In solving revenue shortfall, combination of cuts possible

by Chuck Hackenmiller

A nickel a pack increase for cigarette tax in Nebraska has passed (on Monday) the general file first round and is heading for select file second round.

But several Nebraska senators object to the smoke being blown in the faces of groups or individuals being singled out to carry the load of increasing state revenue in light of the state's predicted revenue shortfall.

And other senators were not happy with the first round approval last Thursday of the $18.9 million budget cuts recommended — particularly when it meant cuts to the state colleges and the University of Nebraska.

With the recommended 3 percent across the board budget cut, Wayne State College would stand to lose approximately $183,263 of state aid. Kearney State would lose $336,435, Chadron State $171,647 and Peru State $98,699.

On Tuesday, however, the legislators whittled away at that three percent and dropped it down a percentage point to 2 percent, according to District 17 Senator Gerald Conway of Wayne.

"The Appropriations Committee came out and reduced to 2 percent for higher education instead of 3 percent. That was a major accomplishment," said Conway, who voted Tuesday morning for the 2 percent cut.

That amendment will reinstate approximately $2 million into the state budget, he said.

INSTEAD OF slashing away the budgets of higher education institutions at will, Conway said the legislators should study the "role of admissions" established for colleges to see if there are any changes there to be made.

Conway voted against the nickel per pack of cigarette tax, primarily on the basis that the bill was going after a single concern — such as tobacco and alcohol — to bring in extra revenue.

And he said he did not like the way a bill of this nature passed. "It didn't have a justifiable amount of time to be processed," he said.

He said that tax for alcohol and cigarettes should be partially earmarked toward aid in the social problems created by the products.

Governor Bob Kerrey had also proposed a plan for additional revenue which would increase the income tax rate from 19 percent of the federal income tax liability (for the 1985 calendar year) to 20 percent. That amount would then drop to 18.5 percent at the start of the 1986 year.

Conway said there was "room for adjustment" in the income tax rates, but because of the extent of the current economy, some have the attitude of "not approving the (income tax) rate adjustment now, or approving it only for a period of time."

"It is going to take a combination of cuts and revenue enhancement," Conway said.

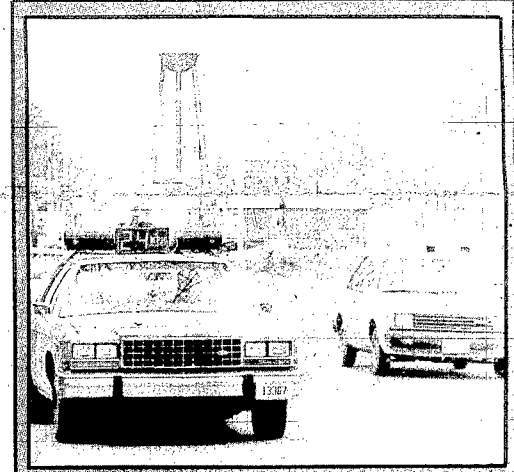

"I'm not committing to raising any taxes yet," he added.

HE SAID HE looks for the burden to be absorbed first in budget cuts. "And then go from there," he mentioned.

The revised proposal also calls for $9.7 million in additional revenue through a sales tax on services that would exclude agricultural and health services (veterinary services, doctors, dentists, hospitals, nursing homes).

If the legislators considered approval of the sales tax on service, it would allow the state to drop its cur-

Timpte employed to begin work at David City

By Nov. 18, 21 people employed by Timpte, Inc. of Wayne will begin work producing refrigerator trailers at the David City Timpte facility.

The fabricators and welders will be working the 5 p.m. to 1:30 a.m. shift at the David City plant.

A controller has also been named by Timpte, Inc. to the Wayne plant, which is expected to begin operation in April of next year.

Sid Engel of Keokuk, Iowa, formerly employed there at Sheiler-Globe, began his employment Monday with Timpte. He and his wife Nancy have three children.

Watch your speed, people

The Wayne City Police Department has, on loan from the Nebraska Department of Highway Safety, a electronic board that will display the speed of vehicles that pass the police vehicles.

The equipment is mounted in front of the revolving red lights on top of the police vehicles and will be used for a two week period.

Police Officer Robert E. Treacle said the purpose of obtaining the equipment is "to give people a chance to check their speedometer, to see if it is right."

But he warned that if there is anyone exceeding the speed limit, warnings or citations will be issued. "Whenever it is called for," he said.

The police vehicles with the special equipment will be in numerous places in town during daylight hours only, Treacle said. The vehicle will be in plain sight and not in the alleys or anywhere where it is difficult to spot.

No suspects in assault case

No suspects in the Oct. 31 sexual assault of a Wayne State College female student have been arrested, according to Wayne County Attorney Bob Ensz.

Ensz said Wednesday morning that there has been nothing new to report on the case since the article appeared in the Wayne Herald's Monday edition.

The incident occurred early Wednesday evening (Oct. 31) on campus in the vicinity between the Hahn building, Carhart Math and Science Building and the Willow Bowl.

The sexual assault is being treated as third degree, which can be punishable to a maximum of one year imprisonment or a $1,000 fine. No description of the attacker, or the name of the college student victim, has been released.

Christmas section arriving

The "Home For Christmas" keep-sake special section will be appearing in the Nov. 14 edition of The Wayne Herald.

Inside the special section will be advertisements from specialty businesses that sell home-crafted items (such as ceramics, books or other items) or baked goods, plus various advertisements on a variety of products from retail advertisers — all promoting great Christmas gifts that can be purchased in this area.

And for interesting reading inside the special section, "Christmas Memories" will be featured. Several stories, written by readers from away as Montana, have been submitted to the Wayne Herald, according to Chuck Hackenmiller, managing editor.

"One of the stories will maybe make you shed a tear. Another will bring nostalgia to those who remember Christmas as it was celebrated years ago. Others relate to the beauty and joy of the holiday season," said Hackenmiller.

"I think our readers will have a warm feeling about Christmas when they read these Christmas memories. We're confident it will put our readers into the Christmas spirit."

BECAUSE of the postponed date to Nov. 14, the Wayne Herald will continue taking "Christmas Memories" from readers until Tuesday, Nov. 12.

Also in the special section "Home for Christmas" — a theme used to convey the attitude of shopping and celebrating Christmas at home — will be a children's story entitled "Hector, the Glimsy Elf."

The children's story was written by Hackenmiller, with illustrations by a Winside and Wayne-Carroll high school student and two Wayne residents.

Those interested in placing an advertisement in the "Home for Christmas" special section, or would like more information, can call The Wayne Herald at 375-2600.

The week of Nov. 3-9 has been proclaimed as Medical Record Week in Nebraska by Governor Kerrey.

The Nebraska Medical Record Association was founded 34 years ago as a component state organization of the American Medical Record Association and has approximately 300 members. Medical record practitioners specialize in medical information management, retention and analysis and are employed in various organizations, government and other health agencies.

Medical record practitioners strive to improve the quality of health information services and uphold the patient's right to privacy by protecting the confidentiality of medical information. Accurate and complete medical records are a vital component of Medicare's new payment system.

In addition to providing data used for the continuing care of patients, medical records are also important for research and medical education, planning, reimbursement, and serve as a legal document.

NPPD awards contract

The Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) board of directors has awarded a contract to Dominion Construction Company of Scottsbluff to complete construction of a 345,000 volt transmission line in northeast Nebraska.

The bid was $2,695,048.

When completed, the line will stretch from NPPD's Hoskins Substation northeast of Norfolk to the Iowa Public Power Service Raun Substation near Sioux City, Iowa. The line will strengthen the District's transmission system in northeast Nebraska and allow for enhanced reliability.

Completion of the line had been delayed because of legal challenges in Thurston county. Transmission towers along the line route, outside of Thurston County, have already been installed.

Cramer is also chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Nebraska State Colleges.

As officers, the trio will guide the Foundation in its support of Wayne State College.

Six people have been named trustees of the Foundation. Trustees help promote the college and its students, faculty and staff, aid fund raising, help recruit students and provide their own exemplary annual gifts to the Foundation, Hutton said.

Conway

There have been 34 bills filed during the special session thus far, and Conway said only nine or 10 have been ruled as within the scope of Governor Kerrey's special session calling.

One such legislative bill deals with obtaining the child support payments from the spouse ruled as the individual to make the payments. The state of Nebraska could stand to lose approximately $6 million in federal money if action is not taken to increase its efforts to enforce the child support payments from the spouse.

In addition, the state of Nebraska will also face a stress on its budget, Conway said, since the family that does not receive the child support payments legally obligated to them must rely on state social service programs.

He said he anticipates the special session to run at least another two weeks.

The state senators were scheduled to debate the 1 percent raise in the income tax rate on Wednesday.

A grateful nation pauses to remember

Veterans' Day is a time set aside by a grateful nation to honor those who served their country, both living and dead.

More than 5,000 Nebraskans gave their lives in the service of their country in wars fought in this century. Each one of those who died had a name and people who loved them. A casualty is more than a number.

