A PICKUP, driven by Kirk Hochstein of Wayne, flipped over and came to rest on its side, sustaining over $1,500 in damages following a collision at the intersection of West 7th and Lincoln. Gale Bathke was driving her vehicle southbound on Lincoln Street, came to a stop and entered the intersection, hitting Hochstein's vehicle.

A smaller town investment that pays

by Chuck Hackenmiller

During difficult economic times which small ag-oriented communities are facing, one can surmise that people take their personal finances very seriously.

This is an opportune time for Edward D. Jones and Co., a nationwide investment firm which takes pride in its approach to reach out with financial advice to people in smaller communities.

Wayne's Edward D. Jones and Co. office is represented by Paula Pflueger. Her father, Earl Mitchell, represents the same firm in Norfolk with a partner, John Philpott.

On Friday, during the investment firm's open house, Pflueger was joined by general partners Jack Phelan from the company's home office in St. Louis and Jim McKenzie, another general partner from Kearney, in charge of the regional area.

Pflueger serves what the company calls "conservative investors" with government guaranteed bonds, insured tax-free bonds, corporate bonds, CD's (FDIC or FSIC insured), IRAs, stocks, mutual funds, tax-deferred annuities, tax shelter (real estate/oil and gas), and financial and estate planning.

McKenzie said times in the investment world are challenging. "People have to concentrate more on financial matters. People want to know what the changes are," he said.

PFLUEGER said individuals are becoming aware of diversity — not investing their finances in only farm equipment. "They are learning not to put all the eggs in one basket," she said.

Phelan said that prior to the 1970's people did not buy government guaranteed bonds or tax free bond simply because the interest on the times were too low. Those numbers changed drastically.

Today investments in government guaranteed bonds, insured tax free bonds and insured CD's seem to be the most requested investment advice offered by Pflueger.

She has been around the Norfolk area since childhood and is familiar with area towns. "Right now there is a need for conservative investments that we offer right here in Wayne," she said.

There are 23 other cities in Nebraska with Edward D. Jones and Co. members of the New York Stock Exchange. A majority of them are in the population range of a city of 1,000 to populated cities up to 5,000 or more.

Since 1955, Edward D. (Ted) Jones has promoted the company in communities other than large cities. In terms of office locations, the firm ranks second only to Merrill Lynch. They have 82 offices in 35 states, primarily in the Midwest, according to Phelan.

Before opening an office in Wayne, Pflueger started about this time last year meeting with 1,000 people — farmers, businessmen, senior citizens and others.

"The purpose of this was to introduce myself and show the conservative philosophy we have," she said. "Each individual has their own goals and objectives and we offer a wide variety of investments," she added.

SHE OPENED her Wayne office in October and scheduled her open house last Friday because she thought "It was a good time to have an open house and thank the clients for their business."

For Timpfe building site

Changes made on past commitments

Wayne City Council, Wayne County Board of Commissioners and members of city boards, organizations and utility suppliers met in emergency session at city hall Thursday afternoon to discuss the site development cost estimate of the Timpfe Industrial Site.

City Administrator Phil Kloster, City Attorney Kem Swarts and Wayne Industries, President John Dorsey had been in Lincoln prior to Thursday, working with the Nebraska Department of Economic Development in ironing out grant eligibility details and other aspects of the project financing.

In the next three to four days, the city of Wayne needs to sign a multitude of contracts," Kloster told those at the emergency meeting.

There have been some changes in the project, Kloster said, "in what was originally proposed and what was originally planned as far as funding."

First, the city council will meet at 8 a.m. on July 3 to conduct a public hearing and to consider authorizing the issuance by the city of Wayne an amount not to exceed $8.5 million of its Nebraska Industrial Development Revenue Bonds to Timpfe Industries, Inc.

Timpfe, which has moved its location further north of the originally planned site, has increased its share of the project cost from $6 million to $8.5 million. It is hoped, Kloster said, that the bond issue be signed by July 9.

The city, county, Wayne Industries, utility companies and other organizations which made an original total commitment of $1,591,623 toward the project will find the commitments have been revised.

Commitments made by the local entities included site grading and drainage costs, installation of sanitary sewer and water service, electrical system, and gas service, site access and parking, fencing and county road paving on the Timpfe project site.

It was originally stated that the commitment for site grading would be $232,240 for excavation, engineering and administrative, legal and contingencies.

It was the intention to recover this cost through in-kind — the use of equipment and manpower from the county — and the expenses would be reimbursed.

However, Timpfe did not accept having the city or the council as the party doing the grading work because "they [Timpfe] had no recourse to take if the ground didn't settle right."

Instead of the in-kind, it was requested that a cash amount of $188,000 be contributed for the grading. That amount is not grant eligible.

"We lose the in-kind, but we do provide Timpfe with recourse," Kloster said. The contribution also eliminates the liability factor of the city and county.

BECAUSE OF the new location of the facility, the site drainage commitment has grown from $64,349 to $96,994.

The sanitary sewer cost commitment has also risen because of added manholes and a change in the plant location. That commitment increased from $8,400 to $17,969.

It was intended that the local commitments carry the site access and parking cost commitment at $811,724. However, it was later revised that Timpfe would bear the $811,724 amount for materials and labor, engineering and administrative, legal and contingency costs, and $39,305 of non grant eligible money would be spent as local commitment to the development site for gravel and cement work.

