Drugs, cash stolen

Sav-Mor burglarized

Police are still investigating a burglary incident which took place sometime early Monday morning in Wayne that involved thefts of drugs and cash.

Sav-Mor Pharmacy on North Main Street was burglarized between the hours of 1 a.m. and 8:30 a.m. Monday morning, according to store owner Will Davis.

Davis said he had been working until 1 a.m. Monday at the store and at one time heard noise as if someone was rapping the front door of the business. He checked the noise but found nobody outside the store.

He left after that and apparently the burglary took place after that.

Entry was through the front door of the store.

Approximately $300 in cash was taken from the business establishment. Also gone were several drugs which the pharmacy stocks. "They were very selective about the drugs. They knew, specifically what they wanted," Davis said.

The drugs stolen, labeled as controlled substances, were "the hardest that I have" used primarily for sleep preparation and for stopping or reducing severe pain," Davis said.

Mobile home?

KAY HOUSEMOVING of Wayne recently took to the Wayne County gravel roads on Tuesday morning, pulling a house several miles to its destination, which was the Leon Vondrak property southeast of Winside. The electrical company was present to remove and replace wires that were in the path of the house.

Pioneer families noted by Ak-Sar-Ben

Several Wayne, Cedar and Dixon County families will be receiving framed certificates in honor of being designated Nebraska Pioneer Farm Families.

The Pioneer Farm Family award program, now in its 30th year, has honored 3,495 families in 83 Nebraska counties to date and is sponsored by Ak-Sar-Ben. A total of 341 farm families whose land has been owned by the same Nebraska family for 100 years or more will be recognized.

The Nebraska Association of Fair Managers' cooperates in the program, helping to identify eligible families and presents framed certificates to the honorees at the individual county fairs during the summer.

Ak-Sar-Ben Ambassadors assist in making these presentations.

Also, the honored families receive an engraved walnut plaque and an aluminum gatepost marker from Ak-Sar-Ben for each farm which has reached the century mark in the hands of the same family.

The pioneer families will be honored as guests of Ak-Sar-Ben at a special dinner preceding the World Championship Rodeo during the 1985 Ak-Sar-Ben Livestock Exposition and Rodeo. The banquet will take place on Wednesday, Sept. 18 at Ak-Sar-Ben.

This year's Pioneer Farm Families designated from this area include: Cedar County — Bernard Arguser, Coleridge; Arnold and Dorothy Frerichs, Coleridge; Richard Stapelman of Belden.

Dixon County — Kenneth W. and Ethel E. Packer of Wakefield; Elmer and Bonnie Schrieber of Wakefield.

Christian K-12 school in Laurel will open soon

by Chuck Hackenmiller

Pastor Don Carlock is a minister who has no animosity toward public schools.

He has the utmost respect for all the public school teachers he has known and he praises their teaching quality and dedication.

But he is positive there is something that is amiss in the public school which he and several family members of his church, the Laurel Full-Gospel Fellowship, would like to see corrected.

Steps have been taken to form a Christian school in Laurel named Victory Academy. The classroom will be in the remodeled basement of the Laurel Full-Gospel Fellowship Church, located at 513 West Third Street.

Presently, Carlock projects that up to 12 students will be enrolled in Victory Academy when the Christian school opens for classes on Sept. 3.

Carlock, who came to Laurel in June, is the administrator of the school. His wife, Nancy, is one of the teachers. Some individual church members will be taking part in the Christian school operation on a daily basis, performing in positions such as teacher's aides.

Serving as members of the Victory Academy school board — to establish and define policy — will be Pastor John Moyer of the Evangelical Church in Laurel; Pastor Dan Thompson of the Assembly of God Church in Coleridge; and Tim Hansen, a Laurel businessman.

school, Carlock said, is to offer an option to the many trends in the public education arena which gets away from the world that "God wants us to raise our children in."

"He said public school teachers are locked into a system heavily dominated by secular humanism, where "God is excluded from the classroom."

This was definitely not the case in the earlier years of this country.

"In colonial days, reading and writing were taught with the purpose that the kids could learn scripture [from the Bible] for themselves," Carlock said. He said God was the central children's center of education and the Bible was the central book. "All knowledge and wisdom come from God," he said.

Teachers were not allowed to teach anything contrary to Bible principles.

Carlock said times have changed in public education and the options available now are either a man-based education (secular humanism) or God-centered education.

Besides being man-centered, some secular (public) schools have taught evolution, are mass-oriented, have social promotions, practice permissiveness, promote humanism, bring on apathy and create situation ethics.

"In a Christian school, a student who has four years of public school is considered to fifth grade," Carlock said. "Age and social promotion" are considered reasons for advancement in grade levels.

"We do not just look at just the social promotion," Carlock said.

"The students must be able to master the necessary skills before advancing to the next grade level."

THE PUBLIC school, he said, can provide a very permissive environment as opposed to disciplining, which can run into problems later on. Carlock said the Bible has mandated that "parents are responsible for the raising of their child," even though some states have laws and court decisions which say students are the property of the state and therefore disciplining must be left up to the state or public school system.

Parents, he said, sometimes only show an interest when it's time to sign their child's report card. The parent's responsibility is in the educating and disciplining of their children.

Carlock said the Christian school will serve as an extension of the home, existing to assist parents in their responsibility before God.

Other emphasis placed on the Christian school education includes: creationism; individual-oriented, mastery learning; Christianity; enthusiasm and morality. These will not change, Carlock said, because they are mandated in the Bible.

"And the Bible does not change," he said.

Curriculum available to the 12 students will be the Alpha Omega Program, a non-denominational program used by Christian schools across the United States. It takes in math, and sciences, spelling, language arts and an additional class about God and the Bible.

"In the future we're looking at taking the curriculum subjects and wrapping the Bible training into them as the Bible relates to each subject," Carlock said.

Victory Academy, which will consist of students in the elementary grades and one student possibly in the sophomore level (it will be designated a K-12 school), will be the only non-denominational Christian school in this immediate area and will primarily serve the Cedar County and Dixon County areas.

TESTING FOR entry levels at Victory Academy will begin on Aug. 29. Each student will take a Wide Range Achievement Test and a Diagnostic Test to determine the grade level.

The testing, Carlock said, will let the instructors "know where the student is at" in grade level and what his or her subject weaknesses will be so that a curriculum can be developed for the student.

"This can be individualized totally," Carlock said.

"We don't admit youngsters into our school. We admit parents," Carlock said. Test results go back to the parents who are advised on how their youngster has tested and what type of progress needs to be made in certain areas.

If there is physical discipline, it will be required to be done at home. If the parents are unwilling to discipline or are not willing to accept the program for their child, "then we will be unable to handle the child," Carlock said.

PASTOR DON CARLOCK stands before what will become the Victory Academy, Christian School.

Striking out

August 6 will be a dark day for Major League baseball if the player's union and baseball owners cannot come to agreement on pension plans or salary lids, causing a strike that will halt the baseball schedule in the American League and National League.

This opinion is from an individual who resides almost six hours away from any major league ball park and does not follow with intensity the pennant races — unless the team of his allegiance is the one in first place.

And at times major league baseball is put to the side in favor of a baseball game or softball game on the local level, as this individual finds it more exciting to participate in a sport or observe a sport involving area people.

But it is evident that major league baseball will suffer if the strike occurs. Just ask any major league baseball fan about their reaction.

Division races are close in both leagues — with the only comfortable lead held by California in the Western Division. The other races are such that one three-game series could mean the difference between gaining or losing first place.

Baseball has too many good things going for it right now. Attendance has been up in many of the ball parks, particularly in the cities where the division races are close.

Phil Niekro and Tom Seaver are closing on their 300th victory. Rod Carew is nearing 3,000 hits. And the famed Pete Rose is drawing near to Ty Cobb's record for most hits in a major league career.

In an Omaha World Herald editorial, it mentioned that the average annual salary of a major league player is about $330,000. Now we know this takes into consideration all the big money ballplayers who have contracts in the $1 million level.

Still, the average baseball fan wonders why players need more money.

Looking at it from the business sense, major league ball players are employed by an organization. From this employment, the organization hopes to gain a profit through increase gate receipts (if the employees bring the organization to the best there is) and television paybacks.

The employees (ballplayers) are paid for their services in salary and benefits (which also includes some pension).

Employees must make an effort to satisfy their customers, which in this instance would be the dedicated baseball fans who for many years have supported major league baseball.

