Building to be installed at ball complex

The Wayne Jaycee softball complex will receive a welcome addition in the coming weeks with the construction of a restroom/concession stand at the site.

According to Jaycee representative Verdel Luff, the 24'x24' cement block structure will be located at the center of the four-field complex where a wooden storage building now stands. The facility will house two restrooms, a concession stand and storage area.

Luff explained that plans for the building were boosted after the City of Wayne agreed to pipe water down to the facility for the coming season. He added that electricity will not be available at the field due to the installation cost, but a portable generator is a future possibility.

Funding for the building will come partially from the Jaycees organization which will include donations from within area and a matching grant from the Wayne A.A.U.

Construction is scheduled to begin in April, with most of the work being done by the Jaycees themselves. Worknights will be scheduled in the future and the dates and times will be published.

Other improvements at the complex will include completion of the chain link fence around the two east fields of the complex and a small playground area in the northeast corner with equipment donated from the Wayne townspeople.

Going up?

ONCE THE Easter egg hunt in Wayne's Bressler Park was over the youngsters lingered at the park a few minutes longer to play on the recreation equipment. The large slide seemed to draw the most kids, as illustrated in the above photography. The egg hunt was sponsored by WSC Greek fraternities and sororities. Over 500 children lined the sidewalks at Bressler Park, awaiting the command to begin the hunt for colored eggs and various other prizes.

Brogie among those honored

WSC Achievement Day scheduled

Four successful persons, including the recipient of the first honorary doctorate in Wayne State College history, will be honored at the Initial Achievement Day at Wayne State, Saturday, May 11.

Achievement Day has been established to recognize individuals whose achievements have not only brought honor to themselves, but to Wayne State College as well.

The four award recipients are Esper Boel, Holby, Denmark; Doctor of Humane Letters honorary degree; Ruby Pedersen, Omaha Distinguished Service Award; Iowa Chief Justice W. Ward Reynolds, Osceola, Iowa; Distinguished Alumni; and Ed Brogie, Wayne, Outstanding Young Alumnus.

"It is important that those who are successful in their livelihoods and professions be recognized by their alma mater," said Dr. Ed Elliott, president of Wayne State College.

"There have been many people who have contributed to the college — students, faculty, staff, alumni and friends. Through Achievement Day, we will publicly recognize them."

The Distinguished Service Award is the highest honor Wayne State can give, and Ruby Pedersen will be the 26th recipient of the DSA. Pedersen earned both her undergraduate (in 1942) and graduate (1961) degrees from Wayne State. She was an associate professor of English at WSC for 20 years (1961-81) and later served the college in administrative posts.

Her areas of special interest are Midwest and Nebraska writers, adolescent literature and American short stories. Pedersen is affiliated with many professional organizations, including serving as president of the Nebraska Council of Teachers of English in 1980-81. She has taught part time in Omaha since her retirement from Wayne State in 1983.

ESPER BOEL has traveled to Wayne on many occasions, and he will come back once again from his home in Denmark to receive the honorary degree. Boel is a businessman of many interests, but he is best known for his dairy production. He has been active in Denmark's national dairy association since the 1940s. His cheeses are known in many parts of the world.

Boel first became acquainted with Wayne State in the 1950s when former Nebraska Governor Val Peterson, a WSC graduate, was the United States Ambassador to Denmark. Boel has visited the college numerous times and has given the commencement address twice. He is also a former trustee of the Wayne State Foundation.

Through his efforts, Boel has sent many Danish students to Wayne State and has facilitated the visits of nearly 250 Wayne State students and travelers in Denmark.

IOWA CHIEF Justice W. Ward Reynolds graduated second in his class from Wayne State in 1942. Following service in the U.S. Navy during World War II, Reynolds graduated from law school at the University of Iowa in 1948. That same year he began his law career in Osceola, Iowa, and eventually became the senior member of a five-lawyer firm.

Reynolds began his public career in 1953 when he became the county attorney in Clarke County, Iowa. He became a Justice of the Supreme Court in Iowa in 1971, and was named Chief Justice in 1978.

Since 1984, Reynolds has been president of the Conference of Chief Justices and the National Center for State Courts. He is a member of the Iowa Bar Association and the American Bar Association, and is a fellow in the American Bar Foundation.