Fencing was removed from the local commitment and the county road paving to the Industrial site jumped in estimated cost from $275,350 to $335,000.

The original total local commitment cost estimate of the project was $1,591,623. Of that amount, $795,811 was grant eligible and it was anticipated that the maximum Department of Economic Development grant would be $500,000.

Wayne gets block grant

by Chuck Hackenmiller

Governor Bob Kerrey's office and District 17 Senator Gerald Conway will announce on Monday that a $1.4 million Community Development Block Grant has been awarded to the city of Wayne from the Nebraska Department of Economic Development.

The grant, made possible by federal funds available to the state of Nebraska through the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program, will be used to assist the Timpfe company in purchasing equipment, machinery and providing job training.

The Wayne plant will create approximately 150 to 200 full-time jobs. "We are excited and pleased to have Timpfe in Wayne," Senator Conway said. "A project of this magnitude will have a significant positive economic effect on the entire area."

Of the total grant amount, $480,000 will be used in conjunction with Job Training Partnership Act funds from the Department of Labor, and Industrial Development Training Funds from the Department of Economic Development to fund a job training program for new Timpfe employees.

Other financing sources include Industrial Revenue Bonds issued through the city of Wayne.

"CDBG funds are proving to be an important financing incentive for attracting new businesses into Nebraska," said Don Dworak, director of the Department of Economic Development.

Fleer receives degree in forestry

Tom Fleer, son of Howard and Sharon Fleer of Wayne, graduated with a bachelor of science degree in forestry during commencement ceremonies June 9 at the University of Montana in Missoula.

Family and friends attending the graduation included Howard and Sharon Fleer, Erwin and Ruth Fleer, Emil and Meta Westerman, Chuck and Tammy Thomas, and Jeff and Joan Sperry, all of Wayne; Jodi and Michael Niemann of South Sioux City; and Herb Westerman of Hillsboro, Ore.

Farm and business rally

An economic crisis is affecting middle America and indications are that the trend will continue. Our agricultural community is affected the most severely at this time. However, small business is beginning to feel the squeeze as well as our working labor force. In order to draw this problem to the attention of all concerned there has been an alliance drawn between labor, small business, veterans, farm organizations and religious leaders.

On June 29 at 1:30 p.m. a "Time to Care" rally will be held in Fremont at Christensen Field. The program will start at 1:30 and end at 3:30 p.m. If we are going to maintain our economic position in society," said Tim Wrage, chairman of the Farm Crisis Committee, "we must all speak out in a unified voice."

Farmland Awards Scholarships

Farmland Industries scholarships valued at $500 each were awarded to four University of Nebraska-Lincoln College of Agriculture students for the 1985-'86 academic year. Among the area scholarship receivers was Gregory M. Lackas of Carroll.

Lackas, 20, is a junior mechanical agriculture and agricultural education major. He is a member of the UNL Mechanized Agriculture Club and is also the recipient of the Norfolk Feed Mills, Stuart and Novolny scholarships. Lackas has received the State Future Farmers of America award and the DeKalb award. He plans to be a vocational agricultural teacher or work in the field of mechanized agriculture. Lackas is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kearney Lackas of Carroll.

Daum graduates

Joan Kathryn Daum graduated from the Lincoln School of Commerce on May 17, 1985 with a medical secretarial diploma and a professional secretarial associate degree of applied science. The commencement was held at the Lincoln High School.

Joan is the daughter of Mary and Leon Daum.

Doane Dean's List

Doane College Registrar Delbert King has announced the Dean's List for the 1985 spring semester. To be eligible for this honor, a student must be full-time, carrying 12 or more graded academic credits, and achieve a 3.4 grade point average. (A equals 4.0).

Arses students qualifying were Dilynne Jensen of Wakefield, sophomore, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Paul Byers; Jill Mbsley, sophomore daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Mosley, and Trisha Willers freshman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Willers.

Emerson road work

The Nebraska Highway Commission and the Nebraska Department of Roads will hold a public hearing on June 26 on the design of the proposed removal of a viaduct and the improvement of a portion of Nebraska Highway 9 between Mill Street and Warnock Street in Emerson.

The hearing is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at the Emerson Fire Hall.

In addition to the hearing, those interested are invited to stop in at the Fire Hall any time between 3-5 p.m. on June 26 for an informal discussion of the project.

Construction features include removing the viaduct over abandoned railroad right of way and constructing a new 42-foot wide roadway. In addition, that section of Front Street which parallels Highway 9 will be closed and direct access to the highway will be provided.

Front Street will be extended east of Highway 9 for one block to Dakota Street. Sidewalks will be built on both sides of Highway 9 and new street lighting will be built.

Additional right of way will be required, including the second and third houses on the east side of Highway 9, just north of Mill Street.

Preliminary project plans are available for inspection at the DOR's Field Office at Wayne, and at the DOR's District Office at 408 North 13th Street in Norfolk.

NOW THE LOCAL commitment project cost has dipped to $1,057,859 — making $830,554 grant eligible with the maximum grant allowable by the Department of Economic Development reaching $420,000.

Included in that project cost total would be the extension of 14th Street, which the state has accepted as a fundable program at a cost that is grant eligible of $195,000.

