At Central Missouri State University

Elliott a choice for president's job

Although he would neither confirm or deny the statement, it is reported that Dr. Ed Elliott, president of Wayne State College, has accepted an offer to become president of a university in Missouri.

Central Missouri State University in Warrensburg, Missouri, offered the president's position to Elliott and it was reported by sources earlier this week that Elliott has accepted the offer and is now waiting for Central Missouri State University's Board of Regents to make a final decision on the appointment.

That decision will be made at the board of regent's meeting on May 15.

"Until we're beyond that, I'm not at liberty to make it official," Elliott said.

Central Missouri State University is an institution of just under 10,000 students and the campus is situated on 1,000 acres, according to Elliott.

THE SCHOOL HAS approximately 450 faculty members, has its own 18 hole golf course and a 300 acre recreation site. The institution also owns an 188 acre farm to go with its university agricultural programs.

"It has a history similar to Wayne State College in terms of evolution - from a Normal College, State Teachers College to a university," he said.

He said that Central Missouri State University had presented a "very, very attractive offer."

The college has good facilities and a strong tradition, he said.

Elliott, age 46, has served since 1982 as president of Wayne State College. He began his association with Wayne State College in 1971 as director of graduate studies. Previously he had been appointed chairman of the Health, Physical Education and Recreation Department and athletic coach at Missouri Valley College in Marshall, Missouri.

FROM 1973 TO 1975 he served as Dean of Special Studies and Full Professor of the Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation at Wayne State and from 1975 to 1980, he obtained the position of Vice-President for Academic Affairs.

In 1980 he was promoted to vice-president of Wayne State College and from there went on to become college president.

Elliott said he has already notified Carroll Thompson and J. Alan Cramer, both members of the Nebraska State College Board of Trustees, of the offer extended to him from Central Missouri State College.

County acts on road resolutions

Several resolutions which give the county the authority to proceed with plans for the development of Rural Road Improvement District 85-1 were passed at the May 7 meeting of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners.

A resolution was adopted to add Project No. C-90 (266) to the One Year Road Improvement Plan. The project includes grading and paving a road to meet the Timpie, Inc. building site east of Wayne, located north of Heritage Homes.

A resolution which acknowledged publication of the board's intentions to create the Road Improvement District and that there were no objections to the project was passed. And a resolution to create Rural Road Improvement District 85-1 (road to Timpie) was also passed.

The Wayne County Commissioners approved signing its portion of a "memorandum of understanding" between the city of Wayne and Wayne County.

The memorandum was executed under the Nebraska Interlocal Cooperation Act for the equitable division between the city and county of the $500,000 block grant commitment obtained by the city to defray the expenses incurred by the city and county during the Timpie, Inc. building project.

The memorandum reads as follows:

"The county and city shall maintain records of the respective expenses incurred by each, including the kind of services performed on the Timpie, Inc. project.

"Upon completion of the Timpie, Inc. project, said grant funds will be distributed to the city and county in proportion to the expenses incurred by each party relative to the total expenses incurred by both parties.

"The city will pass the Inducement Resolution for the industrial development bond issue for Timpie, Inc. and will issue said bonds, and the county will do the same.

City officials had approved the memorandum at their regular council meeting in April.

The commissioners also formally approved a proposal to have Bruce Gilmore & Associates do the engineering work on the Timpie, Inc. Road Improvement District project. The engineering cost of $18,750 will be divided proportionately between the city of Wayne and the county.

IN OTHER ACTION, Orretta Morris, Wayne County Clerk, was informed by Cedar County of their plans to designate several roads as minimum maintenance roads. The Wayne County Commissioners had no objections to the proposed minimum maintenance roads in Cedar County and authorized Sidney Saunders, Wayne County Highway Superintendent to notify Cedar County of the commissioners' approval.

The commissioners decided to enter into an agreement with Porter Ripa of Lincoln to do the engineering work on the Wayne County/Cuming County bridge building project. The bid of $4,724 will be divided proportionately between Wayne County and Cuming County.

Other Wayne County business included:

• The acknowledgement of a refund check from the State of Nebraska in the amount of $584.16 for Federal Aid Bridge Project on a bridge northeast of Wayne.

• The reappointment of Jean Nüss as Veterans' Service Committee member.

• The examination and approval of the county treasurer's tax sale certificates.

• And a decision to cancel a check to Fontaines Microfilming.

The commissioners adjourned and convened as the board of equalization. Protest on the valuation of farm land was brought before the board.

Ellery Pearson, in past years, always made an effort to attend Memorial Day observances.

But when festivities of Memorial Day, 1985, begin on May 27, Ellery said he likely will not be there.

"I don't expect I will be there this year, cause I'm not able to get around," he commented.

Ellery, who is 91 years old, has suffered recent strokes which limits his physical capabilities. His speech is hindered, but his words are understandable.

Yet conversation flows freely as he develops that certain sparkle of renewed interest in his eyes and he shows no handicap in grasping spiced-away memories deep within himself as the topic surfaces about World War I.

He is one of few veterans in northeast Nebraska who has the distinction of being a World War I soldier.

On a September in 1917, at the age of 23, Ellery (born near Bedford) left his family farm near Orleans, Nebraska and answered the call of his country to join the military service.

At the time, the United States had already entered the international war (April, 1917) which ultimately included 27 countries. U.S. allies included Serbia, France, Belgium and Great Britain, Montenegro, Japan, Italy, Portugal, Rumania, Greece, Cuba and Brazil. The Americans and its allies were fighting a war against the central powers of Germany, Turkey, Bulgaria and Austria.

The immediate cause was the assassination by a Serb of the Austrian Archduke Francis Ferdinand at Sarjevo, Bosnia on June 28, 1914.

ELLERY'S FIRST stop prior to stepping onto the World War I battlefields was at Camp Funston in Kansas. Nine months later, it was decided by the military to leave camp and cross over the U.S. to France.

He was one of 60 men appointed to the supply train. "We held and transported everything the army ever used," he added.

"Supplies were hauled by us to all of our companies throughout France. We had trucks at that time with solid rubber tires so there were never any flats," he said.

"His company traveled on rock roads only. "If we ever got off the rock roads, we would get stuck. It rained so darn much over there. It never rained hard, just your steady rain," he said.

One evening, he said, the supply truck had pulled off the rock road into some timber. "We had to have 40 men ahead of us pulling with a rope for a short stretch to get back on the rock road."

Ellery said the companies never ran out of supplies. When he wasn't busy driving the supply truck, his duties shifted to being a cook.

"As far as rations were concerned, not too many men went hungry. A fellow trying to make his way back to his home company could stop at any of the kitchens and get enough to eat," he said.