Once employees of the organizations lose sight of its customers (or fans) then the customers become disgruntled and take their business elsewhere.

Baseball is not in a position to have a loss of interest among its public.

Employees can be replaced, just as in the regular business world. When the major league umpires went on strike, minor league umpires were brought in to fill the roles. An ideal situation exists where minor league ballplayers can be brought into the major league cities to carry on the pennant races.

This approach could generate and carry on the enthusiasm.

Sure, the batting title being fought between George Brett and Wade Boggs will be sidelined temporarily when the strike begins. And the possibility of the New York Mets and the New York Yankees playing in the World Series might never become a reality.

Employees have their rights. But when it risks losing the company or organization, then negotiations become more than just a salary or pension issue.

It could end up as a losing proposition for all involved — including the team franchise, the ball players and the baseball fans.

An August strike in baseball would be a mistake.

Justifying property values

Counties may face state-mandated increases

Property owners in Holt, Scotts Bluff and Valley counties face the possibility of state-mandated increases in their tax values following action by the state Board of Equalization last week.

The board voted 5-0 to call officials in those counties to hearings before state Tax Commissioner Donna Karnes at which they must demonstrate why property values in their counties should not be increased.

The motion adopted by the board also granted Karnes the authority to add other counties to the list of those which should justify property values developed for tax year 1985.

The board is scheduled to reconvene on August 9 to vote on Karnes' recommendations for altering property values. In addition to Karnes, the state equalization board includes Gov. Bob Kerrey, State Treasurer Kay Orr, Secretary of State Allen Beaumont and State Auditor Ray A.C. Johnson.

The board voted to call Holt, Scotts Bluff and Valley counties after a state Revenue Department attorney recounted recent actions of those county boards in which they rolled back proposed 1985 values for some or all classes of property.

In Holt County, the board rolled back all classes of property to the 1984 level. In Valley County, the board rolled back all classes of property by 12.5 percent. In Scotts Bluff County, the board reduced valuations of most types of irrigated land.

No dates have been set for the counties' hearings.

STEVE EXON, the Democratic son of Democratic Sen. J.J. Exon, has agreed to be Douglas, County coordinator of the Committee to Repeal LB 662, the statewide legislation formed to repeal the recently passed school consolidation and finance law.

Exon's prominent position in the referendum drive puts him at odds with Democrats who supported LB 662 in the Legislature, and with Democratic Gov. Bob Kerrey, who signed the measure.

Conversely, Exon finds himself in an alliance with several Republicans who opposed the consolidation and finance law.

Exon said in a recent interview he considers it unfortunate that the school consolidation and finance issue has "boiled down to a push-and-shove between Republicans and Democrats."

As the son of one of the state's most prominent Democratic politicians, Exon expressed hope his role in the referendum will quell the partisanship in the LB 662 debate.

For his part, J.J. Exon said he intended to sign the referendum petition, and will vote to repeal LB 662 if it makes the ballot. Because it is a state rather than a federal issue, he won't take an active role in the repeal campaign, the senior Exon said.

His position against mandatory school consolidation has been consistent since he first ran for governor in 1970, he said.

FOR THE FIRST time since its creation two years ago, officials have tapped the state's "rainy day fund" to meet cash flow needs.

State Department of Administrative Services Director Bill Giovanni last week authorized transfer of $500,000 from the state's special cash flow fund to the state general fund, the balance in which was in jeopardy of reaching zero.

The transfer of funds was brief. Officials were able to re-pay the $30.5 million cash flow fund on the following day.

The special cash flow fund was created by the collection of a temporary 0.5 percent state sales tax between July 1983 and March 1984.

Although no transfers had been made before last week from the special fund because of cash flow, officials earlier this month did comply with a directive from the 1985 Legislature to transfer $5 million for the general support of state government. Under the new law, the $5 million transfer is to be re-paid during the fiscal year that begins July 1, 1986.

According to another recently passed law, officials are scheduled to transfer $9.5 million from the special cash flow fund to the general fund in September to allow payment of the $8.5 million liability settlement with depositors in the Insolvent Commonwealth Savings Co.

Crop control referendum bad idea

by Cheryl Stubbenieck

Suppose you were an independent entrepreneur, involved in the computer software business in a modest way. Your company isn't the smallest in the field, but you're no Apple or IBM either.

Every couple of years, federal law requires that a vote be taken among your peers. If 60 percent agree, you would be required to limit the amount of software you could produce and sell, in an effort to increase prices. Even if you voted otherwise, you could not decide how to use your production resources. If you violated the law and exceeded your quota, you could be subjected to a hefty fine — hefty enough, possibly, to put you out of business.

Sounds rather like Big Brother at work, doesn't it? The analogy's not perfect, but this is the basic idea being proposed for farmers by a House Agriculture Subcommittee.

The Subcommittee on Wheat, Soybeans and Feed Grains has sent the main committee a proposal that could lead to mandatory production controls for farmers. It is included in the 1985 Farm Bill. The plan provides for a referendum for wheat and feed grain growers together and a separate one for soybean producers.

The first such vote would be held before Feb. 1, 1986, for the '86 and '87 crops, and the second would be held in 1987 to cover the '88 and '89 crops.

IF 60 PERCENT of producers with 15 or more acres of the affected commodities vote for controls, all of them would have to follow strict rules dictating what they could produce and sell.

Disobedience would bring stiff penalties and fines could be as much as triple the minimum support loan rate for the commodity — no mean sum.

Advocates for mandatory production controls have been ardent for some time, while the referendum idea is newer. Neither has much merit.

The economic arguments against mandatory production controls are many and well-known: even if we could limit U.S. production, we must compete in a world market where other countries would remain free to produce as they pleased. If we cut back our production, other countries would step in to fill the void, as during the PIK program. If we attempt to raise prices in this way, we can forget about the 40 percent of our crops that now goes for export.

At home, our domestic users of agricultural commodities would find it advantageous to import cheaper, foreign beans, wheat and feed grains. And we can't consider our crop sector apart from our livestock sector: meat and dairy producers would have to pay higher prices for feed without any assurance that meat and milk prices would go up.

NONE OF THESE outcomes of mandatory production controls could come as a surprise. If controls were adopted, and putting controls to an annual vote wouldn't make them any more effective or palatable. In America we cherish individual freedom, the freedom to choose your work, the freedom to use your resources as you choose, the freedom to succeed and the freedom to risk failure. A 60 percent vote of your peers — or even 100 percent — should not violate JMF freedom.

Putting concern for individual rights aside for a moment, frequent voting is no way to make policy about anything. "Policy" suggests the long-term and there's no forward thinking or long-term outlook in this referendum idea.

It would be easy for the House Agriculture Committee to default on its leadership role by voting for the referendum and passing the buck. The much wiser — and harder — route is to develop an '85 Farm Bill that takes a long-term view and looks to the market for solutions.

A bad move

As of July 1, 1985 the Pilger Rest Area was closed. The reason given by State legislators and officials was to save tax dollars and make necessary budget cuts.

In less than three weeks after its closing, that lovely area has become a eyesore with litter and human excrement. The general public and travelers can not be blamed because there are no signs, saying the privileges of going to the restroom or throwing away a dirty disposable diaper, have been cut from the budget.

Your tax dollars helped build that facility and it was well used in spite of what has been written. You should also be aware of how many tax dollars are really being saved. You would be surprised.

Write your State Senator and officials and find out the great savings and also let them know your feelings.

Big thank you

Last Thursday evening, I was privileged to attend a "Big" support at Bresler Park, sponsored by volunteers of the American Cancer Society. Thanks to Chris Gieseler pulling it together and allowing me to finally put many names with many faces.

I'd like to publicly thank each and every one of those volunteers who have helped raise the money to provide for cancer research, cancer education, "Can Cope" classes, Can Surmount groups, visitation programs, and above all helped make it possible for people like myself to LIVE.

We are not finished with this great battle. However, with God's help and the hundreds of thousands of volunteers across this great nation cancer will be conquered.

Mats off to the Wayne volunteers who help each and every day of the year — and especially to make our month of April a success.

Recognition due

I wonder if The Wayne Herald is aware that Wayne has good Little League and Pony baseball teams. I think they deserve some recognition. Your coverage of other sports events is good, but I think these 9-14 year old kids would enjoy having their pictures and names acknowledged in the paper as well as other people from Omaha, etc.

