news briefs

Greve gets scholarship

Hayley J. Greve, a student at Midland Lutheran College, Fremont, Nebraska, has been awarded a scholarship from Aid Association for Lutherans (AAL). Greve is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Greve, Route 1, Box 76, Wakefield, Nebraska.

Greve is participating in AAL's Lutheran-Campus-Scholarship Program, one of several student assistance programs sponsored by AAL. The awards usually range from $200 to $1,000 and are available to AAL members attending Lutheran institutions of higher learning.

AAL based in Appleton, Wisconsin, is the nation's largest fraternal benefit society, enabling Lutherans and their families to help themselves and others through insurance and other fraternal benefits. Financial assistance is provided to school and their students on behalf of AAL's 1.3 million members.

Accepting nominations

The Nebraska Department of Economic Development is accepting nominations for a seven-member advisory board representing all areas of the tourism industry. The advisory board will assist the Division of Travel and Tourism in long-term planning and with promotional and marketing decisions, said Rod Bates, director of the Department.

"In order to coordinate efforts and represent the goals of the public and private sector, many of which are similar, we would like to form a board which is representative of the many factions of tourism in Nebraska," Bates said.

To nominate a person, who is active in a tourism or industry-related area, send the name, organization or company represented, address, and qualifications to the Division of Travel and Tourism, P.O. Box 94666, Lincoln, NE 68509. All nominations must be received before December 21. Only persons who receive at least three nominations will be considered.

"We want people who are knowledgeable and interested in tourism, and people who will represent the industry as a whole, not just one segment," he said. "We want this to be an active, working board, not another layer of bureaucracy."

DeCamp wants input from readers

by Senator John W. DeCamp

I am asking whoever reads this article to consider doing the following: Take the time, if you would, to analyze the proposal I am offering in this article and if it makes sense to you, or if you have a better suggestion, or if you think it is unworkable and foolish, please write and let me know. I am chairman of the Banking, Commerce and Insurance Committee of the Nebraska Legislature and I believe the matters involved here are very significantly affecting the banking, the commerce and certainly the insurance industry of this State.

THE PROBLEM—If you chanced upon a serious auto accident in which two or more drivers were seriously injured with broken bones, scrapes, and multiple bruises and other injuries, the first action you or for any sensible person would take would be to arrange immediate medical attention to keep the people alive. Later, after you had provided the medical attention to keep them alive, you might worry about whose fault the accident was or was not, who did or did not do something right or wrong, and what the damages were to the cars, etc.

Today's agricultural economy is like that auto accident. And I believe our first action should be to keep life in the overall farm system that we have created over the past 40 years as our first immediate emergency priority. Later, we can decide who did or did not do something right or wrong. Later, we can make corrections or repairs in our farm credit system, in our banking system, in our agricultural export and imports and all the surrounding things.

To maintain the existence of a farm system, we must immediately put a halt to the one thing that is causing destruction of the very life of our agricultural system, the collapse of the value of land.

THERE ARE NO longer any legitimate willing buyers or willing sellers of land, agricultural land, in the State of Nebraska. And the entire premise upon which any system of marketing real estate is based is that overall, a pool of willing buyers and willing sellers exist so that a legitimate value is established overall for any particular class of real estate. In the case of agricultural land, almost all, if not all, land being sold or taken over today is that result of an unwilling buyer—that is, someone who is either being foreclosed on or, if not foreclosed on, ordered to sell by a banker or some other comparable situation.

CONCLUSION—I believe it can honestly and fairly be stated that there is no legitimate market for agricultural land in the State of Nebraska at this time as a result of conditions. Therefore, I think it reasonable to also say that the system of foreclosure which presumes that the property being foreclosed on will be marketed in a legitimate economy is not at this time able to function properly or fairly and must in some manner be stopped before additional or existing foreclosures are allowed to proceed.

A PROPOSED TEMPORARY SOLUTION: Despite the opposition I will receive from certain lenders, insurance companies, and I am sure a host of others, I have come to the painful conclusion that the foreclosure system must be temporarily halted in one way or another until enough stability is returned to the agricultural system so that when a property is foreclosed on and is sold, that the overall condition of willing buyer and willing seller which is necessary to create a market place for any class of real estate would exist. That does not mean that the individual being foreclosed on has it done willingly.

But it would mean that the overall market place for agricultural real estate would be set by, in general, willing buyers and willing sellers and the foreclosed property would be marketed in that environment rather than an environment of only forced sales with no system of buyers in existence.

How could this be accomplished? At the present time, when foreclosure occurs, there is principle in law known as "equity of redemption."

This means that when the foreclosure is completed and the judgment is rendered to take the property, the person who has had the judgment rendered against them has a period of generally 9 months in which to come up with the money needed to redeem or save his property. My proposal would utilize this concept of "equity of redemption," in somewhat of a creative way to stabilize land prices, discourage foreclosure and force financial institutions to try to cooperate with or renegotiate loans rather than simply foreclose them, and would attempt to allow the reestablishment of a true market oriented system for ag land in which the concept of willing buyer and willing seller would once again apply.

First, I would, by law, change the equity of redemption period from 9 months to 30 months. Second, I would, by law, establish the interest rate on foreclosed property during the equity of redemption period at 7%. Third, I would set up the equity of redemption as a salable right actually owned by the person who was being foreclosed on. That is, if Mr. Jones were foreclosed on and judgment was rendered and he had his 30 month equity of redemption rights, he could turn around and sell his equity of redemption to any one, particularly the lending institution that had foreclosed on him, in return for up to 10% of the actual amount of judgment.

SO IF MR. Jones owed $250,000 and judgment was rendered against him accordingly, and he exercised his stay of 30 months, he could turn around and in return for turning over the property to the insurance company immediately, if they were the lending institution, he could receive from them $25,000 in cash which he could then use as he saw fit to start a new business or move or do whatever. And it might well be to the benefit of the insurance company to in fact pay the 10% or $25,000 to Mr. Jones to clear up the matter immediately rather than waiting the 30 months they would have to otherwise.

Finally, I would, by law, make certain that during the period of 30 months in which the equity of redemption existed that all economic activity on the farm for production of crops or livestock or anything else was completely accounted for and reported to the court so that the lending institution would be adequately protected as to the integrity of the collateral during that 30 month equity of redemption.

This is an attempted brief summary of some fairly complicated legal concepts. They will be controversial but I believe something on this order is now necessary. I previously opposed concepts such as this. However, as I say, the time has now come to provide emergency treatment to stabilize the overall agricultural system. Later, we can figure out how best to resolve the farm credit crisis which is operating in a state of panic and doing massive foreclosures which I think are unnecessary and unwise. Later, we can figure out and work up systems that will make agriculture profitable again.

But if this or something like it is not done now, there may not be much of a system left to save when the dust finally settles on this whole agricultural thing.

I would appreciate hearing comments critical, favorable, or with other suggestions as to what should be done. I do intend, as chairman of banking, to introduce legislation and will attempt vigorously to get such legislation passed and believe it will be passed if there is an indication of strong support from the agricultural community. And to the financial institutions and others who might violently oppose these ideas, let me suggest that the best interests of all Nebraskans and particularly, our financial institutions, now lies in getting some stability and in reestablishing some land values and in holding together our rural communities. For if this is not accomplished fairly quickly, nothing can save the banks. If you have replies, please write to Senator John W. DeCamp, State Capitol, Lincoln, Nebraska 68509.

Shopping at home

Do you want to know what the local businesses "miss out on" when Christmas shopping is done away from home?