ED BROGIE is a 1975 graduate of Wayne State who now teaches physics, biology, and chemistry at Laurel-Concord High School in Laurel. He is a member of numerous professional organizations and has won many teaching awards since beginning at Laurel-Concord in 1976.

Among his awards are the 1981 Outstanding Biology Teacher Award for Nebraska by the National Association of Biology Teachers, the 1978 and 1980 Haskett Award for Excellence in Teaching at Laurel-Concord Senior High, the 1979 Outstanding Chemistry Teacher Award (one of nine given in Nebraska) by the American Chemical Society and a 1984 honorable mention Presidential Award for Teaching Excellence.

Brogie is a former captain of the Wayne State track team and still holds the school long jump record of 22-feet, 9-inches.

Plans call for Achievement Day to become an annual event which will eventually honor top students as well as alumni and friends of the college. Achievement Day will climax with an evening banquet honoring the four award recipients.

Feed and grain business sold

Gardner Growers of Wakefield, a partnership owned by Milton G. Waldbaum and Daniel W. Gardner, announced on April 11 the purchase of the Wayne Grain and Feed Company.

According to Dan Gardner, there are no planned changes in the operation of Wayne.

"We look forward to continuing the fine service that Wayne Grain and Feed Company has provided to the area. The present management and staff is continuing at the operation," Gardner said.

The business was owned by Fred Gildersleeve and Clarence Beck. Gildersleeve started in the grain and feed business in 1946 as manager for the Door Feed Mill of Marcus, Iowa and remained at this position until 1948, when he and Beck purchased the Door Feed Mill in Wayne and went on to become the second fertilizer dealers in Nebraska.

In 1951 they were one of only two stores in Nebraska to sell anhydrous ammonia fertilizer. Then, as now, Wayne Grain and Feed's first service consisted of buying and selling grain.

Selling fertilizer, grain and feed were added to the business as farmer demand continued.

In 1968 Wayne Grain and Feed began expansion of the business by constructing a feed mill and an office at 200 Logan in Wayne. Wayne Grain and Feed purchased the Rohrke Elevator, located at 116 So. Main in 1971.

Since then, the company has added a 1,000 bushel per hour dryer, a 40,000 and an 80,000 bushel grain storage bin for better farmer service. Extensive remodeling was also done on the Rohrke Elevator itself.

Dean Schram is the present overall manager, joining Wayne Grain and Feed in 1957 as its bookkeeper.

Koenig to be honored

An appreciation dinner to honor Don Koenig, who is stepping down as head coach of the Wayne High wrestling program after 18 years, will be held on Saturday, April 13, beginning at 4:30 p.m. at the Wayne City Auditorium.

The event is invited to attend a potluck supper, which will be followed by a program. Each family is asked to bring two dishes and their own table service.

Earlier, it was asked that those planning to attend call in advance to insure adequate seating, but the committee in charge of arrangements urges everyone to attend, whether they have called in advance or not. Cards and letters would also be appreciated and may be mailed to Don Koenig in care of Dick Keidel, 1306 Douglas, Wayne, Neb. 68797.

Cancer drive to begin

The Wayne County Unit of the American Cancer Society is in the process of organizing their annual crusade drive, slated to begin on Saturday, April 20 and conclude on April 27.

That's the word from Wayne County Cancer Society Campaign Chairman Kris Glese.

Glese also wanted to express a word of warning against organizations which misuse the words "National" or "American" in their titles when their programs are actually conducted in specific local areas.

"We're trying to make the public aware of various other cancer organizations who conduct mass mailings each year, bringing much more confusion to the public.

"Despite the confusion, there are guidelines to follow when distinguishing between worthy and unworthy organizations."

Glese recommended to ask yourself these questions before giving: Is the charity willing to submit to you its budget and a complete clear annual report? Are the group's fund raising and administrative costs reasonable? Does the charity use ethical and economical fund raising methods? Does the charity have effective and useful programs? And by whom is the charity managed or controlled?

Glese said the American Cancer Society meets the standards imposed by the top charity-rating agencies: the National Charities Information Bureau in New York and the Council of Better Business Bureaus in Arlington, Virginia.

The American Cancer Society also has its logo on all of their materials.

"People involved in our Wayne County campaign will be wearing a name tag with a little cancer logo," Glese said.

She said that 80 percent of the contributions collected in Nebraska stay in the state for various research and rehabilitation programs.

