Enjoys woodworking

Brasch recreates his family farm

Now, Harvey Brasch, of Wayne doesn't need to drive to Bloomfield to visit his family farm there.

He can see his four-bedroom house, the large barn, corn crib and hog buildings which his father constructed in 1909 on the farm currently located about 5 miles northwest of Bloomfield — just by walking outside of his present house at 403 West First Street in Wayne.

Brasch is a woodworker who enjoys the feel of the wood grain and doesn't mind getting sawdust on his clothing. The farm set, a replica of his family farm, is just one of many woodworking projects that he can take credit for.

He and his wife left the family farm in 1961. After living in Norfolk for three years, the Brasch family moved in 1964 to Wayne.

Alfred Mlady resides on the farm now.

It was on this family farm when Brasch, as a kid, would make his own toys, molding corn cobs, blocks of wood and peach and cherry pits to form the shapes of farm animals or tractors.

He has graduated on to more complicated woodworking projects — docks, lamps, coffee tables, picture frames, red cedar chests, butch — and has many of the items on display within his Wayne home.

HE EVEN HAS made a checker board dish. "That's so that people, when they get done eating, can play checkers on it later," he said, laughing.

"Once I start something [with a piece of wood] and lay it down, I never know exactly what I will come up with," he added.

His inventory of wood material products which go into his creations are not overly expensive.

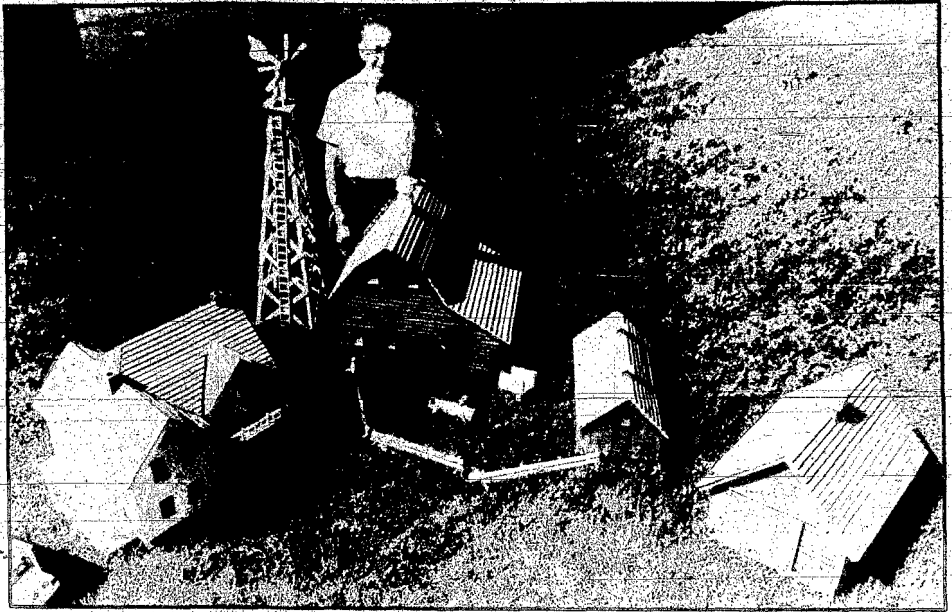

"Everything I build is from what people throw away, such as old pieces of lumber scraps."

But he isn't one who takes his works to craft shows for the purpose of monetary gain. His six grandchildren are those that benefit most from his hobbies.

One of his grandsons has a complete line of trucks, from gas-hauling units to grain trucks which were personally made by Brasch. School buses were also made for the grandchildren.

His ideas for each project begin, he said, like that of an inspiring artist.

"I just get this idea in the back of my head."
By gazing at his many wood creations, one can easily ascertain that his ideas are easily attained.

The old farmstead

PEOPLE, DURING the past weekend, have to stop and look at the handiwork of Wayne's Harvey Brasch that is arranged on the Brasch lawn. It is a scaled-down replica of his former family farm near Bloomfield. Yet to be made are the garage and chicken house. No nails were used in the miniature building project.

Cavett coming to Wayne

Nebraska Native Dick Cavett and the world famous Vienna Choir Boys will appear at Wayne State College this fall in conjunction with the college's 75th anniversary celebration, WSC officials said.

