Bids opened for rec facility work

by Chuck Hackenmiller

Bids were opened Tuesday afternoon for the Rice/Carlson Recreational Facility Expansion project at Wayne State College, and college officials are happy with what they see before them.

All seven general contractor bids which Wayne State obtained were below what was actually budgeted for the actual construction of the expansion project. The low bid came in, with base and five alternatives, at over $437,000 less than the estimate construction cost for the recreational facility.

And it is that bid of $2,372,883, submitted by Radec Construction of Hartington, which will be recommended by college officials for approval from the Board of Trustees of the Nebraska State Colleges at their next regular meeting.

The budgeted figure for the 66,000 square foot recreational facility expansion is $2,810,530, according to John Struve, dean of finance at Wayne State College.

Struve was extremely satisfied with the submitted bids.

"Excited and happy are the key words. We are anxious to get on with the building and happy that the bids came in so well below [the budget figure]," said Struve.

Christensen Construction Co. of Pender also submitted a bid at $2,568,100, and others were received from Sioux City and Omaha. Radec Construction's base bid was $2,217,445, with an additional $155,438 bid on five alternatives, bringing their total bid to $2,372,883.

DESIGNS FOR the expansion facility indicate square footage allowed for a large multi-purpose floor, four racquetball courts, a weight room, dance/aerobics area, gymnastics/wrestling area, two meeting rooms and other areas such as restrooms and an office/conference room.

The 31,800 square foot multi-purpose floor will include three basketball courts and indoor track facilities.

Those five alternatives covered in Radec Construction's bid will include an additional room divider in the main gymnasium of the new addition; adding an acoustic roof deck for sound control; remodeling the

City staff intends to cut tax askings

by Chuck Hackenmiller

Wayne city officials will be looking toward reducing tax askings for 1986-87 when it comes to preparation of the upcoming fiscal budget.

Although no council decisions have been made on any budget proposals, Wayne City Administrator Phil Kloster told council members that a reduction of 5 percent over the previous year in tax asking has been discussed among city staff members.

Kloster said he had discussed the 5 percent reduction proposal with city staff on Tuesday. "The staff agreed they would find a way to do that," he said.

This is in light of losing a considerable amount of funds normally filtered down from the state and national level. Kloster said, however, that rural America is hurting right now.

"We have decided to do whatever is necessary to reduce at 5 percent the property tax askings [from the previous fiscal year]. We wish we could do more," he added.

"We'll do our best to help the situation as best we can," he said.

The 5 percent reduction, dollarwise, will be about $20,000.

Kloster said the city of Wayne is a small percentage of the owner's property tax bill in regards to the total picture.

HE SAID THAT with the help of the other government agencies toward reducing tax askings, perhaps there will be more relief coming to property taxpayers.

One area which Councilman Freeman Decker addressed that he said could be considered as a reduction was in the traveling expenses to seminars or meetings and for memberships to various organizations. Decker said reductions in this area could be substantial.

Mayor Wayne Marsh said that while some of those expenses can be reduced, there are also some meetings or seminars that need to be attended and are very necessary.

Also Tuesday evening, seven bids on a concrete paving project for the alley between 7th and 8th and Main Street and Pearl were received from Blessing Construction Inc. in Kearney, Castle Construction of Columbus, Concrete Specialties, Inc. of South Sioux City, Gil Construction Company of Jackson, Northeast Sand and Gravel Inc. of Norfolk, Dave Patrick Contracting of South Sioux City and Wragge Construction of Norfolk.

WRAGGE'S Construction submitted the low total base bid of $7,505.30. Castle Construction was next low at $7,810.44. The highest bid was produced by Blessing Construction at $11,875.

In other action, the city council:

• Accepted the bid of Ellingson Motors for a line truck for the city's line department, at a cost of $17,750 with trade-in.

• Approved the application of Rod Luff as fireman.

• And set the date of April 8 as the bid opening day (at 7:40 p.m.) for a new street sweeper which the city anticipates buying. The estimated cost for the street sweeper is $73,500.

The city currently has a 1979 model street sweeper which they will be trading in or selling.

Winside board makes cuts

by Chuck Hackenmiller

Cuts in the Winside School District hot lunch program and in special education were approved Monday evening at the regular meeting of the board of education.

The board of education looked at several options of ways to reduce the expenses of the school district, including the areas of drivers education; combining the coaching positions of girls and boys track into one head coach and one assistant; eliminating the paid assistant coaches payroll; reduction of staff in the school's hot lunch program; and dropping the position of a part-time special education aide.

In a previous meeting, the board of education resolved to reduce the guidance counseling, home economics and business education programs to at least half-time, combining the position of the home economics and guidance counseling position.

A hearing on the reduction in staff has been requested by Lee Johnson, current guidance counselor, and Dallas Puls, business education instructor at Winside High School.

THAT HEARING is slated for Wednesday, March 26 at 7 p.m. in the Winside school's multi-purpose room.

Involved in cuts of the hot lunch program reduction will be to eliminate the position of part-time employee, cut a full-time position to part-time and continue with two full-time employees. This action will amount to savings of approximately $5,500.

At present, the hot lunch program currently is administered by three full-time employees and a part-time worker.

Head of the program, Daisy Janke, told the board members that she feels the reduction in staff can be worked out. However, she added that the quality of work could possibly go down. "If you want quantity work, you are going to lose a little quality," she said.

Superintendent Don Leighton added that the employees will be doing more work with less people. "I don't feel cuts [in lunch program staff] and a freeze [in wages] are warranted," he said.

It was a unanimous vote in favor of the lunch program staff cut, with yes votes from Melvin Melehenry, Gene Jorgensen, Bill Burris, Dean Mann and Lynn Lessman. Ray Roberts was not present for Tuesday night's meeting.

THE BOARD OF education also approved a proposal to eliminate the position of a special education aide, which will save the school district $3,301.

However, if the 40 percent time special education staff member decides to leave the Winside School District, then the special education aide position will be maintained.

ESU increases classified staff wages

By LaVon Anderson

Educational Service Unit One's board of directors met Tuesday night and set the 1985-86 salaries for classified staff members. Including teacher aides, the secretarial staff and custodians.

Meeting at headquarters in Wakefield, board members voted unanimously to approve an increase of approximately 13 cents per hour on the salary schedule.

The new salary package is retroactive Sept. 1, 1985, and represents an increase of $3,160 over the 1984-85 ESU 1 budget.

Administrator Harry Mills pointed out that some teacher aide salaries will be frozen because they were hired at a higher rate before the salary schedule was established two years ago.

The classified staff includes 21 full and part-time employees, some of which will have their salaries frozen because of the salary schedule. Board members Tuesday night also approved an increase in salary for ESU 1 Office Manager Lisa Smith.

The board voted unanimously to increase Smith's salary for 1985-86 by $2,000 (from $14,000 to $16,000), retroactive Sept. 1, 1985.

Smith holds a degree in office administration and works 1 1/2 months of each year.

ESU 1 BOARD members at their March meeting also voted to modify the contracts of Assistant Administrator Rodney Garwood and Special Education Director Duane Tappe to include fringe benefits.

That vote came following an executive session which lasted approximately one-half hour.

Following the executive session, Claire Hansen also reported that contract negotiations between the ESU 1 board and education association are proceeding.

IN OTHER ACTION this month, ESU 1 board members voted on a recommendation by Assistant Administrator Garwood regarding nursing service contracts.

The motion, which received unanimous approval, states that the total number of contract days of service offered for the 1985-86 school year be ratified and the total number of contract days of service offered for the 1986-87 school year be approved, and that nursing contracts for the 1986-87 school year be issued accordingly.

"THIS ISSUE IS not resolved, and I hope if there are any more drastic changes that they are not done at the 11th hour of the 11th month," Garwood told the board.

UGLY Bartending Contest for MS

Diane Glassmeyer, who tends bar in the Windmill Restaurant at Wayne, is one of 120 registered bartenders throughout Nebraska participating in the UGLY Bartending Contest.