"We had the best old captain that was ever heard of in the army. He was an army regular but he was good - just that kind of man. The men had a lot of respect for him," Ellery said. "We were just a bunch of old farm boys," he added.

HE DISCARDED any thoughts that his duty was not as dangerous as any other soldier's task. "We hauled supplies right up to the boys in the trenches, so we were in a lot of dangerous places too."

"And we always drove in the dark without headlights. We didn't even dare to light up a cigarette for fear someone would spot the light."

Military pay at the time Ellery was performing his military duty was $30 a month. "We got along okay on that amount. We also got room and board along with it," he said.

Most of the $30 was spent in the commissary, he said.

Ellery said he was involved in two battles and carried his military rifle with him at all times.

World War I ended with the signing of Armistice, the last being with Germany on Nov. 11, 1918. For the next five months, Ellery and his supply detail "looked after the company of American soldiers working in Germany that were keeping the peace after the Armistice was signed."

Back in the United States, Eulalia Hubert continued writing letters to her overseas boyfriend. She was fighting an inner war, fretting that Ellery would not return.

"There would be a list in the paper of the ones who had been killed overseas. I never did read that because I was afraid his name would be printed in there," she said.

Ellery said his letters to Eulalia never mentioned where his company was going or where they were holding up. "We just had to write and say we were somewhere in France, because the mail was always censored by the company commander," he said.

Ellery Pearson

HE WAS DISCARDED in Des Moines, Iowa on June 12, 1919, the same year that he married Eulalia. He returned to farming near Orleans, Nebraska.

Ellery said he left the dry county of Orleans in 1928 and began farming, upon invitation. His father-in-law's land southeast of Carroll.

"For the first two years we did all right. After 10 years it got so we didn't meet the expenses," he said. He took a job as custodian at the Carroll School, a position he maintained for 10 years. They moved to the city of Carroll in the early 1930's, according to Eulalia.

Ellery believes he is the only man left of his outfit that served overseas during World War I. He said he is the only World War I veteran alive in Carroll.

After talking with Ellery, one can sense that he is just that kind of a man that individuals can respect. Just like his captain that he so admired.

Ellery may not be able to celebrate Memorial Day on May 27. But you can bet, for sure, he'll be there in thought.

industry proclamation

Mayor Wayne Marsh has signed a proclamation announcing the week of May 5 through 11 as Industry Recognition Week.

The message says that existing industries are a very important segment of economic development and the potential for industrial growth comes in part from within, through the expansion of existing industries and the establishment of new, home-grown industries.

The many various industries now existing in Wayne have an influence, either directly or indirectly, upon the lives of every one of the community's citizens. Public awareness and understanding of the importance of industry to the local economy is vital to the maintenance of a "favorable industrial climate."

"This climate is a major factor in the decision of officials of existing plants to expand their operations and in the attraction of new industry."

4-H's compete in district contest

Two Wayne County 4-H'ers participated in the District 1114-H Timely Topic Public Speaking Contest held May 4 at Northeast Technical Community College in Norfolk.

Jassi Joach of Wayne received a purple ribbon and second alternate for his speech, entitled "Behind the 4-H Plaque." Brian Schmidt, also of Wayne, received a blue ribbon for his speech, "4-H: Opportunity for a Lifetime."

Both 4-H'ers were chosen by the judge at the Wayne County 4-H Timely Topic Speech Contest to compete at the district level, where they joined 4-H'ers from 13 counties in northeast Nebraska.

Mayor signs proclamations

Mayor Wayne Marsh recently signed two proclamations designating May 12-17 as Municipal Clerk's Week, and May 19-25 as National Public Works Week in Wayne.

Marsh said Municipal Clerk's Week is in recognition of the "outstanding and essential services provided to the City of Wayne by Carol Brummond, municipal clerk, and in acknowledgment of her dedication to public service for four months."

During National Public Works Week, Marsh said citizens and civic organizations are urged to acquaint themselves with the problems involved in providing public works; and to recognize the contributions that public works officials make every day to our health, safety and comfort.

Core list of exemptions

LB715 to equalize burden of sales tax

Sales tax is often touted as the most fair tax because it is paid by those who buy goods and services. This is not correct. This fairness, though, is diluted when it is a burden that is imposed selectively. LB 715 is an effort to pare the long list of exemptions that now exist and equalize the burden.

Nebraska's sales tax is filled with loopholes. Sales tax was created in 1937 as a means of generating income to be used along with income tax for state-level activities. As a result, except for those who are fortunate enough to have an exemption, we pay taxes every time we purchase something.

One such exemption that LB 715 is attempting to rescind is letting businesses out of paying taxes on utilities. Under current law, commercial activities are exempt, let me give you an example of the unfairness of this situation: If a person is renting a home and is responsible for paying for the utilities, taxes must be paid on the utilities used. But, if a landlord is paying the utilities for you, they are tax exempt since it represents a commercial activity.

While we must be careful to help our business community remain competitive with interests from other states, it seems conspicuously unfair to force all residential property owners to pay taxes on their utilities without requesting the same from businesses.

Admittedly, the tax would be passed on to the consumer, however, those with the most expendable income would pay the most tax since it would be tied to their spending. Imposing this tax would also direct a lion's share of the burden to Lincoln and Omaha where there is the largest concentration of business activity in the state.

Under this plan, utilities used for agriculture, production, and manufacturing will still be exempt. Deleting this sales tax exemption seems to be a fair and just approach to taxation. This is particularly true if the tax base is expanded by closing loopholes and we do not have to raise rates. Also, often it seems that too few of us are paying the majority of the taxes.

ANOTHER BILL THAT deserves close scrutiny is LB 271, which would change the way our state's farm land valuations are figured. Currently it's based on the assumed market value, or what you would receive if your land was sold under normal circumstances. In these tough economic times, we rarely have normal situations. It seems appropriate to consider a system based on income producing potential. This seems to be more fair to more people than an imaginary market value.

One important change in LB 271's past week was the addition of the Heifer amendment. Adopted with my wholehearted support, it will add to the elements of valuation and make it more fair for northeast Nebraskans. Under the initial bill, the state as a whole would see an ag land valuation decrease 1.9% below the 1984 level. With the addition of the amendment, the statewide valuation decrease will be 3.3%. Many of you may remember that even though there was a reduction for the state, northeast Nebraska actually increased, whereas under this amendment there is almost no change in the valuation. I am quite pleased that the Legislature has seen the wisdom of adopting the necessary changes.