The Chinese Magic Revue of Taiwan will join Cavett and the Vienna Choir Boys as the fall lineup in the Wayne State Special Program Series. Cavett, who was born in Gibbstown, Nebraska in 1932 and lived in Grand Island from 1951 until he attended Yale University, will be in Wayne for two days. His appearance will be the major kickoff event for the college's Diamond Jubilee celebration.

He will give an 85-minute presentation Sept. 24 in Ramsey Theatre followed by two small group seminars with students on Sept. 25.

"We wanted a speaker of national prominence to come to Wayne State to open our Diamond Jubilee festivities," said Dr. Ed Elliott, president of Wayne State College. "Dick Cavett is that person. He will not only be informative, but quite entertaining as well."

The Vienna Choir Boys, whose roots date back to the 13th century, will help close the 75th anniversary activities with a May 11 concert, also in Ramsey Theatre. The college had planned along with the choir's appearance as the main closing event for the three-day event. The 75th celebration, Cavett was added later as the major opening activity.

CAVETT BECAME nationally known in the late 1960's as a television talk show host. He was a copyboy for Times magazine in 1960 when he submitted some jokes for Jack Parr's "Tonight Show."

That landed him a job as staff writer for Parr. In 1964, he began writing jokes for himself and did standup comedy of his own, leading him to guest spots on such shows as Johnny Carson's "Tonight Show."

The Vienna Choir Boys date back to 1492 when formed by imperial decree, but they did not go by their present name until shortly after World War I. Today, some 60 voices of boys age eight to 18 perform clad in white sailor suits and blue trousers.

Famous musicians that have had connections with the choir throughout its five-century history include Christoph Willibald Gluck (called the founder of the choir), Josef Haydn, Franz Schubert and Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart.

The Chinese Magic Revue is scheduled for Wayne State on May 26. The troupe consists of Oriental dancers, magicians, acrobats and jugglers. Millions of television viewers saw some members of the group perform last summer at the Closing Ceremonies of the Los Angeles Olympic Games.

Boel to make history at WSC

A lot of Wayne State College's history will be reviewed this fall during the college's 75th anniversary celebration.

History will also be made on Sunday, May 5.

That's when Wayne State will award its first honorary doctor's degree to Esper Boel.

Boel, the long-time friend of Wayne State College, and his wife, Olga, traveled from their home in Denmark to receive the prestigious honor. Boel was awarded a Doctor of Humane Letters (L.H.D.) degree Sunday during commencement.

"It is an honor for Wayne State College to award Esper the first honorary doctor's degree," said WSC President Ed Elliott. "He has been a personal friend and friend of the college for many years."

Boel, age 71, has visited Wayne numerous times and has given the commencement address twice, the last time in 1981. He has facilitated the visits of some 250 Wayne State travelers to Denmark (including four students during the spring semester) and has encouraged Danish students to come to Wayne State to study.

He is also a regular financial contributor to the Wayne State Foundation, an organization he once served as a trustee.

businessman with many interests, he is best known for his cheese production. His cheeses, which will be sampled in Wayne this weekend, are known in many parts of the world.

It wasn't until 1983 that the board allowed the state colleges to offer honorary doctorates. Soon after that, Dr. Elliott went to work on the arrangements for this initial degree, and the first candidate was obvious. "There are people associated with Wayne State College, including Esper and Olga Boel, who have distinguished themselves in such a way that only an honorary doctorate is appropriate," said Dr. Elliott.

"In Esper Boel's case, you find characteristics that are unique. Esper has made significant contributions to education, he is a philanthropist, he has a keen interest in young people, he is active in promoting the arts and, of course, has been a business entrepreneur all his life."

"He is worthy of being called Dr. Boel."

Boel's first association with Wayne State came in the 1950's when former Nebraska governor Val Peterson, a Wayne State graduate, was Ambassador to Denmark. They became close personal friends and that eventually led to Boel's first visit to Wayne State in 1965 at homecoming time.

Esper Boel

BOEL finished high school in Denmark in 1928 and attended business school for two years until becoming a dairy student in Denmark and England until 1934. He later owned and managed dairies and today his food-businesses are worldwide.

His list of associations includes the Board of the Association of Denmark's Private Dairies; the Danish Blue Cheese Producers' Association; Political, Producers and Tourist Associations; and the Tourist Association and Aero Club of Nykøbing, Falster, Denmark.