"We receive no funds through United Way," she said.

Merchandise stolen at Wayne Sporting Goods

An estimated $2,000 worth of merchandise was stolen Tuesday evening from Wayne Sporting Goods and GEC Weight Manufacturing Company.

The break-in is still under investigation. Business owner Pat Garvin said there is a $100 cash reward for the arrest and the conviction of the person who broke into the business.

Stolen were sporting goods such as Wilson baseball gloves, tennis rackets, shoes, golf clubs and bags; running shoes and running suits. "They took the best of everything. Just the top of the line," Garvin said Friday.

He said it isn't known exactly how the thieves entered the building. The theft occurred sometime between Tuesday, when the business closed at 6 p.m. and when the business was opened Wednesday at 7 a.m.

out the garbage or other chores. Places where I would not like to have backaches so severe that it is impossible to straighten up, would be: in the back seat of a compact car; while picking up some change which fell to the floor of the telephone booth; while on the golf course, far away from the clubhouse, as you prepare to sink a putt for a double bogey; at a 50's dance when the "twist" was such a popular craze; while looking for contact lenses during a basketball game before hundreds of spectators; and when you get a call from a friend that has this piano to be moved up a flight of steps, and you owe him thousands of favors.

Who needs backaches, anyway.

It wouldn't hurt any Nebraska motor vehicle driver to take a look at their current driving techniques and consider what they can do to become better drivers. The most recent release of motor vehicle traffic accidents for the entire 1984 year shows 3 percent less accidents than the prior year. However, those killed in 1984 mishaps increased 12 percent over 1983.

There were 5 percent more pedestrians killed in 1984 over 1983; 200 percent more parked motor vehicle accidents resulting in deaths; 100 percent more lives taken in railway train accidents; 11 percent more killed when vehicles strike fixed objects; and a 44 percent increase in those that died after overturning in non-collision accidents.

Most of the total accidents happened on dry road conditions and in daylight (both over 60 percent of the accident total). Of the 207 people killed in 1984 traffic accidents, 199 were not using restraints. Seven people were killed with restraints on.

Colleges reviewed in state budget discussions

A very lean state budget began taking shape last week in the Legislature's Appropriations Committee. The nine-member committee, which is expected to send its budget bills to the floor in the near future, agreed to limit its general fund budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1 to $86.8 million, an amount that can be funded at current tax rates.

The proposed NU budget for next year of $16.4 million represents about 20 percent of the entire state budget. The committee specifically included funds in the proposed NU budget for continued operation of the State Museum at Morrill Hall and the counseling service at the University of Nebraska at Omaha. Also, the committee specifically restored proposed funding cuts for the agronomy and plant pathology departments at the NU Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

Kearney, Chadron, Wayne and Peru. The committee budget would provide $26.8 million next year for the system. Among the campuses, the largest percentage increase, 5.2 percent, would be provided to Kearney State College. The proposed increase is due largely to a multi-year effort to reduce teacher-student ratios at Kearney by hiring additional faculty members.

At a mid-week press conference, Kerrey acknowledged the apparent strength of LB 709, a bill that would mandate the continued operation of the Geneva facility, and said he probably wouldn't veto the bill if it passes. LB 709 has 21 co-sponsors, a sufficient number to make its passage almost certain. "Geneva's a very close call for me," Kerrey said.

Reverse LB 662 There has been a lot of confusion lately about LB 662, the mandatory rural school consolidation bill, which is currently before the Legislature. Many people don't understand why rural people are so concerned about the effects of this bill, so I would like to explain the effects of another bill which is just as feasible as LB 662. Let's just call it "reverse LB 662" and basically what it states is that all city schools will be "allowed" to merge with an existing rural school within three years using guidelines which are already in place.

