Special session plans put aside

viewpoint

by Melvin Paul
Despite the apparent success of their petition drive, LB 662 referendum organizers say they intend to continue gathering signatures until their Sept. 3 deadline.

Don Stenberg of Lincoln, the attorney for the Committee to Repeal LB 662, said the organization wants the additional signatures to "send a clear message" to state government that no action should be taken, nor any tax money spent, to foster the consolidation of rural schools.

On July 26, the committee filed with the Secretary of State referendum petitions containing an estimated 40,000 signatures. The number of valid signatures of registered voters on the petitions is expected to exceed the constitutional minimum to place the question of repeal on the November 1986 ballot.

The constitution specifies that a legislative bill may be referred to the ballot for the approval or rejection of voters with petitions bearing the names of registered voters equal to 5 percent of the number of Nebraskans who cast ballots in the last gubernatorial race, or in this case 27,395 signatures.

Referendum petitions bearing the signatures of registered voters equal to 10 percent of the electorate, or 54,790 signatures, have the additional effect of preventing a legislative bill from being incorporated into state statutes pending the outcome of the referendum, according to the constitution.

Stenberg said petition organizers want to achieve the higher number of signatures even though the substantive portions of LB 662 take effect after the 1986 general election.

LB 662 CALLS for Nebraskans to begin paying an additional 1 percent in sales tax beginning in January 1987 for the support of education. The bill requires elementary-only school districts to merge or affiliate with large district in 1989.

The surprise filing of the petitions brought a halt to Gov. Bob Kerrey's consideration of a special legislative session on educational issues this summer.

The constitution prohibits the Legislature from amending a bill that is subject to a referendum after the secretary of state verifies the signatures on the petitions. Such verification is expected this week.

Kerrey and his staff spent one frantic day after the filing of the petitions considering a special session call. Rather than seeking changes in the school financing portions of LB 662, as Kerrey had previously discussed, he mulled the possibility of seeking outright repeal of LB 662 in special session.

Such a plan, however, was unacceptable to anti-LB 662 forces. They expressed concern that the Legislature, after repealing the bill in special session, would come right back in the 1986 session and attempt to pass a mandatory consolidation bill again.

Until Kerrey backed off the special session idea late on July 29, preparation for calling lawmakers to Lincoln were in high gear.

KERREY CHIEF of Staff Don Nelson cleared his calendar of appointments unrelated to a special session. Without offering absolute assurances that it would actually take place, Nelson asked Clerk of Legislature Patrick O'Donnell to prepare for the opening of a special session at 5 p.m. July 30.

Deputy Attorney General Gene Crump was told to be prepared to draft the special session call.

The legislative chamber has been in considerable disarray over the summer as workers have been installing a new voting board and making other improvements.

O'Donnell ordered workers to put the chamber in order because of the high probability of a session.

Shortly before 2 p.m., Kerrey told reporters for the Lincoln Journal and The Associated Press that he had made the decision to call the session.

Within 30 minutes of Kerrey's confirmation, he sent word to reporters through his office manager that he may not call the session despite his earlier comments.

By the time the call arrived, the Lincoln Journal story of Kerrey's confirmation was in print and a bulletin had been moved on the AP wire.

At a 4 p.m. press conference, Kerrey, after a series of discussions with supporters and opponents of LB 662, backed off the special session call.

Gov. Kerrey tells reason special session cancelled

I will not call a Special Session of the Legislature to address the questions raised by LB 662.

Previously I had hoped that a special session could accomplish a better way away from property tax as the primary means of supporting our schools. It is clear a legislative consensus does not presently exist to accomplish this.

I was even willing, and have offered, to seek the repeal of LB 662 in special session so as to give us a clearer approach to the issues of school reorganization and school finance. This offer has been rejected by some senators who oppose school district reorganization and shifting away from property tax, as well as some senators who supported LB 662. I have read the comments of the referendum participants and have spoken to one of their leaders. We all believe that a special session would not result in the repeal of LB 662 or a meaningful reform of LB 662.

Nebraskans should not conclude that the absence of a special session (and my difficulty reaching a decision about its need) means that I have retreated on the issues contained in LB 662.

Reorganizations of our school districts must be accomplished, for tax equity, for educational quality and educational efficiency. It is inevitable and I believe it should be done soon. In fact, if I were a parent of a child in a good class one school, I would vote to retain LB 662 because I believe it goes as far as any legislation can to preserve the good small schools in Nebraska.

Similarly, on the issue of school finance I believe we must continue to examine our school costs as they relate to the property tax burden. I will continue to take this case to the people within the larger argument of our need to make our taxes broader and our rates lower.

The division over LB 662 and a possible special session has been considerable. This is supported by the recent call-in poll that showed that the callers were almost evenly split over the issue of a special session. It is now time to get back to the work in front of all of us.

Minor inconvenience

Highway construction on the heavy traffic streets of Wayne is soon to begin. And the police department is doing their best to assure that the detour routes be kept as safe as possible for drivers and pedestrians.

There will likely be large trucks that take the detour route. Parents along the detour should keep an eye on their young children who are not familiar with the surroundings and crossing streets of heavy traffic.

Motor vehicle operators should observe the detour markings — there are some stop signs where there were none before. It may mean parking will be a problem, since vehicles will be towed if parked on the detour streets.

For now, the highway construction will be an inconvenience. For those that hate to see the brick removed from the streets in favor of a different surfacing, we can see their reason of disappointment.

For those who want to see the bricks gone, the inconvenience will only be a step of progress.

