poll from eighth place to seventh.

The Blue Devils aggressive offensive style was not evident in the opening quarter and Elkhorn moved to a 14-9 lead heading into the second period.

Senior Rod Dahl sparked the Wayne offense with 21 points, and was joined in double figures by Don Larsen with 16 points. Brent Pick, coming off a 26 point performance the previous night, was held to five points. "Elkhorn played a different defense which kept Brent from getting open, but players like Rod, Ted Lueders and Carl Urwiler did really good jobs for the team."

At that point, Uning said his team picked up their defense and shut down their leading scorer in the second quarter. Elkhorn's Pilkington netted 13 points in the first half before the Wayne defense cut him off and held him to a single point in the third and fourth quarters.

Dahl also led the team in rebounding with an even dozen boards, and Pick hauled in eight rebounds.

"We are also doing a lot better job in passing and pushing the ball up the court," said Uning. "Our shooting percentage is also seeing improvement as well."

Wayne continued strong scoring in the second half of the game, ending the game hitting 24 of 37 attempts from the floor and 15 of 29 from the free throw line for 52 percent.

LOOKING TOWARDS the final game of the season and the start of district basketball play, Uning feels that his team is hitting their stride, and "playing good ball."

Laurel Bears fall to Plainview 50-46

The Laurel Bears fell in a close road battle in the second half of a weekend doubleheader on Saturday night to Plainview 50-46.

"It was a fairly slow-paced game, and it seemed like the zone defenses that each team played made it difficult for the other to get shots off," said Bears Coach John Held. Laurel put the ball up 44 times and hit 17 shots for 39 percent, while Plainview was 18 of 42 for 43 percent.

IN THE JUNIOR varsity game, Plainview downed the Bears 54-46. Laurel's varsity will finish out their 1984-85 regular season on the road against Randolph tomorrow (Friday) night.

Scoring leads in the game seasawed between the two teams, the Bears leading by two points, 10-8 at the end of the first quarter before Plainview pushed to a 23-22 halftime advantage.

"Our kids need to be more aware of the clock when we have the ball, we tend to not protect the ball very well," Held added. "We are able to get the shots that we want, but they don't come at the time we want them."

THE PIRATES OPENED the lead to five points in the third quarter by outscoring Laurel 12-8. The Bears trimmed one point off that lead in the fourth quarter and missed an opportunity to tie the game with 12 seconds left when they turned the ball over on a travelling call.

Held said that in gearing up for the subdistrict tournament next week, his squad will be working on their shot selection in different game situations, along with weak side rebounding in their defensive game.

Wayne girls stunned by fast Pierce start

Wayne's girls basketball team was unable to overcome a first quarter scoring explosion by Pierce on Tuesday night and fell in a 44-37 contest to the Bluejays in Wayne.

Pierce rolled up 20 points in the first quarter, while the Lady Blue Devils mustered just six points, and added a matching 20 points in the second quarter for a 40-11 halftime lead.

"PIERCE GOT THE ball out early and we had a slow reaction to that," said Wayne Coach Dale Hochstein. "We didn't move well away from the ball and had problems getting the ball fed to the inside."

Wayne was able to get their offensive act together in the game's second half and outscored the Bluejays 26-24, but weren't able to clip off much of the early deficit. Kecia Corbit led scoring for Wayne with 13 points and Laura Keating added seven points in the effort. Corbit and teammate Shelly Pick shared rebounding honors with 11 boards each.

The Lady Blue Devils had an improved night from the free throw line, hitting 15 of 21 shots for 71 percent. From the field they were 11 of 62 for 18 percent.

Pierce carded a 48 percent shooting percentage in the first half, hitting 16 of 33, but were held to 7 of 34 for 21 percent in the third and fourth quarters.

WAYNE WENT INTO the junior varsity game with a re-juggled lineup due to a freshmen tournament in Norfolk, and fell in a 35-27 decision to Pierce. Kecia Corbit was the top scorer with 11 points.

With a 2-15 record, Wayne will host Schuyler this evening (Thursday) before a Parents Night home crowd.

Weaver's Wildcats alive in NAC race following 72-66 win over Bellevue

The Wayne State Wildcats assured themselves of at least a second place berth in the Nebraska Athletic Conference playoffs Tuesday night with a 72-66 over a scrappy Bellevue College team on the road.

With the win, WSC improved their NAC record to 4-3 heading into their final conference game with Chadron State this coming Tuesday night. Kearney State holds down the first place spot in the state college division with a 7-0 mark, while Peru State stands in third place with a 3-4 record.

According to Wildcat Coach Rick Weaver, a win over Chadron for WSC would insure them of the second placed spot in the NAC. Should the Cats lose and Peru State win at home over Bellevue, the two schools would stage a mini-playoff game of a neutral site to determine the second place team.