Home Health Care marks fifth year in Wayne area

Bringing nursing care to people in their homes is the aim of Wayne's Home Health Care Agency (HHC) — which recently marked its fifth year of service in Wayne and the surrounding communities.

Five years ago, in February of 1980, Lutheran Community Hospital in Norfolk agreed to have Wayne become a satellite of its HHC agency.

It remains to today, with Wayne's HHC agency office located at Providence Medical Center.

"WITH TODAY'S CHANGING trends in the health care system; the home is becoming an ever increasing choice and possibility for quality health care," said Ann Witkowski, coordinator of Wayne's HHC agency since its organization five years ago.

Witkowski added that with the support and guidance of HHC nurses, patients are able to come home from the hospital sooner and receive continued monitoring and medical treatment under the direction of their physician.

Among other things, HHC nurses can administer medications, change dressings, assess healing processes, do diabetic teaching (including blood sugars), and administer colostomy, tracheotomy and catheter care, along with tube feedings.

In addition, some chemotherapy and intravenous therapy also can be administered in the home.

HOME HEALTH CARE nurses can also assess some of the reasons for health care problems in the home, teach families how to handle these problems, and work together with other agencies to obtain medical equipment and supplies. Referral agencies can also help find caretakers/homemakers.

Working closely with families, HHC nurses can also help them make decisions about the need for possible nursing home placement.

Home Health Care also provides physical and speech therapy in the home.

"We work closely with our clients' physicians," added Witkowski. "Although our clients have some difficulty getting about or are totally homebound, we encourage them to see their physician either at the clinic or have the physician make a home visit to determine how the patient is progressing and update their plan of care."

Between the physician's visit, Witkowski said the physician is informed of the patient's progress as the Home Health Care nurses provide the skilled care needed.

THE COORDINATOR said that in the past couple of years Home Health Care has been doing more work with families whose loved ones with a terminal illness wish to die in their own homes.

"The diagnosis of a fatal disease can be a frightening but fulfilling experience for the family as they learn not only about life's end, but about life itself."

Witkowski said that during the last two years, Home Health Care nurses have assisted on the average about one person a month who has made that decision.

THE FOUR MOST common conditions which have been treated in the home during the past five years have been diabetes, cancer, heart and circulatory problems. Within the past year, 176 home visits have been made to bring health care to the communities of Concord, Carroll, Dixon, Allen, Emerson, Laurel, Pender, Wakefield and Wayne.

"Home Health Care is continually striving to update its program and to listen to the community to learn what its health needs are," said Witkowski.

Working with Witkowski are Terri Munter, a full-time Home Health Care nurse, and Betty Reeg, who visits homes on a part-time basis.

PERSONS WHO WOULD like additional information about the Home Health Care service are asked to call Home Health Care at Providence Medical Center, 375-3800.

Home Health Care receives 100 percent reimbursement from medicare.

Community Theatre rehearses for 'They're Playing Our Song'

Wayne Community Theatre is preparing to begin the typical dog days of summer with its annual musical, scheduled Aug. 16-17.

A cast of eight is midway through rehearsals on what director Ted Blenderman calls "a really funny show."

It is the recent Broadway success, "They're Playing Our Song," written by playwright Neil Simon.

Community Theatre has presented several Simon plays, however, this is the first Simon musical performed on a stage.

CAST IN LEAD roles are David Blenderman as Vernon Gersch, a successful songwriter, and Brenda Kowalke as Sonia, who wants to be a singer. "She thinks she's a songwriter, and tells Vernon so."

From there, "the plot gets complicated."

Six other actors complete the cast, including three men who play the roles of alter ego to Vernon, and three women who are alter egos to Sonia.

They are Tom Fletcher, Mitch Schulte, Steve Monson, Laura Straight, Michelle Sherlock and Debbie Jacobson.

Six of the cast are Wayne State College students. The other two are employed — Laura Straight as an elementary teacher, and Monson as a lab technician at the Milton G. Waldbaum Co.

All of them have performed in college or community plays.

DIRECTOR BLENDERMAN describes "They're Playing Our Song" as unusual in that only two cast members — the two leads — have speaking roles.

The alter egos keep busy, however, in that they are on stage much of the time mimicking the lead characters. They also sing and dance, as do the leads.

MARGARET SCHULTZ is directing the play's music, both vocal and instrumental.

She has been active in Community Theatre, taking lead roles in "My Fair Lady" and "South Pacific," and directing music for "Music Man."

She did research for music in last year's Wayne Centennial musical and wrote lyrics for the show's final song.

"THEY'RE PLAYING OUR SONG" will be staged in Ramsey Theatre of Wayne State's Fine Arts Center at 8 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, Aug. 16-17.

Tickets will go on sale soon.

Baseball ruins my social life

We've all had to leave places and friends behind before, so you know how I felt when I left Ogallala.

During the two years I lived in Nebraska's Cowboy Capital, I met a lot of nice people and had a lot of good times there. So leaving was rather sad.

And believe it or not, I think some people were even kind of sad to see me go. But something about the way or not a girl I dated there was upset to see me leave.

Although we dated for over a year, it wouldn't surprise me a bit if she was kind of glad to see me go.

Now don't get the wrong idea. I'm not a woman beater or anything like that, and our relationship was really quite good. But Major League baseball, it seems, always interfered with our dates.

You see, evening dates didn't exist for the most part. My policy behind dating at night is why go out when all you have to do is flip on the tube and watch the Atlanta Braves?

True, when the Braves were rained out or they had an off day, we usually did go out on a date. But I still couldn't concentrate until I heard the Major League baseball scores.

So, after the movie was over or we finished at the restaurant, there wasn't any time for romance. Instead we'd rush back to my place so I could watch ESPN's Sports Center or CNN's Sports Tonight.

She really was quite a girl though. She never complained once about all the sports she was "forced" to watch. But her great attitude didn't stop her from always trying to get us out of a "sports-filled date."

For example, one day she picked up the Cable Guide and noticed that Atlanta's games were never televised on Monday night. But Monday dates didn't work either because ABC's Monday Night Baseball was on. And once she suggested that we try luncheon dates, but those failed too because the Chicago Cubs were on T.V. during most afternoons.

She finally gave up and "stuck it out" until I left town. And I swear I saw a small grin on her face when I exited Ogallala.

But she isn't the only person I've upset with my baseball viewing habits. Since I haven't been able to find an apartment in Wayne yet, I've been commuting back and forth from my parents' house in Sergeant Bluff, Iowa.

And every night since I've been there, my mother has walked into the T.V. room and when she sees me watching a ball game, she storms out shaking her head.

I'm always telling her to go ahead and turn the station. But since she hasn't seen that much of me lately, she just lets it go and does something else. You know how mothers are.

But I get the feeling I might be pushing her a bit too far. The other night she said she wanted to watch Alfred Hitchcock's "Psycho." I gave in and let her watch it, but during commercial breaks I jumped out of my seat and flipped the channel to a baseball game. And every time I did, she sternly asked if I ever got tired of watching baseball.

But for the most part, she remained happy because she got to watch "Psycho." She even giggled when I immediately turned to the game after the movie ended only to miss the game winning hit by seconds.

But I think I might be over doing it. The other night when I unpacked my car, I tugged my television set into the T.V. room. Along the way she stopped me and asked why I wasn't leaving the T.V. in the garage until I found a place in Wayne. When I told her I was bringing my T.V. in the house because I planned on watching the game that night, she said she got so mad she saw stars.

I think I'd better hurry up and find an apartment.

Capture sportsmanship award

Wayne places third at state tournament

BEATRICE-Lately, when a girls softball team from Wayne attends a state tournament, they don't return home without some hardware. Two weekends ago, Wayne's 15 & under squad captured the second place trophy in the state tournament at Gresham. And this past weekend, Wayne's 18 & under team won the third-place trophy and the sportsmanship award here at the state tournament.

Finishing in the top three doesn't come easy. Because of the 24-team field and rainy weather conditions, the Wayne girls participated in five games over two days and didn't conclude play until approximately 11 P.M. Sunday night.

Wayne's last game of the tourney was against eventual champion Beemer. Wayne downed Beemer 7-4 in its opening round game. However, Beemer gained momentum in the loser's bracket and stopped Wayne 5-1 for the right to face West Point in the championship round.

In Wayne's final contest, Beemer opened a 2-0 lead in the top of the first inning. However, Wayne also got on the scoreboard quickly.