Auctions, car washes and shuffleboard tournaments are just some of the ways bartenders will be raising money for the Multiple Sclerosis Society.

ing accident and an old hermit combine to change the course of the family's direction. In a split second their lives will be changed forever.

"Take your family, take your friends. You'll be caught up in the emotion, the tug and pull of one life against another. You will know the awe of seeing, hearing, feeling and becoming one with the work of God portrayed in this film," said one Wayne reviewer of the film. Billy Graham also will appear as himself in the movie.

CDBG cuts not in order

Communities must get Block grant funding. The Administration has recommended a deferral of $300 million in Fiscal 1988 Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) funds. I disapprove of that action and am co-sponsoring a resolution that expresses Congressional disapproval of the deferral. Unless Congress disapproves of this deferral action by joint resolution, CDBG funds already appropriated for this fiscal year will be held back from thousands of cities and towns. The primary beneficiaries of CDBG funding — residents of low and moderate income neighborhoods — will feel the effect immediately.

The Community Development Block Grant program was established in the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. Its purpose is to develop viable urban communities by providing decent housing and a suitable living environment and expanding economic opportunities principally for people of low and moderate income.

Grants are awarded to communities to carry out a wide range of community development activities directed at neighborhood revitalization, economic development, and the provision of improved community facilities and services.

Congressman

Many of our Nebraska communities have benefited from the CDBG program.

The CDBG program has been reduced by 21 percent since 1981, and it will take its share of the cuts as we continue our efforts to balance the Federal budget.

However, further CDBG cuts this year are clearly not in order. This locally oriented program is important to our communities, and we should not defer the additional $500 million in this fiscal year.

House passes technical amendments to Farm Bill

Last week the House of Representatives approved a package of technical amendments to the 1985 Farm Bill and sent the legislation to the President's desk.

A major provision of the bill restores much of the potential reduction in farm-by-farm "program yields" used in calculating income support payments for grain, cotton and rice farms. It revises a part of the Farm Bill which could confront some farmers with cuts in the "farm program yields" used in calculating income support payments for individual wheat and feed grain producers.

Under this bill, any cuts produced by a new yield formula included in the 1985 Farm Bill would be limited, in effect, to no more than three percent for 1986 crops and not more than five percent for 1987.

This would be done by giving producers in-kind commodity payments to offset the impact of any yield reductions imposed by the 1985 formula which go beyond the new three percent and five percent limits. For the purpose of calculating program yield averages in 1988 and beyond, no farmer's 1986 yield could be set more than 10 percent below the 1985 level.

It also provides that Gramm-Rudman-Hollings budget cuts in the dairy price support program during fiscal 1986 will be made by increasing a previously scheduled assessment on the price received by dairy farmers for all milk sold in the 48 continental states rather than decreasing their milk price supports. It prevents the use of land taken out of grains, cotton and rice (under a special provision allowing producers to collect target price income payments on land idled beyond normal surplus-reduction requirements) to produce price-depressing surpluses for other commodities such as dry edible beans and popcorn.

It revises previously authorized export assistance programs and expresses the sense of Congress that the Secretary of Agriculture should make advance commodity support loans available to eligible farmers who cannot otherwise borrow money for spring planting.

Schmit has proposal to sell state's water

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
Nebraska Press Association

Senator Loran Schmit knows how Nebraska could make a few much needed bucks.

Sell some of the state's water. Draw water out of the vast Ogallala aquifer that floats under the Sandhills and ship it south to the parched Texas plains or west to thirsty towns of Colorado.

Use the income to build dams to store more water. Use the money to put terraces on sloping farm land to keep the soil from slipping away.

Schmit, a veteran lawmaker of 18 years, believes he has a meritorious idea. Nebraskans are already selling off their water insistently.

"Every time you sell a bushel of corn you sell Nebraska water."

"Every time you sell a fat steer, you sell Nebraska water."

"Every time you sell a bottle of beer brewed in Nebraska, you sell Nebraska water," Schmit says.

SCHMIT WOULD sell it more directly. Very directly, a pipeline of cool, refreshing Nebraska gold to a thirsty nation. And he'd use the profit to develop and recapture more water for Nebraskans.

The Bellwood senator even has the urban angle figured. By slightly convoluted logic he shows how Lincoln and Omaha will benefit the most from the water sale income. As he envisions it, the money will be used to develop water resources in the state, primarily to recharge the aquifer along the Platte River.

That Platte River aquifer is the major source of Lincoln and Omaha's drinking water, Schmit says. So a wet Platte means a replenished municipal water supply.

SCHMIT KNOWS there is no massive support for his idea outlined in L.B. 1210. A recent poll shows that only 21 percent of all Nebraskans favor selling the state's water.

But he's been the lonely guy in front more than once, he points out.

The patron saint of gasoline, Schmit convinced other senators to set up a gasoline committee 15 years ago, when the U.S. overflowed with cheap oil.

In 1973 when drugs were just moving from the bathroom cabinet to the streets, Schmit helped the State Patrol set up their drug investigation unit.

Schmit figures it may take Nebraskans another five years to catch up with him on his water sale idea. Until then, he'll continue expounding the merits of mining water when he has a chance.

"AFTER ALL, WE'D sell coal and oil and gas, if we had it. It took billions of years to make coal, but we'd sell it."

And Nebraska has an abundance of water. Ninety-three million acre-feet of the liquid falls in the state every year, according to Schmit. An acre-foot covers an acre of land one-foot deep. Another million acre-feet flows in from the west. Only eight million acre-feet flows out.

"So take a piddling 100,000 acre-foot of water and sell it," he says.

"You could raise tens of millions of dollars. And the water would be minuscule — like selling the perspiration off my bald head."

Budget work ahead for state legislature

The time for budget choices and priorities is nearing. The Legislature's Appropriations Committee has prepared some difficult alternatives for the full Unicameral to deal with.

The committee's recommendation is a $847.1 million general fund budget for the 1986-87 fiscal year. If this is rejected by the Legislature (some changes are virtually assured), the committee is prepared to offer an amendment cutting about $25 million from the proposed budget.

Should their initial recommendation be approved, some sort of revenue enhancement will be necessary.

RAISING $25 million in revenue could be accomplished by raising the sales tax by 3/10ths of 1 percent or by hiking the income tax rate back to 20 percent of federal liability as it was for 1985.

There is some indication many Nebraskans would support this sort of increase if it meant preserving a state service that is important to them. The obvious problem is that considerable political infighting is created when everybody works to ensure that someone else is the victim of the cuts.

The actual content of the $25 million reduction amendment is still under debate by members of the Appropriations Committee.

Some of the cuts receiving strong consideration are the homestead exemption, state employee salaries and the state's budget reserve. The reserve is in the budget to provide a small buffer zone if revenue projections fall off the mark or, if unavoidable, new expenditures are incurred.

THE EFFECTS OF Initiative 300 upon the state's economy continue to be the subject of hot debate in the LR 335 committee of which I am a member.

Our group has been directed to investigate the need for possible changes to the constitutional amendment passed in 1982 that locked out corporate farming.

The 12-member panel met for over 10 hours this past week without much progress. At this point, most members of the panel have agreed that some sort of change is necessary. However, the actual form the alterations should take has not yet been agreed upon.

The committee is to report back to the Legislature with recommendations by March 15.

The prospect of making changes has inspired considerable debate. I have offered an amendment to the committee that has yet to be discussed. It makes reference to the desirability of preserving as many economically viable farm and ranch units as possible, but directs the legislature to provide the language in statute rather than locking it into the constitution.

Nebraskans voted in 1982 for protection and promotion of family farming. I will continue to work for the preservation of this intent.

CONGRATULATIONS to the Helmets save lives

The motorcycle helmet bill in Nebraska has recently failed. This has been a big disappointment to me because I believe 18-20 young lives would be saved each year if a helmet law were in effect.

I am aware from a National Highway Traffic and Safety Administration poll of the general public, in 1980, that 70 percent favored a helmet law for motorcycles.

I am writing to alert your readers that your State Senator Gerald Conway voted against the bill, and, in my opinion, against life.