The following letter, written on the first Mothers' Day following the Armistice, appeared in the Nebraska State Journal on June 18, 1919. It was written by Will Fike to Mrs. Lewis of Superior, Nebraska. She was the mother of his old friend, Taylor Lewis. It seems appropriate to reprint it on Veterans' Day:

"As this is Mothers' day, I think that it is a very appropriate time to write you and tell you a few things that I have just found out about your brave son, who has been put to rest over here.

"I have just come back from Company L of the 355th Infantry. They came into camp on their way home. I had no trouble in finding out about Taylor. Everyone in the company knew him like a brother. I met a man, when I first came into their plot, that had buddied with him at Camp Funston. He told me all about the good times that Taylor and he had together, and took me up to the top sergeant. This sergeant had soldiered with Taylor all the time he was in the company and was with him when he was wounded.

"If I am not mistaken, it was September 6 (should be 12 he was hit). They had been advancing up to the front line trenches all day long. In the morning about 10:30 a high explosive hit his platoon and killed about twelve of his men, and knocked him unconscious. He came out of this in about half an hour and went on with the company. About 4:30 p.m. they came to a hill and were going to dig in for the night. An officer came up and they decided to go into an old trench near by. Taylor left his rifle there and helped one of his men carry his pack to the trench.

"After all was settled in the trench, he went back after his rifle. As he was picking it up a small whizzbang came over and exploded about two feet from him. It struck both legs just below the hips and one piece of shrapnel hit him in the head and cut thru his helmet and gave him a dirty cut in the head, but not severe."

"This sergeant and a lieutenant ran out as soon as they saw he was hit. Boots told them to go back before they got hit. He said: 'They got me and they will get you too, if you don't get away from here.' They carried him into the trench and sat him a bunch of blankets, straightened his legs out and dressed them the best they could.

"They had no stretcher or medical supplies. They sent back about five kilos for a medical corps man, but here they found no stretcher, so send for an ambulance. To make a long story short, it was 1 o'clock the next morning before they started him back and it was on a crude stretcher that they made, carried by four men.

"There fellows said that all the time they were dressing his wounds and waiting for supplies, Boots was sitting, smoking and talking with the men about the Jerries. He talked with the men all the way back until they met an ambulance.

"The men in the company called him 'Shorty.' Every man in the company knows him as a friend and buddy. They are all sore about losing him. They say if they had had any medical attention at hand, he would have come out all right, but his wounds got infection. There is always poison gas in the trenches."

Senate sells out Agriculture dealt low blow

Senate sells out on cargo preference

At the same time that the Congress is wrestling with deficit reduction decisions that would cut money from agricultural programs, the Senate has chosen to increase funding for a select group of well-funded maritime firms at the direct expense of America's farmers. Last week, during consideration of its version of the Farm Bill, the Senate approved an amendment introduced by Senator Thad Cochran of Mississippi that would exempt the commercial export credit sales from cargo preference in exchange for an increase in the cargo preference requirements for P.L. 480 commodities.

At present, cargo preference requirements mandate that at least 50 percent of the Food for Peace commodities be shipped on American ships. The amendment requires that, over the next three years, the amount be increased to 75 percent. The funding for the additional 25 percent would come through the Department of Transportation. However, the exemption for commercial export credit sales would remain in effect only so long as the Department of Transportation funding was available.

A cargo preference provision that increases the level of Food for Peace commodities that must be carried on United States flag vessels and makes all commercial export programs potential targets for cargo preference requirements is a stab in the back for American agriculture. The Senate, by supporting this on a 70 to 30 vote, has proven itself to be even more gutless and greedy and more susceptible to the influence of the maritime industry and its PAC contributions than the House supporters of cargo preference.

My position remains firm that this is extortion. The maritime interests are demanding that in order to eliminate the cargo preference requirements on commercial exports credit sales, the Food for Peace program must be sacrificed. And the Senate is capitulating. Furthermore, this arrangement puts agricultural interests in the position of having to successfully lobby each year to subsidize maritime firms. There is no guarantee for such funding by Congress. This agreement would force agricultural interests to lead a fight to bust the budget on behalf of the maritime interests.

IN ADDITION, there is nothing in the amendment which would prevent the maritime interests from going congressman

after all commercial export programs, including GSM-2, if for any reason the additional 25 percent of cargo preference funds is not appropriated.

The Senate has portrayed itself as working out a plan that will benefit both farmers and the maritime industry, when in fact it may have sold the American farmer and future commercial grain exports down the river. When America's agricultural export program needed a life preserver, the U.S. Senate threw it a rustbucket full of holes. It is ironic that some farm state legislators of both parties voted against their farmers, agribusiness interests and the taxpayers.

Where were our Senators when this amendment came to the floor? Instead of voting for it, they should have been leading the fight against it. Earlier this year, when the House took action on the Farm Bill, Representative Virginia Smith and I led the opposition to cargo preference requirements in that bill, but the maritime firms and unions, with their generous political action committees, won the day again. The final version of the House Bill maintains the present cargo preference requirements on both P.L. 480 commodities and on the blended credit programs. The additional cost to the American taxpayer last year to pay for these requirements was $155 million.

If, as Senator Ed Zorinsky said recently, the Senate version of the Farm Bill usually takes precedence over bills passed by the House, then, by leaving in to maritime interests, the supporters of this provision have dealt a low blow to American agriculture and the American farmer.

Pork import reform needed. A recent decision by the International Trade Commission to leave countervailing duties on live Canadian hog imports but not on pork product imports has been bad news for America's farmers. The International Trade Commission ruled that hog growers and pork packers are not producing like products because there is not a continuous line between growers and packers.

As I told two Agriculture subcommittees last week, it is difficult to persuade a farmer that there is not a continuous line between grower and producer when he is unloading a truck full of hogs at a packing plant where, at the same time, workers are loading a truck with wrapped chilled pork on the other side of the building.

Our pork producers are suffering because of a massive increase in pork products from Canada. Canadians brought 356 million pounds of pork products into the United States in 1984 — an increase of 79 million pounds over the previous year. And it is obvious that Canadian producers will continue to circumvent the countervailing duties on live hog imports by slaughtering their hogs in Canada and shipping their products into the United States until this requirement is changed.

Nebraska ranks fifth in the nation in number of hogs and pigs on hand. The consequence of this decision to our pork industry are very detrimental. If the policy is applied to other agricultural products, the overall effect could be devastating.

Approach to ag debt problems must be comprehensive

Last week I told members of the House Agriculture Committee that Congress will have to address the problems of all lenders and all borrowers with agricultural debt. If an equitable solution is to be found for those who need help. The agricultural debt crisis will affect not only those who are borrowers of the Farm Credit System; it will affect all agricultural producers who are borrowing money today.

Commercial banks, individuals, rural and ag-related businesses, and the Farmers Home Administration also face billions of dollars of debt losses and nonseizable debt. It would be neither prudent nor equitable to assist one farmer simply because he borrows his capital from one institution, yet permit his neighbor with the same debt problem to perish because he borrows from a different lender. Both borrowers are financially imperiled; both lenders are further weakened by defaults.

We must address the problems of all lenders and all borrowers with agricultural debt. Focusing on only a fraction of the problem will result in a fractional solution.

What's ahead

To much emphasis is being placed on "how to preserve the old society or how to get back to the way society was" instead of accepting the attitude that the "future is now."

That is one message gathered by the 30 or more individuals attending the Visions from the Heartland "Pioneering for the Nineties" regional Conference Saturday afternoon in Norfolk.

This conference is a grassroots project with a purpose to engage Nebraskans directly in decision-making and discussion about the future of their communities.

Topics discussed through round table discussion were agriculture, business and industry, education, energy and natural resources, finance, government and law, health, religion, social services, telecommunications and information services.

The important thing noted at the conference was that for each round table discussion on certain topics — there were threats. But there always seemed to be opportunities along with the threats.

It is hard to disagree with a comment made by Robert Theobald, the keynote speaker at the conference in Norfolk. He said: "I believe the future will provide a better life for us all.

"But like the past, that better life will come only if we struggle for it."

Proposed tax increase could face challenge

by Melvin Paul

State lawmakers last week (October 28) resumed floor deliberations after a one-week break in the special session during which committees sifted through 34 legislative bills that have been introduced.

The Legislature's Appropriations Committee designed a package of deep reductions in current year spending — deeper, in fact, than Gov. Bob Kerrey believes is necessary.

As lawmakers resumed their floor sessions, their authority to deal with the budget problem partially through an income tax increase, as proposed by the revenue committee, appeared to be under a legal cloud.

The committee voted 5-3 to send to the floor LB 10, a $24 million increase in the state income tax. The bill introduced by Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, would increase to 20 percent the 1985 state individual income tax rate. The rate now stands at 19 percent of federal tax liability.

The committee action followed the issuance of an opinion by Attorney General Robert Spire that said consideration of an income tax increase was not within Gov. Bob Kerrey's special session call, and is therefore ineligible for legislative consideration.

ALTHOUGH SPIRE'S opinion is not binding on the Legislature, lawmakers must consider the possibility of a court challenge by taxpayers to any tax increase ordered in the special session. If the state were to be sued for enacting an income tax increase not provided for in the governor's call, Spire, ironically, would be called upon to defend the action in court.