Rural schools know that they cannot handle all the city students, so parts of the city system will be left open as "attendance centers" to insure that no city student is bused more than 30 miles into the country. In order to insure equal representation, the present rural school board will be expanded to nine members. Of course the city school board will be dissolved, but they will be allowed at least one and maybe even two representatives on the new nine-member board.

ridiculous to you? If so, then you probably now understand how LB 662 seems to the rural people it will affect. I would urge you to convey this message to the urban senators who have tried for years to push this kind of legislation upon us. Written by Bill Hawthorne Bill Fletcher

More thanks I'd just like to take the opportunity to thank a number of businesses who made it possible to provide Easter baskets for the Wayne Care Centre. The joy, love and smiles it brought to these people will long be remembered by the people present and the members of the Student Senate. ask a lawyer a public service of the nebraska state bar association

Q. Several years ago a lawyer made a will for me and I left it in his office. Since I have wanted to make some changes, I have written a will myself, signed, dated and notarized and put it in my bank box. I want to know which will is authentic. A. A determination of which will is valid depends on a number of factors. First of all, in order to be valid, the homemade will must have been properly prepared. Generally, a will must be in writing and signed by the testator (the person making the will) and at least two persons who have witnessed any of the following: the signing of the will by the testator, an acknowledgment by the testator that the signature on the will is his or hers, or an acknowledgment by the testator that the document is his or her will. However, if the signature and the material provisions of the will and an indication of the date of signing are in the testator's own handwriting, the will may also be valid, without witnesses; as a "holographic" will.

An anniversary which I almost forgot has come upon me. Ten years in the business of writing, photographing and putting together information for weekly newspapers has passed me by.

Now I think back on these years. What I recall [painfully] right now is the time I decided to get a fancy angle for a picture that needed to be taken which was to be used in a store's open house advertisement. I was standing on a ledge inside the store when the platform gave way and I landed on my back - breaking some very small bones and suffering unbearable pain. The doctor said "stay in bed."

I landed on the camera. The camera was fine and the picture snapped while slipping turned out adequate. Prior to my unfortunate fall, I had covered a county supervisor meeting.

Those that are associated with me know that my notes are the worse to decipher. It often looks like chicken's feet fell into a barrel of ink and then walked across an 8 x 10 piece of paper. Sometimes I abbreviate words and when it comes time to write the story - and even I can't decide what the abbreviation stands for.

Army Intelligence officials could use my note taking skills. No code could crack the contents of what is written.

WHAT I'M GETTING at is that, with the broken little bones in my back, I still had to come back to the newspaper office and type my supervisor story cause I'm the only one who can read my notes. They wheeled me in a chair into a room and I commenced to write the longest story (or so it seemed) in my entire journalism career.

I took me two days to get over that episode. Now, two years later, the back pains come back now and then to haunt me for my carelessness. I lifted up my son the other day and it hit me again.

Backaches have their merits, though. You get out of doing the yard work, helping with the dishes, moving furniture, scooping snow, taking oul the garbage or other chgres."

Places where I would not like to have backaches so severe that it is impossible to straighten up, would be: in the back seat of a compact car; while picking up some change which fell to the floor of the telephone booth; while on the golf course, far away from the clubhouse, as you prepare to sink a putt for a double bogey; at a 50's dance when the "twist" was such a popular craze; while looking for contact lenses during a basketball game before hundreds of spectators; and when you get a call from a friend that has this piano to be moved up a flight of steps, and you owe him thousands of favors.

Who needs backaches, anyway.

Don't be a statistic

It wouldn't hurt any Nebraska motor vehicle driver to take a look at their current driving techniques and consider what they can do to become better drivers.

The most recent release of motor vehicle traffic accidents for the entire 1984 year shows 3 percent less accidents than the prior year. However, those killed in 1984 mishaps increased 12 percent over 1983.

There were 5 percent more pedestrians killed in 1984 over 1983; 200 percent more parked motor vehicle accidents resulting in deaths; 100 percent more lives taken in railway train accidents; 11 percent more killed when vehicles strike fixed objects; and a 44 percent increase in those that died after overturning in non-collision accidents.

There were 2.1 fatal accidents per 100 million vehicle miles in Nebraska during 1984, up 10.5 percent over 1983.

The most common accident at intersections throughout Nebraska in 1984 was right angle collisions (46 percent of total). Accidents not at intersections resulted in crashing into parked vehicle, collision at driveway or alley, sideswiping individuals traveling in the same or opposite direction.

Twenty-three percent of the accidents happened because of inattention or confusion, while another 18.1 percent was attributed to other improper driving. Failure to yield brought on 13 percent of the total accidents while speeding too fast for conditions was another contributing circumstance of 1984 Nebraska accidents.

Most of the total accidents happened on dry road conditions and in daylight (both over 60 percent of the accident total).