I would hope you print this, and your readers could then make their thoughts known to Senator Conway.

Liability crisis

A recent poll of 300 manufacturing firms in Nebraska confirms that there is a crisis in the liability insurance field.

The poll, taken since the beginning of 1986 by the Nebraska Association of Commerce and Industry (NACI), shows that the 300 manufacturers polled, 82 percent say there is a crisis regarding liability insurance and 95 percent believe much of the problem is that Legislatures and courts have been too liberal enacting and interpreting laws governing awards of damages to plaintiffs.

Specifically, the manufacturers pointed to general liability, product liability and umbrella coverage as the three types of property and casualty insurance which have increased the most rapidly over recent months. The survey showed that insurance premiums have increased on the average as much as 230 percent.

NACI President Jack Swartz pointed out that some type of legislation on the federal and state levels needs to be enacted to save businesses which are under financial pressure from increased insurance rates created by large court awards. "We need to find a way to limit the size of awards being given in liability cases by the courts. These huge judgements are pushing up liability premiums to the point where businesses are being forced to go without insurance and could be wiped out by a single lawsuit," Swartz said.

Q. Does a court ever have authority to remove funds from one's bank account?

A. In some circumstances, a court has the authority to remove funds from a personal bank account to be paid into court. In a "garnishment" proceeding, for example, funds that belong to a judgement debtor but that are in the hands of a third party (such as money in a personal bank account) may be reached. (A judgement debtor is an individual against whom a judgement has been rendered by court.)

If a judgement in a lawsuit is awarded to the plaintiff (the person filing the lawsuit), and the defendant doesn't pay the amount that was awarded, then the money in the defendant's bank account may be garnished and the bank may be ordered to pay it into court to the extent necessary to satisfy the judgement.

Q. Is there now or has there ever been a law in Nebraska which stated that a portion of a man's estate goes (upon his death) to his widowed mother?

A. Nebraska laws do not provide specifically for a person's "widowed mother," but there are instances where an individual's parent or parents would receive a portion of the estate. If a person dies without leaving a valid will, the estate is distributed under laws known as "laws of intestate succession." Under these laws, if you die without a will and leave a spouse but no children, and you also have a surviving parent or parents, your spouse will receive the first $50,000 of your estate, plus one-half of the remaining property. Your parent(s) will receive the other half.

Further, if you leave no spouse, no children and no grandchildren, your parents will receive the entire estate.

You may have heard the term "widow's share" relating to an estate, and are thinking of that term in relation to one's widowed mother. Actually, the term "widow's share," more commonly called the "elective share," is a provision of the law which states that if an individual's will fails to provide for his or her spouse, the spouse can elect to take 50% of the augmented estate, which may approximate what he or she would have received from the estate under the laws of intestate succession. The purpose of this law is to protect a spouse from being disinherited entirely in the distribution of the estate.

Q. My husband and I are both foreign residents. We are here on an exchange visitor visa from the Philippines. I gave birth to a daughter here. What are her citizenship rights? When we return home, what passport would she be issued, and how do we secure one?

A. Two ways to acquiring nationality are the person's place of birth and the nationality of his or her parents. Since your daughter was born here while you, and your husband are subject to United States jurisdiction, she is a United States citizen, and since you and your husband are Philippine citizens, she also has Philippine citizenship.

A passport shows that the bearer is a citizen of the issuing country and is entitled to its protection while traveling abroad. You will need to get a U.S. passport for your daughter, application for which can be made by going to the main branch of the U.S. Post Office. You must take a certified copy of her birth certificate with you as proof of her United States citizenship.

Jews for Jesus speaker coming to Grace Church

What do the Jewish Passover and Jesus' Last Supper have in common? Jhan Moskowitz, staff evangelist with Jews for Jesus, will answer that question when he presents "Christ in the Passover" at Grace Lutheran Church, 9th and Logan Sts., in Wayne.

The public is invited to hear Moskowitz on Tuesday, March 18 at 7:30 p.m.

THE PURPOSE of the "Christ in the Passover" presentation is to enhance the Christian understanding of the New Testament by showing a Jewish background for the communion celebration.

Ancient and modern Jewish customs are discussed and described with an emphasis on the aspect of redemption that Christ accomplished at Calvary.

A table is set with the traditional Jewish Passover items, including representative foods which are explained, but not eaten.

MEMBERS OF THE Jews for Jesus group have given this demonstration in more than 1,000 different churches.

It was originally written in 1956 by Mosishe Rosen, the founder and leader of Jews for Jesus. It was abstracted from the writings of former Rabbi Leopold Cohn, who died in 1936.

Rosen contends that some of the most important elements of Christian doctrine, such as the Trinity, the principle of substitutionary atonement, and salvation through a personal relationship with the Messiah, are implied in the Seder (Passover feast) as observed by Orthodox Jews even today.

JEWS FOR JESUS, an evangelistic agency, is best known for its creative materials. Its literature, called "broadsides," deals with contemporary themes ranging from nuclear disarmament to Rac-Man. Broadsides use humor and clever illustrations, yet have a serious message.

Other materials include original Jewish gospel music and drama presented by mobile teams that tour the U.S. and overseas.

Mosishe Rosen, national leader of the Jews for Jesus ministry, says, "Our message is not new, but we're telling it in a new way. For too long the Jewish roots of Christianity have been forgotten. Gentile cultural trappings have often been confused with what the Biblical religion teaches."

Jhan Moskowitz

THOSE ATTENDING the special "Christ in the Passover" program at Grace Lutheran Church will also have an opportunity to learn more about what Jews for Jesus has planned by way of evangelism nationwide.

The program is open to the general public and Jhan Moskowitz will be available for questions.

ENID, OKLA. — Wayne State's softball team finished 3-2 at the Central State University Invitational here March 7-8, good for fourth place in the tourney.

The Lady Wildcats started out strong, winning their first two games over Emporia State, 2-0, and Oklahoma Baptist, 2-1. On the second day of the tournament, Wayne State dropped three games in a row to Northeast Missouri State, an NCAA Division II opponent, 0-2, to Hutchinson Junior College, 3-5, and to Pittsburg State, 0-1. But the Lady Wildcats rebounded to defeat Central State University, 5-3, in eight innings. The game against Hutchinson does not count in the team's record since the school is a junior college.

Pitching was the strong suit for the Lady Wildcats in their first two wins. Junior Mary Lingelbach of Elkhorn allowed only five hits while striking out two in the Emporia State game. Sophomore Heidi Anderson of Milford, Iowa, allowed only four hits and did not walk a batter in the win over Oklahoma Baptist.

The Lady Wildcats went into extra innings with NAIA-ranked Central State University in their win. At the end of seven innings, the score was tied 3-3. The international tie-breaker was employed, with each team placing a runner on second base. Wayne State scored twice in its half of the eighth to win. Lingelbach picked up the save by allowing only one hit in the two innings she pitched, relieving Ronda Pick of Beemer, who picked up the win.

The leading hitter for the Lady Wildcats was junior outfielder Shelle Tomaszewicz of Omaha. Tomaszewicz, a second team NAIA All-American last year, gathered six hits in 61 at bats, including three singles, a double, a triple and a homerun.

Kristi Govig, also of Omaha, hit .333 in five games, including four singles. Govig led the team in steals with three in three attempts and in walks with four.

Freshman Shell Schumann of Spencer, Iowa, earned a starting position at third base and responded with an 85 percent on-base percentage.

As a team, the Lady Wildcats are hitting .205 with 24 hits in 117 at bats. Lingelbach leads the pitching staff in innings pitched with 23 and in strikeouts with 16. Opposing teams have scored nine runs against the Lady Wildcats, but only one run was earned, leaving the team's ERA at .194.

"Our pitching was good for all six games and if we keep improving on our hitting we'll be in good shape for the rest of the season," Wayne State head coach Marilyn Strate said.

Strate was pleased with the way the team handled relays from the outfield, but says the team needs to work on picking up signals and on baserunning.

"We just need to do some finetuning on the basics and improve some of the mental aspects of our game," she said.

