THE WAYNE HERALD

Contact maintained for over a year

Efforts revealed in bringing Timppte to Wayne

by Chuck Hackenmiller

Perseverance and motivation paid off for Wayne Industries representatives in their efforts to bring an end to Timppte, Inc.'s search for a manufacturing plant location. Nebraska Public Power District's (NPPD) assistance to Wayne Industries in negotiations with Timppte, Inc. was helpful in bringing the company to Wayne, as was reported in Monday's edition of The Wayne Herald.

Wayne was brought into the picture when Wayne Industries was contacted March 16, 1984 by NPPD, according to organization executive vice president Anne Svoboda. This was NPPD's typical method of contacting cities about industrial projects — revealing the requirements which the industry seeks and asking the cities to submit a proposal if they meet these requirements.

Wayne's return proposal basically addressed employee supply, availability of land, building construction and utilities. "We just said yes. We have what you need. The basics," she said. Wayne's proposal was screened by the industrial prospect who worked with NPPD in arranging visits or asking for more information. The manufacturing firm did both.

On April 5, 1984 the company visited Wayne. A couple sites were shown and information was provided to them. "Such as the companies in the area which ship products east

More about labor in the area and what the costs were, and unionization," Svoboda said.

Wayne Industries was notified shortly thereafter that Wayne was still in the running for the site location, and transportation cost was the most important factor (cost of getting their product to their people).

"Several months later we were informed (through NPPD) that we were out of the running," Svoboda said, "and that they were continuing to look at spots in several states."

ON NOV. 28, Wayne Industries had learned Timppte, Inc. was re-investigating various sites and representatives would come to Wayne on Dec. 11.

"We found out they were interested enough to come back a second time. We knew what we had was good enough so now we had to start giving incentives," Svoboda mentioned.

Talk turned to block grant funds, what the land cost, utility incentive rates, more in-depth labor studies (who was employed and what their skills were, what the benefits were).

Rod Tompkins of Heritage Homes was also brought in at this time, Svoboda said. Tompkins discussed with Timppte officials what he thought of the labor force in the area.

More informational packets were submitted to Timppte, Inc. Utility incentives were offered through People's Natural Gas and the city of Wayne (electrical).

"After that meeting, we realized we had something here that we could easily grab or had a good chance at. But before we could go on and offer anything else, we needed to meet with leaders in the community," she said.

A meeting took place in mid-December with representatives of the city council, county commissioners, Wayne Industries, Chamber of Commerce, college officials, industrial and business leaders.

"We let them know what we were doing (without releasing the name of the company) saying that to stay ahead of the competition this is what we need to offer — and will you support us?" Svoboda said.

Overwhelming support was obtained from the community people.

A NEW PACKET of statistics was forwarded to Timppte, offering precise information on utilities, tax information, figures on workers compensation, unemployment compensation and detailed information on sites being offered.

Two sites were being considered at the time — one north of Heritage Home and another north of Valley Engine.

Census material was presented to the company, which was needed to document the labor available in the area, Svoboda said, and the county commissioners "did" some random labor sampling.

Svoboda said "We were also sure then that we could offer the block grants. We had to offer to cost land, a paved road, had to put all the infrastructure improvements in and any other additional incentives that we could come up with."

Supportive material was also sent from community leaders, which really impressed Timppte, she said.

County requested to find section corners

A recent request from the Nebraska State Department of Roads to Wayne County, asking that missing ties to the section corners be located, could cost the county up to $40,000.

The information is needed for preliminary survey operations needed to complete two state highway improvement projects which will take place in Wayne County in the near future.

A "tie" is defined in survey terms as a measurement made to determine the position of a survey station with respect to a reference mark or other isolated point (corner markers). One of the stretches scheduled for improvement is Highway 35 from Hoskins to Winside on up to the Highway 35 and Highway 39 junction eight miles west of Wayne. In this portion of highway there are 82 total section corners.

The second improvement project where corner locations are needed is a 12 mile stretch on Highway 57 north and south of Carroll. The contractor could start the project as early as May 5.

"The state is asking the county to find 82 ties or location of the corners (for the Highway 35 project)," said Clyde Flowers, designated surveyor for Wayne County, during Tuesday's regular county commissioner's meeting.

Work required for the Highway 57 project is to locate the corners sunk into the road's centerline. Boone and Nance County Surveyor Barney Willman said the expense for the corner locating could be borne entirely by Wayne County.

A STATE STATUTE says it is the duty of the county board to preserve the identification of existing corners of land surveys along public roads and highways where such corners are destroyed by destruction. Destruction could be by public travel (here are corners inserted right into the highway), construction or maintenance.

Another statute says that any person who knows of loss or destruction of a corner marker of a land survey, fails to report it, is liable for the expense of the resurvey and restoration of the corner.

"The cost (of locating the corners) cannot be predicted until research is done, but $30,000 to $40,000 is not unrealistic," Willman said.

The section corners, he said, could be one foot under the ground or six feet under. They were placed in the ground some 130 years ago and the markers have been in the form of rocks, charred-oak posts and even tea cups.

He said a similar "corners location project" had been completed in Boone County — a nine mile stretch near Albin which cost $25,000.

ALSO ON Tuesday, bids for the purchase of gravel were opened with seven companies submitting bids.

Bids were as follows: Cedar Lake Development Company of Norfolk, $3.40 per ton (75 percent pure); Backus Sand and Gravel, Mt. Can., $2.97 per ton (78 percent on No. 10 sieve) and $2.97 per ton (96 percent to 100 percent on 200 sieve); Northeast Sand and Gravel, Winsor, $2.73 per ton free on board (80 percent or above on No. 10 sieve); Stalp Gravel Co. of West Point, $2.75 per ton free on board; Pilger Sand and Gravel, $3.36 per ton (80 percent on No. 10 sieve) and $3.00 per ton (77 percent on No. 10 sieve).

Nuss, retired businessman, dies

Funeral services took place Monday morning at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Wayne for long-time businessman Carl Nuss, who died last Friday at Providence Medical Center.

Burial was in the Greenwood Cemetery in Wayne with Schumacher Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

Carl, the son of Joseph and Marie (Herd) Nuss, was born Sept. 18, 1906 at Scranton, Pa. He moved to Wayne with his parents in 1908.

His father founded the Ben Franklin Store in Wayne in 1908. Carl took over the family store in 1933.

Carl's sons, Jean and Joe, joined the family business in 1951 and 1958. Following his retirement, his sons took over the management of the Wayne Ben Franklin Store.

Carl graduated from Wayne High School in 1925 and attended Wayne State College. He was married to Lillian Hayne on Jan. 10, 1928 in the St. Cecilia's Cathedral in Omaha. He was a life-long member of St. Mary's Catholic Church and was very active in many Wayne organizations, including the fair board, school board, hospital foundation board, hospital board, Kiwanis Club (where he once served as president), the Chamber of Commerce (also serving as president), a director of the State National Bank, trustee of St. Mary's Church and an Ak-Sar-Ben ambassador.

He is preceded in death by his parents and is survived by his wife,

Carl Nuss

Lillian, two sons, Jean and Joe, both of Wayne; a daughter, Mrs. Donald (Joan) Carl of Harrington; 13 grandchildren; six great grandchildren; and one sister, Helen Nuss of Harrington.

Active pallbearers were David Ley, Clark Kai, Ray Murray, Robert Carhart, Roger Nelson and Terry Karel.

