Special Olympics April 20

Plans are now set for the Wayne area invitational track and field meet for Special Olympics, according to organizer Dr. Herb Root, Special Education professor at Wayne State College.

This year's meet will be held at Wildcat Stadium on the Wayne State College campus in Wayne. Rice auditorium will be available in case of inclement weather.

Athletes participate in events based on age and ability levels in competition designed to develop self-confidence, pride, and physical fitness.

All handicapped individuals are eligible to participate including adults and preschoolers. Event categories will be broken down to include all ages. Root advises the meet will be an excellent opportunity for organized teams to practice in competition prior to the area meet scheduled later in the spring. Professor Root also added that because the Wayne meet is informal and adaptable it will also provide an excellent chance for first timers to "test the waters" in a relaxed atmosphere.

This year's events will include softball and frisbee throws, high and long jumps, 50 meter dash and 200 meter runs.

To participate, each athlete must complete an application and medical certificate available on request from any Special Education teacher or Dr. Herb Root, Wayne State College, Wayne, Neb. 68787.

Registration forms must be received by Friday, April 1 by return mail to Dr. Root.

Teams with Wayne Industries

NPPD aids in industry negotiations

by Chuck Hackenmiller

Mayor Wayne Marsh handed out special appreciation plaques to City Administrator Phil Kloster and Wayne Industries Representatives John Dorcey and Anne Svoboda during Tuesday night's regular city council meeting.

It was in recognition of the three individuals' special efforts in luring Timple, Inc. to Wayne — an industry with an employment potential of from 150 to 200 people. The announcement of the Timple Inc. site selection was made last Friday afternoon.

Over the past weeks, the group has worked diligently — particularly during the past two or three weeks — in working with Timple, Inc. and negotiating for the industry.

Timple will locate its refrigerated trailer manufacturing facility directly north of Heritage Homes east of Wayne. It was learned in a press conference last Friday.

"As a team we worked pretty good together — putting together a package that is affordable, we can live with it and which will bring benefits to the community," City Administrator Kloster said in an interview Tuesday morning.

Kloster aided Wayne Industries in assembling the financial package to Timple. Dorcey, Wayne Industries president and Svoboda, executive vice-president, supplied the industry with the facts about the Wayne community and the selling of its fine points.

NEBRASKA Public Power District was also very helpful in the negotiating of site selection for Timple, Inc.

Roy Landis, Area Development Manager for NPPD and Bob Shively, NPPD, Manager of Marketing in the Industrial Development Department and a 1946 graduate of Wayne Prep, were beneficial in keeping the lines of communication open between Wayne and Timple.

"Roy was the one who really handled it. He assisted Timple when they located a plant in David City and has maintained contact with the Timple people," Shively said in a telephone interview Tuesday afternoon.

"You can't say enough about the way the Wayne group performed. They did a professional job in presenting Wayne to the [Timple] company," he said.

Why did NPPD get involved in the negotiating?

"NPPD supplies all of Wayne's electricity," Shively said. NPPD would benefit from industrial development in their service area in several ways.

THE FIRST benefit would be the electricity consumed by the new industry itself, Shively said. Secondly, the employees of the industry in the residential homes would be an additional market.

"Also, commercial expansion seems to follow industrial expansion," he said.

The end result will result in an improved system that operates more efficiently for all customers.

Shively, who joined NPPD in 1967, said he played a minor role in bringing the industry to Wayne.

The goal of NPPD, he said, is to help an industry find the best location possible in its service area. So Shively, being a former Wayne resident, was not a deciding factor in NPPD's efforts to locate the industry in northeast Nebraska.

Kloster said the efforts to bring Timple, Inc. into Wayne will have a optimistic impact in surrounding area. "Fifteen years down the road we'll be sitting awfully good," he said.

Non-resident tuition figures supplied by State

by Chuck Hackenmiller

Wayne Carroll High School doesn't have it in writing what will be received in non-resident tuition for the 1985-86 school year — but a telephone call to the state department of education reveals the amount will be greater than the previous year.

