Carroll road construction slated to begin in 1988

Wayne County and the Nebraska State Department of Roads have entered into a formal agreement on a construction project five miles east and three miles north of Carroll.

The project consists of replacing two bridges and straightening a road. The State Department of Roads and the Federal Highway Administration had approved of the county's previous application for federal aid on the project.

Because of federal aid available, the county will pay 25 percent of the grading and culvert work and approximately 15 percent of the bridge replacement work.

"The earliest time to begin construction will be during the 1988 construction season," said County Highway Superintendent Sidney Saunders.

Saunders recommended to the commissioners that engineering proposals be solicited from reputable engineering firms experienced in the type of work that will need to be done on the bridge construction project.

Consolidated Engineers, Porter Ripa Engineers and Bruce Gilmore and Associates will be contacted for proposals. The engineering costs will be paid 100 percent by the county. In other county news:

• The commissioners opened two bids for the purchase of culverts. Husker Steel from Columbus submitted a bid of $8,956 and Champion International from Norfolk submitted a bid of $8,254.56. The commissioners accepted Champion's bid of $8,254.56.

• The purchase of a used Ford gravel truck was discussed during the meeting. The commissioners decided to purchase the truck from Nebraska Machinery of Norfolk for $10,100.

• A resolution was adopted by the commissioners which approves of First National Bank, Wayne, withdrawing securities held in escrow by Omaha National Bank, Omaha, totaling $300,000 and substituting securities totaling $100,000.

• The commissioners decided to have the State Auditor's Office perform the county's audits for the 1984-85 fiscal year. The cost for the year will be $4,080.

• And the commissioners tabled a decision on health insurance for its county employees until the next regular board meeting.

Area K-12 schools approve 1985-86 budgets

The board of education of area K-12 school districts have their budgets behind them now and can concentrate on the next step — getting the classrooms ready for the 1985-86 school year.

Windside, Wakefield, Allen and Laurel have joined Wayne in gaining board of education approval for the 1985-86 school year budgets.

The Windside School District budget was approved — with changes — at the board of education's August 15 meeting. The approved budget (including $164,455 in cash reserve) was for a total of $1.15 million, compared to $1.19 million which was advertised prior to the public hearing on the budget.

The approved budget total is $75,572 less than the budget for 1984-85.

An earlier proposed budget had called for an increase in taxes of $40,460, or a 7.4 percent increase. At the budget hearing, the board heard a report from Superintendent Don Leighton detailing a reduction from the proposed $40,460 increase down to $7,923 increase.

The reductions, Leighton mentioned, were due to the cutting of expenses by another $5,500 and cutting the cash reserve by $20,000.

The school also underspent projected expenditures by about $6,000. AFTER THE budget hearing and during the regular board meeting, the board of education eliminated the purchase of a new school vehicle.

All of these changes resulted in a tax request of $536,069 for the 1985-86 year — the same amount requested for the 1984-85 school year.

This means there will be no increase in the tax request for the Windsor Public School.

Allen Superintendent Robert Heckathorn told The Wayne Herald Tuesday that the school's cash reserve in 1985-86 will be $82,000 and that the total budget (including cash reserve) will reach $932,576 — equal to what was advertised in Monday's budget public hearing.

The 1984-85 school year budget was $920,026.

Heckathorn said the tax requirement (or request) originally proposed for 1985-86 was $481,224. That amount increased and was approved by the board of education at $531,912.

"We had more carryover cash balance last year than this year. Last year we had $215,674 in cash balance, this upcoming year it will be $146,360, Heckathorn said in explaining the increase.

There were no major increase items projected in the Allen budget. Basically operating expenses, Heckathorn said. "The budget has been pretty leaned out anyway," he said.

ACCORDING TO a Wakefield Republican report, Wakefield's Board of Education conducted its 1985-86 budget hearing on Monday, Aug. 12.

The budget for the coming year calls for a total (general and bond expenditures) of $1.32 million, a 1.9 percent increase in expenses over the previous year.

IN DOLLARS and cents, the expenditures for the 1985-86 school year are expected to be $24,743 more than last year.

Although the expenditures will be going up very little, there will be a property tax increase of $122,046 or 15 percent. The increase is due, according to Hartman, because of the loss of various state and federal revenues and because of the uncollected local taxes.

Hartman said, in reviewing county treasurer's office, he found that over $60,000 in school tax money that was due May 1 had not been collected and that another $45,000 has not been collected for previous years.

The new budget also reflects a 1.8 percent increase in the teacher's base salary, moving it from $12,425 to $12,650. Classified staff salaries will also be increased at the same 1.8 percent rate.

During the meeting, the Wakefield Board of Education approved the negotiated agreement with the teacher's association which also included the addition of a sick leave bank policy also with the base salary increase.

In addition, the Wakefield board discussed a new teacher evaluation policy for this fall, established bus routes for the upcoming school year, the flag raising ceremonies for school opening on Aug. 28 and the possible renovation of the football field at the city park.

On Monday, Aug. 12 the Laurel District 54 Board of Education approved a total budget requirement of $1,773,691 for the 1985-86 school year — $16,046 less than the current year's total.

The board members agreed to adopt a budget with a tax requirement of $89,232, equal to what was budgeted for tax requirement in the current year.

For Nebraska Scholars Program

WSC using $25,000 as endowment

by Chuck Hackenmiller

Wayne State College's gift of $25,000 from the Omaha World-Herald Foundation will tentatively be utilized as an endowment to the state college's newly organized Nebraska Scholars Program.

That announcement was made Monday by WSC Interim President Dr. Donald Whisenhunt.

Whisenhunt received word last Friday from the Omaha World-Herald's President and Chief Operating Officer John Gottschalk that WSC would receive a grant of $25,000 from the daily newspaper's foundation.

Gottschalk, in announcing the grant, had asked Wayne State administrative officials to advise the Omaha World-Herald Foundation as to how the $25,000 will be utilized. Preferences by the World-Herald Foundation, he said, are to lean toward providing endowed student assistance.

He said the World-Herald Foundation has an interest in attracting top scholars to Nebraska institutions and indirectly attempting to keep the best minds in the state.

WHISENHUNT said Monday morning that although plans are not completely finalized, the grant money will "probably be used to endow the Nebraska Scholars Program at Wayne State College."

"I'm very, very pleased. If [the grant] could not have come at a better time," he said.

"Give due credit to Al Cramer [Chairman of the State College Board of Trustees], who made the contact for us and the other Nebraska state colleges," he added.

Up until now, the Nebraska Scholars Program to be initiated at Wayne State College had received limited public exposure. The gift from the Omaha World-Herald will get the program off to a positive outlook.

Prior to the gift announcement, WSC college officials had anticipated raising funds for the Nebraska Scholars Program through private contributions.

The grant proposed for distribution to WSC will aid in publicizing the contribution drive and is a good start toward funding of the scholars program.

THE NEW Nebraska Scholars Program, established to be as attractive and challenging to the state's top academic students as possible, is scheduled to start when the 1986 fall semester begins, according to Whisenhunt.

WSC Nebraska Scholars Council Faculty Coordinator Christopher Bonds said the council would ideally like to offer each scholar program student a flat $1,000 per year.