With an 11-13 record, WSC will host Emporia State and Washburn University as part of men's women's doubleheaders Friday and Saturday night in Rice Auditorium.

AGAINST BELLEVUE, the Wildcats opened up with some hot shooting and took an early lead before Bellevue racked up seven straight points in the closing minutes of the half to edge out a 35-33 lead.

WSC roared back with six points of their own in the first minutes of the second half to regain the lead, 39-35. The two teams then waged an up and down the court battle before the Wildcats took the lead for good at 55-53 on a Calvin Sprew drop with 7:11 remaining. Sprew dropped in an assist to Dan Radig in the second half to spark the Cats effort.

Junior Ed Heritage aided in bolstering the Wildcat lead in the closing minutes of the game, picking up offensive rebounds off two separate free throw attempts by Sprew and laying them back in for the basket.

Tracy Penn maintained his position as scoring leader with 22 points, joined in double figures by Ed Heritage with 14 points and Sprew with 12 points.

On the boards, Sprew led Wayne State with eight individual rebounds. In the team standings, the Bruins held a 23 to 19 advantage on the boards.

WSC WAS TAGGED with a CSIC and NAC loss over the past weekend when Kearney State handled the Wildcats in a 103-88 win.

Kearney State opened up a halftime lead of 52-40.

Despite the loss, the Wildcats posted six players in double digits, led by Vince Tillo with 18 points. Tracy Penn added 16 points and Dan Radig netted 14 points. Ed Heritage scored 15 points, Calvin Sprew 11 points and John Thomson 10 points.

On the boards, Sprew led with six rebounds and Tillo added five.

Lady Cats back home after 61-52 road victory over Chadron Eagles

The Wayne State Lady Wildcats will be looking forward to returning to their home court in Rice Auditorium this weekend following a six game road streak which took them from Joplin, Mo. to Chadron and a couple of stops in between.

WSC will host Emporia State on Friday evening and Washburn University Saturday night, beginning at 6:30 p.m. as the front end of a men's women's doubleheader.

THE LADY CATS put the brakes on a five-game losing streak on Tuesday night when they downed Chadron State 61-52 in a Nebraska Athletic Conference outing. The win lifted WSC to 10-15 overall and 3-4 in the NAC race. Over the past weekend, the Lady Wildcats were handed a 68-57 loss by state college rival Kearney.

Wayne State bounced back from a 35-31 halftime deficit to outnet the Lady Eagles 30 to 17 in the second half and pick up the win. WSC's Barb Wragge hit a layup with the score tied at 39-39 to give the Lady Cats the lead in the opening 10 minutes of the second half. Chadron State hit 7 of 31 in the closing half to aid the Lady Cats in their comeback.

Wragge led the double figure scorers for WSC with 21 points, followed by Deb Nygren and Robin Wells, each with 15 points.

Nygren hauled in a game-high 11 rebounds along the way to lead the team. WSC tallied 44 boards in the game, compared to 47 for Chadron State.

IN THE SECOND half of a weekend CSIC doubleheader, WSC fell to Kearney State 68-57. The Lady Cats trailed at the half, 34-28.

Barb Wragge led scoring with 12 points; Deb Nygren added 11 points and Shari Krohn 10 points.

Nygren headed up the rebounding department with 12 boards.

In team statistics, WSC shot 21 of 62 for 34 percent from the floor and hit 15 of 20 from the line for 75 percent. The Lady Antelopes were 24 of 65 from the field for 37 percent and netted 20 of 31 foul shot attempts for 65 percent.

THE LADY WILDCATS put their full lineup in to action in Saturday night's game with Pittsburg State, but came up on the short end of a 81-59 final tally.

The Gussies led at halftime 38-26 and maintained their advantage in the second half, outscoring WSC 43-33 to take possession of the win.

All but three Lady Wildcats scored in the loss. Robin Wells headed up point-column with 12 points, followed by Ree Gribble and Shelle Tomaszkievitz, each with nine points.

The loss moved WSC's Central States conference record to 1-7 overall and their season mark to 9-12.

Wayne State Concert Choir on vocal tour

A venture at "a nice place to work" became a 20-year occupation for Maurice Anderson, director of the Wayne State College Computer Center.

"Keeping the shop going" is how Anderson summed up his duties with the computer center. "We write programs, order supplies and have computerized several campus offices," he said. Currently, Anderson said he is working on recording names, rooms and roommates for Student Housing onto the computer. The next, and similar project, is for Financial Aids. Computerizing registration is the biggest project, Anderson noted.

"By and large, all finances and expenditures have been computerized with the exception of two or three things," Anderson said.

Receiving his bachelor's degree in math and chemistry at Wayne State in 1956, Anderson went on to be awarded a master's from UNL in 1958. Anderson proceeded to teach at the University of Wichita (Kansas) for four years.

