Wayne County moisture normal

State experiencing drought

Drought conditions in western Nebraska and the far southeastern corner of the state continue to deteriorate this week with some stations reporting precipitation levels 50 percent below normal with extremely hot weather.

Wayne County Extension Director Don Spitzke told The Wayne Herald on Friday that despite the 90 degree average temperatures this area has received in the past week and lack of moisture, Wayne County's moisture level is above normal for this time of year.

This area is in good condition, he said, with reports of good soil moisture although "it's drying out on the top."

Crops are not critically suffering yet, he said, but "we're going into a certain period where the corn is tasseling and the beans will begin blooming. It is essential to have adequate moisture for this period," he said.

The average rainfall for Wayne County, as of July 1, is 14.22 inches. Thus far the county has received 16.71 inches of rain. "But we're way below last year's July 1 total [24.04 inches] and the same time in 1983 [18.85] inches," Spitzke pointed out.

The drought conditions in western Nebraska could have economic bearings on northeastern parts of the state. Spitzke said there could be an increase in the demand for hay from this area. He said farmers could possibly be moving cattle to the more moisture plentiful areas — to hold for the winter.

THE MOISTURE situation is especially unusual because the extreme conditions are at opposite ends of the state: Generally drought conditions persist in the northwest and southeast corners of the state while normal to higher than normal precipitation levels exist in the northeast and southwest.

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln Cooperative Extension Agriculture Climate Committee said Monday that extreme conditions had caused ranchers in western Nebraska to move cattle further east to better pastures and that there were reported pasture shortages near Broken Bow.

Paul Guyer, extension beef specialist, said producers short of feed should consider selling their yearlings or moving them to feedlots. Cow herds should be culled very closely and calves could be weaned early.

Guyer had also suggested individuals feeding hay or pasture or having hay or pasture to sell should consult the "Hay List" on AGNET (a computer management system for agriculture available through the local extension service offices) for prices and people to contact.

One positive aspect of the extreme temperatures the past week is that insect populations are less serious this year. Entomologist suggested producers watch for crop hoppers and spray before they reach the adult wing stage and to examine crops closely for spider mites, which are beginning to move into the fields.

Chicken talk

THE CHICKEN lady of Des Moines, Iowa was among 10 contestants who took part in Friday night's KTCH Fowl Players Talent Contest to kick off Wayne's Chicken Days. First place winner in the division for 14-year-olds and younger was pianist Brett Fueberth. Wayne's Lyle "Style" George took first place with his chicken comedy routine in the division for 15-year-olds and over.

Old Settlers Picnic scheduled on July 27

This year's Wayne County Old Settlers' Picnic will be a one day affair, to take place on Saturday July 27.

Kick-off will be at 10 a.m. with the Kids Parade and the finishing touch will be provided at 8 p.m. by All Star Wrestling at the Winside baseball field.

The planning committee is stressing the fact that although the name and dates have been kicked around "like a hot potato" the past few years, the annual celebration is "The Wayne County Old Settlers Picnic."

Future picnics will take place on the fourth weekend in July.

The committee welcomes participation of Wayne County citizens from Altona, Carroll, Hoskins, Sholes, Wayne and Winside and their surrounding rural areas.

While planning and programming for 1985 have been completed, your help in the coming years is welcome and will be appreciated," according to a news release from Lee Koch of Winside.

"Should you have suggestions for different types of entertainment, new ideas or would like to serve on next year's planning committee, contact Rose Janke at 286-4856 or Joni Jaegar at 286-4553.

Koch said it is not too late to enter a float in the main parade, to take place at 6:30 Saturday night. There will be two divisions — open and theme — with cash prizes of $75, $50 and $25 given in each division.

THE THEME of "The Roaring 20's" should leave room for imaginations to come up with some nice floats, Koch said. Call Don Leighton at 286-4559 to enter the parade.

The route will be from the Winside School parking lot south to Mrs. Warnemundes and continue down Main Street to Oberle's Market, then turn north and end up by Dr. Dittman's house.

"Your best bet to get a good seat is the city park which provides plenty of shade," Koch mentioned.