Of the 207 people killed in 1984 traffic accidents, 199 were not using restraints. Seven people were killed with restraints on.

Why not whittle down these numbers, and do everyone who travels Nebraska's roads a favor. State-required safety belt wearing will save lives, figures reveal. But being alert, and driving defensively to avoid accidents altogether is the best solution to saving lives.

Colleges reviewed in state budget discussions

by Melvin Paul

A very lean state budget began taking shape last week in the Legislature's Appropriations Committee.

The nine-member committee, which is expected to send its budget bills to the floor in the near future, agreed to limit its general fund budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1 to $846.8 million, an amount that can be funded at current tax rates.

The committee also reaffirmed its earlier decision to provide state agencies a 3 percent increase to cover an annual pay raise and the increased cost of state employee health insurance benefits.

Contained in the proposed committee budget is the smallest annual increase for the University of Nebraska in several years.

The committee was unanimous in its approval of a $2.6 million NU general fund increase for fiscal year 1985-86, a 1.6 percent increase over current-year spending.

"That's the highest budget for them in a long, long time," said chairman Jerome Warner of Waverly.

The proposed NU budget for next year of $166.4 million represents about 20 percent of the entire state budget.

The committee specifically included funds in the proposed NU budget for continued operation of the State Museum at Morrill Hall and the counseling service at the University of Nebraska at Omaha. Also, the committee specifically restored proposed funding cuts for the agronomy and plant pathology departments at the NU Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

In the case of Morrill Hall, the committee voted to restore $341,851 to the NU budget, about 75 percent of the amount that the committee originally had cut from the budget during a preliminary round of consideration. The committee agreed that the lesser sum would be sufficient to keep the museum open.

The NU Board Regents, rather than the Legislature, will have the ultimate authority on exactly how the appropriated funds are to be spent.

ON A RELATED matter, the committee approved a 3.2 percent increase for the state college system, which operates institutions at Kearney, Chadron, Wayne and Peru. The committee budget would provide $26.8 million next year for the system.

Among the campuses, the largest percentage increase - 5.2 percent - would be provided to Kearney State College. The proposed increase is due largely to a multi-year effort to reduce teacher-student ratios at Kearney by hiring additional faculty members.

A motion by Sen. Gary Hannibal of Omaha, a committee member, to cut the proposed Kearney State College increase by $99,000 failed when it received only three votes. Hannibal said he wanted to bring the percentage increase for Kearney more in line with the other three campuses.

On another budget matter, the Youth Development Center at Geneva seemed to get a reprieve from the Legislature and from Gov. Bob Kerrey last week.

Reversing its earlier decision, the Appropriations Committee voted to continue funding next year for the girls' correctional facility.

The committee voted to include an additional $487,075 in next year's budget for continued operation of the Geneva facility.

In January, Kerrey recommended moving the operations of the Geneva facility to the boys' Youth Development Center in Kearney.

At a mid-week press conference, Kerrey acknowledged the apparent strength of LB 709, a bill that would mandate the continued operation of the Geneva facility, and said he probably wouldn't veto the bill if it passes. LB 709 has 21 co-sponsors, a sufficient number to make its passage almost certain.

"Geneva's a very close call for me," Kerrey said.

In its preliminary round of budget decision, the committee had followed Kerrey's original recommendation to close the facility.

Sen. Carl Carsten of Avoca, a committee member, argued last week that the maintenance of separate facilities for boys and girls constitutes the best policy.

"You're going to be mixing individuals of both sexes who are not Sunday school teachers," Carsten said. "We could be asking for a lot of problems by making that move."

Reverse LB 662

There has been a lot of confusion lately about LB 662, the mandatory rural school consolidation bill, which is currently before the Legislature. Many people don't understand why rural people are so concerned about the effects of this bill, so I would like to explain the effects of another bill which is just as feasible as LB 662. Let's just call it "reverse LB 662" and basically what it states is that all city schools will be "allowed" to merge with an existing rural school within three years using guidelines which are already in place. If this is not done in three years, then the State of Nebraska will force such consolidation.

The reasoning behind this legislation is that city schools are not paying their "fair share" to support rural schools, to streamline the education process, and to insure quality education at city students. There has been some concern about overcrowding in city schools and also we want to be sure that no city student is being taught from out of date textbooks.