An opening came at Wayne State in 1962 just as the Wichita school had changed its tenure policy. Anderson taught math until 1972, when Wayne State got its first computer. He started full time with the computers in 1974.

Anderson noted that 16 computer terminals around campus, utilized by 50th students and administration, are hooked to the

Maurice Anderson

Nebraska Capitol building. "Ninety-nine percent of the people who use the computers are students in Fortran or Cobol classes, but some faculty use it for research," he said.

Born and raised in Laurel, Anderson currently lives in Wayne with his wife Elaine. They have three grown children and Anderson proudly said "five grandchildren, too."

Anderson said he does "some fishing once in awhile" and another hobby is working with stained glass.

Russell in residence at Wayne State

The 1985 Plains Writers' Series, an annual event sponsored by the Wayne State College English department, will begin with Carol Ann Russell who will be in residence Feb. 13-15.

The Plains Writers' Series is funded in part by grants from the National Endowment for the Arts and the Wayne State Foundation.

Russell is currently a creative writing instructor at Tarkio College, Tarkio, Mo. She received her MA from the University of Montana and while there studied with Richard Hugo.

Her work has been published in various literary journals, and her first book entitled "The Red Envelope," will be on the shelves this fall.

Russell entertained faculty and staff members with a poetry reading Monday, Feb. 11 which was broadcast live by KWSC-TV. Following the reading Sigma Tau Delta, the English honor fraternity, hosted a reception for the visiting poet and those in attendance at the Lumber Company.

The next guest in the Plains Writers' Series is Robert Liez, who will be in residence at WSC Feb. 25 - March 1.

Openings available for New York trip

Two spots are still open for Wayne State students to participate in the New York National Model United Nations program.

According to Allen O'Donnell, director of the Wayne State Public Affairs Office, interested students should contact no right away.

O'Donnell noted there are no prerequisites to apply, the program is at the 300 or upper division level, plus one can earn three credit hours.

The participants will visit New York and represent Spain at the program.

Departure is set for March 31 and the students will return April 7. Students will stay at the New York Grand Hyatt Hotel on 42nd Street, above Grand Central Station, which is near Broadway, Central Park, Rockefeller Center and the Lincoln Center.

The trip, which will cost approximately $400, will allow a student to understand foreign policies and act as a diplomat as well as interact with some 1,000 other students from around the country who will also be attending.

Interested students should contact O'Donnell at Wayne State College, (402) 275-2200, ext. 296, Cornell Hall, Room 102.

The Concert Choir from Wayne State College will appear in concert six times during a swing through western Nebraska and Colorado, Feb. 27-March 4.

The 65-voice group, directed by Dr. Cornell Runestad, will present a program of sacred and secular acappella and unaccompanied music spanning several centuries. A chamber choir from the larger group will also be heard. Both groups toured Europe last spring.

The tour will include six concerts—three in the evenings and three during day-time hours. The Colorado concert is at Denver's St. Thomas Episcopal Church, 2201 Dexter St., at 8 p.m. (MST) March 2.

A reception for all Wayne State alumni will follow at the church.

The other five concerts (all times are MST) are at Ainsworth High School, Feb. 28 at 10:30 a.m.; Chadron High School, Feb. 28 at 8 p.m.; Alliance High School, March 1 at 11 a.m.; Scottsbluff High School, March 1 at 2 p.m.; and Holdrege Junior High, March 3 at 8 p.m.

Past repertory of the group includes the Kodaly Orff's, the Mendelssohn and Poulenc's as well as an all-Britten program. The choir has sung in Verdi's with Opera Omaha and performed the Beethoven, Brahms' and Honegger's with area orchestras. These singers participated in two 1981 performances of the Britten War with Robert Shaw conducting.

THE CHOIR HAS performed with Norman Dello Joio in Mexico City in 1978, and toured Europe in 1980, singing concerts at the Mozarteum in Salzburg and elsewhere in Germany and Austria. In 1983, the group toured Canada. The most recent tour, in May 1984, included performances in the Netherlands, France and Switzerland, culminating in several performances at the Swiss National Song Festival in Ersfeld.

The Madrigal Singers is a chamber ensemble of some 18 voices whose emphasis is on presentation of the annual Elizabethan Christmasse Feasts. The program and band just celebrates a number of English Christmas traditions such as bringing in the Yule log, wassail toasting and the precession with the boar's head, all with Christmas music and carols. Singers appear in 14th century costumes from the Elizabethan period.

The WSC singers are well-known throughout Nebraska and the Midwest for the seasonal performances and have performed in Europe as well. A tour to England in December, 1985 is planned. The group gave 17 concert and dinner performances this past holiday season.

Presently director of choral activities and formerly head of the division of fine arts, Cornell Runestad received his doctorate in choral conducting from the University of Illinois. He also holds degrees from Concordia College (Minnesota), and an MA from the University of Minnesota with additional studies at Syracuse and Northwestern Universities.