When it comes to reading about what is predicted will be spent for Christmas, those dollars spend shopping at home loom mighty important to the solvency of local enterprise.

According to the United States Chamber of Commerce news department, Americans will be spending an extra $30.2 billion on gifts, decorations and other expenses to celebrate the holidays — $2 billion more than last year.

Average that out and it comes to $126.88 extra spent during the holidays for every man, woman and child in the country.

There is estimated an after-Christmas financial hangover of $507.52 for a "traditional" family of four or $351 for the average household that now has about 2.7 persons.

All of these estimates are based on last year's extra spending that occurred during the holiday season plus what the U.S. Chamber of Commerce sees as an increase of about 6.3 percent this year.

What else can the nation's economy expect from American consumers?

•$640 million spent for 32 million live Christmas trees, $150 million on artificial trees and $500 million for lights and decorations. A third of the population will have fresh trees; another third artificial trees; and the remainder will celebrate Christmas in the dark.

•$30 billion in gift purchases, of which 49.7 percent of that total will likely be spent in general merchandise and department stores; 13.4 percent in clothing and accessory stores; 6.2 percent in food stores on Christmas turkey and fixings; and 3.7 percent for alcohol (or for the eggnog that will be making).

•A family of four will probably spend an extra $31.47 for such holiday treats such as fruitcake and plum pudding.

•The average holiday seasonal worker will take home about $1,059 this Christmas to help with his or her shopping, in addition to any discounts he may get from his employer. This will add more than $635 million to this holiday season's spending power.

This is definitely not the total amount people will spend this holiday season, but just the extra amount spent because of the holiday.

Also, one cannot mistake these statistics as a reflection of the entire nation. Many people won't even come near the average of what is being spent for Christmas.

But it does indicate the amount of dollars that is generated through Christmas and how much of an impact even a share of the dollar figures would make if only spent in the local community.

It also reflects on the commercial atmosphere which goes with the season.

Shopping at home is the best gift that you could provide to local businesses — and to the community where you live.

Unemployment figure considered misleading

by Melvin Paul

Although Nebraska's official unemployment rate was 4.7 percent in September, a survey conducted for three state agencies indicates the actual number of workers who lack jobs is higher.

The Nebraska Economic Indicators Survey of 2,400 persons throughout the state yielded a 5.7 percent unemployment rate for the state. That's 46,000 people out of a total work force of 808,216.

The unemployment rate was 8.3 percent when those who have given up looking for work were counted and when a factor was added to allow for jobless people who don't have telephones and therefore couldn't be contacted for the survey. That's 67,000 people without jobs.

The official unemployment rate for Nebraska is not based on a household survey but rather on a formula used to approximate what the results would be if a survey were taken.

Underestimation of Nebraska's rate of unemployment is not just a matter for headshaking and expressions of sympathy. The unemployment rate has become a big factor in how federal funds are distributed for human resource and economic development programs.

In addition, Nebraska's historically low unemployment rate may have discouraged various companies from establishing plants in the state because they were uncertain whether they could fulfill their labor requirements.

ALTHOUGH THE unemployment rate often is used to gauge the economic well-being of a state, another way to assess that quality is to examine whether the state's labor resources are being fully used.

The survey found that more than 25 percent of workers in the state are underemployed, people qualified for that category if they were over-qualified for their job but couldn't find anything better or if they were employed part-time and wanted to work at least another five hours per week.

The survey was sponsored by the state Departments of Labor, Social Services and Economic Development. The bureau of Sociological Research at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln drew the sample and did the interviews.

In addition to examining unemployment, the survey inquired about participation in social services programs.

One out of every seven people, or 14.3 percent, were receiving some form of government assistance, including social services, Social Security, unemployment compensation or student loans. Another 5.3 percent said they weren't getting government help now but had received it in the last five years.

NEARLY 5 percent of those surveyed were participating in social services programs and females accounted for three-quarters of the people in that category.

The survey found that Nebraskans who didn't finish high school had a higher unemployment rate than those who had. The rate was 9.5 percent for high school dropouts, 5.6 percent for those who had a high school diploma and 4.8 percent for those who had schooling beyond high school.

Similarly, the survey showed the rates for getting public assistance were greater among those who had not finished high school than among those who had diplomas.

ask a lawyer

a public service of the nebraska state bar association

My sister left her husband more than a year ago, and she and her daughter have been living with me and my husband. She has filed for divorce now, and is asking for custody and support of the child. We have practically supported her for the past year because she does not have a job and her husband has not given her any financial support. She was told that she cannot get back child support for the year during which she has been living with us. Is this true, and if so, why?

A. Yes, it is probably true: Until one of the parties files a petition for a divorce or a legal separation, there is no basis for a court order of child support. After a petition has been filed, the court can order temporary alimony, child support and custody until such time as a decree is entered establishing these on a permanent basis. But there is no provision for "back child support" because, from a legal standpoint, there has been no legal separation.

Centennial Book

This letter is to say "thank you" to you and to the staff at The Wayne Herald for the excellent job you did in publishing the Carroll Centennial Book.

We could not have been more pleased with the quality workmanship of the book and, especially, the fine job of reproducing our photographs. How some of the pictures came out as they did is amazing when one considers what condition some of the originals were in.

I would also like to thank your staff personally for their help and friendliness to me. Even with all the additions, deletions, and last minute revision, I never heard a negative comment from anyone. It was a real pleasure to have worked with them. Thanks again, for a job well done.

Sincerely,

Staying hefty could be best route

Do you ever wonder if staying slim and physically fit is really the best route? I always did until I met Brian.

After watching Dan Gross, the Magnuson twins, Brad Lund and some of the other natural athletes in the area, it brought back memories of Brian and his natural athletic ability.

I grew up with Brian, and as I mentioned, he was a natural in sports. Except there was something different about Brian compared to the area's natural athletes.

When one thinks of an all-around athlete, fine muscle tone, thick arms and other handsome features usually accompany the thought. But Brian hardly fit this description.

BRIAN WAS OVERWEIGHT in high school. No, I take that back, he was a blob.

Brian was at least 50 pounds overweight. And I can't explain it, but despite the excess fat, he could do it all.

He was selected all-conference in football after having an sensational season with Iowa's most dominating team, Sioux City Heelan.

He was also a pretty fair basketball player and could throw his fastball past most opposing hitters.

But like I said before, he was overweight. And to top it off, he didn't compensate for his obesity by working extra hard. You see, in addition to his heftyness, Brian was also lazy.

Most serious athletes spend hours in the weight room or do a lot of running to keep an extra edge over their opposition. Not Brian. Brian's most strenuous workouts consisted of standing on his toes to reach cookies in the top cupboard, or toning up his arms by popping the tops off six-to-12 beer cans a day.

I may sound silly, but this always bothered me. I just couldn't accept the fact that this disgustingly fat kid could be so good in sports without lifting a finger to better himself.

I guess you could say I was jealous. While I and so many others ran and lifted weights, Brian was guzzling booze and devouring boxes of Twinkies, yet setting school records and receiving oodles of publicity.

Then it happened. Brian was engulfed by the fitness phase that swarmed the country a few years back.

And after he started running and opened memberships at the YMCA and a nautilus gymnasium, toned muscles and other sharp features replaced his rolls of flab and he finally looked like a natural athlete.

HE RECEIVED A football/baseball scholarship from Morningside College, and everyone expected tremendous results from Brian. After all, here was a guy that was oozing with natural ability, and on top of that, started working hard.