Wayne State is idle until Wednesday, March 26, when they travel to Seward to play Concordia in a double header.

1919 Blue Devils didn't smoke/chew

I have to be honest with you, I didn't even think there was such a thing as high school basketball in 1919.

But Tuesday morning, Wayne High principal Dr. Don Zeiss informed me that Wayne won the state title in 1919. So, although I was doubtful, I went back to the office and started digging through the archives to see if I could locate any supporting evidence.

Well, I should've known better than to doubt the Dr.'s fine word, because on the front page in the right-hand corner of the March 20, 1919 edition of the Wayne Herald, a headline reads, "Wayne School Wins at Lincoln."

The story is only two paragraphs long, and a copy of it can be found on page 10 in today's State Basketball Tournament special section.

THERE ARE SEVERAL interesting, yet vague sentences in the article. The fifth sentence from the bottom states, "They (the Blue Devils) were lighter than any team excepting one." I assume the writer was trying to say that Wayne was quicker or faster than most of the opposing squads, but maybe being light was a major advantage back in those days. Who knows?

There's also a sentence that states, "One professional coach said the Wayne boys showed the result of good habits. Not one in the crowd uses tobacco in any form."

First of all, I'd like to know who the pro coach was, and whether he was recruiting a high school player or was interested in the State Tournament for some other reason.

Also, the fact that none of the Blue Devils chewed or smoked isn't really that surprising, because I'm sure none of the players on today's Blue Devil outfit do, either. I seriously doubt that head coach Bob Uling and athletic director Ron Carnes would tolerate it.

On the same page, there's also another paragraph under "High School Notes" that said "John Carhart" was the team captain in 1919. Mr. Carhart is now 83 years old.

WAYNE SPORTS ENTHUSIAST Kenny Dahl, who starred on Wayne's 1956 state championship team, informed me that he read in the "Nebraska Sports History Book," written by Jerry Mathers (and we're not talking about "The Beaver"), that Don Miller, one of Carhart's teammates on the 1919 squad, was named all-state that year. Mathers' book also said that Miller is the first all-stater from Wayne.

There are several surprises in the NCAA Tournament this year, and several teams were probably surprised they didn't make it.

Who would've ever thought that 14-16 Montana State would be in the tourney, while traditional powerhouse Marquette (who's 18-10 record should've been good enough to qualify considering the Warriors' tough schedule) wouldn't make it.

But who's to say Montana State or some other unlikely team won't win the national championship this year. Villanova surprised the nation when they took it all last season.

Selecting the final four is one of the most difficult predictions to make, mainly because you're trying to pick four finalists out of 64 teams. Those aren't very good odds when you consider that very few weak squads qualify for the tourney, yet the teams you select have to win four consecutive games to be one of the four finalists.

But what the heck, I'll give it a go. In the Southeast, I'll pick Georgia Tech, and I'll pick Duke from the East. Kansas from the Midwest and North Carolina (provided they're healthy) from the West.

Those are probably pretty popular selections, so the teams I'll say to keep an eye on are Illinois, Louisville, Syracuse and Michigan.

But before you place your bets on these predictions, remember, I'm the same guy that picked the Cardinals to win the World Series.

1-11 Wildcats will face 4-0

Nebraska Thursday/Friday

The Wayne State baseball team will play traditionally tough Nebraska Thursday and Friday at Lincoln, weather permitting.

Wayne State will bring a 1-11 record into Thursday's game. The Wildcats dropped two games to East Central State University on Thursday, March 6. Wayne State lost the first game 13-3 and dropped the second contest 11-5.

Wayne State completed its Oklahoma trip with four games at Southeastern Oklahoma State. The Wildcats lost 10-9, 3-2, 13-5 and 13-0.

Nebraska is currently 4-0 after downing Missouri Western twice and nipping Kearney State 8-7 in 11 innings and 13-12.

"It will be a tremendous challenge for us," Wayne State head coach Lenzy Klaver said about the games with Nebraska. "It's going to be a good test of our ability competing against a very good team. Despite our record, I was very pleased with the Oklahoma trip. Playing the tough competition we did will certainly help us in the long run."

'Rosey' and White are all-stars

Wayne State basketball players Russ Rosenquist and Vincent White have been selected to play for the Nebraska Athletic Conference All-Stars against the Nebraska Intercollegiate Conference All-Stars.

The date and location of the all-star game had not been officially announced by Wednesday's press deadline. Check future editions of the Wayne Herald for further details.

Wayne-Carroll Board ponders rural school request

By LaVon Anderson

The Wayne-Carroll board of education has placed on next month's agenda a request from Dixon County Rural School District 59 to contract for the education of its elementary students for the 1986-87 school year.

Dick Nolte, board of education secretary of District 59, located northeast of Wayne, appeared before the Wayne-Carroll school board Tuesday afternoon to make the request.

The contract would be with the understanding that District 59 would dissolve the following year and merge into the Wayne-Carroll district.

Superintendent Francis Haun told The Wayne Herald that it has been the policy of the Wayne-Carroll board of education not to contract for elementary students unless they were handicapped.

Haun said the board is taking Nolte's proposal under advisement because of the proposal that they would ultimately join the Wayne-Carroll district.

The matter will be placed on next month's agenda.

NOLTE ALSO appeared before the board Tuesday to request the transfer of his land from Dixon County District 59 to Wayne. Nolte and his wife are the parents of one school age child and one preschooler.

Board members voted unanimously to approve Nolte's freeholders petition.

Approval on the petition must also be received from the county superintendent, county treasurer and county clerk.

THE WAYNE-CARROLL board of education also voted Tuesday to enter into contracts with Educational Service Unit One for nursing and special ed services during the 1986-87 school year.

The nursing service will remain the same as last year (five hours a day, five days a week) at a cost to the Wayne-Carroll school district of $1,798.

That figure is up almost $300 from the $1,500 now being paid by the district for nursing services.

The special education contract, as approved by the board, amounts to $18,649 for Level 1 service and $9,095 for pre-kindergarten service.

IN OTHER BUSINESS Tuesday, Wayne-Carroll board of education members:

—Learned from Superintendent Haun that the engine in Bus 5 must be replaced at a cost of $2,200. Replacement of the engine is due to a broken valve which resulted in a broken block. The bus is a 1980 model and has 82,000 miles.

—Learned from Haun that a new 12-passenger van purchased by the district will arrive around March 20. The van will be used for transportation to and from activities.

—Authorized Haun to let bids to local area licensed electricians for the wiring project at Wayne Middle School.

—Gave unanimous approval for the proposed Westwood 2nd Addition with the understanding that the school board requests a park if it is not already included in the plans.

—Voted unanimously to approve the tuition allotment for high school non-residents in the amount of $358,150, a reduction from the $375,000 authorized in 1985-86.

—Learned from Haun that the Wayne-Carroll school district is up for renewal of its AA accreditation. The AA visitation team will be in Wayne March 17-18. The team includes two representatives of the State Accreditation Committee, three representatives from AA school systems, and two representatives from the State Department of Education. The Wayne-Carroll school system is one of 36 AA accredited schools in the state.

—Learned that the Wayne Chamber of Commerce was hosting a reception on March 11 for all Wayne area educators at the Wayne Vet's Club in recognition of National Teachers Day.

—Heard a report from Haun that the school's new telephone system has been installed and he is very pleased with it.

—Heard a report from board member Cap Peterson on Legislative Day which he and other representatives from school boards across the state attended on Feb. 25.

—Approved certification of Elementary Principal David Lutt as Chapter 1 director.

—Learned that Haun has drafted a letter on behalf of the board of education to the Nebraska State Department of Roads regarding the Highway 35 turn-lane markings into the high school. In the letter, Haun states that there have been several close accidents because the highway stripes have largely worn off and drivers not familiar with the area continue to stay in the center lane as they travel Highway 35 west to east. Haun asks in the letter that road markings be made visible, that overhead signs be installed to direct traffic from both directions to the correct lanes, and that consideration be given to a caution light.

BEFORE ADJOURNING, board of education members went into executive session to discuss teacher evaluations and negotiations.