RECENT GUEST conducting appearances have included the Wisconsin All-State Choir, the International Music Camp, summer music campus in Nebraska, Bemidji State (Minn.) University, the University of Wisconsin, Madison and the Kansas Junior College Choral Festival. He has been a Humanist Lecturer for the Great Plains Library Association and a team teaching member of the interdisciplinary course in American Culture at WSC.

Runestad is active in Midwest music circles as conductor, clinician and session leader. He has been Chairman of College-University Affairs for NMEA and presently serves on the National Choral Standards and Repertory Committee for the American Choral Directors Association.

Dr. Runestad has studied with or prepared choral performances for Paul Christiansen, Harold Decker, Antal Dorati, John Alldis, Margaret Hillis, Howard Swan, Robert Shaw, Norman Dello Joio and Helmut Rilling.

Winter band concert

The Winter Band Concert at Wayne State College, featuring the Wayne State and Wayne High School bands, will be Tuesday, Feb. 26 at 7:30 p.m. in Ramsey Theatre in the Val Peterson Fine Arts Center.

"It should be an excellent evening of music for everyone in the area," said Gary Davis, WSC assistant professor of music and director of the WSC band.

A feature of the concert will be the performance of a trio consisting of Dr. Ray Kelton, retired professor of music, Keith Krueger of Wakefield and Bonnie Sieken of Wayne.

The Wayne High School band is directed by Ron Dalton. The program will play the same one the band will perform at the Nebraska State Bandmasters Convention in Lincoln. The Wayne High band is only one of five at the Bandmasters Convention March 1.

Future Homemakers of America students from five high schools received superior ratings for their presentations during the FHA SEARCH District 5 event Jan. 30 at Wayne State College.

Presentations receiving superior ratings advance to the state SEARCH (Student Events for Achievement and Recognition in Consumer Homemaking) event.

Two presentations received superior ratings in the "General Chapter Division." Holly Albers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Albers Jr. of Wisner, received a superior for her solo in Creed Speaking and Interpretation.

Joyce Denton, daughter of Mrs. Joan Denton, will represent West Point at the state event for her superior individual presentation in the Informative Speech event.

Four categories in the "Consumer Homemaking Division" will be represented by District 5 students at the state event. Brenda Meier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Meier, and Lynn Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Anderson, will represent Wakefield for the Family Living and Parenthood Education event, and Kris Munderloh, daughter of Dennis and Georgia Munderloh, will represent Pender for the Consumer Education-Home Management event.

Two Wisner High School students earned a superior rating for their Food and Nutrition presentation: Julie Ketter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lamont Ketter, and Brenda Nilges, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Nilges.

The SUPERIOR rating in the Child Development, Care and Guidance event was achieved by Cindy Marx, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Marx of Wisner.

All three categories in the "National Star Division" will be represented at the State Event. Roberta Olson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Olson of Pender in the Display event and Tonia Clements of Wakefield in the Job Application and Interview event received superior ratings.

A junior high and senior high student will move to the state event for their superior presentations in the Illustrated Talk, Representing West Point in the junior high division is Lisa Giese, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Giese. The Wisner representative in the senior high division is Beckie Rathke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elvern Rathke.

One of the two categories in the "National Project Division" will be represented at the state event. In the senior high division, Theresa Pallas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Pallas of Emerson, received a superior rating.

A team of students from Emerson was successful in achieving a superior rating in the junior high division: Beverly Burcham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenney Burcham of Waterbury; Stacy Mackling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Mackling of Emerson; Kairi Jensen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Jensen of Hubbard; and Lynn Roeber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Roeber of Emerson.

The primary purposes of the FHA group, which was hosted by the Home Economics department at WSC, are to provide students with an atmosphere for strengthening the family, learning life skills and developing youth leadership. The element that makes the FHA unique is that it is the only youth organization with the family as its central focus, said Dr. LaVer a Roemhildt, associate professor of home economics.

Openings available for New York trip

Two spots are still open for Wayne State students to participate in the New York National Model United Nations program.

According to Allen O'Donnell, director of the Wayne State Public Affairs Office, interested students should contact no right away.

O'Donnell noted there are no prerequisites to apply, the program is at the 300 or upper division level, plus one can earn three credit hours.

The participants will visit New York and represent Spain at the program.

Departure is set for March 31 and the students will return April 7. Students will stay at the New York Grand Hyatt Hotel on 42nd Street, above Grand Central Station, which is near Broadway, Central Park, Rockefeller Center and the Lincoln Center.

The trip, which will cost approximately $400, will allow a student to understand foreign policies and act as a diplomat as well as interact with some 1,000 other students from around the country who will also be attending.

Interested students should contact O'Donnell at Wayne State College, (402) 275-2200, ext. 296, Cornell Hall, Room 102.