However, he was injured during the football season and spent most of the time on the sidelines. And although everyone was disappointed, his followers reasoned that at least he still had baseball.

But during the baseball season, he tore up his knee trying to pivot during a double play and was forced to the operating room for orthoscopic surgery.

During his recovery, Brian started up his old eating habits and replaced the muscle with fat. And wouldn't you know it, he went on to have a good baseball season the next year.

And Brian isn't the only example of a "chubby" that succeeded in sports. Look at Terry Forester, Mickey Lolich and of course, William "The Refrigerator" Perry.

So go ahead and eat those cookies and drink those malts. And if you start feeling guilty, just remember Brian.

Westmar downs Wildcats

SIOUX CITY — Wayne State dropped a heartbreaking 68-66 overtime loss to Westmar in the consolation game of the Hy-Vee Siouxland Basketball tournament here Saturday night.

Westmar overcame a 10-point Wildcat advantage with just under 10 minutes remaining in regulation play and tied the game at 54 to force the extra session.

Wayne State, who suffered from poor shooting during the entire tournament, continued to struggle from the floor during the overtime and Westmar capitalized by opening an early lead and hanging on for the two-point triumph.

The loss was the Wildcats' third in a row. After losing to Peru State 64-52 last week in the Nebraska Athletic Conference (NAC) opener, Wayne State dropped a 77-54 decision to Northwestern in the opening round of the Siouxland Tournament Friday night and followed by losing to Westmar in the consolation game.

One of the Wildcats' two victories on the season was a 66-50 thrashing of Westmar Nov. 19 in LeMars.

Wayne State shot just 38 percent against Westmar Saturday night making 30-of-79 field goal attempts. The Wildcats shot only 33 percent against Northwestern the night before.

Westmar, on the other hand, canned 56 percent of its 43 field goal attempts.

The game, however, was decided at the free throw line as Wayne State finished 6-for-12, while Westmar went 20-for-33 at the stripe.

The Wildcats outrebounded their opponents 46-40 and totaled 16 turnovers to Westmar's 19.

Mark Gracy, a 6-5 freshman from Colorado Springs, Colo. led Wayne State in scoring with 14 points. Markus Wilson followed Gracy with 11 markers and Terrance Hall chipped in nine points to the Wildcat cause.

Gracy led Wayne State in rebounding with eight boards.

The Wildcats have two games in the next five days. Thursday, Wayne State travels to St. Joseph, Mo. for a game against Missouri Western. Monday, Dec. 9, Midland travels to Wayne for a 7:30 contest at Rice Auditorium.

Missouri Western is 5-1 on the year. The Griffons' only loss on the year came against giant killer Chamrade University Nov. 27.

Senior guard Arthur Cooks is averaging 28.3 points a game for Western and teammate Daniel Gambrell is the Griffons' leading rebounder with 9.7 boards an outing.

Midland is winless in five tries this season. Freshman center Mark Williams is the team's leading scorer averaging 12.5 points a game. John Hanson leads the Warriors in rebounding with 7.4 caroms a contest.

Through the first six games, Russ Rosenquist leads Wayne State in scoring with an 11.3-point average. Playmaker Vincent follows with 10.5 markers a game.

Mike McNamara is the Wildcats' leading rebounder with an average of six, while Gracy follows with a 4.2 rebounding average.

Wayne State's probable starting lineup is White, Rosenquist, Keith Berg, Hall and Gracy.

WAYNE STATE'S Vincent White searches for an open teammate during Saturday's loss to Westmar.

Oswald and Clay were leaders on star-studded Wakefield team

By John Prather

Sports Editor

Every good team usually has one or two outstanding players. However, this year Wakefield's volleyball squad had numerous key performers. But the two that led the Trojans down the stretch and to the state tournament were Julie Oswald and Kristal Clay.

athlete of the month

Oswald's and Clay's statistics speak for themselves. On the season Oswald was a 97 percent setter, fired 88 ace serves and scored 139 points. Clay ripped 124 ace spikes, added 39 ace tips and scored 114 points.

Together Oswald and Clay were a deadly weapon. But according to Trojan head coach Paul Eaton, it's the little things that made the Trojan duo such great players and team leaders. "Julie and Kristal are leaders, but they lead in such a way that it really wasn't noticeable," Eaton said. "They weren't the rah rah type, but instead they led by example in such a positive way that the other kids looked up to them. They were good role models for the younger players."

It isn't rare to find great players that are self-centered and unpopular with other teammates. But Eaton said that wasn't the case with Oswald and Clay. "Both are easy to communicate with and as a result, they're popular with their teammates. Sometimes great players are distant with others on the team, but not these two. They'll go out of their way to be your friend," he said.

Oswald and Clay both agreed with Eaton that they were leaders this year, but both added that they weren't the only keys to Wakefield's 19-2 campaign.

"Experience-wise, I'd have to say Kristal and I were the leaders. But all the seniors were leaders and the players were considered equal," Oswald said. "All the seniors were good leaders this year and I think that's why we were so successful," Clay added.

The other seniors on the team were Leigh Johnson, Kristi Miller and Suzanne Stelling. And Eaton agreed with Oswald and Clay that all five upper classmen and several others contributed to the Trojans' success.

"Leigh, Kristi, Suzanne and several others were all important factors this season," he said. "A major strength of our team was all the players had good attitudes and accepted what you told them."

Another factor in the Trojans' success, according to Oswald, was its coaching.

"I think our biggest asset was our coach. We had a lot of good players, but he (Eaton) put it together," she said.

It Oswald and Clay appear to be similar, they are. And both were forced to play in pain this year.

"Julie and Kristal really are a lot alike. I guess the only difference is one's a setter and one's a hitter," Eaton said. "Another similarity between the two is they both had injuries. Julie had bunions on her feet and Kristal has a bad back, but both played with pain and never said anything about it unless they were asked."

Perhaps the only difference between the two is a decision they have made about the future. Oswald has decided not to play college volleyball, while Clay intends to participate.

"I'm pretty sure I'm going to Wayne State and major in elementary education, but I don't think I'll play volleyball because I don't want to dedicate myself to sports and studying," Oswald said. "I'm going to college, but I haven't decided which one yet. I want to play volleyball and have a tryout at Kearney State this Saturday," Clay said.

Neither should have trouble with their college studies as both carry grade point average in the B+ to A range.

Oswald and Clay both said they were disappointed their high school volleyball careers came to an end in the first round of the state tournament. But Clay said the Trojans still achieved all their goals they set for themselves.

"We were naturally disappointed the season ended early, but Mr. Eaton stressed to us to build good friendships during the year and to have fun and we accomplished that."

WSCathletes raise money with phone-a-thon

A pre-Thanksgiving phone-a-thon by Wayne State student-athletes raised over $7,000 for the support of WSC athletes, according to Kirk Hutton, executive director of the Wayne State Foundation.

Hutton said $7,205 in pledges has been recorded thus far with an additional $300 expected in mailed donations. The $7,500 raised through the phone-a-thon surpassed the $6,500 goal.

Over 25 WSC coaches, student-athletes and members of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes (FCA) spent two nights manning the phones, Nov. 25-26, and called over 500 former athletic winners at Wayne State.

"I'm pleased we passed our goal and that our alumni responded so sacrificially to the needs of their alma mater," Hutton said. "Wayne State College is continuing its efforts to recruit the top scholar-athletes who can compete in the classroom as well as in the Central States Intercollegiate Conference."

"This really was a joint effort between Wayne State College and the Wayne State Foundation. The Foundation will continue to support these kind of endeavors."