Lisa Jacobsen singled to start Wayne's first and was forced to second when her sister Lori drew a walk. Both players advanced another base on a passed ball and Lisa scored on Paula's Koplin's clutch two-out single.

But one run was all Wayne could manage against the eventual champs. Beemer also had difficulty scoring but did push across two markers in the fourth and added an insurance run in the seventh for a 5-1 triumph.

Wayne only received two more hits in the contest. Lisa Jacobsen and Koplin led off the third and fourth innings, respectively, with singles but both base runners failed to score.

The most heart-breaking game for the Wayne girls at the tourney was a nine inning 8-7 loss they suffered to West Point.

Spectators expected a classic bout because the Wayne girls are the winner of the championship of the winner's bracket. And the game lived up to all expectations.

West Point opened a quick 5-1 lead after the second inning. Wayne's only marker came in the first when Lisa Jacobsen walked, advanced to second on a passed ball and scored on Koleite Frevert's single.

But despite trailing by four, Wayne refused to quit and gradually whittled away at West Point's advantage.

After holding West Point scoreless in the third inning, Wayne tallied two runs in its half of the frame.

Laura Keating started the Wayne third by walking and pinch-runner Wendy Ericksen scored on Lisa Jacobsen's double.

After two outs and a Karen Longe walk, Koplin singled home Jacobsen to make the score 5-3. Jodi Allen followed with another single to lead the bases but a fly out to left field ended the Wayne rally.

West Point scored in its half of the fourth but Wayne closed with a run of its own in the inning.

With two outs, Lisa Jacobsen reached on a West Point error, advanced to second on a passed ball and scored on Frevert's single.

Both teams failed to score in the fifth but Wayne tallied two markers in the sixth to equal West Point's six runs.

Longe was the only player to collect a hit in Wayne's sixth, but two walks and five West Point errors allowed Ericksen and Lisa Jacobsen to score and tie the game.

Both teams failed to score in the seventh and eighth frames, but West Point made the most of two walks, a single and a Wayne error to open an 8-4 lead in the ninth.

But Wayne once again came storming back. Roni Johnson started the Wayne ninth by singling. Then, Kathy Mohlfeld and the Jacobsen sisters all drew walks. However, West Point escaped further damage and hung on for a thrilling 8-7 victory.

Wayne's lead came when the tournament began. Beemer opened a 1-0 lead in the first inning of Wayne's initial contest and Wayne's girls went down in order in the first two innings.

However, Wayne capitalized on three Beemer errors to open a 2-1 advantage in the third.

Frevert scored Wayne's first run on a Beemer error and Mohlfeld tallied the second run when Lisa Jacobsen squeezed her home with a bunt.

Beemer tied the game at two in the third and scored twice more in the fourth. But Wayne tallied three runs in the sixth and added two insurance markers in the seventh for a 7-4 triumph.

The big blows for Wayne in the sixth and seventh innings were singles by Koplin, Lori Jacobsen and Mohlfeld, and a home run by Lisa Jacobsen.

A strong pitching performance by Johnson and clutch hitting lifted Wayne to a 5-2 win over Maryville in the third round.

Frevert, Mohlfeld, Allen and Lori Jacobsen all collected RBI singles in the Maryville triumph, but the big story for Wayne was Johnson's pitching.

Johnson finished with 12 strikeouts and struck out the side in both the second and seventh frames. Johnson also limited the opponents to only five hits and two walks.

Lisa Jacobsen, Koplin, Longe, Allen and Keating all scored for Wayne in the Maryville triumph.

Wayne slipped by Mead 9-7 in the tourney's fourth round for the right to face West Point in the championship of the winner's bracket.

Mead jumped on Wayne quickly and scored three runs in the top of the first inning and added another marker in the second frame. But Wayne bounced back with two runs in the second, four in the third and three more in the fourth.

Frevert started the Wayne second with a double and Koplin followed by drawing a walk. Both runners then scored on a double by Johnson.

Four singles and a walk led to four runs in the Wayne third. Longe, Frevert and Johnson all scored in the third after singling. Koplin also scored in the Wayne third after drawing a walk and Lisa Jacobsen collected the other Wayne hit in the inning.

The biggest blow of the game for Wayne was Frevert's three-run homer in the fourth.

Lori Jacobsen and Longe started the Wayne fourth by drawing consecutive walks. Frevert followed by drilling the home run. Frevert's homer broke a 6-6 tie and put Wayne in the driver's seat.

Mead threatened in the sixth when its first two base runners reached base in the seventh inning. However, Johnson pitched out of the jam by getting the next three batters in order and allowed Mead only one run in the inning.

Johnson then got the three batters in order in the Mead seventh to preserve the win.

WAYNE'S KOLEITE FREVERT is all smiles as she crosses the plate during the 18 & Under Girls State Softball Tournament at Beatrice over the weekend.

Wayne Midgets thump Norfolk 12-4

Wayne's Midgets overcame a 4-0 deficit and went on to thump Norfolk 12-4 at Overlin Field Tuesday night.

Norfolk started fast and opened a 4-0 lead in its first at bat. Norfolk's first two batters reached on a single and Helder's choice, respectively. After Wayne pitcher Ted Lueders struck out the third batter, he walked the clean-up man to fill the bases.

Lueders struck out the next man and got the following batter to pop up, to shallow left field. However, left fielder Scott Nichols lost the ball in the sun and by the time he recovered, he was out of position and the ball dropped allowing all three Norfolk base runners to score. Lueders then issued a wild pitch and a single which scored Norfolk's fourth run.

Nichols redeemed himself in Wayne's first inning with a clutch two-run single to tie the game at four. Bill Landanger started the Wayne first by singling. Rob Rabe, Russ Longe and Steve Luff followed by drawing consecutive walks to force in the first run.

Rabe then crossed the plate on a wild pitch and Nichols followed by stroking his RBI single which equalized Norfolk's four runs.

Rob Gamble scored what proved to be the winning run for Wayne in the second inning when he walked, moved to second when Landanger walked and scored on two passed balls.

After going down in order in the third frame, Wayne added insurance runs in the fourth, fifth and sixth innings with three, one and three runs, respectively.

Gamble started the Wayne fourth with a walk and after a strike-out, Jason Jorgensen followed with walk and both runners advanced into scoring position on a passed ball. Longe then doubled home both runners and eventually scored on a single by Lueders.

Ted McCright scored Wayne's run in the fifth when he walked, advanced to second on a Mark Creighton single and crossed the plate when Landanger singled.

The home-town fans put the game out of reach with a three-run sixth.

Kyle Schaefer collected a two-run single in the sixth and Tom Baier tallied the final run when he was forced home from third on a bases loaded walk.

After the shaky first inning, Lueders pitched a four-hitter over the final six innings. He totaled five strike-outs and only issued one walk. The hot-hitting Landanger finished with two hits in four plate appearances. Longe, Lueders, Nichols, Schaefer and Creighton each finished with one hit in the game.

Wayne only made one fielding error in the game and stranded nine base runners. Norfolk played error-less ball, but gave up 13 walks and left six men on base.

The triumph lifted Wayne's record to 17-5 on the year.

Midget highlights

WAYNE'S Midgets pounded out 18 hits and downed their neighbors from Wakefield 15-8 at Overin Field on Monday night. Wakefield collected seven hits in the contest, including two each by Matt Tappe and Mark Johnson. Johnson started Wakefield's second inning by singling and eventually reached third base (picture at left) and scored when Tappe (batting) drove him home with a single. Wayne pitcher Rob Rabe (right) surrendered three hits and four runs in the second frame. But Rabe settled down and yielded only four hits over the final five innings to preserve the Wayne victory. Wayne's Juniors pulled out a thrilling 3-2 win over Wakefield after the Midget contest. For details of both games, see the stories below.

Larsen keys Wayne

Wayne posts thrilling 3-2 victory

Don Larsen of Wayne had one of those games players fantasize about as his home run and tremendous diving catch lifted Wayne's Juniors to a 3-2 triumph over Wakefield at Overin Field Tuesday night.

With Wayne leading 2-1 in the second inning, Larsen drilled a Brian Soderberg fastball approximately 350 feet over the left field fence to give Wayne a 3-1 advantage. Since Wakefield scored a run in the fifth, Larsen's home run proved to be the game winning RBI.

But more impressive than his home run was his defensive play in the bottom of the seventh inning. Wakefield's Todd Kratke reached first in the seventh after he was hit by a pitch. Kratke then moved into scoring position when he advanced to second base.