The Legislature now has less than a month to go until we recess for 1985. A number of weighty issues remain to be dealt with. As usual, debate sometimes goes longer than it should on issues that aren't the most important. Democracy however, has never claimed to be the most efficient, just the most fair.

Taxing utilities

State Senator Gerald Conway's vote in favor of advancing to final legislative stage the proposal to tax costs of gas, electricity and other energy sources used by businesses goes against his initial campaign promise.

In that "Candidate's Survey" published in the Nov. 1 edition, he said: "In addition to taking action related to the farm sector, it is also essential that the state provide some support and assistance to communities attempting to diversify their economic base in order to keep small business healthy, which in turn keeps people from leaving and therefore increases the tax base."

The currently proposed LB 715, which Conway approved for advancement, would tax the cost of electricity, gas, fuel oil, diesel fuel, tractor fuel, gasoline and oil, nuclear fuel, butane and coal to be levied against retail businesses and other commercial users of energy, such as office buildings.

In his news column, Conway said "it seems conspicuously unfair to force all residential property owners to pay taxes on their utilities without requesting the same from businesses."

From another perspective, these same businessmen who provide employment to the community and are critical to bolstering the community's tax base are also residents who pay utility taxes on their own household.

Now they must also pay tax on utility costs for their businesses? And at a time when the economy, so dependent on agriculture, is not only hurting farmers but businessmen as well?

Conway says utilities used for agriculture, production and manufacturing will still be exempt.

However, the Nebraska Association of Commerce and Industry says there is some confusion as to whether LB 715 would apply to manufacturers. Under the present law, all business and agricultural energy utility purchases are exempt from the sales tax.

Under LB 715, the utility purchases would be exempt from the tax only if more than 50 percent of the amount purchased was used for "processing, manufacturing, refining, irrigation and farming," according to the commerce and industry organization.

The organization says the bill does not define what does or doesn't constitute a processing, manufacturing, refining, irrigation and farming operation, thus opening the language up to all ranges of interpretation.

Even if manufacturing is entirely excluded from payment of utility tax, a community wishing to draw industry will still suffer.

A study by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce in 1984 indicated that 100 new manufacturing jobs in a community could be expected to result in 64 additional non-manufacturing jobs in a community.

Take away the utility tax exemption and that is one less attraction to non-manufacturing businesses to locate their industry in Wayne or other communities.

Soil, water conservation groups mark birthday

By Jeff A. Obrecht

This year marks the 50th birthday of the Soil Conservation Service and the soil- and water- conservation movement.

For its first 10 years the SCS had a close working relationship with the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC). The New Deal program that gave thousands of unemployed young men a job, and the country's overworked natural resources a shot in the arm.

Franklin D. Roosevelt came to the White House in 1933 with a strong love for outdoor America. Roosevelt once said, "Nothing benefited soul, mind and body more than a life lived close to nature."

His philosophies were started during his term as governor of New York when he implemented a "broad reforestation plan for the state; taking 10,000 young men from New York's relief rolls and giving them a job.

Roosevelt first spoke of a national plan to put the employed to work on conservation projects when he delivered his acceptance speech for the Democratic presidential nomination. He called for a "definite land policy to fight a future of soil erosion and timber famine."

"In doing so," he said, "unemployment can be given to a million men. That is the kind of public work that is self-sustaining." Thus, the idea of the CCC first became public.

After taking office, Roosevelt gave his conservation work program high priority. In just 37 days, his administration pushed the legislation through Congress.

ROOSEVELT'S PLAN drew its early labor opposition from organized labor who contended the low pay scale would bring down the wages of the whole American workforce. On April 7, 1933, the President signed into law the Emergency Conservation Work Act, authorizing the funds for the CCC. Within a month, the first camp was opened at the George Washington National Forest in Virginia.

"Life at the campus was directed by the Army. No matter what part of the country the CCC camp was located, the daily routine was the same. Reveille was at 6 a.m. and calisthenics started at 6:30 a.m. After exercising, the enrollees trooped off to breakfast and then formed up in platoons for roll call and inspection before departing for work at 7:45 a.m.

Lunch was generally brought to the work location at noon and the break lasted an hour. Work ceased for the day at 4 p.m. and the boys had free time until supper around 5:30.

After the evening meal most of the youths attended classes as part of the camp's education program. Lights went out at 10 p.m. and taps were blown 15 minutes later.

The field work was supervised by the appropriate government agency. In Nebraska, the Soil Conservation Service directed the work in all but a few of the camps. In general all the work done at SCS administered camps falls into three categories: the demonstration of practical methods of soil conservation to farms; actual work upon private land in cooperation with landowners; and the development and improvement of erosion control techniques through research.

Nebraska camps undertook projects including terracing, streambank stabilization, the seeding of waterways, windbreak plantings, small dam construction and other miscellaneous conservation tasks that an enrolled landowner wanted done. Nationwide CCC workers planted over 600 million trees on SCS projects.

They tried to keep people (enrollees) fired at CCC camps, said Marvin Kivett, director of the Nebraska State Historical Society. Kivett was a CCCer at a camp near Arbor Lodge at Nebraska City.

"The CCC experience helped prepare many men for the armed services," Kivett said.

NEBRASKA'S CCC CAMPS were located in the southern and eastern portions of the state.

Camps evolved into a community within a community. They all had their own "PX" and many had their own camp newspaper. Some of those papers in Nebraska included the "Bugle Call Rag" at Ponca, "The Super Spoozer" at Alma, "The Island Intercom" at Niobrara, "The Buffalo" at Valentine and "The Camp, Burd, Beacon" at Tekamah.

The papers were usually run by the fellows who had taken an evening course of journalism at the camp.

The present editor of the "Camp Burd Beacon" wrote in his August 1935 editorial concerning the importance of the camp's conservation work, "It is generally agreed that unless economic recovery is affected along agricultural lines, there is no true recovery." An axiom that applies to Nebraska yet today.

Sports varied in importance from camp to camp, but were evident in all Nebraska camps whether it ranged from table tennis to football. The Beacon also boasted that year-in and year-out Camp Burd had the best CCC athletic teams in the state.

Nationally the federal government spent $24,200,000 on CCC projects while enrolling 30,700 men in Nebraska. Each man received a monthly wage of $16, of which $25 was sent directly home to his dependents. The five dollars he kept was his to spend. The government also provided the workers clothing and medical care.

ALTHOUGH MOST CCC work was successful, The Public Service Club of Pawnee City, Nebraska, wrote to President Roosevelt in 1934, "that three different soil erosion companies had been sent there only to move on after a few weeks of inefficient endeavors and that the farmers of the area were disgusted with having their farms torn up and wanted nothing more to do with the CCC."