"Do do this we would need an endowment of $13,000 per student," Bonds said.

For students to be admitted into the Nebraska Scholars Program, it will require five basic elements:

• The student must have an ACT composite score of 24.
• The student must be ranked in the top 25 percent of his or her class.
• The student must have a grade point average of 3.3 on a 4.0 grading scale.

"The student must have a letter of recommendation from two high school teachers.

"And each applying student must write a paper on an assigned topic to assess the student's writing skills.

Students accepted into the WSC Nebraska Scholars Program will receive intangible benefits as well as financial assistance. "Each student will receive an advisor "or mentor" to guide the students and who will continue leading the scholarship recipients toward their educational goals.

"Every Nebraska Scholars Program student is assigned a special advisor who knows the ins and outs of the program. The advisors will be able to spend a greater time with the student than a normal advisor would," Bonds said.

Bonds said there is also a subsidized foreign travel program available to the scholar program student.

STUDENTS ALSO receive a "boosted up" academic program. There will be a special freshman seminar limited only to Nebraska scholar program students and at least one course every semester will be taught at a higher academic level,

Cemetery trustees sought

The Cemetery Association of Wayne is searching for individuals interested in serving as trustee members.

Three vacancies exist on the five member trustee board. It was decided at the Cemetery Association's Aug. 20 meeting to have individuals who are interested in the maintenance of Greenwood Cemetery and serving as a trustee contact the Cemetery Association's secretary-treasurer, Henrietta Hurst of Wayne, at 475-2002.

The trustee nominee must be a lot owner of Greenwood Cemetery or a Veteran Cemetery.

The present trustees would rather have individuals interested in Greenwood Cemetery come forward rather than having to nominate new trustees themselves.

The cemetery lot owners are encouraged to attend the next Cemetery Association meeting on Sept. 24 and elect three of those who have shown an interest for the trustee position and have their names up for nomination.

Freshmen numbers up at Wayne State

Freshmen orientation...this weekend at Wayne State College should have more participants than in past years, according to WSC officials.

Orientation activities begin Saturday (Aug. 24) and continue through Monday. Classes at Wayne State begin Tuesday morning.

The number of freshmen acceptances at Wayne State is expected to be some 40 students, up 5 percent from last fall's registration, according to Jim Hummel, director of admissions.

Freshmen numbers accepted at the end of last week (Aug. 16) was 726 — 53 more than the same week in 1984.

Hummel said the college's visibility programs and recruiting efforts are two of the reasons for the expected increase in freshmen.

"Visibility in the terms of the quality of our programs has been very positive," he said.

HUMMEL WAS quick to point out that the expected increase of fresh students does not guarantee the college's total enrollment will increase. He said the number of students returning to campus next week, and those attending extended campus courses will affect total enrollment.

Wayne State's enrollment in 1984-85 was 2,836 — the highest figure in school history outside of the Vietnam War years. Wayne State's enrollment peak was 3,068 in 1968-69. The residence hall occupancy list echoes the expected increase in freshmen. Dr. Bob Lohrbeg, director of housing, said 40 to 50 more students, about 4 percent more, have requested housing in the college's seven residence halls compared to the same time last year.

That has prompted the housing office to open the basement floor of Morey Hall to provide additional dorm rooms and cut back the number of private rooms available to men.

"Only seniors are getting private rooms at this point," said Lohrbeg.

Almost all of the men's dormitory rooms will be occupied, while there will be some open rooms for women, Lohrbeg said. He indicated, however, that because of the single rooms, the residence hall occupancy rate is still only at 85 percent.

WSC residence halls can occupy some 1,450 students and Lohrbeg expects about 1,240 students will require on-campus housing.

Freshman students will begin moving into their dormitory rooms Saturday morning. Orientation programs are planned the rest of Saturday and Sunday, while testing and the final class registration period is Monday.

Weekend orientation activities include a movie, dance, picnic and watermelon feed.

The annual Freshman Olympics will be Monday afternoon at the athletic fields north of the football stadium.

The legislation, introduced by Landis, authorizes the Departments of Economic Development, Revenue and Insurance to distribute $250,000 of tax credits to business firms contributing to approved community service activities. These activities must be carried out by charitable community betterment organizations in areas of chronic economic distress.

Community betterment organizations statewide submitted projects and activities for approval to the Department of Economic Development. With approval, these organizations can now begin to accept contributions.

Sileven seeks Republican nomination for governor

Everett Sileven announced today that he would seek the Republican nomination for governor of Nebraska.

"My platform is very simple: less government and less taxes. Governor Kerrey has made it clear that he is for more taxes and more government by signing LB 662, calling for absorbing rural schools into larger districts and thereby eliminating local control of education.

"Also, the governor is so much for taxes that he wants to eliminate the sales tax exemptions that now exist," Sileven said.

The candidate held news conferences in Omaha, Scottsbluff, North Platte, Grand Island and Lincoln today.

Sileven, 46, is pastor of the Faith

Baptist Church in Louisville. He is married and has three children.

"I believe that Nebraska citizens are willing and able to be responsible for themselves without government intervention. The governor must believe otherwise since he signed the mandatory seat belt law invading the privacy of every Nebraskan," he added.

On other specific issues and problems, Sileven called for a 90-day moratorium on farm foreclosures, monetizing the farm debt without taxing the citizens, and changing the tax structure of farm and agribusiness so that only the actual production and increases are taxed.

"We need to develop and execute a more aggressive program to sell Nebraska products in foreign markets," he added.

"I favor reducing the state production load and implementing a system where the criminal pays his keep and repays his victims," Sileven said.

Sileven is still considering some strong candidates for chairman of his campaign and he said he is planning an aggressive grassroots campaign across Nebraska in the months before the May, 1986, primary election.

Tax valuations upped in four counties

by Melvin Paul
The state Board of Equalization last week ordered increases in the 1985 tax valuations of property in Holt, Valley, Scotts Bluff and Buffalo counties.

Ignoring the recommendation of the state Revenue Department, the board declined to order increases for property in Red Willow and Cheyenne counties, which are scheduled to complete countywide reappraisals later this year.

The five-member equalization board, which is chaired by Gov. Bob Kerrey, took these specific actions during its eight-hour meeting at the Capitol.

•Voided the roll-back by the Holt County board of all classes of property from the 1985 values proposed by the county assessor to the 1984 levels.

•Voided a 12.5 percent roll-back ordered by the Valley county board in agricultural land values.

•Voided an order by the Scotts Bluff county board reducing by one tax bracket the value of all irrigated agricultural land as proposed by the county assessor.

•Increased residential property values in Scotts Bluff County by 6.5 percent.

•And increased residential property values in Buffalo County by 3.5 percent.

In addition to Kerrey, members of the board are Tax Commissioner Donna Karnes, State Treasurer Kay Orr, State Auditor Ray A.C. Johnson and Secretary of State Allen Beermann. The actions of the board followed a series of public hearings in July and August in which the counties presented arguments justifying their valuations.

COUNTY representatives argued that the county board actions were justified. Speaking to the equalization board on behalf of Valley County, Nebraska Association of County Officials executive director Jack Mills said counties that follow soil surveys in determining their property values shouldn't be penalized by drastically increased valuations.

"The board should begin to protect those counties that follow the law," Mills said.