The unofficial amount for non-resident tuition which Wayne Carroll will receive for 1985-86, according to Superintendent Francis Hahn, is $367,822.

"That's [the total non-resident tuition] about $5,200 more than it was this school year," Hahn said Friday afternoon.

In the past and current school year, the non-resident tuition dollars which were needed would have been calculated and established by the school board.

Last June, the Wayne Carroll School Board increased the non-resident high school tuition for the 1984-85 school year to $7,300 per student.

At the time this was approved, Hahn told the board that this year will be the last year [1984-85] that school districts would be allowed to set their own non-resident tuition rates.

He noted that a new law, passed during last year's Nebraska legislative session which was intended to be enacted for the 1984-85 school year but instead had to begin the 1985-86 school year, has changed the way non-resident tuition will be requested.

Nebraska Department of Education will determine both a minimum and maximum amount that could be charged to non-residents and schools would then charge non-resident tuition rates which would fall between those guidelines.

CALCULATIONS for the determined total non-tuition each school district receives is calculated from the previous five years of data which will include the pupil rosters in attendance at the school district (both resident and non-resident) and budget expenditures.

Hahn said the non-resident tuition amount to be released to Wayne County, who distributes the amount to the district schools within the county, will be presented for certification to the school board at their April meeting.

Derwin Hartman, superintendent of Wakefield School District, said Friday the school board certified its non-resident tuition income at $56,908. He said the amount to be received is greater than the 1984-1985 school year allocation.

However, if the non-resident tuition rate applied during this school year is applied to the increased number of non-resident students who will attend Wakefield School District next year, then the state department of education's allocation will fall short of what is actually needed.

Bob Heckathorn, superintendent of the Allen Consolidated School District, said their 1985-86 school year total non-tuition allocation from the state "looks like somewhat more than the present year." But he was unable to pinpoint the actual dollar amount.

And Superintendent of Winslow School District, Don Leighton, said he was told that the total non-resident tuition the school district would receive was $174,463.52. But he said that figure could change later on.

Appropriation proposal not enough

A 1.6 percent general fund budget increase to Wayne State College, recently passed by the Nebraska Legislature's Appropriations Committee is a "terrible" proposal, said WSC President Ed Elliott.

"I'm not very pleased with it," Elliott said, Elliott said in an interview Friday afternoon that he believes the proposed general fund increase, which advances to the full legislature, should have been more than the 1.6 percent which the appropriations committee allowed.

Elliott said Wayne State College had one of the largest enrollment increases in the entire state and that the appropriations committee should have taken that into consideration.

In October of last year, when Elliott spoke with The Wayne Herald on the enrollment increase (which was 6 percent over the previous year at that time), he said there were classrooms at the college which were jam-packed.

The enrollment increase has presented an additional burden on the faculty, increasing the ratio of students per teacher.

Elliott said he had hoped the enrollment numbers would have created leverage with the Nebraska appropriations committee who decides on the state school's budget.

Last week the appropriations committee approved a $26.8 million budget for the four colleges — Kearney, Chadron, Peru and Wayne State. That is an approximate 3.2 percent increase over current appropriations of $25.9 million.

"We can't continue to operate at our present workload without some relief from the legislature," Elliott said Friday.

Wayne State's present appropriation is $6.1 million. The proposed increase will bring the school's 1985-86 appropriation to $6.2 million.

In other news from Wayne State College, Elliott said he hopes to have recommendations before the Nebraska State College Board of Trustees on April 26 concerning the relocation of the outdoor college tennis courts.

The relocation of the tennis courts is part of the college plans to construct the proposed Rice-Carlson recreation addition, expected to be constructed on the grounds where the current courts are situated.

At the state board of trustees meeting, Elliott said he will seek approval on the contractor bids submitted for the tennis court work and he also will present a site recommendation.

If all goes as planned, he said "we hope to have the relocated tennis courts ready for play by the latter part of August [1985]," Elliott said.