City officials believe that the revised commitments will yield an additional $117,000 in costs to the city.

Kloster said the taxpayers' utility rates will not go up and the city is not planning any additional tax askings from our standpoint."

The increase would be through bonded indebtedness or from reserves which the city currently has on hand.

The parties involved in making the local commitments must now decide how the $420,000 of grant money will be split equitably, according to Kloster.

Graders which were working earlier this week at the Timpte manufacturing plant have stopped work presently. Contracts need to be signed so that the graders can be moving again by Tuesday, June 18, Kloster mentioned.

Wayne and with the Edward D. Jones and Co. "Revenues for the first five months are up 20 percent," Phelan said.

"Establishing an office in Wayne was not done with the stipulation that it won't work," said McKenzie. The community is screened vigorously, he said.

Phlueger, he mentioned, was in the class of 20 individuals and she ranked in the top of the class.

The company, as the only New York Stock Exchange firm in Wayne, does not deal in commodity futures, stock options and stays out of handling the business of promoting low-priced highly speculative stocks.

"Advising over the telephone is not the technique employed by the brokerage company. A lot of advice comes from personal visits with clients — in far shops, in conservation over a kitchen table. The company has access to immediate research and market analysis.

It is important to be a good listener, to listen to what investors want to do with their finances and help them fulfill their goal in a conservative fashion, according to Phlueger.

And that is why the investment firm exists — to allow investors to get the most of their hard-earned money.

Storm clouds gathering

Activists targeting farm animals

by Doug Gibson
It's a fact in Nebraska and around the nation that no segment of society has more concern for the well-being of livestock and poultry than the producers who raise them.

However, there may be storm clouds gathering for producers of livestock and poultry. Animal rightsists are targeting farm animals for their next assault according to five activists who were recently interviewed by AGENDA, an animal rights magazine.

Henry Spira, who has been active for a long time in coalition building, said: "It is a matter of record that 95 percent on animal suffering is in factory farming where more than four billion animals suffer from birth to death." He indicated a coalition think tank is currently developing strategies and tactics aimed at so-called factory farming.

Robert A. Brown, founder and president of Food Animal Concerns Trust (FACT) claims that factory farming is the number one humane problem of recent decades. The only beneficiaries of factory farming, according to Brown, are the drug, food and equipment suppliers that promote these methods.

Alex Hershaft and Melinda Marks are president and vice president, respectively, of the Farm Animal Reform Movement (FARM). Both are urging the reduction and eventual elimination of animals for food. According to Hershaft, "The most effective way to reduce the national consumption of animal products is to publicize its destructive impact on human health...."

The fifth activist, Elspeth Lambert of United Animal Defenders, feels more people are needed in the field to educate the public and push for appropriate legislation. She indicated that boycotts of uncooperative food chains are needed.

ACTIVISTS SUCH as Spira, Brown, Hershaft, Marks and Lambert won't change their views, so their effectiveness will depend on how successful they are in working together and generating public support.

Watch out for the Farm Animal Welfare Coalition (FAWC), according to a lead sentence in an AGENDA magazine article. The animal rights publication describes FAWC as an organization of factory farmers and agribusiness interest dedicated to putting out "pro-exploitation propaganda." Apparently a bounty was put out for information about FAWC. "It's obvious that more than just a few of the animal welfare organizations are well funded, according to Mobilization for Animals (MFA), an Ohio-based animal rights group. Financial records for nearly 100 animal welfare groups were examined, routine to FAWC according to the 1983 fund balances the top five included: Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, $43.7 million; North Shore Animal League (NY), $15.1 million; Animal Rescue League (Boston), $12.9

million; Humane Society of the United States (D.C.) $11.4 million; and Bide-A-Wee Home Association, $11 million. MFA listed 10 other organizations with fund balances more than $2 million each.

While the extremists of animal welfare/rights movement currently attract attention by breaking into research centers to free laboratory animals and damage property — livestock and poultry producers must remain vigilant to a possible threat. Groups like Farm Bureau and others who oppose legislative and regulatory actions which tend to prohibit good poultry and livestock husbandry practices and increase the cost to consumers may be in for big battles ahead.

Because of this threat from the animal welfare/rightists, ag groups must continue aggressive, comprehensive educational programs presenting facts about animal and poultry production to the general public and school children.

Therapists' contributions are recognized during National Physical Therapy Week

Physical therapists make an important contribution to the arthritis health care team, and the week of June 16-22 is an especially good time to acknowledge their role. This week has been designated National Physical Therapy Week, according to the Arthritis Foundation.

"Arthritis can gradually deteriorate joints, causing pain and limited mobility," said Dr. Jay G. Kenik, Chairman of the Medical & Scientific Committee of the Nebraska Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation. "A physical therapist's role in the ongoing management of arthritis is to teach people with arthritis how to keep joints and muscles as strong and useful as possible. The goal of the total treatment program for arthritis is to limit the damage from the disease as much as possible, and to help the person stay independent.

A physical therapist (PT) works with a physician to assess the severity of a person's arthritis, finding out which joints are affected and to what extent. He or she teaches the person joint protection and energy conservation techniques showing how to maintain the delicate balance between rest and activity. Splints may be necessary to protect affected joints from further damage and to keep them in proper alignment. The PT can custom-design these splints and give instructions on how and when to wear them.