Coming to the park early will not only assure people of getting a good view of the parade floats, but also will allow those attending to enjoy the "mouth-watering barbecue" sponsored by the Wayne County Old Settlers Committee and fixed by Leonard Martin of Hoskins.

"Mr. Martin has a deserved reputation for making some of the best barbecued beef and pork in northeast Nebraska," Koch said.

"Topping off the barbecue with Ray Jacobson's sauce and filling your plate with applesauce, beans, chips and sauerkraut will put the right frame of mind for enjoying the rest of the evening's entertainment," he said.

Senior Citizens residing within the city limits of Winside (65 and older) or shut-ins can receive free home barbecue delivery by calling Rose Janke at 286-4856 prior to July 20.

The Norwalk Senior Citizens Band, with Otto Fields, will provide music in the park after the parade while All Star Wrestling with Joe Dusek as matchmaker out of Minneapolis will entertain at the baseball field.

Chicken way

by chuck hackenmiller

Names can be so different. As reporters, we sometimes get these funny looks when writing down a name from a photograph we had taken.

For instance, the reporter will ask: What's your name young lady? She watches as you spell Kristie. "That's wrong," she said. So I spell it Kristy. Turns out that it is Christie.

The same goes for Jody-Jodie-Jodi, or Carla-Karla, Koleffe or Collette, Ann-Anne, Lori-Laurie, Jacki-Jacque-Jackie, Mikki-Mickey, Biermann and Biermann.

Has anyone ever had this nightmare where they are master of ceremonies at a banquet and they are given a list of who to introduce in the audience and the names are impossible to pronounce? Wayne has got some names that would certainly be hard to pronounce if seen for the first time.

Need some proof? Just go through the telephone book.

There's Augsburg, Brouillette, Caawa, Doryse, Einmo, Floss, Gathie, Geewe, Havdra, Hype, Im-deke, Jaixen, Jech, Jungbluth, Kniesche, Koczar, Krotzchvil, Kudrina and Kwapnioskli.

Then there is Lanpher and Liedrke, Maciejewski, (wouldn't the master of ceremonies have fun with that one), McElvogue and McManigal, Moomaw, Noyes, Oelken, Osentowski and Osowner, Pfall, Poutre, Ratkovec, Replogle, Ruws.

And what's more, it would be difficult to read out loud for the first time the names of Sukup, Swerczek, Tomaszkievicz, Tucci, Treacle, Utecht, Vrbka and Vrtilska, Weyhrich, Youn and Zila.

Now these are names I'm sure have strong historical meaning and I'm not defaming anyone — just mentioning that they can be difficult to pronounce.

I've saved the best names for last. Imagine yourself about to introduce a speaker. You look down at the sheet of paper and the last name of the person speaking is "Mrsny."

How would you pronounce that name if you saw it for the first time? One thing I do know — the Mrsny name is famous around the Izaak Walton fishing area northwest of Wayne.

The Mrsny boys usually end up with over 150 fish in two hours time. They got a knack for a fishing line and they know how to make it work for them.

Okay, so you fumble through Mrsny and it's time to introduce the next Wayne speaker in the program. His name ends in Grzywa.

Some of the easiest names of Wayne to pronounce are Arp, Bell, Bull, Cox, Day, Evans, Friend, Gray, Hull, Ingalls, Jln or Jones, Kay, Lamb or Lutt, March, Norman, Olson, Paul and Pick, Reeg and Rose, Swan, Turner, Upton, Voss, Ward and Wax, Young and Zimmer.

It's too bad that can't all be simple. It would sure be a lot easier for reporters or photographers when jotting down a name. There is more to a name than most people think.

Pharmacist shortage

On June 8, 1985, Dr. Charles Andrews, Chancellor of the University of Nebraska Medical Center, recommended the phase-out of the NU College of Pharmacy. One of the primary reasons cited by the Chancellor for the proposed closing was the existence of too many pharmacists within the state of Nebraska. The Chancellor repeated this allegation on June 19 in Kearney, where he indicated that Nebraska has 10 more pharmacists per 100,000 population than the national average.

