Gets conservation award

Noe dedicates years to saving soil

by Chuck Hackenmiller

So when your son assumes the mortgage on the farm that's known his foil, he will have to ask the question: "Here is the land, but where is the soil."

written by Leslie Noe

"Minimum tillage as practiced today is very much needed in soil and water savings."

So says Leslie Noe, a 70 year old man who has spent all but four of those years on his present 310 acre family farm along Highway 20 northeast of Dixon.

Leslie and his wife, Frances (a former school teacher), were recently honored for their many years of conservation work on their farm with a special award distributed at a Lower Elkhorn Natural Resource District Board of Directors meeting in late July.

The award was presented by the Northeast Nebraska Chapter of the Soil Conservation Society of America.

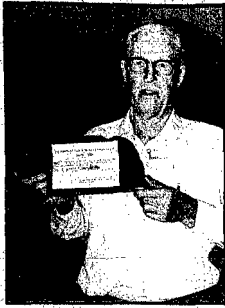

On the award is inscribed: "For demonstrating outstanding stewardship of our natural resources throughout the years."

Some of Leslie's ideas of soil conservation on the hilly farm ground were implanted by his father. "He made rows crossways on the hills before he retired," Leslie said.

THE IMPORTANCE of soil conservation stayed with Leslie through college. While attending Wayne State College in 1935, during his freshman year, he wrote a term paper on conservation — prompted heavily by President Roosevelt's decision to start a soil conservation program.

"It [soil conservation] stayed with me after that," he said.

He served in 1943 on the first Dixon County Soil Conservation Board. In 1944-45, Leslie and his brother Oliver made grass waterways and later on Leslie and his brother-in-law, Marvin has worked at drilling soybeans during planting. "This seems to hold the soil better and there are no open rows for the soil to run off," he said.

"He also rotates his pasture ground and cross fences — all a precautionary step in reducing the soil erosion."

Because he was on the first county soil conservation board, Leslie figured he needed to establish a reputation and set an example for soil conservation. In the days when Roosevelt issued the soil conservation practice program, the practices were initiated slower on the county level. Townships, in the early years, were letting farmers obtain a maintainer and operator to build terraces on the hills.

"A few people built terraces back then, but later decided to do away with them," he said.

BUT NOT Leslie. He stuck with it and has earned an award for his conserving efforts.

Those interested in working their ground to reduce soil conservation should check into the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resource District and ASCS programs to see if cost-sharing is available. "Our one-quarter cost share of 1985 work on terraces and waterways was $1,700," he said.

"We very much appreciate the time and effort expended by the members on the boards of the Natural Resource Districts of our area," he noted.

He pointed out another thought which has remained an utmost priority in his farming career. If top has stayed with him ever since his freshman year at Wayne State College.

"I learned that for every inch of topsoil lost — takes 1,000 years to replace," he said.

The special award he received is almost like icing on the cake.

"It's a good feeling that my wife and I share, after our efforts all these years of promoting soil conservation."

Green, used a small Ford tractor equipped with a large rolling disk to make terraces on the hilly ground.

Today, almost his entire crop ground is in terraces. "And we're still building and rebuilding," he said. "With help from the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resource District and the Agricultural Stabilization Conservation Service (ASCS)."

"Twenty years ago, we made what is called a water dugout which tapped an underground spring for cattle water on pasture. It is still being used today," Leslie added.

"And some 35 years ago we practiced an early form of minimum tillage for corn planting which reduced much soil loss and also saved moisture," he added.

THE NOES had five plantings of cedar, pine, lilacs and cottonwood trees as windbreaks of building sites. "Trees make snow breaks and are beautiful, too," he said.

"We like to furnish a pine tree at church for Christmas time," he said and chuckled.

On the farm is an acre pond which provides "a place for people to fish and swim."

WSC gets $25,000

Wayne State College will be receiving a $25,000 grant from The Omaha World-Herald Foundation.

The grant announcement was received in the mail Friday morning by Wayne State College Interim President Dr. Don Whisenhunt.

"As part of the celebration of the 100th year of The Omaha World-Herald, we are pleased to inform you [Wayne State College] that The Omaha World-Herald Foundation will be making a grant of $25,000 to Wayne State College," wrote John Gottschalk, president and chief operating officer of The Omaha World-Herald.