The income tax increase was but one of several proposals before the special session that Spire declared to be outside the governor's call. In all, Spire said 17 of the 34 pending legislative bills were outside of Kerrey's special session call.

THE OPINION seemed to exclude from legislative consideration bills proposing a state lottery, the legalization of video devices for use in local lotteries, the imposition of a spending lid on local governments and the creation of a state bank.

The revenue committee vote on advancement of the income tax rate increase came with full awareness by members that the attorney general had issued the opinion saying it couldn't be considered.

Although Kerrey declined after the committee vote to amend his special session call to allow consideration of the income tax increase, Revenue Committee Chairman Vard Johnson of Omaha said he may ask the governor to reconsider before lawmakers adjourn their budget session.

Johnson said he would recommend to Speaker William Nichol of Scottsbluff that lawmakers not deal with LB 10, the proposed income tax rate increase, until all the other business of the special session is complete.

After spending is reduced and lawmakers pass judgement on other bills that would increase state revenue, Johnson said, they should turn their attention to LB 10.

At that time, he said, the governor may be more willing to allow the bill to be considered. If not, Johnson said 33 of the 49 lawmakers may be willing to reconvene themselves in a new special session to deal with the income tax issue.

The revenue committee decided to send an income tax rate increase to the full Legislature after it became clear that Kerrey's proposed tax on service didn't have sufficient support to clear the committee.

The net increase in revenue collections from Kerrey's proposed service tax, LB 34 would total about $40 million annually.

The committee decided against sending the tax on services to the floor after a public hearing in which representatives of service industries and farm groups testified in strong opposition to the measure.

The revenue committee agreed to form a tax force to study the service tax issue further and prepare a bill for introduction in a future legislative session.

Displaying the Halloween spirit(s)

IT WAS IMPOSSIBLE TO TELL who was having the most fun — residents and staff of Wayne Care Centre — or the youngsters from St. Mary's School in Wayne who visited the centre last Thursday afternoon to present a program of special Halloween music. One thing for sure, Care Centre Administrator Gil Haase, at left, wasn't going to let Halloween slip by without disguising himself. In the center photo, little Timoni Neustrom doesn't clown around when it comes to singing her heart out. Timoni joined other students of St. Mary's School, bottom right, as they sang songs and handed out homemade Halloween cards to each of the residents. Volunteer music director at St. Mary's School is Connie Webber.

Eight fumbles sink Wildcats

'Fumble-itis' costs Wayne State 26-24 loss

By Mike Scott

WSC Sports Information

The Wayne State Wildcats literally fumbled away their chance for a victory against the Emporia State Hornets, losing the ball eight times in their 26-24 loss here Saturday.

The Hornets took advantage of the Wildcats' mistakes, as four of their five scoring plays followed fumble recoveries. Emporia State scored first with an Eric Bliss 30-yard field goal after Bryan Wise recovered an Ed Jochum fumble on the Wayne State 15-yard line.

Wayne State's next possession ended with another Jochum fumble; this time after a first down on the Hornet seven-yard line. The Wildcats got the ball back after fair-catching an Emporia State punt. Wayne State drove 53 yards in 10 plays, ending in a four-yard Jochum touchdown pass to Chuck McGinnis. The Herve Roussel PAT kick was good, and the Wildcats took the lead 7-3 with 3:03 left in the first quarter.

Emporia State's next score followed still another Wayne State fumble. Eros Sanchez kept the ball on a fake punt attempt, but fumbled as he was hit. The Hornets drove 36 yards in seven plays, capped by quarterback Bob Lee's carry from the one-yard line. The Bliss PAT was good and Emporia State took the lead 10-7.

The Wildcats scored next after taking over on downs on their own 24-yard line, driving 76 yards in 10 plays. Carl Calvert ran the final 10 yards through the middle for the touchdown. The Roussel PAT was good and the Wildcats led again 14-10 with 56 seconds left in the half.

Wayne State scored one more time in the half after Lamont Lewis intercepted a Lee pass, and returned it 12 yards to the Emporia State 34-yard line. The Wildcats needed just 30 seconds to score, with Jochum hitting Ray Hooker with two seconds left in the half. The Roussel PAT was good and the Wildcats led at halftime 21-10.

Emporia State returned the second half kickoff to their own 46, and then drove 54 yards in 11 plays. Brad Clites scored on a three-yard run. Wayne State still led 21-17.

Late in the third quarter Wayne State took over on downs on their own seven-yard line, and drove 78 yards, scoring on a Roussel 32-yard field goal with 1:21 left in the third quarter.

Emporia State's next score was set up by a Glenn Mathews fumble on the Hornet's 38-yard line. Emporia State drove 62 yards in six plays, capped by a David Tryon 34-yard touchdown run. Drew Walker blocked the Emporia PAT, and the Wildcats held on to a one-point lead, 24-23.

Emporia State scored one more time with a Bliss 37-yard field goal to take the lead 26-24 with 4:27 left in the fourth quarter. That score was set up by a Calvert fumble on the Hornet's 43-yard line.

Wayne State got its final chance after holding the Hornets on a goal line stand. Lee was stopped on a fourth and goal with just 1:49 left in the game. Jochum's passing moved the team to the Emporia State 26-yard line, but Fredell Moore picked off a Jochum pass with 48 seconds left.

Offensively, the Wildcats were led by Jochum, who completed 21 of 44 passes for 267 yards and two touchdowns. Jochum also rushed 11 times for 20 yards.

Glenn Mathews led the Wildcats in pass receptions, catching five for 92 yards. Tom Leitschuck, McGinnis, Bill Minarik and Hooker each caught three passes, Darin Blackburn and Calvert caught two each.

Calvert accounted for most of Wayne State's 183 yards rushing, carrying 23 times for 146 yards and one TD. The game marked the second time this year Calvert has rushed for over 100 yards.

Tony Shaw and Randy Hupp led the Wildcat defense. Shaw made 21 tackles, 12 of them solo, and caused one fumble. Hupp added 18 tackles, a solo sack for a nine-yard loss, broke up a pass, caused a bad pass, and caused a fumble. Judd Meenley and Walker added 11 more tackles each.

Wayne State finishes its 1985 season at home Saturday (Nov. 9) by hosting the Missouri Southern Lions. Kickoff time is 1:30 p.m.

Tough year for area grid teams

It was a tough year for Wayne Herald area football teams. Wakefield finished with the best record by posting a 4-4 mark.

During the '85 campaign, the five area high schools totaled a combined 9-33 mark for a winning percentage of .214.

Wayne State's 3-6 record improves the area record to 12-39. But it will end 13-39 with a victory over Missouri Southern on Saturday.

When I heard that St. Louis Cardinal pitcher Joaquin Andujar was only fined $500 and suspended for 10 games after his uprising in game seven of the World Series, I was surprised.

Although the $500 fine is the maximum commissioner Peter Ueberohr can charge a player, it's still only pocket change for today's major leaguers.

But later I learned that when a player is suspended from a game, he loses his daily wage. The 10 day suspension will cost Andujar in the neighborhood of $60,000. That's right, he makes nearly $6,000 a game!

Every sports writer and sports caster in America seem to discuss their choices for baseball's MVPs. Cy Youngs and managers of the year around this time of year.

I'm not going to throw all of my nominations at you, but I would like to discuss the National League MVP and the American League Cy Young.

Last week, a reporter from Cincinnati surveyed most of the voters who turned in ballots for the National League MVP, and the general consensus seems to indicate that Willie McGee is going to win.

McGee had a great year. He led the league in hitting with a .353 average, stole over 50 bases and scored 114 runs.

But I think Pedro Guerrero of the Dodgers deserves the honor. Guerrero was second in the league in hitting with a .320 average, socked 33 homers and totaled 87 RBI.

But more importantly, he was the most valuable player to the Dodgers when they made their move in the National League West. When Tommy Lasorda moved Guerrero from third base to center field in June, there was no stopping him and the Dodgers. He's the reason LA made it to the playoffs. Was McGee the reason Cardinals made it?

About the American League Cy Young award. Brett Saberhagen of the Royals seems to have the inside track, and he's a very deserving candidate.

But I think the award should be split between him and the Yankee's Ron Guidry. Guidry finished with the most wins in the league and ended with a 22-6 mark. Although Saberhagen won two fewer games than Guidry, he did have a little better earned run average (2.87-3.27).

What I'm getting at is the two almost had identical years. The Cy Young award was split once before in the late 1960s, and it should be shared again this year.

Patrick Ewing was supposed to be a savior for the New York Knicks this season. But Knickerbocker fans are quickly finding out that basketball is a team game, and even a player with Ewing's abilities can't turn a loser into a winner without a strong supporting cast.

After Ewing's first five games, he's been impressive averaging around 20 points and 10 rebounds an outing. But without Bernard King in the lineup, the Knicks have yet to win.

When a player of the caliber of King is gone, he's going to be dearly missed. One could even say a Kingless Knickerbocker team is like a queenless beehive - nothing.

Tony Shaw closes out brilliant college career

By John Prather
Sports Editor

"He is aggressiveness, competitiveness and tenacity personified." That is Wayne State head coach Pete Chapman's description of Tony Shaw. And although the description may sound sensationalized, it's an accurate account of the linebacker.