The August deadline will provide sufficient time to continue within the project's timetable and meet the objectives, he said.

A program statement of the Rice-Carlson addition portrayed the tennis courts to be relocated to the northeast section of the Memorial Stadium parking lot. However, Elliott said alternate sites are being looked at in the general area of the parking lot.

An architect's consultant has looked at and has also recommended the south end of the Memorial Stadium parking lot.

"This location also has real merit," he said.

Marian Health Center offers colon cancer screening

Marian Health Center will offer the free colon cancer early detection screening project to residents of Siouxland again this year.

"This is the third annual screening project," according to Sister Elizabeth Mary Burns, R.S.M., president of Marian Health Center. "And we hope Siouxland residents will take advantage of the free offer which may save their lives."

The project will begin April 1, and kits will be made available and tested through May 31. Thousands of the Hemoccult kits have been ordered in preparation for a record-breaking number of requests.

Last year over 15,500 kits were requested, and 67 percent were returned for testing.

Dr. Joseph Washburn, director of the Marian Cancer Institute stated, "Each of the first two years we have detected cases of colon cancer in some of the participants."

A total of 28 cases of cancer have been detected during the two-year program. To the first year and 15 last year. Colon cancer is not limited to any specific area. In 1984, persons detected with cancer live in the counties of Woodbury, Plymouth, Dickinson, Ida, Sac, Monona, Carroll, Cheyenne and Buena Vista in lower Union County in South Dakota; and Dakota, Dixon, Thurston, and Madison Counties in Nebraska."

THE AVERAGE age of those found to have colon cancer was 67, with the youngest being 40 years old. Over 250 people had positive results last year, many of which were found to have problems other than cancer, such as benign adenomas, polyps, diverticulitis, ulcers and infected bowels.

"Colon cancer is more prevalent in people over the age of 40," Dr. Washburn stated, "so this group is being urged to request the kits. This early detection test is a simple, noninvasive, self-contained kit for testing for hidden fecal blood," added Dr. Washburn.

"The family physician's name and address must be on the returned kits before the kit can be tested. Only positive results will be sent to him, as well as the patient, so a thorough follow-up can be initiated," Dr. Washburn concluded.

The early detection Hemoccult kits can be obtained by writing to the Marian Cancer Institute, P.O. Box 3380, Sioux City, Iowa 51102, or by calling 282-2001 after April 1. The full name of each person taking the test must be on the request form or letter.

"THE KITS WILL be tested in Marijan Health Center's ambulatory laboratory," according to Dr. A.A. Galbani, pathologist and medical director of laboratories at Marijan Health Center. "Our lab personnel are honored to be contributing to the success of this project, and while

Initiative 300

In a close vote, the Nebraska Legislature's Constitutional Revision Committee decided to kill a proposed amendment that would repeal Initiative 300.

Initiative 300 was a law passed in 1982 in a general election. It is a law that bars non-family corporations from owning agricultural land in Nebraska.

It's purpose, according to the Nebraska Farmers Union, was to assure the continuance of the family farm. The proposed amendment to the Initiative 300 law, which was stopped in committee, was to allow corporations to own and use ag land to produce livestock and livestock products.

Farmers Union President Neil Oxtan said during a March farm crisis forum at Wayne State College that the Initiative 300 law should be left alone and untampered. It is not harmful to the farm economy.

If anything, he said, it will be a help to farmers when they come out of this depressed economic times. Corporations cannot come in and buy their land.

Some farmers believe corporations raise livestock at a loss — only to use the loss as a tax write-off and at the same time, driving down the market price.

Once the corporations take over the farms, they will likely purchase their fertilizers and herbicides or other material directly from the manufacturing or production plant, leaving out the small dealer in the smaller community, said Farm Crisis Committee Spokesman Tim Wrage at a meeting last year.