According to Nebraska manpower reports and confirmed statistics from Dr. Robert Marshall of the Nebraska Pharmacist Association, Nebraska has 74 pharmacists per 100,000 population. The national average is 69 pharmacists per 100,000. An examination of the distribution of pharmacists reveals that Douglas County has 89 per 100,000, with two colleges of pharmacy and numerous hospitals contributing to this high number. Lancaster County has 103 pharmacists per 100,000, because of two pharmaceutical manufacturers, hospitals, a drug research laboratory and various State offices.

Outstate Nebraska (all counties other than Douglas and Lancaster) have 69 pharmacists per 100,000 population. Therefore, outstate Nebraska has nine fewer pharmacists per 100,000 (13%) less than the national average. Closing the UNMC College of Pharmacy would have its greatest impact on rural health care.

A serious shortage of pharmacists would soon be expected in outstate Nebraska.

A major reason for a continuing need for pharmacists in Nebraska is the high percentage of people over the age of 65 within the State. People over the age of 65 use 2.5 times more medications than the national average.

According to the 1980 U.S. census, there is an average of 11,300 people over 65 years of age per 100,000 population. In Nebraska, there are 13,100 people over 65 per 100,000, representing a 16 percent greater number of people over 65 than the national average.

In Nebraska counties other than Lancaster and Douglas, there are 14,800 people over the age of 65 per 100,000 population. Therefore, in outstate Nebraska, there are 31 percent more people over the age of 65 than the national average.

Stalking the Nebraska buffalos

Nebraska's pioneer surveyors frequently faced dangers and hardships. The reason for their presence on the Plains was settlement. This reason was known, and hated, by the Indians. This was one danger. Others were the storms, prairie fires and illness.

Few would list the buffalo as one of the hazards of the profession. The following account, though lighthearted, indicates there could be encounters with the bison. Written at Fort Kearney in July, 1859 by a 23-year-old surveyor named Henry L. Harvey, it was sent to W.H. Tallman of the Nebraska City News, where it was published July 16, 1859. Harvey, a native of Pennsylvania, came to Nebraska in 1857. He is listed in the 1860 Federal Census as a Nebraska City printer with personal property amounting to $100. When writing the following, he had not intended publication.

"Since writing to you from the Republican we have had a rather hard time. The day after writing we started for Pierce's camp. In this vicinity, and on Wednesday struck the first parallel at the guide meridian. Cook's party not having got around, our party commenced running the line across west, as we could not do anything on our own work until that line was established; that evening we came in sight of buffalo, the first we have seen. Pierce started out to kill, and succeeded in killing an ancient Taurus, about seven miles from camp; they cut off about 20 pounds and brought it in, when we had a general feast, most of the party staying up till long after midnight.

"Thursday and Friday we run 25 miles, most of the way without water, through immense herds of buffalo, some of which came within 30 yards of our wagons; we shot a goodly number of them but did not stop to cut out any of the meat.

"SATURDAY MORNING we met Cook's party. . . all were well, but had suffered somewhat for water. Pierce turned back, and both parties camped on the head of the Little Blue. That evening our horses stampeded, and we followed their track about six miles down the stream, when all but four turned back — the next day we spent hunting for the horses. While out after the horses I had a fine opportunity to test my powers of locomotion. I was running along at an easy gait and jumped down a bank right ahead of about 20 bulls; two of them started after me, and I paddled up the opposite bank as fast as I could pick up my heels; after I had gained the level ground another old devil took after me, and we had it 'nip and tuck' for nearly half a mile, now, I will take for 'fall timber' quicker for a buffalo than for anything else.

"Monday last we left camp and arrived here on Wednesday, having located about 21 miles of line. From Friday morning of last week till we arrived here we had no water fit to drink, all that we could get was from the sloughs where the buffalos had been wallowing. Forty-eight hours before we got to the Platte we ran out of water, and could not find even moist earth, although I dug a hole about 10 feet deep after water.

"When we arrived at the Fort my first business was to go to the Post Office, where I found several large packages of papers waiting for me, for which please accept the thanks of the 'whole party,' as I presume they were from you.