PROPER EXERCISE is an important part of an arthritis treatment program, and the physical therapist recommends an individualized exercise routine to regain muscle strength and joint flexibility. He or she also demonstrates actual tasks of daily living with the person, such as ways of getting out of a bathtub or a chair that are less stressful to the joints. If assistive devices, such as canes or walkers are needed, the PT can teach the person correct usage of them.

"A physical therapist is a vital link in the arthritis health team," Dr. Kenik said. "For example, since the therapist is involved with a person who has arthritis on an ongoing basis, he or she may notice changes in the disease during the course of treatment. The PT can supply this information to the person's physician, who may then decide to alter the treatment plan."

Arthritis is a term which describes more than 100 different rheumatic diseases. It is America's number one crippling health problem. The arthritis health care team includes many different health professionals, including doctors, nurses, physical and occupational therapists, surgeons, pharmacists, and psychiatrists, to name only a few. For more information on arthritis and the health professionals who treat it, contact the Nebraska Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation, Call 1-800-642-5292 or write 2229 No. 91st Court, Omaha, NE 68134. # Changing course

The new farm bill the Senate will begin drafting in the Senate Agriculture Committee gives us the opportunity to change the nation's course.

The new farm bill should set as official public policy the use of our abundance of food to make life better for hundreds of millions of human beings at home and abroad. The new farm bill also will be shaping the chance for survival for tens of thousands of American farm families and tens of thousands of small businesses throughout rural America.

We have the supply, but our family food producers need better prices for their products so they can survive. Likewise, the hungry here and abroad need the food to survive. Our task is to arrange distribution of the supply to satisfy that demand. Therefore, the new farm bill will contain provisions for new trade expansion, utilizing our agricultural abundance to minimize costs and build a strong element in our foreign policy.

Like most Americans, I find it very hard to understand an "agricultural crisis" in which American farmers and ranchers are criticized for producing too much food when we still clearly live in a world in which hunger and malnourishment are the norm.

As recently as February of this year the Physician Task Force on Hunger in America completed its investigation of the extent of hunger and malnutrition in our country and reported that hunger in America is a public health epidemic. This independent body made up of prominent physicians estimates that at least 20 million U.S. citizens suffer from hunger and that hunger continues to grow.

Although my legislation is a comprehensive bill looking at a wide range of agricultural policy matters, the essence of the bill is in four approaches:

1. A section on food aid and trade seeks to expand the effectiveness of American food aid abroad while also promoting U.S. trade interests.
2. American domestic food programs are strengthened, including the food stamp program. Special effort is made to improve access to these programs for the elderly and disabled.
3. Basic commodity programs are essentially retained as they now are with adjustments in target prices for inflation. This will help assure farmers of an adequate income to encourage their survival over time.
4. Conservation programs are improved and strengthened. The enormous strength of our abundant food supplies cannot be exaggerated.

Food surplus is like dollars in the bank. It's like a savings account, there to be drawn upon when needed. Only the shortsightedness and indifference of our policy-makers have prevented the United States from capitalizing on world trade development. Instead of paying huge sums for storage, we should use surplus commodities for immediate needs abroad as a foreign policy tool.

Back the Chamber

It seems that our town, and more importantly, our Chamber members, have taken a "what's the use?" attitude.

It gets tougher and tougher to get a good turnout at the various Chamber activities and committee meetings. Certain committees have met and decided to do nothing and others can't seem to get together.

I suppose there are legitimate reasons for this — maybe. It's just easier to let someone else do it. Maybe it's because we have scored big in bringing a major industry to town. Let's not become too comfortable because of this.

It is not the factory on the edge of town that makes the town. It is the individual business person up and down the main streets and shopping centers that makes the town. We have far too many locked doors in our business community where there should be activity.

Each of us as individuals and all of us as a Chamber of Commerce can correct this. Let's not consider a new business in town as competition, let's consider it as an accomplishment.

First of all, let's all join the Wayne Chamber of Commerce and then let's all stand behind the Chamber. This is the only vehicle available to us that works for all of us. The investment of time and funds necessary is small compared to the benefit we stand to receive.

Dale Stoltenberg, President Wayne Chamber of Commerce

Q. My husband is deceased. I have a will stating that upon my death, my property is to be divided equally among my children. Do I need to be any more specific than that?

A. If one of your children dies before I die, and I do not change my will from what is stated above, will that child's share be divided between my other children, or will that child's children inherit that share? Or, will that child's spouse inherit? As it is best to be more specific in the wording of your will to insure that your wishes are carried out after your death. Basically, the interpretation a court would make of your intent depends on the exact wording of the will. If you merely state that your property is to be divided "equally among my children" with no further clarification, it is likely that under existing Nebraska law, a deceased child's "issue" (meaning all lineal descendants of the deceased child) would take that share of your estate.

Therefore, if you do not change the wording of your will, it is entirely possible that a predeceasing child's share would be divided among his or her own children. However, even if the wording is unchanged, a predeceasing child's spouse will not be entitled to a share of your estate.

To summarize, it is best that you make the wording of the will more specific (for example, "to be divided equally among my children who survive me") to avoid ambiguity and effect your true wishes. It is also a good idea to have an attorney go over the wording of your will with you to be sure it is unambiguous and correctly states your intent.