Vital statistics report

Nebraskans are continuing current trends of living longer, marrying later in life, divorcing more often, having fewer children while married, and having more children out-of-wedlock, according to a Nebraska Department of Health report on 1984 vital statistics.

Nebraska residents live births declined for the fourth consecutive year, although births and the birth rate increased slightly nationally. The number of births declined to 26,099 in 1984 from 26,254 in 1983, and is expected to continue to decline statewide for several years. The state's estimated fertility rate decreased to 70.9 live births per 1,000 women aged 15 to 44 from 72.6 in 1983.

Out-of-wedlock births increased sharply after a small decline last year. Their number increased by 7.6 percent and their rate increased by 8.3 percent.

Matthew replaced John as the most popular name for boys, while Crystal ousted four-time winner Jennifer as the most popular name for girls. In all births, the average age of the mother at her first child's birth was 23.4, continuing a slight upward trend.

While the number of marriages decreased to its lowest since 1975, the number of divorces increased, reversing last year's trend. Only 13,274 marriages took place in Nebraska in 1984, a drop from 13,703 in 1983. The marriage rate dropped to its lowest since 1965. Divorces increased by 2.9 percent to 6,348.

The most frequent age for men at marriage continued to be 22, while for women it rose from 21 in 1983 to 22 in 1984, matching the men's age for the first time. The most frequently reported ages at divorce were 23 years for women and 28 years for men.

While the death rate in Nebraska declined to 9.1 per 1,000 in 1984 from 9.2 in 1983, the opposite occurred nationally as the rate rose to 8.7 from 8.6. The ten leading causes of death remained the same, but death caused by diabetes mellitus decreased sharply and suicide increased sharply, both reverses of 1983. In both cases, 1983 appeared to be the unusual year and 1984 more closely approximated what is expected. Drownings were at a record low. The 1984 increase in accidents, especially motor vehicle accidents, offset the previous year's decrease.

The leading cause of death continued to be heart disease in Nebraska. While cancer continued to be the second most frequent cause, its rate rose to a new high. Infant deaths decreased by 2.7 percent, setting a record low rate of 9.6 per 1,000 live births.

The average age at time of death also continued its upward trend: it was 72.7 years, an increase from 72.5 the previous year. The increase was caused totally by women, because the average age for men continued at 69.3, while for women increased to 76.4 years from 76.1 years.

Seeking workable solution with Japan Keeping in touch with foreign trade

Trading palsy
In the belief that the United States should no longer play a palsy for its trading partners, I have introduced a bill that would force the President to take action against quotas and other unfair trade barriers imposed against United States agricultural products.

I am a strong supporter of free trade, but this bill is designed to send a message to our trading partners, particularly Japan, that the unreasonable level of artificial restrictions which they maintain upon the importation of our farm products will not longer be tolerated. In addition, it will serve as a reminder to the Administration, United States trade representatives, and the leadership in the Congress of the importance of agricultural trade issues and of this need to continue our efforts to have these restrictions lifted.

The bill would require the President to impose trade restrictions on the importation of all products of those countries which unfairly restrict imports of agricultural products from the United States. The legislation would require the equivalent treatment of imports to the United States from those countries which unfairly restrict access to their own markets.

The United States has the fewest restrictions on imports of any nation. Yet, many sectors of the American economy are in difficulty as a direct result of a flood of Japanese imports. At the same time, Japanese restrictions on imports of United States red meats and citrus fruits are drastically limiting an important market for the American farmer.

JAPAN IS the largest foreign purchaser of American beef. But, the strong demand by Japanese consumers for more beef indicates an even greater potential market for American beef products. The United States is the only country in the world which can provide the Japanese with large quantities of high quality beef at an affordable price. Unfortunately, the existing quotas not only deny American beef producers access to a large and lucrative market for their product, but they also deny the Japanese consumers nutritious and inexpensive beef.

The protection of its domestic food producing capability is extremely important to the Japanese. Nevertheless, the Japanese cannot use funds which they currently collect in duties to expand subsidies for their domestic producers, thus protecting Japanese farmers, providing a better diet for their consumers, and opening their markets for additional imports from the United States. This course represents a workable solution which should satisfy all concerned parties.

This is a particularly appropriate time to push for a favorable solution to our trading difficulties with Japan. The United States Trade Representative, Rebecca Nebraskan Clayton Youtter, will travel to Japan in August to review their most recent trade proposals.

Nonprofit and IRS
Nebraska Veterans of Foreign Wars has expressed some concern to me that the Internal Revenue Service in some situations has been taxing the proceeds from their sale of Christmas cards as unrelated business income.

I am sponsoring a bill that would amend the Internal Revenue Service code to provide that the free distribution of low-cost articles by certain nonprofit organizations and veterans organizations in connection with a solicitation for charity does not constitute an unrelated business. In other words, the money should be considered a charitable donation.

Instructions tick off 'West Pointers'

I don't think I made many friends in West Point Friday night, at least not with the West Point Junior Legion baseball players.

Last Friday night, Wayne's Juniors played West Point in an emotionally high pitched game. And I'm afraid that I also became a little too emotional during a certain play which I'm sure irritated West Point's Juniors.

I don't know for sure who proclaimed it, but college instructors I had informed me about an unwritten rule that says sports writers should watch contests without displaying any emotion. In other words, sports writers should always remain calm during sporting events so they can produce an unbiased, objective account of games.

Well, that all sounds great and I'm sure there are sports writers that abide by that rule, but I'm not one of them.

I always get wrapped up in games when a team I cover is participating. And especially get excited when the game is important and close. After watching the first inning of Friday's game, fans could tell it was going to be close. And since the winning team advanced to the championship round, it was also an important game to win. So, needless to say, I was "into" the game.