Wayne State Athletic Director Ron Jones said the money raised through the phone-a-thon will be used solely for athletic scholarships. The Title IX formula used since 1978 will be followed, Jones said, with 70 percent of the money going to men's athletics and 30 percent to women's athletics at WSC.

"We are extremely appreciative of the tremendous support our alumni gave us during the phone-a-thon," Jones said. "We hope to build upon that support in the future for our scholarship program."

"Athletes Teaming Up...The 1985 WSC Athletic Phone-a-thon" was the college's first effort at raising money strictly for athletics.

WSC plays four games

Wayne State's women's basketball team plays four games in six days beginning Wednesday, Dec. 4 and ending Monday, Dec. 9.

The Lady Wildcats host Doane College Dec. 4 and travel to Fremont for a game against Midland the next day. Wayne State returns home for a Dec. 7 game against Northwestern and travels to Omaha for a contest against Saint Mary's Dec. 9.

The Lady Wildcats' probable starting lineup is Shari Krohn, Shelle Tomaszewicz, Kris Smith, Michelle Blomberg and Linda Schnitzler.

registered in Nebraska. Mail-in registrations, which will include the proof of insurance, will be accepted by the county treasurer, but the mailing in of insurance policies is discouraged. County treasurers prefer that the "certificate of insurance" be used.

MOTORISTS MUST carry proof of financial responsibility in the vehicles at all times. If they are stopped by an officer and don't have the proof, they will have 10 days to produce proof that financial responsibility was in existence at the time of such requests.

If they cannot, then they could be charged with a misdemeanor, which could result in a penalty of up to six months in prison, a $1,000 fine or both.

State Farm Insurance Agent Willis Johnson of Wayne said he thinks the new legislation for proof of financial responsibility is good when considering that approximately 15 percent or more of the drivers on the road in Nebraska are currently uninsured.

He said the new law could provide difficulty for people who want to register their vehicle and have problems with insurance companies in gaining coverage for their vehicle.

Johnson said, however, that some states with the proof of financial responsibility laws are finding it not as effective as anticipated and he advises people that it is still wise to insure themselves against the uninsured motorists.

One reason it is not effective in some states is because the person registering his or her vehicle may have the vehicle properly insured at the time of registration, but will later let the payments on insurance lapse beyond the grace payment period. The insurance expires later — leaving uninsured motorists driving the roads until the balance is once again picked up.

"People should check the amount of grace period they have on insurance payments so this will not happen," he said.

ANOTHER NEW law resulting from the 1985 regular legislative session deals with the registration of vehicles with a weight of 55,000 pounds or more. The vehicle owner must now present proof of payment of the Federal Heavy Vehicle Use Tax (Excise Tax) to the county treasurer.

The county treasurer will deny registrations when sufficient proof of payment is not presented and when the vehicle identification numbers are not accurately listed on the tax returns.

No proof of payment is required for the initial registration when the applicant presents the original, or a photocopy, of a bill of sale or other document evidencing a transfer of ownership that occurred during the preceding 60 days.

Some vehicle owners who meet the weight requirements of 55,000 may not have to pay any of the Heavy Vehicle Use Tax if they believe the vehicle will be used on public highways for 5,000 or fewer miles during the taxable period.

However, even though they may not have to pay the tax, they are still required to file Form 2290 and Schedule 1. These people are filing to have the tax suspended on their vehicles and will receive back from the Internal Revenue Service a receipted Schedule 1 which they will have to show to the county treasurer before registering the vehicles.

AGRICULTURE vehicles are entitled to an additional minimum mileage exemption of 7,500 miles instead of 5,000 miles.

An agricultural vehicle is defined as a vehicle used primarily for farming purposes and registered as a highway motor vehicle used for farming purposes.

The number of miles drive on the farm or on other private property does not count toward the 7,500 exemption. The taxpayer must still present a receipted Schedule 1 before the vehicle can be registered, indicating receipt of suspension of the tax.

Four rules for houseplant success

Four basic houseplant rules involve water, light, fertilizer and soil mix. Let's examine the soil mix first.

- 1) Generally most vigorously growing plants will need repotting every year or two. Check the plant by gently rapping the pot on a table edge, turn upside down and remove the soil ball. When the ball is heavily covered with roots it's time to repot. The good old-fashioned potting mix useful for most plants consists of equal parts rich garden soil, peat moss and coarse sand (or perlite). Pasteurize mixture before repotting at 180 degrees F. for 30 minutes.
- 2) The second rule involves watering thoroughly until water drains out the pot's bottom. Then allow the plant to dry out again before watering. Whenever you do water remember to moisten the entire soil ball. Develop a "feel" for watering.
- 3) A third rule for houseplants success is proper fertilizing. During winter plants are working less and need less food, so fertilize once every two months. During the summer months when plant growth is more rapid, fertilize once a month. Fertilizers that are added to the water generally show quicker results than slow-release solids or granules.
- 4) The fourth rule involves sufficient light. Although some plants enjoy or tolerate low light levels, most plants need all the light they can get during our short autumn and winter days. This means that for many plants a sunny south window is ideal during the winter.

Firewood

Firewood has more value for home use than commonly thought. When compared with other heat sources, a standard cord of dry, dense hardwood provides as much heat as one ton of hard coal, 165-200 gallons of fuel oil, or 24,000 cubic feet of natural gas.

The presence of substance such as oil, resins, or other extractives in wood has a tendency to change heating values for various woods. For example, resinous woods such as pine, larch and spruce have a higher heat value per pound than many of the non-resinous woods such as hickory. Heat value can be increased if the firewood is cut early in the year and given ample time to dry. Any excess that may be present in the wood will reduce the amount of available heat. A portion of the total heat must be used to evaporate the excess water during burning. A standard cord of freshly cut green firewood will yield about 80 percent of the available heat of a standard cord of properly seasoned firewood.

FmHA announces regulation change

There are a few changes in the guarantee operating regulations, according to a source from the Wayne FmHA office. In addition to our regular loan note guarantee, The Farmers Home Administration is able to issue a Contract of Guarantee on a line of credit for an eligible guarantee operating loan applicant. This means that the lender will establish a maximum amount of credit extended for an operating loan. When the loan is paid down from the sale of that year's farm proceeds, the bank is able to reloan the borrower for the following year's crop production without applying for a guarantee loan each year. This will save the bank time in working up an application each year and the cost of a guarantee fee for each loan closing.

A line of credit may be used for purchase of foundation livestock replacements and annual operating expenses.

During the upcoming spring lending season first priority will be placed on the use of the guarantee loan program. Because of our amount of allotted funds for our regular operating loans and with our heavy work load, emphasis will be placed on the use of our guarantee loan programs. This means that the bank will first consider a guarantee loan before the borrower applies for a regular FmHA operating loan. As of October 1, 1985, there was a change in the income limits for housing loan eligibility. Please check with the FmHA Office for information on income limits.

The Farmers Home Administration has the regular program assistance for farm operating loans, farm ownership loans and housing loans. If you feel you are in need of credit assistance, please stop at the FmHA Office at Wayne for information on the type of programs available.

Also, new regulations have been received on servicing delinquent accounts. Sometime after the first of the year everyone with a delinquent Farmer Program loan will be receiving "Notice of Intent to Take Adverse Action". This form will explain all the possible servicing actions that could be used to correct the delinquency as well as inform you of the default status of your loan and what action FmHA might take.