On the other hand, there is corporate industry that would benefit urban areas as well as rural areas — but it cannot expand on ranch or farmland property because of Initiative 300. Livestock feeders have said the bill "hurts" their industry by forcing corporations to look somewhere else for feed lots.

As a whole, Initiative 300 is good for the preservation of the family farm. And it is good for Nebraska.

But there must be amendments made so that it can benefit both the farming and manufacturing industries in a way that will not destroy the family farm and will allow industry to grow.

The two can be compatible. Hog producers who need work beyond the farm can find jobs in factories. Likewise, factory workers who want a piece of the land may come to be part-time farmers.

Initiative 300 fulfills what it was designated for — family farm protection.

And right now, family farms need all the protection they can get.

Be's. We're out of here. Erica's predicaments. Kim Andropoulos, and Bob Hughes. The romance of Luke and Laura. As the World Turns. All My Children. Days of Our Lives. The Edge of Night. General Hospital.

Americans know all of this jargon and program. It's as soap opera. One program series can be a way of life to some people who can't go a day without saying "What happened on the soap?" If by some unfortunate stroke of luck they couldn't watch a favorite.

Some of the far-fetched plots these soap operas come up with — a frozen prism that can blow up a whole community or some mad scientist that had the power to change the weather at the push of a button — are enough stimulate to keep people coming back for more...and more...and more.

At one time I was hooked on a soap opera (yes, men can be as bad as women). No longer. I managed to escape before the soap opera dominated my life (after Adam Chandler married Erica Kane and all that about Adam's insane identical twin was in the open).

BUT NOW I'VE seen everything.

KMEG-Channel 14 is going to give away a diamond ring as part of an "As the World Turns" promotion.

To help celebrate the upcoming April 12 wedding of Kim Andropoulos and Dr. Bob Hughes, two popular characters on the CBS-TV daytime drama, KMEG will be giving away a beautiful his-or-hers diamond ring to one of their viewers.

Viewers will be invited to watch "As the World Turns" the week of April 8 and to send in a postcard stating what kind of diamond jewelry Kim gives to Bob that week as a symbol of her love.

One KMEG viewer with the correct answer will be selected at random to win the his-or-her diamond ring. In addition, everyone who responds to the KMEG promotion will automatically receive an autographed copy of the official Kim/Bob wedding portrait.

Honest. I didn't make this up. The information comes from Karen D. Hollister, promotion manager at KMEG.

A tactic like this certainly isn't going to help those addicted to soap operas.

A WHILE BACK, I wrote this tribute to the soap opera:

Those that thought soap just lathered, understand the facts you did not gather. For watching addictive soaps there is no cure yet except pulling the plug of the T.V. set.

How can lives be so mixed up and muddled and who has time to listen to all their troubles. Marriages on soaps are of mysterious ways because they last only five or six days.

To complicate the troublesome mess, who the couple really loves is anybody's guess. Plot? A couple sneaking off to Polyphensia while another man's wife is suffering from amnesia.

One thing about soap operas we often ignore, about 50 percent of the time, cameras focus on doors.

No matter who enters, one can surely surmise that the host will be in for a big surprise.

All this is enough to make the stomach turn and give me gas plus a bad case of heartburn.

Perhaps that is why, when life commercials are played you find out just how strong your body is made.

All the publicity the aspirin makers make is enough to give anybody a bad headache. From diapers, nose drops, diet tablets and such — all these wonderful products that become magic by touch.

But one person I would really give a hard time is that snooty lady that's always looking for a "ring around the collar."

Enough of this criticism. It will do little good. Addition is strong. I did the best I could. Wait a minute. Who am I trying to con?

Got to go. My favorite soap opera is on.

Celebration to say thanks to Vietnam vets

by Wm. Alexander Hamilton, Ph.D.

The month of May will mark the 10 year anniversary of the end of the Vietnam War — a war in which the young Americans went to fight there won almost every battle and yet came home to a national cold shoulder.

Veterans of previous wars came home to cheers, to celebrations and to a gigantic ticker tape parade down Broadway. Vietnam Vets came home to a sullen silence. There was no parade through the Big Apple to signify the end of a major national experience.