Such reactions were very rare and most Nebraska communities welcomed the CCC camps and lauded their achievements.

Wildlife received benefits both directly and indirectly from CCC projects. Tree plantings and waterway construction not only slowed soil erosion but also provided wildlife habitat. Streambank stabilization improved water quality and thus enhanced aquatic environments.

Nebraska Congressman Edgar Howard was known in Washington for his knack of writing successful letters to President Roosevelt persuading him to open up additional CCC camps in Nebraska.

The CCC sported the unofficial motto of "We Can Take It." The tremendous collective achievements of helping the young men and their families in the depression, and the conservation projects which still benefit us today, are the lasting memory of the CCC.

The CCC awoke America's natural resource consciousness and helped the SCS begin its battle to conserve the soil and water, a task which continues today.

In silent prayer

Is our community worth praying for? We have all seen and/or felt the effects of the economic crisis. Meetings are being held to find solutions to the problem. We can appeal to the government for help but we can also appeal to God.

The First Baptist Church at 4th and Main in Wayne is open every Friday noon from 12 to 12:30 through May 24 for the purpose of allowing people to gather for silent prayer for our communities, our state and our nation.

I think this is a great opportunity for people of all faiths to unite together for the express purpose to pray for our communities. Would you give a few minutes of your lunch hour to spend with God? You may come and go as your time permits, or pray wherever you are.

We are First Timothy 2:1-2 that "first of all, supplications, prayers, intercessions and giving of thanks, be made for all men, for kings, and for all that are in authority, that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and honesty." We read the Lord's promise in II Chronicles 7:14, "If my people who are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways, then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin and will heal their land."

Wayne County history recalled

National Home Extension Club Week May 5-11

Wayne County's 14 home extension clubs are joining clubs from across the state in celebrating National Home Extension Club Week May 5-11.

The annual observance is held to recognize the achievements of home extension clubs and their philosophy — "Help People to Help Themselves."

Longtime Wayne County Home Extension Club members, Mervyn Corbit (a 53-year member) and Marian Jordan (who first joined a home extension club in 1944) recall that before 1935, home extension clubs were known as project clubs.

Lessons were given each month at the courthouse by home demonstration leaders from Lincoln. Meetings lasted all day and those attending brought their own sack lunches.

Lessons in the early days included "Care and Repair of Wood Floors," "Making Dress Forms," "Satisfying Meals," and "Making Men's Neckties."

Marian smiles when she recalls the lesson on making neckties. "We all made neckties for our husbands, and not a one of them would wear them."

IN A HISTORY of Wayne County Home Extension Club Work, prepared by Mrs. Corbit and Mrs. Jordan, both women recall that in 1934 Mrs. Ida Moses became the first Home Extension Club Chairman — an office she held for 11 years.

Home extension agents serving Wayne County throughout the years have included Miss Stanek, Mrs. Lorraine Dorst, Phyllis Ross, Mrs. Robert Reynolds, Myrtle Anderson, Mrs. Joclyn Smith Moody, Mrs. Anna Marie Kreifels White and Mrs. Linda Huinker.

Current home extension agent in Wayne County is Mrs. Mary Temme.

MAJOR ACHIEVEMENTS throughout the years by home extension clubs in Wayne County have included a Health Fair held in 1979 in cooperation with Dixon County.

"Chairmen" were Marian Jordan from Wayne County, and Mrs. Sally Lubberstedt from Dixon County. "It was an all-day affair," recalls Marian, "with about 30 booths including dentists, alcohol abuse, diabetic testing and a physical fitness demonstration."

"When the 1985 Health Fair was organized earlier this year by the American Cancer Society," adds Marian, "they came to us for the blueprints."

ALTHOUGH INDIVIDUAL clubs in the county decide their own community service projects — such as making trays for hospitals — the county council, comprised of representatives from each club, has made several major contributions.

Recently, the council purchased a lifeline transmitter for Providence Medical Center. The council also sponsors a youth to attend Diabetic Camp each year.

In addition, the county home extension council manages all of the home economic and gardening open class exhibits each year at the Wayne County Fair — including cleaning up, providing guard duty during fair days, arranging for judging of the exhibits, and providing special prizes in various categories.

BRIEF HISTORIES from current home extension clubs in Wayne County include:

Highland Club — Highland Home Extension Club was organized on June 2, 1927 with 14 members. The club motto is "Smile at Difficulties." Through the years, the club has given plays, had family picnics, and been active in community affairs.

Serve All — Eight charter members organized Serve All Club on Dec. 10, 1935 in the home of Marie Longe. Club projects have included selling mailbox markers and sending clothes to a needy family in Norway during World War II. Other projects include buying Christmas gifts for residents in nursing homes, visiting Care Center patients several times each year and serving lunch, conducting the cancer drive in Logan Precinct, and participating in fair activities.

A-Teen — Originally called the 6-A Project Club because there were six Andersons in the organization, the club was organized in September of 1938. The name was changed to the A-Teen Club the next year, following the death of Mrs. Luther Anderson. The "A" was retained in her memory, and "Teen" signifies a goal of 18 members. In 1948-49, members went to club meetings in a lumber wagon and some walked through snow-covered fields. In the muddy spring, tractors were used as a means of transport. Early projects included "Machine Mending of Overalls," "Mittens from Old Stockings," and "Candy Making."

Hillcrest — Hillcrest Club was organized with 16 members at the Lloyd Morris home on Sept. 24, 1940. Lessons included book reports, sewing projects, and window treatments, and projects included purchasing government stamps, sending boxes to sons of members in the armed forces, purchasing dishes for the Rectory auditorium, contributing recipes for a county cookbook, and sponsoring a white elephant sale with proceeds going to the Nebraska Children's Home.

Farm Fans — Eight members organized the Farm Fans Club in September of 1949. The club celebrated its 30th anniversary in September of 1979 with several former members invited.

Scattered Neighbors — The Scattered Neighbors Club of Winslow was organized in January 1954 in the home of Mrs. Gene Behmer.

Klick and Klatter — Klick and Klatter was organized in October 1954 with 14 members. The club flower is the yellow rose, the club colors are yellow and brown, and the club motto is "Learning By Doing." Members are active in attendance, in presenting lessons, and supporting county and civic projects. Annual events include an educational tour, guest day, and Christmas party.

Star — Star Club was organized in the fall of 1958. At the time of organization, many members had babies so meetings were held in the evenings. Meetings continue to be in the evenings.