Beginning December 1, 1985, the Stanton County Office Day will be by appointment every 2nd and 4th Monday of each month. If you wish to see the supervisor at Stanton, please call this office to set up an appointment. Without an appointment, the supervisor will not be in Stanton for Office Day.

Nitrogen management effects are studied

A 14-year experiment at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Research and Development Center near Mead has provided some observations that can help farmers improve the efficiency and economy of their operations.

Speaking at the annual meeting of the American Society of Agronomy in Chicago on Dec. 3, Robert Olson, UNL professor of agronomy, said the investigation of nitrogen management effects on corn and grain sorghum grown under identical irrigated conditions have provided the following recommendations:

- A SIGNIFICANT portion of nitrogen application should be delayed until irrigated corn or sorghum plants are well established (12-inch to 24-inch stage);
- Grain sorghum should be grown in place of corn if nitrogen is short;
- Rye should be interseeded at final cultivation where plenty of nitrogen is applied in a wetter than normal year or with irrigation for obtaining rotation benefits in a monoculture crop system.

"Alfalfa or a biennial legume should be interseeded if nitrogen supply is low and moisture is plentiful; -Where either anhydrous ammonia or UAN solution is selected as the nitrogen source, there will be no damage to soil structure if each is properly used.

Olson said the long-term results of the experiment showed grain sorghum outyielding corn under conditions of low nitrogen supply and peaking in yield at around 125 bushels per acre, with not more than 80 pounds of nitrogen applied per acre on the fine textured soils.

"Corn, however, responded to nitrogen in rates of 160 pounds per acre and has been the more economic crop with average yields around 150 bushels per acre," Olson said.

Soil tests economical

Conservation tillage essential to crop production

Hold our topsoil

Farmers today are well aware of the need to "Hold Our Topsoil" in place. If the land is to be productive in the future, what better way to hold topsoil in place than conservation tillage?

Several forms of conservation tillage have been developed which reduce soil erosion and create a favorable atmosphere for growing crops. Both researchers and farmers have found that conservation tillage systems which keep crop residue on the surface will save energy, reduce labor requirements, conserve moisture, and reduce water and wind erosion.

There are several conservation tillage systems—no till, strip till, till plant, mulch till, and reduce till. Any one of these systems can be effective by leaving a minimum of 30 percent crop residue on the surface after planting.

Each year more landowners and operators are using conservation tillage to help win the war against soil erosion. Help us "HOT" Hold Our Topsoil in place for many generations to come.

For more information on conservation tillage practices stop in at the Soil Conservation Service office in Wayne.

"Sufficiency Approach" to Soil Testing Most Economical

Studies at the University of Nebraska Research and Development Center have indicated the sufficiency approach to soil test interpretation is most economical to the farmer and most environmentally acceptable.

"Hopefully, the results of these studies will bring about more uniform fertilizer recommendations to the farmer," Robert Olson, UNL professor of agronomy, said at the American Society of Agronomy annual meeting in Chicago on Dec. 4.

The sufficiency approach to soil test interpretation is based on the level above which no fertilizer is recommended, as opposed to one based on maintenance, which calls for the amount of nutrients likely to be removed by the anticipated crop yield, he said.

"FARMERS HAVE been confused by varied soil test recommendations supplied by different laboratories for a given field," Olson said. "The study was initiated in 1973 to investigate the issue on four major soils of the state with soil samples sent to the four major commercial soil testing labs in Nebraska and to the University's Extension Service lab with requested recommendations for specific yield goals. The study was continued for 12 years.

The sufficiency approach compared to the maintenance philosophy has revealed no significant yield differences, Olson said, "but a wide range in kinds, amounts and costs of fertilizer recommendations were noted."

SOIL TESTING also must logically serve the added role of assisting in the control of surface and ground water contamination by nutrients, he said. "Research must be continued for more precisely calibrating soil tests to crop nutrient response, including further investigation of sampling depth and time of sampling."

Snowbound

BARE cornstalks buckle under the weight of the wind and snow that hit the Allen area the past weekend.

the farmer's wife

by pat meierhenry

It's the first Sunday in Advent, and the scene outside the kitchen window is deceptive. The sun on the snow makes a Christmas card picture, but the wind is so raw.

The Big Farmer made an early tour to make sure the livestock was safe. They had all managed to find snug places out of the wind, and were huddled together for warmth.

We didn't get to church, so we sampled the TV evangelists. Watch some of these fellows without the sound turned up, and you are impressed with their "body language."

Kay and I both worked the afternoon shift at the hospital this weekend. We went prepared to stay. Some did stay - snuggling down in spare beds in a store room, or on the big mat in Physical Therapy, or on the couch in the chapel. But the anticipated snow fall did not materialize, and we made it back home.

When Ann is bored, she cooks. She made candied popcorn one evening. Jon decided to pop some more corn. It sputtered and burned, and we wondered how he could mess up popping corn. Then we noticed the corn syrup next to the vegetable oil, and realized what had happened. He had not discovered a new way to make caramel popcorn! Luckily, it came out of the popper in a chunk.

EACH DAY'S MAIL brings a stack of flyers. I find myself totally turned off with the glossy colored pages of electronic marvels, supersonic toys, and artificial trees. I do enjoy warm sweaters and robes, though, and I'm hoping for a snowmobile suit. Not for snowmobiling, just going to work!

People at work were discussing the merits of various toys. We agreed that tinkler toys, lego blocks, and Lincoln logs were always good. Most felt that today's toys did not allow enough imagination.

One young mother described her young daughter's play activity this week. She was a school teacher, and instead of using her dolls for students, she drew faces on pieces of construction paper, gave them all names, and set them around the room. "This is fun," she told her mother, "but I can't take them outside for recess because they will all blow away."

Listening to the little girl talk to her "pupils" gave an insight about what goes on at school. "I don't care if you don't want to read," she told one fellow, "you can't grow up if you don't learn to read."

This led to a discussion of over-hearing children talk to their dolls as their Mothers do. "Now, I'm not going to tell you again to stop that." "If I've said it once, I've said it a million times," and "I'm sick and tired of this." My friend used that expression, and once when she was sick in bed, her little girl asked, "Are you sick and tired, Mom?"

I ATTENDED a second session on Rural Stress at Northeast College this week. It featured Herb Lingren, family life specialist for the Extension Service. He and his associate repeated several times the axiom, "If it's going to be - it's up to me."

The program talked a lot of the value of support groups and how to organize an effective group. Those who have worked with rural groups found them reluctant to share information about their problems. When they did try sharing, those who tried to help were often helped the most. Good neighbors have always found this to be the case.

Pierce County's extension agent told us of Project Neighbor, a group that meets every other Saturday morning for breakfast together. They rotate churches among the three in Osmond and have emphasized to him that they are not into psychology. He believes it has been successful because it was not organized by professionals - an interesting comment.

Anyway, they stressed that it is important for us all to have a "social support system," ready to call on when in time of need. This time of year, when we think of friends and family, is the time to strengthen those relationships and renew old ties. Time to get our Christmas cards written. Some busy people have given up this custom. I can't. I enjoy receiving them too much.

I'll tell you more about this day with Dr. Lingren next week. I'm out of time and space, and have to get this to the post office.

IS YOUR WATER SAFE TO DRINK?

Is your drinking water good quality? Do you have well problems during irrigation season? Are nitrates or other contaminants increasing? Will further controls be necessary to safeguard the groundwater supply?

Lower Elkhorn NRD has just completed a draft of the district's Groundwater Management Plan, and the Board of Directors would like to know of the citizen's opinion of the plan. The Groundwater Management Plan was mandated by the Nebraska Legislature.