"Thursday I spent at the Fort copying letters and instructions in regard to the military reserve — and the rest of the time I have been laying around camp, doing nothing but eat and sleep (when the mosquitoes would let me), drink whiskey, and get fat (from present indications I think I shall gain about 30 pounds this summer).

"The Fort is quite a neat little town; the parade ground is about 100 yards square, with flagstaff in center; on the south are the Commandant's, Commissary's and Adjutant's quarters, west, officers' quarters; east, storehouses and workshops; north, adobe houses for the soldiers. The parade is well shaded with young cottonwoods; and altogether it reminds one of a well conducted farm on a large scale."

— Betty Loudon, Nebraska State Historical Society

Due to the much higher than average number of elderly persons in rural Nebraska, there is a much greater need for medications, drug information and monitoring, and other health care services provided by pharmacists. Rather than reducing the number of pharmacists within the state as proposed by the Chancellor, an actual increase in the number of pharmacists can be justified, based on the need.

Greatest harm with respect to health care services resulting from the closing of the College of Pharmacy will be felt in outstate Nebraska. Closing the College of Pharmacy cannot be justified and should be prevented.

Block proposes conservation reserve

Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block proposed the largest single soil conservation initiative in the history of American agriculture—a 10-year, $11 billion conservation reserve which would take up to 20 million acres of highly erodible cropland out of production.

"Nothing in this nation is more precious than the natural resources which produce our food and fiber," Block said. "Yet, we have been compelled to work with farm programs which encourage production on land that should never have seen the blade of a plow."

"I am asking Congress to join me in seriously addressing the problem by including this proposal in the 1985 farm bill," Block added. "I should also point out that this proposal is consistent with my strong support for a sodbuster provision in the farm bill which would make producers ineligible for federal farm program benefits if they produce crops on highly erodible land."

Under the proposal, the Department of Agriculture and participating farmers would share the cost of planting protective grass or trees on eligible land. At least 10 percent of the reserve would be earmarked for tree planting and maintenance. "I'm looking to have sodburners in the neighborhood of one billion trees planted on this land, and that has to make a great difference in our ability to protect this soil," Block said.

Conservation reserve payments made to the farmers would provide a modest level of income support during the 10-year transition from row crop farming to other enterprises, Block added.

Block said the reserve would reduce soil erosion on land which is enrolled in the program by nearly 20 tons an acre yearly. Also, a successful program would improve water quality, curb production of surplus commodities and thus help increase commodity prices received by farmers. Other environmental benefits would include better habitat for fish and wildlife and reduced sedimentation in streams and along roads.

USDA studies show that one out of every eight acres of cropland in the U.S.—53 million acres of a total 421 million acres of cropland—would be eligible for the reserve.

Block said the proposed reserve is consistent with this overall thrust towards developing a long-term agricultural policy and would help bring greater consistency between the conservation and commodity programs.

"While the gross outlays for the reserve would be about $11 billion over 10 years, it's important to point out that they will be offset to a large degree by reduced outlays for annual loans, deficiency payments and storage costs under existing commodity programs," Block said. "We should also keep in mind that this is re-prioritizing existing funds. I strongly believe it is far better to use this money for conservation than on annual acreage reduction programs."

Other details of the proposal include:

- Farmers would submit bids on the cost-share payments they would accept and the amount of acreage to be enrolled.
- Grazing and harvesting hay on reserve lands would be prohibited.
- No producer would receive more than $30,000 in reserve payments yearly.
- And no more than 25 percent of the cultivated cropland in a county could be enrolled in the reserve.

news and notes

Many terms, extension agent-home etc.

Advantages of siding are relative. Siding could improve your home's appearance and make maintenance easier, but it might be a costly problem that reduces the home's value and creates maintenance costs.

If you are thinking about siding your house this summer, consider the advantages and disadvantages before making any decisions.

New siding is a major investment, so every option should be evaluated. Kathleen Parrott, extension housing specialist, suggests you should be able to answer the following questions.

Why do we need new siding? How much can we afford to spend? Can we install it ourselves or should we hire a professional?

ONE OF THE advantages of new siding is reduced maintenance. This depends on what type of siding is being replaced and what type is chosen.