Adjustment needed to survive

Attitude theme of Cattlemen's Expo

Avoiding fire blight

If you've had problems with fire blight in apples, crab apples, mountain ash or cotoneaster in the past, chances are good that you'll have problems again this year unless you do something about it.

You can do two things this spring to help avoid fire blight. One is to avoid pruning or cutting trees or shrubs in many parts early in the spring if you haven't already done so. Prune about mid-March before trees are growing actively. Varieties with some resistance recommended for Nebraska are: Delicious, Winesap, and Northwestern Greening.

When pruning, cut at least 10 inches below the edge of the infected area or canker. Sterilize the cutting tools after each cut by disinfecting or pouring it over the cutting edge. A 5 percent lysol, or a 10 percent household bleach or 70 percent denatured (rubbing) alcohol are satisfactory as disinfectants.

Other practices which help control fire blight are spraying in the blossom stage and avoiding excessive nitrogen fertilizer combined with heavy watering which produces succulent growth. Fire blight is worse on such growth.

Cow-calf producers, in order to survive, let alone make a profit, must make adjustments in not only production, marketing and management, but in some instances — more importantly — in attitude.

This was a central theme in a talk by South Dakota State University extension economist Gene Murrah at the third annual Nebraska Cattlemen's Expo here Feb. 6. He crystal-balled future adjustments in the cow-calf industry to some 200 producers attending the event co-sponsored by the University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service and the Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association.

Murrah said the cow-calf industry is very diverse, ranging from a few heads to many thousands. Goals, which individual producers need to recognize, as real, range from "making a profit" to "a way of using non-sellable resources" to "just a hobby."

For some producers, Murrah said, the cattle enterprise supplies their total income; for others, it supplies virtually nothing. "Production techniques include everything from intensive management to what might be called pure, gross neglect," the economist said.

He listed five considerations for attitude adjustment:

- Producers must realize they can affect the net price they receive for their products.
- Producers must give up the idea of always aiming for the highest price "to top the market" or secure "neighborhood bragging rights." Hanging on for the highest price may result in getting the lowest price.
- All segments of the industry must realize that beef has increased competition from other meats — especially poultry — for the "consumer's" protein dollar. This means a quality product meeting current consumer tastes.

"Promotion is costly but necessary, and organization is needed for promotion. A unified voice is needed to aid in research and education and to help influence farm policy."

"Beef producers must look outside their industry for help in such areas as production experience, marketing, taxation and to cope with current financial and emotion stresses — professional counseling."

FINANCIAL STAKES are high in cow-calf enterprises, Murrah said, because of the investment to produce a calf — conservatively estimated at $1,000 per cow-calf unit per year.

Interest rates of 12 to 16 percent would result in costs per cow of $120 to $160 in interest alone. If costs in the neighborhood of $300 to maintain a cow-calf unit for one year, Murrah said.

"When it is assumed that one cow-unit produces about 400 pounds of sellable product — 80 percent calf, crop at 300 pounds — a market price of $75 per hundredweight is needed just to cover costs," he said. "And, these costs probably don't include land costs," he said.

Too often, gains made in production are lost by the use of poor or inappropriate marketing techniques, Murrah said.

He urged producers to develop a formal market plan in writing, including price objectives. The market plan should be related to family, farm and enterprise objectives. "It is the goal to make a profit, enjoy a good life, survive or just to have cattle?," the marketing plan must be related

Humidity and houseplants.

Increased humidity indoors will benefit houseplants. Many common houseplants are native to steamy tropical jungles, and if's no wonder certain plants don't thrive indoors in the dry winter air of our centrally-heated homes.

One way to increase humidity level for houseplants is 40 to 80 percent, which is difficult to maintain indoors or high humidity level for most homes is a humidity of 35 to 40 percent. Damage to homes can result from excessively high humidity. Humidity gauges similar to thermometers may be purchased to monitor your home's humidity level.

Several methods can increase humidity around houseplants. An electric humidifier will increase the moisture level of a substantial area within the home.

Potted plants may be set in pebble-filled saucers to which a little water is added. Groups of plants may be kept on a homemade evaporating reservoir, put a layer of pebbles in a tray that is at least 1 1/2 inches deep, then partially cover the pebbles with water. Lay a piece of wire mesh across the top of the pebbles to support the pots and prevent them from touching the water — if plant pots are allowed to rest directly in water, drowning may result.

Plants grown in a group tend to form a small "micro-climate" of high humidity, as in a small "jungle." Saucers of water located among these plants will provide extra evaporation, and it is advisable to place a sponge in each saucer for increased evaporative surface area.

Many houseplant growers increase humidity by misting plants such as ferns with a spray bottle. However, caution should be exercised in using misters or high humidity level for most homes. Evaporation may leave a salty white film to clog leaf pores.

Using distilled water or rain water will alleviate this problem. Indiscriminate misting also may encourage foliar disease.