Three M's — The Three M's Club (Merry Monday Mothers) was organized in October of 1971 under the leadership of Mrs. Robert Porter. The seven members were all mothers of young children, and meetings were set at 8:30 p.m. after the children were put to bed. Projects include making favors for the local hospital. The club has studied major issues and concerns at local, state and national levels, and some members have expressed their concerns and opinions through letter writing campaigns to political leaders.

We Few — Ten women organized the We Few Club in January 1974. Activities have included visiting the House of Creations at Bancroft, and the Wayne State College Planetarium. Family gatherings are held each summer and at Christmas time.

Love 'N' Learn — The newest home extension club in Wayne County, Love 'N' Learn, was organized in February 1985 in the home of Shirley Fletcher. The club meets the fourth Thursday of each month.

Histories were not available from the Happy Homemakers, Monday, Mrs. and Town and Country Home Extension Clubs.

PRESENTLY, THERE are approximately 160 women involved in home extension club work in Wayne County.

Through the years, home extension club lessons have changed with the times to include all of the demanding roles of today's homemakers.

"Home extension clubs offer something for everyone," stressed County Home Extension Agent Mary Temme, "including working women."

"A big difference in home extension clubs today is that we have to work harder to encourage young women to join," adds Mrs. Jordan.

"That's sad, because young women just starting out are the ones who need the type of information we have to offer."

"Everyone can benefit from learning how to improve their listening skills, or how to obtain a credit history."

"I think the biggest advantage of joining a home extension club, other than the lessons, is the fellowship," adds Diane Glassmeyer, 1985 county council chairman.

"There are a variety of ages in the club I belong to and we're more like a large family sharing our knowledge with each other."

SERVING WITH Mrs. Glassmeyer on the Wayne County Home Extension Council during 1985 are Dorothy Grone, Wayne, chairman-elect; Lolamaye Langenberg, Hoskins, vice chairman; Eleanor Wittler, Hoskins, secretary; Phyllis Rahn, Wayne, treasurer; Kate Lutz, Wayne, Wayne-Carroll group chairman; Jeanie Maritz, Hoskins, Winslow-Hoskins group chairman; Barb Greve, Wakefield, citizenship leader; Becky Wilson, Wayne, cultural arts leader; Ellen Heinemann, Wakefield, family life leader; Joyce Niemann, Carroll, health and safety leader.

Also, Kathy Rutenbeck, Wayne, county fair superintendent; Dolores Felt, Wakefield, assistant superintendent; Lindy Anderson, Randolph, Class H, foods superintendent; Lois Krueger, Winslow, Class H, assistant superintendent; Pauline Lutz, Wayne, Class K, needlework superintendent; TVA Robinson, Hoskins, Class L, vegetable and fruit superintendent; and Vernell Krueger, Winslow, Class L, assistant superintendent.

CLUB OFFICERS during 1985 are: Donna Krueger, Randolph, A-Teen Club; Lois Nuernberger, Wakefield, Farm Fans; Dorothy Grone, Wayne, Happy Homemakers; Lolamaye Langenberg, Hoskins, Highland; Emma Eckert, Wayne, Hillcrest; Joyce Niemann, Carroll, Klick and Klatter; Connie Upton, Wayne, Monday Mrs.; Patty Deck, Winslow, Scattered Neighbors; Virginia Leonard, Wakefield, Serve All; Joann Owens, Carroll; Star; Jocell Bull, Wayne; Three M's; Deanna Wittler, Randolph, Town & Country; Mary Nichols, Wayne, We Few; and Shirley Fletcher, Wayne, Love 'N' Learn.

Wayne State baseball opens in District 11 tournament

The Wayne State Wildcats are scheduled to faceoff with Bellevue College in the opening round of the NAIA District 11 baseball tournament today (Thursday) in Kearney.

The tourney features the teams with the four best records in the district, Kearney State, Wayne State, Bellevue College and Dana College. The double elimination tournament is scheduled to run through Saturday. WSC will take a 24-23 mark into the games following a pair of regular season-ending losses to Briar Cliff College on Saturday afternoon. The Chargers nipped the Wildcats in the first game 5-4 and took the nightcap by a 15-6 margin.

In the opening game, Wayne State collected 10 hits including a double but couldn't get past Briar Cliff in their final at-bat. Hitting for WSC saw senior Gregg Cruickshank go 2 for 3 with a pair of RBI's, while teammate Jeff Scharn was 2 for three with one RBI and Dale Clayton cracked out an RBI single.

Kevin Hoffart took the pitching loss for the Wildcats, coming in during the sixth inning after starting hurler Mark Priegnitz was hit by a line drive on his pitching arm. The WSC staff gave up seven hits and five walks in the loss. Priegnitz was sidelined for the remainder of the day and is questionable in the upcoming district games.

In the nightcap Wayne State fell to a Briar Cliff scoring charge in a 15-8 contest.

The Wildcats again logged 10 hits, including a second-inning home run by senior Pete Saccone, a triple by third baseman Mike Hoffart in the third inning and double by Jeff Scharn and Pat Salerno.

Jeff Rothrock took the loss on the mound for WSC in the game.

Aggers to head WSC cage program

Wayne State College Athletic Director Ron Jones announced yesterday (Wednesday) that Steve Aggers will be the new men's basketball coach for the Wildcats.

"Out of the entire search process, Aggers was the top candidate, we had in terms of experience, record and quality of individual," Jones said.

Aggers, 36, spent the previous six years as head basketball coach at the College of Great Falls, Mont., where he compiled a record of 121-53. Great Falls dropped all of its athletic programs at the end of the 1984-85 season due to financial reasons.

"AT THE CLOSE of the original search, I personally contacted Coach Aggers to encourage him to apply for the job at WSC. Approximately one week following that contact, the College of Great Falls decided to drop its athletic programs," said Jones.

While at Great Falls, Aggers led the Argonauts to three Frontier Conference championships and was twice named the Frontier Conference Coach of the Year. Entering the 1984-85 season, he was ranked 18th on the NAIA list for winning percentage among active coaches with five or more years of experience.

Aggers, a native of Laramie,

Wyo., has many ties to Nebraska. He spent his first two years of college at North Platte Junior College before getting his undergraduate degree in physical education from Chadron State College. He received his master's degree in secondary education from the University of Nebraska at Omaha in 1973. While at UNO, he was on the basketball coaching staff under Bob Hanson, and was the head freshman coach in 1973.

After spending a year as an assistant coach at Sheridan College, Sheridan, Wyo., Aggers took the head coaching job at Mid-Plains Community College in North Platte. At Mid-Plains, formerly North Platte Junior College, he had a record of 76-48 in four years. From there he went to the University of Wyoming as an assistant for a year before taking the reins at Great Falls.