With two outs, hard-hitting Darwin Snyder ripped a Jeff Hausmann pitch down the right field line. However, the lanky Larsen dove to his right and speared the liner to preserve the Wayne victory.

Wayne took a 2-0 lead in the first when Chris Wieseler drilled a double just inside the left field line to score Kevin Maly and Steve Overin. Maly reached base on a walk and Overin reached by singling.

Wakefield came right back by tallying a run in its first at bat. With one out, Snyder doubled off the glove of center fielder Maly and advanced to third on a Wayne error. Larry Ballinger followed by lifting a Jeff Sherer pitch approximately 370 feet. Maly made a nice running catch on Ballinger's fly ball, but Snyder tagged and scored Wakefield's first run.

Other than Larsen's homer, both teams' bats went silent until the Wakefield fourth when Snyder walked with one out and stole second. Ballinger followed with a single to plate Snyder and bring Wakefield within one.

But Hausmann, who relieved Sherer, put Wakefield down in order in the sixth and Larsen's seventh inning catch ended the game.

Sherer and Hausmann combined for 10 strike-outs, allowed just three hits and walked five. Soderberg, who settled down by changing speeds more often after the first two frames, finished with six strike-outs.

Wayne totaled six hits in the game. Overin was the only player to collect two or more hits as he finished 2-for-4.

The victory improved Wayne's record to 19-9.

Norfolk's Juniors show no mercy, hand Wayne 14-4 loss

Norfolk's Juniors started quickly and never let up and went on to post a 14-4 win over Wayne at Overin Field Tuesday night.

Norfolk opened a 3-0 lead in the first inning by taking advantage of four walks and a Wayne fielding error.

But the visitors went down in order in the next two innings and Wayne tallied a marker in the third to make the score 3-1.

Kevin Maly led off the Wayne third with a single and scored on Steve Overin's one out triple.

But Norfolk kept pouring it on in the late innings. After scoring four runs in the fourth, Norfolk tallied four in the fifth, two in the sixth and one more in the seventh for the easy win.

Wayne scored in the fourth when Shannon Dorsey walked and crossed the plate on Jeff Sherer's double.

Wayne added two more markers in the sixth when Darrin Barner plated Brent Pick and Sherer with a double.

Wayne had several big inning threats in the game, but consistently failed to get the big hit. Wayne left a total of 12 runners on base, including three each in both the fourth and sixth innings. Wayne also stranded six runners in the both the second and seventh frames.

Wayne totaled seven hits in the game. Overin went 2-for-3 with a triple and single, while Barner and Sherer doubled, and Maly, Dorsey and Pick all singled.

Norfolk finished with nine hits and made the most of six walks as five of the six players that drew walks eventually scored.

The loss drops Wayne to 19-10 on the year.

Midgets down Wakefield 15-8

Wayne's Midgets erupted for 18 hits and 15 runs and thrashed Wakefield 15-8 at Overin Field Monday night.

Wayne started quickly and never let up. Wayne tallied four runs in the first inning and scored in every frame after that except the fifth when they still managed three hits.

Although Wakefield was never a serious threat, they refused to quit and managed to stay away from being beaten by the 10-run rule.

Wakefield tallied four runs in the second and two each in the fourth and sixth frames.

Wayne slugged out 18 hits and capitalized on seven Wakefield errors. However, eight Wayne errors also assisted Wakefield and allowed them to stay fairly close.

Bill Landanger, Rob Rabe, Russ Longe and Steve Luff each whiffed two hits apiece for Wayne, while teammate Scott Nichols finished 3-for-3 at the plate and scored a run. One of Landanger's hits was a triple to deep left-center field.

Wakefield's leading hitters were Matt Tappe and Mark Johnson. Tappe finished 2-for-3 and walked, while Johnson singled twice in four at bats.

Todd Kratke, Mike Nelson and Stuart Clark each singled once for Wakefield.

The win improved Wayne's record to 16-5 on the year.

Overin shines at all-star game

Although the Nebraska All-Stars dropped the best of three game series to the Omaha All-Stars two games to one, Overin had a good tourney playing in all three contests and finishing 2-for-4.

In the first game in which the Omaha All-Stars won 4-3 in 11 innings, All-American Gregg Olson shut Overin down and the Wayne native finished 0-for-2 at the plate.

Overin started the second game at third base and finished 1-for-1 at the plate, and the Nebraska All-Stars captured the second game 4-1.

Overin also finished 1-for-1 in the third game and scored a run. However, Nebraska lost the third game 8-6 and as a result, they lost the series too.

It marked the seventh straight time the Omaha All-Stars have won the series. Omaha teams have also won 15 of the last 20 games.

Olson and Bill Barnard were named outstanding players from their respective teams.

Overin also made the Nebraska All-Star team two years ago.

Carlock has hopes that the community of Laurel and surrounding cities would adapt to a Christian school in the area. "As parents and Christians, we have a choice now we need to make."

BUT FIRST, people will have to surpass the "preference stage" — when there is something the people strongly believe in and are totally committed to — and "move on a conviction, when it comes to push and shove," he said.

"We are a school of conviction, with no choice to go but this way [with the Victory Academy] he said.

Carlock said Christian schools are coming back into the forefront in the United States. He said that in 1990, there will likely be more Christian schools than public schools. In the future, he said, there could be a Christian school in any given neighborhood.

Christian schools, he said, will "put the parents back in control of their youngsters," he said.

Pastor Carlock had served in the ministry in Idaho and Oregon for seven years before arriving in Laurel. They have a 9-year-old daughter, Amy, who had attended a Christian school in Oregon last year. His other children had attended public school.

"I'm a farm-boy at heart myself, reared in an agricultural community in Idaho," Carlock said. He had 18 years of law enforcement experience, spending most of those years in Southern California.

He has been involved in lay ministry for nearly 20 years, dedicating the last seven years to full-time church work. "At one time I was serving as a deputy sheriff and as a pastor of a church," he said.

His religious background, he said, is a cross of Baptist and the Assembly of God. Nancy, his wife, is from Sioux City and had friends in the Stouland area.

NORMALLY, he would move to a community where there is no church — to see if develop from one family to many.

Laurel Full-Gospel Fellowship Church was already established when he arrived in Laurel, and so were the plans for the new school. "The people out here were not only looking for a pastor but also a school administrator," Carlock admitted. This is his first venture as school administrator.

"I would have been much more comfortable either becoming chief of police here or starting a police department," he commented with a smile.

But he said this is what he was called by God to do. And he will carry out the wishes of his church members in developing a Christian school that he feels is tomorrow's education.

A new feed additive for lactating cows

Isol Plus is the trade name of a new additive for lactating dairy cows. This is a product of Eastman Chemical, a division of Eastman-Kodak Company. It has produced responses in milk yield of eight or 10 percent and about the same improvement in feed efficiency.

Isol Plus contains a mixture of four chemicals: isobutyric, isovaleric acid, 2-methyl butyric acid and valeric acid. All these occur naturally in cows' ruminants. These acids are either required by, or stimulate growth of many rumen microorganisms.

Some of these acids could limit the cow's ability to digest feedstuffs, especially those high in fiber. This could be a consistent performance when feed consumption is high and energy demand is great, as in high producing lactating cows. Research also shows that the isoacids increase blood levels of growth hormone. This hormone is known to be effective in stimulating milk production.

This additive has FDA approval and is now in a test marketing program involving Michigan dairy herds. Research documenting the lactation response was conducted with about 7,000 cows in several universities and field trials. During the next year distribution is expected to begin across the Midwest.

Horn fly resistance

Horn fly resistance to the pyrethroid insecticides is starting to spread in Nebraska as it has in southern states, according to Jack Campbell.

Campbell, entomologist at the University of Nebraska West Central Research and Extension Center, said a recent survey of 35 cattle herds in the country and northern states showed 86 percent of the cattle carried insecticide ear tags. Fly control seemed adequate on most of the cattle.

"However," said Campbell, "we determined that resistance is present on several cattle herds south of the Platte River in west central Nebraska and seems to be widespread in eastern Nebraska.

"In our experience," said Campbell, "replacement of one pyrethroid ear tag with another will provide improved horn fly control for only a short period of time." Using a Ralston ear tag is active in some instances because it is a phosphite insecticide but it contains only enough insecticide dust to provide horn fly control for about eight weeks and then must be replaced, he said.

Campbell said other options for horn fly control are dust bags and oilers charged with phosphite insecticides. Place enough of these self-applifiers so that all cattle, not just bulls and cows, have a chance to use them on a daily basis, he advised.