Sixteen members were present at the afternoon of Feb. 3 when the Blue Ribbon Winners 4-H club met at the Carroll school.

Jim Roberts conducted the business meeting and officers elected for the new year are Jenni Topp, president; Diane French, vice president; Jim Roberts, secretary; Mindy Janssen, treasurer and Jerry Williams, news reporter.

Chris Mann is flag bearer; Adult leaders are Randy Miller, beef, assisted by John Williams; Darrell French, swine assisted by Dean Jensen.

Membership dues are $1 a year and the group made the decision that each member must attend 75% of the meetings to be eligible to exhibit at the fair from Blue Ribbon Winners Club.

Jim Roberts, Becky Janssen and Karen Reeg are Junior Leaders.

Extra interest demonstrations will be: Veterinary Science; Welding and Rope Tying.

Seven new members were welcomed making a total of 27 members from 14 families.

Films were shown on beef and hogs.

The next meeting will be March 3 at the school with the Darrell French, family and Don Nelson family hosting.

Serving at this meeting were Jim Roberts and Jason and Jerry Williams.

Jerry Williams, news reporter

The Rainbow Kids

A new 4-H Club was organized at a meeting at the Hoskins fire hall Feb. 9 with 18 members present. The Rainbow Kids was chosen as the name of the club. Sixteen visitors were also present.

Jennifer Severson and Marci Svatos led in the 4-H Pledge. Jean Severson gave the safety tip.

Officers elected were Jamie Pater, president; Wendy Bruss, vice president; Tammy Bruss, secretary; Marci Svatos, treasurer; and Shelley Henzler, news reporter. Mrs. Larry Severson was named leader.

A community improvement committee was appointed.

Mary Tomme of Wayne was present and spoke on Fun with 4-H.

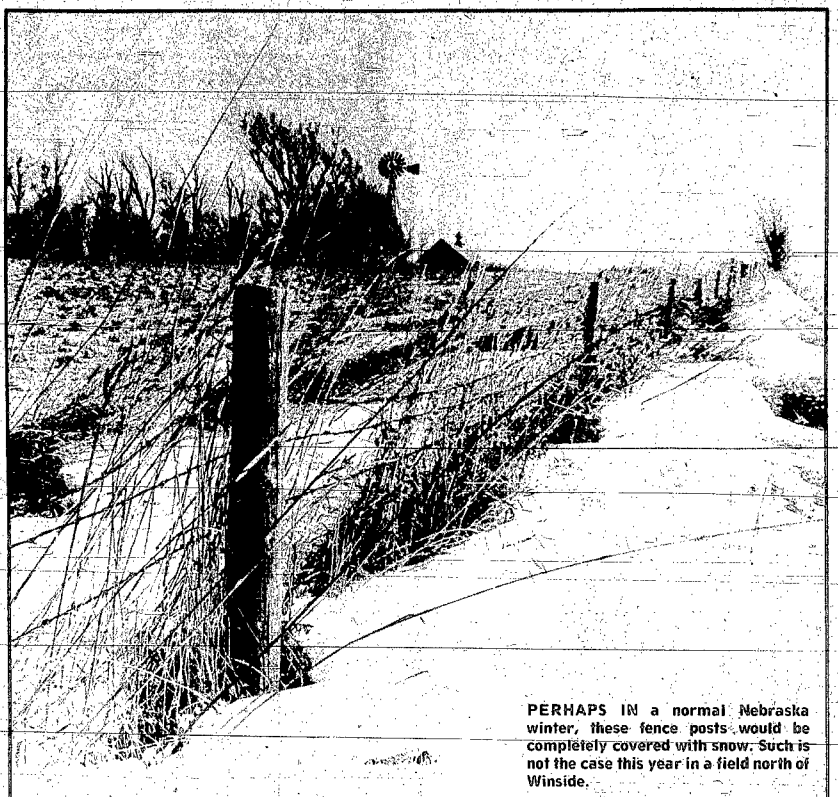

The Severson and Svatos families served refreshments.

The next meeting will be held at the fire hall on March 2 at 11 a.m.

News reporter, Shelley Henzler.

Pleasure and Profit 4-H Club

On Feb. 8, Pleasure and Profit 4-H Club meeting was called to order by Tamie Noe, president. The club said the American Pledge and the 4-H pledge. Roll call was held. John 4-H; Ten members, three leaders and one visitor were present.

PERHAPS IN a normal Nebraska winter, these fence posts would be completely covered with snow. Such is not the case this year in a field north of Winside.

Area men to present conservation tillage program

Residue management for erosion control will highlight the presentation by Harold Wittler, of Hoskins, at the Conservation Tillage program slated for 9 a.m. on Feb. 21 at the Pender Legion Hall. Two other farmers, Don Heineman of Pender and Dan Smith of Lyons will join Wittler in discussing their experiences with conservation tillage systems.