Upon reconvening, the board voted unanimously to re-elect the present staff.

No negotiation meetings have yet been scheduled for 1986-87, and there was nothing to report.

The board's negotiating committee includes Joyce Reeg, chairman, Cap Peterson and Sid Hillier. Representing the teachers are Dan Johnson, chairman, Pat Jenkins, Miron Jensen, Joan Hansen, Mary Lou George and Iona Lindsay.

Next meeting of the board of education is scheduled April 8 at 3 p.m.

Administrator Mills agreed to put the issue of nursing contracts on the September agenda.

In his statement regarding changes which have been made, Garwood was referring to action taken by the board last month in which members voted to maintain the same level of nursing service for 1986-87 as 1985-86, and to charge the schools served the extra level of cost exceeding $205,000.

Schools were informed that they either pay the extra amount for the same level of nursing service or receive no service.

Garwood told the board Tuesday night that since last month's action he has heard from a number of schools. Although there were some strong objections, Garwood said many of the schools felt the board acted judiciously.

"No one was excited about paying money, but some did think we did the reasonable thing."

IN OTHER BUSINESS Tuesday night, ESU 1 board members:

—Voted six to three to set the mileage rate for ESU 1 staff members for the 1986-87 school year at 21 cents per mile, up from the 20 1/2 cents now being paid. Administrator Mills told the board that the IRS allowed mileage rate is now 21 cents per mile for all people driving their own cars for business. Voting in favor of the motion were board members Ervin DeBoer, Marvin Borg, Ken Lahrs, Deryl Lawrence, Leo Krampfer and John Post. Voting against the measure were Claire Hansen, Paul Steffen and Jim Martindale.

—Gave second and final round approval to enter the job descriptions for the administration into board policy.

—Unanimously approved a request for a one-year verification of successful teaching for Dyann Poppen for the 1984-85 school year. Poppen is an ESU 1 resource teacher at Newcastle.

—Heard a recommendation by Assistant Administrator Garwood that the CPA firm of Schelsman, Graeve and Buschelman in Omaha, who audited the ESU 1 books last November, be retained for a period of at least three years. Board members directed the administration to receive a quote for auditing the 1985-86 books from the firm and bring it back to next month's board meeting.

—Voted to allow the insurance committee to do whatever it deems necessary so that there is adequate fire insurance coverage for the remainder of this policy term. The insurance committee is comprised of chairman Ken Lahrs and Paul Steffen.

—Heard a report by Special Education Director Tappe regarding special education contracts for 1986-87. Tappe distributed a sheet to board members outlining why special education costs continue to rise.

—Heard a report from ESU 1 Psychologist Larry Clay regarding in-service and staff development. Clay handed out sheets outlining programs which have been offered and programs which will be offered, including workshops on teenage suicide prevention scheduled March 25 and April 2. "The biggest thing we are doing right now, other than to meet the needs and requests of our local schools, is to cooperate with neighboring agencies," said Clay.

—Learned from Administrator Mills in his monthly report that third quarter special education bills were sent to schools on Feb. 27 and totaled $302,563.11. The final billing will be the last of May.

—Learned in Mills' monthly report that Dakota County Commissioners have hired Mel Waldner, superintendent of Homer, to fill the county superintendent's position. Last month, ESU 1 board members voted to allow the administration to offer to enter into an agreement with Dakota County to do their county superintendent work.

—Voted to change the next meeting of the ESU 1 board of directors from April 8 to April 15 at 8 p.m. at headquarters in Wakefield. The meeting was changed because three board members, along with Administrator Mills, will be attending the National School Board Convention in Las Vegas. Mills pointed out that no one from the board attended last year's national convention.

That 40 percent time position proposed for elimination but had failed to gain a motion during a previous meeting.

The vote to cut the position of special education aide was approved unanimously by the board of education.

What the future is for the Winside High School drivers education program was also discussed during the regular meeting. Drivers education reimbursement from the state of Nebraska will be discontinued, and many high schools across the state must face a decision regarding if the program should continue, and if so, how should it be financed.

Board member Jorgensen said he received indication from some parents in the district who would pay the cost of their students' participation in the program rather than see the drivers education program eliminated.

Leighton told the board members that the state had reimbursed the school district $106 per student in the drivers education program.

It was decided by the board members to have Principal Ron Leapey survey parents of the students who will be involved in the program to see if the support is there. Leapey's findings will then be reported at the April 14th regular meeting.

NO MOTION WAS made on a proposal to combine the two head coaching and one assistant positions for boys and girls track into one head coach and one assistant.

Other considerations in regard to the coaching of girls and boys track was to have two head coaches and no assistants. Both Mark Freburg (current boys head track coach) and Jim Winn (girls head track coach) said they would continue coaching when asked about this alternative. But Winn added that he did not like the idea of being without an assistant.

A proposal also emerged concerning eliminating the pay for assistant coaches. This topic also did not advance into the motion stage.

One individual from the audience suggested that the school board adopt a policy limiting the number of individuals who can participate in athletics so that the numbers would not warrant an assistant coach. No action was taken on this proposal.

Freburg said he has about 10 prospects out for track this spring, and Winn said there are 18 girls participating in the sport.

IN OTHER action Monday night, the Winside board of education:

—Approved a nursing contract for the 1986-87 school year with the Educational Service Unit (ESU) 1.

Leighton told the board that ESU will keep its service level the same, but that any increase in costs to supply the nursing service would need to be pro-rated to the school district.

From what ESU is providing the school district for nursing services amounts to $1.84 per hour or $2.20 per student, Leighton said. The school nurse is at Winside one day during the week of the school year.

"I don't think we can hire one [nurse] on our own for that kind of money," Leighton said.

—Gave unanimous approval to an

ESU 1 special education contract for the 1986-87 school year.

The total cost of the service provided is $25,694, which is up $2,300 from the previous year.

If the school district were to contract for IT's own special education service rather than obtain it from ESU, Leighton said "the $25,000 or so that we pay now would be about 30 percent of the cost [if hired by the school district]."

"We have to provide it and this [contract with ESU] is the cheapest way that I can figure out," he added.

"Decided to approve all but two teacher contracts for the 1985-86 school year. Teaching contracts not yet approved were the two teachers who will be conducting a public hearing on the reduction in staff decision recently made by the board of education."

—Approved a certification request of $139,000 to the county superintendent for non-resident tuition.

"And will begin the day during the next school calendar year at 8:40 a.m. instead of 8:45 a.m. in order to fulfill the requirement of an 180 day school term."

Bids

shower and locker rooms in the Carlson Building; placing folding partitions between the gymnastic and dance area; and air conditioning of the office, weight room and racquetball area.

In the bid, Radec Construction entered that they will complete the construction project by Aug. 1, 1987.

"That falls into the timetable of when we plan to open the facility [in September of 1987]," Struve said.

IF THE LOW bid is also approved by the state college board of trustees within the upcoming weeks, construction on the new building could begin around April 1 of this year, Struve said.

Actual construction of the Rice/Carlson Recreational Facility Expansion building is over 80 percent of the total estimated cost of the project, which totals $3.4 million.

Other costs include contingencies

($81,000), equipment purchases ($70,000), architect services ($202,000), site grading ($147,315) and relocation and construction of new tennis courts ($138,226).

Two of the other projects tied in with the expansion are nearly completed. The tennis courts have already been relocated and what remains for construction purposes is the coating on top of the surfacing (green and maroon) and the markings for court use.

The groundwork at the expansion facility site is virtually completed with the exception of digging for the footings when construction on the new addition begins.

BECAUSE THE low bid on the project is significantly less than the estimate budgeted for the project, college officials will be studying how to handle that difference between now and the next state board of trustees meeting, said Struve.

Such areas could include improvements to existing structures, replacement of sewage lift station, water line replacement or purchasing more movable equipment. Struve emphasized that no decision has been made in these areas.

Another alternative, he said, is to reduce the budget.

Struve said the financing for the expansion project will be maintained by student and user fees. "No tax dollars are involved," he said.