The reason was simple: the outcome of the experience had been a bad one. There was no victory to celebrate. America simply tried to turn its back on the entire experience. Unfortunately, we also turned our backs on those who were not to blame for the loss. We turned our backs on the young men and women who actually suffered the most from the Vietnam War.

Then, to twist the screw a bit more, we gave an amnesty to those who cringed in Canada and Sweden. Indeed, more attention was given to those who ran than those who did their duty.

Thanks to a marvelous effort shaping up in New York City, we have a second chance, a chance to say a "thank you" to Vietnam Vets — not just in New York — but a "thank you" to Vietnam Vets everywhere.

The project started as a fund drive to build a permanent memorial to our Vietnam Vets on a beautiful plaza near the tip of Manhattan. The money for the memorial will be raised. The memorial will be dedicated on May 7, 1985.

But wait, there's more. The project also includes development of a jobs program for Vietnam Vets, a celebration on board the USS Intrepid and, at long last, that gigantic "welcome home" parade through the conflict-filled canyons of Broadway.

The celebration will be a national media event. It will give each of us — from Maine to California — the chance to participate in a national outpouring of goodwill and appreciation for those who served us so well under such cruel and unfortunate circumstances.

Donald J. Trump, a multi-millionaire real estate developer, has pledged $1,000,000 to launch the jobs program and the celebration provided the rest of us can match his $1,000,000 by May 7, 1985.

Time is running swiftly in the race to match Mr. Trump's offer of $1,000,000. Retired Army General and former Vietnam Trophy Winner Pete Dawkins has taken on the job of finding the money to match Mr. Trump's challenge. To succeed, Pete Dawkins has to raise about $15,000 per day.

No doubt some corporations will kick in some big bucks, but the majority of the money will have to come from you and me. To be truly meaningful, a national celebration for our Vietnam Veterans ought to be funded by you and me.

It's easy to play a role in matching Mr. Trump's $1 million. Simply write out a check to The Vietnam Veterans Memorial Commission, ATTN: Pete Dawkins, 10 Church Street, Suite 1700A, New York, NY 10007.

Return of confidence needed

Focus on rural bank problems

(House Banking Committee)

This past week the Financial Institutions Subcommittee on which I serve held two days of hearings on the magnitude of the problems facing rural banks. I asked that these hearings be called to focus the attention of Congress on the need to restore confidence in our rural banking system and to bring a halt to the closings of agricultural banks. Two Nebraska witnesses, State Banking Director Roger Beverage and Lisco banker, Tom Olson, participated in these hearings and helped convey the seriousness of the credit situation facing the Midwest and Western Corn Belt states.

(Troubled farm banks)

At the hearings, I announced my sponsorship of a bill, H.R. 1559, that would make troubled banks with 20 percent of their loans in farm credit, and with their capital depleted below 6 percent, eligible to obtain promissory notes from their regulators in exchange for net worth certificates which would, in effect, add to the capital of the banks.

This measure would provide troubled farm banks needed time and capital assistance in the short term to enable them to stay in business while storing up their agricultural loan portfolios. If, in turn, keep farm credit available to farmers while they find their way out of their own financial shortfalls.

With the active participation of the FDIC in resolving near-term pressure on local farm banks struggling to stay in the farm loan business, we provide additional short run credit for farm producers. I'll be happy to provide more information about my proposal if you just contact my office.

The main point that I am trying to demonstrate to my colleagues on the Banking Committee is that rural agricultural banks in this country are in trouble today because agriculture itself is in trouble. And I'm going to keep repeating that theme until we get action!

Repeat cargo preference. Now, more than ever, cargo preference deserves to be killed — forever! While I support all of the legislative initiatives that have been introduced in recent weeks to curtail the use of cargo preference, none of these bills call for its complete elimination as applied to agricultural commodities. This coming week I plan to introduce a bill to amend the charter of the Commodity Credit Corporation to exempt cargo preference requirements from all agricultural commodities.