Dryness yields spider mites in Northeast Nebraska area

They can be narrow and flat or round and large. The pigment spots may accumulate on the sides of the body or enlarge toward the front and center of the body. Whatever the size, of the body and the pigment spots, spider mites can damage corn, according to Fred Baxendale, University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension entomologist.

There are two species of spider mites in Nebraska," Baxendale said. "The two-spotted spider mite and the Banks grass mite are similar in appearance, but differ in the amount of damage they cause and their susceptibility to chemical controls."

The two-spotted mite is slightly larger and the Banks mite is narrower and flatter, Baxendale said. The Banks grass mite appears early in the season, are more likely to remain on the lower leaves and less likely to cause serious damage. The two-spotted mite appears later in the season and spreads rapidly over the entire plant.

"Dry weather and heat-stressed plants will encourage mite activity during the next few weeks," Baxendale said, "so it's important to examine the fields the next four to six weeks for mite activity."

To EXAMINE for spider mites, Baxendale said to use a magnifying glass and look closely at 10 consecutive plants at five locations in each field. Look for the presence of yellow stippling along the midribs of the lower corn leaves. Turn the leaves over to reveal fine webbing with the mites and eggs suspended in it.

Mites from several leaves on a plant and from several plants in a field must be examined because although mites in a single colony will be the same species, mites on a different leaf or plant may be the other species," Baxendale said.

According to Baxendale, treatment is justified if corn has not reached the dent stage and mite colonies are present and are the treatment," Baxendale said. "Reexamine the plants a few days after treatment to determine if mites are still infesting the plants. If the treatment was effective, no mites should be present. Reinfestation is likely after seven to 10 days so, in some cases, a second application may be necessary."

Bean cutworm emerges

The western bean cutworm is an annual concern in northeastern, western and southwestern Nebraska corn fields, especially when corn is on lighter soils, according to Dave Keith, University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension entomologist.

The WBC are now emerging as mature larvae from their overwinter hibernation in earthen cells," Keith said.

The moths lay fresh white eggs, the size of pinheads, in dime-sized masses of five to 200, inside corn whorls just prior to tasseling. By hatching time, four to seven days, the eggs are bluish-black in color.

Newly hatched larvae are dark brown with faint diamond-shaped markings on their backs. As they mature, worms lighten to a gray or pinkish-brown color and have three short white stripes on the shield-like segment just behind the head.

If corn has not tasseled, young larvae will move to the developing tassels to feed on immature pollen," Keith said. "However, if tasseling and pollen shed have occurred, the young worms move to the leaf axils to feed on pollen."

KEITH SAID AS worms mature, they move to the ear to feed on emerging silks and later on developing kernels. "Worms may follow silks down to kernels or bore through husks to reach the grain," he said.

Treatment is recommended when 8 percent of the corn plants are infested with egg masses and/or small larvae.

"Timing is critical because worms cannot be controlled once they enter the ear," Keith said. "Best control is achieved when treatment is applied at 70 percent to 90 percent egg hatch."

The following insecticides are registered for WBC control: carbaryl (Furadan 4F), chlorpyrifos (Lorsban 4E or 4E HI), methyl parathion plus EPN (Permethrin 1-Pounce 3.2EC), fenvalerate (Pydrin 2.4EC), methyl parathion (Pencap-M) and carbaryl (Sevin). Keith recommends all who use chemicals to read and follow all label instructions including field re-entry times and other restrictions.

District Dairy Show Monday

The 39th annual Norfolk-District Dairy Show will be held at the Norfolk Livestock Sales Company on Monday, July 29. All members should be getting their entries for the show to their Extension Office in the near future. Each exhibitor may show three animals.

They will also be selecting a District Dairy Queen at the contest. Dairy Queen candidates must be a member of a 4-H Dairy Club in 1984 and must carry a 4-H Dairy Club Project. They must also be 16 years old as of Jan. 1, 1985. There will also be a raffle and showing contest.

All purple and blue ribbons winners at the District Dairy Show who are 12 years old or older will then be eligible to compete in the Ak-Sar-Ben Dairy Show.

The contest is sponsored locally by the Norfolk Jaycees who furnish 10 of the premium money. Nebraska dairy interests and Ak-Sar-Ben also provide 10 of the premium money.

This year's contest there will also be a dairy judging contest. This will be open to all dairy members not just those entered in the show. Additional information and entry forms are available from the local county Extension Offices.

Put a pencil to pencil shrink

Cattle feeders looking for top prices on their stock should pay closer attention to possible income losses from pencil shrink — that 3-4 percent weight reduction levied by some buyers as compensation for expected losses between the time cattle are shipped, stored and slaughtered.

"I can understand doing that for feeder stock when the animals are being sent from farm to farm," says Tom Scott, Executive Secretary of the Omaha Live-Stock Exchange. "But doing it for fat cattle seems ridiculous and unfair to cattle feeders."

Scott maintains that fat cattle should be bought and sold for what they weigh at the time of purchase — not what someone thinks they are going to weigh further down the line. He warns that pencil shrink of 3-4 percent, which he feels is more than what most cattle actually lose, can cause even greater income losses if imposed at the place of delivery — not at the farm prior to shipping.

"You know your cattle are going to lose some weight during transportation," he adds. "So if the buyer has your weight when the time cattle are weighed at or near the time of sale."

FOR THESE REASONS, Scott says, pencil shrink is not permitted at the stockyards. All fat cattle are weighed at or near the time of sale.

The stockyards also takes steps to minimize natural shrink in the yards, giving cattle an ample supply of water and, at the seller's request, all the hay and feed supplements the cattle need.

"If cattle are properly handled, they shouldn't have to shrink more than 1 1/2 percent," says Dick Jensen, president of the Omaha Live-Stock Exchange and owner of Byers Bros. Commission Company. "There are times when an animal at the stockyards will actually experience a net gain in weight."

The 1 1/2 percent natural shrink that may occur at the stockyards is still half of what most buyers arbitrarily impose, he adds.

To illustrate the income-loss potential from random pencil shrink, Scott offers the following hypothetical situation:

LET'S SAY THE going price for steers is 60 cents a pound and a producer sends in a load of 40 weighing 1,200 pounds each, or 48,000 pounds total. If that load was charged with a 4 percent pencil shrink, the producer would automatically lose 1,920 pounds of $112.00 of cattle, equaling $28.80 a head.

To show how much gross income buyers can gain from pencil shrink, Scott provides another scenario: Let's assume a packer's total steer receipts for a Monday morning are 1,000, the animals weigh 1,200 pounds each, and the going rate is 60 cents a pound. If that buyer deducted a 4 percent pencil shrink from the day's receipt, the producers would collectively lose 48,000 pounds of stock or $28,800.

"At a time when producers have to watch every dollar they spend, it's a shame that so many are unknowingly losing so much money," Scott concludes. "Next time producers are hit with pencil shrink, they ought to put a pencil to it and figure out how much they're losing — and how much the buyer might be gaining. Chances are they'll want to call off the deal and take their business elsewhere."

Waste of area soil a staggering amount

Imagine soil that is in a pile 10 feet wide, 10 feet long and 3/2 foot deep. Well, that's what the average non-irrigated farm in Wayne County is losing every year per acre.

The figure for irrigated fields is even more staggering. The soil loss on an irrigated field would be 10 feet wide, 10 feet long and 6 1/2 foot deep. This would be the soil that the average acre of irrigated farm land would lose in one year in Wayne County.

Wayne County's topsoil averages 12 inches in depth with some areas having no topsoil whatsoever. This fertile topsoil is what is needed to produce a good crop and when it runs down the hill and into the road ditch it does no one any good. In fact, it costs, as we as taxpayers have to pay the taxes that are used to pay the county to clean the soil out of the road ditch.

There are many things that can be done to prevent this terrible waste of one of our most precious resources, our soil. Some of these include parallel terraces, tile outlet basins, grassed waterways, contour farming and conservation tillage.

The Wayne County ASCS office and the Lower Elkhorn NRD have 75% cost-share programs available to those interested in conservation. For more information on conservation and conservation practices, contact the Wayne County Soil Conservation Service, 120 Logan.

ABOVE IS AN example of what water run-off can do to top soil in a field.

by pat meierhenry

I make a habit of checking book tables on sale. I find some gems sometimes. Last month I got one with an intriguing title, "There's A Lot More to Health Than Not Being Sick," and I've been reading it this past week.