"We have long held a special interest in the education of your state's youth. This year we want to share our good fortune as a statewide business with Wayne State College," Gottschalk noted.

In May of this year, The Omaha World-Herald Foundation had provided Kearney State College with a $50,000 grant. The special Centennial grant was used by Kearney State College for the newly enacted Kearney Hub World-Herald Honors Scholarship, expected to be one of the most prestigious awards the college will make to gifted students.

Interest from the $50,000 grant will be used to fund the scholarships.

Gottschalk submitted a copy of an article written by The Kearney Hub on Kearney State's scholarship plan. "The article provides insight into our interest in attracting top scholars to Nebraska institutions and indirectly attempting to keep our best minds in the state," Gottschalk said.

Whisenhunt, on vacation, was not available Saturday for comment as to how Wayne State College plans to utilize the grant money.

LABO program a 'good experience'

by Mrs. Dudley Blachford
Dixon correspondent

It's quite a distance from Osaka, Japan to Dixon, Nebraska.

In fact, it is about 7,000 miles. But for Yukihiro Torimura, joint-sponsor and chaperone of 55 junior high students in the 4-H LABO-Exchange Program, it is a most interesting experience.

The group left Osaka on July 23 and upon landing in Omaha, attended a camp for two days at Gretna, Nebraska.

From there, Torimura became a guest at the home of Harold and Marie George of Dixon. The 55 young people who accompanied Torimura, mostly 12 to 16 years of age, are living for a month in eastern Nebraska homes — two are living in Dixon County and another in Cedar County — to learn about life in mid-America.

Torimura, who along with chaperones or sponsors in Adams and Antelope Counties, is responsible for the welfare of the junior high Japanese students.

"He hears often from them during their stay in American homes. Most of them say they are happy and having a good time."

But a few will admit they are homesick and "a tear falls once in a while," he said.

TEN YEARS from now, the Japanese students will look upon this LABO experience as very good, Torimura mentioned.

"Everybody (the visiting students) says the [Nebraska] families are kind and appreciative," he added.

The LABO 4-H Youth Exchange Program has been operating for the past 14 years — 10 years in Nebraska. At least 1,000 Japanese young people have made the trip this year to 20 different states across America.

Japanese parents enroll their children in the LABO English study program sometimes as early as 3 years of age and they may continue the study through the completion of high school.

The program is privately financed by the parents.

JAPANESE STUDENTS meet twice weekly, after their regular school day, to study English on tapes and participate in activities such as conversation, games and nursery rhymes. They also develop skills in expressing themselves in English.

When the students reach the junior high or high school level, they are eligible to come to the United States and spend a month in an American home, learning the American language and culture.

Three hundred 4-H'ers from the United States, including some from Nebraska, are in Japan this summer as exchange students.

Torimura, who is on his third trip to America (having been in Iowa in 1977 and Oklahoma in 1982) was born in Manchuria. He graduated from the private Hokoido University in Japan. He worked in Tokyo for three years prior to arriving in Osaka. He worked for a trading company.

His family includes his wife, Eiko, who is presently working as a secretary for a machine company in Osaka. Two daughters, Miki (age 14 and in junior high) and Shiko (age 10 and elementary student); and one son, Koichi, who is nine and also an elementary school student.

"WHEN ASKED what he (Torimura) thought of American food, he was a real diplomat — saying he liked sweet corn and green beans.

His host family (the Georges) has taken him to the Northern Great Plains NRD meeting and to Nebraska's state capital, Lincoln. They also attended the Dixon County Fair in Concord, visited Ponca State Park, went to an auction sale and gathered at other places of interest in the county.

Among the items of interest, Torimura said, was watching an irrigation system in operation. He had never seen one in operation before.

Torimura and his group will be gathering in Omaha, Aug. 21, for departure back to Japan on the following day.

Two Japanese men were in the George's home this past weekend (Aug. 11 and 12). The Georges and Torimura met Nobuo Ishikawa of Ashikaga, Japan on Sunday.

Torimura convinced Ishikawa to take up the opportunity to be in an American home and so Ishikawa was invited to spend the night at the George's home.