The U.S. Soil Conservation Service is eleven years into a 15-year project of surveying soils in all the state's counties. As the survey for a county is completed, assessors have been reclassifying land for tax purposes according to the survey findings.

In addition to giving final approval to real estate property valuations, state officials recently have addressed the topic of tax valuations for cars, trucks, vans and trailers.

Owners of late model pickup trucks may face higher personal property taxes during 1986 as a result of valuations distributed recently by the state Department of Revenue to county assessors across the state.

On the department's new list of values, for example, one style of 1981 Chevrolet Blazer pickup will be subject to a 25 percent valuation increase in 1986 over 1985. The tax value of a 1982 Ford F150 pickup will increase 4 percent, according to the newly issued values.

UNLIKE REAL estate valuation, the vehicle valuations don't need the approval of the state board of equalization.

Increases in values this year for some pickup models is a reflection of the strong market for the vehicles, said George Dworak, property tax division administrator of the state Revenue Department.

The regional automobile market, on which the values are based, has kept late model pickup truck values high, said Dworak. In some cases, Dworak said, the department has adjusted for previous years in which it depreciated tax values for pickups more rapidly than the market.

The values of most vehicles on the new list will decrease in 1986. A spot check of 11 types of automobiles, motorcycles and vans showed reduction ranging from 1 percent to 43 percent.

Neither in the case of real estate or motor vehicles do increased valuations necessarily translate to higher property taxes. Local government tax levies, which have yet to be set, will determine whether property owners actually experience an increase in taxes.

Top scholar recruiting

The Omaha World-Herald is doing a good thing for the academic quality of college institutions in Nebraska.

As part of its year-long centennial celebration, the daily newspaper's foundation has embarked on a goal to have the top scholars attend Nebraska's fine institutions and to keep the best minds within our state.

And the newspaper has put its money where its intentions lie.

Wayne State College will be receiving $25,000 from the Omaha World-Herald Foundation which will probably be utilized as a contribution toward a new scholarship program to be initiated next year in attracting the top scholars.

It is tentatively being called the Nebraska Scholars Program. And although the program details are not etched in stone, WSC officials feel the program will be a positive step in presenting an attractive and challenging academic picture to the scholar student.

The goal is to have at least 80 students in the Nebraska Scholars Program (20 in each class) at the end of four years. That would take an endowment amount of over $1.2 million to accomplish that goal.

The World-Herald had also made a $50,000 presentation to Kearney State College for the same purpose — to provide endowed student assistance.

The World-Herald Foundation has held a special interest in the education of the Nebraska youth. That is evident in their gift to the state colleges.

What would be ideal is to see those students — selected for Kearney State or Wayne State scholarship programs — find their employment opportunities right here in Nebraska.

This will accomplish the ultimate goal: to keep Nebraska's talented professionals and other scholars from being lured away to other states.

New burden proposed on businesses

by Richard Lasher
Remember the old "good news-bad news" routine? For example, "the good news is that you don't need a tune-up. The bad news is that your whole engine needs replaced." "The good news is that your mother-in-law isn't staying for a week after all. The bad news is that she's going to live here."

Well, a good news-bad news routine is being rehearsed for Americans who need or pay health care (just about all of us) — only its not quite as funny.

The good news is that, according to Health and Human Services Secretary Margaret Heckler, health care costs for Americans rose at their lowest rate in two decades last year (though still a lofty 9.1 percent).

Some of that had to do with government reforms — and some of it with overall decline in the inflation rate. But as Secretary Heckler pointed out, much of the credit goes to pressure from health consumers — and especially from the nation's businesses, which today pay $100 billion on health insurance premiums alone.

With health care now the third highest cost of doing business, 135 business/health coalitions (assisted by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce's Coalition Clearinghouse) have banded together to put a lid on rising costs. By increasing copayments to remove employees' insulation from the true cost of care, promoting alternatives like health maintenance organizations (HMOs), emphasizing fitness and improving management of insurance programs, employers have made a great contribution to bringing health inflation out of the stratosphere and into the upper atmosphere — though more must be done to slow further cost hikes.

THE BAD NEWS is that Congress (who else) is about to turn the process 180 degrees in the wrong direction again. Without even bothering to hold hearings on the subject, the House Ways and Means Committee has come up with an onerous new burden on business — in a seemingly innocent guise.

The Ways and Means Committee would take away the health insurance tax deduction for businesses whose plans do not extend coverage to surviving spouses and children of deceased employees — and even to divorced spouses of employees — for five years. Now who would deny health care to widows, orphans and displaced homemakers?

Nobody would, of course. But everyone knows — or should know — that the money to pay for additional beneficiaries does not fall like manna from heaven. And consider how many additional beneficiaries are involved. Every time an employee dies or divorces, his or her spouse or dependents can remain on the rolls. The cumulative effect over time could be staggering.

Even though the beneficiaries would pay premiums, costs would rise because of the higher overhead and premiums for other employees would rise because the added beneficiaries would be disproportionately higher users of care. And because employers would be required to provide insurances for individuals who have no employment relationship with them (a divorced spouse could conceivably have coverage after his or her spouse was fired), the line between employee benefit and entitlement is blurred — and the precedent would be set for other costly benefit mandates.

The fact is, the battle over the Ways and Means proposal is not a question of good guys (widows and orphans) and bad guys (business), any more than it is a good news-bad news joke. To the extent that we all recognize what you can't get something for nothing, it is a matter of simple common dollars and sense.

Lasher is president, Chamber of Commerce, of the United States.

Disappointed fun
As a fan of demolition derbies, I feel the need to express my disappointment as I watched the Wayne County Fair's demolition derby. I have attended many derbies in other towns and cities for many years, but never have I seen such a dry track being used.

The drivers really got a jolt when hit by another car. I'm sure the chiropractor was visited by many during the past week. I'm also wondering if the rules were followed. When a driver is disqualified in a heat race is he then qualified to run in the feature race?

In my opinion a very unfair decision to the rest of the drivers that won the heat races, and then that disqualified driver wins the feature race he doesn't belong in???

I have not missed a demolition derby in this area for a long time and this type of entertainment seems to be a good drawing crowd for the Wayne County fairs.

I hope this year's poor judgment (in my opinion) doesn't keep the demolition drivers from attending future derbies at the Wayne County fair.

Name withheld by request

Always one to support the arts, I've been to community theater productions in metropolitan areas like Phoenix, New Orleans, and Las Vegas. The one thing that sets this evening apart from those "big city" performances has nothing to do with talent. Every aspect of tonight's show exhibited artistic excellence.

The one thing I find most delightful about Wayne Community Theater is that I know these people. They are part of all of our lives. You might see the leading lady on Main Street, sit next to the leading man in the dentist's waiting room, hire the choreographer as a babysitter or send one of your children to be taught by someone else on the staff's production team. Isn't that really the meaning of community theater?

What really floors me is the fact that we all rub elbows with so many talented people every single day. Wayne seems to have more than its share of creative and energetic people. I only hope that we don't take these great people for granted.

There was a fairly good crowd at this evening's performance but the numbers weren't as great as they should have been. I am wondering where all of those supposed community supporters were.