My bill will implement one of the recommendations of the National Commission on Agricultural Trade and Export Policy. We are to issue an Interim report on March 31, and one of the recommendations on which all members, both public and private, were in unanimous agreement was the complete elimination of cargo preference.

If Congress wants to do something to promote U.S. agricultural exports and at the same time save the U.S. Treasury approximately $100 million per year, then I urge my colleagues to support the total repeal of cargo preference.

Visitors from home

In addition to the hearings that were held on the agricultural debt situation, a number of Nebraskans were in Washington this past week to present testimony on the O'Neill Project. For the first time in many years the Nebraska Congressional Delegation — both House and Senate — has agreed to recommend legislation that would modify the O'Neill Unit, replacing the Norden Dam and reservoir components with a groundwater collection, transfer and recharge system. The modification we are suggesting would implement the stated study of alternatives, that was issued in January of this year.

Other visitors I met this week included Nebraska representatives of the Wheat Growers Association, the Nebraska Stock Growers Association, the Livestock Feeders Association, and the Independent Insurance Agents from Nebraska.

Q. At the time of sentencing, will a criminal defendant be given credit for all the time he or she has already spent in jail?

A. A defendant does not have a fundamental right to credit for time spent in custody prior to trial or sentencing. Under Nebraska law, the sentencing judge is given broad discretion to decide whether or not to grant such credit. The judge also decides what the appropriate amount of credit should be given the circumstances of the case and the ultimate sentence that is imposed. However, the jail sentence imposed by the judge, plus the time spent in jail prior to sentencing, cannot exceed the maximum jail time allowed by law for the particular offense.

Great news

I have just noted the City of Wayne will be expanding considerably its industrial base. Congratulations to the announcement of Triplite Industries coming to Wayne.

Anytime a city the size of Wayne has a $7.5 million manufacturing plant join its community, it is a very important event. But this announcement, coming as it does during a time of severe economic stress in rural Nebraska, is great news, not only for Wayne but for all of Northeast Nebraska.

Again, congratulations to Wayne and to the members of Wayne's "negotiating team" of Phil Kloster, Anne Swoboda, John Dorsey and Mayor Wayne Marsh.

news and notes

Dual career families aren't all bad. Can there be benefits when both husband and wife work? You bet! Pat Knaub, University of Nebraska professor of human development and the family, says that dual career families aren't all bad.

According to Dr. Knaub, there are problems, but the benefits do outweigh the negative aspects. Families with a dual career lifestyle can be happy, successful and satisfied.

Families that believe their lifestyle is positive cope better with some of the problems in dual career families. Both parents and children rate family strengths and life satisfaction high in a survey conducted by Knaub. Overall, they see themselves as a family committed to each other, give support to each other, and are concerned about each other's feelings.

PARENTS FEEL that the benefits of sharing child care, more income and independence make their lifestyle worthwhile. They do see a need to schedule time for family activities because of the demands on their time. The children responding to this survey said they like their parents' positive role models, the financial benefits, and the independence their family lifestyle offered.

The survey also found that husbands and wives are more likely to share child care and housekeeping duties. Fathers feel more of an obligation to be involved in parenting.

Along with this involvement, fathers are feeling some of the stresses and strains that women have felt before. Generally, the husbands feel that they are contributing more to the family operation than their wives realize.

THE PROBLEM most often listed by parents in a dual career family is not having enough time to do everything. Both parents need to set priorities and in some cases lower their standards to insure that everything gets done. One working mother puts it this way, "In our family, it's first things first and second things never."

It has often been said that it's not the quantity of time your family spends together, but the quality. Quality time is when you and your child or husband share feelings, listen fully, show love, discover or learn together, and share dreams or hopes.

Arrange for some quality time with your family members each day. A dual career family need not be filled with stress and strain. It is what you make of it, and if your family believes it is benefiting from two careers, it just might be true!