Siding also provides protection for the structure from weathering and may preserve and extend the "life" of your house.

Siding can improve a house's appearance. Make sure the style, design, color and material are appropriate to the architecture of the house. Replacing a deteriorating exterior with the appropriate style and design can improve resale value.

In energy conservation, siding may reduce air infiltration and provide the homeowner with a chance to add insulation to the house.

According to Parrott, new siding alone is not likely to save enough energy to justify the expense.

Another disadvantage is that siding may reduce the value of the home if it does not preserve the historical value.

A final disadvantage is the possibility of maintenance problems if the siding is installed incorrectly.

AFTER WEIGHING the advantages and disadvantages, homeowners need to select a reputable dealer. Consider both economic and maintenance benefits of the siding.

Collect estimates from dealers with specific information as to what is included in the estimate. Check the dealers references to see what other homeowners experiences have been.

Be sure to compare the warranty on the product and that on the surface paint or coating. It may be different. Find out whether the warranty is on the house or the owner. Is it transferrable and how long does it last?

Select a reliable contractor and you are ready to re-side your house. Make sure your contract includes a guarantee on work, lien agreement, and a time and payment schedule.

There are many possible pitfalls to re-siding your house, but careful planning and asking questions can result in a new look for your house.

RUSS LONGE, on the mound, stretches to the limit in pitching to a Madison batter.

Midgets squeak by Madison

The Wayne Midgets, down 4-3 going into the sixth inning, scored a run in the sixth and the tie-breaker in the seventh as they defeated Madison Thursday night by a 5-4 score.

Russ Longe pitched the first six and a third innings, allowing just four hits and five strikeouts. He was relieved by Rob Rabe in the seventh, who retired the side on a ground-out and strikeout.

Madison opened the scoring in the first when Krumland singled, advanced to second on a stolen base, moved to third on a passed ball, then scored on an error by the catcher.

Two more runs were added by Madison in the third inning after Krumland was walked by Longe. He advanced on a stolen base and an error. A single by Robertson brought in two runs and Wayne trailed 3-0.

Wayne bats came alive in the fourth inning when, with two outs, first baseman Steve Lutt smacked a single and Ted McCright followed with a double into right centerfield. Catcher Jason Jorgensen then doubled off the wall in left field to drive in Lutt and McCright.

Mark Creighton's fly ball was dropped by the leftfielder, allowing Jorgensen to score from second and Wayne had tied the game at 3-3.

Madison broke the tie in the top of the sixth with a run. Wayne came back to tie the game up in the bottom half of the sixth. Scott Nichols poked a single and Lutt followed with a walk. McCright placed a bunt down the third base line to sacrifice the runners to second and third base. A sacrifice fly by Jorgensen brought home Nichols with the tie score.

Wayne won the game in the bottom of the seventh when, with two outs, Russ Longe smashed a triple and scored on a single by Nichols. Nichols led Wayne's hitters with two of the team's six hits. Robertson had two hits for Madison.

A "CHICKEN SHOW"?

From out of town I came to visit,
"Be sure" they said, "that you don't miss it."
A "Chicken Show" they said it would be
And, oh, the images it conjured up in me —

Of crowing contests and fluffy omelettes,
Of "egg" ata races and hard-boiled bonnets.
Of fluffy chicks and eggs in buckets
Of Colonel Saunders and McDonalds McNuggets.

A "Chicken Show"? It has it's place —
But it won't be me with egg on my face.
A fowl affair, I'm sure it will be But I'm skipping town before the 'yolks' on me!

June (Pearson) Burns
Colorado Springs, Colo.

There once was a colonel named Sanders, who was unfond of geese and ganders.
He thought that the chicken tasted good - umm - finger lickin',
and now to our taste buds panders.

FLUTTER ON BY, PLEASE

There was a flustered hen —
That encircled the town,
Which no one could keep down.
From her cackling sound
She turned things all around And became the town's laughing clown!

Little chicks, little chicks
So golden in the sun
Like fields of yellow daisies
Stretching when day is done.
We too grow and grow
Where do we go —
What is our fate?