Farm and business rally

An economic crisis is affecting middle America and indications are that trend will continue. Our agricultural community is affected the most severely at this time. However, small business is beginning to feel the squeeze as well as our working labor force. In order to draw this problem to the attention of all concerned there has been an alliance drawn between labor, small business, veterans, farm organizations and religious leaders.

On June 29 at 1:30 p.m. a "Time to Care" rally will be held in Fremont at Christensen Field. The program will start at 1:30 and end at 2:30 p.m. "If we are going to maintain our economic position in society," said Tim Wraga, chairman of the Farm-Crisis Committee, "we must all speak out in a unified voice."

Farmland Awards Scholarships

Farmland Industries scholarships valued at $500 each were awarded to four University of Nebraska-Lincoln College of Agriculture students for the 1985-'86 academic year. Among the area scholarship receivers was Gregory M. Lackas of Carroll.

Lackas, 20, is a junior mechanical agriculture and agricultural education major. He is a member of the UNL Mechanized Agriculture Club and also the recipient of the Norfolk Feed Mills, Stuart and Novotny scholarships. Lackas attended the State Future Farmers of America award and the DeKalb award. He plans to be a vocational agricultural teacher or work in the field of mechanized agriculture. Lackas is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kearney Lackas of Carroll.

Daum graduates

Jean Kathryn Daum graduated from the Lincoln School of Commerce on May 17, 1985 with a medical secretarial diploma and a professional secretarial associate degree of applied science. The commencement was held at the Lincoln High School.

Joan is the daughter of Mr. and Leon Daum.

Doane Dean's List

Doane College Registrar, Delbert King has announced the Dean's List for the 1985 Spring semester. To be eligible for this honor, a student must be full-time, carrying 12 or more graded academic credits, and achieve a 3.4 grade point average (A equals 4.0).

Area students qualifying were Bilynn Jensen of Wakefield, sophomore, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Paul Byers; Jill Mosley, sophomore daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Mc. y, and Trisha Willers freshman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Willers.

Emerson road work

The Nebraska Highway Commission and the Nebraska Department of Roads will hold a public hearing on June 26 on the design of the proposed removal of a viaduct and the improvement of a portion of Nebraska Highway 9 between Mill Street and Warnock Street in Emerson.

The hearing is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at the Emerson Fire Hall.

In addition to the hearing, those interested are invited to stop in at the Fire Hall any time between 3-5 p.m. on June 26 for an informal discussion of the project.

Construction features include removing the viaduct over abandoned railroad right of way and constructing a new 42-foot wide roadway. In addition, that section of Front Street which parallels Highway 9 will be closed and direct access to the highway will be provided.

Front Street will be extended east of Highway 9 for one block to Dakota Street. Sidewalks will be built on both sides of Highway 9 and new street lighting will be built.

Additional right of way will be required, including the second and third houses on the east side of Highway 9, just north of Mill Street.

Preliminary project plans are available for inspection at the DOR's Field Office at Wayne, and at the DOR's District Office at 408 North 13th Street in Norfolk.

NOW THE LOCAL commitment project cost has dipped to $1,057,859, making $830,254 grant eligible with the maximum grant allowable by the Department of Economic Development reaching $420,000.

Included in that project cost total would be the extension of 14th Street, which the state has accepted as a fundable program at a cost that is grant eligible of $195,000.

City officials believe that the revised commitments will yield an additional $117,000 in costs to the city.

Kloster said the taxpayers' utility rates will not go up and the city is not planning any additional tax askings from our standpoint.

The increase would be through bonded indebtedness or from reserves which the city currently has on hand.

The parties involved in making the local commitments must now decide how the $420,000 of grant money will be split equitably, according to Kloster.

Graders which were working earlier this week at the Timpte manufacturing plant site have stopped work presently. Contracts need to be signed so that the graders can be moving again by Tuesday, June 18, Kloster mentioned.

It is important to be a good listener, to listen to what investors want to do with their finances and help them fulfill their goal in a conservative fashion, according to Pflueger.

And that is why the investment firm exists — to allow investors to get the most of their hard-earned money.

Storm clouds gathering

Activists targeting farm animals

by Doug Gibson
It's a fact in Nebraska and around the nation that no segment of society has more concern for the well-being of livestock and poultry than the producers who raise them.

However, there may be storm clouds gathering for producers of livestock and poultry. Animal rightsists are targeting farm animals for their next assault according to five activists who were recently interviewed by AGENDA, an animal rights magazine.

Henry Spira, who has been active for a long time in coalition building, said: "It is a matter of record that 95 percent on animal suffering is in factory farming where more than four billion animals suffer from birth to death." He indicated a coalition think tank is currently developing strategies and tactics aimed at so-called factory farming.

Robert A. Brown, founder and president of Food Animal Concerns Trust (FACT), claims that factory

farming is the number one humane problem of recent decades. The only beneficiaries of factory farming, according to Brown, are the drug, food and equipment suppliers that promote these methods.

Alex Hershaft and Melinda Marks are president and vice president, respectively, of the Farm Animal Reform Movement (FARM). Both are urging the reduction and eventual elimination of animals for food. According to Hershaft, "The most effective approach to reducing the national consumption of animal products is to publicize its destructive impact on human health."