The author quotes one survey that says that 90 percent of the people who go to see a doctor have no medically treatable problems. The survey went on to ask what the doctor did for these people. Most of the respondents said they prescribed tranquilizers such as valium.

When asked what they would like to do for these people, most of the doctors said they would like to have had time to spend an hour a week talking to these patients about their lives, their families and their jobs.

The author, Bruce Larson, claims that laughter is powerful medicine, a person's need to be right may make one sick, too much security can speed up the aging process, hope is a primary factor in healing, positive people around you can affect your immune system, and finally, that you, not your doctor, should take responsibility for your health.

I knew about the first and the last, and suspected the one about hope.

but had not heard about the other statements.

It's all part of the holistic health movement, which recognizes that we are all physical, mental and spiritual beings. And that each affects the other.

The "guru" of it all is a Nebraska physician, my family doctor when I was in high school in York County, Dr. Keith Sehnerf. Every home library should contain the two books he has written, "How To Be Your Own Doctor, Sometimes," and "Stress/Unstress."

ANOTHER SPOKESMAN for the movement is a young man named Tom Ferguson, editor of a magazine called Medical Self-Care. Tom attended medical school at Yale. During his senior year, he realized that many of the patients he was seeing in the hospital were there as a result of their lifestyles.

He published the first issue of the magazine as a senior project and has been doing it ever since. He has never practiced medicine.

These two and other spokesmen for health, gathered at a conference at Lake Geneva, Wis., which I attended with a friend a few years ago. It was quite an experience. Walking and jogging in the mornings, fresh fruit and bran muffins for snacks and stretching and relaxing exercises were on the agenda. Cigarettes, of course, were not allowed. And one morning, I sneaked into the hotel coffee shop before the first session. The person opposite me exclaimed later, "She's had coffee. I can smell it on her breath!"

IT WAS HERE I first heard of "Anatomy of an Illness" by Norman Cousins. Cousins was experiencing severe pain and crippling from an arthritis-type illness. He was in the hospital, being treated with pain meds.

He decided to try treating himself. He checked out of the hospital into a hotel, got hold of Candid Camera videos and Laurel & Hardy movies and literally laughed himself to health. It's quite a story.

So, we've reduced our intake of caffeine and sugar, added fresh vegetables and fiber, tried to do more walking and maintained a sense of humor. All with lots of hugs.

Now there is more. We find that loneliness is unhealthy. Single people and those who have lost spouses have a higher incidence of illness and lower life expectancies.

We are told that Barbara Streisand was correct in singing, "People Who Need People Are The Luckiest People."

AND IN A BOOK called "Getting Well Again," the Simonons' at husband-wife, doctor-psychologist team, tell about cancer patients they have treated with mental imagery.

One whole chapter is devoted to the importance of forgiveness and our health. Grudge-bearing is very unhealthy. Besides, I learned long ago that if only harms the person bearing the grudge.

I also learned long ago the importance of a "Support System," people who will respond with love and concern when we are in trouble.

Now Bruce Larson says it's even important to have positive people around just to help us stay healthy. The relationship of the mind and our emotions to our physical health is amazing.

Thinking positive thoughts and giving and receiving positive strokes with lots of laughter thrown in, are probably more effective than vitamins. And they are certainly cheaper and more fun. Let me know if you want to borrow the book.

A new feed additive for lactating cows

ISO Plus is the trade name of a new additive for lactating dairy cows. This is a product of Eastman Chemicals, a division of Eastman Kodak Company. It has produced responses in milk yield of eight or 10 percent and about the same improvement in feed efficiency.

ISO Plus contains a mixture of four chemicals: isobutyric, isovaleric acid, 2-methyl butyric acid and valeric acid. All these occur naturally in cows' ruminants. These acids are either required by, or stimulate growth of many rumen microorganisms.

A shortage of some of these acids could limit the cow's ability to digest feedstuffs, especially those high in fiber. This could be of considerable importance when feed consumption is high and energy demand is great, as in high producing lactating cows. ISO Plus also shows that the isoacids increase blood levels of growth hormone. This hormone is known to be effective in stimulating milk production.

This additive has FDA approval and is now in a test marketing program involving 64 Michigan dairy herds. Research documenting the lactation response was conducted with about 3,000 cows in several universities and in field trials. During the next year distribution is expected to begin across the Midwest.

Horn fly resistance

Horn fly resistance to the pyrethroid insecticides is starting to spread in Nebraska as it has in southern states, according to Jack Campbell.

Campbell, entomologist at the University of Nebraska West Central Research and Extension Center, said a recent survey of 55 cattle herds in the central and northern Sandhills showed 88 percent of the cattle carried insecticide ear tags. Fly control seemed adequate on most of the cattle.

"However," Campbell, "we determined that resistance is present on several cattle herds south of the R-1 line in west central Nebraska and seems to be widespread in eastern Nebraska.

"In our experience," said Campbell, "replacement of one pyrethroid ear tag with another will provide improved horn fly control for only a short period of time." Using a Rabon ear tag will be effective in most instances because it is a phosphite insecticide but it contains only enough insecticide dust to provide horn fly control for about eight weeks and then must be replaced, he said.

Campbell said other ear tags are available that are more effective and are charged with phosphate insecticides. Place enough of these self-applicators so that all cattle, not just bulls and cows, have a chance to use them on a daily basis, he advised.

Dryness yields spider mites in Northeast Nebraska area

"They can be narrow and flat or robust and large. The pigment spots may accumulate on the sides of the body or enlarge toward the front and center of the body. Whatever the size of the body and the pigment spots, spider mites can damage corn, according to Fred Baxendale, University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension entomologist.

"There are two species of spider mites in Nebraska," Baxendale said. "The two-spotted spider mite and the Banks grass mite are similar in appearance, but differ in the amount of damage they cause and their susceptibility to chemical controls."

"The two-spotted mite is slightly larger and the Banks mite is narrower and flatter," Baxendale said. The Banks grass mite appears early in the season, are more likely to remain on the lower leaves and less likely to cause serious damage. The two-spotted mite appears later in the season and spreads rapidly over the entire plant.

"Dry weather and heat-stressed plants will encourage mite activity during the next few weeks," Baxendale said. "So it's important to examine the fields the next four to six weeks for mite activity."

"TO EXAMINE for spider mites, Baxendale said to use a magnifying glass and look closely at 10 consecutive plants at five locations in each field. Look for the presence of yellow stippling along the midribs of leaves on the lower corn leaves. Turn the leaves over to reveal fine webbing with the mites and eggs suspended in it.

"Mites from several leaves on a plant and from several plants in a field must be examined because although mites are in a single colony they will be the same species, mites on a different leaf or plant may be the other species," Baxendale said.

According to Baxendale, treatment is justified if corn has not reached the dent stage and mite colonies are present on leaves up to the ear zone. Pesticides that can be applied include: Fenitrothion (Fyfanon), Dison System 13G or 8EC, Metastox R 2EC, Thimet 20G, Comite 6.5EC, or Counter 13G.

"Before applying a pesticide, mark about 25 plants so they can be examined after the treatment," Baxendale said. "Reexamine the plants a few days after treatment to determine if mites are still infesting the plants. If the treatment was effective, no mites should be present. Reinfestation is likely after seven to 10 days so, in some cases, a second application may be necessary."

Bean cutworm emerges

"The western bean cutworm is an annual concern in northeastern, western and southwestern Nebraska corn fields, especially when corn is in lighter soils, according to Dave Keith, University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension entomologist.

"The WBC are now emerging as mature larvae from their overwinter hibernation in earthen cells," Keith said.

"The moths lay fresh white eggs, the size of pinheads, in dime-sized masses of five to 200. Inside the corn whorls just prior to tasseling. By hatching time, four to seven days, the eggs are bluish-black in color.

"Newly hatched larvae are dark brown with faint diamond-shaped markings on their backs. As they mature, worms lighten to a gray or pinkish-brown color and have three short white stripes on the shield-like segment just behind the head.

"If corn has not tasseled, young larvae will move to the developing tassel to feed on immature pollen," Keith said. "However, if tasseling and pollen shed have occurred, the young worms move to the leaf axils to feed on pollen."

KEITH SAID AS worms mature, they move to the ear to feed on emerging silks and later on developing kernels. "Worms may follow silks down to kernels or bore through husks to reach the grain," he said.