After nine games this year, Shaw has totaled an almost unbelievable 154 tackles. That averages to over 17 stops a game and is over 20 more than the second leading tackler in the Central States Intercollegiate Conference (CSIC).

The 6-2, 225-pounder credits his ability to read the running play to most of his success in '85.

"My main strength is reading the run. I'm more aggressive going against the run and I just read those plays better. I can usually tell where the backs are going to go," he said.

As he mentioned, Shaw's play-reading ability is his main strength, but his intense approach to the game certainly doesn't hurt.

"I listen to music before games, but I get keyed up by great players I've seen on film. I like watching great plays and then I try and keep them in my mind and play that way too. It helps me stay intense," he said.

The film watching apparently works. In addition to his 154 tackles, Shaw has intercepted a pass and had three fumble recoveries this year.

Shaw surprisingly attracted little attention while prepping at O'Neill St. Mary's, and selected Wayne State because of the extreme interest it showed in Shaw.

"Kearney State, Hastings, Doane and Wayne State were really the only schools that were interested in me. And Ralph Barclay, and the other Wayne coaches just seemed the most interested in me. They called me a lot more, watched me play a couple of times and kept telling me that I'd be able to fit into their defense quickly. So I decided to go there because of their concern, and I haven't had any regrets."

Wildcat fans haven't either. In addition to his '85 success, Shaw was the team's second leading tackler last year with 141. He was also named the District 11 defensive player of the week on two different occasions, and was selected honorable mention All-CSIC and honorable mention All-District 11.

One of Shaw's many assets is his mental approach towards the game. And his attitude isn't something he has to work at.

"I'm very high strung on the field, especially if the game's close. I'm that way off the field, too. I guess I'm kind of wild - and there isn't anything wrong with that. Is there?"

His strength and size are other assets. But unlike his attitude, he was forced to work hard to develop his physical stature.

"I weighed about 185 when I graduated from high school, and now I'm around 225. Lifting (weights) helped me put on weight and get stronger," he said.

Shaw credited a brother, an opponent and a teammate as getting him turned on to weight lifting.

"My brother Mike got me started. He's pretty big and has always been dedicated to the weights," he said. "Greg Auen (a Kearney State player) and I lift a lot during the summer and Randy Hupp (a Wildcat defensive tackle) helped me out with different lifting techniques."

Shaw's bench press is 390 pounds, and he pressed 830 pounds on the hip sled during fall practices.

Despite all his personal success, Shaw admitted that the team's 3-6 record has been a disappointment, and he tried to pinpoint the Wildcats' main problems in '85.

"Yeah, it's been a disappointing season because we know we have the talent to be better than 3-6. Last year we had a good team, and I don't think we're as aggressive as we were last year and just didn't jell as a team," he said. "We should be better than 3-6. We knew we could beat everybody on our schedule this year, and I think we thought our reputation

See SHAW, page 9a

Hupp named player of week

Randy Hupp of Wayne State was named the District 11 defensive player of the week for his performance in the Wildcats' 26-24 loss to Emporia State Saturday.

Hupp, a 6-2, 235-pound junior from Norfolk Catholic, totaled seven solo and 11 assisted tackles. He was also credited with a quarterback sack and causing a fumble.

Carl Calvert of Wayne State was nominated for offensive player of the week. Calvert gained 146 yards on 23 carries and scored on a 10-yard touchdown run.

Bob Stitt of Doane won the offensive player award. Stitt gained 168 yards on 28 carries and totaled an additional 126 yards in return yardage in Doane's 15-7 win over Concordia.

Trojans one win away from state

Wakefield wins sub-districts

WAKEFIELD — Wakefield's volleyball team just gets better with time. And Tuesday night the Trojans once again peaked by blowing away Ponca and Emerson-Hubbard to move within one game of the coveted State Volleyball Tournament.

But the one game that now separates Wakefield from reaching Lincoln is a very big one. The third-ranked Trojans will play fourth-ranked Pierce Friday night in Norfolk. The two teams have only lost three games between them. Wakefield enters the game with a lofty 18-1 mark.

"Pierce is going to be one tough game. We're ranked third and they're ranked fourth. We have one loss and they've lost two, but one of their losses was to Cedar Catholic. It's just going to be a tough game, and hopefully we'll play like we did Tuesday night," Wakefield head coach Paul Eaton said.

And if the Trojans play similar to the way they did in the C1-9 Sub-district tourney, they shouldn't have too much trouble with Pierce.

Wakefield downed Ponca 15-7, 15-10 in Tuesday's opener, and followed with lopsided 15-2, 15-3 triumph over Emerson-Hubbard in the tourney's championship game.

A major key in Wakefield's impressive victories was its serving. In the Ponca game, the Trojans finished 45-for-47 (95 percent), and against Emerson-Hubbard the hosts closed with a 38-for-39 performance (97 percent).

The combined 83-for-86 effort naturally had Eaton in smiles.

"We served well all night. To only miss three serves in two games is something. It's the best we've served all year," the Wakefield mentor said.

Emerson-Hubbard reached the tie game by upsetting 14-2 Macy. But the Macy victory was the only surprise the Pirates pulled off Tuesday as Emerson-Hubbard ran into a powerful Wakefield team in the little bout.

In addition to its sizzling serving, Wakefield also passed well against Emerson-Hubbard.

"We passed very well, also," Eaton said. "Our passing game is important to us. It kind of gets us going and we did a good job Tuesday night."

Julie Oswald led Wakefield's passers with an 18-for-19 effort, and finished 17-for-17 in setting. Steph Torczon added a 21-for-21 setting performance.

Marci Greve scored a team high eight points for Wakefield, while teammate Kristal Clay added seven markers.

Suzanne Stelling, Clay and Greve all had fine hitting efforts, but the Trojans' leading spiker was Leigh Johnson. Johnson finished 11-for-11 against Emerson-Hubbard with six aces. On the night the 5-8 senior finished 22-for-23 in hitting.

Eaton has used many different players in key roles during the entire '85 campaign. And Tuesday night, the Wakefield skipper praised Johnson's efforts.

"Usually it's Kristal, Marci or several others that lead us in hitting, but tonight Leigh stepped in and did a great job," he said.

Johnson finished 11-for-12 with six kills in the Ponca win. Stelling added five aces, while Greve and Clay both totaled four kills apiece.

Kristal Miller led the Trojans with 13 points, and Oswald closed with the team's setting honors going 43-for-45.

Torczon was Wakefield's leading passer going 25-for-27, and Eaton mentioned Miller and Des Salmton as passing well, too.

The Trojans' style of play reminded Eaton of the opening round of the Lewis and Clark Volleyball Tournament when Wakefield trounced Hartington and Wausa. In those two games, the Trojans only yielded 12 points in four sets and scored 26 unanswered markers.

'District jitters' sink Wayne in B-4 tournament

WISNER — "District jitters." That's what Wayne-Carroll head coach Mavis Dalton said cost her Blue Devils here Monday night in the opening round of the B-4 District Tournament.

"I guess you could say we were victims of district jitters. None of the girls have had much district experience, and they tightened up. We don't practice tight, so we can't play tight," Dalton said after her club dropped a 12-15, 11-16 decision to Schuyler.

Wayne pounded Schuyler 15-8, 15-4 earlier in the year, but Monday night the Blue Devils never established any momentum.

Wayne's biggest lead of the night was a four-point edge midway through the first set. But Schuyler came back from a 5-9 deficit to tie the score at nine. The Warriors then outscored Wayne 6-3 down the stretch for the win.

The second set was similar to the first frame, according to Dalton.

"The second set was the same as the first. Neither team established much momentum and it was close all the way with long volleys," she said.

In addition to her squad's nervousness, Dalton said poor passing hurt the Blue Devils.

"Our passing cost us. We weren't reacting quick enough off the serve to get the ball to our setters and it hurt us," she said.

Kecia Corbitt played a solid game for Wayne scoring a team high seven points and leading the Blue Devils in hitting with 15 spikes and seven kills.

Laura Keating added six points for Wayne, while Shelly Prick totaled 13 spikes and five kills. Marnie Bruggeman totaled 40 sets for Wayne.

Although the '85 campaign was labeled a rebuilding year by Dalton at the beginning of the season, the Blue Devils finished with a 13-7 record. Dalton discussed the season.

"I was pleased with the season's outcome. We were rebuilding but we got our share of games," she said. "The loss in districts was disappointing, but I think the girls will forget that loss in a couple of days and mainly remember all the fun we had at working hard this year."

Asay, Zeiss nominated

Wayne State's Diana Asay and Jill Zeiss were both named to the honorable mention squad of the All-Central States Intercollegiate Conference volleyball team.

Asay is a 5-9 junior from Columbus, while Zeiss is a 5-2 senior from Wayne. Asay is a hitter and Zeiss is a setter.

Zeiss finished fifth in the conference in serving percentage with a .980 mark and her 124 assists ranked eighth in the CSIC.

Lynn Umbach of Missouri Western made the first team for the third consecutive year, while teammate LeAnn Martens was selected to the first team for the second straight season.

The first two team selections and honorable mention players are listed below.