The fifth activist, Elizabeth Lambert of United Animal Defenders, feels more people are needed in the field to educate the public and push for appropriate legislation. She indicated that boycotts of uncooperative food chains are needed.

Other activists such as Spira, Brown, Hershaft, Marks and Lambert won't change their views, so their effectiveness will depend on how successful they are in working together and generating public support.

"Watch out for the Farm Animal Welfare Coalition (FAWC)," according to a lead sentence in an AGENDA magazine article. The animal rights publication described FAWC as an organization of factory farmers and agribusiness interest dedicated to putting out "pro-exploitation propaganda." Apparently a bounty was put out for information about FAWC. Wonder how much the bounty is?

It's obvious that more than just a few of the animal welfare organizations are well funded, according to Mobilization for Animals (MFA), an Ohio-based animal rights group. Financial records for nearly 100 animal welfare groups were examined by MFA. According to MFA, the 1983 fund balances, the top five included: Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, $3.7 million; North Shore Animal League (NY), $1.5 million; Animal Rescue League (Boston) (1982), $1.2

million; Humane Society of the United States (D.C.) $11.4 million; and Bide-a-Wee Home Association, $11 million. MFA listed 10 other organizations with fund balances more than $2 million each.

While the extremists of animal welfare/rights movement currently attract attention by breaking into research centers to free laboratory animals and damage property — livestock and poultry producers must remain vigilant to a possible threat. Groups like Farm Bureau and others who oppose legislative and regulatory actions which tend to prohibit good poultry and livestock husbandry practices and increase the cost to consumers may be in for big battles ahead.

viewpoint

Changing course

The new farm bill the Senate will begin drafting in the Senate Agriculture Committee gives us the opportunity to change the nation's course.

The new farm bill should set as official public policy the use of our abundance of food to make life better for hundreds of millions of human beings at home and abroad. The new farm bill also will be shaping the chance for survival for tens of thousands of American farm families and tens of thousands of small businesses throughout rural America.

We have the supply, but our family food producers need better prices for their products so they can survive. Likewise, the hungry here and abroad need the food to survive. Our task is to arrange distribution of the supply to satisfy that demand. Therefore, the new farm bill will contain provisions for new trade expansion, utilizing our agricultural abundance to minimize costs and build a strong element in our foreign policy.

Like most Americans, I find it very hard to understand an "agricultural crisis" in which American farmers and ranchers are criticized for producing too much food when we still clearly live in a world in which hunger and malnourishment are the norm.

As recently as February of this year the Physician Task Force on Hunger in America completed its investigation of the extent of hunger and malnutrition in our country and reported that hunger in America is a public health epidemic. This independent body made up of prominent physicians estimates that at least 20 million U.S. citizens suffer from hunger and that hunger continues to grow.

Although my legislation is a comprehensive bill looking at a wide range of agricultural policy matters, the essence of the bill is in four approaches:

1. A section on food aid and trade seeks to expand the effectiveness of American food aid abroad while also promoting U.S. trade interests.
2. American domestic food programs are strengthened, including the food stamp program. Special effort is made to improve access to these programs for the elderly and disabled.
3. Basic commodity programs are essentially retained as they now are with adjustments in target prices for inflation. This will help assure farmers of an adequate income to encourage their survival over time.
4. Conservation programs are improved and strengthened. The enormous strength of our abundant food supplies cannot be exaggerated.

Food surplus is like dollars in the bank. It's like a savings account, there to be drawn upon when needed. Only the shortsightedness and indifference of our policy-makers have prevented the United States from capitalizing on world trade development. Instead of paying huge sums for storage, we should use surplus commodities for immediate needs abroad as a foreign policy tool.

Therapists' contributions are recognized during National Physical Therapy Week

Physiotherapists make an important contribution to the arthritis health care team, and the week of June 16-22 is an especially good time to acknowledge their role. This week has been designated National Physical Therapy Week, according to the Arthritis Foundation.

"Arthritis can gradually deteriorate joints, causing pain and limited mobility," said Dr. Jay C. Kenik, Chairman of the Medical & Scientific Committee of the Nebraska Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation. "A physical therapist's role in the ongoing management of arthritis is to teach people with arthritis how to keep joints and muscles as strong and useful as possible. The goal of the total treatment program for arthritis is to limit the damage from the disease as much as possible, and to help the person stay independent."

A physical therapist (PT) works with a physician to assess the severity of a person's arthritis, finding out which joints are affected and to what extent. He or she teaches the person joint protection and energy conservation techniques, showing how to maintain the delicate balance between rest and activity. Splints may be necessary to protect affected joints from further damage and to keep them in proper alignment. The PT can custom-design these splints and give instructions on how and when to wear them.

"PROPER EXERCISE is an important part of an arthritis treatment program, and the physical therapist recommends an individualized exercise routine to regain muscle strength and joint flexibility. He or she also demonstrates actual tasks of daily living with the person, such as getting out of a bathtub or a chair that are less stressful to the joints. If assistive devices, such as canes or walkers are needed, the PT can teach the person correct usage of them.