We all want arts, culture and entertainment available in Wayne where it will be available for us. Only through support, however, can we hope to keep it alive.

To those of you who attended the performances of "They're Playing Our Song," I say, if it was really good wasn't it? To all of you who missed it I can only say, you really should have been there, you missed something really special.

Maria McCue

Musical delightful
I have just come home from a most entertaining, amusing, and delightful evening. My husband, mother-in-law, and father-in-law attended the Wayne Community Theater's production of "They're Playing Our Song." We enjoyed every second. I was reminded of how lucky we are to have so many talented and enthusiastic people in our town.

Reduced ag support induces massive loss for the future of whole national economy

A new study released on Capitol Hill suggests that urban consumers and their congressmen should re-arrange their spending priorities to assist the depressed agricultural economy.

In fact, the study says failure by Congress to stop further agricultural economic decline could not only be disastrous for rural America, but could also cost hundreds of thousands urban-area jobs, and raise general interest rates. In addition, the federal debt could be increased between $14 and $22 billion by 1993.

"All-in-all, it doesn't look good," said Dr. Lawrence Klein, president of Wharton Economic Forecasting Associates, the nationally respected organization that conducted the study. The study is the first time computerized modeling has been used to measure how the financial health of the agricultural sector influences the general economy.

Dr. Klein, a Nobel laureate, recently told congressmen and staff members that reduced support for agriculture now could induce unprecedented farm bankruptcies and loan defaults. These projected loan losses are so massive they could drive up general interest rates one-to-two percentage points.

This increased cost of borrowed money could then restrict "interest-sensitive industries" like housing and automotive. Such a chain of events could ultimately lead to a decline in GNP, a surge in the federal deficit and loss of as many as 275,000 urban-area jobs.

"If we have some preemptive action now to ease the adjustment factor in agriculture and hold (loan) losses to a minimum, we can gain something not only for agriculture, but for the whole national economy," he said.

Varel Bailey, an Iowa farmer and representative of the National Corn Growers Association, said that he hopes the new information will be used to measure the adequacy of various farm bills now being considered in the House and Senate Agriculture Committees.

"Congress already knows that farmers and their lenders are in trouble. This study shows that a sick rural economy could be unhealthy for the general economy," he added. The Wharton study, commissioned by the National Corn Growers Association with funding provided by Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc. and NC plus Hybrids, was made available to all members of the House and Senate Agriculture Committees and their staffs.

Following the congressional briefing, Senator Paul Simon of Illinois explained how so-called rural financial problems could quickly be felt by urban consumers. He said that while most major Chicago-area banks have few direct farm loans, they do have a number of rural correspondent banks that are having problems. Such correspondent banking relationships means that the risk of farmers defaulting on loans is often shared by the urban banks.

Iowa Senator Chuck Grassley said, "For the first time, we have proof-positive through this study that some investment up-front (in the farm bill) will save taxpayers a lot of money down the road. The prosperity of the entire country is integrally involved with the prosperity of agriculture."

Featuring recital, play, workshops

Women's Equality Day is Saturday at WSC

"A Voice of Our Own" has been selected as the theme for Women's Equality Day 1985, scheduled to take place on Saturday, Aug. 24 at Wayne State College.

The day-long event is a celebration of American women winning the right to vote, and provides a forum for women to meet and discuss women's issues.

The program is sponsored by the Nebraska Coalition for Women, Wayne State College, and the Wayne Regional Arts Council.

EVENTS WILL kick off with pre-registration on Friday evening, Aug. 23 at 6:30 p.m. in Ramsey Theatre on the college campus.

Following pre-registration, there will be a piano recital of music composed by women from 7:30 to 8:30 in Ramsey Theatre.

Friday night's recital is open to the public at a cost of $2. A social will follow at the Black Knight.

PRESENTING THE recital will be Janet Danielson, a piano instructor at Union College in Lincoln.

A graduate of the Eastman School of Music, Danielson performs music by women composers, past and present. Her one-hour recital includes interesting comments about the music and the composers.

A native of Lincoln, Danielson received her bachelor's and master's degrees from the Eastman School of Music. She also attended the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and the University of Southern California.

HER INTEREST in women composers grew out of her own work as an organist and pianist, and from her friendships with women composers at Eastman.

Increasing momentum of the women's movement in the 1970's and 1980's caused her renewed interest in the music of women composers, and she began to seek out little known manuscripts as well as published works for the purpose of public performance.

Janet Danielson

This past March, Danielson attended a Women in Music conference at the University of Kansas. In June, she performed two works by women composers as part of her audition repertoire in the midwestern preliminary round of the Carnegie Hall International American Music Competition at Northwestern University.

SATURDAY'S ACTIVITIES will begin with registration and coffee from 8:30 to 9 a.m. in Ramsey Theatre.

There will be a welcome and announcements at 9:15 a.m., followed with a theatrical production from 9:30 to 11 a.m. of "A Voice of My Own" by Elinor Jones.

The play will be presented by an all-female cast of the Washington Street Players from Lincoln.

Jones wrote the play in response to a request by John Houseman's Acting Company to show the talents of women in the company.

A celebration of women finding a way to communicate, "A Voice of My Own" is meant to speak not only to women, but to anyone who needs encouragement in daring to develop and express his or her own voice in any field of endeavor.

The play is the story of how women became writers, how they emerged from under the protective cloak of male pseudonyms and the shadow of "anonymous," and began to speak with their own voices.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON'S workshops will include a presentation by former Wakefield resident Eileen Muller, York County Cooperative Extension Service Agent in home economics.

Muller will conduct two workshops sessions and will show slides and share experiences from the recital concluded "United Nations Decade for Women Forum" which she attended last month in Nairobi, Kenya.

Muller first saw Kenya in 1976 during a visit with an aunt who has been a missionary in Tanzania since 1950.

In a recent Omaha World-Herald article, Muller said that when she returned to Kenya in July to attend the Women's Forum she found economic conditions better in the African country.

Muller said she was particularly impressed with the self-sufficiency that has developed among Kenya's women.

WORKSHOPS ALSO will include a panel of farm wives who will address the current situation in agriculture.

Kathleen Severens, associated with the Farm Crisis Hotline in Wall Hill, will address "Rural Women as Advocates, Articulate Voices."

WORKSHOP SESSIONS Saturday afternoon will run from 1 to 1:50 p.m.; 2 to 2:50 p.m.; and 3 to 3:50 p.m.

Women may choose from a variety of topics, including "Who Really Does the Work?" (the image of clerical workers in the 80's); "Child Abuse in the Family"; "Displaced Persons"; "Healthy Eating Lifestyles"; "Enhancing Life Through Continuing Education"; "The Voice of a Female Artist";

Also, "The Voices of Women in the Peace Movement: Past, Present and Future"; "The Voice of a Native American Woman"; "Eating Disorders"; "Step-Families: The Challenges"; "Women's Spirituality"; "Menopause: Not Just a Hot Flash"; "Women of Color Speak Out!"; "Women's Leadership Roles — Making It in a Man's World"; "How to Handle Depression"; and "Step-Families in the World," a look at the contributions of Nebraska women and women from developing countries.

Films which will be shown throughout the day include "A Jury of Her Peers," "Silent Screen & Rebuttal" and "Know Your Weapons: An Introduction to the Defense Budget and the Arms Race."