Easter has special memories for college student's mom

As a junior forward on the Wayne State Wildcats 1984-85 varsity basketball team, Ed Heritage started 12 of 32 games and had played in 21 of those total games.

He had a personal high game during the past season of 22 points against nationally ranked Washburn and he averaged 10 points a game. Throughout the course of the season, he has connected on nearly 50 percent of his field goal attempts and made 15 of 17 shots from the free throw line.

Ed was a key player on a Wildcat basketball team that overcame some hurdles and finished with a 16-16 record this season.

However, Ed knows how to fight the odds. He's been doing it all his life.

Ed, a Wayne State College transfer from Des Moines, Iowa, was taken home from the hospital 22 years ago on Easter Sunday, the newborn son of William and Phyllis Heritage.

He came into this world 2 1/2 months earlier than expected (on Feb. 28, 1963) weighing 3 pounds and 1/2 ounces.

"His first days were very traumatic for all. His tiny frame (nothing but flesh on tiny, tiny bones) resembled a starving old man," Phyllis wrote the Wayne Herald. "But mom and dad thought he was beautiful."

The seventh day of his battle for life, he dwindled to 2 pounds and 10 ounces. He gained a pound a day, then on the 12th day he fell back to 2 pounds and 10 ounces again.

"His tiny footprint at birth is the size of mom's thumb," his mother said. "On the 26th day he developed a cold, the 27th day he needed oxygen and the 28th day given antibiotics. Mom now developed her first grey hairs at 20 years of age."

SHE WAS ABLE to hold Ed on the 38th day of his life. He was taken home to his family on Easter Sunday. But he wasn't released from the Des Moines hospital.

Early birth complications demanded additional surgery. Scheduled hour surgeries lasted for three hours. One afternoon a terrifying cry came from Ed, then at five months of age. Again his fight to live was on.

High fever developed. "He won again," Phyllis said.

At 14 pounds and 9 ounces, he was released from the hospital. Phyllis said Ed was playing ball at 22 months.

"At 14 years of age, Ed and his two younger brothers and one sister were informed that his parents were getting a divorce."

On Feb. 3, 1977, Ed got a call at school to not go home. His house had burned down and he was to go to his best friend's house after school.

His brother, age 3, was hurt in the blaze. "Dougie didn't look like the brother he'd loved so. His coma state left no signs of the laughing little guy he'd known. On Valentine's Day, God took Ed's brother," Phyllis said.

"Ed was a changed person after this. Perhaps he had to grow up to fast. His brothers' death, his only home burned to the ground and mother and father's divorce, all at once. But Ed fought the elements and he won!" she said.

SPORTS HAS PLAYED A big part in Ed's life — an incentive for him to work a little harder — his mother said.

His father had faced open heart surgery at the Mayo Clinic. But his father survived the operation in good spirits, as he heard his son, who had 99 strikeouts in 8 games had made the front page of the daily newspaper.

"After surgery," basically injuries, continued following Ed.

"His first real injury was a broken thumb mid-season in 8th grade. The doctor said the cast would be on six weeks and no basketball. That's the first tears I saw from this boy," she said.

While out, his undefeated team lost every game with the six foot forward out of the line-up.

Sprained ankles and toes from putting all he had into his game followed the broken thumb injury. While working at the Iowa State Fair in 1977 (the summer of his sophomore year in high school) he had moved a refrigerator and injured his back. In August of that year he had slight pain and when school started, he fought to walk and sit.

Ed later went to a specialist. It was later diagnosed as a ruptured disc which required therapy rather than surgery. He spent six weeks in the hospital and a year in convalescing in bed — no school, basketball or baseball.

BUT HE FOUGHT again...and won!

"However, he lost a semester of eligibility as he went over 20 days school that year. Ed was the last student able to drop out of school during the first half of his senior year to make him eligible to play basketball and baseball his second semester as a senior," said Phyllis.

"His first game back he didn't score until the second half and went on to score 22 points. And with two minutes remaining, he sprained his ankle," she said.

"Ed has fought hard and needless to say, I'm so very proud of him. He never complains nor does he expect anything to be handed to him," she added.

"I still worry. A mother's love never changes. But I know whatever he decides to do in life, he will do it. He has the natural ability to fight and win."

"The struggle of one of your Wayne State basketball players has had in his short life seems to be of interest to all. Since he is my son, well, I'm so very proud of him."

"Easter is a special day!"

MANDAN line project terminated

The Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) board of directors, on the recommendation of NPPD management, today voted to immediately terminate all work on the proposed MANDAN Project transmission line. The proposed line passes through Hoskins.

The management recommendation and subsequent board action came despite NPPD's continuing belief in the benefits of seasonal energy exchange between electric utilities with opposite peak demand periods.

The MANDAN Project was to have been a 600-mile, 500,000-volt transmission line that would link hydro generation resources in Manitoba Province in Canada with coal and nuclear resources in the United States. The seasonal diversity exchange would have provided for electricity to flow south during the summer-to-summer-peak utilities, such as NPPD, and then returned north during the winter to winter-peak utilities, such as Manitoba Hydro. The MANDAN Project was first proposed by NPPD, Manitoba Hydro, and other utilities in 1975.

In making the recommendation to terminate the project, NPPD General Manager, Don Schaufelberger, cited the District's inability to secure the necessary cost-sharing arrangements with participating utilities in the United States and a stalemate in negotiations with Manitoba Hydro Electric Board over the pricing of electric energy associated with the exchange of seasonal diversity capacity.

Participation by other utilities in the region has long been recognized as necessary to the feasibility of the MANDAN Project. In December, 1984, management was directed by the board to continue efforts to develop an appropriate contract, but if satisfactory participation by other U.S. utilities was not obtained by July 1, 1985, as evidenced by "reasonable, good faith cost sharing arrangements," management was directed to end all work on the project.

Schaufelberger told the board that management has not been able to secure these arrangements and he sees little chance that such contracts can be negotiated in the next three months—or even in the foreseeable future.

"To eliminate further expense on the project, with diminished prospects for agreement with potential participants or Manitoba Hydro, it is our opinion we should immediately terminate work on the MANDAN Project," he said.

THROUGH JANUARY, 1985, NPPD had spent approximately $34.5 million on the project, including financing costs and overhead. Other activities involving expenditures included engineering, permits and licensing, environmental studies, and planning, legislative, legal, and public information activities as well as management coordination of the project.

The various utilities that dropped out of participation did so for a number of reasons, including reduced load growth and lower load forecasts, energy conservation, escalating project costs, differing in-service date requirements, and financial considerations.

Early cost estimates for the project with a 1986 in-service date were about $500 million. The latest cost estimate, with a 1993 in-service date is $578 million. The higher cost is due in large part to inflation, with some increase due to design improvements and refined engineering data.

The primary reason the in-service date was moved back several times is the reduced load growth experienced by NPPD and other utilities during recent years. When the project was proposed 10 years ago, the peak load was growing by six to seven percent a year. In recent years, this growth has slowed significantly, and NPPD's peak load is predicted to grow at three to four percent into the first half of the 1990s.

NPPD management will now begin a study of possible means of meeting the District's future power and energy needs. These could include participating with another utility in building a generating station, constructing a new NPPD coal-fired station or building an oil or gas-fired peaking turbine.

Full days of debate ahead

Wayne easement gets final legislative approval

Two of the bills that I introduced this session have recently completed the process and have been approved by the full legislature. The first, LB 326, allows county courts to put the funds they have collected into interest bearing accounts.