How do you explain today's ag problems?

by Mrs. Ervin (Lulene) Sebade of rural Emerson

Each day I listen to my TV or radio or read in my newspaper another bank in my state or neighboring state has failed. The reason for the failure is delinquent farm loans. Delinquent farm loans, words we are so familiar with in these times.

We are well into 1986 and our economists told us the crisis would recede. Our President tells us the United States is booming, we never had it so good, he says. He certainly is not familiar with the agriculture crisis the Midwest is realizing. It seems he doesn't want to visit the bread basket of the world because he doesn't want to admit he's wrong.

Today we received the Midwest farm paper, advertising the area sale listings. There were over one hundred agriculture related sales coming up in the next several weeks. Whose fault is it all of these hard working farm families are being forced to sell out?

If you ask the administration they will tell you it is one poor management; two, over spending and three, over production, or whatever poor excuse they can think of. Is it really all the farmer's fault as so many people say it is? Definitely not!

I keep the farm records and sometimes I get tired of the many papers I have in my file cabinet. But I think this will be beneficial to anyone who reads this article to help you understand why there are so many farm sales, why so many farmers are being forced to sell out and why. It isn't the farmer's fault, but that of our education systems, our local and state governments, our federal government and our city counterparts who certainly do not understand the expenses the farmer faces each month.

We live in a community of only 800 people and strictly agricultural dependent, but many people in this community do not understand the plight of the farmer. When one tries to explain the tragic situation many become offensive and prefer not to listen.

SEARCHING MY FILES I find a bank note dated February, 1981 with an interest rate of 13%, same as today. Not bad you think, at least interest rate has stayed in the general area. Taxes are next and found in January of 1983 our 1979 farm truck had a tax and license of $177.86, while the same truck, but three years older cost $234.17 for taxes and license in Thurston County in 1986. Real Estate taxes in Thurston County were $31.31 per acre in 1982, while in 1985 they were $36.53 per acre. Real estate taxes fund our educational system. In 1982 9390 kilowatts of electricity cost $420.96 and in 1986 the same amount of kilowatts cost $461.60, or $40.73 more per month or $488.72 more per year.

Why the rise in costs?
Not because the farmer over expanded, over produced or was a poor manager, but because the supply and labor costs increased for the REA and the cost was passed onto the farmer. Whose poor management was it? Certainly not the farmer. While complaining recently about the sharp increase of the REA I was told if the farmer uses it (REA) he has to pay it.

Why is the farmer always the one who is penalized for everyone's pay raise?

The $40.73 raise per month was not because of over expansion because the kilowatts were the same. Costs such as these continue to increase substantially each year creating a devastating crisis for the area.

It seems everyone in the area is not feeling the economic crunch. Just the business people and farmers. The government employees have received a pay raise, our teachers wouldn't sign their contracts until they received a raise. These are highly educated people, but some of them do not understand the financial status of this agricultural community.

The Nebraska State Education Association president is asking for a $2,000 increase per teacher pay raise from the tax payer. Their reasoning is that Nebraska is in the lower percentage of the nation's pay scale for teachers. At Emerson-Hubbard the average teacher pay is $19,535 while three administrators salaries total $91,750. Most farmers in this area took a loss of many thousands of dollars this past year.

I HAVE ENLIGHTENED you to some of the problems facing farmers with the expenses they have burdening them. Here are some of the prices farmers receive for their products. Hogs are selling for commentary

as high as 60¢ a pound in the summer of 1982 and the average price paid farmers in 1985 was 44¢ per pound and this week hogs are selling for 42¢ a pound. It costs the farmer 45¢ to raise one pound of pork. Cattle were selling for 70¢ in 1982 and today they are selling for 53¢ a pound.

Fertilizer, seed and chemical costs have risen over 30% in the past several years, while commercial feed costs have increased 10 percent. Yet our product is worth less and costs more to produce it.

Corn and soybean prices paid to farmers in the past several years in:

CORN: 1982, $2.03; 1983, $2.33; 1984, $2.85; 1985, $2.50; 1986, $2.15.
SOYBEANS: 1982, $4.96; 1983, $5.31; 1984, $6.86; 1985, $5.38, 1986, $4.88.

These prices were taken from a local grain dealer and are for the early months of each year.

President Reagan says the 1986 farm bill is the most expensive in history. But what he doesn't tell the American people is that 58% of that farm bill is paid out to the Food Stamp program and farmers do not qualify for food stamps. When the Social Service reviews the farm income tax return they find he has machinery on his depreciation schedule and it doesn't make any difference if he made $1.00 or lost $15,000 in that given year because when the people who are unfamiliar with agriculture income tax returns see the machinery listed they think the farmer is rich.

This machinery is needed for the farmers' livelihood, but disqualifies him for the program. Another factor of unfair treatment the family farm has experienced.

THE FOOD STAMP program was initiated to feed needy children, but it has become abused. Many people are needy of this government program, but many people have never been of welfare their entire lifetime and have never worked, while the farmer has worked hard all of his life and finds he is ineligible for a program blamed on his mismanagement. His machinery is listed as his income when in fact it belongs to his lending agency and they will be at his door step soon to take it away from him. I don't think this is because the farmer over expanded, over produced or mismanaged. I see it as a case of gross mismanagement of our Federal Government.

President Reagan says our country is booming, but how does he explain the unemployment rate in Nebraska is higher than one year ago. The rate for December of 1985 was up 1.8% from one year ago and the second highest for a December in the past five years. The major reason for this rate is nagging problems gripping Nebraska's agricultural economy. The number of unemployed Nebraskans' in non-metropolitan areas increased from 20,290 in December of 1984 to 28,894 in December of 1985. It looks like Nebraska is still in a depression and not coming out of it as our President says.

How do we explain the nation's farm population dropped 7% in 1985 or the sharpest annual decline in a decade. Part of the loss in farm population was blamed on the financial crunch suffered by farmers during recent years because of continuing declining prices for their product.

It is time our local and state government, our education association and the general public tends to try to understand the growing problems facing America's agriculture economy and realize it is not the farmer's fault for the predicament he is in, but the government and general public. Agriculture is the only segment in the world today who pays what they ask us and take what they give us.

In 1985, 296,203 acres of Nebraska farm land was turned over to lenders' hands. Metropolitan Life Insurance company owned 60 farm properties in Nebraska at the end of 1985 compared to 26 at the end of 1984 and in Iowa Metropolitan Life owned 16 farms in 1984 and 104 at the end of 1985. If people think Metropolitan Life is going to offer the cheap food policy the American farmer has been giving them, they had better stop and think about it.

I think our politicians should start demanding collection of outstanding debts to the United States. In a recent issue of a national magazine it reported Argentina owed the United States a billion dollars in 1975, 27 billion in 1980 and 50 billion in 1985 while Brazil owed us 26 billion dollars in '75, 65 billion in '80 and last year their total debt was 106 billion dollars. Mexico owed 23 billion in 1975, 59 billion in 1980 and 97 billion in 1985.

I FEEL SORRY for countries such as Mexico when they suffered the devastating earthquake, but President Reagan didn't bat an eye to give them money and only recently I heard he wants to spend 100 million dollars for foreign aid. Farmers cannot imagine such a vast amount of money. Foreign countries have no intention paying back the debt they owe to the United States and the farmer is only asking for a loan and would repay it immediately if he were to receive prices for his product.

When the farmer gets behind on a bank loan they sell him out and leave him to look out for himself and companies such as Metropolitan take over the land. Yet our government thinks nothing of giving money to any nation who asks for it.

Remember, when agriculture fails, so does the nation. History has proven this fact. Wake up America, it's time to smell the roses before the roses become extinct.

Prevention of Dairy Calf Pneumonia

Proper management can prevent pneumonia in dairy calves. Good housing that is clean, dry, ventilated, draft free and provides individual calf isolation is the key.

A depressed calf with rapid breathing, an elevated temperature and a watery discharge from its eyes and nose may have pneumonia. Sometimes lungs may be so damaged that production is impaired throughout the entire life of the cow.