PRE-REGISTRATIONS for Women's Equality Day 1985 were due Aug. 19. Late registrations, which will be accepted Friday night and Saturday morning, are $18. Lunch is not guaranteed with late registration.

Persons who would like more information about the event are asked to contact Equality Day coordinator Sheryl Lindau of Wayne, 375-3333.

Undergraduate or graduate credit will be offered in conjunction with Equality Day 1985, and students will be required to attend Friday and Saturday sessions and to submit a short paper.

Interested persons should contact Dr. Jean Karlen of Pender, 385-267.

She wore a pearl-beaded Juliet cap. The attached fingertip veil and blusher were beaded with pearls and featured pencil-edged scallops.

The bride carried a cascade of white gardenias, apricot roses, stephanotis and ivy. A white linen handkerchief, a gift from her sister, and embroidered by her grandmother, Vivian Good of Allen, was tucked into the bouquet.

Queen Anne necklines and bishop sleeves, both accented with Chantilly lace.

They wore lace gloves and carried lace fans accented with a cascade of apricot roses and stephanotis.

Flower girls were Wendy and Tracy Russell, and candlelighters were Michelle and Heidi Russell, all of Harleysville, Penn.

COMMANDER THOMAS Taylor of the U.S. Coast Guard, Rohnert Park, Calif., served as best man. Groomsmen was Kelly Stillman of Rocky River, Ohio, brother of the bridegroom.

Laurel's win over King stirs memories

Discussing the state semi-pro baseball tournament championship Laurel won last weekend with player-coach John Manganaro brought back a lot of memories of when I played baseball in high school. The biggest difference between the area town teams and the semi-pro squads was, according to Manganaro, the quality of pitching.

And when he said Laurel faced West Point pitcher Mike King in the championship game, I knew exactly what he was talking about.

Although King pitched for West Point in the tournament, he's a native of Sioux City and threw for Sioux City East when I was in high school. During King's senior year at East, I was a junior at Sioux City North.

I still remember the 1977 season and every at bat I had against King. And although I struck out three times and never got a hit against him in six plate appearances, I was still considered one of the lucky ones by others who had faced the hard-throwing southpaw.

One of my biggest thrills during my high school career was also one of my biggest disappointments, and ironically, it came against King.

King was drafted by teammate Cody Harris in the '77 District Baseball Tournament. The stands were full of fans and also contained several major league scouts that came to watch King's and Harris' efforts.

And both pitchers were hurling no-hitters when I came up and drilled a King fastball to right field. As I ran towards first base I realized that all the major league scouts' eyes were on me. But as I started dreaming about the big money and lucrative contracts, I'd soon be offered, I was forced back to reality when the umpire screamed "foul ball."

Discouraged, I went back to the batter's box and promptly struck out. Needless to say, my dreams of becoming a wealthy big leaguer ended with that at bat.

But King's dreams of joining the major league ranks were nearly fulfilled. After pitching with Morningside College a few years, he was picked fourth in the first round by Charlie Finley and the Oakland A's.

His name was always mentioned with several of baseball's "biggies." Darrel Strawberry, the New York Met all-star, was drafted just three players in front of King. And after a couple of decent years in the minor leagues, King was traded straight up for power hitter Cliff Johnson.

But King never quite made it all the way. And after bouncing around in the A's, Cub's and Yankee minor league systems, it looks as though he's going to call it quits.

Speaking of my younger days as a baseball player, this particular area also brings back a lot of memories.

After my junior year in high school, North opened its baseball season at the Chuck Ellis Memorial Baseball Tournament at Wakefield.

My teammates and I were excited about playing in the tournament because we figured since there weren't any big city schools involved, we'd walk away with the championship.

20-footer key in win

Strong finish earns Reeg club championship

Never let it be said that Bob Reeg doesn't rise to the occasion. After being tied with only three holes remaining, Reeg captured the Men's Club Tournament championship flight by four strokes at the Wayne Golf and Country Club Sunday.

Reeg finished with a net 143, which was four strokes better than Ken Dahl's 147. Cole Froeschle placed third in the championship flight with a 148.

In addition to his strong finish, Reeg's consistency and putting were other assets he used during the tournament.

Reeg fired nine hole scores of 33, 36, 39 and 35, and he said he drilled a couple of long putts, including a long birdie putt to give him the lead for good on the third-to-last hole of the journey. "Putting was probably the strongest part of my game. I made a few long ones and I made a 20-footer on the third-to-last hole for a birdie," Reeg said.

Reeg and Dahl were tied with only three holes remaining, but in addition to his birdie on No. 7, he parred No. 8 and closed with a birdie on hole No. 9 for the victory.

Jim Lindau won the president flight, while Grant Ellingson's 159 was good enough for second place.

The closest flights at the tourney were the bottom three as Gordon Nuernberger, Steve Becker and Curt Novak each won the eighth, ninth and 10th flights, respectively, by one stroke.

Novak finished with a 131, while Jerry Denton and Mel Brown tied with a 132. However, Denton was awarded second place after beating Brown in a playoff. The tenth flight was the only flight that had handicapped scoring.

Dave Clausen finished with the widest margin of victory as his 166 was eight strokes better than Gerry McGath's 174 in the fourth flight.

Lee Remer (second flight), Larry Wingett (third flight) and Ken Marra (sixth flight) all won their respective divisions by four strokes.

Laurel captures state semi-pro baseball title

SCHUYLER John Manganaro plays a pretty good first base, but his coaching may have been his and Laurel's biggest asset during the Class A Nebraska State semi-pro baseball tournament.

Manganaro added Wayne's Mike Meyer and UNO pitcher Mike Jones to the already solid Laurel town team. And both recruits were instrumental in Laurel's 3-0 victory over West Point in the tournament's championship game here Friday night.

Jones outduelled Mike King by limiting West Point to four hits and eight stranded base runners. And Meyer delivered a clutch two-run double in the fourth inning to put Laurel on top for good.

Manganaro praised Meyer's and Jones' play saying they were the keys to the championship.

"We had a good town team but we really needed a catcher and a good pitcher if we planned on doing anything in the state tourney," Manganaro said. "I got Mike because of his knowledge of the game and his great ability. And Jones is a good pitcher and just did a great job for us."

But Manganaro said that Laurel won the tournament because of a team effort.

"Jones and Meyer give all the players a lot of confidence because they work so well together, but we didn't win the tournament because of two or three great efforts, we won because of a great team effort," Manganaro said. "We always made the big play when we had to and it seemed like somebody different always delivered the big hit."

Mike Hoffert broke up King's no-hitter in the fourth inning with an opposite field single to right. Dave Marquardt followed with a double to left and both players scored on Meyer's double.

Laurel scored again in the sixth inning when Manganaro scored on a Rocky Thompson soft roller. Manganaro reached earlier on a fielder's choice.

Laurel finished with seven hits. In addition to Hoffert, Marquardt, Meyer and Thompson, Brian Marquardt, Manganaro and Brad Erwin also collected hits.

Jones finished the tournament with four victories, only one earned run allowed in 29 innings pitched and he hurled a perfect game against Dodge.

Manganaro used Jones' perfect game as an example of Laurel's fine team play.