I watched the first couple of innings from the grandstands before deciding to move down to the playing field and snap some pictures. Since Wayne's dugout was on the third base side, I went over to the first base side of the field, directly in front of the West Point dugout.

I took several action pictures but decided to stay a while longer just in case something really exciting happened. I'm glad I stayed because something really exciting did happen in the third inning.

In the third, West Point threatened to score when a player reached second base with no outs.

Wayne's Don Larsen then went into his stretch and his pitch short hopped catcher Chris Wieseler. The ball bounced off Wieseler's shin guard and rolled just a few feet away from where I was standing.

Wieseler didn't see where the ball went so Larsen came charging off the mound to retrieve the ball.

It was quite a jaunt for Larsen, and since he had to come such a long way, the West Point base runner decided to try and score from second.

As Larsen was running to the ball, I screamed "home, home, home," several times so he knew the player was trying to score. Larsen got the ball, fired home and got the out.

I don't know whether my screaming helped Larsen or not. He's a good, smart athlete and I'm sure he anticipated the player would try and score so I probably didn't help him or the rest of the Wayne players at all. Heck, he probably didn't even hear me.

But after the play was over, things got a little tense over by the West Point dugout. Let's just say I got the feeling that the West Point Juniors weren't thrilled about me hanging around.

So to try and break the tension, I asked one of the players what their record was.

"Thirty-and-six," he snapped.

"Oh, that's really good," I said as I moseyed back to the grandstands and over to my seat, which just happened to be behind the Wayne dugout.

I hope I don't get that carried away again. But if you read something in the paper about photographers getting mistreated by an opposing high school team, just mail all get well cards to The Wayne Herald and I'll have them forwarded to the hospital.

Blair dashes Wayne Juniors' state hopes with 6-5 extra inning win

WEST POINT Blair scored an unearned run in the bottom of the eighth inning to pull out its second win in as many nights over the Wayne Juniors and earn a berth to the Junior Legion State Baseball Tournament.

It's a shame certain games have losing teams, but unfortunately for Wayne's Juniors losing is part of competition and they came out on the short end of a 6-5 decision here Tuesday night.

Blair opened 2-0 and 5-2 leads throughout the game. But Wayne gradually battled back and tied the game at five in the sixth inning.

Neither team scored in the seventh frame, and Blair got Wayne out in order in the top of the eighth before scoring the Class B Area 3 Tournament's final run in the bottom of the inning.

Blair's game winning marker was anything but pretty. Its lead off hitter walked, moved to second on a passed ball and scored when a throw to first base caromed off the base runner's

Blair opened a 2-0 lead in the first inning but Wayne answered with one run in both the second and third frames.

Don Larsen doubled with one out in the second and scored on Brent Pick's looping liner to right field.

Wayne head coach Hank Overin dug into his bag of tricks to score Wayne's second run. After Kevin Maly tagged out a bum single, he advanced to third on a pair of stolen bases.

One out later, Steve Overin drew a walk and then purposely got in a run down. The "lacksadaical" Blair players forgot about Maly and the speedy center fielder scored easily to tie the game.

Blair used five walks and a single to build a 5-2 lead in the bottom of the third. But Wayne steadily came back with two runs in the fifth and one more in the sixth.

Overin led off the sixth with a walk.

Midgets bow out to Schuyler

WEST POINT Schuyler's Midgets consistently got out of jams and pushed across the game's only run in the seventh inning to end Wayne's season here Saturday in the opening round of the Class B Area 3 Baseball Tournament.

With the score tied at zero, Schuyler's lead off hitter singled, moved to second on a force play and scored the game winner on another single in the bottom of the seventh.

Wayne's Ted Lueders hurled a one-hit shut out through the first six frames, but every time Wayne threatened to score, Schuyler always managed to escape without allowing a run.

Wayne's biggest threat came in the fourth. With one out, Steve Lutt, Ted McCright, and Mark Creighton all drew consecutive walks to load the bases. However, the next two batters struck out and all three players were left stranded.

Wayne also knocked on the door in the sixth and fourth frames. In the sixth, Scott Nichols opened with a single and LUT followed with another hit. However, second base was all the farther Nichols advanced, as Schuyler got the next three batters in order to end the inning.

Wayne also had two players reach base in the third inning. As Nichols and Lutt did in the sixth, Jason Jorgensen and Rob Gamble opened the third with consecutive singles. But Wayne's next three batters again went down in order to ruin any rally hopes.

In Wayne's last at bat, they once again flirted with scoring. Gamble walked in the seventh inning with a single and then stole second. He was then sacrificed to third by Lueders but failed to score when the next batter went down swinging.

Wayne's biggest problem in the loss was striking out. Wayne batters struck out 14 times in the game, including three times in the second, fourth and fifth innings.

Schuyler never had a major threat until the seventh when they won the game. As a matter of fact, Lueders never allowed more than one base runner per inning until the seventh frame.

Gamble finished 2-for-3 at the plate with two singles and a stolen base. Rob Rabe went 1-for-1 while Lutt and Jorgensen also banged out one hit apiece.

Wayne made only one error and Schuyler finished with two fielding miscues. But Wayne left nine players on base and Schuyler stranded only three.

Wayne finishes the season with an impressive 17-6 record.

Reach title bout undefeated

Wayne stops West Point 4-1

WEST POINT Perhaps the biggest asset Wayne's Junior Legion baseball team has is its well-roundedness. Wayne doesn't rely on one or two heroes, but instead has many different players that consistently contribute.