Ishikawa left his homeland in May, 1973 to travel by bicycle around the world, once landing upon the countries. From Japan he has biked in Australia, New Zealand, Mexico and every country in South America.

LEAVING Buenos Aires, Argentina by plane, he arrived in New York on July 12.

W-C sets school schedule

Regular classes for students in the Wayne-Carroll School District will commence at 8:30 a.m. on Thursday, Aug. 29.

Buses will run regular routes on that day. Students riding the buses will be mailed a bus route prior to the opening day of school and will be able to anticipate the approximate time of the bus arriving at their residence, according to Superintendent Francis Haun.

Buses will leave the Wayne schools at approximately 4 p.m. on Aug. 29.

Haun said students who are new to the Wayne-Carroll School District and have not yet registered are asked to do so immediately. School offices are open daily from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Prices of school lunches for the coming year will be: high school and middle school students, daily, $1.20, weekly, $5.75; elementary school students, daily $1.10, weekly, $5.25; adults, daily $1.45, weekly, $7.25.

There will be two sections of kindergarten in Wayne, with the morning session running from 8:30 to 11 a.m.; the afternoon session running from 12:30 to 3 p.m.

He has cycled over 15,000 miles on the same bicycle with no problems and carries his tent, pitching it at night after cooking his evening meal. "I have always liked bicycling and when biking around Japan I decided I wanted to see the world," he said.

He has worked in Tokyo and Australia to finance his travels. His parents and an older brother live in Ashikaga, where his father works at a plastic manufacturing company that makes ball point pens.

Nobuo, who expects to reach Los Angeles in November, remarked that everyone along the way has been kind and friendly.

Especially in Nebraska.

All other classes commence at 8:30 a.m., with first grade and second grade dismissing at 3:15 p.m., third grade and fourth grade at 3:30 p.m., Middle School students will dismiss from 3:35 p.m. to 3:54 p.m. and the high school will dismiss at 4 p.m.

CARROLL SCHOOL classes will start at 8:20 a.m. and dismiss at 3 p.m. The kindergarten classes will be in the afternoon. Parents will be contacted by the bus driver as to pick-up time.

On the first day of school, seventh and eighth grade students are asked to pick up their class schedules in the gymnasium at 8:30 a.m. Fifth and sixth grade students will find their room assignments posted outside their classrooms.

Ninth grade students are asked to report to the lecture hall for orientation on Thursday, Aug. 29 at 8:30 a.m. Students in grades 10, 11 and 12 are requested to report to the high school gymnasium to pick up their class schedule cards at 8:10 a.m. and report to regular classes at 8:30 a.m. Teachers will report at 8:15 a.m. on Aug. 26, 27 and 28 for workshop activities. Haun noted.

I know John Prather originally writes the sports columns. He's pretty good at that. But there is something that bothers me. It hit me about this time last year and it has built up to extremely high pitch.

Nebraska Cornhusker season is upon us. We'll be seeing Red for the next six or seven months now and I'm certainly not ready for it.

There's just too much other things going on now. Wayne State Wildcats got picked number two in the conference football standings (and Pete Chapman wasn't the only one to cast a first place vote this year).

The streets that carry the most traffic in Wayne are being torn up to streets—and the bricks have disappeared.

Timple, Inc. has got a lot of the steel framework up on its manufacturing plant.

Yet, hearts drop when hearing about the quarterback selection problem at Nebraska, and that the freshman class is deemed a slight disappointment as far as physical testing is concerned.

All except for Wayne's walk-on fullback-linebacker Kevin Koenig who showed those Cornhuskers some muscle by bench-pressing 355.

Tom Osborne is the subject of news stories off the field as well as on. They named an expressway after him, you know.

I hear the speed limit is going to be 55 m.p.h. (most points at half).

And between Ronald Reagan's cancer growth removal and the Cornhusker head coach's heart surgery — I don't know who had the most media coverage. However, I am sincerely happy that both surgeries were successful.

When you get down to it, however, you'll see that Nebraska isn't the only state which follows its major university's football team so intently. Those Iowa Hawkeye boosters do it too.

Already they are touting the arm of fifth year quarterback Chuck Long as a tool that will win him All-American honors.

It is hard to judge the team to root for — so I'll cheer on both the Cornhuskers and the Hawkeyes because they won't end up playing each other this year (unless it comes down to a bowl game at the end of the regular season).