He received the O.M. of the Home Guard Association in 1970 and Poul Harris Fellowship in 1981.

Boel was decorated with the Silver Cross of the Order of the Dannebrog in 1966 and the Gold Cross of the order of Dannebrog in 1982, both prestigious awards. President Elliott has visited the Boel farm in the past and knows the Boels well.

"Esper and Olga live in Holeby, Lolland, Denmark, on what he calls a farm. It consists of hundreds and hundreds of acres of land and has a hard of deer that runs through his own protected forest. He manufactures his own electricity and has a Japanese-style garden, yet he still thinks of himself as a humble Danish farmer."

Boel is a pilot who has flown his own single-engine plane to, among other places, Africa and into the Arctic Circle. He has also authored a book on the Boel family which includes a section on Wayne State College.

It includes a photo of him at a Wayne State College commencement.

He will be feted Saturday evening (May 4) at the Achievement Day banquet. Three other Wayne State College alumni will also be honored.

Ruby Pedersen of Omaha will be given the Distinguished Service Award; W. Ward Reynolds of Osceola, Iowa will be given the college's first Distinguished Alumnus award; and Ed Broge of Wayne will be given the first Outstanding Young Alumnus award.

LEAD brings out the leaders of agriculture

by Chuck Hackenmillor

LEAD (Leadership Education/Action Development), for people primarily in production agriculture or agri-business, is looking for some candidates who can qualify for its program.

Thirty people between the ages of 25 to 40 (both male and female) are selected to participate in the LEAD program which transpires over a two-year period. The objective, according to Dr. Allen Blezek, is to improve the leadership skills of the individual and increase problem solving skills.

Blezek is president of the Nebraska Agricultural Leadership Council. "We speed up the leadership development process so that the person can become a leader and a spokesperson for agriculture," Blezek said.

"Applications are due for the LEAD program by June 12. Blezek said that for the remainder of June, interviews will be conducted with the LEAD applicants in the five cooperative extension districts throughout Nebraska — including Wayne.

After July 1, Blezek said, people will be notified as to if they are in the semi-finals for participation in the program. This way, it will give the applicants a chance to raise the necessary $800 to enter the program.

SINCE the program was initiated, this is the first year the participants were required to pay the $800 fee. Blezek said a total of $300,000 would be raised annually to carry out this on-going program.

"Our objective is to maintain the high quality program by asking for participant contributions, he said.

PARTICIPANTS, once it is known they have been selected for the program, can either write a check for the $800 or "have a local civic organization sponsor them."

The program covers 85 days during a two year period. It involves program participation at secondary education facilities across the state of Nebraska, meeting several days at the sites at least once monthly.

During the first year the program schedule also includes a 10-day national trip to cities such as Kansas City, Detroit and Washington, D.C.

In the second year of the program, a three-week trip to countries other than the United States is scheduled. The last world-wide excursion by the second year students had stops in Morocco, Israel and Egypt.

"Ninety people have taken the program and about half of them are on some sort of district, state or national agricultural board now. That's a sign the program is working," Blezek said.

"Some people might say we should leave the leadership development up to chance. We don't think so," he said.

"Can we afford not to have this program?" he asked.

"If ever there is a time that leadership is needed in agriculture, it is now," he added.

A major share of the participant's costs are made available through private contributions, according to Allen O'Donnell and Cliff Ginn, both associate professors of social science at Wayne State College, are coordinators of the program in this area.

More information on LEAD can be obtained by writing to Leadership Education/Action Development, Nebraska Agricultural Leadership Council, Inc., 302 Agricultural Hall, University of Nebraska Lincoln, Lincoln, NE 68583-0709.

Sponsored by Tourism Committee

Logo and slogan contest

A logo and slogan contest has been initiated by the newly formed Tri County Tourism Committee of Cedar, Dixon and Knox counties. Plans for this contest were finalized at the committee's monthly meeting in Hartington, April 25.

All entries should center around and expand on the new "Lewis and Clark Land" theme recently adopted by the committee. This easily recognizable name will help to identify this area of northeast Nebraska.

Prizes include a $25 United States Savings Bond for both the top logo and the top slogan. All submissions will be judged by the Tri-County Tourism Committee.