And Wayne's victory over West Point in the Class B Area 3 Baseball Tournament here Friday night was a perfect example of its depth and well-roundedness as several different players came through with big plays for a thrilling 4-1 victory.

West Point's Pat Wordekemper and Wayne's Don Larsen were pitted against each other in a tremendous pitching duel. A dual that Wordekemper was winning until the sixth frame.

Wordekemper owned a no-hit shutout and a one run lead after five innings. But Wayne never quit and finally reached its opponents for four runs in the last time they batted.

Kevin Maly led off the bottom of the sixth with a walk and Dan Gross followed with Wayne's first hit when he flipped a double to right-center.

Gross' blast moved Maly and himself into scoring position, and knocked Wordekemper off the mound.

Steve Overin was then walked intentionally to load the bases, but West Point's misfortunes continued when Larsen followed with another walk to plate Maly with the tying run.

Ironically, Gross and Chris Wieseler combined for Wayne's winning run when Wieseler squeezed the speedy Gross home from third with a perfect bunt.

Gross and Wieseler both struck out in their first two plate appearances, but after Gross redeemed himself with the key double, Wieseler fought off a difficult high and inside pitch, positioned his bat vertically and bunted perfectly to score Gross with the eventual game winner.

Wayne attempted to squeeze home another run but Scott Baker fouled off the third strike for the second out. However, Jeff Hausmann picked up Baker and the rest of the squad when he delivered a clutch two-out, two-run single to provide Wayne with a three run cushion.

Hausmann's hit came immediately after warming up in the bull pen. He hardly had time to take a practice swing but stapped the first offering for a single.

West Point finally got out of the inning, but the damage was already done.

Larsen did walk the first man in the seventh and head coach Hank Overin inserted Hausmann to end the mild threat. Hausmann pitched seven strong innings in the second round of the tournament when Wayne downed Schuyler 6-1 Friday night, but the strong right hander showed no signs of arm fatigue and got the next three batters in order to end the contest.

home and Overin tagged out a West Point base runner who tried to score from second.

West Point nearly took a 2-0 lead in the fourth but a heady play by Wieseler ruined West Point's efforts.

Just after taking a 1-0 lead, West Point tried to squeeze home another marker. However, Wieseler hopped out of the crouch, grabbed the pitch and plopped the streaking runner from third over. Wieseler's play not only saved a run, but sent a message to West Point's players that home plate belonged to him.

Although Larsen gave up nine walks in six innings, he only allowed one hit and struck out 13, including at least two strike outs in every inning.

As mentioned in the initial paragraph, the game contained a number of heroes. In addition to Larsen's, Overin's, Gross's, Wieseler's and Hausmann's fine efforts, Shannon Dorsey collected one of Wayne's three hits, Baker made several nice plays at second base, Jeff Sherer drew a walk and Maly walked three times and stole two bases.

The victory improved Wayne's record to 24-12 and moved them just one win away from the state tournament.

and reached third on a Jeff Hausmann single. Overin scored when Larsen's grounder forced Hausmann and Larsen come home on an errant throw by Blair.

Wayne then tied the game when Maly beat out his second bunt and advanced all the way to third on another errant throw by Blair.

Dan Gross followed by hitting a slow roller to second. Blair made a play on Maly but it was much too late and Maly crossed the plate with the tying run.

Gross stole second and third and Coach Overin called for a squeeze play. However, the squeeze failed and so did Wayne's bid to take the lead.

Before Blair scored the game-winner, Steve Overin gave the crowd a thrill when he slugged a fast ball some 380 feet to right center to lead off the top of the eighth. However, Blair's right fielder snagged the ball as he leaned against the fence.

Wayne's biggest problems were allowing walks and leaving men on base. Blair only finished with two hits but drew 13 bases on balls. Meanwhile, Wayne stranded 11 players.

Maly collected the two bunt singles, while Overin, Hausmann, Larsen and Pick each finished with one hit.

The loss ends Wayne's season with a fine 24-14 mark.

Roberts places second at Norfolk

NORFOLK—Tom Roberts of Wayne placed second in the Men's 35 and Over division of the Norfolk Open Tennis Tournament here over the weekend.

Roberts, the defending champion of the Open the last three years for his age group, was forced to forfeit his championship match because of an injury he suffered during the doubles competition.

After receiving a first round bye, Roberts downed Dave Burkhardt of Tjlden in the quarterfinals 8-3, and then stopped Norfolk's Jim Oswieler in the semifinals 8-4.

However, his rib and hip injury forced him to postpone his championship match against Jim Miller of Hastings and Miller was awarded the championship.

"I thought about forfeiting the semifinal match because my ribs and hip were really hurting then. But I decided to keep on playing and won but there was no way I could play in the championship," Roberts said.

Roberts has been training for the Nebraska Tennis Association Closed Tournament, the most prestigious tennis tourney in Nebraska, but was forced to postpone that engagement too because of the injury.

"I've been practicing for the closed tournament in Omaha this weekend but it's going to take more than three days to heal so I decided to drop out," Roberts said.

Roberts is ranked fourth in the state in his division.

Nebraska to have wilderness areas

WASHINGTON, D.C.—United States Senator Jim Exon (D-Neb.) scored another victory late Thursday night when the U.S. Senate approved his legislation to establish the first national wilderness areas in Nebraska.

The legislation would designate 6,600 acres south of Chadron as the Pine Ridge Wilderness and 3,100 acres west of Crawford as the Soldier Creek Wilderness. The Soldier Creek area adjoins the Fort Robinson State Park. Both areas are located in the Nebraska National Forest.