Good gosh! See, the football fever is hitting me already. I'm talking about bowl games when the teams haven't even finished their two practices a day preseason work-out sessions.

Rather than go through this turmoil, it would be logical to forget about the Cornhuskers and Hawkeyes for once, and give some vocal support to the Wayne State College Wildcats.

The Wildcat boosters are saying that "the dream will come alive in 1985."

"Go gettum, Cats!"

Pedestrian safety

Passing out a pedestrian safety award to Wayne city officials has been almost commonplace. The city received another award last Tuesday from the AAA (American Automobile Association) called "Special Citation for Outstanding Pedestrian Accident Record."

But the fact remains that Wayne hasn't had a pedestrian fatality in a number of years. And that statistic should not be taken for granted.

The 1984 State of Nebraska traffic accident facts reveals that last year there were 23 people killed and 608 total people injured in collisions involving pedestrians.

Compared to 1983, there was one less person killed, but at least 34 more individuals were injured than the previous year.

One cannot ascertain that all accidents were the fault of the vehicle operator. Anyone walking or jogging along the roadways during dark hours without wearing a reflective or light-colored clothing is just asking to become a pedestrian accident victim.

Equally at fault could be the vehicle operators that fail to heed crosswalk signs — particularly at the crossing near The Rain Tree intersection.

Wayne has several things going for it on the city's record of pedestrian safety — abundant sidewalks to keep pedestrians off the city streets; and training classes on pedestrian safety from kindergarten on up to junior high level.

For the past 17 years, at the beginning of the school year the Wayne Police Department has sponsored a Pedestrian Safety School for Kindergarten Children. The one-hour session deals with the proper method of crossing unmarked streets, crossing streets with stop signs or traffic signals.

All of this adds up to bringing Wayne's pedestrian safety record into its proper perspective.

And with continued enforcement, training and a little bit of luck — that record should continue for many years to come.

Farm facts and fun

The Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service used to produce a popular radio series called "Farm Facts and Fun," which featured interesting and sometimes offbeat information in amongst more hard-core factual matter. It was sort of an agricultural Trivial Pursuit game of the airwaves. "Farm Facts and Fun" is a memory now, but there's still plenty of interesting ag-related information around.

Need proof? Consider these facts:

- A ton of sweet corn averages 1,666 ears.
- The high fructose corn syrup in a 12 ounce can of Coke has a farm value of three-fourths of a cent.
- A box of oranges weighs more in Florida than elsewhere. A box of Florida oranges weighs 90 pounds; compared with 85 pounds in Texas and 75 pounds in California. USDA uses this information in making production estimates.
- A high quality hot dog will break, not bend. Hold the dog between your thumb and forefinger and try to bend it. If it does bend, it's a cheap dog. If it breaks, it deserves to be called a "tube steak" — the greater amount of protein thickens the skin, making it less bendable.
- Begonia seed is the highest-valued crop, at $18,000 an ounce.

ONE OF EVERY nine lambs born in the western U.S. is killed by a predator, primarily coyotes, except in Nevada where the number is one out of three.

Sixty percent of the world's population drinks goat's milk.

Here in the U.S. where cow's milk is more popular, the average American dairy cow produced 12,587 pounds of milk in 1983. Japanese and Swedish cows produced more — 14,155 and 13,442 pounds respectively, but American cows were way ahead of their Indian colleagues where the average was 1,304 pounds. The American cow population, by the way, was 11,120,000 in 1983.

The average American drinks three quarters of a quart of water a day — one quart is straight water while the rest is juices, soups, coffee, tea and other stuff.

Put all Americans together and we'll drink 17 million gallons of coffee on a typical day. Also 28 million six packs of beer. And we'll eat 3 million pounds of butter, 1.5 million pounds of lard, 1.2 million bushels of potatoes and 5.8 million pounds of chocolate.

Americans today eat less cottage cheese. Per capita consumption of this diet food peaked in 1972 at 5.5 pounds and has sunk to just over 4 pounds. Price may be the reason. Though low in calories, the increase in the retail cost of cottage cheese was far higher than for all foods since 1972.