"Mike only struck out three batters when he pitched his perfect game, so the fielders made 24 plays without an error. As a matter of fact, we only made 10 errors the entire tournament. We just played good fundamental baseball," Manganaro said.

Laurel finished the tournament with a 6-1 record and a 20-8 season mark.

Blair finished third in the tournament and Newcastle placed fourth.

Scholars

according to Bonds.
"The two biggest features of the program (besides the financial assistance) is the special advisor and the seminar," Bonds said.

Whisenhunt said he anticipates approximately 20 students will receive the scholarship for the Fall-1986 Semester at Wayne State College. During the ensuing three years, there could be approximately 60 more academically talented students (20 each year) representing each academic class who would receive the scholar program scholarships. It would take $260,000 in endowments to provide the $1,000 (interest off the endowment) per each of the 20 student the first year of the program. Bonds said the complete scholar program has not been finalized. "Nothing is cast in stone," he said.

Screening of the applications for the scholarships will begin next spring for the first 20 individuals.

Wayne State College already has a Honors Program established for juniors and seniors. With the Nebraska Scholars Program, it will be like "extending the Honors Program through four years," Bonds said.

Kearney State College, which had earlier this year received a $50,000 grant from the Omaha World-Herald Foundation, had opted to utilize the gift to establish a Kearney Hub/World-Herald Honors Scholarship fund.

Bumper corn crop likely to be moved into bin storage

Nebraska corn farmers who harvest higher than normal yields this fall may stand a chance to come out ahead, dollar-wise, when that they might have with smaller yields and a higher cash market price, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension grain marketing specialist said.

In the wake of a U.S. Department of Agriculture report issued Aug. 12 which predicted a record-breaking 1985 corn crop for both Nebraska and the U.S., Lynn Lutgen said the loan and Deficiency payment provisions of the current farm program can be a saving grace for farmers with bumper crops. "This (combination of factors) will not give much help to those with normal or sub-par yields, or save those whose crops were hailed or dried out," he added.

A lot of new crop corn is expected to go into storage, Lutgen said, in projecting that "we're going to see prices of $1.80 to $2.20 per bushel of corn" after harvest this fall before the price is expected to rebound to near the $2.50 level—the government loan rate—by next spring.

"There's a difference between cash price offered and grain moved," Lutgen emphasized. "The government's strong doubt that most country bankers, as has been predicted by some observers, will prod farmers with outstanding loans to sell their corn immediately after harvest."

Raheer, he said, farmers signed up under the federal farm program would logically put their corn under loan, collect the approximate $2.50 loan price per bushel and pay off their bank loan. The interest on corn under loan is around 11 percent, he said, better for the farmer than the likely 13 or 14 percent charged by the bank. And the farmer can forfeit the corn to the government when the loan matures if market prices are adverse.

A FARMER WITH a corn yield substantially higher than "the projected yield" per acre on his farm will benefit from both the loan rate and a deficiency payment, Lutgen said.

As an example, a farmer with a projected yield of 120 bushels per acre, based on past crop history, can put all his corn raised under loan even if this year's yield is much higher—say 135 bushels.

In addition, he will receive a deficiency payment of 40 cents or more a bushel, only on the projected yield, to compensate for the difference between the average market price or the loan rate—whichever is higher—and the official target price of $3.03 a bushel.

"The sign-up for the government program was very high," Lutgen said, expressing the belief that many farmers were highly encouraged by their bankers to enroll in the program for protection from extremely low prices seen looming ahead if the 1985 crop year were normal or better.

"Even a minority of farmers who did not sign up for the program will stand to benefit in the long run as the corn price eventually trends toward the loan price of $2.50," he said.

The avalanche of new corn will be going into storage at the same time that farmers are having to make a decision on the status of old crop corn under the farm program, Lutgen said.

Because of current low prices, farmers with 1984 crop corn under loan and stored in commercial warehouses are likely to turn the corn back to the Commodity Credit Corporation. On the other hand, crop producers storing their corn on their own farm are more likely to hang on to it (re-seal) because they tend to consider storage costs paid to them by CCC—about 26 cents a bushel—as income, Lutgen said.

"This adds up to more pressure especially on on-farm storage facilities, and in the big picture (considering the national corn crop for 1985 and past years' existing stocks) we're moving into a glut of corn as great as that of 1982," which prompted the PIK Program, Lutgen analyzed.

HE CAUTIONED FARMERS thinking of building a new storage to be wary of the possibility that the government will be forced to "put a cap (limit) on the farmer-owned reserve" next year, ahead of the 1986 corn harvest, which would leave producers holding onto corn "with no place to go."

Neither increased exports of U.S. feed grains nor greater use of corn for livestock or poultry feed offer hope for a greater disappearance of the mammoth stocks (and consequently more favorable prices) into the foreseeable future, Lutgen said.

In the U.S., as well as in other world locations, wheat is being substituted for corn in livestock feeding, he said, because of the price differentials. "If the Soviets want to feed cattle, they can get wheat from the EC (European Community) cheaper and easier than buying corn from the U.S.," the university economist said.

"It's hard to look for (corn) price support from exports this coming year."

U.S. livestock prices, which have hit 7-year lows, are dampening chances of growth in cattle and hog feeding. "The (livestock) numbers just aren't there" to make much of a dent, he said, along with the impact of a drop in consumption of red meat, particularly beef, by U.S. consumers. "It's hard to look for (corn) price support from exports this coming year."

As an aside, Lutgen advised cattle feeders to "lock in" a supply of corn at a low price, through a futures contract or purchase agreement, to avoid paying more next year. "Going this route probably would be better than simply buying corn this fall at a bargain basement price but incurring costs in storing it for several months."

Looking ahead for the next 2-3 years, Lutgen painted a scenario of "a drastic increase" in corn going into both commercial and on-farm storage, with the effective price of corn the government loan price, unless the farm program is drastically altered.

"To put it another way, the government program price, under present ground rules, will be the best deal in town," Lutgen said.

District tractor driving contest

Steve Jones, son of Merna and Wayne Jones of Allen, was the winner of the FFA district tractor driving contest held Friday at Scribner. Steve, who is a member of the Allen chapter, won the first place in the local contest held last month. He will now represent the district at the state contest to be held in Lincoln on Sept. 7.

Jeff Gotch, son of Dwight and Roni Gotch, placed second in the local contest and third in the district contest.

The Allen chapter of Future Farmers of America is sponsored by Thomas Wilmes.

Tour research and extension center

County commissioners in northeast Nebraska will be special guests of the University of Nebraska Northeast Research and Extension Center's annual VIP tour in Concord Aug. 26.

During the invitational tour, dinner and presentation will be given by the Center's local program. UNL staff will discuss research and extension projects. Other participants will include directors of the Northeast Nebraska Experimental Farm Association, county extension board presidents and extension agents.

Lawn grubs

Late summer is the time when white grub damage often becomes evident in Nebraska lawns and turf.

Lloyd Andersen, University of Nebraska extension entomologist, said grub damage often does not become obvious until plants with damaged root systems are stressed by hot, dry weather.

Damaged areas appear as brown patches that increase in size over time. "If grubs are causing the damage, the C shaped, white and grey worms will be found among grass roots near the edge of the brown patches," he said. "If no insects are found, the damage may be too old to treat or may be due to other causes."