Respiratory outbreaks may be related to high humidity, manure gasses, or wet bedding in the environment of poorly ventilated barns. Proper ventilation is essential to prevent pneumonia.

Dairy producers also should be sure newborn calves receive good quality colostrum in adequate quantities soon after birth.

Individual calf hutches tend to reduce the risk of exposure to pneumonia by preventing direct contact with other calves. Hutches should be placed on well-drained areas with the doors opposite from which prevailing winds are likely to occur.

Early diagnosis and prompt treatment of pneumonia is important, but management aimed at prevention is the key.

Consult a veterinarian about treatment procedures and methods to stimulate immunity from vaccines or high quality colostrum at birth. It is essential to provide newborn calves with clean, dry draft-free housing in conjunction with good health prevention measures.

Soil Compaction

Sometimes the question is asked—Will freezing and thawing over winter get rid of soil compaction?

Contrary to what is widely believed, soil freezing and thawing does very little for soil compaction. Frequently, it can be seen that a dense or compacted soil clod on the surface of soil in the fall, becomes a mellow, easily fragmented clod at the time of spring tillage.

This is an accurate observation and generally due to freeze and thaw of the soil clod. What is observed is a soil surface process where freeze and thaw cycles can occur several times during the winter. The number of freeze and thaw cycles is important. The more times the soil surface freezes and thaws, the mellow will be surface clods by spring planting time.

Now, let's ask this question. How likely can we expect a lot of soil freeze-thaw cycles to occur 4, 6, 10 or 14 inches deep. The freeze-thaw effects will have a definite effect upon the surface 2 inches of soil.

In some years 2 or 3 freeze-thaw cycles at a depth of 3 or 4 inches may occur. We almost never get more than one freeze and one thaw at soil depths below 4 to 12 inches.

In summary, there are not enough soil freeze-thaw cycles to reduce soil compaction.

Favorable short-term outlook seen for area swine producers

"We should see some money made in the hog business this year," a University of Nebraska-Lincoln agricultural economist told those attending the 13th annual Nebraska Pork Industry Expo in Columbus.

Based on low prices of feed grains and a decreasing inventory of both swine and cattle, "profits may be equal or better than what swine producers have seen in the past 10 years," according to Roy Frederick, extension economist-public policy.

For the grain producer, the economic outlook is drab for 1986. Frederick said, with gross income, and hence net income, expected to be lower.

The law of averages is likely to catch up with crop yields in 1986. Frederick said, and corn producers should not realistically expect the 100-plus yields on dryland, nor bumper yields of sorghum which boosted gross income last year despite low commodity prices.

"The single most important thing to watch for both crop and livestock producers is the carryover of grain stocks in the U.S.," Frederick said.

By the end of the current marketing year on Aug. 31, total carryover for corn is estimated at 2.4 billion bushels, up from 1.3 billion previously.

This is likely to translate to grain prices in the $2 per bushel range this summer, dipping below $2 at harvest time, this fall, assuming normal yields. Corn prices could dip to $1.80 in northeast Nebraska, Frederick said.

Assuming a normal yield for the 1986 crop year, and factoring in a 20 percent reduction in crop acreage under the government set-aside program, the carryover is still expected to increase slightly by Aug. 31, 1987, he said.

Moving from immediate to intermediate range outlook for farmers in general and swine producers in particular, Frederick said the last five years of the 80s should be much more favorable than the first half of this decade.

He cited "the general economy looking better now than in the past 18 years," an expected continuing drop in interest rates, a continuing low rate of inflation, and further decline in the value of the U.S. dollar.

"The single most important thing that affects economic welfare of farmers is interest rates," Frederick said. Interest rates and inflation are closely linked, he said, because inflation is added to the nominal interest rate to equal the real interest rate.

THE INTEREST RATE also correlates directly with the value of the dollar, he said, as well as affecting land values and the cost to farmers in doing business.

Conceding that not all economists—or farmers—agree with him on the point, Frederick said lower loan rates in the 1986 farm program should help make the U.S. more competitive in world ag exports.

He expressed the belief that 1986 will be the low year in the current cycle of declining U.S. exports, which slumped from $44 billion in 1981 to $29 billion (estimated) in 1986.

Two factors—growing world population and the likelihood of poorer crop years for world agriculture after four back-to-back banner years—bolster the long-term outlook for increased exports, he said.

"Every third year, another equivalent country, the size of the U.S. is added by the 82 million annual increase in world population," he said. The current world population of 4.7 billion is expected to rise to 6.2 billion by the year 2000, and perhaps 8 billion by 2015.

"The challenge is that 70 percent of 90 percent of the world's population growth is in less developed countries," Frederick said.

A CHANGE IN the trend of four excellent years of crop production worldwide is inevitable, again involving the law of averages, he said. When a country that previously has imported grains harvests more than enough to feed its own people, it sells what is left on the world markets for whatever it can get, Frederick said. "The only country which has residual stocks of grain is the good old U.S.A.," he pointed out. Any significant dip in world grain production and thence supply would put the U.S. in a good position to boost exports, he said.

Frederick raised four serious questions for producers to consider in the agricultural arena in 1990 and beyond:

"American agricultural production has been increasing at the rate of 2 percent per year, while the U.S. population has been increasing at the rate of only 1/2 of one percent per year. Other than the factor of population growth, demand is affected by an increase in personal income, but because Americans already are eating well, this has not had much of an effect on increasing food consumption. "There's no way we can eat our way out of surplus production," Frederick said.

Threatening to aggravate the problem of insufficient demand related to supply is new technology in some areas of ag production about to come on-stream. A new bovine (cow) hormone is expected to increase production of milk 20 to 30 percent per cow. If such an advance would help reduce an enterprise's production costs, and/or hold down prices for consumers, this would be desirable. However, if the primary effect of the new technology would be to increase total production, the effect would be negative.

For the first time, three major studies have shown that economy of scale, for both tax and production efficiency advantages, favors larger farms over middle-sized farms (the latter defined as $150,000 or higher in gross annual sales). Efficiencies come in part from direct buying from factories or manufacturers, for instance, bypassing the middleman; and selling in rail carload lots. Trends suggest American agriculture is heading in this direction.

Failure to reverse the trend of a decrease in consumption of red meat (not just pork) bodes ill for both livestock and crop—especially feed grain—producers. Red meat demand in the U.S. has dropped from 191 pounds per person per year in 1971 to 170 pounds in 1974.

None of these four trends will necessarily follow through to a logical conclusion based on today's conditions, Frederick said, but farmers must be aware of them and take whatever steps possible to change or reverse them if they do not agree with them.

For beef management systems

UNL receives research grant

University of Nebraska-Lincoln animal scientist has received a $78,728 grant from the U.S. Department of Agriculture to study better ways of using rangeland, pasture and crop residues in beef production operations.

Professor Terry Klopfenstein said the two-year research study funded by the grant is designed to analyze the best economic systems which make use of cool and warm season grasses and corn residues. The study also looks at what effect the cow's level of milk production will have on the beef production system.

Cooperating UNL researchers in the project are animal scientist Marilyn Nielsen and agronomist Bruce Anderson. Nielsen has a cow herd including animals with three levels of genetic milk-producing ability. The cow which gives more milk usually produces a larger calf. But reproduction performance and extra feed costs are important considerations. Calves from this herd will be used in this study project.

ANDERSON, AN extension forage specialist, is researching optimal use of cool and warm season grasses for roughage.

Klopfenstein called this research project a "tremendous opportunity to pull all this (milk production, rangeland and pasture grazing, and using crop residues) together."

For the past 20 years, Klopfenstein said, the university tended to research a specific segment of the beef production system. But the last five years researchers have cooperated to study a whole economic system of management.

This allowed scientists to study the consequences of following a certain technique on the rest of the system.

"We hope to be able to draw some conclusions after these two years. We'll have then a total of seven years of data," Klopfenstein said. "And we'll be actively looking at ways of getting that information to the producer."

Research sites for the project will be the NU Agricultural Research and Development Center at Mead and the university's Dalbey-Halleck farm east of Beatrice.