Until now, counties did not have this option and were therefore unable to generate even the risk-free rates that the banks offer. The idea is fairly simple, but very sound. It is expected to generate approximately a quarter of a million dollars a year in revenue that does not result from taxation, but from increased governmental efficiency and cash management.

Another bill, LB 235, was given final approval by the Legislature just today. This is a bill that will grant the city of Wayne an easement to construct a new, safer street to its hospital. The easement is needed since the street borders property under state control.

Throughout the course of this session, I have been called upon to try and explain the legislative process.

by san. gerald cohen

Many times it is easier to understand something if you use an analogy. Basketball coaches use them to explain plays. A manager uses it to explain a process to an employee. It might also be helpful when discussing the legislative process.

A bill can sit there like a stone in a stream. You can take it out and move it, or leave it and see where the currents of ideas and debate might take it. It seems like a simple choice. You let it float the currents or not. If it is left in the stream it may remain on the bottom unmoving or get swept up.

MORE IMPORTANTLY though, is the banging and scraping of each stone against the others in the same legislative river. I pay close attention to the stream, but the outcome will depend more on the interaction of various bills (say, 4 different bills all dealing with aspects of tax exemptions) than whether a given bill is good or bad in isolation.

I believe it's important for you to understand the process. I say this because many of you have written regarding important, specific proposals in front of the Legislature. They are, without exception, concerned and honest letters. I try to respond to each and every one, sharing with you the facts and views I have regarding the issues.

The point I try to make, however, is that it's not always a matter of supporting or opposing one specific bill at a given point in time, since what happens to one may change the content or fairness of another. Often a bill is heavily amended as it moves through the process and no longer provides the best solution.

We've finished holding public hearings on most of the bills that have been introduced. That means that we now begin full days of debate, an exercise that you are welcome to observe anytime you may be in Lincoln. Contact my office if you'd like information on who, what, when, where or sometimes even why.

If you don't plan to be in Lincoln, you can still find out where a bill you're interested in is in the process. The toll-free "Legislative Hotline" (1-800-742-7456) is available for your calls between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. daily. Your calls will be taken by the staff of the Legislative Clerk. They will attempt to know the LB number of the bill you're interested in and will be able to tell you where the bill stands in the process. Please contact my office at 471-2716 for other information you may want.

The hope of Easter

by Fr. Jim Buschelman
Remember dyeing Easter eggs as a child? I do. I remember the pattern of color and the intended designs never came out nearly so clearly and brightly as the package showed. As a child, I remember a deep disappointment in seeing the reality: colors that were faded and ran together in ugly combinations, wax stencils that never left a clear imprint or names that couldn't easily be read.

I fear the same sense of disappointment still pervades our celebration of Easter. The day that commemorates Jesus Christ's victory over death is disturbed by the memory of loved ones who have recently died, or worse still are slowly dying today from any one of those fatal maladies that plague the human race — as soon as modern medicine conquers one, another rears its ugly head. The day that resounds with the "Alleluia" of hope can seem so empty when we hear of friend after friend losing a job, or losing a business, or losing a farm and a whole way of life, or when we can't pay our own bills.

We may be tempted to echo Paul's words, but distorted by despair: "Jesus, where is your victory? Death, why do you still sting?" The "better world" that we've always desired to hand on to our children seems not to be getting better as Christ's Kingdom implies, but only worse with its economic instability, social upheaval, rampant terrorism and growing nuclear threat. The Glory that is Christ's in His Resurrection seems so far removed from the lives that we live each day.

I remember visiting recently with a young man, not married, holding down a steady job, but expressing no pride or sense of purpose in what he was living for. I asked him if he ever envisioned himself marrying and raising a family and changing the purposelessness of the life he was leading. His answer was "No," and even if he did marry he wasn't going to have any children because he did not want to bring them into the world as he saw it: troubled, meaningless, and probably not about to survive much longer anyway.

I remember listening to him, quietly, not arguing, but deep inside not agreeing either: I knew many happy marriages and happy families. I knew many single people (like myself) who knew why they were alive and were glad to be alive and wanting more than anything to bring that happiness to others.

I know, there are many deep, deep disappointments in life. I have had my own and expect to have my share in the future. But somehow the power of hope lives on in my heart. I recognize it not as my hope, but the Hope of Christ. I know I am not going to make the world a better place to live. I sense every day my powerlessness in the face of the economic and political and social forces at work in the world.

St. Paul admits the same when he says "the message of the cross is complete absurdity" to some; but, he said, "to us who are experiencing salvation it is the power of God." (1 Cor. 1:18) So I know the hope I find in Easter is not my hope, but it is Christ's hope living in me. I can't conquer death, but He has. I can't promise people they won't lose their job or lose their farm or business, but He promises that "in His Father's house there are many mansions."

I watch the last snow melt, and know there will only be more on another day. The flowers I watch bloom today will only die tomorrow. Yet I have hope. Why? I know it isn't because of any power I have myself, or anything that I will be able to do by myself. I have hope because I know the power of God. With Him "nothing is impossible." So I have hope.

St. Paul tells us confidently that "hope will not leave us disappointed." (Rom. 5:5)

Correcting hog import balance

Canadian Hog Imports

The number of live hogs imported from Canada went up 195 percent in 1984 and pork imports increased 33 percent. The cause of these increases is Canadian government programs which include low-interest loans, grants, loan guarantees and tax reductions. These programs reduce the cost of pork production for Canadian producers to a point where American producers cannot compete. The Canadian subsidies are interfering substantially with the United States hog market.

I am extremely pleased by a Department of Commerce ruling that these programs do constitute subsidies and that duties should be placed on Canadian pork imports to correct the imbalance. These duties

congressman

could cause a 10 to 15 percent drop in Canadian hog imports within the next four to eight months. I am told, and we eventually could see a 30 to 30 percent drop.

We're ready to compete with Canadian producers on an equal basis, but when their unfair subsidies give them an advantage, we need to take action to protect our producers.

Spending Limit
Once again I am co-sponsoring a resolution for a constitutional amendment to limit federal spending. The malaise caused by exorbitant taxes and counterproductive tax policies, unrestrained federal spending and dangerously high federal demand upon the credit market must be eliminated.

We cannot make these problems go away by ignoring them. The House of Representatives and the whole Congress must address the issue honestly and forthrightly. While adoption of a spending limit amendment would not be a panacea for our economic ills, it would be an important step in the battle against destructive economic forces.

Adjustable Rate Mortgages
A joint publication of the Federal Reserve Board and the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, "The Consumer Handbook to Adjustable Rate Mortgages," explains how adjustable rate mortgages work. It was prepared in consultation with other federal agencies (including the Office of Consumer Affairs) and trade and consumer groups. The book is free and may be obtained from Publications Services, Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, Twentieth Street and Constitution Avenue N.W., Washington, D.C. 20551.

Health Fair successful
The Wayne Unit of the American Cancer Society would like to thank everyone who helped make our Health Fair a success. We felt that all the booths were really first class and appreciate all the time and work that the representatives of those groups put into them. In many cases, spending the day of the fair meant missing a day of work. All who were there are to be commended.

There were also many, many people behind the scenes that we'd like to thank. We are so thankful for the top-notch advertising we received from The Wayne Herald, KTCB and Creative Images. Door prizes were made possible by the generosity of Sav-Mor Drug and Griess Rexall. We can't thank the hospital enough for their cooperation and willingness to lend us equipment and staff. The city and the Womens' Club were gracious enough to let us use their facilities free of charge.