Little chicks, little chicks!
Alice Wagner

Many breeds of chicken have come along.

Some were: Dorking, Banham, Java, and Chittagong
in the 1840's along with these two: Poland and Game.
That's at least six breeds that are now tough to name.

By 1850 other breeds were found in flocks:
CochinChinas, Shanghais, and Plymouth Rocks.
There are others a century later, are there not?

Have you heard of Leghorn,
Hamburg, or Wyandotte?
How about Orpington, and don't forget the Rhode Island White
or the Rhode Island Red, which I don't want to slight.

The breeds are many (in '24 there were 42)
so, in 1985, Gallus gallus, our hat's off to you!

THE A B C'S OF A CHICKEN

Chicken fares are good. . . APPETITES and are generally referred to as the yellow. . . BIRD. Either they are. . . CROWING or CACKL-ING and have many many. . . DROPPINGS. Hens lay lots of good, fasty.
. . . EGGS; have lots of soft. . . FEATHERS and a tough old. . . GIZZARD. Today most chickens have been. . . HATCHED from eggs that have been. . . INCUBATED. In cages, chickens are. . . JAILED, while some end up being. . . KENTUCKY-FRIED.
Chickens with the many eggs they. . . LAY, generally go into a. . . MOLT. They lay their eggs in a. . . NEST and these eggs are generally. . . OVAL which they readily
. . . PRODUCE. Chickens are flutery and. . . QUICK and the crowing kind are called. . . ROOSTERS. Chickens love to. . . SCRATCH and many times pick at bugs and. . . TICKS. A Chicken foot that gets caught, we must carefully. . . UNHOOK. Metal roosters adorn many free-swinging. . . VANES on buildings. Chicken eggs have. . . WHITES. Eggs sometimes are marked with. . . X'S that have lots of good. . . YOKES in them. Yes, everything about a chicken is quite. . . ZESTY.

Decorating contest winner

THE WINNER of the Chamber of Commerce Chicken Window Display Contest is Barb's Styling Salon. Owner, Barb DeWald, will receive a total advertising package worth $350 from The Wayne Herald, The Morning Shopper and KTCH AM-FM Radio.

The judges of the contest, Meg Lodes, Ginny Seymour and Nicki Tiedtke, based their decision on points given in each of several categories. The categories included chicken content, color usage, use and organization of elements and creativity.

There were several Chamber businesses participating in the contest and the decision was very difficult according to the judges. Receiving honorable mention was Mines Jewelers and the Shufelt Agency.

The garden has chickens everywhere, Crowing and cackles fill the air,
There's an angry shout
As plants are dug out While scratching for breakfast there.

I tried to write a poem about a chicken
Or even a rooster or a hen,
But each time I began writing
I had to start over again.
I checked out some looks about chickens
And learned some interesting facts,
Like a young chicken is called a pullet
And many other things like that.
I visited my uncle's chicken farm
But the only thing that I discovered,
Is that chickens are such noisy creatures
That my head still hasn't recovered.
There was only one thing left to do
So I hope you don't think I'm a thief,
But the next part of my poem
Is a rendition of "Hail to the Chief".

"HAIL TO THE CHICKEN"

Hail to the chicken, who in triumph struts proudly,
Honored and blest be the rooster and hen!
Long may the chicken be clucking loudly,
The chicken, the pride of all women and men.
Hail to the chicken who in triumph struts proudly,
Honored and blest be the rooster and hen!
Long may the chicken be clucking loudly,
The chicken the pride of all women and men.
Heaven nourish all its needs, earth lend its worms and seeds
The chicken is known the whole land through;
Louder than a ringing bell, hear the rooster's sounding yell,
"Cock-a-doodle-doodle-doo!"

Kim Imdieke

A chicken gives us many things —
Choice meat from breast,
legs and wings,
Eggs to boil or fry,
Feathers on which to lie,
And a wake-up call in the mornings.

Etta Fisher
Carroll

There was an old rooster from Greece Who crowed until there was no peace
When asked why he cried
He simply replied,
"Today is the day I have to go
To the Wayne Chicken
Show!"