"A physical therapist is a vital link in the arthritis health team," Dr. Kenik said. "For example, since the therapist is involved with a person who has arthritis on an ongoing basis, he or she may notice changes in the disease during the course of treatment. The PT can supply this information to the person's physician, who may then decide to alter the treatment plan."

Arthritis is a term which describes more than 100 different rheumatic diseases. It is America's number one crippling health problem. The arthritis health care team includes many different health professionals, including doctors, nurses, physical and occupational therapists, surgeons, pharmacists and psychiatrists, to name only a few. For more information on arthritis and the health professionals who treat it, contact the Nebraska Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation. Call 1-800-642-5292 or write 2229 N. 91st Court, Omaha, NE 68134. In Omaha, call 391-8000.

Back the Chamber

It seems that our town, and more importantly, our Chamber members, have taken a "what's the use?" attitude.

It gets tougher and tougher to get a good turnout at the various Chamber activities and committee meetings. Certain committees have met and decided to do nothing and others can't seem to get together.

I suppose there are legitimate reasons for this — maybe it's just easier to let someone else do it. Maybe it's because we have scored big in bringing a major industry to town. Let's not become too comfortable because of this.

It is not the factory on the edge of town that makes the town. It is the individual business person up and down the main streets and shopping centers that makes the town. We have far too many locked doors in our business community where there should be activity.

Each of us as individuals and all of us as a Chamber of Commerce can correct this. Let's not consider a new business in town as competition; let's consider it as an accomplishment.

First of all, let's all join the Wayne Chamber of Commerce and then let's all stand behind the Chamber. This is the only vehicle available to us that works for all of us. The investment of time and funds necessary is small compared to the benefit we stand to receive.

Dale Stoltenberg, President
Wayne Chamber of Commerce

Q: My husband is deceased. I have a will stating that upon my death, my property is to be divided equally among my children. Do I need to be any more specific than that?

A: If one of my children dies before I die, and I do not change my will from what is stated above, will that child's share be divided between my other children, or will that child's children inherit that share? Or, will that child's spouse inherit?

PAUL AND MARGUERITE MINES are pictured during their 68th wedding anniversary last week at Wayne Care Centre. They were married at Wayne on June 11, 1917.

68th anniversary

'We've had our ups and downs, but we always remembered our vows'

By LaVon Anderson

Stay in love!
"We've had our ups and downs, and we've had our share of sorrows, but we always remembered our wedding vows."
"Marriage is sacred and should remain so," smiles Mrs. Marguerite Mines.

"LET ME TELL you, there's lots of love in this room," adds a nurse at Wayne Care Centre, where Paul and Marguerite Mines now make their home and last week celebrated their 68th wedding anniversary.

Although they were sweethearts at Wayne High School, it wasn't until four years after they graduated that Paul Mines and Marguerite Heckert exchanged wedding vows on June 11, 1917 in Marguerite's home. Both were 24 years old.

"I guess we both had big plans that we wanted to see through before we settled down," chuckles Marguerite.

FOLLOWING GRADUATION from Wayne High, both Paul and Marguerite attended Wayne State Teachers College.

After one year at Wayne State, Paul left to attend Bradley Polytechnical School in Peoria, Ill.

There, Paul learned every phase of the jewelry business before returning to Wayne where he joined his father, T. C. Mines, in Mines Jewelry Store at 204 Main.

The Mines family was associated with the jewelry shop for more than 50 years. Paul's father opened the store in 1890, and in 1915 Paul took over management of the business.

Paul remained at Mines Jewelry until 1957 when he sold it to J. C. L. Costello.

WHILE PAUL WAS receiving his training at Bradley Polytechnical School Marguerite remained at Wayne State College to receive her teacher's certificate.

She also attended the University of Nebraska-Lincoln for one year, but was called back to Wayne when her mother died.

"I came back to make a home for my father," recalls Marguerite, adding that her father, Dr. T. B. Heckert, came to Wayne from Iowa and practiced dentistry here for nearly 60 years.

LOOKING BACK ON her wedding day, Marguerite recalls that it was a very simple ceremony because of her mother's recent death.

Marguerite also remembers the flood that prevented the newlyweds from leaving Wayne by train.

"For our wedding trip, Paul wanted to take me back to see his school in Peoria," recalls Marguerite, adding that because of the flood no trains were coming in or going out of Wayne.

The problem was resolved when Don Cunningham took the newlyweds to Wakefield where they were able to board a train.

PAUL HAD REGISTERED for the military draft on June 5, 1917, just six days before he and Marguerite were married.

The following April he was called into service. Because of his training at Bradley Polytechnical School and in his father's business, Paul was sent to serve at the Bureau of Standards in Washington, D.C.

Marguerite followed her husband to Washington just a few months later and also worked at the Bureau of Standards.

The couple remained in Washington, D.C. for approximately a year before returning to Wayne where Paul once again joined his father at Mines Jewelry.

PAUL AND MARGUERITE remained in Wayne until 1957 when they sold the store, sold their home, and moved to Arizona.

They later came back to Nebraska and resided in Wayne for two years and then at the Presbyterian Retirement Manor in Lincoln.

Last year, they returned to Wayne to make their home at Wayne Care Centre.

"We've had a good life and we've certainly been blessed," smiles Marguerite, adding that it doesn't seem that long ago when she and Paul, both 92, exchanged their marriage vows.