The winning entries will then be featured on all "Lewis and Clark Land" promotional materials and will serve as the symbol identifying all future committee projects.

This tourism promotion effort came about through a $5,000 grant awarded to the Tri-County Council of Governments by the Nebraska Department of Economic Development. These funds will be used to cover the cost of a marketing campaign, featuring the three county region. Plans now call for the development of a full-color brochure and other promotional materials.

Mail submissions to: Slogan Search, Tri-County Council of Governments, Box 376, Hartington, Neb. 68739. All entries will become the property of the Tri-County Tourism Committee.

Entries must be postmarked or received before June 1.

Power of petunias

Trees planted along the Wayne downtown business district — those that have not been vandalized — are giving passer-by a refreshing view as they walk from business to business.

The green of the trees adds a spring-like color to the business district. This gesture to bring a bit of attractiveness to downtown is a positive step in creating an idea that Wayne cares about what people think about their city.

Now another big project is ahead in an attempt to further beautify the city.

Last year, as a Centennial gesture, petunias (a non-perennial) were planted along Main Street from the north to south edge of Wayne.

As the petunias faded later in 1984, the cultivated spots remained. The city was faced with a question of what do do with the filled ground in 1985 — reseed, allow the residents to seed a plant of their choice, or at the request of several residents in late January to the Wayne City Council, grow petunias again in the same place.

The city council opted to allow the petunias to grow again and directed Kent Hall of Wayne Greenhouse to order the flowers.

Even with road improvement construction on North Main Street expected to begin this summer, the $1,500 or so in dollars it costs to plant the seeds is one that will help create a "welcome atmosphere" as people enter our fair city from the north and south.

Plans on the North Main Street construction currently reveal that most of the work will be curb to curb. Unless heavy machines roll over the curbs, the petunias should withstand the construction.

Compliments abounded, according to those making their case for another year of petunias, from those passing through the city or attending last year's centennial festivities.

What isn't raised through outside sources will be picked up financially from the city council, who voted last January to pick up the bill if the entire $1,500 could not be raised.

According to Kent Hall, planting is scheduled tentatively for May 18. The planting drive will be organized by the Wayne Kiwanis Club, he said.

There will be 12,000 petunias total planted on both sides of Main Street. If 200 people turn out in helping to plant the petunias, then each would drop in 60 plants. Last year, with 200 volunteer workers, the project took approximately one hour and 15 minutes, Hall said.

One suggestion made was to plant perennial flower species along Main Street. However, Hall said perennials "have their season to bloom [some only for several weeks]" and then are gone.

Petunias bloom and provide color for nearly the entire summer, if weather conditions cooperate.

The petunias leave a lasting impression on motorist who pass the city limits. Perhaps it even attracts them back. And that's what we like to see.

Chuck Hackenmiller
Wayne Herald editor

People would be surprised at what comes across the editor's desk in the daily mail. Some of it is useful. A good share of the material ends up in the trash.

Then there's the type of things which capture the interest — but would be against my better judgment to run.

For instance, as I'm typing this column at 12:30 a.m., I have before me a pamphlet entitled "Good Night America, A Guide To Better Sleep." Just what I need to read after midnight.

Anyway, it has all sorts of helpful tips, from buying a bed to garment wear, that could put a person to sleep by just reading them all.

One section is entitled: "Putting Yourself To Sleep. These are the suggestions."

"Progressive Muscle Relaxation. Tense muscles lightly for five to seven seconds, then release them for 15 to 20 seconds and repeat with other muscle groups."

I tried this the other night and ended up getting the most terrible Charlie Horse I've ever had.

"Yoga. On your back in bed; inhale to a count of five, raise your arms backward over your head until they touch the mattress. Make two fists. Raise your buttocks. Tense and stretch every muscle in your body, including those of your face. Hold for a count of five. Release, keeping arms over head. With eyes closed, let the tension drain from your body. Each night try to increase the time you spend in this position."

NO KIDDING! That's word for word from the pamphlet.

"Light a candle in your mind. Focus on the flame. See how each disjuncting thought makes it flicker. Flame becomes upright when thoughts are dismissed from the mind and burns more steadily as one becomes more relaxed and serene."

P.S., this technique is particularly effective when you wake up in the middle of the night.