The program is presented by the University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service to relate research results and farmer experiences with practices that will save soil, moisture, time and fuel. Five University of Nebraska researchers will cover topics such as compaction, fertilizer placement, weed control and fuel use in conservation systems.

Information will include results from thirty-eight farmer generated comparisons of conservation and conventionally tilled fields in Eastern Nebraska. Most of the comparisons showed increased yields, lower costs associated with field work and often no change or a reduction in herbicide costs with conservation tillage.

District Conservationist, Ken Neumann will give an overview of Soil Conservation Service and Natural Resource District programs. Neumann says, "Thurston County is somewhat typical for soil losses in Northeast Nebraska. We lose an average of 17.6 tons of soil per acre per year on row-crop land. Our goal is to help install economical systems that will reduce this loss to our ideal of 5 tons per acre."

The program is supported by donations from product exhibitors, Natural Resource Districts and private donations. A registration fee of $5 will cover the noon meal and proceedings. No pre-registration is required.

The Extension and Soil Conservation Services in the Northeast Nebraska counties are working cooperatively on the program. Contact one of these offices for a program of topics.

Plantings improve habitat for wildlife

The basic needs of wildlife are very similar to those of man. Like man, wildlife needs food, water, and shelter to survive. Wildlife plantings are a good way of improving habitat for wildlife. These plantings can provide food as well as cover for nesting, raising young, and protection. Wildlife plantings may include native grasses, shrubs, and trees.

Native grasses good for wildlife are big bluestem, Indiangrass, switchgrass, little bluestem, and sideoats grama. Besides providing food and cover, native grasses help reduce soil erosion. Native grasses can be planted in grassed waterways, along fences, around farm ponds, and in odd areas of fields.

Many shrubs are excellent for wildlife plantings. Shrubs are good sources of food for both song birds and upland game birds. Some shrubs also provide browse for deer and rabbit. Good wildlife shrubs include autumn olive, American plum, cotoneaster, chokecherry, honeysuckle, and skunkbush sumac. Shrubs can be planted in windbreaks, near farm ponds, in backyards, and as understory in wooded areas.

All trees provide some benefits to wildlife. Red cedar and the pines offer excellent year-round cover as well as some food. Oak trees and nut bearing trees produce food for deer, turkeys, and squirrels. Other good trees include hackberry, Russian olive and fruit trees. Typical tree plantings include farmstead wind breaks, woodlots, field windbreaks, and landscape plantings.

Plantings for wildlife are very important and it is something just about everyone can do. Wildlife plantings help conserve our limited natural resources, along with promoting wildlife. For more information on wildlife plantings, contact the Natural Resource District, Nebraska Game and Parks Commission, or the Soil Conservation Service.

New grains may be of benefit to area farmers

There are three newer spring small grains that may be of interest to farmers in this area. A brief description of each one follows.

Kelly oats

Kelly oats originated in South Dakota. Kelly is classified as an early, medium height, whitekerneled, high test weight, and medium to high protein variety. Kelly is moderately resistant to loose smut but quite susceptible to barley yellow dwarf mosaic. We have had trouble with barley yellow dwarf mosaic in oats the past few years.

Kelly probably won't yield as well as Ogle, another highly recommended variety. For producers wanting high test weight and access to the white oat horse market, Kelly may be a good choice. Some registered and certified seed should be available in 1985.

Guard spring wheat

Guard is a new hard red spring wheat from South Dakota. Guard is an awned, medium to early, semi-dwarf variety with good lodging resistance. Guard has yielded better in South Dakota tests than James Guard. Guard has higher test weight than most spring wheats but is rated medium to low in protein. Registered and certified seed should be available in 1985.

Hazen spring barley

Hazen spring barley was released by North Dakota. Hazen is a six row barley equal in maturity to Bowers. Bowers and Hazen were the high yielding varieties in the northeast Nebraska 1984 spring grain test. Hazen appears to have good straw strength, test weight, and kernel plumpness. Not much barley seed is produced in this area so finding a seed source of either Bowers or Hazen may be a

Operation trade expansion

Thanks to area crop producers who cast a ballot at Carroll Fertilizer and Fitcher Farm Service, Inc. of Wayne and at other chemical dealerships to build markets for corn, wheat, beef, pork, cotton and real dairy foods.

The monies were raised through Velisco's Operation Trade Expansion, underwritten by Velisco Chemical Corporation. Operation Trade Expansion contributes funds to six organizations for use on specific market expansion projects. For every gallon of their herbicide sold and reported, Velisco donates 50 cents to the group the donor designates on a ballot.

The contributions, as determined by the plan for the wrong ballots cast in 1984 will be distributed as follows: American Dairy Association, $15,500; Cotton Incorporated, $10,136; National Association of Wheat Growers, $73,743; National Corn Growers Association, $97,758; National Cattlemen's Association, $32,210; and National Pork Producers Council, $20,539.