In a year, the American family of four eats about 7 tons of food, including 629 pounds of red meat, 382 pounds of poultry and eggs, 61 pounds of fruits and fruit juices and 641 pounds of vegetables and veggie juices. Also, eight pounds of soy and grains.

Budget plan won't cut billions from deficit

By Cesar V. Conda

A sign of relief could be heard from people across this nation when the House and Senate finally agreed on a budget plan for fiscal year 1986. Some politicians have scurried home to their districts declaring to their constituents that the budget plan has "solved the deficit problem" and put the American economic back on the road to sustained economic growth.

But upon close inspection, the budget really doesn't do much of either.

While we should be thankful that Congress avoided balancing the budget on the backs of the American people with tax increases, we should not celebrate the fact that we will be saddled with deficits of historic proportions for the foreseeable future. The budget plan just won't achieve its goal of cutting the Federal deficit by $56 billion next year and $277 billion over the next three years.

Why? First of all, the plan exempts almost one-third of the budget from any spending restraint. It contains no changes in cost-of-living adjustments (COLAs) for Social Security, and other entitlement programs, and automatic COLAs have been one of the driving forces behind the explosion of government spending in recent years. The government would have saved about $30 billion over three years from a one-year COLA freeze which would not have caused any great pain.

SENATE REPUBLICANS put forth a courageous budget proposal that incorporated a one-year COLA freeze, several program terminations and substantive domestic reductions that would have saved $295 billion over three years, bringing deficits under $100 billion by 1988. However, with the leadership of both parties in the House and the White House united in opposition to a Social Security COLA freeze, the senators were forced to back down.

The compromise budget plan also projects most of the deep program cuts and terminations proposed in the original Senate budget plan and substitutes mild freezes and reductions. In fact, many of the domestic reductions are illusory cutbacks and speculative managerial changes rather than "hard" programmatic cuts in government spending. For example, the budget resolution:

- Assumes $4 billion in "savings" by counting four years worth of already counted off-shore oil lease income into one year.
- Assumes $6 billion saved over three years from federal management and workforce reforms. These unspecified "reforms" are not "hard" programmatic cuts in government spending and thus will be difficult to realize.
- Proposes 20 percent reductions in Urban Development Grants, Appalachian Regional Development and the Economic Development Administration. But they aren't "reconciled" or enforced by the congressional rules and spending committees do not have to comply with them.
- Terminates revenue sharing in 1987, but this recommendation will be difficult to achieve because the resolution's outyear targets are nonbinding and Congress can simply restore the program next year.

IN FACT, THE compromise budget resolution is primarily a substantial defense cut combined with a variety of illusory nondefense domestic reductions. The Congress-sional Budget Office estimates that the plan will reduce the FY 86 budget by only $39 billion instead of $56 billion and that deficits will remain, at the very least, in the $150 to $160 billion range for the foreseeable future.

The American public must press their legislators to cut spending during the appropriations process. The president must be ready to veto spending bills that substantially exceed his own budget request. And finally, the budget process itself must be strengthened with modifications such as the line-item veto to instill a much needed dose of fiscal discipline.

In sum, the recently passed budget isn't the worst budget that Congress could have passed. A budget with a major tax increase would have been a recipe for economic disaster.

The budget cuts just don't go far enough. Like prescribing aspirin for a brain tumor — it just won't do the job — and it seems that the American people deserve better treatment for the deadly federal deficit.

Was it right?

I am a World War II veteran, having been overseas 3 1/2 years. Forty years ago on Aug. 6, our A-bomb was dropped on Hiroshima. What a memorable day that was.

Was it right to drop the A-bomb? A news reporter asked President Truman (a great president) why he decided to use the A-bomb. In his response, President Truman told him it was better to destroy 100,000 enemies than to lose over one million American servicemen's lives, as we were getting ready to invade Japan.

Was it right to drop our A-bomb? With a resounding "yes," it was.

Today, all the news media are telling everybody what a shame for America to use the big bomb on Hiroshima and Nagasaki. They (all the news media) are always telling everyone how bad things are in our country.

Was it right for the Japanese to bomb Pearl Harbor?

In all the news reports today, never have they mentioned the Japanese dropping bombs on Pearl Harbor. They take more pride in covering Hiroshima and Nagasaki, never Pearl Harbor.