"Senate approval of this legislation is most important to protect these areas in their natural state for our grandchildren and beyond," Exon said. "Nebraskans deserve to have these federal lands set aside from development. As wilderness areas, these lands will provide wildlife habitat, ecological diversity and opportunities for recreation and scientific inquiry," he added.

The legislation will not take any private land out of production. The measure is supported by the Sierra Club, Nebraska Governor Bob Kerrey, State Senator Sandra Scofield and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Finish state tourney 6-2

Wayne Sporting Goods places second

COLUMBUS—Wayne Sporting Goods placed second in the Men's Class B State Slow Pitch Softball Tournament here over the weekend.

The Wayne squad finished the 48 team tourney with a 6-2 record, including two straight victories on Saturday.

Pizza Hut of Crete won the tournament, while Wall's Drug of Allison finished third and Coach's Corner of Cozad placed fourth.

Pizza Hut downed Wayne Sporting Goods 8-4 in the title bout. A big first inning sunk Wayne as Pizza Hut opened a quick 5-1 lead in the first and was able to maintain the four run cushion throughout the rest of the contest.

Mike Breske, Jeff Dion and Chuck

Hackenmiller each collected two hits apiece in the championship game.

Wall's Drug beat Wayne earlier in the tourney, but Wayne came back and pounded them 14-0 in the semifinals. Sporting Goods erupted for all of its runs in the first three innings.

Eight players collected two hits for Wayne in the semis, and Dennis Danielson ripped a pair of home runs.

Wayne started the tournament extremely hot by claiming 19-5 and 7-1 victories over Leise's Bar of Hartington and Sutherland, respectively, on Saturday.

Breske and Danielson both finished with four hits apiece in the Leise's Bar triumph, while Mick Daehnke and Hackenmiller both collected three hits.

Dion sparked Wayne with three hits in the Sutherland game, while teammates Brad Jones, Daehnke and Kim Baker each finished with two hits. Also, Jones and Jay Jackson made key diving stops in the Sutherland triumph.

The closest game for the Wayne squad at the tourney was their first game on Sunday when they rallied for four runs in the seventh and pulled out a 5-3 victory over First National Bank of Chadron.

Ron Ahrens, Jones, Gary Waggoner and Hackenmiller scored Wayne's runs in the seventh frame and Danielson went 3-for-3 at the plate.

When Wayne dropped a 15-10 decision to Wall's Drug, Danielson led the team in hitting going 4-for-4.

Wayne also pulled out a 9-8 decision over Tri-City Motors of Gering before thumping Coach's Corner 12-2.

In the Tri-City win, Baker and Daehnke finished 3-for-4, while Daehnke and Ahrens each totaled three hits in the Coach's Corner triumph.

The top three teams qualified for the National Tournament in South Dakota on Labor Day Weekend. However, Wayne passed up the tourney bid which allowed Coach's Corner to attend.

Blair stays alive with 8-5 victory

WEST POINT—Blair overcame a three run Wayne lead and stayed alive in the Class B Area 3 Baseball Tournament championship round here Monday night.

Wayne built a 3-0 lead after three innings Monday night, but Blair scored five runs in the fourth and three more in the fifth to pull out an 8-5 win and force a final game Tuesday night.

The emotional Wayne squad started quickly. After holding Blair scoreless in the first, Kevin Maly led off Wayne's half of the first by reaching on an error and Dan Gross followed by reaching on a bunt single.

Steve Overin then provided Wayne with a 2-0 edge when he "fisted" a double to right field to plate Maly and Gross.

Overin then reached third on a passed ball and Wayne head coach Hank Overin called for a squeeze play. However, there was a mixup and Overin was easily tagged out at home which forced Wayne to settle for the two runs.

But Wayne came back in the third and added to its lead when Overin made a heady base running play.

After Gross flied out to center to start the third, Overin walked and stole second. Don Larsen followed by drawing a walk and Chris Wieseler bounced to the shortstop.

Blair went for the double play. As Larsen was forced to second, Overin rounded third and Blair failed to force Wieseler at first, allowing Overin to score easily.

But Overin's run was the last time Wayne enjoyed the lead as Blair used four singles and two walks to open a 3-3 lead in the top of the fourth.

Jeff Hausmann, the starting pitcher for Wayne, tried to help his own cause by opening the bottom of the fourth with a towering blast to dead center field. Hausmann's shot just missed going out of the park and he ended up on second. However, Wayne's next three batters went down in order and second base was all the farther Hausmann advanced.

Blair then took a comfortable five run lead in the fifth when two singles and three walks resulted in three runs.

Overin and Wieseler reached base in the Wayne fifth but failed to score.

But Wayne did come back with one run in the sixth and a serious scoring threat in the seventh.

Larsen led off the bottom of the seventh with a sharply hit double to right center. Wieseler and Scott Baker followed with consecutive walks and Larsen scored on a passed ball to make the score 8-5.

Wieseler and Baker both advanced into scoring position on the passed ball but Wayne's next two batters went down swinging.

Jeff Sherer then followed by ripping a fast ball up the middle. But Blair's pitcher made a nice catch to ruin Wayne's rally and end the game.

Tim Fleming scored Wayne's run in the sixth. Hausmann started the inning by walking and Fleming was inserted as a pinch runner. Two outs later, Gross delivered a clutch two-out single to score Fleming.

Although Wayne lost, Blair was forced to throw its ace pitcher, Tom Foley, two innings. Wayne, on the other hand, saved ace Larsen for Tuesday's title bout.

Wayne finished with five hits. Gross went 2-for-4, while Overin, Hausmann and Larsen each doubled once.

Blair collected six hits but made the most of nine walks and an error. Blair finished with six errors.