First Team All-CSIC

Wynot surprises Winside's netters

LAUREL — Wynot surprised Winside in the opening round of the C-8 Sub-district Volleyball Tournament here Monday night by downing the favored Wildcats 15-7, 13-15, 16-14.

Winside head coach Jill Stenwall blamed the loss on her club's nervousness and lack of concentration.

"I just don't think the girls were ready to play ball. I don't think we played well all night and mainly it's because the girls just weren't ready mentally — that, and I'm sure they were nervous, too," she said.

Neither team established momentum in the opening set until the Blue Devils opened a comfortable seven point lead and went on to claim the eight point triumph.

The Wildcats were nearly swept as they trailed 4-8 in the second stanza. However, Winside outscored the Blue Devils 11-5 down the stretch to pull out the slim victory.

Winside was just four points away from advancing to the C-2 title game as the Wildcats owned a seemingly commanding 11-4 lead in the rubber set. But Wynot came storming back by outscoring Winside 12-3 for the two point triumph.

During the '85 season, Winside usually had a balanced offensive attack. However, the Wildcats had little balance against the Blue Devils.

Julie Bruggeman led Winside with 14 points. Christi Thies was the Wildcats' leading spiker going 14-for-16 with five kills, and Kerri Kelgthon finished 42-for-43 in setting to lead the Wildcats.

The loss ended Winside's season with a 9-9 mark. Stenwall said that despite losing in the first round of districts, she was pleased with the '85 campaign.

"I was hoping to finish around .500 so I'm happy with the season. I'm especially pleased with the fact that we proved to ourselves that we can win and play the with the best of them," she said. "I just hope our winning attitude carries over into basketball season, and I think it will. Now we know we can win and that's a big step in the right direction," she added.

Eagles end season at 9-11

Bancroft-Rosalie rallies past Allen

LYONS — When you're hot, you're hot. And Monday night a sizzling Amy Abendroth led Bancroft-Rosalie to a come-from-behind 10-15, 15-6, 15-7 victory over Allen for the C-27 Sub-district Tournament championship.

Allen head coach Gary Troth said there was one main reason why his club lost — Abendroth's serving.

"She just hits bullets. We played well both mentally and physically, and we never let up when we fell behind. But we just couldn't do anything with her serves. We couldn't get a sharp pass to our setters-off her serves," he said.

Bancroft-Rosalie downed Washhill in an opening round game of the tournament before slipping past the Eagles. Abendroth finished 44-45 in serving with 22 aces in the two games. She scored a game high 20 points in the title bout.

After posting a five point triumph in the first set, Allen owned a slim 6-5 edge in the second frame. However, Abendroth took over the serving chores and blew her Panthers past Allen.

"We were ahead in the second game, but she (Abendroth) started serving and we never fully rebounded," Troth said.

Denise Magnuson and LeAnn McDonald led Allen's offense. Magnuson finished 12-for-12 in spiking with seven kills and added an 18-for-18 setting performance. McDonald scored a team high 13 points and went 24-for-26 in setting.

The Eagles had a balanced scoring and hitting attack. Tiffany Harder added six points for Allen, while Kristi Chase went 11-for-12 in spiking with seven aces and Lana Erwin closed with an 8-for-9 spiking effort.

Norfolk Catholic capitalizes on Laurel's poor serving

NORFOLK — Poor serving cost Laurel-Concord an 8-15, 15-12, 8-13 loss to Norfolk Catholic here in the opening round of the C1-10 Sub-district Volleyball Tournament Monday night.

Despite taking the favored Lady Knights to three sets, Laurel finished only 75 percent in team serving.

"Serving really hurt us. We didn't have any problem with serve receive, but our serving cost us the most," Bear head coach Carol Manganaro said.

The two sets Norfolk Catholic won were gradual victories by the Lady Knights.

In the first set, Laurel was down 7-2 before cutting into the Norfolk lead. But the Lady Knights gradually pulled ahead and claimed the seven point triumph. Laurel trailed 7-8 in the third set, but Norfolk once again steadily built a comfortable advantage before claiming another seven point victory.

"Both of their victories were a gradual process," Manganaro said.

The Bears dominated the middle stanza in the early going. After opening a commanding 7-0 lead, Norfolk did come back, but the Lady Knights never established enough momentum to catch Laurel and the Bears posted the three point win.

A key in Laurel's second set win was its usage of the dink, according to Manganaro.

"Norfolk Catholic had a tough time defending the dink, and our girls used it a lot. We scored 13 points off the dink," she said.

But poor passing, along with their poor serving, hindered the Bears' victory bid.

"Our serving hurt us, but our entire offense was lacking because we passed poor. We had trouble with their serves and it made it difficult to pass to our setters," Manganaro added.

Tami Schmitt and Michelle Joslin led Laurel with eight points apiece, while Gail Twiford added seven markers.

Joslin was Laurel's leading hitter going 11-for-12, while Stacy Strawn went 8-for-10 and Twiford closed with a 7-for-9 performance. Twiford added a team high six dinks for the Bears.

Although setting statistics were not available, Manganaro said Sara Adkins and Dana Anderson were Laurel's leaders in that category.

The loss ended Laurel's season with a 5-10 record. Manganaro said her club played steady during most of the season and added that she is optimistic about Laurel's 1986 campaign.

"We ended the season with good attitudes and a lot of hustle. We played everybody pretty close this year, and we only lose one player to graduation so I'm pretty optimistic about the future," she said.

ALLEN vs. WINNEBAGO

Allen steamrolled into the championship game by blowing away Winnebago 15-0, 15-8 in the opening round.

Although the Indians finished the regular season with a 9-6 mark and were seeded second in the C-27 tourney, Winnebago was no match for Allen and the Eagles pulled off the sweep.

"They (Winnebago) played a poor game and we pretty much took advantage," Troth said.

McDonald and Chase sparked the Eagles with nine and six points, respectively. And McDonald added a 20-for-21 setting performance.

Magnuson followed with a 10-for-10 setting effort and went 9-for-10 in spiking, including four aces.

Kristin Hansen added an 8-for-8 spiking performance with four kills, and Diane Magnuson went 7-for-10 with three aces.

Allen ends the season with a 9-11 mark. Troth reflected on the '85 campaign and discussed next season.

"The season was frustrating in the middle of the year because we lost several close games. There weren't any easy games on our schedule this year, everybody had the chance to build our momentum by winning three or four games in a row," he said. "But I think we'll be alright next year. We got several underclassmen coming back and I think we'll do well next season."

The two Magnusons and McDonald are three key players that will be lost due to graduation, Troth said.

Faulty scheduling costs Lady Wildcats at tourney

PERU — "It was one of the worst forms of scheduling I've ever seen. The tournament shouldn't have been set up like that," Wayne State head coach Marilyn Strate said after the NAAI District 11 Volleyball Tournament.

Strate's main complaint with the tourney's format was that the Lady Wildcats had to play three straight matches without rest. The lack of time between matches cost Wayne and three other teams, according to the Lady Wildcat mentor.

"Coming into the tourney, I thought us, Kearney State, Peru and St. Mary's were pretty even. But Kearney and us had to play three matches in a row without a rest. I think that if we would've had more time between matches we could've regrouped, and I'm sure Kearney could've, too. We had the worst schedule and Kearney State had the second worst," she said.

Peru won the round robin tournament. Wayne State and Kearney State both had to play the hosts after playing two consecutive matches without a break.

Wayne State finished fourth out of six teams. The Lady Wildcats lost to Kearney State, 7-15, 10-15; St. Mary's, 8-15, 13-15; and Peru State, 8-15, 7-15 before downing Chadron State 15-10, 15-12 and Bellevue 16-14, 15-4.

"We would've had to have played our best to win it all, and we didn't," Strate added.

Missy Stoltenberg was named to the tourney's first team, while Diana Asay and Shelle Tomaszkiwicz were selected to the second team. Jill Zeiss was an honorable mention selection.

Rice-Carlson Recreational Facility will add many new dimensions

By Todd Hinder
WSC Sports Information
 This adds a whole new dimension and life to Wayne State and Northeast Nebraska. Dean of Finance John Struve said about the Rice-Carlson Recreational Facility Expansion.
 Since 1959, Rice Auditorium has been Wayne State's primary multi-use facility. In September of 1987, Wayne State will have access to a new facility containing a multi-purpose room with an area nearly 36,000 square feet, including four regulation size racquetball courts, a weight room, meeting rooms and storage space.
 The multi-purpose room will house an indoor track, pole vault, long jump, triple jump and shot put pits, two suffleboard areas, and three courts which may be used for basketball, tennis, volleyball or badminton.
 The new two-level facility will be located on the north side of the current Rice-Carlson building. It is being designed primarily as a recreational and intramural facility," Struve said. "There will also be some athletic and physical education activity in the facility, but those aren't the primary needs."

 In addition to the new structure, some renovation is expected to take place in Carlson to accommodate required spaces and correct deficiencies.
 "In the Carlson building, we'll be converting the existing gymnasium into a multi-purpose dance, aerobics, gymnastics and wrestling facility," Struve said. The gymnasium will be split into two rooms with the dance and aerobics on the west and wrestling on the east.
 The lower level of Carlson will also be reconstructed, Struve said. "We'll be re-designing the locker rooms to make them more useful."
 According to Struve, there were several contributing factors in the decision to build the new facility. "The current facilities were built for an enrollment of 1,800. An emphasis on wellness and an increase in activities in women's athletics were other factors," Struve said. "The facilities were not designed to meet today's needs."