I thank God for the leadership of President Reagan. He has the intestinal fortitude (guts) to bring our defense system up to normal. We have the greatest armed forces in the world. Our best defense is our best offense.

Every nation will know that never will America have another Pearl Harbor.

There are individuals and all the news media who demonstrate against our defense system and armed forces. They must think "was it right?" for the Japanese without warning to bomb Pearl Harbor, killing thousands.

I wonder if these demonstrators ever visited a veterans' home, a veterans' hospital or talked to a survivor?

Wash day blues Certain household tasks must be done every week. Laundry is one of those jobs that isn't terribly exciting, but it still needs to be done. No one pays much attention to laundry until they have problems.

Two of the most common laundry problems are yellowing and linting. Both are easy to solve, if you remember to follow a few simple guidelines.

Yellowing of fabrics is usually a build up of body soil. This can be caused by several factors including:

- not using enough detergent.
- using too cool wash water temperature.
- treating synthetic fabrics as delicate by using short, gentle and cool washes.
- handwashing synthetic fabrics with a light duty detergent.

THE SOLUTIONS are simple — use enough detergent and hot water. To be more precise, wash water temperature should be the hottest water safe for the fabric. Many garment care labels carry information about water temperatures that are acceptable.

The temperature of hot water should be 130 degrees F. or above when it reaches the washer.

Wash synthetic fabrics in hot water, using a permanent press cycle. The permanent press cycle includes a cool down period before the first spin to reduce wrinkles.

Synthetics that are extremely discolored may be bleached, soaked in an enzyme product or treated with a color remover. Follow product directions then wash.

THOSE TINY FUZZ balls on your corduroy slacks are annoying and time consuming to remove. Preventing lint also is fairly easy if you follow these guidelines:

- sort clothes into lint shredders and lint receivers.
- use enough detergent.
- don't over load your washer.
- dry clothes in the dryer.
- When sorting clothes, don't stop once you've separated darks and lights. Lint producers such as bath towels, sweaters, flannel and chenille should be washed separately.
- Very new or very old clothes tend to shed the most. Lint receivers include synthetic, permanent press and corduroy items.

A SUFFICIENT amount of detergent is necessary to hold the lint in suspension until it is flushed out with the dirty wash water.

You also need enough water to prevent linting. Make sure you haven't overloaded the washer and that clothes have room to circulate.

Drying the clothes in the dryer also helps remove lint. Overdrying synthetics can cause static electricity which attracts lint. As with the washer, clothes need room to tumble free in the dryer.

Wash day may still be less than exciting at your home. Now you have a few guidelines to make the best of this task.

Wayne picked second in CSIC

Wayne State was picked to come in second place in a preseason poll of the eight Central States Intercollegiate Conference (CSIC) football coaches.

Kearney State is expected to win their eighth CSIC championship, as the Antelopes edged Wayne State 58-53 in the 8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 scoring system.

Wayne State received three first place votes, including one from Kearney State, while the Antelopes received five first place votes.

Next in line came Missouri Southern with 51 points. Other teams and their point totals include Missouri Western (37), Washburn (30), Pittsburg State (25), Fort Hayes (21) and Emporia State (13).

The CSIC begins its tenth season with five of its 18 NAIA All-American candidates of a year ago returning. Wayne State has three of the five, with offensive lineman Ruben Mendoza (SR) and kicking specialist

Herve Roussel (SR) earning second team honors, while defensive back Lamont Lewis (JR) was an honorable mention choice. Kearney State defensive back Brett Lind (SR) and Missouri Southern receiver Kelly Young (SR) were both named to the honorable mention team in 1984.

Two new coaches join the ranks and John Vincent replaces Bobby Thompson at Fort Hayes State and Dennis Franchione takes over for Mike Mayarska at Pittsburg State. The season opens when Missouri Western hosts Missouri-Rolla in a non-conference encounter on Wednesday evening, Sept. 4. The conference schedule runs from Sept. 28 through Nov. 7.

Wayne State opens its season Sept. 7 at Morningside.

Hupp leads Wildcats in fall drills

Hupp just missed equaling his record in the vertical jump. Last spring, Hupp leaped 33 inches and last week he skied 34 inches, which was the best effort at the drills.