"Sandman's snacks. Nature's sleeping pills could be considered as milk, eggs, tuna fish, cottage cheese, soy beans, cashews, chicken, turkey and sardines (with bones, no less). Great! But tell that to my wife who's trying to get me to stick to a diet."

"Nightcaps. Just one drink if its alcohol. Warm milk and herbal teas (particularly ginseng) are alternatives that also can soothe you into sleep."

"Fantasies. Imagine you are on a tranquil setting — lying on a tropical beach, strolling through a meadow of flowers, sitting near a babbling brook. Feel the sun on your body. Inhale the fragrances. Listen to the rushing water. Feel yourself relax."

This wouldn't work for me. I'd have nightmares about how much all it would cost.

"Deep breathing. Take five deep breaths, counting to yourself with each one. As you count, tell yourself "I'm getting more relaxed, peaceful and serene. I am slowly falling asleep."

ABOUT THAT time, the alarm clock will go off and you hit your head on the bedpost.

"Splashdown. A warm bath induces drowsiness because the warm water sends blood away from the brain to the skin surface. A bath or shower that is too hot or too cold can have the opposite effect, however, and make you feel invigorated rather than relaxed."

"Mind games. Imagine you're writing perfect numerals, about six feet high, on a make-believe blackboard. Start at 100 and count backwards. The pamphlet says you probably won't make it to 50."

"Counting sheep. According to recent research, this simple technique distracts both sides of the brain with a soothing, repetitive activity. The left brain, which is involved in logical calculations, does the counting."

The right brain, which produces visual images, conjures up the white coats and dark eyes. As you keep track of the woolly creatures skipping through your mind, you literally bore yourself to sleep.

And we wonder why some people wake up with headaches.

SOME THINGS you might (or might not) want to know about snoring is also in this pamphlet: As you can see, I've studied it very closely.

Did you know that one of eight people snore and men are more likely candidates than women?

If you sleep with a snorer remember, that snoring happens most often when the sleeper is on his back. Nudging your partner onto his side should help.

An alternative is to stack several pillows (no, not to suffocate) so his or her head is raised.

Or get this! You can sew a hard ball to the back of his pajamas. When he rolls over onto his back, he'll feel it and switch to his side.

Now that all this information is out in this column's readers, be assured that you have found another way to sleep restfully at nights.

ANOTHER LETTER of a more serious note came across the editor's desk. It was from Stephen C. Anderl of Elkhart, Indiana. He says:

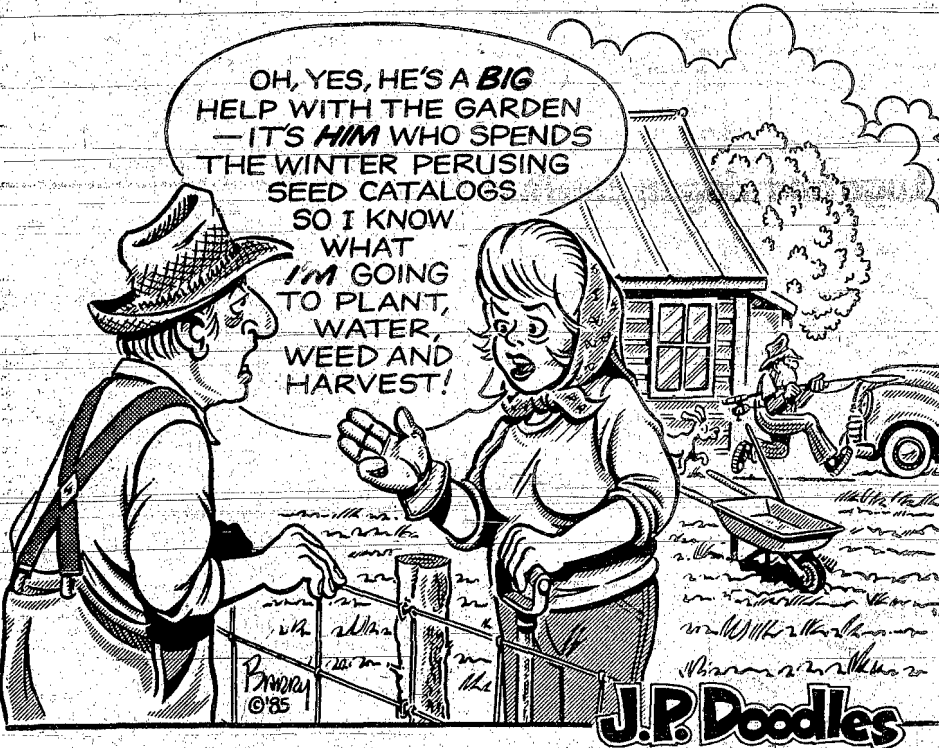

"Every place has its memorials and grave-stones! I am collecting material for a theme: the working title is Grave Sayings: Living Thoughts."