"AGGERS IS KNOWN AS an energetic and enthusiastic leader and an outstanding motivator. His teams play an entertaining, up-tempo style offense and an aggressive pressure defense, stressing the team approach," Jones said.

"I'm extremely enthusiastic about the future of Wayne State basketball. Steve Aggers represents the type of individual that is committed and dedicated to building a strong basketball program with an emphasis on quality scholar athletes and the team concept and philosophy," Jones said.

Aggers and his wife, Frankie, have a daughter, Keely, age four, and a son, Erin, nine.

Awaiting at-large berth

WSC drops out of district tourney with pair of losses

A pair of disappointing losses to Kearney State and St. Mary's of Omaha on Saturday ended the Wayne State Lady Wildcats' chance at the NAIA District 11 softball crown.

After handily winning the opening two games in the eight-team on Friday, the Lady Wildcats dropped a 7-6 decision to rival Kearney State and a 16-13 loss to St. Mary's to end their play in the double-elimination tourney.

The 30-20 Wayne State squad will now have to wait until this weekend to find out if their season will continue. Head Coach Marilyn Strate said that her team has a possible chance at an at-large berth in the NAIA National Softball Tournament, which will be held May 16-18 in Indianapolis, Ind. She added that she expects to hear by Sunday on the outcome of the WSC softball season.

IT TOOK KSC an extra inning to win a 7-6 squeaker on Saturday morning. Trailing by one run in the bottom of the seventh, shortstop Michelle Blomberg rapped out a base hit with two outs and scored later on a fielder's choice single by Kristy Govig.

The Lady Lopers came up with two runs in the top of the eighth, inning, on a single and homerun with two outs gone. Mary Lingelbach crossed the plate for Wayne in the bottom of the inning after cracking out a double, but the Lady Wildcat rally was stalled before another runner could reach base.

Pitcher Laurie Owens was tabbed with the loss, allowing 12 hits, and walk and striking out five Kearney batters.

Dropping down into the lowest bracket, Wayne State faced the College of St. Mary's and came out on the short end of a hitting dual, 16-13. The Lady Wildcats led 4-1 going in to the bottom of the third inning, where St. Mary's exploded for seven runs to take control of the game. WSC came back to score four runs each in the top of the fourth and seventh innings, but fell short in their rally.

Owens pitched the first two innings of the game before being relieved by Mary Lingelbach. Together the two gave up 22 hits and no walks, and striking out one batter.

WSC proved to be hard-hitting in the loss, with 21 hits which included homeruns by Teresa Durbala and Tomaszewicz, a triple by Durbala, and a double by Mary Jean Guenther.

Wayne County Old Settlers

by Lee Koch

The Wayne County Old Settlers Association was formed and held its first reunion on August 15th, 1901 at Bressler Grove 1 mile north and 1 mile west of Wayne.

Families from all parts of the county took a day off and traveled on foot, by horseback and buggy to attend the celebration. Picnic baskets full of goodies to be shared with family and friends were packed before leaving home. Evidently a good time was had by all as the announcement was made that this would become an annual event to be held each year.

During the ensuing years the Old Settlers Picnic was held at various locations including the County Court House lawn, the J. R. Manning farm near Carroll and the John Grimsey farm northeast of Wayne. The last Old Settlers Picnic held in Wayne was on August 13th, 1914 with the decision being made then that in the future the celebration would be held in Winside.

An inaugural festival for this town was August 25th, 1915 at Walnut Grove located two miles north of Winside and remained there until being moved to town in 1918. In all probability there was little if any change in the celebration throughout the years 1901 through 1918.

Pure speculation leads one to believe that the original purpose of the Old Settlers Picnic was to allow friends, neighbors and relatives a yearly chance to meet in a central location for the exchange of news, gossip, recipes, introduce new family members — be they newborn babes or newly acquired sons and daughters-in-law — and to form new friendships while renewing old acquaintanceships.

It was also a chance for Mom to clean the cellar of last years canned fruits, vegetables, jams and jellies, since the new crop was canned or would be shortly, giving her a chance to gracefully give them to her son or daughter who had married that no gooder completely across the county who couldn't boil water without burning it or couldn't make a living for himself little lone a wife and children.

She also had the opportunity of cleaning out the closets and chests of hand me down only slightly worn clothing which with a little mending would be just like new and last for years to come. Meanwhile Dad had a chance to bring his mule along with the perfect confirmation and muscle tone to pull a joker cultivator, to the top of Apex hill but upon being hitched up to the plow for some reason known only to mules.

Dad's hopes were that at the Old Settlers Picnic he would run into someone else, not quite so knowledgeable about horses and mules, who had the county's best work horse so a swap could be made. The horsetrader coming out on top as a rule was in the eyes of the beholder with both parties feeling they had suckered the other guy.

Many legitimate trades were undoubtedly made at the picnic and the useful exchange of information led to the further development of Wayne County.

Boat project

SIXTH GRADERS from Wayne Middle School are involved in a classroom project that is part of the "Voyage of Mimi," a program which combines the subjects of science and math. The students built boats out of various substances, learning what the boats are used for, different parts of the boat and how to navigate using compasses. The course also deals with ocean life and the study of whales. Mathematics skills are used in deciding dimensions and depth of the ocean. Sixty students are participating in the program. Deanna Schlus (at left) received the most votes for the top boat of all models.

Weed a risk in drilled soybeans

Weeds are one of the major points to consider when deciding on drilling versus row planting of soybeans.

New growers or growers unfamiliar with the crop — or persons farming an unfamiliar field — should think twice. An unanticipated weed problem can spell disaster.

A few weeds can easily "eat up" any advantage which may be possible from narrow rows. Be sure the weed pressure isn't severe and that the herbicide treatment will handle the kinds of weeds present.

The first four weeks after planting are critical for weed control. After that period, the soybeans will begin dominating the soil and the crop will compete well with many common weeds. This means the herbicide treatment must perform.

Most situations will require herbicide combination or overlay treatments. Use a grass control and a broadleaved herbicide for the weeds present.

These treatments will give good control of weeds like foxtail, pigweed, kochia, lambquarters and mustard. Velvetleaf and sunflowers require special treatments. If these weeds are severe, better think again.

Perennials like field bindweed or common milkweed are nearly impossible to handle if they're widespread. Cultivation in row-planted soybeans will help some. Also, volunteer corn can be extra tough; the entire field will have to be rogued.

If you're going to solid beans be sure and till just before planting. Don't give the weeds a head start on the soybean and the herbicide.

Preemergence herbicides require rain for activation — rotary hoeing or harrowing before emergence will help. Use the full rates for your soil to have a good effect on the weeds.