Rural schools know that they cannot handle all the city students, so parts of the city system will be left open as "attendance centers." However, to make the most efficient use of existing facilities, it may be necessary to bus some city students who are now living 2 or 3 blocks from their school out to country schools. The new combined school board really doesn't like to have kindergartners riding the bus, so they will be careful to insure that no city student is bused more than 30 miles into the country.

In order to insure equal representation, the present rural school boards will be expanded to nine members. Of course the city school board will be dissolved, but they will be allowed at least one and maybe even two representatives on the new nine-member board. The overall effect of this bill would decrease the cost of education by utilizing the existing facilities which are not filled to capacity now, and would provide much higher quality education by substantially lowering pupil-teacher ratios.

Does this "bill" seem totally ridiculous to you? If so, then you probably don't understand how LB 662 seems to the rural people it will affect. I would urge you to convey this message to the urban senators who have tried for years to push this kind of legislation upon us.

ask a lawyer a public service of the nebraska state bar association

Q. Several years ago a lawyer made a will for me and I left it in his office. Since I have wanted to make some changes, I have written a will myself, signed, dated and notarized and put it in my bank box. I want to know which will is authentic. A. A determination of which will is valid depends on a number of factors. First of all, in order to be valid, the homemade will must have been properly prepared. Generally, a will must be in writing and signed by the testator (the person making the will) and at least two persons who have witnessed any of the following: the signing of the will by the testator, an acknowledgment by the testator that the signature on the will is his or hers, or an acknowledgment by the testator that the document is his or her will. However, if the signature and the material provisions of the will and an indication of the date of signing are in the testator's own handwriting, the will may also be valid, without witnesses, as a "holographic" will. If the second will was properly prepared, then the next question is whether or not it served to revoke and thereby void the earlier will. Generally, if a valid will attempts to dispose of all of the testator's property, it will serve to revoke any earlier wills. However, if the second will does not dispose of all of the testator's property (for example, it only makes some changes in what will receive a few particular items), then it might in effect serve as a "codicil" (a supplement or addition) to the earlier will which only revokes the parts that are inconsistent with the later document. Therefore, unless the second document disposes of all the testator's property or contains a clause stating the testator's intention to revoke the entire earlier will, its status could be questionable. If you wish to be absolutely sure that your prior will is properly revoked, you should ask your former attorney for the will and then personally destroy it (along with any copies you may have). A will is the personal property of the testator and should be released at his or her request. Given the significant potential for problems to occur and defeat a testator's intentions, it is highly advisable to consult an attorney rather than take a chance on a homemade will. The legal costs of preparing a will are usually moderate and should ensure that the testator's wishes are carried out in the future.

Traditional Seder

By LaVon Anderson

Twenty-four Wayne State College students, along with six faculty members, have a much greater understanding of Judaism after participating in a traditional Jewish Seder last Wednesday evening at the Campus Ministry House. The event was coordinated by the Rev. Jim Thompson, WSC campus minister, and prepared and served by Rita Kissen.

Kissen, assistant professor of humanities at Wayne State, was born and raised in New York and brought up in the Jewish faith.

"You're looking at one-third of all the Jews in Wayne," laughs Kissen, as she scurries about the kitchen making last minute preparations for the meal.

AS SHE STIRS the chicken soup and fills a plate with the traditional Passover Matzos, Kissen explains that the Jewish Seder is a ceremonial dinner held on the first two nights of Passover, commemorating chiefly the Jewish exodus from Egypt and their identification as a people. The word Seder, in Hebrew, means order.

The ceremony includes the reading of the Haggadah (a book containing the liturgy for the Seder service) and the eating of specific foods symbolic of the Israelites' bondage in Egypt and of the Exodus.

"When the Jews left Egypt, they left in a hurry and didn't have time to let the bread rise," says Kissen. "It was a hasty meal."

REPRESENTATIVE of the hasty exit are the traditional Matzos, or unleavened bread, and Matzo balls, which are made from flour that has no leavening and served in the chicken soup.

Two ceremonial plates are set at the head table during the Seder service. One plate contains three Matzos.

Traditionally, explains Kissen, "the father takes the middle Matzo from the ceremonial plate and breaks it in half. That is called the Afikoman. After dinner, all of the children look for the Afikoman and the service cannot continue until it is found."