In your area, somewhere in the cemetery, is that unique saying —

"Clearly, it is physically difficult for me, to search for the inscriptions everywhere in the USA. For this reason, I am asking you and your readers for assistance in gathering them."

The only compensation I can offer for the effort is to mention the name and documentation of the contributor (an article, picture, personal observation) whenever the inscription is used."

So if you are aware of a inscription that you would like to see published, give this guy a card at 3718 Grady Blvd, Elkhart, Indiana, 46516.

Plans to cut tax brackets

Landowners should keep close eye on tax plans

by Cheryl Stubbendick

It wasn't until its 60th birthday that the U.S. felt the need to levy its first income tax. In 1862, the government needed to finance its Civil War effort and so imposed an income tax for the first time.

Previously, federal revenues were raised by excise taxes and tariffs on imports. Following the war, the income tax was allowed to expire in 1872 and wasn't used again for 40 years.

In 1913, the 16th Amendment to the Constitution was ratified, giving Congress the power to set and collect taxes on income. The first law under the amendment taxes only the wealthiest 1 percent of the population, at rates ranging from 1 to 7 percent of income.

Things have gotten increasingly complex since then, with the addition of special tax breaks, incentives, loopholes and other special considerations. It's not surprising, then, that simplified tax proposals such as the flat rate have gathered growing support over the years.

Many tax reform proposals are in the works today and each will have different impacts for different groups, including farmers and ranchers.

THE TREASURY Department plan announced last November is probably the best known. It raises corporate taxes by about 25 percent, primarily by eliminating many business tax breaks, and reduces individual taxpayers' bill by about 8.5 percent overall.

The plan also cuts the number of rate brackets from 14 to three. Taxpayers filing joint returns whose income is below $32,000 would pay at 15 percent; those between $32,000 and $64,000 would pay at 25 percent; and those above $64,000 would be in the 35 percent bracket. The treasury plan retains tax indexing to prevent inflationary bracket creep.

On the corporate side, the top rate would drop from 46 percent to a flat 35 percent for all corporations. That would mean an increase for many small-incorporated farms and other businesses which are now assessed at 15 percent for up to $125,000 in income, 18 percent for $25,000 to $50,000, and on up to 66 percent for income over $100,000.

TO OFFSET these lowered rates, the treasury plan would cut back on some current tax breaks, including the investment tax credit and the accelerated depreciation provision enacted in 1981. The first would be eliminated entirely while the accelerated depreciation provisions would be scaled back.

The treasury plan also does away with favorable capital gains treatment, but indexes the capital gains tax for inflation so only the actual gain is taxed, making this an important provision for the sale of farms.

Because most farms are organized as sole proprietorships or partnerships, it would seem on the surface at least, that farmers would benefit from the lower rates. The loss of the investment tax credit would be a blow to individual farmers who are planning equipment purchases; but many analysts think that in the long run, this would encourage a healthier agricultural economy. They argue that the current tax code has caused too much capital to flow into some ag sectors, causing overproduction and lower profitability.

The treasury plan, according to an analysis, probably would also eliminate some of the elaborate agricultural tax shelters which have drawn criticism because they have been used to offset non-farm gains. These who oppose non-farm investment in agriculture could see this as a plus.

Although there are a number of other tax proposals around, it appears to many Washington watchers that some kind of a flat or modified-rate tax system has the best chance of passage. As discussion of these continues, farmers and ranchers need to keep an eye on them, to be aware of the impacts they could have for those in the agricultural sector.

Choosing action wear for visibility
Because pedestrian-auto collisions cause about 9,000 deaths and 100,000 injuries each year, it is critical for nighttime cyclists and joggers to wear high visibility clothing.

Many of these collisions occur when visibility is poor. The amount of visibility depends on contrast.