Hupp also turned in the best time in the mile for linemen as he finished with a 6:19 clocking. Phil Wickwar closed with a 6:20 effort.

Chris Weiseler's 5:35 was the fastest mile time for ends, while Scott Wightman's 5:35 was the fastest for linebackers and Darin Blackburn's 6:00 was the fastest for fullbacks.

L. C. Liddell, a 5-11, 245-pounder from Omaha, bench pressed 415 pounds for first place at the drills.

Sonny Jones finished with the fastest time in the 40 yard dash as the 195 pound junior closed with a 4.57 clocking. Matt Hoffmann owns the record of 4.40 which he set in the fall of 1984.

Wakefield will play all football games on the road

WAKEFIELD Four Wakefield Trojan home football games scheduled for the 1985 season have been switched to the opponents' home field because of renovation taking place at Eaton Field this fall.

Eaton Field, which doubles as Wakefield's baseball diamond and gridiron, will have its grass reseeded and also possibly have a new watering system put in, according to Wakefield's head football coach Dennis Wilbur.

"The field has been rough and uneven for quite some time and we're going to get it corrected this year. I know we're going to reseed and level it off, and there might be an underground watering system added too," Wilbur said.

Tuesday night at Wakefield's city council meeting, the council approved a bid of $300 by Schmitt Construction of Laurel to level the outfield portion of the ball park which includes the area used for football.

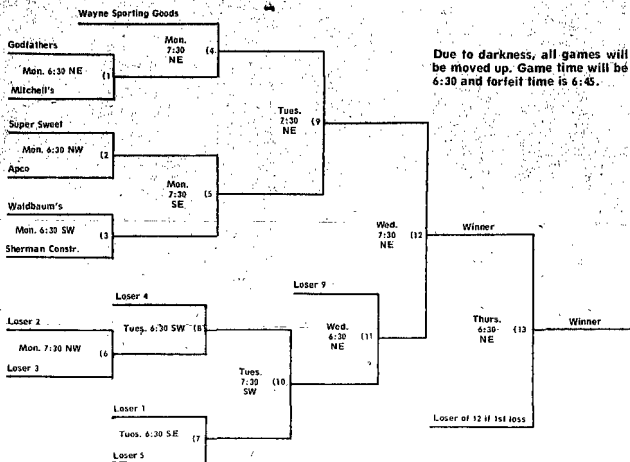

Although the scheduled home games with Colorado, Allen, Beemer and Winside will now be away contests, Wilbur said he doesn't believe his squad will suffer because of no home games.

"I don't think we'll have any more problems or advantages with playing away than we would've had if we would've played those teams at home," Wilbur said. "The football field is about a mile from the school, anyway so even when we played at home all the games were still kind of like being on the road. There really isn't any difference."

Wakefield will practice on the usual practice field located west of the school. The practice field will also be the site of Wakefield's junior, varsity and junior high school football games.

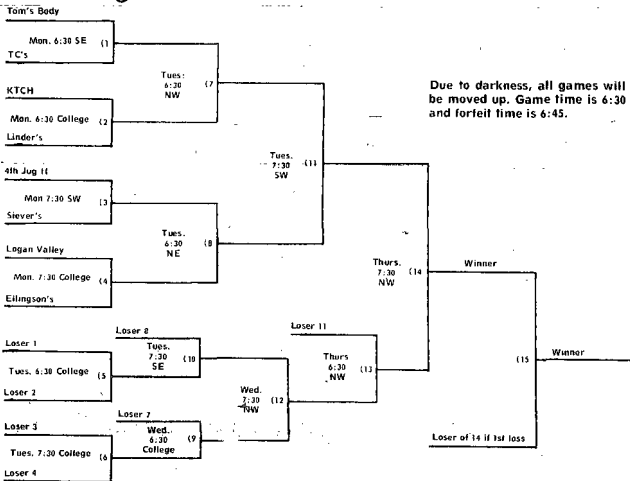

"The practice field doesn't have any lights so the junior varsity games will be moved up a little bit," Wilbur explained.

Men's A League Tournament

Due to darkness, all games will be moved up. Game time will be 6:30 and forfeit time is 6:45.

Men's B League Tournament

Due to darkness, all games will be moved up. Game time is 6:30 and forfeit time is 6:45.