For some weeds or for weeds that emerge early in the crop, there's no rescue herbicide treatment.

Yield potential of drilled soybeans

Generally speaking, yield response to drilled soybeans compared to 30 inch row has not been great according to experiments at Northeast Research Center. Response in states to the east of Nebraska has shown an increase of 10-15% in yield. Irrigated soybeans are more likely to respond to being drilled than would dryland beans.

Considering the possibility of a weed problem it's doubtful that most years in Northeast Nebraska that it would pay to drill dryland soybeans in 8 or 10 inch rows.

Squeezing more milk from dairy pastures

Dairy producers can do a number of things to improve the yields and the quality of their pastures, according to Foster Owen, extension dairyman at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Owen said a number of steps can be taken to maximize pasture yields.

"Divide the pasture into three or four smaller lots and rotate the cows among these at one to two week intervals, or the pasture may be strip grazed," he said.

Top and bottom grazing is another method to increase yields. This involves the top part of the forage with high producing cows, and the lower quality forage with lower producing cows.

Pasture-feeding should be supplemented with other feeds.

"Providing long-stem hay to pastured cows — free-choice feeding, or pitching out 2 to 5 pounds of hay per head daily is a good idea," Owen said.

PASTURE QUALITY

Varies greatly, which affects the amount of protein needed in the grain ration.

"In addition, the quality of feed from pasturing may fluctuate widely unless both the pasture and its use are continually and carefully managed."

"Dairyman should always make sure the mineral needs are included in the grain mix or, if not, they should be fed free-choice," Owen said.

The amount of grain cows need will vary also, according to Owen: "While grazing in ordinary pasture a cow may produce about 20 pounds of milk without any supplemental feed. Any milk beyond that, however, will require me grain."

For successful pasture use the dairy producers must be alert to reports made by his cows — in terms of milk yield and milk quality — and promptly make necessary adjustments for good performance.

Helpful hints on growing tomatoes

by Don C. Spitze

Tomatoes are a very popular vegetable in the home garden. But growing top quality tomatoes requires a certain amount of skill. It is hoped that this article will increase this skill.

Ground Preparation

Pick a site that is well drained and fully exposed to the sun. It's best to till the soil in the fall but you may also do it in the spring. Don't work the ground when it is wet.

Fertilizer

The wrong kind and amount of fertilizer can cause problems. Apply a fertilizer that has at least twice as much phosphate as nitrogen. Remember the first number of a fertilizer analysis is the ratio of nitrogen; the second number is ratio of phosphate; the third number is ratio of potash.

A fertilizer analysis of 5-10-5 indicates that there is 5 parts of nitrogen for each 10 parts of phosphate for each 5 parts of potash. Excess nitrogen can cause prolific plant growth and little fruit. The amount of potash is not important since our soils contain large amount of this nutrient. Incidentally, a soil test will indicate the amount of phosphate and potash in the soil but not nitrogen.

Apply 2 lbs. of a fertilizer such as 5-10-10 (remember that ratio of two parts phosphate to one part nitrogen). Work well into the soil before planting. A cup of starter fertilizer solution can be poured around a newly transplanted seedling to help stimulate growth. Mix the starter solution according to directions on the container.

When the first fruit is about the size of a half dollar, scatter one teaspoon of 5-10-5 fertilizer uniformly around the plant 8 to 10 inches from the stem. Mix the fertilizer into the top 1/2 inch of soil and water thoroughly. Repeat once or twice a month.

Helpful Hint—

Using starter solution does not increase total yield of tomatoes but you will have earlier tomatoes.

Purchasing Transplants

Select transplants that are sturdy, short and compact. They should be dark green in color and have stems about the size of a pencil.

Transplants may be purchased in flats or individual containers. Those in containers are transplanted with the least amount of shock and are usually worth the extra money.

Set the plants slightly deeper in the soil outdoors than they were grown in the container. If the plants are tall, you can set them as deep as second set of true leaves. If plants are in peat pots, free down the peat on one side of the container. Press the soil firmly around the plant so that a slight depression is left to hold water. Water immediately.

Helpful Hint—

Recent research indicates that planting tomatoes the depth of the first true leaf will increase production over planting them only slightly deeper than original planting.

Varieties

There are many good varieties of tomatoes available. It is a good idea to plant tursarium and verticillium will resistant tomatoes. Some excellent varieties that have this will resistance include: Betty Boy, Jet Star, President, Supersonic and Celebrity. A popular variety that does not have this will resistance is Super Sioux. If the above varieties aren't available check with your nursery to see which will resistant varieties they have.

Helpful Hint—

Jet Star is an excellent producer and very popular. Better Boy is a very consistent producer for the entire season. Flora America, an All-American selection does not do well in Nebraska.

Helpful Hint—

One of the easiest to grow types of tomatoes are the salad types such as Small Fry, Presto and Sweet 100, although many people don't like their flavor as well as the standard tomatoes.

Helpful Hint—

Like to make your own tomato sauce, juice and ketchup? If you do, try the prolific Improved Roma variety.

Helpful Hint—

Watering

Tomatoes require, on an average, about one inch of water each week. Mulching will reduce the amount of moisture needed. Soak once per week but do not sprinkle daily. If possible, do not use a watering system that wets the leaves as this promotes disease. If you must use a sprinkler system, water in the morning so the sun will quickly evaporate any moisture on the leaves.

tomatoes don't have less acid than red varieties. They simply have more sugar which masks the acid taste.

Problems

Disease can be a problem but there are several things you can do to reduce disease problems.

I've already mentioned planting will resistant varieties and avoid wetting the leaves when watering (or sprinkling early in the day). Keep a constant supply of moisture; don't over or under water. Use mulch to help keep a constant supply of moisture available. Rotate tomatoes to a plot where tomatoes weren't grown last year.

Obtain a copy of Will Diseases of Tomatoes (G81-569) and Vegetable Disease Control Guide (G74-309) from the Extension Office which explains disease control in much greater detail.

Helpful Hint—

Just because a tomato variety is labeled will resistant doesn't mean the tomatoes won't get the disease. It just means that they are less likely to get the disease than non will resistant varieties.

There are several different insects that attack tomatoes so get the bulletin Insect Control Recommendations for Vegetables in the Home Garden from the Extension Office.

If you follow these directions and with a little luck you should have lots of tomatoes for your kitchen this summer.

Watering

Tomatoes require, on an average, about one inch of water each week. Mulching will reduce the amount of moisture needed. Soak once per week but do not sprinkle daily. If possible, do not use a watering system that wets the leaves as this promotes disease. ### 4-H Sheep Weigh In

All Wayne County 4-H market lambs will be weighed and shorn Saturday, May 11, at the Wayne County Fairgrounds starting at 9:00 a.m. announced Don C. Spitze, Wayne County Extension Agent.