End season with 12-9 mark

Hartington stops Wayne 15-2

The Wayne town team's season came to a screeching halt when Hartington claimed a 15-2 victory in the second game of the three game series at Overin Field Sunday night. Wayne entered the Hartington series with a seven game win streak and swept Battle Creek in the tournament's first round. However, Hartington captured a lopsided 20-4 in the opening game Friday night before the easy 15-2 triumph on Sunday.

After Hartington scored a run in the first inning, Wayne had a chance to take a quick lead or tie the game in its first at bat when Mike Breske and Todd Dorsey tied off with consecutive singles. However, Wayne's next three batters struck out to ruin any rally possibilities.

Hartington reached Wayne pitcher Joel Ankeny for two more runs in the third but Wayne was still in the battle and only trailed 4-0.

However, Hartington's power hitters came to life in the fourth when Neil Blahny and Don Hagee sandwiched homers around a Scott Driver single to take a 4-0 lead.

Hartington then chased Ankeny and erupted for three more markers in the fifth to open a 9-0 lead.

Doug Carroll came in the sixth inning for Ankeny and got Hartington out in order on three straight grounders to Breske. But Hartington poured it on in the late innings and scored two markers in the seventh and four more in the eighth to blow the game wide open.

Wayne's bats finally came to life in the seventh. Jerry Morris led the seventh off with a walk and Todd Dorsey followed by delivering a clutch two-out double to plate Morris. Dorsey then scored when Hartington misplayed a hit by Mike Startl.

But Hartington got the final out in the seventh and Wayne went down in order in the eighth to end the game.

Hartington collected 16 hits in Sunday's game and finished the two game series with a whopping 45 hits.

Hartington pitcher Sterling Stolpe checked Wayne on five hits. Dorsey finished 2-for-4 while Breske, Ankeny and Morris each collected one hit apiece.

Hartington will now face the winner of the Laurel/Crofton series for the championship. Crofton took the series' opening game 13-10 on Sunday.

Wayne's season was an up and down one. After owning a bleak 5-7 record, Wayne won seven games in a row and improved to 12-7. However, the Hartington series ends Wayne's record at 12-9 overall and 11-9 in league play.

Harvesting, curing and storing onions

To keep onions in good condition or store them for a long time, you must harvest them at the right time and properly cure them.

Allow them to grow until most of the tops have fallen over naturally. Breaking over the tops will interrupt growth; bulbs will be small and will not keep well.

Pull the plants in the morning. Allow the plants to air-dry in the garden until late afternoon. Then, place them in a dry shelter with good air circulation for about three weeks to complete the drying and curing process. When cured, cut the tops to about two inches in preparation for storage.

Iris division

Iris need to be divided every 2 to 4 years to prevent crowding and for propagation purposes. This usually is done about 6 to 8 weeks after the flowering period, which generally places it about the first part of August. If not done yet, do so as soon as practical.

Cut back the tops to about 6 inches above ground level. Then dig out or lift the clump to be divided and rinse off the soil with water.

The plump part that has the roots attached is called a rhizome. Cut it apart with a sharp knife; each division should have a fan of leaves, a few inches of healthy rhizome and a number of well developed roots.

In heavy soil, plant the division so the top of the rhizome is about 1 to 2 inches above ground level.

Peonies

Peonies usually are planted or transplanted in the fall. The plants are hardy and adapted to all parts of the state. Some types, such as tree peonies, should be utilized more than they are in landscapes. September or early October is the suggested time for planting. Peonies prefer a rich, well drained soil in a sunny location. Select plants with 3 to 5 healthy buds and a good root system. The plant should be set so the top of the buds are about 1 to 1 1/2 inches below the ground level. Water well and mulch the first year in mid to late November.

Drying flowers

Two methods of preserving plant materials adapted to most plants are drying and silica gel. Use air drying on flowers that do not readily, such as blue salvia, delphinium, goldenrod, grains and grasses. Dry large flowered plants, such as roses and zinnias, in silica gel.

For air drying, select an airy, warm, dark and dry location like a closet or furnace room, cut flowers on a sunny day; select material that is in peak condition. Remove all foliage from the stems, group the stripped stems into small bunches, tie securely and suspend head downward on coat hangers or ceiling pipe. Material is dry in about 10 days.

Silica gel can be used as a chemical method of removing water to preserve flowers. Place top quality flowers in a container, such as a cake pan, ice cream carton or shoe box. Sift silica gel carefully around each flower. Most flowers dry in three or four days.

Evaluating tillage and planting treatments

Soybean soil erosion can be minimized

Methods to minimize soil erosion following soybeans were presented at a recent American Society of Agricultural Engineers meeting by four University of Nebraska-Lincoln agricultural researchers.

Research conducted at two Nebraska sites, showed that no-till practices, narrow rows and contouring can help reduce erosion. The research was conducted by David Shelton and Elbert Dickey, agricultural engineering associate professor; Paul Jasa, extension engineer; and Thomas Peterson, extension technologist.

Following soybean harvests, the soil surface cover often approaches 90 percent. However, soybean residue tends to be fragile and easily destroyed by tillage operations. The fragile residue combined with the loose, mellow soil that generally occurs following soybeans substantially ly contributes to the erosion from soybean production areas," the report said.

The primary objective of the research was to evaluate soil erosion during the period between spring planting and crop canopy establishment for selected tillage systems used in soybean residue. In Nebraska, this is when the greatest potential for erosion producing rainstorms occurs.