WILCAT PETE Saccone takes the signal from WSC coach Lenny Klaver as he comes into third base on one of the day's five triples.

Win number 10

Wildcats 'triple' their fun in 17-7 win over Concordia

The WSC baseball team added win number 10 to their season record on the home field Friday afternoon with a 17-7 six inning victory over Concordia Teachers College of Seward.

Lenny Klaver's Wildcats, 10-13 after the game, were scheduled to host the Bulldogs in a doubleheader on Sunday afternoon, beginning at 1 p.m. The pair of games were originally slated for Saturday but moved due to weather conditions.

WAYNE STATE cracked out 13 hits in the game to continue a hot hitting streak, including five triples and a pair of doubles.

Concordia took a short-lived lead in the top of the first inning, taking advantage of a pair of Wildcat errors to score a single run.

In the bottom of the second inning, Wayne broke the game open with six runs. Jeff Scharn opened up the order with a triple and scored on a base hit by senior Kurt Brosamle on the next at-bat. A walk by Pat Salerno put a second Wayne State man on base before a double by Jeff Strain brought Brosamle home.

The third and fourth runs were brought home on a base-clearing triple by outfielder Pete Saccone, who was crunched home on a single by Gregg Cruickshank with one out. Cruickshank scored the final run of the game on a base hit by third baseman Mike Hofart.

Wayne took a 7-1 lead in the third inning when shortstop Dale Clayton got on base with the day's second triple and came home on a similar hit by Jeff Strain with two outs.

The Bulldogs added another single run in the top of the fourth following a triple by Ken Roberts, who crossed home plate on a sacrifice, by Billy Hiskey with one out.

IN THEIR HALF of the fourth inning, Cruickshank started off WSC's scoring when he advanced to first on a balk by Concordia pitcher Dan Lehmer, a second base and scored on an error by the Bulldog infield. ## Lady Wildcats take off chill with wins at District 11 tourney

The weather may have been chilly on Friday, but for the Wayne State softball team it was a very hot day on the playing field.

Competing in the NAIA District 11 Pre-Season softball tournament at Concordia College in Seward, the Lady Cats swept three straight games from Kearney State, College of St. Mary's and Concordia Teachers College to end the day as the only undefeated team and best their record to 14-9.

The second day of tournament action which had been scheduled for Saturday was cancelled due to weather conditions. WSC had been slated to play Nebraska Wesleyan and Peru State College.

The Lady Cats will make a return trip to Seward on Wednesday, April 3 for a doubleheader with Concordia College, beginning at 4 p.m.

IN THE DAY'S opener with Kearney State College, the Lady Cats put together single runs in the top of the fourth and sixth innings to score a 2-0 win over KSC.

The initial score came on a home run by leadoff batter Teresa Durbala with no outs and no one on in the fourth inning. A single by Carmen Doescholt started off Wayne's scoring in the sixth. Sacrifices by Mary Guenther and Durbala advanced Doescholt to third base and a single by Shelle Tomaszkievic brought across the run.

Sophomore Mary Lingelbach recorded the win on the mound for Wayne to push her season pitching record to 7-3. She gave up three hits and four walks while striking out two KSC batters.

A LONE RUN in the top of the seventh inning made the difference as the Lady Cats took a 1-0 victory over the College of St. Mary's in the second game of the day.

A single by Doescholt set up the scoring play, as she moved to second base on a sacrifice by Guenther and scored the plate on an error by St. Mary's off a hit by Tomaszkievic.

Veteran pitcher Laurie Owens logged her fourth shutout of the year with the win and evened her record at 6-6. Owens gave up three walks and four hits along with setting down three opposing batters at the plate.

Win number three was also a low scoring affair for Wayne State as they took a 2-0 victory over host school Concordia College in the day's finale.

Both runs came in the top of the first inning led off by Doescholt with a single. Michelle Blomberg joined Doescholt on base following a fielding error by Concordia, along with Mary Guenther. Blomberg and Guenther both scored on a two RBI double by Durbala later in the same inning.