Wayne conservation tillage meeting

A meeting explaining results of the Conservation Tillage Projects in Wayne County will be held Wednesday, Feb. 20, ASCS Meeting Room from 1:30 to 3:15 p.m., Wayne Neb. announced Don C. Spitzer, Wayne County Extension Agent.

At this meeting five different speakers will discuss the results of the nine 1984 Conservation Tillage Plots in Wayne County, including yields and costs. The group will look at what went right, what went wrong and what was learned from this project that will help farmers do a better conservation tillage job in 1985.

These nine no-till conservation tillage plots were conducted on the Verly Stollenberg, Stan Bailer, Ervin Hagemann Jr., Larry Bowers, and Melvin Meier henry farms in 1984.

Spitzer emphasized that this meeting is not to be confused with the area conservation tillage meeting that will be held at Pender on Feb. 21. The meeting at Pender is an area meeting of more general information on conservation tillage and not specifically for Wayne County.

Sausage supper

The public is invited to a President's Day Sausage Supper, Monday, Feb. 18 at the Skyline Ballroom in Hartington. Serving will be from 7 to 9 p.m. at a cost of $2.50 per person.

Two guest speakers plan to address farm issues. Pat Rodgers practices law and is presently Treasurer for the Friends of the Constitution. His topic will be "Initiative 300 Faces New Challenges."

Main speaker is Ricardo Avila of Corning, Iowa. Mr. Avila was active in dairy farming from 1955-1968 near Columbia City, Indiana. He has also been active in the National Farmer's Organization since 1963, when he served as county and zone dairy chairman. In 1968 he moved to Corning and began working for the Dairy Department as assistant to the director and in 1973 assistant director. Mr. Avila was named Regional Director for the Meat Department in Northern Indiana in 1979 and became Area Director of Dairy Operations for New England in 1981. He was selected National Vice-President for the National Farmers in 1983.

After the presentations, door prizes will be drawn. Farm families, business people and everyone will benefit by nourishing the body and mind with good food and an upbeat message.

Scholarships for Biology career

High school sophomores and juniors interested in careers in the biological sciences can apply for full or partial scholarships to the Nebraska Biology Career Workshop Aug. 5-9 at the Nebraska National Forest near Halsey. The deadline for applications is March 1, and application information is available through extension officers or high school principals.

Full scholarships to the workshop are valued at $200, according to John Orr, University of Nebraska-Lincoln Cooperative Extension Service 4-H specialist. Students accepted for the workshop can benefit from lectures, field studies and laboratory work with experts as well as enjoy recreation in the 90,000-acre forest.

The hand-planted forest containing the state 4-H camp is a biologist's dream laboratory, located in Nebraska's unique Sandhills region and crossed by the Middle Loup River. Among other activities, students will take canoes to marshes and sandpit lakes for aquatic study. Animal life includes domestic livestock, deer, beavers, mink, a heron rookery, wild turkey nesting grounds and prairie dog towns. Workshop participants will examine plant ecosystems and look at smaller life forms like single-cell microorganisms.

Going 'hog wild' at the Care Centre

The Wayne County Pork Producers and the Wayne Care Centre teamed up Tuesday afternoon for "Pig Day" at the Care Centre. Small pigs were on display for care centre residents near the outside entrance, and the walls of the corridors were decorated with "pig art."

Present for the festivities (as representatives of the Wayne County Pork Producers) were Verdel Backstrom, president; Ken Nolte and Gene Luit, director.

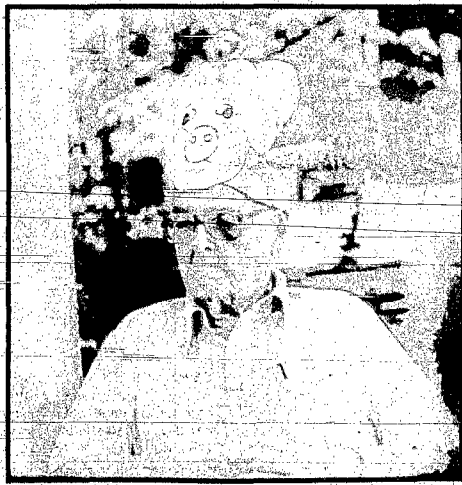

Also helping with the day's festivities were 1985 Wayne County Pork Queen Jane Gustafson of Wakefield and 1984 queen, Shelley Krusemark. Judy Malcom assisted in the puppet show and was also dressed in fashionable "pig" attire.

Roberta Carman, activities director at the care centre, assisted in coordinating the activities along with centre volunteers. Activities included the puppet show, "pig" snacks, a "guess the number of corn kernels contest," and a "salute to the pork industry" meal, and a hog calling contest.