A RAINFALL simulator was used to compare soil losses from various tillage systems, used in residue resulting from soybeans which had been grown in wide and narrow spaced rows. One site had silty clay loam soil with a 5 percent slope and one had silty loam soil with a 10 percent slope.

Tillage and planting treatments ranging from a "midboard" plow system to no-till were evaluated. Operations were conducted up-and-down hill and on the contour on replicated plots.

"Soil erosion was reduced by more than 50 percent for tillage and planting systems conducted in narrow spaced soybean residue compared to wide spaced residue, provided that planting into the residue was done with wide row spaced equipment. However, soil erosion increased by nearly 9 percent when narrow row planting equipment was used on narrow spaced soybean residues," Shelton said.

Runoff from contouring was reduced by an average of 45 percent on the 10 percent slope and by 25 percent on a silty clay loam soil with a 5 percent slope.

SOIL LOSS was reduced by an average of 74 percent for systems used on the contour rather than up-and-down hill. All tillage systems compared showed a significant reduction in erosion and erosion rate with contouring.

The till-plant system used in wide row residue had a greater concentration of sediment in the runoff water and a greater soil erosion rate than any other combination of system, row spacing and planting direction evaluated. For effective erosion control the till-plant system should be used only on the contour, the study said.

No-till planting, without exception, left the most residue on the soil surface and had the least soil loss. This treatment was about 55 percent lower than the disk treatments. Other tillage systems did not consistently meet the minimum conservation tillage criterion of 20 percent residue cover. Even a system consisting of one pass with a tandem disk, and a planting operation could not be classified as conservation tillage in soybean residue, according to findings in the experiment.

A psychologist named Maslow has defined a "hierarchy of needs" which he claims are common to all human beings. At the bottom of the pyramid are such things as food and shelter. After such basic items, he lists love, self-esteem, appreciation, affirmation, etc. He says people will sometimes do desperate things to achieve these needs. And he makes a convincing case for providing them for our families. Most of us who work with people are convinced that his theory has merit.

I mention this because there was a letter in the Public Pulse of the World Herald last week on the subject of appreciation, written by my neighbor, Henry Langenberg Jr. I'm declaring him the friend of farmer's wives.

Earlier, an Iowa banker had been quoted as saying he was having a tough time convincing Iowa farmers not to take their wives out to eat every Saturday night. Henry claims that is a bunch of rot.

He says when he takes Evelyn out for dinner, they spend a maximum of $30. That comes to $120 a month, and it's not what is causing his debt problem.

He's issued an invitation to that banker for his wife to come to Hoskins and do what Evelyn does: cook for four men, bring lunches to the field, run errands, and all the other jobs of a typical farm wife.

He ends his letter by stating that his wife deserves supper out once a week. This is a man who shows appreciation.

THE CURRENT crunch is causing some difficult cutting, that's for sure. It makes for difficult decisions. Any expense is too much at today's prices.

The Big Farmer did take me out for supper last Saturday night, and we discussed the letter with two other farm couples. We decided that:

2. Even once a month would be sufficient.

3. And bankers like to give advice. Farm wives deserve appreciation. These days, I see them working outside the farm home, in hospitals and nursing homes, schools, veterinarians' offices, newspapers, chicken farms, factories, and grocery stores.

Not only are they preparing the meals, they're paying for them; and doing their best to keep their farmer where he wants to be.

They're maintaining a sense of humor, a positive outlook and faith. One farmer told me last week that there was only one thing he feared worse than going broke, and that was going broke alone, without his wife.

So, you guys, show her some appreciation. Take her out to eat, buy her a sentimental card, pick her a bouquet-of-wild flowers.

I HEARD someone on TV say last night that chocolates are "band-aids for the soul." There is scientific evidence that chocolate elevates the enzyme in the brain that is depleted in depression.

One of the spending decisions we made was to send kids to Wayne State's music camp again, and we appreciate the music department there for another great camp. We attended free concerts and heard everything from jazz to swing to classical to big band sound.

Wayne and Winside were well represented. A local talented boy, Kurt Runestad, was crowned king. Area music teachers were featured in a jazz choir presentation on Saturday night. A well-known Wayne band director surprised us all with his improvisation on "Route 66," vocally!

There were 378 campers. That's a lot of musicians. One son, "What Would I Do Without My Music," had the most meaningful lyrics: "It seems right when everything seems wrong — it lites me up so I can carry on."

Farmers, try singing to her. But remember to appreciate her!

- expand conservation tillage for row crop acreage;
- expand no-till planting for row crop acreage; and
- significantly increase the number of farm conservation plans.

The reasons for not constructing new erosion control structures commonly cited by area landowners include inability to utilize larger farm equipment, the maintenance requirements of conservation structures, and lost for product, and cost.

"Only 21 percent of the upland area is adequately protected from soil erosion," said Dr. Elbert Dickey, CES Agricultural Conservation Engineer, who will also be working in the project area. "We hope to familiarize the landowners of the value conservation features have to offer."

A full-time team will be assigned to the project consisting of an extension technologist, SCS soil conservationist and soil conservation technician. Assisting when needed will be the extension agents and SCS personnel from Cumming, Thurston and Wayne Counties.

THE STUDY AREA will also feature additional educational demonstrations and activities, including conservation tillage demonstrations featuring a rainfall simulator, side by side demonstration plots depicting various facets of conservation tillage, an annual conservation workshop and video tapes, slide shows and publications.

SCS responsibilities in the project include:

- funding the cost of the extension technologist and a portion of the cost of other extension efforts;
- conducting a servicing system to contact all landowners to accelerate the application of land treatment practices;

- develop conservation plans for landowners interested in applying a conservation system; and
- assist the CES with tours, demonstrations, meetings and other informational activities.

The Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District will provide part-time staff to the project and will contribute up to $100,000 annually toward the cost-share program in the project. As a result of conservation treatment initiated through the program, cooperating landowners may also become eligible for payments from the district's Lands for Conservation Program and Conservation Tillage Demonstration Plots Program.

OTHER AGENCIES contributing to the study area and their role are:

- ASCS (cost-share assistance);
- Farmers Home Administration (loan assistance);
- Villages of Pender and Bancroft (meeting facilities); and,
- Cumming, Thurston, and Wayne County Governing Boards (advisory assistance).

The project is similar in scope and purpose to the interagency Maple Creek Model Implementation Project, in Stanton, Colfax and Platte counties, that was completed in 1962.

IN ADDITION, The University of Nebraska's Ag Energy and Soil and Water Conservation Project is helping with the conservation tillage and no-till aspects of the project. "We will use the experience and know-how acquired from the Maple Creek and ongoing soil and water conservation efforts to make the Logan Creek Project a success," Lewis said.

Sutko PCA, FLBA President

Mark A. Sutko has been selected as the new President of the two Production Credit Associations and two Federal Land Bank Associations operating in the Northeastern portion of Nebraska. The appointment is effective Aug. 5, according to Victor Lubbber, Board Chairman of the Norfolk Federal Land Bank Association and Donald Werkmeister, Board Chairman of the Norfolk Production Credit Association.

The selection of Sutko as President is part of a previously announced common management plan for the Omaha Farm Credit District to increase operational efficiencies and effectiveness of PCAs and FLBAs. Sutko will serve as President of the Norfolk and Columbus Production Credit Associations and the Federal Land Bank Associations of Norfolk and Columbus, which are currently operating in this area of the new region. Under this reassignment, operations of the Production Credit Associations and Federal Land Bank Associations will be handled by a common staff of employees, enabling associations to provide comprehensive packages of credit and related services to farmer and ranch members.

Sutko was President of the Columbus FLBA prior to this selection. His farm credit experience includes credit related positions in the Columbus FLBA and the Omaha District Bank. He is a native of Clark. He and his wife have four children.

Cutworm moths depositing eggs

"Western bean cutworm moths are continuing to fly and deposit egg masses in corn, according to Fred Baxendale, University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension entomologist."

Most of the activity appears to be in the southwestern, west central and northern parts of the state, he said.

Scouting for egg masses and newly hatched larvae should continue — especially in pre-fallow corn. "Fields that have already pollinated are less attractive to egg-laying moths and survival of young larvae will be reduced," Baxendale said.

Treatment is recommended by UNL entomologists when 8 to 14 percent of the plants are infested with egg masses on leaves and/or newly hatched larvae in whorls.

"Corn should be fully tasseled when treatments are applied and best results are obtained when egg hatch has reached 70 to 90 percent," Baxendale said.

Insecticide recommendations for Western bean cutworm and other corn pests are available at local Cooperative Extension Service offices.

Payments resume under CCC programs

Offices of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service have been instructed to resume making program payments, ASCS Administrator Everett Rank announced today.

Payments for commodity credit programs were suspended July 17 because USDA's Commodity Credit Corporation had nearly depleted its $25 billion borrowing authority.

Resumption of program payments was authorized by Rank after an emergency $1 billion to sustain the borrowing authority of CCC was provided in legislation passed by the Congress and signed by President Reagan.

Logan Creek Special Study Area project formed

Farmers in northeast Nebraska along Logan Creek will be receiving additional help to reduce soil erosion and sedimentation through the new interagency Logan Creek Special Study Area, according to Sherman Lewis, Soil Conservation Service state conservationist.

In addition to cooperating landowners and SCS, other principal participants in the project are the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, Cooperative Extension Service, Nebraska Natural Resources Commission, and the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District.

"Logan Creek is an area with sheet and rill erosion that averages 14 tons per acre annually, nearly three times the acceptable rate for the silt loam soils that dominate the area," said Lewis.

"The project goal is to make a coordinated action to increase the application of conservation practices, such as terraces, contour farming, waterways, grade stabilization structures, water and sediment control basins, and accelerate the acceptance of conservation tillage systems such as no-till and ridge plant," he said.

The Logan Creek Special Study Area includes more than 49,000 acres in Cumming, Thurston and Wayne Counties, including the towns of Pender and Bancroft. The good news. You can still lock in decent rates at Occidental Nebraska. It's a great hedge against continued falling rates.

Lock in a great rate, now. Choose a certificate term from 2 to 5 years; $500 minimum. Of course, your savings are insured safe up to $100,000 by the FS LIC.

Inviting stream

WATER LEVELS in creeks and streams may be down, but that fact doesn't detract from the quiet and beauty of a winding stream that passes through the countryside near Concord. It almost wants to make a person grab a fishing pole and sit in the shade to pass an afternoon away.

Litter pick-up

ST. JOHN'S LUTHERAN Youth group of Pilger picked up litter on Highways 275 and 15, near Pilger. This type of work is paid for through Farmers Union of Nebraska and is available to all types of community groups. The Youth Group was paid by the mile depending on the type of road surface. Kevin Kolar is sponsor of the youth group. Those shown in the picture are Diane Schulz, Billy Schulz and Angie Benedict. Funds have been provided for picking up litter as a grant from the Department of Environmental Control, Litter Reduction and Recycling Fund (a tax on businesses selling items likely to be littered). The goal of Farmers Union is to point out what a big problem roadside litter is in Nebraska and to push for cleaning up our roads. Seventy percent of all cans are now recycled in Nebraska.