One of our top priorities was to expose the school children to some of the information at the fair and to get their interests directed toward good health by organizing a coloring contest. We feel that we achieved that due in large part to the efforts of Lu Ellingson, local school administration, teachers and parents. Thanks again to The Wayne Herald for providing the prizes and to Creative Images, we are extremely grateful to the children for the efforts they put into those fantastic posters and to the Wayne State College Art Department who had the tough job of choosing the winners. The children should also be recognized for their impeccable behavior at the fair. We received many comments about it.

There are many more we need to thank: those who helped set up tables the night before, board members who helped in the organization, and those who came to help clean up afterwards. Last, but certainly not least, we'd like to thank all of those people who attended the fair. We hope you found out a little bit more about your health status and how to improve it. If you did, we can label our fair a complete success.

On LB 505
I am writing to comment on the Legislative Bill 505. This bill would hike state school aid 90 million dollars!

Can you believe, in our depressed economy, that our state legislators would even consider such a bill and yet in the March 24 Sunday World-Herald it had passed committee. I know there are a lot more hurdles before it becomes a law but I also know the Senators we have in Lincoln now, it's possible they would pass it. I think the only conservative Senator down there is Heiner.

The problem is the NSEA (the teacher's union) has gotten so powerful. They put pressure on the members to vote for Senators who will push for more state aid and more benefits for the teachers. Maybe they've forgotten who pays the bills.

Why should education cost so much more now? Enrollment is down and yet the costs soar. As long as the money keeps flowing they will not look for ways to cut down.

Not Against Education —
Just the Exorbitant Cost

Palm Sunday

What a day to greet the Easter season! About four or five inches of wet snow on the ground with very cold northwest wind. Some drifts around and not much traffic. Some church services were cancelled. But it was a good day to enjoy the service on the TV and radio here at the home.

But this afternoon there was a pleasant surprise for us. The Student Senate from Wayne State will come bearing Easter gifts to the Wayne Care Centre. Eighty senior citizens will take part in the first WSC Senior Citizens Day.

A committee of five on the Student Senate concerning the idea for this day including Dean Jacobs, Rose Marie King, Sally Joy, Rene Nikkila and Sandy Fredrick. This is the first time the Student Senate has involved themselves with care centre residents.

Flattop hats, toothpaste, tooth brushes, Kleenex, a pencil, shoe horn, a comb and a heavy mug plus 200 beautiful colored eggs donated by Waldbaums Egg Plant of Wakefield. A large Easter bunny came in and distributed the eggs. All the residents received their gifts in beautiful baskets.

After all the residents received their presents they were treated to sacks of delicious popcorn.

Dr. Luppick helped with the festivities and I had the pleasure of visiting with her.

Rose Marie King, Senate committee member, says this day should promote good will between WSC and the public. I enjoyed meeting this group of young people and I am sure it made this day a happy one for all of us. Come again.

ALTA PEARSON ADDS ANOTHER Easter egg to her pine tree at 1208 Main St. in Wayne. Alta has been decorating the little pine year-round since two years ago at Christmastime.

Main street tradition

Decorated pine tree treat for motorists

By LaVon Anderson

Whether it be eggs and baskets at Easter time, candy canes and colored bulbs at Christmastime, or red tulips at Valentines, the little pine tree on Wayne's Main St. is always celebrated for the occasion — even if there isn't a one.

There's always vegetables and fruits, miniature corn ears and pine cones — to be used during the months when there isn't a national or religious holiday.

It's become a tradition at 1208 Main St.

FOR OVER TWO years now, motorists passing by 1208 Main have watched as the comely little tree takes on a new uniform each month.

"It's always fun to watch the motorists," says the tree's owner, Alta Pearson. "They'll look, and then they'll turn and look again."

Alta began decorating the tree two years ago at Christmastime. "I couldn't put electric lights around the porch because it's too much work and I was afraid they might get swiped."

"And it was too far to run a cord out to the tree, so I just began decorating it with Christmas ornaments from around the house."

When Christmas was over, Alta had received so many comments regarding the little tree that she decided to keep up the practice — changing the decorations each month to fit the occasion.

However, no matter what the season, the tree is always filled with miniature birds and topped with an American flag.

ALTA PULLS out some of the tree's decorations from a big plastic bag she keeps them in.

Although none of the decorations are homemade, Alta says she keeps one eye open for new and unique trimmings when she shops or travels.

"Sometimes," laughs Alta, "I can't remember what I used to decorate the tree with the previous year."

When St. Patrick's Day rolled around last month, Alta said she tied a green ribbon to the little pine. It was afterward that she remembered the green shamrocks she had used the year before.

ALTA SAYS that Walter, her husband of 39 years, likes to look at the tree, but he doesn't help decorate it.

"Oh," she smiles, "Walt may pick an ornament up off the ground if he sees it has fallen from the tree."

"Decorating the tree is her project," laughs Walter. "I helped plant it."

Walter and Alta also are proud of their seven grandchildren and five great grandchildren.

"OUR FAMILY and friends are always asking me what I have on the tree," says Alta, adding that she plans to keep decorating it year round.

So, despite Nebraska's winds, rain, snow and sleet, the little pine on Wayne's Main St. will continue to put a smile on the faces of passing motorists.

"It's never been bare yet," twinkles Alta.

Commissioners

on No. 10 sieve; Northeast Sand and Gravel, Norfolk, $3.33 per ton (84 percent on No. 10 sieve and 97 percent on No. 200 sieve); Husker Concrete and Gravel, Wisner, $3.00 per ton at Pilger pit, $3.00 per ton at Pierce pit and $3.25 per ton at Norfolk pit.

Commissioner Gerald Pospishil made a motion to reject the bids and to buy gravel on an open market according to price, quality, mileage and percentage of gravel versus dirt. The motion was seconded by Bob Nierlin.

Merlin Beiermann, commissioner board chairman, informed the representatives of the bidding companies that gravel inspections will be made and a decision to purchase will be made on the results of the inspections, the price, quality and number of miles needed to travel to get the gravel.

ANOTHER MOTION was made and approved by the commissioners to relinquish the county's interest in the bridge to be removed by Thurston County to be used for repairing another bridge.

The county shall not be responsible for any accidents incurred while removing the bridge — located two miles east and one mile south of the junction of Highways 35 and 14 on the Thurst.

Bridge bids were also opened on the engineering work for the Cuming/Wayne County's bridge construction job. Porta, Ripa Engineering of Lincoln bid $4,724; Bruce Gilmore & Associates of Wayne bid $7,464; and Consolidated Engineering Architects, Inc. of Norfolk bid $18,730 for the bridge work.

Another bid received earlier from Coen Engineering was $15,000. No decision was made on the bids and discussion will follow with Cuming County.

In other action, the county commissioners:

- Were told by County Attorney Ensz that they will need to prepare, approve and adopt a resolution to pave the county road which will meet the Timpfe, Inc. manufacturing building site.
- Listened to a representative of Motorola who told the board that the State of Nebraska recently extended a contract for communication equipment that was bid the end of December in 1983. Motorola extended 1983 prices through the end of July of 1985.

•Opened bids on the spraying of the Wayne County Courthouse for pest control. Orkin from Sioux City bid $34 a month for both the courthouse and county sheriff's office. Lystad's Inc. from Omaha bid $15 bi-monthly for the county sheriff's office and $43.95 bi-monthly for the courthouse.