 The current Rice facilities lack several needs of the students, he added. The need for racquetball courts, an area for gymnastics, dance, more classrooms, a large fieldhouse-type of space and a civic need for indoor recreational opportunities all contributed to the need for a new facility.
 The project, designed by Bahr, Vermeer and Haecher Architects from Omaha, is in "the final steps of the design and development stage," Struve said. When the overall design is completed, it will go to the State Board of Trustees for approval, he said. The plans are expected to be ready when the board meets in Wayne Nov. 12.
 "The site we selected is buildable, but not without problems," he added. Water was trapped within the soil and contributed to the destruction of the tennis courts. "They have taken all of the fill out, dried it and it has been replaced and properly compacted," Struve said. "In the process of this, the two softball fields will also be leveled out."
 Besides WSC students, Wayne State athletics is also expected to benefit from the new facility.
 "It's an exciting addition to our campus," head basketball coach Steve Aggers said. "It will help alleviate time and space management. With our growing enrollment, it will help relieve pressure from the Rice building."
 Currently, men's and women's basketball as well as volleyball share the Rice Auditorium.
 "It will show athletes we have comparable facilities with other Central States - Intercollegiate (CSIC) schools," head baseball and women's basketball coach Lenny Klaver said. "It will give us the space we need for baseball practice during the winter, but foremost it's a recreational facility and we'll have to work around those needs."
 Head track coach LeRoy Simpson also expressed an appreciation for the new facility. "What I envision is a recruiting tool for the whole campus. Since we're (the track program) strictly amateur and we don't offer scholarships, people will look at it and may enroll because of the facility."
 In addition, the new facility will also benefit intramurals and physical education classes.

would carry us and as a result, we didn't work as hard as we should've."

Despite his dedication to athletics, the finance/management major still carries a respectable 2.5 grade point average. Shaw said one has to be dedicated to school work to keep his grades up.

"My grades don't suffer because I'm playing football. It's a popular excuse, but you just have to be dedicated and want to study," he said.

Shaw said he often fantasizes about playing pro ball, but added he realizes that a professional sports career is too much of a long shot.

"I think pro ball is every football player's desire. But being realistic, I don't think I'm quick enough and strictly amateur and we don't offer scholarships, people will look at it and may enroll because of the facility."

In addition, the new facility will also benefit intramurals and physical education classes.

Shaw said he hopes his future includes a banking job in Colorado. "It's going to take five years to graduate, but after I finish with school I hope to get into banking out in Colorado somewhere."

Alumni cage game Nov. 9

Former basketball players at Wayne State College will play the 1985-86 Wildcat basketball team in the annual alumni game Saturday, Nov. 9. The game will begin at 7:30 p.m. in Rice Auditorium. Varsity players who graduated from Wayne State 1960 through 1985 have been invited back for the game, which is part of parent's day activities at Wayne State.

The game will be the first opportunity for Wildcat fans to see coach Steve Aggers' Wildcats in action. Aggers, in his first year as head coach of the Wildcats, has 13 new players on this year's roster. Mike Daley, Ed Heritage and Russ Rosenquist are the three returners from last year's 16-16 squad.

The 1985-86 Wildcats open their regular season Saturday, Nov. 16, when Briar Cliff of Sioux City travels to Wayne. Following the alumni game, a reception for the alumni players will be held in the Student Center, hosted by Dr. Donald Whisenhunt, interim president.

For more information on the game, contact the Wayne State sports information office at 375-2200, ext. 326.

Wayne State 'guns' for 4-6 mark Wildcat/Southern preview

The Game
Wayne State vs. Missouri Southern, Saturday, Nov. 9, at 1:30 p.m. at Memorial Stadium in Wayne.

The Coaches
Wayne State — Pete Chapman, third year, 12-18 at WSC; Missouri Southern — Jim Frazier, 97-51-5, 15th year at Southern.

The Series
Missouri Southern leads the series, which began in 1948, 7-3. The two teams split their first two meetings and did not play for seven years. When the series resumed in 1977, Wayne State won the next two. But Southern has won the last six. Chapman is 0-2 against the Lions.

Last Year
Wayne State led 17-14 at the half after scoring on a 37-yard field goal by Herve Roussel and an 80-yard touchdown pass from Ed Jochum to Sonny Jones. Pat Jennings returned an interception 84 yards for the other Wildcat score in the first half. The Wildcats led 23-14 before Southern managed a 22-yard field goal in the fourth quarter. Southern then scored on a 77-yard pass from Mark Bellany to Rich Williams to win 24-23.

The Lions
Missouri Southern is now 6-3 on the year after defeating Fort Hays State

22-20 last Saturday in a mild upset. The Lions are 4-2 in the Central States Intercollegiate Conference (CSIC) behind Pittsburg State, and are tied with Fort Hays. Southern has defeated Arkansas Tech, 21-20; Northwestern Oklahoma, 40-3; Emporia State, 34-26; Kearney State, 24-20; and Missouri Western, 23-0. Their losses have come against Southwestern Oklahoma, 34-7; Washburn, 19-6; and Pittsburg State, 30-3. In their victory over Fort Hays State, the Lions were led by Greg Dageforde who gained 140 yards in 23 carries. Dageforde was named the CSIC's offensive player of the week. Defensively, the Lions are led by linebackers Steve Forbis and Don Stone.

The Wildcats
Wayne State is now 3-6 overall and 2-4 in the CSIC after losing to Emporia State 26-24 in Wayne. Wayne State led 21-10 at the half and 24-17 at the end of the third quarter. But the Wildcats could not survive nine turnovers, including eight fumbles. Four of Emporia's five scores followed Wayne State fumbles. Wayne's final scoring attempt followed a goal-line stand by the defense with senior quarterback Ed Jochum leading the offense 73 yards before an interception ended the Wildcats' hopes. Jochum was 21-of-44 in passing for 267 yards and two touchdowns. Carl Calvert gained 146 yards on 23 carries. Glenn Mathews caught five passes for 92 yards. Tony Shaw had 21 tackles. Randy Hupp added 18.

The CSIC
Pittsburg State now leads the conference with a 5-1 record. Southern and Fort Hays State are tied for second with 4-2 records. Emporia State is fourth at 3-3, while the rest of the conference is tied at 2-4.

The Wildcats will attempt to close out the '85 season on a positive note when they host Missouri Southern this Saturday at 1:30 p.m. Wayne State enters the game with a 3-6 mark, while the Lions are 6-3.

"It'll provide us with a lot more flexibility," intramurals director Frank Teach said. "There are going to be three basketball courts and it'll be nice to have all three courts at the same time."

Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics (HPERA) head Ron Jones said the new facility will provide the physical education department with class possibilities that have been unavailable up to this point. "We can offer a racquetball unit and soccer is also a possibility. The dance and aerobic facility will also provide us with an aspect we've never had before."

The addition will also take pressure off the main gym. "It's used as a multi-purpose facility, but it's not meant for that. It's just a real positive thing," Jones said. According to Struve, the expansion will also benefit one other group of people — the communities in Northeast Nebraska. "Since it's coming from student funds, the tendency is for the students to have first priority, but that's not absolute," Struve said he is hopeful the facility will adequately serve the communities' desires as well.

One part of the project that won't take until 1987 for completion is the new tennis courts located just east of the varsity softball fields.

"The tennis courts are fairly on course," Struve said. "All six courts have been poured. Our only disappointment is with the red and green surfacing." Struve explained that for the coloring to be properly adhered, the temperature must consistently be above 50 degrees for a period of at least two days. The colored tennis court surfacing is expected to be applied in the spring. The completion date of the tennis courts project is directly related to weather conditions, he said.

The estimated cost of the total project is $3.14 million.

Wildcat JVs down Westmar 24-21

Wayne State opened the game's scoring with a 3-yard touchdown pass from Scott Rawe to Darryl Mountain in the second quarter. Tony Wiese added a PAT to increase the Wildcats' lead to 7-0.

Later in the quarter, Westmar made it 7-6 with a 59-yard TD pass. The hosts then opened a 14-7 advantage in the third frame on a 34-yard TD pass and a two-point PAT.

The Wildcats answered with a 17-yard TD pass from Tom Grove to Pat Wordenkemper. Wiese added his second PAT boot to tie the game.

Westmar took its last lead of the day on a 20-yard TD pass with 5:08 remaining in the third quarter.

The Wildcats scored 10 unanswered points in the fourth frame to pull out the win. Wiese opened the fourth quarter scoring for the visitors with a 37-yard field goal.

Wayne State then scored the winning touchdown on a 19-yard TD pass from Rawe to Bill Mnarik with 1:11 left in the contest. Wiese added a PAT to round out the game's scoring.

The Wildcats totaled 426 total yards, including 323 by the air.

Mnarik was Wayne State's leading receiver catching 10 passes for 151 yards. Rawe completed 16-of-28 aeriels for 183 yards and the two TD passes.