If grubs are present, UNL entomologists recommend treatment with Othello, diazinon or Dylox. "We suggest that the lawn be aerated prior to application of the insecticide," Andersen said, "and that at least 3/4 inch of water be applied after application to help ensure that the insecticide makes contact with the grubs."

Further information on white grub control is available from local Cooperative Extension Service offices.

Livestock judging contest

Thirty-five youth participated in the Northeast Nebraska NTCC Livestock Judging Contest on August 1 in Norfolk. The contest was sponsored by Northeast Community College in Norfolk and the Cooperative Extension Service.

Among the top ten finishers in the junior division were these Wayne County 4-Hers:

2nd - Jenni Topp, Winside; 7th - Jerry Williams, Carroll; 8th - Cory Miller, Wayne; 9th - Jenny Puls, Hoskins.

Other participants from Wayne County were Bob Stoffel, Mark Stoffel and Matt Stoffel, Hoskins and Charles Bloomfield, Carroll.

Information on marketing

"Marketing" will be the theme of a series of informational meetings for corn growers throughout Nebraska beginning late this month, jointly sponsored by the Nebraska Corn Growers Association (NCGA) and the Nebraska Corn Check-Off Board.

The meeting schedule will be Thursday, Aug. 29, 12:00 lunch at Wayne State College, Wayne.

Speakers will include two of the nation's "foremost agricultural marketing analysts, both of whom have been widely published. John Roach, senior market analyst on the "Market to Market" television program, chief farm marketing analyst for Successful Farming magazine, and a frequent contributor of Agri-Finance magazine, will speak on "How to Run a Farm Business in Today's Economy."

Allen A. Terhaar, director of long range planning for the U.S. Feed Grains Council and agricultural marketing specialist for the Grain Division, U.S. Department of Agriculture Foreign Agricultural Service, will discuss "Implementation and Analysis of USDA's Foreign Market Development Programs for Grain Commodities."

Sponsors of the meal will include Monsanto, FMC, American Cyanamid, the Nebraska Corn Check-Off Board, and Dow Chemical.

Admission will be by ticket only, but tickets are available without cost from Breck Giese, 375-4731, or Roger Fuess, 375-4780.

Nebraska to continue importing livestock

Chuck Schroeder, Director of the Nebraska Department of Agriculture, and Dr. August Kruse, State Veterinarian, announced Thursday the restrictions pertaining to the highly communicable viral disease — vesicular stomatitis. Nebraska will continue to import livestock meeting the following requirements:

1. All livestock from Colorado, New Mexico, and any other state where vesicular stomatitis is diagnosed during 1985 may be imported into Nebraska provided a health certificate accompanies each shipment.
2. The health certificate must have a statement by the issuing veterinarian that reads: "To my knowledge, there has been no vesicular stomatitis within 25 miles of the premise of origin for the last 60 days. I have examined all livestock on the premises and found no signs or lesions of vesicular stomatitis. The herd of origin contains no animals that have been exposed to vesicular stomatitis."

Special precautions should be taken with livestock involved in rodeo and show circuits as these animals may come in contact with the virus. The symptoms resemble Foot-and-Mouth disease. Cattle, horses, and swine are all naturally susceptible to the virus.

The symptoms include fever accompanied by vesicles of the mucus membranes of the mouth, epithelium of the tongue, soles of the feet, coronary band, and occasionally other areas of the body. There is no known specific treatment for this disease.

Anyone needing more information or having any questions should contact the State Veterinarian's office, Nebraska Department of Agriculture, (402) 471-2331.

the farmer's wife

by pat meierhenry

One thing sure, we haven't needed much air conditioning this summer! These cool nights remind us of fall. The flies are hanging on the doors, trying to get in where it's warm. I've been taking a sweater along wherever I go.

A week ago, we were at the Pizza Hut in Schuyler. My sis and I meet there to exchange kids. We were there to pick up Rebecca, and they were late. The AC was so cold, I went to the car and got my blanket. Ann was embarrassed, but I was more comfortable.

I had that blanket at the county fair, too, and I was dazed glad. I was very popular with it; everyone wanted to stand by me! I keep it in the car year 'round. I bought this one with money my mom gave us for an anniversary. It's bright red plaid, and just looks warm.

It replaced one that was completely worn out. Before we were married, the nurses I worked with had a shower for me. One older gal brought a sturdy plaid blanket, with a note that said it was to be used, not put away and saved. It was to be used for picnics, for fishing trips, for kids to sit on, for kids to wrap up in. I even used it to wrap hot dishes to the pollocks. And when I used it, I remembered Mrs. Wall, and her blanket also warmed my heart. So it was ideal gift.

WE WERE TALKING about wedding gifts at work the other day. Jed gail said she sold some at her garage sale. I admitted that was what I should do, instead of leaving them packed away in the closet. But I'm too sentimental.

We got a lot of sheets, blankets and towels. At the time, I thought we'd never use them all; but, of course, they're long since worn out. I could use a linen shower!

But we also got coffee carafes with candles under them, and casseroles with candles. They were popular that year. There were two lazy Susans; and a giant ash tray, for two people who do not smoke.

Our gifts were opened by friends, and displayed at the reception. I much prefer the current trend for the couple to open their own gifts. I remembered best the ones that came to the house early.

On the night before our big day, a young boy appeared at the door with a gift-wrapped box. Inside was a crystal bud vase with a gorgeous sterling silver design. A small card accompanying said, "In appreciation," and was signed with a very German name. It was from a recent patient, a lady, with surgery for cancer who could barely speak English. Obviously, I cherish that vase. I got it out for a rose just last week, and remembered the giver with fondness.

A NURSING classmate called tonight. Her husband's a farmer, too. We had a good visit, and when we hung up, the Big Farmer commented, "I thought they were having money problems." I said, "She needed to talk; and I'm cheaper than a psychiatrist, even long distance."

After we had sympathized with each other, she closed by saying, "We'll both be here tomorrow, Pat."

Our friends have become very special to us this year. There have been phone calls, unexpected visits, cards and letters. These have been our gifts, and we've cherished each one. The old high school chum from Orlando drove up from her folks in York, just for lunch, and listened, and shared. We all hug more than we did 20 years ago. We must all be reading about the value of hugs. And they are helpful.

The little day-by-day thing on the kitchen counter has been full of gems this month. (It comes from the classmate in California.) "The secret of contentment is knowing how to enjoy what you have." "If you don't get everything you want, think of the things that you don't get that you don't want." "Cassie to inquire what the future has in store, but take as a gift whatever the day brings forth." And "Take time to laugh; it is the music of the soul."

Big dip in land values reported

On average, the value of farmland declined significantly in Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota and Wyoming from June 1984 through May 1985, according to an annual study of actual land sales conducted by the Federal Land Bank of Omaha.

John Harling, president and chief executive officer of the Farm Credit Banks of Omaha, which includes the Omaha Land Bank, said the continuing decline in land values has put additional economic pressure on farmers and ranchers and the agribusinesses that serve them.