Olson's from Norfolk bid $35 bi-monthly for the courthouse and $16.50 monthly for the county sheriff's office.

A motion to have Lystad, Inc. handle pest control of the courthouse and sheriff's office was approved by the commissioners.

•And adjourned and convened as members of the Wayne County Board of Equalization to hear two protests from county residents on the valuation of property. The board members discussed the valuations but a decision will not be made until both properties have been inspected.

A lot of time was spent with the county commissioners and county assessors working with property taxes to try and make sure they were favorable toward the industry.

Timpfe, Inc. representatives Steve Silvas (vice-president of manufacturing) and Ken Alfred (executive vice-president) returned on Jan. 8, accompanied by Roy Landis of NPPD, spending time in the Wayne community.

THE WAYNE SITE had been narrowed down to north of Heritage Home by this time, she said. Tompkins of Heritage Homes talked to Timpfe representatives of his impressions of employees in the area and quality of workmanship.

"At this point we also found out the airport was a big concern to them so we started working on making sure the master plan of the municipal airport project could be speeded up."

In addition, labor training programs were also reviewed.

Of the three or four communities being considered in Nebraska, South Dakota and Iowa, we were the only one eligible for Urban Development Action Grants," Svoboda said.

"We found out what the other communities had to offer. We knew we had a lot of assets that we couldn't tag a dollar sign to — the utilities, labor, college and the hospital."

A labor study was initiated, with assistance from NPPD, after the Jan. 8 meeting.

On Feb. 6, Timpfe officials met with State Senators Elroy Hietner and Gerald Conway in Lincoln at the Nebraska Association of Commerce and Industry banquet.

At the meeting, Wayne Industries presented what they had thought was a final summary of everything proposed. "We had begun direct contacts with the company. In between time there we found out the company had made visits (to Wayne) on their own without telling us they were coming — the four owners of the company as well," Svoboda said.

"What we were finding was that almost every incentive we offered was a government program — block grants, infrastructure improvements and job training funds — all things that most anyone else could offer. We were finding what they were selling them on were things that you couldn't tag a dollar sign to."

"We felt real proud. We were not using the taxpayers' money on anything," she added.

After making contacts with the Timpfe owners, the representative were invited to Denver on March 13. They prepared a final fact book on Wayne and put together overhead and slide presentations.

In the middle of all that (end of Feb. 1983), Wayne Industries worked real close with finance people in Lincoln preparing an attractive Industrial Development Bond for Timpfe, Inc.

ON MARCH 21, the four Timpfe owners, Silvas and Alfred met in Wayne with community leaders. Later in the evening they decided "Wayne was the one."

The next day it was officially announced. Forty communities in five states were considered over the last 18 months.

Incentives to Timpfe are as follows:

•The land for the industry will be leased at $1 a year for 20 years.

•CDBG funds would be used to develop infrastructures, utility lines, storm sewers, site preparation, county paved road (from Highway 35 to proposed expanded 14th Street)

•A $500,000 block grant revolving loan would be available to Timpfe.

•Availability of over $500,000 in funds from Nebraska's Job Training Program.

•Support from the city on the Industrial Development Bond issue.

•Utility incentive rates (a rate similar to all large utility users within the city of Wayne).

•Stepping up the process of the airport expansion, where a new 4,200 north-south runway will be added as one of the phases in the entire airport renovation project.

•And the labor study and the cash gift from Wayne Industries to help with company's moving expenses.

Svoboda said groundbreaking has been moved back from its announced early April date to the later part of the month.

"Best we can do is say they are not accepting applications right now for actual work in the factory. Stay tuned to the media. That is all we can do for them right now," Svoboda said.

Svoboda was one of several Wayne individuals intensely involved in the negotiating with Timpfe, Inc. Others included Phil Kloster, Wayne city administrator and John Dorsey, who's president of Wayne Industries.

NBDC offers small businesses help

By Tim Garvin
Coordinator, NBDC-Wayne

Starting a small business or managing an existing one can be a challenge to almost anyone. Luckily, the small businessperson in Northeast Nebraska has a resource that makes it easier to meet that challenge. For residents of the 22 counties in its Northeast Nebraska region, the Nebraska Business Development Center (NBDC) field office can be that vital resource which makes the difference between business success and business failure.

Whether the business is a small, one-person operation out of a home, a main-street retail operation, a small manufacturing firm or simply an idea in an entrepreneur's mind, the people and resources of the Nebraska Business Development Center are ready to help.

The NBDC-Wayne office serves Antelope, Boone, Brown, DeWette, Butler, Cedar, Colfax, Cumming, Dakota, Dixon, Holt, Keya Paha, Knox, Madison, Pierce, Platte, Polk, Rock, Stanton, Thurston and Wayne counties. The NBDC-Wayne office is located in Connell Hall on the Wayne State College campus. The telephone number is 402-375-2000.

Consultations for small businesses are a primary function of the NBDC office and are usually free. In a typical case, a consultant knowledgeable in the area of the problem is assigned to analyze it and make recommendations to the businessperson. The NBDC-Wayne office employs a full time coordinator who assigns the cases to the consultants and performs some of the consultations, too.

The WAYNE STATE College business faculty, graduate business students and outstanding senior business students are assigned as consultants on the remainder of the cases. Occasionally, a member of the Active Corps of Executives (ACE) or the Service Corps of Retired Executives (SCORE) may also be used. Small businesses have another option available to request consulting assistance. Wayne State College participates in the Small Business Institute (SBI) program, in which junior, senior and graduate business students receive college credit for completing consulting cases for small businesses. The program benefits small businesses by providing them with free consultation and it also benefits the students by providing them with actual business experiences.

SBI cases are available during fall and spring semesters of the school year and during the June and July summer sessions. A student team is assigned to the case at the start of the semester and is usually completed by the end of the term. The student team submits its findings to the businessperson in the form of a written report.

The NBDC-Wayne office can assist area businesses with problems concerning accounting, business law, finance, marketing, management, computer science, manufacturing, human relations, administration, business communication, real estate, insurance, credit and collections, and office procedures. Small business feasibility studies or market research cases can also be requested by those desiring to start a new business or expand an existing one.

TO REQUEST EITHER an NBDC or an SBI case, the businessperson should contact the NBDC-Wayne office. The office also handles inquiries from small businesses and many businesses can either provide an immediate answer or channel the inquiry to the appropriate agency.

Workshops and seminars are provided by the NBDC-Wayne office to the small business community on a wide variety of topics. These workshops are scheduled throughout the year at Wayne State College and at many locations in the center's service area. Workshops or seminars on a specific topic may be requested by a local chamber of commerce, community club or other business organization. Film and speaker presentations can also be scheduled through the center.

The NBDC office in Wayne also houses many small business publications which, combined with the resources of Wayne State's Conn Library, provide a wealth of information that otherwise might be unavailable to the small business.

Also, the SBA and NBDC Statewide Administrative Offices publish brochures, reports and newsletters on a wide variety of business topics. These publications are available at the NBDC-Wayne office free or at a very low cost.

The NBDC-Wayne office maintains contact with area chambers of commerce or community clubs; SCORE and ACE chapters, the Department of Economic Development, area Extension Service and other governmental agencies involved with small business. The center has aided entire communities in conducting surveys and exploring the collective needs of their business sectors.

Another popular service that the center provides is an analysis of financing alternatives for business projects. In many instances, financing options exist which many businesses are unaware of.