Freshman Heidi Anderson made her first varsity appearance on the mound for the Lady Wildcats and pitched the win, allowing two hits and no walks while striking out one Concordia batter.

"Even though it was cold, our defense played very well in all of our games," said WSC Coach Marilyn Fraite. "Our hitting is continuing to improve as the season progresses."

nebraska game & parks

FARM POND STOCKING APPLICATIONS DUE

The Game and Parks Commission is offering free fish for stocking to farm pond owners again this year, but applications must be received prior to June 1 to be eligible. Applications are processed on a first-come, first-served basis.

In providing free fish for farm-pond stocking, the Commission is offering an opportunity for farm pond owners to create a fishery on their own land that will provide recreational opportunities and remove some pressure from public waters across the state. And, that goal is being realized, as a recent survey showed some 30 percent of all fishing trips in Nebraska are made on private waters.

It is widely known that farm ponds offer some of the most exciting and productive fishing available, but only a handful are utilized to their potential.

The Commission requires that the pondowner agree to allow fishing by permission of his pond. The landowner is provided a sign that must be posted at the entrance of his property, normally a driveway or the entrance to the pond, which gives notice that the pond has been stocked by the Commission and may be fished if permission is obtained from the landowner. The landowner is not required to allow fishing by everyone who asks, but he is required to make his pond available to some fishing.

Other requirements include that the pond must have been constructed during the past two years, or be newly renovated; it must be one-half acre in size or larger; it must be 10 feet deep or deeper over one-quarter of the surface area; there must be no other fish present at the time of stocking; and if smaller than four surface acres in size, the pond must be fenced to exclude livestock, however, it may be fenced to allow access points to the water.

THE COMMISSION stocks bluegill and bass fingerlings at a rate of 500 bluegill to 100 bass per acre (maximum of five acres) and recommends the landowner purchase catfish fingerlings from private fish culturists for additional stocking at the rate of 100-150 three inch fish per acre. The bluegill are stocked to provide forage the bass must have to survive and grow, and to provide adult bluegill for fishing. Channel catfish may also be stocked without damaging the bass population as they utilize a portion of the pond not entirely used by the bass and bluegill and also offer quality fishing.

The Commission recommends that this pond not be fished for about two years following the initial stocking to allow the fish to reach harvestable size which also allows spawning to have occurred. Once the fish have grown to respectable size, the harvest should include about four pounds of bluegill for each pound of bass removed from the pond, or the proper predator-prey relationship will not remain in balance.

TO ENCOURAGE natural spawning by the catfish, pondowners can provide suitable habitat by sinking and anchoring cream cans or sections of 10 inch cut pipe with one end plugged. Brush piles, cedar trees weighted with cement blocks and weighted tires may also be added to provide necessary fish habitat for bluegill and bass.

Additional information and fish stocking applications may be obtained from Commission headquarters in Lincoln, Omaha, Norfolk, Bassett, North Platte or Alliance.

Interest Rates Aren't The Only Thing To Consider When You Buy An IRA

Yes, interest rates are important. But so is time—the other ingredient needed to make the magic of compound interest work.

You've seen the numbers: $2,000 deposited each year at 11% will total $142,530 after 20 years. $431,826 after 30 years, and $1,291,659 after 40 years. That's why it's so important to put money aside in an IRA now—so it'll have time to grow into the nest egg you need for your future.

Using scraps of nylon material donated by Wayne Sporting Goods, the three designed and sewed the 8 x 10 foot kite, using lumber for the frame and hand-sewing the edges to wire for extra support.

start your I.R.A. today

Get in on a good thing. You have until April 15th, 1985, to open an I.R.A., and deduct the amount you deposit on your 1984 income tax return. Aside from giving you a tax break now, you'll be started on the road to a brighter financial future. You can shelter up to $2,000 (individually each year; $4,000 for a married, working couple) and the high interest you'll earn is also tax deferred. Ask us.