Treatment is recommended when a percent of the corn plants are infested with egg masses and/or small larvae.

"Timing is critical because worms cannot be controlled once they enter the ear," Keith said. "Best control is achieved when treatment is applied at 70 percent to 90 percent egg hatch."

The following insecticides are registered for WBC control: carbofuran (Furadan 4F), chlorpyrifos (Lorsban 4E or 4EH), methyl parathion plus EPN, permethrin (Pounce 3.2EC), fenvalerate (Pydrin 2.4EC), methyl parathion (Penncap-M) and carbaryl (Sevin).

Keith recommends all who use chemicals to read and follow all label instructions including field re-entry times and other restrictions.

For roll call, members brought completed 4-H projects they plan to enter in the Wayne County Fair. Each family received the 1985 fair book.

The group discussed several upcoming events, including the Style Revue on July 25 at Wayne, and the District Dairy Show at Norfolk on July 29.

Members reported on the home economics workshop held at Norfolk on July 8, and on Ponca Day Camp. Demonstrations were given by Crain Evans on welding, Darin Greinke on welding, Chris Mundt on measuring liquids and solids, Chad Evans on preparing vegetables for the fair, and Bobby Holtgreve on launching a rocket.

Mrs. Dennis Greunke reported on the float committee for the Old Settlers Reunion.

Put a pencil to pencil shrink

Cattle feeders looking for top prices on their stock should pay closer attention to possible income losses from pencil shrink — that 3-4 percent weight reduction levied by some buyers as compensation for expected losses between the time cattle are shipped, stored and slaughtered.

"I can understand doing that for feeder stock, when the animals are moving from farm to farm," says Tom Scott, Executive Secretary of the Omaha Live Stock Exchange.

"But doing it for fat cattle seems ridiculous and unfair to cattle feeders."

Scott maintains that fat cattle should be bought and sold for what they weigh at the time of purchase — not what some buyers are going to weigh further down the line. He warns that pencil shrink of 3-4 percent, which he feels is more than what most cattle actually lose, can cause even greater income losses if imposed at the place of delivery — not at the farm prior to shipping.

"You know your cattle are going to lose some weight during transportation," he adds. "So, if the buyer hits you with another 3-4 percent at the chute, you may end up doubling your losses."

FOR THESE REASONS, Scott says, pencil shrink is not permitted at the stockyards. All fat cattle are weighed at or near the time of sale.

The stockyards also takes steps to minimize natural shrink in the yards, giving cattle an ample supply of water and, at the seller's request, all the hay and feed supplements the cattle need.

"If cattle are properly handled, they shouldn't have to shrink more than 1 1/2 percent," says Dick Jensen, president of the Omaha Live Stock Exchange and owner of Byers Bros. Commission Company. "There are times when an animal at the stockyards will actually experience a net gain in weight."

The 1 1/2 percent natural shrink that may occur at the stockyards is still half of what most buyers arbitrarily impose, he adds.

To illustrate the income-loss potential from random pencil shrink, Scott offers the following hypothetical situation:

LET'S SAY THE going price for steers is 60 cents a pound, and a producer sends in a load of 40 weighing 1,200 pounds each, or 48,000 pounds total. If that load was charged with a 4 percent pencil shrink, the producer would automatically lose 1,920 pounds of a $1,520 of cattle, equaling $28.80 a head.

To show how much gross income buyers can gain from pencil shrink, Scott provides another scenario:

Let's assume a packer's total steer receipts for a Monday morning are 1,000, the animals weigh 1,200 pounds each, and the going rate is 60 cents a pound. If that buyer deducted 4 percent pencil shrink from the day's receipt, the producer would collect only 45,000 pounds of stock or $28,800.

"At a time when producers have to watch every dollar they spend, it's a shame that so many are unknowingly losing so much money," Scott concludes. "Next time producers are hit with pencil shrink, they ought to put a pencil to it and figure out how much they're losing and how much the buyer might be gaining. Chances are they'll want to call off the deal and take their business elsewhere."

Waste of area soil a staggering amount

Imagine soil that is in a pit 10 feet wide, 10 feet long and 5 1/2 feet deep. Well, that's what the average non-irrigated farm in Wayne County is losing every year per acre.

The figure for irrigated fields is even more staggering. The soil loss on an irrigated field would be 10 feet wide, 10 feet long and 6 1/2 feet deep. This would be the soil that the average acre of irrigated farm land would lose in one year in Wayne County.

Wayne County ASCS office and the Lower Elkhorn NRD have 75 cost-share programs available to those interested in conservation. For more information on conservation and conservation practices, contact the Wayne County Soil Conservation Service, 120 Logan.

ABOVE IS AN example of what water run-off can do to top soil in a field.

I make a habit of checking book tables on sale. I find some gems sometimes. Last month I got one with an intriguing title, "There's A Lot More to Health Than Not Being Sick," and I've been reading it this past week.

The author quotes one survey that says that 90 percent of the people who go to see a doctor have no medically treatable problems. The survey went on to ask what the doctor did for these people. Most of the respondents said they prescribed tranquilizers such as valium.

When asked what they would like to do for these people, most of the doctors said they would like to have had time to spend an hour a week talking to these patients about their lives, their families and their jobs.

The author, Bruce Larson, claims that laughter is powerful medicine, a person's need to be right may make one sick, too much security can speed up the aging process, hope is a primary factor in healing, positive people around you can affect your immune system; and finally, that you, not your doctor, should take responsibility for your health.

"I knew about the first and the last, and suspected the one about hope,

but had not heard about the other statements.

It's all part of the holistic health movement, which recognizes that we are all physical, mental and spiritual beings. And that each affects the other.

The "guru" of it all is a Nebraska physician, my family doctor when I was in high school in York County, Dr. Keith Sennel. Every home library should contain the two books he has written, "How To Be Your Own Doctor, Sometimes," and "Stress/Unstress."

ANOTHER SPOKESMAN for the movement is a young man named Tom Ferguson, editor of a magazine called Medical Self-Care. Tom attended medical school at Yale. During his senior year, he realized that many of the patients he was seeing in the hospital were there as a result of their lifestyles.

He published the first issue of the magazine as a senior project and has been doing it ever since. He has never practiced medicine.

These two and other spokesmen for health, gathered at a conference at Lake Geneva, Wis., which I attended with a friend a few years ago. It was quite an experience. Walking and logging in the mornings, fresh fruit and bran muffins for snacks and stretching and relaxing exercises were on the agenda. Cigarettes, of course, were not allowed. And one morning, I sneaked into the hotel coffee shop before the first session. The person opposite me exclaimed later, "She's had coffee. I can smell it on her breath!"

IT WAS HERE I first heard of "Anatomy of an Illness" by Norman Cousins. Cousins was experiencing severe pain and crippling from an arthritis-type illness. He was in the hospital, being treated with pain meds.

He decided to try treating himself. He checked out of the hospital into a hotel, got hold of Candid Camera videos and Laurel & Hardy movies and literally laughed himself to health. It's quite a story.

So, we've reduced our intake of caffeine and sugar, added fresh vegetables and fiber, tried to do more walking and maintained a sense of humor. All with lots of hugs.

Now there is more. We find that loneliness is unhealthy. Single people and those who have lost spouses have a higher incidence of illness and lower life expectancies.

We are told that Barbara Streisand was correct in singing, "People Who Need People Are The Luckiest People."

AND IN A BOOK called "Getting Well Again," the Simontons' a husband-wife, doctor-psychologist team, tell about cancer patients they have treated with mental imagery.

One whole chapter is devoted to the importance of forgiveness and our health. Grudge-bearing is very unhealthy. Besides, I learned long ago that it only harms the person bearing the grudge.

I also learned long ago the importance of a "Support System," a person who will respond with love and concern when we are in trouble.

Now Bruce Larson says it's even more important to have positive people around just to help us stay healthy. The relationship of the mind and our emotions to our physical health is amazing.

Thinking positive thoughts and giving and receiving positive strokes, with lots of laughter thrown in, are probably more effective than vitamins. And they are certainly cheaper and more fun. Let me know if you want to borrow the book.

Then people from the community donated money to purchase 24 additional flags. The 4-H Club bought small flags and handed them out to any child that would carry them in the July 4th parade.

The awards were handed out at a luncheon at the Villa Inn in Norfolk. Gov. Kerrey was accompanied by Miss Debra Winger. Fifteen adults and 25 children from Hoskins were among the 285 people that attended the luncheon.