Faculty profile

In his fourth year at Wayne State College Robert Lohrberg, director of Housing and Placement, came to Waynesville after working with high schools for several years. Lohrberg received his bachelor of science degree in education at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln in 1954, a master's in school administration and his doctorate in secondary education from the same institution. He worked in Houston, Texas, and Lincoln, Neb., for 17 years as a teacher and coach, then served as an athletic director in Sidney and a high school principal in Auburn before coming to Wayne.

His duties at WSC include the operation of the seven residence halls and staffs, plus helping students and parents with career planning and placement. "It must be remembered that we are a little community. We have 1,100 people housed on the campus. That in itself presents a multitude of needs and services we must provide," Lohrberg said about the housing aspect of his job. Lohrberg noted he assists business and liberal arts students, as well as teacher education students, with all job search activities. He said he schedules on-campus interviews, receives job notices and maintains credentials of job applicants. Assistance is also provided in resume writing, job interviews and general career planning.

One of the goals he is currently working on include "continually upgrading the placement segment, to meet the changing job market, which is now better than it was two years ago." Another goal in the housing area is to "maintain a good quality of life in the residence halls. This could include anything from painting, to new furniture, or developing appropriate policies."

Lohrberg's family includes wife Marilyn, who is a medical technologist, and sons Cecil and Ted, who attend school and high school, respectively.

"I miss my past association with athletic programs," Lohrberg said. "Since I am no longer involved, I have tried to stay up with current trends and retain some of my old connections. For many years that was an important part of my life."

"Wayne is the best place we have lived since Lincoln. It's small, but clean, has a nice school system, and is a nice place for a family, with the advantages of a college," he said.

Fred G. Dale Planetarium provides variety of shows

By Deann Clyde
WSC Student

Since its completion in 1970, the Fred G. Dale Planetarium on the Wayne State College campus has given thousands of area residents and Wayne State students a new appreciation of the universe.

Carl Rump, associate professor of mathematics and science, feels the WSC Planetarium is beneficial to the campus and the community because of the variety of shows it presents. Rump, who presents the shows and puts many of the presentations together personally, says he tries to cover topics of current interest.

Traditional sky shows emphasize the sky that can be seen from the backyard. This kind of show simply points out what to look for in the night sky and where to find it. Equally popular are the shows that look at different planets in our solar system and the "star shows" which include the current show, "Voyage to Infinity," presented Sundays at 3:30 p.m. through April 28, looks at the visible and invisible — constellations, planets, black holes and quasars.

One presentation that is always a favorite is "The Christmas Sky," which looks at the Christmas sky at 2,000 years ago. The planetarium turns into a time machine and takes the viewers back some 2,000 years to look at the sky and explore the astronomical and historical events leading to the "star of Christmas."

Rump said he really has no favorite show, saying that all of them contain some good information.

The facility, the first one to exist at WSC, is located on the first floor of the Carhart Math-Science Building. The hall itself seats approximately 70 people and was named for long-time WSC geography instructor Fred G. Dale. Dale's efforts in teaching geography were closely related to the teachings of the universe and solar system as a whole.

Similar planetariums can be found at Chadron State, Kearney State and Midland Lutheran colleges, the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and museums in Hastings and Cherokee, Iowa. Rump said WSC cooperates with the other planetariums in the area, but perhaps more closely with the Midland planetarium in Fremont.

Rump said half of the shows presented in the WSC planetarium are put together from scratch using slides and films. WSC has a good variety of materials that enable Rump to assemble different shows, although with continued financial support from the Math-Science Division, Lambda Delta Lambda honorary and the Student Senate, the project could include a variety of shows. Other shows presented at WSC are either purchased or borrowed.

Four public shows are presented each year and they are free and open to the public. Special showings can be arranged for school classes or other special groups by contacting Rump at WSC.

CLEP exams to be offered April 17

A program that enables people to earn college credits by examination will be offered Wednesday, April 17 at Wayne State College (WSC).

The College Level Examination Program (CLEP) provides students the option of earning college credit without enrolling in college courses. CLEP provides an opportunity to save both time and money in earning a college education. Students wishing to participate must register by Monday, April 15.

Anyone can take CLEP exams and submit scores to one or more of 2,500 participating institutions. To receive college credit at WSC, students must either be currently enrolled or have met WSC admission requirements.

Students can get a good overview of the areas they select to take a CLEP exam by obtaining a booklet titled "Guide to the CLEP examinations" from the Student Services Office at the college. The booklet usually help decide if one has enough knowledge about particular academic areas to attempt the CLEP examination. The booklet may be borrowed overnight or purchased for $5.

Credit received for CLEP is entered on a student's record without a grade, thereby not affecting the grade point average. There is no official record entered if the CLEP exam is failed, and students can re-take the same exam again provided appropriate fees are paid. Wayne State places no limit on the maximum number of credit hours earned through CLEP and taken before the senior year.

Each CLEP exam usually takes about 90 minutes to complete. The fee for General and Subject Examinations is $30 per exam. Scores are reported to the student and the college within one week.

For more information contact the WSC Student Services Office CLEP, (402) 375-2200, ext. 213.

Controlling Moles in the Yard
Moles are small animals which feed mostly on earthworms, grubs and other insect larvae found in the soil. Their long burrows are sometimes seen on the surface of the ground and may be a nuisance in lawns and gardens. Although they do not eat much plant material, moles which use the same burrow systems may destroy bulbs and roots.

Because of their feeding habits, attempts to poison moles with toxic grain may be unsuccessful. Fumigants (gas cartridges or combustion devices) may be effective when used according to label directions.

Generally, trapping the moles or eliminating their food supply are the most effective methods of alleviating mole damage. The most commonly available trap is the harpoon-type, sold in many hardware and garden supply stores. Instructions for setting the trap are provided by the manufacturer. Choker traps and claw-type traps are also available for mole control.

Elimination of worms, grubs and larvae from a lawn or garden usually will cause moles to leave in search of food. To control these food items, apply an appropriate insecticide to the soil. All toxicants, fumigants and insecticides should be used only according to label directions. Some insecticides may be harmful to beneficial wildlife such as birds, which also feed on insect larvae and earthworms.

Moles often invade lawns and gardens from adjacent wooded areas, ravines or similar areas. Insecticide treatment of a 20 to 40 foot barrier strip along the side of the lawn or garden will usually discourage moles from invading these areas.

Soil Temperature Good Guide for Planting Time
There's a better guide than dates for planting corn, soybeans and grain sorghums — it's soil temperature. Optimum dates for planting do not fall the same every year, but when soil reaches 50 degrees, you know you are ready for corn, at 60 degrees for soybeans and 70 degrees for grain sorghum.

A good time to plant corn is when the soil temperatures at two inches reaches 50 degrees early in the morning, even though there may be some killing frost in the days ahead. Research shows that corn seed will not germinate when temperatures are below 50 degrees, so 50 degrees is actually the minimum temperature for planting corn.

The best planting time for top yields of soybeans is when soil temperature at a two-inch depth reaches 60 degrees. This is usually about May 20 to 30. Soybean seeds put in colder soil are very apt to rot, resulting in a poor or uneven stand. If for some reason soybean planting is delayed, it is still wisest to stay with the adapted variety recommended for your area.

The best time to plant grain sorghum is when the soil temperature at two inches is 70 degrees — usually late May or early June. This will insure quick emergence and minimize weed problems. Sorghum seed planted too early in cold soil invites trouble.