Public Hearings Will Be Held Tuesday, December 10th:
10:00 a.m. — City Council Chambers, 306 Pearl St., Wayne
2:00 p.m. — Cuming County Courthouse, West Point
7:30 p.m. — Commercial Federal Savings, 602 Norfolk Avenue, Norfolk

Possible actions as a result of the Groundwater Management Plan include:

1. A Water Quality Monitoring Program — A network of private wells will be sampled on a regular basis and tested for various pollutants.
2. Establish programs to inform people on management practices which will prevent pollution of groundwater.
3. Establish Groundwater Management Area to fund necessary activities or establish controls in problem areas.
4. Research drilling of Dakota Formation to find any areas where this source of groundwater is acceptable for beneficial uses.

The plan will establish policies, programs, and controls that will affect your use of groundwater and the quality of your drinking water. The public is urged to attend one of the hearings. — Lower Elkhorn NRD Board of Directors

2 - wayne-carroll girls basketball

The Wayne Herald, Thursday, December 5, 1985

Blue Devils hope to be competitive by season's end

After struggling through a 2-17 season last year, the 1985-86 expectations for Wayne-Carroll's girls basketball team is positive. But head coach Marlene Uhing said a certain number of wins won't determine if the Blue Devils will be successful or not.

"We're going to try and be at least .500 this year, but our main goal is to just try and improve each game and be competitive by the end of the season," she said. "That doesn't mean we won't try and win, that's naturally the number one goal. But if we improve and are competitive by the end of the season, we will have achieved our main goal."

Uhing said she hasn't decided on a starting lineup yet. But Sonja Skokan, Laura Keating, Kecia Corbit, Shelly Pick and Jodi Ditman are five players that should see plenty of playing time.

Other Blue Devils who should see a lot of playing time are Missy Jones, Marnie Bruggeman, Rita Pendergast, Dana Nelson, Holly Paige, Lisa Engelson and Robin Luft.

Corbit, Pick and Engelson will battle for the post position. And Uhing said Wayne's inside game should be a strength this year.

"We're going to try and run a controlled game on offense. One of our biggest strengths should be our inside game so we'll try and be patient on offense and get good shots," she said.

Uhing warns, however, that she has confidence in her team's outside shooting if opposing defenses sag in on Wayne's tall players.

"We have capable shooters from the outside if teams sag in on us too much. Our first priority will be to try and get the ball inside, but if we can't we'll take the outside shot," she said.

Defensively, Uhing said the Blue Devils will show various presses and zones, depending on the opposition.

Uhing added that discipline is the main area Wayne will have to improve in before the season tips off.

"We have to learn to have patience. We can shoot from the outside and our guards are quick, but we have to learn to settle down and take good shots and run only when we have the opportunity."

Blue Devils hope to improve as season moves along

With four starters returning from last year's state qualifying team, many Wayne-Carroll basketball fans are setting their sights on another state tourney berth before the 1985-86 campaign even begins. However, Blue Devil head coach Bob Uhing is taking each game one at a time.

"The big thing we're hoping for is to improve each game and play hard every time out. When you start looking ahead, problems start," he said.

Don Larsen (6-3), Dan Gross (5-10), Ted Lueders (5-11), Brent Pick (6-4), Jeff Hausmann (6-3), Scott Baker (6-1), Cory Dahl (6-6) and Bill Liska (6-3) are eight Blue Devils that should divide most of the playing time this year. And Uhing said Wayne's depth might be its main strength this season.

"Right now one of our biggest strengths is our depth. We have eight or nine players who can play and play well," he said.

Uhing listed several areas he wants to see his players improve on, but moving without the ball drew first priority.

"We need to work on our rebounding, defense and passing," he said. "And we have to work on moving without the ball. We have several good shooters, but right now we're not real strong offensively because we're not moving without the ball."

Although five of the Blue Devils listed above are 6-3 or taller, Uhing said Wayne's size is only average compared to most of the teams on the Blue-Devil schedule.

"When people first see how tall we are, they think we have good size. But really we're only an average sized team because the teams we play are tall, too. Blair, (Sioux City) North and most of the other opponents have big kids," he said.

Getting good shots every trip down the court and playing well as a team are the main offensive and defensive goals Uhing listed.

"We'll run when the opportunity arises, but offensively, our main interest is to get a good shot every time we have the ball," he said. "Defensively, we'll try and put more pressure on the ball and play more man-to-man, but our main priority will be to play well as a team."

Rebuilding Blue Devils gun for successful campaign

Wayne-Carroll head wrestling coach John Murtaugh predicts a fairly successful season this year, but he admits the Blue Devils could have a serious problem unless something changes later this week.

"The kids are working hard and we have a shot at having a good team, but we don't have a 98-pounder or 105-pounder," he said. "I'm working on a couple of kids to come out so we'll fill those two weights, but if they don't that will really hurt us."

Indeed it will. The two vacant weights would mean the Blue Devils would enter every dual trailing 12-0 before the match even begins (providing the opposing team has a 98 and 105 pound wrestler).

Six lettermen return from last year's squad, and heading the list is 132-pounder Mark Janke. Janke qualified for the state tournament last season.

Robbie Gamble (138 pounds), Mark Rahn (126 pounds), Bill Landanger (155 pounds), Jamie Fredrickson (145 pounds) and heavyweight Steve Cowgill also lettered last season.

Other grapplers that were mentioned as probable starters by Murtaugh are: Chris Corbit, 112; Corey Frye, 119; and Stuart Rethwisch, 185.

Three weights are still very much up for grabs, according to Murtaugh.

"Our 138-pounder will either be Gamble or Shannon Dorcey. At 155, it will either be Landanger, Chris Lutt or Joel Pedersen and the two that don't win at 155 will battle Tim Sievers at 167," he said.

Murtaugh said the middle weights should carry Wayne this year and mentioned several Blue Devils who have good chances of qualifying for state.

John Murtaugh (left), Dan Cerny (middle) and Scott Sisson are Wayne's coaches this year. Missing is Lonnie Ehrhardt.

"Our middle weights will be our strength. As far as state goes, Frye, Janke, Fredrickson, Landanger and Cowgill have the best chance of qualifying, but several others could too," he said.

Inexperience and the two lightest weights were listed as weaknesses this year by the Blue Devil mentor.

"Giving up those 12 points will kill us because we don't have much experience as it is," he said. "But although it is a rebuilding year, we still plan to have a good year."

Winside should keep winning tradition

WINSIDE — With five key grapplers gone from last year's team, Winside head wrestling coach Paul Sok admits that the 1985-86 season is a little down from last year.

"In little schools, seasons seem to be up and down. We lost five kids that averaged 22 wins last year, so we'll probably be a little down this year," Sok said.

But despite losing so many fine wrestlers and having only one senior on this year's team, Sok doesn't label the '85-86 campaign as a rebuilding one.

"We only have one senior this year but all of the kids have varsity experience so it isn't a rebuilding season," he said.

Although Sok wasn't totally sure what his lineup would be, he expected to have Mace Kant wrestle at 105, Doug Paulsen at 112, Jeff Bolich at 119, Chris Olson at 132, Darin Schellenberg at 138, Rod Diedrichsen at 145, Randy Leapley at 155 and Steve Jorgensen at either 167 or 185.

Olson, a two-time state qualifier, is the only senior on the squad. Others who have state tournament experience are Kant, Paulsen and Schellenberg.

Kant and Paulsen both finished third at districts last year before placing fourth at state.