An object shows up if it contrasts with its surroundings in color, value, brightness, shape, size or motion.

Color is extremely important for daytime visibility. The color to which the eye is most sensitive is yellow-green. Although yellow-green is highly visible against a red brick building, it might not be easily seen against light green spring foliage.

When choosing high visibility clothing, consider the background against which you will be seen and choose a color that provides good contrast.

In daylight, garments made of fluorescent materials appear brightest and reflect the most light. These materials are particularly bright in sunlight and often are found in the "day-glow" colors used for safety apparel for road crews, fire fighters and police officers.

FOR NIGHTTIME visibility, the most visible colors are those that provide the strongest contrast with the black background — white or silver.

At night, high visibility depends on reflection of light from sources such as auto headlights or flashlights.

Since a very small portion of reflected light is returned in concentrated form in the direction of a person seated behind a light source, clothing must incorporate special materials.

The clothing must be capable of capturing the light and directing its reflection back toward headlights and the driver behind them.

Studies have shown that pedestrians walking along a road in dark clothing at night are first seen at about 55 feet away, giving a driver less than one second for reaction time. White clothing can be seen as far away as 180 feet, and reflectively trimmed clothing as far as 500 feet.

IT IS IMPORTANT to consider the source of available light when choosing a high visibility garment.

Reflective materials are useful only at night with direct light sources such as headlights. Fluorescent materials are activated only by sunlight.

There are some materials that are both fluorescent and reflective, which provide visibility under both day and night light conditions.

There is no question that greater visibility means greater safety for athletes and children who are out of doors at night.

Safety stripes are a fashionable part of action wear. Stay fashionable and safe by choosing effective high visibility clothing.

First loss to Oakland-Craig

Blue Devil golfers win two team titles during full week

The Wayne golf team was pegged with its first loss of the year but added two more invitational wins to its season in a heavy schedule of action last week.

The Blue Devils took team titles at their own invitational on Wednesday and at the Stanton invite on Friday, but suffered a seven-stroke loss to Oakland-Craig at their own tournament on Thursday.

The squad will have a week to gear up for the district tournament, to be held this Thursday, May 9 in Columbus. The field will feature 14 Class B schools, most of which Wayne has not faced yet this season. "By watching their scores in the paper, it looks like there will be five or six teams battling it out for the top three spots in the district to advance to state," said Wayne golf coach Harold Maciejewski.

THE VARSITY FIVE shot a combined 18-hole total of 325 to win the Stanton tourney on Friday. There were followed by Scribner with a 341; Stanton with 350; Hartington Cedar Catholic, 358; Norfolk Catholic, 365; Beemer, 375; Norfolk High reserves, 398; West Point, 399; Humphrey St. Francis, 425; and Emerson-Hubbard, 468.

Tom Perry ended the day as the event's medalist with a total of 36-43-79. Teammate Brad Moore followed in second with a 41-39-80 and David Ellis, with a 43-42-85, won a playoff for third place. Rod Dahl and Kevin Griess carded rounds of 41-44 and 43-42 for a total of 85. In a four-way tie sixth place, Kevin Griess took home with the eighth place medal and Rod Dahl the tenth place medal.

CLASS C GOLF power Oakland-Craig won the team championship at their own invitational on Thursday. The tourney was originally scheduled for Saturday, April 27, but was postponed due to rain and shortened from an 18-hole to nine hole course.

The Knights tallied a team score of 157, while Wayne finished the runner-up with a 164 total. Elkhorn Mount Michael was third with a 167, followed by Blair with 173; Logan View with 187; Stanton and Scribner tied at 184; Fremont Sargan with 185; Oakland-Craig 'B' with 190; Beemer and Blair tied with 198; Arlington with 199; Omaha Cathedral with 201; Plainview with 204 and West Point High with 227.

Kelly Danielson of Oakland-Craig shot a 36 to finish as the day's medalist. Tom Perry of Wayne was second with a round of 37 and Brad Moore scored a 41 and finished seventh after a six-way tie for fifth place. Rod Dahl was Wayne's other medalist, winning a three-way tie for eleventh place in the standings.

THE WAYNE VARSITY GOLF team started out their hectic schedule on Wednesday with a three stroke win over Oakland-Craig in the Wayne Country Club.