Federal Crop Insurance

April 15, 1985 is the last day to apply for Crop Insurance for barley, dry beans, corn, grain sorghum, hybrid seed (corn), oats, popcorn, potatoes, soybeans, and sugar beets in Nebraska, according to Ted Nave, District Director for the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation (FCIC), District 05.

Crop Insurance covers unavoidable loss of production resulting from adverse weather condition, wildlife, earthquake, or fire.

Three coverage levels (50, 65, or 70 percent) are available for insurance protection. Additionally, FCIC offers three optional price elections for valuing production lost or damaged," says Mr. Nave.

A new Crop Insurance plan, called Actual Production History (APH), is available this year to producers of corn or grain sorghum. Producers of these crops may now qualify for higher yield guarantees by proving their yield history. Rates have been developed to offer reduced premium for producers with above-average yields. "This change could sharply reduce the cost of carrying Crop Insurance," says Nave.

To find out more about the APH plan, producers should contact a local, authorized agent. To select an agent, producers may check the list of agents at their local ASCS office. April 15 is the final deadline for applications.

4-H Sheep Camp

Beginning 4-H members, parents and leaders are invited to attend the 4-H Sheep Camp which will be held at the Northeast Research & Extension Center on Friday and Saturday, April 26 & 27.

The program will include information needed by the beginning 4-H sheep member. Topics will include selection, feeding, managing, showing and judging market lambs.

The camp is sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service and the Northeast Nebraska Sheep Producers Association. Speakers on the program will include Extension Specialists, Extension Agents and members of the Northeast Nebraska Sheep Producers Association.

The registration deadline is Monday, April 15. Additional information and registration information can be obtained from the local Extension office.

Hay rights

"Once again the Nebraska Department of Roads is allowing the mowing and removal of hay on highway rights of way," State Roads Director Louis E. Lamberty said today.

He said those wishing the extra hay should contact their area Roads Department District Engineer for a license. The District Engineers are located in Lincoln, Omaha, Norfolk, Grand Island, Bridgeport, North Platte, McCook and Ainsworth.

"There are thousands of acres of fine native grass available to those who can use it," Lamberty said, "although harvesters must first get a license at our District Offices before mowing it."

He cautioned that only certain sections of right of way would be mowed, with a limit of five miles per license on both sides of the highway.

The license to mow will be good for one cutting only, cannot begin before July 15 and will not be allowed after Sept. 10. The hay must be cut, baled and removed from the right of way no later than 20 days after it is cut.

Lamberty went on to say that both two-lane and four-lane highways, including I-80, are eligible for mowing, and that the hay mowing program is on a first-come, first-served basis.

"So if a landowner, rancher or farmer is interested in cutting some extra hay," Lamberty said, "don't wait too long to take out a license to do so."

Action on Canadian pork issue taken

U.S. pork producers won a major victory March 27th in their year-long struggle to get countervailing duties imposed on Canadian hog and pork product imports.

The U.S. Commerce Department announced that it had preliminarily determined that so-called deficiency payments made by the Canadian federal and provincial governments to Canadian pork producers were, in fact, subsidies under provisions of countervailing duties law. Last December, the U.S. International Trade Commission, in a similar preliminary determination, said that the Canadian imports were causing material injury to U.S. pork producers.

The National Pork Producers Council (NPPC), which filed the countervailing duties petition last November, on behalf of its 110,000 members, hailed the Commerce Department decision as a major victory not only for U.S. pork producers, but for everyone who believes in the concept of free and equal trade between nations.

Although a final determination of the case will not come until mid-summer, the March 27th preliminary decision, after publication in the Federal Register, will bring an immediate result. Any U.S. importer of Canadian hogs or fresh, chilled, or frozen pork products after the Federal Register publication date will be required to pay an estimated duty or file a bond to cover potential duty liability.

The Commerce Department immediately set an estimated duty rate amounting to $3.90 per cwt. (U.S. dollars) on live hogs and pork products. That would result in a duty of approximately $8.40 (U.S. dollars) on a 220 pound hog.

While NPPC officials indicated that they would attempt to convince the Commerce Department to raise the duty rate on processed pork products, they expressed approval with the overall decision. In simultaneous news conferences held within half an hour of the Commerce Department decision, NPPC president Ron Kahle in Washington, and vice president Tom Miller at NPPC's Des Moines headquarters office, told reporters that the preliminary decisions by U.S. and Commerce helped restore U.S. pork producers faith in the effectiveness of U.S. trade laws.

NPPC, from the beginning of its effort to get countervailing duties imposed, said that it did not consider its action "protectionist" in nature, but rather an attempt to equalize the trade in pork commerce between the United States and Canada.

In 1984, live hog imports from Canada to the U.S. had jumped 195 percent over the previous year and Canadian pork product imports to the U.S. had shown substantial increases. In the first month of 1985, Canadian hog imports showed a 99 percent increase over January, 1984.

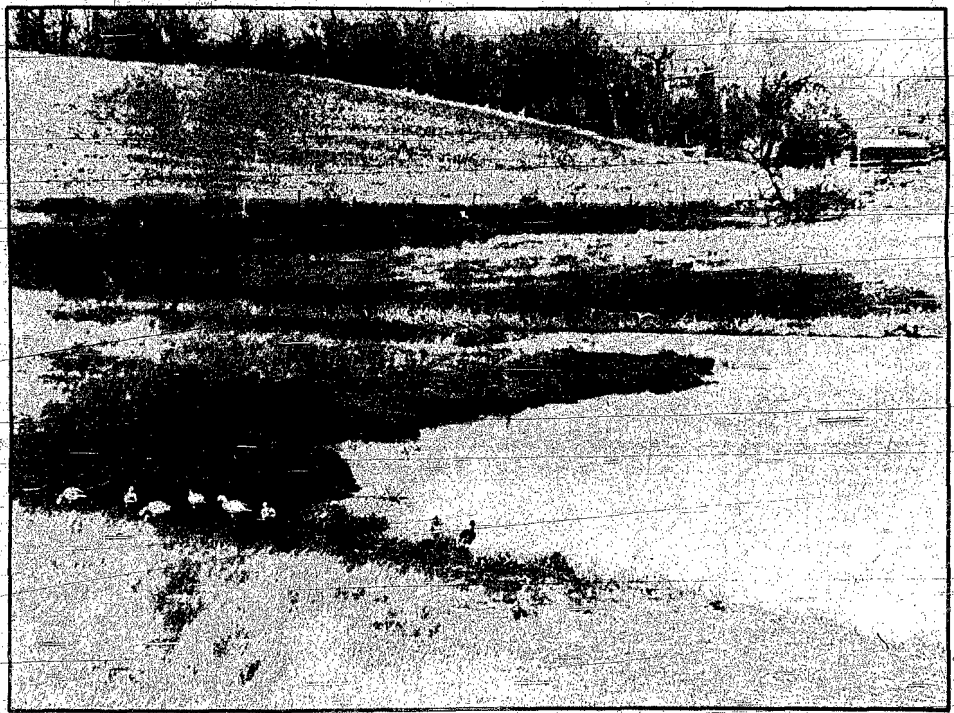

A FINAL decision on the subsidies portion of the countervailing duties case is expected by June 10. The U.S. International Trade Commission's final ruling on the "material injury" portion of the case is expected by July 25th. If both final rulings uphold the preliminary determinations, the Commerce Department would impose countervailing duties immediately.

Duties on live hogs and fresh, chilled and frozen pork products that had entered the U.S. from Canada after the Federal Register publication date of the preliminary decisions would immediately become payable to the general fund of the U.S. Treasury.