As a team, Winside finished seventh at state and qualified seven grapplers for the state tourney. The Wildcats also placed third in districts, captured three tournament championships and finished 6-0 in duals.

Sok said about half of his grapplers will have to improve if Winside is to experience another season like last year's.

"We're going to be about split this year. Half the kids should do real well and it's the other half that we hope progress as the season moves along. And if they do, we should have a competitive team by the end of the season," he said.

Although Sok didn't make any predictions for this year, he did offer an analysis about competing this season.

"Basically, we have a good bunch of kids and we're looking to having two or three in the finals most of the time. But we will have to give up two or three weights every time out and that'll hurt."

PAUL SOK is Winside's wrestling coach.

6 - winside girls basketball

The Wayne Herald, Thursday, December 5, 1985

Stenwall hopes winning attitude carries over into basketball season

WINSIDE — Winside's volleyball team finished second in the Clark Division of the Lewis and Clark Conference last year. And Wildcat head coach Jill Stenwall said she hopes that winning attitude carries over into the 1985-86 basketball season.

"Our goal in volleyball was to try and establish a winning attitude, and I think we did. Now I just hope that carries over into the basketball season, and I'm confident it will," she said.

Although Winside only captured four triumphs last year, Stenwall appears to have a well-rounded nucleus for a successful year this season.

Three key players for the Wildcats are Julie Brockman, Kay Meierhenry and Lana Prince. But Stenwall listed several others that will have to contribute if Winside is to be a conference contender.

"Christi Thies, Tracy Topp, Teresa Brudigan, Kerri Leighton and several others will be important to the team this year," she said.

Stenwall added that several young players will be pushing the upper classmen for playing time.

"I've got three or four sophomores and one freshman that should see varsity action this year," she said.

Stenwall said that her players' inability to execute the fundamentals consistently is a weakness, and added that a team effort will be needed to combat the liability.

"Our fundamentals are weak. We won't do too many fancy things because we aren't real sharp on the fundamentals," she said. "And we'll need a balanced effort from the entire team in every game because of this."

Defense was mentioned as a team asset by the Wildcat mentor.

"We'll concentrate a lot on defense because I think that's one of our strongest areas. We'll play both man-to-man and zone," she said.

Offensively, Stenwall said her players will be able to free lance while concentrating on getting the open person on the ball.

"Offensively, we'll have some set plays, but mainly we'll just concentrate on hitting the open person with a pass," she said.

Prince, Mike Thies, Brent Nau, Doug Mundil, Kevin Jaeger and student manager Doug Cherry. Missing is Daryl Mundil.

Wildcats will strive for fruitful 1985-86 season

WINSIDE — The Winside Wildcats failed to crack the win column in 18 attempts during the 1984-85 campaign. But with three returning starters back, the 1985-86 season could be a little more fruitful.

Doug Mundil and Ryan Prince, both 6-0 seniors, and 6-1 junior Mike Thies are the three starters from last year that return this season. But Winside head coach Mark Freburg listed several other players as being keys to the '85-86 campaign.

"Kevin Jaeger, Brent Nau, Tim Voss and Daryl Mundil will all see plenty of action this year also," Freburg said.

Jaeger and Nau are both 6-2 juniors, which gives Freburg six players above 6-0. And size was mentioned by the Wildcat mentor as an asset.

"We don't have a real big kid, but we have fairly good size across the front line and I think that might be one of our assets. All those kids are good rebounders," he said. Freburg mentioned two other qualities that should assist Winside this year.

"We have some kids that can score," he said. "And all the players are real hard workers and that's good to see."

A weakness mentioned by Freburg was Daryl Mundil's injured knee.

"He injured his knee in football first, and he reinjured it playing basketball. If we have a major weakness I don't want to talk too much about it, but since he's quick and a good rebounder I guess that's our biggest weakness right now," Freburg said about the 6-0 junior.

Offensively, Freburg said his club will perform according to what they face defensively.

"Offensively, we're going to try and keep the pressure on the defense if we could. But we're basically just going to take what the defense gives us," he said.

Defensively, the Wildcat skipper said his players will mix in both man-to-man and zone formations.

"We've been working on both defenses in practice lately and the kids seem to be executing both so we'll probably play both man-to-man and zone during the season," he said.

10 - laurel-concord girls basketball

Young Laurel-Concord squad guns for .500 campaign

LAUREL — Last year Laurel-Concord finished with a 16-3 mark and captured a conference championship. But the 1985-86 campaign will be a rebuilding one, according to head coach Gale Hamilton.

"This year is a rebuilding one for us. Our first substitutions off the bench will be freshmen and sophomores," he said.

Although Hamilton will be rebuilding, he does have several talented players to build around.

Gail Twiford, a 5-11 junior, owns the school record in rebounding and has been a starter since her freshman season.

Sara Adkins, a 5-7 junior, has been a starter at the guard position since her freshman season and Michelle Joslin, a 5-9 senior, has been in the starting ranks the past two years.

Becky Christensen, a 6-0 sophomore, will also figure in Hamilton's plans this year.

"One of our strengths will be our post position. With Twiford, Christensen and some of our other taller girls, we should be pretty strong on the inside," he said.

Hamilton said he plans to run a set offense this year.

"We'll be conservative as far as our offense goes. We won't run a fast paced offense because most of the players aren't used to that type of game so we'll run a set offense and try and be more deliberate," he said.

Hamilton said he wasn't sure what type of defense his club will rely on the most this year.

"We're going to mix up our defenses.

We're going to try and be unpredictable in that category and our defensive ability could be a big asset to us because we play both zone and man-to-man pretty well," he said.

But Hamilton admits that his younger players will have to come through for the Bears to have a successful 1985-86 season.

"Our depth and youth is, perhaps, our biggest weakness. We're going to rely on our younger players a great deal and if they come through like I think they can, we'll do alright," he said. "Last year Pender beat us in regionals by two points, and although we're rebuilding, we look to have another good year and finish above .500."

1985-86 season is rebuilding one for Laurel-Concord

LAUREL — Like the Laurel-Concord girls basketball team, the Laurel boys' program is striving for the future.

"One of our biggest weaknesses is our inexperience and youth. We're rebuilding this year and we're planning to make progress and shoot for the future," head coach Mark Hrabik said.

Seven seniors off last year's 4-12 team have graduated, and Hrabik said four key players that will see a lot of action this year are underclassmen.

"We lost a lot of players to graduation last year and as a result, most of the players on the court this year will be underclassmen," he said.

Brent Haisch is the only starter back from the 1984-85 campaign. Haisch, a 6-0 forward, did average in double figures last season but he is the only player back with any varsity experience.

Probable starters that will join Haisch this year are sophomores Scott Marquardt (5-10), Joedy Cunningham (6-2) and Steve Schmitt (5-10). "These four should figure in to our plans this year," Hrabik said.

One position that is still up for grabs is the center slot.

"Erick Christensen and Dan White will probably alternate at that spot. Both are seniors and Christensen is 6-6 and White is 6-4," Hrabik said. "But we still haven't found a player to fit into that fifth spot yet."

Patience and ball movement will be a key to the Bears' success this year, according to Hrabik.

"We'll have to be patient and work the ball around on offense and look for the good shot. We won't do well if we rush things," he said.

Defensively, the Laurel mentor said he planned to utilize his players' hustle and speed as much as possible.

"We have kids with good speed and they really hustle well and we'll try and use their assets as much as possible," he said. "We'll play a lot of man-to-man and also use some trapping zones," he said.

The 1985-86 campaign will be Hrabik's second year at the helm of Laurel basketball. He was also the skipper during the 1982-83 season.