Another ceremonial plate contains a bitter herb (horseradish), greens to symbolize spring, a shank bone representative of the days when animals were sacrificed, an egg to symbolize life and fertility, and Charoseth, a mixture of apples, nuts and wine made to resemble the mortar used in making ancient pyramids and monuments.

Four glasses of wine also are drunk during the course of the meal. "Judaism is very much a family and historically oriented religion," explains Kissen, "and very much based on ethics and community."

AT SUNDOWN, the Seder begins with the traditional lighting of the candles. After the candles are lit, Kissen said the youngest person present asks the four questions pertaining to why this night is different from any other night.

In traditional Seders, Kissen said the father leads the service and answers the four questions in terms that "even a child can understand."

However, in more modern times, everyone takes part in the service. Kissen explains that the main part of the Seder involves recalling the story of how the Jews were slaves in Egypt and how they were freed by God and led out of bondage by Moses.

KISSEN SAID that although the supper at Wayne State was served on Wednesday night, because many of the students planned to be gone during the Easter vacation, Passover actually began at sundown on Friday, April 5 and continues the next eight days.

She explained that Jewish holidays always begin at sundown the night before the day.

"The thing I find most moving about the Seder," said Kissen, "is to think that all over the world Jews are celebrating the same service and saying the same prayers."

FOLLOWING the service, Pastor Thompson discussed the link between the Old and New Testaments, reminding those present that the Seder meal was the Last Supper eaten by Jesus before his crucifixion.

Kissen added that today the holiday has a special meaning for Jews and Christians alike, reminding them all of their responsibilities toward the oppressed and of the meaning of freedom.

Retiring after 27 years

'Ali Baba and the Magic Cave' final children's production for Dr. Russell

"Ali Baba and the Magic Cave," by William Glenroy, is the offering for the 27th annual children's theatre play to be presented by the Wayne State College theatre department.

The play will be performed April 22-26 at 1 p.m. Shows also are scheduled at 10 a.m. on Tuesday, April 23 and Thursday, April 25.

Performances will be held in Ramsey Theatre, located in the Val Peterson Fine Arts Center on the college campus.

'ALI BABA AND THE Magic Cave' will be the final children's play for Dr. Helen Russell, professor of theatre, who is retiring after 27 years at Wayne State College.

Russell, who began the children's plays when she came to Wayne State in 1958, said she was a few favorite productions.

"The Peter Pan" play was the most spectacular," said Russell. "We made three people fly during that production."

Her other favorites include "Alice in Wonderland," "The Wizard of Oz," and her own original production, "Space Stowaways."

"The plays have been so popular and have attracted enough area students that some recent cast members first saw them 'years ago' as young children.

Russell relates the story of one small boy who couldn't come to the children's play because he had chicken pox. To the boy's surprise, the cast went in costume to his home following a performance.

That young boy, Tom Fletcher of Wayne, has the lead of Ali Baba in this year's play.

OTHER CAST members in "Ali Baba and the Magic Cave" include Pat Dolata of Wayne as Ali Baba's mother; Darrel Fitzbohm of Sioux City as the uncle; Cheryl Ruma of Fremont as Morgiana; and Lori Utech of Wakefield as Scherazade.

Russell said the play will be colorful, as will the sets and costumes which are "complete with turbans."

The action takes place in ancient Persia and is the story of Ali Baba's adventures as he tries to catch the thieves who are robbing everyone blind.

RUSSELL SAID the show will appeal to all ages, "with enough action for the little ones and enough story for the older audience."

The children's plays, which each year attract school children from a 100-mile radius, are staged at the kindergarten through eighth grade youngsters. Over 2,000 youngsters are expected to attend this year's production.

Area school students also generate enthusiasm for the plays by composing posters. The winning posters are later displayed.

RUSSELL STRESSED that advance reservations are absolutely necessary for the play. Admission is $1 for children under 12, or 75 cents per child in groups of 10 or more.

Adult admission is $3, however teachers accompanying groups of 20 or more will be admitted free.

Eveline Thompson, Girls State chairwoman, announced that Lesa McDermott, this year's delegate, is unable to attend the event in June. Attending in her place will be alternate Valerie Rahn.

Hospital Chairman Linda Grubb reported she had visited Anna Mau, Emma Sines, Lottie Longnecker, Mrs. Paul Mines and Hazel Smith at Wayne Care Centre, and Helen Hupp at the Wakefield Health Care Center.