Price outlook given for livestock, poultry

While total beef, pork and broiler production in 1986 is projected to decline from record 1985 levels, 1986 market prices may rise only moderately, according to a University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension livestock marketing specialist.

Al Wellman, analyzing the impact of a recent USDA livestock and poultry outlook report, said an anticipated four percent rise in poultry production next year will partially offset a predicted five percent decline in red meat production.

While total red meat and poultry output is expected to decline about two percent in 1986, it will remain large by historical standards, the economist said. And large supplies of relatively lower priced poultry products likely will hold down price increases for red meats.

Record slaughter weights for fed cattle resulted in larger than expected red meat supplies during the spring and summer of this year, Wellman said. Red meat production from January through October was one percent greater than during the same period a year ago, while poultry production was up five percent on the same comparable basis.

These record supplies, combined with this year's slowed economic growth, have resulted in sharply lower prices to producers and declining prices paid by consumers, Wellman said. "Retail prices in 1985 for choice beef may average two to three percent below a year ago and should only move up to 1984 price levels next year as beef supplies decline. Pork prices, which are virtually unchanged from 1984, may rise three to five percent in 1986, but remain below the 1982 and 1983 averages. Wholesale broiler prices are averaging nearly 10 percent — five cents a pound — below a year ago, and are expected to average about the same in 1986 as in 1985."

Wellman's predictions on market prices for the remainder of 1985 and for 1986: Slaughter steers, Omaha market basis, are expected to stay in the low $60s per hundred weight level in the fourth quarter this year and fluctuate in the low to mid $60s during 1986. Hog prices are projected to move toward the mid to high $40s in the first quarter of 1986 and then show a little seasonal weakness in the second quarter of next year. Slaughter hog prices may average in the mid to high $40s for the year 1986, near the seven-market average recorded for 1984. The 1986 average price for broilers is expected to be close to the 1985 average of near 50 cents a pound.

Neighbors offer help

FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS of LeRoy Nelson arrived at his farm near Carroll Sunday morning, Oct. 27, to combine beans for Nelson, whose wife Nina recently passed away. Pictured with combines are Delbert Claussen, Charles Morris, Duane French, Greg Jenkins and Dennis Junck. Approximately 30 others also assisted. Serving lunch were LeRoy Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Nelson and Mrs. Melvin Jenkins.

Ridding of brucellosis in reach

By Cheryl Stubbendieck

Nebraska and the nation are in hot pursuit of a very worthy goal: the eradication of brucellosis. The U.S. time frame is the next five years, while Nebraska is aiming at 1988.

Brucellosis is a bacterial disease which causes both beef and dairy cows to abort their calves in late pregnancy. It can also reduce milk supply and prevent conception. One expert estimates owners of infected herds lose $70 per head because of brucellosis.

The disease also can be passed on to humans. Farmers, ranchers, veterinarians and others who work with livestock are at risk for the disease, called undulant fever in humans. For humans the consequences are less severe, but it can cause flu-like symptoms and great fatigue. Antibiotics are used to treat the disease, but it's difficult to cure.

The U.S. is close to eradicating brucellosis. On July 1, there were 4,767 infected herds nationwide, with only 22 in Nebraska. Although these numbers look good, two concerns related to the eradication effort need attention. One needs action by the federal government. The other one, beef producers themselves can control.

LAST YEAR Congress appropriated $73.2 million for the eradication program. For the coming year, the House has recommended $73.4 million while the Senate has suggested $63.5 million. Currently, when livestock owners ship animals to slaughter to control brucellosis, they receive a $50 per head federal indemnity payment, in addition to the market value of the animal. The House's higher appropriation is needed and livestock interests hope they can obtain it when the two bills go to the House-Senate conference committee.

Second, livestock producers need to be careful as they rebuild their herds. During the past few years, they've sold or reduced their herds because of low profits. As they rebuild, they need to buy high-quality cattle from reputable sources.

Norman Kruse, Nebraska state veterinarian, has noted a tendency to buy cheap livestock when rebuilding a population. However, he says the cheapest cattle often come from the South, where brucellosis is the most prevalent. In the past, when herd numbers have increased, so has incidence of the disease.

NEBRASKA IS currently classified as a Class A state for brucellosis because of its low number of infected herds. Cattle coming in from Class Free states can enter Nebraska without a brucellosis test. Cattle from other Class A states must have a clean test for brucellosis at the point of origin prior to entering the state. Cattle from states in the Class B and C categories must be tested at their point of origin and then quarantined for 12 days after arrival, between 45 and 101-entry after arrival.

To reduce risk of buying animals with brucellosis, cattlemen should buy from known and trusted sources such as neighbors, Kruse has said. Failing that opportunity, the local auction market is next best, followed by cattle from brucellosis-free states or from other Class A states.

After buying the cattle, producers can take one additional step to be sure they are not introducing the disease into their herds, by keeping the new cows separate. When these new cows calve, if a second brucellosis test is negative, they could join the rest of the herd. It's a cumbersome procedure, but worth the extra effort.

Back in 1950, nearly 10 percent of U.S. cattle herds were infected with brucellosis. The U.S. has the chance to get rid of this costly disease in the next few years, given adequate federal funding and precautions by cattle producers.

Stubbendieck is vice president/information of the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation.

Soybean seed can be affected by frost

An early frost which hit some areas of Nebraska could affect soybean seed quality for the next year's crop, according to Roger Hammons, associate director of the Nebraska Crop Improvement Association.

A majority of the soybean acreage planted in Nebraska is from bin-run seed stored on the farm," he said. "When an early frost catches the crop with a fairly high moisture level, germination can be reduced significantly."

When there is a high percentage of green soybeans, it should be used for seed only with great caution, and after a germination test before planting, he said. Plant and pod color can give a good indication of seed maturity and potential damage from frost.

"When plants are green or green to yellow, there can be a substantial loss of germination, especially on the tops of the plants where frost damage may be more severe," he said. "When plants are yellow to brown, there still may be some 10 percent damage to germination, while brown plants and pods should not suffer."

Germination tests are critical at several stages — just after harvest, during storage and before planting.

THE REAL guarantee of quality seed is purchasing certified seed from a reputable dealer. Quality seed is the best way to start off the crop cycle, since that is the way to bring the best possible genetic potential in to a well designed total production system," Hammons said.

An early frost may have resulted in a large percentage of green soybean seed at harvest, especially in low-lying areas where an early frost may have occurred before the general killing frost. "It might be advisable to combine out the low areas separately to keep the loads with green soybeans to a minimum," said Chuck Francis, University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension crops specialist.

Storage presents another problem. "If there is a choice of what to store, it is advisable to unload any lots with green beans and store only those which don't have the problem," he said. "There could be much wider damage in the stored beans if they are not treated with great care during storage on the farm."

Yield loss is another problem. Francis said. It means were frosted at the early fill stage of development, the loss could be substantial.

Losses should be minimal however, if beans are physiologically mature. "The best indicators of maturity are loss of green pod color from all the pods and bean shrinkage in the pod," he said. Seed shrinkage happens rapidly when maturity is reached and the thin membrane lining the pod no longer clings to the seed when the pod is opened. "If these two events have occurred, the crop had matured and there will be little or no loss of yield from a frost."

Football playoffs begin this week. For a lot of teams, the season is over. District volleyball begins tonight and that season will soon be only in the record books. We'll have a hiatus before basketball begins. It's the month for school plays, All-State Music Conference and regrouping.

In this time of budget cuts, things like sports programs, drama and music are looked at with critical eyes.

During the week of October 20-27, high schools observed National Activities Week. The press release said: "National surveys reveal that students participating in high school activities are more likely to have higher academic averages and far better attendance records."

Of the students who drop out of high schools, 94 percent have not been involved in any school activities such as athletics, music, speech or student government.

The best predictor of success in later life is previous participation in high school activity programs, not high school or college grade point averages, test scores or rank in class.

I remind myself of these things when I get tired of the hectic pace and discouraged with what the fans say about the kids. I tell myself that athletics prepare kids for life because often it isn't fair.

I happened to see the Nov. 4 issue of Sports Illustrated this weekend. I usually don't read this magazine, but I thumbed through it and found an article about a football team with the current longest losing streak in the nation. It's well done. Read it if you get a chance.

The team with this awful distinction is at Glenville, Minn. and they have lost 68 games in a row.

GLENVILLE, of course, is a farming community. Twenty percent of its farmers are near bankruptcy. The football players are milking cows and feeding pigs because their dads are working at off-farm jobs.

Most of the team, and the school patrons, realize that the poor fortunes of the team are a low priority compared to those of the general economy. Says one fellow, "Football is important, but how long are we gonna have a football team, or a school — or a town?"

The comments are those I heard from out of work steel workers five years ago. From the athletic director, "I've always thought that if you tried hard, things would work out all right. This football team has tried hard, they have busted their butts, but things haven't worked out. Stick your nose to the grindstone and things will pan out. Not necessarily."

And from the mother of one of the players, "When you sit here with the fear of losing your farm, you live in a different world. There was a time when I felt that if you worked hard enough, you could have anything. You had dreams and you could obtain them. Now the circumstances don't give you that freedom. No matter how hard you work, it's not enough. This farm is our dream. It's all we want, if we could only hang on to it."