12 - wakefield girls basketball

The Wayne Herald, Thursday, December 5, 1985

MEMBERS OF WAKEFIELD'S girls basketball team this year are: (front, left to right) Bobbi Weierhauser, Sharon Wenstrand, Kristi Miller, Tricia Schwarten, Racquel Lueth and Lisa Reintzel; (back, left to right)

Steph Fischer, Marci Greve, Kristal Clay, Steph Torczon, Stacey Kuhl, Karen Hallstrom and Desiree Salmon. Missing is Brenda Boekenhauer and Kodi Nelson.

Wakefield shoots for its first winning season ever

WAKEFIELD — Last year Wakefield finished the season with a disappointing 1-16 mark. But this year head coach Arnie Cerny is certain his club will be improved.

"Wakefield has never been above .500 and that's a goal we're going after this year. We'll be an improved team this year and I think we'll surprise some teams," he said.

Stacey Kuhl, a 5-6 junior, and Marci Greve, a 5-8 junior, both started for the Trojans last year and should see a lot of playing time this season.

Joining Kuhl and Greve as key players this year are: Kristal Clay, 5-8 senior; Kristi Miller, 5-6 senior; Tricia Schwarten, 5-4 sophomore; Desiree Salmon, 5-6 junior.

Cerny said he plans to have his squad run a set-offense and play primarily man-to-man on defense.

"We don't run much and need to keep under control so we'll run a set offense most of the time," he said. "As far as defense goes, we'll play as much man-to-man as possible and mix in a variety of zones. And we'll do a lot of pressing this year, too."

A major asset Wakefield will have this year, according to Cerny, is its desire.

"The girls came out and work hard and their working habits will be one of our strengths this year," he said.

Cerny added that the Trojans are also good leapers and quick.

"We're also quicker than we were last year and even though we aren't very tall, we have some good leapers so we'll play taller than we actually are," he said.

Depth and youth are two weaknesses listed by Cerny.

"We're young this year. We were young last year and it hurt us at times, but we're just as young this year, too," he said. "And we aren't very deep. We have some capable freshmen but it will take time for them to develop into reliable players."

Although he expects his club to be improved this year, he said most of the clubs on the Trojan schedule are also improved.

"We'll be more improved, but so are most of the teams on the schedule so it's kind of relative," he said.

Wakefield's boys shoot for winning season in '85-86

WAKEFIELD — Only one player is gone from last year's Wakefield squad, but that one player, Brian Soderburg, was one of the better players in the Lewis and Clark Conference and head coach Paul Eaton has mixed emotions about the 1985-86 season.

"We have almost everybody back from last year and that's good, but it looks like everybody on our schedule is going to be better than they were last year and that causes some concern," he said.

Seniors John Halverson, Jason Erb, Wade Nicholson and Jeff Rose, and juniors Kevin Greve and Brad Lund all started at one time or another last year, and these are the six players that Eaton will center his attention around this season.

The Trojan mentor said he plans to install an aggressive defense and hopes, the Wakefield offense will develop from this defensive play.

"We'll play a lot of aggressive man-to-man defense and hopefully we'll take advantage of what we're given on offense," he said. "And we'll take a lot of high percentage shots on offense."

His players' aggressiveness and rebounding abilities are two strengths listed by Eaton.

"We're aggressive and that's what we'll rely on. That and our rebounding ability will be two keys to our success this year," he said.

One area Eaton said he hopes his club improves in as the season progresses is its ball handling skills.

"We're not going to run because the kids aren't used to it and our ball handling skills isn't one of our strengths," he said.

A major goal for the Eagles last year was to be competitive by the end of the season. And the Trojans' goal was achieved as they missed qualifying for the state tournament by only one game. Eaton said he has established a similar goal this year.

"There will be many teams on our schedule with very good teams. Last year, Wakefield finished 8-10 and hopefully we'll be around the .500 mark by the end of the season and we'd like to be more competitive as the season moves along," he said.

Eagles concentrate on having another winning season

ALLEN — This year, the Allen girls basketball team will have a rarity — a girl taller than 5-8. And the added height naturally has head coach Gary Troth smiling.

"Last year we were extremely small, our tallest girl was 5-8. So one of our advantages is our overall height. We're not tall, but have a nice balance," he said.

Kris Blohm, a 5-11 junior, is the tallest member on the Eagle squad this year. But Kristi Chase, Tiffany Harder and Barb Hansen are all 5-9 juniors and will assist Blohm with rebounding chores.

Three other key players that will figure into Troth's plans are 5-8 junior Lana Erwin, and 5-7 senior twins Denise and Diane Magnuson.

"We have a well balanced team as far as height goes. And we're pretty solid at the guard positions because Denise was our second leading scorer last year and Diane plays very good defense," Troth said.

Despite his talented back court duo, Troth said he plans to use a controlled offense.

"We'll try and control the ball more and work it inside. Last year we were extremely short, but this year with Blohm and the other taller girls we'll try and go inside more often," he said.

But Troth warned that the Eagles also have several girls he can use for perimeter shooting.

"Chase, Erwin and Denise Magnuson are good shots so if we need to, we can shoot from the outside, too," he said.

Two weaknesses Troth mentioned was his squad's inexperience and lack of speed. The

Magnuson twins are the only seniors on the club this year.

"We only have two seniors this year so inexperience is a weakness. That and we don't have much foot speed," he said.

The Allen skipper hopes to make up for the two liabilities with concentration.

"We're striving for concentration on execution this year. Last year we made too many mistakes and hopefully we'll cut down on our turnovers this year," he said.

The Eagles closed last year's campaign with a 13-7 record. "And I'm looking for a good season this year," Troth said.

Allen strives for second straight winning season

ALLEN — Last year Allen High School recorded its first winning season in boys' basketball in over a decade. And if the Eagles plan on topping the .500 mark this season, it will take a total team effort.

Only 12 players reported to preseason workouts, and missing are two key players from last year's squad. Allen head coach David Uldrich admits depth could be the Eagles' biggest problem during the 1985-86 campaign.

"Our biggest weakness is depth. We only have 12 players out and that will affect the way we play both offensively and defensively," he said.

Steve Jones, a 6-4 senior, Craig Noe, a 6-3 senior and 6-3 junior Max Oswald all started for the Eagles last year. And Uldrich said these three and several others will be counted on to carry much of the load this season.

"The three returning starters, along with Clarke McGrath, Jyoti Kwankin and Brian Malcom will be our key players," he said. McGrath and Malcom are 5-7 seniors, while Kwankin is a 5-7 junior.

Allen's tall front line was mentioned by Uldrich as one of the Eagles' main strengths going into the season.

"Our size is probably our main strength. Because of our height we'll play a lot of half court basketball," he said. "But our offensive game plan will vary with the talent we're playing against," he added.

Uldrich added that perimeter shooting is another asset the Eagles hope to utilize during the season.

DAVE ULDRICH is Allen's boys head coach.

"We have some good outside shooters — the best perimeter shooting we've had since I've been here," he said. Uldrich is serving his fourth year at Allen.

The two players that will be missing from the Eagle squad are Jeff Gotch and Craig

JEFF SCHONING is Allen's assistant boys basketball coach.

Hoffman. Gotch has mono and Hoffman is a foreign exchange student in Germany.

"We'll miss those two guys," Uldrich said. "But this group won a Wakefield tournament a couple of years ago. Last year was the first winning season Allen's had in something like 10 years, and hopefully we'll have another one this year."