THE AUXILIARY received letters from Betty Singleton, national security chairman; Bernice Dumlery, junior activities chairman; and Jan Auer, department education chairman.

A letter also was read from the VFW asking for assistance in supporting the post home.

The auxiliary also received a letter from the Nebraska Childrens Society and voted to make a $5 donation to the organization.

The Pender Centennial Committee has requested that the auxiliary sponsor a float in the community's centennial parade on June 29.

A REPORT ON the District III Convention held March 23 in Beemer was given by Helen Siefken. Attending the convention from Wayne were Mrs. Siefken, Mary Kruger, Eleanor Carter and Mabel Sommerfeld. Several members of the auxiliary are planning to visit the Norfolk Veterans Home on April 12 to play bingo with the residents. Making plans to attend are Eveline Thompson, Louise Kahler, Faunell Hoffman, Mary Kruger, Alma Splitfeger and Helen Siefken. Furnishing cakes for the event will be Louise Kahler, Linda Grubb, Why not keep hard-cooked eggs in the refrigerator after Easter too! With them on-hand, it's convenient to break out the eggs whenever you need an economical meal. Eggs help you save in dozens of ways!

Colorful stuffed green olives, tangy chili sauce, and zippy dry mustard combine with some mayonnaise for smoothness in these quick-to-fix and quick-to-disappear appetizers.

After Easter is past, they would make tasty take-alongs for a summer picnic or a fall tailgate party. And, Red Deviled Eggs can add a spot of seasonal color to an end-of-the-year holiday buffet.

Cats look towards District 11 action

Baseball action continued for the Wayne State Wildcat squad after a brief layoff on Wednesday, April 3 with a doubleheader against the University of Nebraska-Omaha on the road.

The Cats went down to the NCAA Division II school in the first game by a 4-2 score and lost the nightcap 14-7. WSC's record moved to 10-15 with the losses.

Wayne State will look to get back on the winning track tomorrow (Tuesday) and Wednesday when they travel to Dana College in Blair for a crucial three-game series in NAIA District-11 play. The Wildcats are currently 4-0 in district action.

IN THE OPENING game, Wayne State rallied from a 4-0 deficit in the top of the seventh inning to score two runs to close the gap in the 4-2 loss. Kurt Brosamle led off with a home run in the top of the seventh inning to key WSC's hitting in the first game.

Pat Salerno had the only other extra base hit with a double.

Dave Lang took the loss for WSC on the mound, moving his record to 2-4 on the season.

Both teams opened up their hitting in the day's second game, combining for 31 hits in the 14-7 UNO win.

WCS led 5-4 after the first two innings of play and was tied 5-5 after the game's third inning before the Mavericks brought home four runs in the bottom of the fourth inning to take a 9-4 lead. UNO continued to score in their remaining turns at bat, while the Cats added two runs in the top of the sixth inning for their final scores.

Brosamle ripped off his second home run of the day in addition to a double, and Pete Saccone, Gregg Cruickshank and Pat Salerno each belted out doubles in the game. Pitcher Jeff Rohrock was credited with the loss after relieving Mark Plegnitz in the second inning. Randy Raabe came in during the sixth inning to pitch the remainder of the game.

Senior first baseman Cruickshank ended the day hitting 3 of 5 with four RBI's, while Brosamle logged his pair of homers and one RBI.

A LOOK AT the Cats' hitting statistics up to their past weekend's game with Concordia College shows that WSC has improved their team batting average by .084 from last season (.359 from .275). The squad's slugging percentage is up .199 (.569 from .370 in 1984), and in the 23 games so far, WSC has surpassed the 1984 32-game totals for doubles, triples, home runs and runs scored.

Your local merchant does more than just sell products

Helpful advice on getting the most from your purchase is another service provided by your local merchants. They are willing to take the time to explain proper ways to use and maintain the product so it will last longer and provide you with better service. And they stand behind everything they sell because they want you, the customer, to be completely satisfied.

When you shop locally, everyone benefits. It's more convenient so you save gas and time. You get friendly, knowledgeable service because local merchants "know" you and appreciate your business. They depend on you to keep their stores going strong. And some of what you spend goes back into the community in the form of taxes and charitable contributions paid by the merchants.