"Sometimes it seems like yesterday."

"I THINK IT'S important in a marriage that each spouse recognize what pleases the other and what they want out of life."

"That," adds Marguerite, "compares that with how you feel and see if you can't reach some kind of an agreement."

"If you don't like sports, then find something else that interests you while he (or she) watches the ballgame."

Marguerite also believes that it is vitally important to make the church a part of marriage.

"Make that a part of your life together, and see if that your children are brought up knowing the church."

PAUL AND MARGUERITE are the parents of two daughters.

Jean and her husband, H. B. Lane, recently purchased a home in Sanibel, Fla. and plan to move there June 25 from Arlington, Va.

They have two sons, Tom of Denver, Colo., and Douglas of Santa Monica, Calif.

Another daughter, Nancy Mines Peter, resides with her husband George in Omaha. Their children are Paula Charpentier of Millburn, N. J.; Jeff Peter of Greenwich Village, N. Y.; and Laurie Peter of Omaha.

Too good to be true?

"Too good to be true" offers flourish year-round, but summer seems to bring out the charlatans in force.

Many of these operations appear in a slightly different dress with a different name and a different address, and what they lack in integrity is compensated for in persistence.

They are too numerous to list by name, and the name doesn't matter anyway since the names are frequently changed.

The following types of "opportunities" should be placed on your investigative list:

— "Free vacations, three days and two nights" in an attractive locale. You get your three days and two nights, but must endure pressure selling tactics and often spend more than you planned.

— Sweepstakes. Some are legit, many aren't.

— Door-to-door sales. "School's out, watch out." Desecrating youngsters have been selling magazines and household products for "points" for years. Their stories are part of a crash sales course.

— "You have won a fabulous prize." Dozens of these offers have been investigated. Few are legitimate.

— Work-at-home schemes. "Send $15 (or more) to get started earning $300 a week (or more) at home." A cruel hoax that is both misleading and illegal.

— Any unsolicited home-improvement work. Contact local contractors for home improvement jobs. Usually they are around to handle any complaints.

— Weight loss without diet and exercise. Recognized by the haunting theme song about "getting into last year's bathing suit." Pills and body wraps can be hazardous to your health. There aren't any shortcuts or easy ways. Only exercise and reducing calories can make pounds disappear.

— Promotions, such as tickets sold in the name of the police, firefighters, charities or other respected civic organizations for variety shows to benefit the underprivileged, etc. The promoter takes the lion's share of funds raised.

— Telephone or direct mail offers giving you a big break into big bucks. Sound investments like this just don't happen.

— Employment agencies making job offers from faraway places, such as Florida, suggesting good job opportunities, overseas employment, etc. Just $18 (or more) will get you job listings. These ads will be appearing as schools close. Some operate year-round. The Better Business Bureau has found none of these to be legitimate.

— Modeling agencies/beauty pageants. Nebraskans are beautiful, but chances of making it big through itinerant "scouts" are extremely slim and the process can be very costly.

ALL THESE categories can encompass scams and frauds that will take your money and give you nothing in return.

No one can recognize every scam — but do investigate any unfamiliar "opportunity" that asks for money.

Contact the Better Business Bureau for information concerning any business about which you have questions.

Anniversary dance

MR. AND MRS. KERMIT Benshoof of Carroll will celebrate their silver wedding anniversary on Friday, June 21 with a dance from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. at King's Ballroom in Norfolk. Music will be provided by the All Knights, and all friends and relatives are invited to attend. Hosting the event are the couple's children, Mr. and Mrs. Tom (Keriane) Wiils of Wayne, and Kristi and Karlene Benshoof of Carroll. Kermit Benshoof and JoAnne Brodhagen were married May 22, 1960 at Zion Lutheran Church in Pierce.

What will you say in 20 years when she runs to you and says,

"He asked me to marry him and I said yes!"

Will you have to say, "I'm sorry honey, but I didn't plan ahead for this day and I simply won't be able to afford the wedding you deserve."

OR

Will you be able to tell her that you're happy that she's happy and that you've been planning for years to make that special day the happiest day of her life.

Plan ahead with a savings account. Add to it regularly and soon you'll have the peace of mind that only comes from financial security... and you'll make your little girl a happy big girl someday.

Defeat Dakota City

18 and under girls advance

Wayne's 18 and under girls softball team won its first game of the Northeast-Nobleska Softball Tournament Friday evening over Dakota City by a convincing 17-4 score.

First baseman Lisa Jacobsen got the scoring rolling in the first inning after reaching base on an error. Paula Koplin and Lori Jacobsen each received free passes and clean-up hitter Karen Lange cracked a double, followed by another double by rightfielder Sarah Lebeck.

Pitcher Roni Johnson then reached base on an error and Kelly mounted singled. When the inning had ended, Wayne had scored six runs.

The Wayne scoring was temporarily halted in the second inning. In the fourth inning, Wayne added three more runs after Mohfeld reached on an error. Jodi Allen singled; Laura Keating reached based on a fielder's choice and Lisa Jacobsen followed with a single. Lebeck also socked a single in that inning.

Wayne's final eight runs were scored in the fourth inning on hits by Keating; Lisa Jacobsen, Koplin, a triple by Lange and singles by Johnson