The team has had typical problems: they are the smallest school in their conference, and have seldom had the same coach two years in a row. But a lot of guys don't go out for football either, because of the poor record.

I ALSO SAW an article about the nation's longest collegiate winning streak. This distinction goes to Augustana College at Rock Island, Ill. — 28 consecutive games over three seasons and shooting for a third straight national title.

The coach says, "We motivate by a concept of teamwork. Our players understand football is not God. Practice and games are the only times we see them. There are no Sunday scrimmages, individual meetings or film sessions. Individual players do not rack up gaudy stats. There have been 19 ball carriers this season, 100 players are used in each game. We're not a football factory. Young men like to play."

For the boys who played hard in Wayne, Winslow, Laurel, Allen and Wakefield this year, and for the farm families who cheered them on, I have a few pearls of wisdom.

Erma Bombeck once attended a seminar for young people to which 50 top people in their professions had been invited.

As these successful people spoke, they kept returning to their failures, not to their successes. They learned from them, got stronger from them, overcame them, and took pride in them.

Loosing — not winning — had made all of them whatever they had become. "The only people who never fail — are those who never try."

Area youth selected delegates

Thirty-seven Nebraska 4-H Youth have been selected to attend the National 4-H Congress at the Chicago Hotel in Chicago Nov. 29 to Dec. 5.

The Nebraskans will be joining more than 1,600 delegates selected from throughout the U.S. on the basis of their 4-H accomplishments, personal development and demonstrated leadership-citizenship abilities.

National 4-H Congress has been conducted for 64 years by National 4-H Council, the Cooperative Extension Service and the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Various donors and cooperators have made it possible for more than 91,000 4-H youth to attend Congress over the years. Educational and cultural tours around Chicago are a special feature of the week-long event. Other events include recognition events, educational workshops and the annual 4-H Fashion Revue.

Area delegates attending the 1985 National 4-H Congress include Brian Schmidt (electric energy) and Stuart Rethwisch (entomology).

BRIAN, 16, has expanded his interest in electronics and computers with each 4-H project he has enrolled in. The son of Howard and Carole Schmidt, Brian is a junior at Wayne-Carroll High School.

"I wanted to build some small electronic projects that did things in unusual ways," Brian said of his electronics 4-H projects. He has made a sound-activated switch that will turn anything that can be plugged into a wall socket on or off with the clap of the hands, a "phor" device which makes a noise like Star Trek's phasers, a color organ which flashes lights in time to music and a robot that can be programmed.

Schmidt also wrote a computer program for the wrestling coach at his high school for statistic keeping. He also planned and taught a computer workshop for grade school students.

Brian is a member of the local 4-H Ambassador's Club. He plans to continue his interest in electronics and computer science in college. "4-H has given me a glimpse of what I might like to become after school," he said.

STUART IS THE 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Dwayne Rethwisch of Wayne. A junior at Wayne-Carroll High School, he plans a career in agriculture.

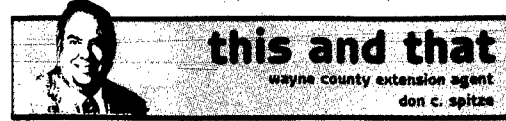

In commenting on his accomplishments in the entomology project which won him a trip to National 4-H Congress, Stuart said "I began with a tremendous dislike for crawling insects. But the more I got into the project, the more interesting they became."

He is particularly proud of his role in helping to create the "Garden Scouting" entomology project, which is being used statewide.

Stuart had a booth at the Wayne County Fair, giving the public an opportunity to identify 10 insects commonly found in the area. His family has hosted a number of international visitors, and his parents recently were elected co-presidents of the Nebraska International 4-H Youth Exchange Host Family Organization.

The Wayne County youth said his participating in the Extension Service's youth-serving program has helped him relate to other people through the common interest of 4-H work.

Fall Fertilizer Reminders

Conserve soil and energy by making tillage trips do double duty. Fall tillage does not increase yields under most circumstances. Three years of research data from Northeast Research and Extension Center at Concord indicates that for a three year average, till plant, fall chisel and spring plowing all yielded the same amount of dryland corn per acre.

Apply anhydrous ammonia when soil temperatures are below 50°F. Fall application can save time in the spring when the workload is heavy. Remember to fall apply only on heavier textured soils and with anhydrous ammonia. Nitrogen losses will result when applied to sandy loam soils or with nitrate fertilizers forms.

Fall is a good time to take soil samples. Deep samples 8 inches to 24 inches and 24 inches to 36 inches will help determine nitrogen needs. Yield trials consistently show increased net returns to those who follow fertilizer recommendations based on University of Nebraska research results.

Insects Invading Buildings

During the fall many insects, especially crickets, become a real nuisance by entering homes, storage buildings and other indoor areas. The best way to minimize infestation is to caulk windows, doors, repair screens and in other ways prevent physical entry. Even so, some critters manage to find their way inside. You may want to spray a barrier along the foundation of the building and out a few feet into the yard. Use diazinon, Sevin, Dursban, Orthene or malathion. Repeat every 7-10 days until insects are no longer present. Keep children and pets from contacting the spray until it dries.

Late Season Lawn Fertilizer Application

Many people are adding a late season lawn fertilizer application. This should be applied between Oct. 15 and Nov. 15, when shoot growth has slowed. A logical time might be at the last mowing. Slow release fertilizers are preferred.

Nitrogen applied in late fall increases the production of carbohydrates which are stored for use the following year. The carbohydrate reserves are used as an energy source to aid in recovery from environmental and mechanical stress, and provides an earlier spring green-up. This application also can reduce the need for high amounts of nitrogen in a spring application.

ANNA SEZ:

November 6

A beautiful day with lots of sunshine and not much wind. The days are getting shorter and it seems to get dark so quick and cool off quite a bit. It is feeling like again and lots of them to carry away. I guess that all of the kids that were here for trick or treat on Halloween had a good time. Such an array of costumes and painted faces. Must have been quite a job to get with the paint washed off of their faces. Some had lots of fun looking for oranges and getting their hands wet at the same time. Then there were the donuts that were left over. It was a good idea to have a party up here for the kids as it kept them off of the street.

We wish to extend our deepest sympathy to the family of Ernie Kearns who passed away Oct. 15. We will miss him. Winnie Bell is still in the hospital. Frank Amik is in the hospital after a fall that injured his leg. Cleo Michelson and Dianne Hildson were taken to the hospital Nov. 4. Ello Danberg went home.

Don Carmichael of Lynch and Clarence Lemke of Wakefield are new members here. We hope you enjoy your stay with us.

Among the activities here of the home are: devotions and services after breakfast. There is Bible study on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock led by Dorothy Beckenbauer. There are church services for those who wish to attend. The Methodist, Faith Baptist, St. Paul's Lutheran and Wesleyan Free Church.

St. Paul's communion is at 8:30 p.m. on the third Thursday of the month. On Monday afternoon we have movies with popcorn.

There will be a harvest supper of pizza and beer Tuesday evening in the north end of the dining room. This is for the men.

The St. Mary's ladies come with treats on the second Monday of the month. The Altonia ladies come with treats on the second Thursday afternoon. There is singing on Tuesdays and Saturdays. Harry plays the organ on Tuesdays. Others who play the organ are Dorothy Beckenbauer, Dorothy Kabis and Vane Lou Shiffert. Also Casey plays the organ at the birthday party which is the third Thursday of each month. We sing the birthday song and have treats. On Wednesdays there are cards and trivia and dominoes. Also on Wednesdays we have donuts with trivia. On Friday we have bingo in the afternoon. On Saturdays we have sing-along with Verda Morris or Dorothy Beckenbauer or Van Lou Shiffert furnishing the music.

There will be 3 residents seated around the birthday table: Marie Hoffman, 9; Grace Attila, 18; Merrius Jorgensen, 23; Anna Meier, 28; Frank Amik, 1.

This is all for this time.

Remember love in your heart won't put there to stay. Love in '95 love it you give it away.

A thank-you was read from the Wakefield Care Center. Names from the Wakefield Care Center to be remembered at Christmas will be received.

Names were drawn for secret sister birthday cakes. The club was to go to Hillcrest Care Center Nov. 4.

Fourteen members answered roll call with "November." It was voted to give $10 each to the Good Fellows in Sioux City and Omaha, Nebraska Childrens Home and Child Saving Institute in Omaha. It was also decided to pay for Thanksgiving dinner for a family of four at Goodwill Mission in Sioux City.

Ella Anderson had the entertainment. She read, "Honesty of Children" and led a pencil game, won by Evelina Johnson. Ella accompanied the group for singing.

The December meeting will be a noon luncheon with Irene Hanson at 12 noon. A gift exchange will be held.

Because we are a non-profit organization in search of missing children, we want to help prevent this from happening in our community and throughout the country. If you have any children or grandchildren, you can understand our need and concern. Our services are offered FREE of charge to the parents and families of missing children.

Child abduction can occur anytime and anywhere. We all need to get involved because the public is the largest investigative team in the world. Most parents of missing children cannot afford an intricate poster campaign. We need your help and support to promote this program on a local and national basis.