The Blue Devils carded a total of 285, just ahead of Oakland-Craig with 288 and Schuyler with 291. Rounding out the 12-team field's scoring were Sophomore David Ellis shot a 68 to earn honors as the individual medalist, defeating Dave Eby of O'Neill for the top spot. He combined a 25 on a shortened back nine with a 43 on the regulation length front nine holes for the day's low score. Due to course conditions the 18th and 14th holes were not included in the back nine and par for the course used in the invitational was 62.

Senior Brad Moore was close behind with rounds of 39 and 30 for a 69 and won his playoff for the third

Search continues for WSC cage coach

Wayne State College Athletic Director Ron Jones announced last week that the interview process is underway in the search for a head coach of the men's basketball program.

According to Jones, a total of 49 individuals applied for the position with approximately 60 to 70 percent of those re-applications from the prior search.

AFTER A REVIEW OF the applications by an appointed search committee, a list of five names was forwarded to the administration for consideration. Among the five individuals, three are four-year college coaches, while two are from the high school ranks.

The first candidate, Steve Aggers, was brought to the WSC campus for an interview last week. He currently completed his sixth year as varsity coach at the College of Great Falls in Great Falls, Mont.

A 1971 graduate of Chadron State College, Aggers attended Mid-Plains Community College in North Platte before going to CSC. Following graduation, he was an assistant at the University of Nebraska-Omaha for two years before returning to Mid-Plains and heading up the men's basketball program for four years.

HE HELD OTHER college coaching positions before beginning his stay at Great Falls. In his six years at the school he posted a 121-54 record, including a 17-12 mark this past season.

Jones said that the administration is continuing with the interview process and hopes to have a decision made as soon as possible.

ANNA SEZ:

May 1

Hello Everyone! What a beautiful May day morning. The birds are starting to bloom. What is sweeter than a little May bird chirping out home and they are beautiful with red tulips. Am disappointed with my tulips this year. Came up to garden and they are all about where they are. We had one tornado drill last year. The police would not give us a warning to get and lie up on each side of the hallway. Chairs had to be carried there for those not in wheelchairs and each was given a blanket. Didn't go to the basement as it was better to keep out of the elevator in case of a blackout.

The first shift had their supper and went out of the dining room. But those in the second shift were getting pretty hungry before the all clear signal was given. Did you see the beautiful rainbow in the eastern sky? The old saying - Rainbow at night - Sellers' Delight.

Welcome to Marie and Jim Hansen. Hope you will enjoy your stay with us. Several residents have been of Providence Medical Center - Deanne Malson, Louise Stoenen and Maggie. We are all back home again. Several have been down for checkups but we back home again.

Margaret Lundstrom called the center and said that she flew her birthday flag the 1st day of each month in honor of all our birthdays. We do enjoy her parade of flags and many thanks to her. Among the activities in the home are church services on Sunday at 10:30 a.m. On Sunday, May 5, Mary's Church will be here. On May 12, the Polish septets are here. On May 19th, the St. Paul's Church. On May 26, the Wesleyan mandoriel will be here.

On Tuesdays we have movies in the dining room. On Tuesdays there is Bible study in the morning. Also on Tuesdays, the 14th there will be "Happy, the golden man" reading all the favorite hymns and songs. And Tuesdays are show days for the men on Tuesdays and the women the next Tuesday. Also on Tuesdays, here on the 21st with treats. Have trivia to test our memories on Wednesdays. There are cards and dominoes. The Senior Citizens come the first and last Thursday of each month. On the 24th Thursdays we have our birthday party of the month. The residents having birthdays will be seated around the birthday table. We will all sing the birthday song and have treats.

The St. Mary's kitchen come on the second Monday of the month with tables and trays. The Grace Ladies come with treats on the 3rd Thursdays of the month. On 22nd Fridays we have songs. On Saturday afternoons there is Rhythm Band with Dorothy Beckenbauer playing the organ and there is also a violin player and accordion and mouth harp.

There will be 7 residents seated around the birthday table: Iva Oleskovic, May 22; Emma Soles, May 17; Margaret Hansen, May 3; Gene Vogel, May 18; George Price, May 18; Flora Wederman, May 25; Leona Balde, May 25.

Most new friends - make new friends, but keep the old; one is always and the other is gold.