The Land Bank study showed that the largest decrease in land values in the four-state district occurred in Iowa which had an overall average decrease of 26.1 percent from June 1984 through May 1985. The average decline in land values in Nebraska for the period ending May 1985 was 23.3 percent; South Dakota's average decline was 11.7 percent; and Wyoming saw an average decline of 6 percent.

THE STUDY ATTRIBUTED the decline in land values to a combination of factors that have eroded farm income during the past five years. These include low commodity prices, high operating costs and poor weather in some parts of the district.

Of those who bought land, almost 65 percent surveyed in the study said they purchased the land to expand their operations. This is down from the 1984 report in which 69 percent said they bought land for the same reason.

Other reasons for buying land were for investment purposes (17 percent) and to establish their own farms (14 percent). Another 4 percent bought the land for non-agricultural purposes.

The Land Bank Study closely parallels a report on land values released by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) on June 7, 1985, in the report, USDA stated that the land-value decline during the past year ending March 1985 at 29 percent for Iowa, 28 percent for Nebraska, 26 percent for South Dakota and 10 percent for Wyoming.

The Land Bank study showed the average sale price of land at $1,221 an acre in Iowa, $422 an acre in Nebraska, $289 an acre in South Dakota, and $177 an acre in Wyoming.

USDA also reported that the value of farmland per acre had dropped in Iowa from $1,999 at its peak in 1981 to $1,064 in 1985. The value of land in Nebraska dropped from $729 in 1981 to $444 per acre in 1985. In South Dakota the value of land dropped from $329 per acre in 1981 to $177 in 1985, USDA reported.

Check tree leaves for water needs

Homeowners can read a message about the water needs of their trees and shrubs by looking closely at the wilted condition of the leaves.

A slight wilt on the leaves during the afternoon that disappears before sundown indicates the lack of water is not causing severe stress to the plant. However, if the leaves stay limp in the early evening, the tree needs help in the form of a deep soaking. If the tree is in sandy soil, it may need rewatering in five or six days. For trees in heavy clay soils, the waterings should be repeated every seven to ten days.

Water the trees or shrubs in the early morning to lessen the chance for mildew, fungi, and root rot — plant problems that flourish in damp soils at night.

In watering a tree, be sure that the watering area is larger than the circumference of the branches. For small trees, a basin three to four feet in diameter around the base may be sufficient; larger trees may require a sprinkler to cover an adequate area beneath the tree.

Getting water to the tree in time is of prime importance and getting the message through the leaves is the way to know when to water.

Good time to plant alfalfa

Mid-to-late August is an excellent time to seed alfalfa because fewer weeds germinate in late summer and fall to compete with young seedlings. Moisture must be available in the soil from rainfall or irrigation to rapidly establish alfalfa plants before winter arrives.

Alfalfa requires a fertile, well drained soil. Phosphorus and lime may be necessary for good stand establishment and high production and should be applied before final seedbed preparation so they can be incorporated into the soil.

Prepare a firm seedbed free of large clods. On erosive soils, reduce tillage to leave some trashy residue on the soil surface. Seeding directly into small grain stubble also works well if weedy grasses or volunteer grain are not a problem.

Only high quality seed of the most productive varieties should be used. Use of "control" seed results in loss of yield potential.

Before seeding, inoculate seeds to insure good nodulation and nitrogen fixation. Seed to 15 pounds per acre approximately one-half inch deep.

If necessary, apply chemicals to control weeds. Tolban, Balan and Eplam can be applied preplant incorporated to control annual grasses. Butylrac or Butoxone control some broadleaf weeds if applied before weeds are two inches high. Kerb and Chem-Hoe control winter annual grasses when applied after alfalfa is dormant in late October.

Cool weather hinders corn crop maturation

Recent rains were excellent for boosting crop yields, but now farmers need a warm, dry spell to mature the crop sufficiently before the first frost.

The cool, wet spell has slightly delayed corn maturity across much of the state. The situation in north-central Nebraska and the Panhandle could become serious if cool weather continues, the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Cooperative Extension Ag Climate Committee said Monday.

Predicted record yields and bin shortages make it even more important for the grain to be as dry as possible before stored, since much may have to be stored outside on the ground, said Ralph Neid, committee chairman and extension climatologist.

Predictions based on the number of growing degree days needed before frost indicate that late maturing sorghum planted June 10 may not mature in some areas.

Statistics indicated that Imperial and Seward were the only two stations reporting growing degree days ahead of normal. The rest of the state ranged from slightly behind normal to as much as two weeks behind normal at McCook, Aurora and Franklin.

Temperatures from Aug. 12-18 across the state ranged from a low of 43 degrees F at Concord on Aug. 15 to a high of 96 degrees at Alliance on Aug. 17. Temperatures at several weather reporting stations never reached 90 degrees during the week and two stations, Concord and O'Neill never reached the 80 degree mark.

Precipitation for the week ranged from no rain to 3.25 inches at O'Neill and 3.21 inches at Falls City.

Grant applications sought

The Nebraska Department of Economic Development will be accepting new applications for 1985 Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) funds later this year based on the recommendations of the CDBG advisory committee which met in Lincoln last week to revise the program.
 Approximately $6 million in federal funds is available for distribution to local governments for community development activities.
 The CDBG advisory committee was called by Don Dworak, director of the Department and consisted of officials from the League of Nebraska Municipalities, Nebraska Association of County Officials, Community Action Agencies, Councils of Government, American Consulting Engineers Council, Legislative Research Office and Cooperative Extension Service.
 The committee developed state funding priorities and competitive selection criteria which will be used to determine the local recipients of funds. The revisions proposed in the CDBG program will be distributed to all local governments and counties in early September. Final revisions will be made after an Oct. 4 public hearing in Kearney which coincides with the League of Nebraska Municipalities annual conference.

 The 82 CDBG applications received by the Department of Economic Development from May 10 to June 14 will be returned. These were to have been considered for funding on a first come, first served non-competitive basis. Due to numerous complaints from local officials, this procedure was revised. New applications will be accepted beginning in October by the Department of Economic Development with a November deadline. Grant announcements will be made by Dec. 20.

From Ak-Sar-Ben

Fair board gets grant

The Wayne County Fair has received $1,000 from Ak-Sar-Ben according to president Richard Sorenson and secretary Arnold Marr. The funds are part of a four-year grant to build new restrooms at the fairgrounds. Completion is expected in August.

The Ak-Sar-Ben County Fair Improvement Program is made possible by funds from the annual race meeting, according to Ak-Sar-Ben Agriculture Committee Chairman, Eugene A. Conley.

For the 32nd consecutive year, Ak-Sar-Ben is offering up to $1,000 annually to Nebraska county fairs for permanent improvements to the fairgrounds. It is a matching grant, wherein the county fairs agree to match the Ak-Sar-Ben contribution dollar for dollar.

Ak-Sar-Ben sets aside $90,000 each year for this improvement program, which over the years has totaled close to $2,000,000 to fairs throughout Nebraska. The grants are made available to all Nebraska county fairs which do not conduct pari-mutuel race meetings. In addition to the grants, all state admissions taxes at the races each year are earmarked to go to the county fairs.

"This program is one of Ak-Sar-Ben's most vital programs benefiting the people of Nebraska. We are very proud of this commitment to the county fairs, which we know are among the best in the country," Mr. Conley said.