While NPPC officials cautioned that the strength of the U.S. dollar will continue to be a major factor in the amount of hogs and pork products entering the United States from Canada, they said the preliminary countervailing duties ruling should counter the effect of the unfair government subsidies being paid. Canadian producers, and should alleviate the problem considerably.

Glenn Grimes, an agriculture economist at the University of Missouri, estimates that the countervailing duties, if imposed later this summer, should reduce Canadian hog and pork imports to the U.S. by 10 to 15 percent for the remainder of 1985 and as much as 30 to 50 percent after that, depending on the strength of the U.S. dollar. Grimes estimates imposition of countervailing duties would result in a fifty to seventy-five cent per cwt. improved price for U.S. pork producers, or a $100 to $150 million dollar price improvement over a 12-month period.

Alighting near Allen

THESE WEB-FOOTED CREATURES rest temporarily alongside a pond near Allen before continuing their journey northward. The photo was taken last Thursday morning.

Perhaps the birds were able to duck the weekend storm which blanketed the area in approximately six inches of snow.

the farmer's wife

by pat melerham

Hagar, the Horrible, in Sunday's paper, is quoted as saying, "What a way to make a living!" Then we see him in his ship, "Communting in all kinds of weather," fighting defenders of castles, being robbed by "tax collectors," and surrounded by sharks. His little funnel-headed friend asks, "Did you ever think of quitting this Viking business?" "Naw," he answers, "at least it's easier than farming."

Of course, I was reading this in South Carolina. It struck me how far the "burning" gets, and how many people see them. When you travel, you realize again how huge this country is, let alone this world.

But people are the same everywhere. Lexington County is the most German area in the South. We feel right at home. Everyone is so friendly. And the accents are so thick, you can cut them with a knife. I've come to believe in the fabled "Southern hospitality." We've been to two buffets featuring Southern fried chicken, barbecued pork, rice and gravy, and biscuits. They serve gallons of iced tea and strong coffee. There are also smiles everywhere.

The Carolina pines are as advertised: thick and tall; and the dogwood is just beginning to bloom. All the azaleas were frozen in the coldest winter in a century. We'll be going to Charleston this weekend. Hopefully, we'll see them there.

Confederate history abounds. The church we attended on Sunday was once burned by Sherman's troops. The capitol we saw today was begun in 1855, shelled by Sherman, and not completed until 1900.

THE UNIVERSITY of South Carolina in Columbia is the oldest folly supported and state-controlled institution of higher learning in the U.S. The "Gamecock" and Tiger Paw logos are everywhere, especially on car licenses. They are going to charge an extra $5 ticket for the next USC-Clemson game.

We attended a Bach Festival on Sunday afternoon. There was a chamber orchestra and harpsichord, constructed from a kit by the organist who played it. Incidentally, there will be a two-hour special on PBS Wednesday, April 24, 8 p.m., called "The Well-Tempered Bach with Peter Ustinov."

There is a lovely legend about the dogwood, and it is appropriate at Easter. It says, at the time of the Crucifixion the dogwood had been the size of the oak and other forest trees. So firm and strong was the tree that it was chosen as the timber of the cross. To be used thus for such a cruel purpose greatly distressed the tree.

Jesus, nailed upon it, sensed this, and in His gentle pity for sorrow and suffering said to it: "Because of your regret and pity for My suffering, never again shall the dogwood tree grow large enough to be used as a cross. Henceforth it shall be slender and bent and twisted and its blossoms shall be in the form of a cross — two long and two short petals."

"And in the center of the outer edge of each petal there will be nail prints, brown with rust and stained with red, and in the center of the flower will be a crown of thorns, and all who see it will remember."

"Happy Easter, everyone! It's time for Mom and me to go check out the Lexington museum and some antique shops."

Too much fertilizer results in more than is needed

Certain widely-used fertilizer clichés are nothing more than techniques to induce farmers to use more fertilizer, according to Don Sander, extension soils specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

"Fertilize for high yields," you can't afford to be short, and good managers use more fertilizer, are clichés that need to be exploded, he said. "Farmers are struggling right now with a credit crunch and poor profits, and often use more fertilizer than they need," the specialist said.

Sander said that there is no question that farmers need fertilizer for profitable crop production. The problem is that they often apply too much to fields that don't need it, or not enough to fields that could use more.

Cliches like "fertilize heavy for high yields" fail to take into account the fact that the soil may already contain adequate nutrients for high yield," Sander said. "Producers should fertilize for a yield that they have achieved — the yield goal should be their five-year average."

SANDER SAID yield goals beyond the five-year average and the resultant higher fertilizer investment are speculative and "speculation is usually considered to be for those who can afford to lose."

Another cliché Sander scored is "you can't afford to be short."

"This is a good cliché that gets farmers every time," he said. "In today's economy, fertilizer short may be the most affordable thing a farmer can do."

He said that it is far better to apply a low rate to all appropriate acreage rather than applying a higher rate to a limited acreage. In addition, since many or even most farmers fall short of reaching their yield goals, they are automatically applying more fertilizer than they need.

The failure to reach the yield goal, together with the fact that only a limited number of producers use a soil test for residual nitrate, indicates that many producers can "afford to be short," he said. This is because they have in fact been using more fertilizer than they need for the yields they are producing, Sander explained.

The cliché that "good managers use more fertilizer" is obviously erroneous, and according to Sander, "good managers use the amount of fertilizer they need."

"The really good managers may well use less fertilizer," Sander said, "and realize more profits and may, even produce higher yields than their counterparts."

An egg-citing Saturday

What's the financial condition of the Farm Credit Banks of Omaha?

Answering rumors with facts...

The Land Bank, Production Credit Associations and Bank for Cooperatives serve only agriculture. Times are tough! But the Farm Credit Banks of Omaha have over $1 billion of net worth. This supports our continued commitment to agriculture and enables us to keep serving farmers, ranchers and their cooperatives during these difficult times. Like agriculture itself, the Farm Credit Banks are broad-based and we are stronger because of this diversity of operations.

Q. But I keep hearing about offices being closed and staff reductions...
A: Yes... we've done this in some instances to keep expenses in line with loan demand which has dropped because of the present agricultural economy. The thing to remember is that we are still providing credit service to all areas, and we're continuing to do it in an efficient way.

Q. Do you have adequate loan funds?
A: Absolutely! The Farm Credit System continues to enjoy an excellent reputation in the nation's money markets. We are able to sell our bonds at very competitive rates. For our borrowers, this means a continued supply of loan funds at favorable rates.

Q. You are making new loans, then?
A: Yes... the Land Bank, Production Credit Associations and Bank for Cooperatives have ample loan funds. As a result, we are able to provide loans to current borrowers and new borrowers who have sound loan purposes and can show repayment ability.

Q. Are you saying there are no problems?
A. Not at all! As a matter of fact, we have all of the problems we care to face! Even though the majority of our loans are in good shape, a considerable number of borrowers are under financial stress. We are doing all we can to help them by restructuring payments, adjusting loan terms and counseling in order to help them improve their financial situations.

Q. What's the answer to agriculture's problems?
A. What agriculture needs more than anything else today is the opportunity to generate a profit. That's essential... not just for thousands of farm and ranch families and their cooperatives, but also for the other parts of our economy that rely on agriculture for financial well-being! We in the Farm Credit Banks cannot cure all the problems of agriculture. But we can promise you this: We will do everything in our power to help. We always have. We always will.