Shearing the lambs at this time gives the sheep a chance to be a little cooler and gain better during the hot days of summer says Spitze. All market sheep that are sheared will automatically be entered in the rate of gain contest at the Wayne County Fair August 8-11.

Questions answered on modifying no-till planters

Several farmers have been asking questions about modifying planters for no-till planting.

The most common modification, according to Elbert Dickey and Paul Jasa, UNL Extension Engineers, is to simply mount a coupler in front of each seed furrow opener. The coupler cuts plant residue and tills a narrow strip. This enables the seed furrow opener to penetrate to the desired depth and drop the seed.

Also, they point out that soil may be harder and rougher with no-till than if the seedbed is tilled. Therefore extra weight may need to be added to force the coupler, as well as other soil-engaging parts, into the ground.

Some planter frames may not be strong enough to handle the added weight and stress. Therefore, contact the manufacturer to find out if the conventional planter can handle the stress before making the adaptations.

If an added coupler is needed on the planter there are three main types to choose from — fluted, rippled and smooth. Fluted couplers vary in width from about 1/2 inches to 3 inches and usually operate about 1/2 inch below the planting depth. Rippled couplers are narrower — about 1 inch wide — so they disturb a smaller strip of soil. A smooth coupler provides minimum soil disturbance.

Which is the best coupler to use? That depends primarily on the soil condition at planting time. For example, wide fluted couplers would not work well in wet conditions because they would throw too much soil out of the row — soil that is needed to cover the seed. This is a particular problem at faster planting speeds; the specialists say.

Rippled couplers cut through residue well and do not require as much weight for penetration as a fluted coupler. A smooth coupler or a rippled coupler with a smooth edge can be reshaped to aid in cutting residue. The trend, say the agricultural engineers, has been toward the narrower or rippled couplers.

In addition to couplers, you need to consider seed furrow openers, depth control devices, and seed covering mechanisms when adapting a planter. Double disk seed furrow openers are more effective in no-till planting than runner openers. Residue tends to hang up on runner openers and is pushed into the seed furrow.

To control seed placement depth, newer planters have gauge wheels on each side of the double disk seed furrow openers. With such planters, the gauge wheels or double disk opener do not require modification for no-till.

Inverted disks, angled closing wheels, and other devices usually do a good job of covering the seed even in no-till situations.

the farmer's wife

by pat malarkey

I took a chance and put away our winter clothes this weekend. When we've had two nice days in a row, we wonder how we could ever live anywhere but in Nebraska.

The sky is so blue, the sun so bright, the breeze so gentle; the lilacs so showy in rows of purple and white. I rode with the Big Farmer to check cows one evening. (He really wanted someone to open and shut gates.) When they are munching contentedly on grass, calves at side, you can almost forget the world involved.

The basement has dried out, so I don't mind the noise of the frogs. We've had rhubarb pie, and I'm looking for an asparagus patch.

There are lots of these things we take for granted in Nebraska. Did you see the article about Nebraskans in New York who got together a couple of weeks ago to eat delicacies flown in from Nebraska? They can't even buy Dorothy Lynch salad dressing there, let alone kolaches, runzas and Valentino's pizza. What a feast that must have been.

My biological clock is finally adjusting to Daylight Savings Time. The first week I could not stay awake past 10 o'clock. I have my annual sunburn from last Saturday's conference track meet.

WE BANK AT "the friendly small bank." My friend there showed a group of little people from a preschool one day. To illustrate how a checking account works, she marked jars with their dad's names and put cash in them.

"Now," she said, "when your dad writes a check, we take money out of his jar." And she took some of the cash out of the jars.

She wonders if the teacher has had experience with overdrafts because she kept saying to him, "and when the jar is empty, you can't write any more checks."

Our congregation has been without a pastor for a year. We've been anxiously waiting for word that we would have our vacancy filled with someone from the graduating classes at the seminaries.

One of these graduates called the home of our head elder last Saturday morning and asked for the man of the house. His wife thought he was "another of those siding salesmen" and almost hung up on him!

WE'VE LOST several friends quite suddenly (one in a tragic accident) the past few weeks. In memory of these men, and as a reminder for all of us about priorities, I'd like to share the following:

"That man is a success who has lived well, laughed often and loved much;

who has filled his niche and accomplished his task; who leaves the world better than he found it; whether by an improved poppy, a perfect poem or a rescued soul;

who never lacked appreciation of earth's beauty or failed to express it; who looked for the best in others and gave the best he had."

We'll be observing Hospital Week and Soil Conservation Week at our house May 12-18, even though both seem to be in jeopardy.

In fact, I'm planning to run (or walk or crawl) in the hospital's two-mile fun run on Monday. I have to earn my T-Shirt. Hope I can still move on Tuesday.

Kill triazine-resistant pigweed in corn.

When your weed problems in reduced-tillage corn include triazine-resistant species, you need Banvel® herbicide. Banvel effectively knocks out triazine-resistant broadleaves like pigweed, as well as sunflower, cocklebur and lambsquarter. Use one pint of Banvel when corn is spike-to-five. You'll get effective control until corn canopies. For triazine-resistant broadleaves, see your herbicide supplier for the best control - Banvel herbicide.

LIFESTYLE

That word wasn't used much 50 years ago, especially on the farm. Life was hard; there was little time for "style."

You milked by hand... battled drought to raise a crop... canned in the intolerably hot kitchen in the heat of summer... chopped kindling and carried wood and water several times a day... and then, there was the outhouse.

Rural electrification changed all of that.

Milking machines, irrigation, refrigeration, light and power, indoor plumbing... and all because of a slender wire that transformed life in the countryside.

The commitment of 50 years ago was to improve the quality of life for rural people. Still is. Consumer-owned rural electric systems like ours continue to strive to improve rural living through rural electrification... for a better lifestyle.

It may be more economical than your current policy that doesn't include guaranteed home replacement. THINGS JANICE ELLIS CAN'T KEEP QUIET ABOUT

The fast buck versus the slow dough.

Quoting pie-in-the-sky returns is a game Northwestern Mutual Life doesn't play. When an insurance company starts projecting hot figures, look at its track record. If you look at ours, you'll see that Northwestern Mutual has increased its dividend scale for the twenty-fifth year since 1952. Imagine—actually lowering the cost of our life insurance.

How can we do it? With a portfolio which includes high quality/high yield inflation sensitive investments that work better for you over the long haul. It's a tough act to follow — that keeps getting tougher.