Mother Nature is playing games. We have balmy days, blustery days, 16 days, snow, and now sunshine, with rain and snow in the forecast. In my estimation, 1986 had only one bad month for weather. If 1986 can equal that record, I may stay in Nebraska a little longer.

My neighbor and I were having a gloomy discussion one morning about staying in Nebraska. We had remodeled our farm kitchens the same year, and both families have enjoyed them so very much. I expressed regret over leaving my kitchen; he said he planned to take a chain saw to whatever improvements he had made!

Basketball fever hits kind of a feverish pitch by this time of year. Teams that survive Districts go on to Regionals and eventually State Tournament for high schools, and National Tournaments for colleges.

Nebraska, and four other Big Eight teams, got bids to the NCAA, which says something about the quality of Big Eight competition. Nebraska Wesleyan had an overtime game on Saturday that sends them on to the final four. This is becoming a yearly event for them.

Wayne State looked very good in its last part of the season, and Wayne High boys go back to Lincoln this Thursday. Our schedules have not permitted us to attend any of their games, so we've had to be content with radio coverage.

That six overtimer at Norfolk last week was a heart-stopper. The Big Farmer claims D.J. Johnson sounded just like Kent Pavelka. It really is too bad when the good teams are all in one District, and only one can go on.

I WAS COMING from work on Highway 35 last Tuesday, and I met half of Wayne County on the way to the game. There were also a bunch of Thurston county cars going to the Homer game at Madison.

Those teams that didn't make it have to start track practice. I was on North 25th Street in Norfolk one afternoon last week and faced a bunch of bright red "sweats" on Norfolk Catholic boys. At the intersection, the coach was waiting. I rolled down my window and chided him for not running with the team. He answered that he wasn't in that good of condition.

Sue interviewed at Creighton School of Occupational Therapy on Saturday morning. I hadn't been that enthused about that field until then.

They had several speakers who were very motivational. The head of OT at Bergan-Mercy displayed all the devices used to help the disabled in ADL's, Activities of Daily Living.

A fellow from Madonna Care Center in Lincoln discussed their role in stroke and head injury rehabilitation.

THE GUY WHO "stole the show" was Jim Christen of Broken Bow, who is in private practice. He goes to Scottsbluff, Chadron, Hastings, Neligh, Norfolk and several places in between as a consultant for nursing homes, schools and regional centers.

I whispered to Sue, "He must have a plane." And next we saw slides of his plane, the view from it and some of the places he visits.

I was struck by what the dean of the school had to say about the origins of occupational therapy. She claims that even in early Greek and Roman times, they were aware that work helped to cure disease. She believes we were created to be active, and I believe she's right.

In Saturday's mail was a letter from a prison reform group stating that the root cause of prison riots and disturbances is a lack of work, especially work with a purpose.

It quoted Eugene Heimler, a Holocaust survivor, who wrote of an experiment in which Jews who had been working in a prison factory were suddenly ordered to move sand from one end of their camp to another — back and forth, over a period of weeks. Many prisoners, who had been able to cling to life even while working for their captors, went berserk.

Work, especially work with a purpose, is necessary for mental health. What affects our mental health affects our physical health. And our spiritual health is an important part of the triangle.

Human beings are made up of those three important parts. And it behooves us all, when we get up in the morning, to thank God we have work to do. It also explains the look of hopeless despair we see on the faces at the employment office.

Valentine will be rough test

Both coaches from Wayne and Valentine have done their homework before Thursday's opening round game of the Class B State Basketball Tournament at Pershing Auditorium in Lincoln.

Valentine's head coach, Lynn Moeller, described the Blue Devils to a tee over a telephone conversation with him Friday afternoon.

"From what I hear, Wayne is a good rebounding team. They're strong, and pretty conservative on offense," he said. "And they must play pretty good defense, too."

Valentine heads into the state tourney with a 19-2 mark, and the Badgers were just a couple of breaks away from an undefeated campaign.

One of Valentine's losses came against unbeaten Bayard. The other loss was another close decision to Wintner, S.D.

Moeller listed those two opponents, along with Mission S.D., as Valentine's toughest opponents this year.

The Badgers won the Rangeland Conference title this year, finishing league play undefeated, and beat St. Paul for the B-6 District Tournament championship.

Valentine qualified for the State Tournament last season. After downing Gering and Auburn in the first two rounds, the Badgers lost to Mount Michael in the title bout. Mount Michael also beat Wayne at state, defeating the Blue Devils in triple overtime in the opening round.

Moeller said he hopes to offset Wayne's patient offense and rebounding power with his club's quickness.

"They'll (the Blue Devils) be tough on the boards. We'll try and balance that out with our quickness. I look at our quickness as our biggest strength," he said.

But the Badgers also have a couple of strong rebounders. Richard Lutter is 6-5, 215-pounds and Justin Hammond is 6-3, 200-pounds.

Bob Uhing, Wayne's head coach, said he is most concerned about Valentine's guards and Lutter.

"They have two real good guards and Lutter is pretty tough underneath," he said. "Their forwards are shakey, they don't score much other than on offensive rebounds."

Uhing also discussed what the Badgers play on defense and their offensive strategy.

"They always play zone defense, and they use a 2-2-1 press or a 1-3-1 half court trap," he said. "They like to run on offense. And their two guards and Lutter are their main threats on offense."

Uhing said he doesn't intend to make any drastic switches for the Valentine game, but did say that he would like to get Lutter in foul trouble.

"We won't make any changes against them. We'll just try and shut down their scorers and try and stop their running game," he said. "I would like to see Lutter get in foul trouble, though. He's their main rebounder and a good ball player."

Wayne will shoot for fourth state title

This will mark the 11th time a team from Wayne has qualified for the State Basketball Tournament.

Blue Devil squads have claimed three state titles. The first state championship came in 1919. The Blue Devils were one of 16 teams at the state tourney that year and claimed four victories in three days to capture the championship.

Members of the 1919 team were Don Miller, Edward McChesney, Claud Holfz, John Carhart, Ervil Thompson, Howard McEachen and Leslie Rundell. J.R. Armstrong, Wayne's superintendent, accompanied the Blue Devils to the tourney in 1919.

Wayne then won the state title 23 years later in 1942. The '42 Blue Devils thumped Sidney 24-19 in the finals for the '42 Class B crown. Axel Brundgard coached the '42 Blue Devils.

Members on the '42 state championship outfit were: Willy Lessman, Dick Gifford, Jim Strahan, Duke Derry, Bob Stull, Joe Kessler, Ray Murray, Don Harvey and Bob Meyer.

Wayne qualified for the State Tournament in 1949 and 1954, but efforts for a state title fell short. However, the Class B crown returned to Wayne in 1956.

The '56 Blue Devil unit defeated Hebron 61-56 for the championship. Harold Maciejewski skippered the '56 club.

The '56 Blue Devils were: Norman Pospisil, Charles Mellor, Dennie Manske, Larry Tietgen, Jerry Hendrickson, David Ratzlaff, Larry Test, Don Wightman, Kenny Dahl, Glenn Houderheldt, Larry Hofeldt and Bob Schwartzbach.

Wayne qualified for the state tourney three consecutive years from 1958-60, but the closest the Blue Devils could get to a state crown during that span was in '58 when they lost to Fullerton in the semifinals. Wayne lost in the opening round in both '59 and '60.

The 1964 Blue Devil squad reached the semifinals at state, but dropped a 67-55 loss to Omaha Holy Name.

Wayne's '64 outfit opened a 44-34 lead after three quarters against David City Aquinas in the opening round at state, and held off a fourth quarter charge by David City to claim a 56-54 win.

Jim Mau drilled a field goal with two seconds to go to boost Wayne into the semifinals.

The '64 Blue Devils held a 17-10 lead against Holy Name after the first quarter and a 29-28 advantage at the half. But Holy Name dominated the last half and claimed the victory.

Last year, Wayne dropped a triple overtime loss to Mount Michael in the opening round. Mount Michael went on to claim the 1985 Class B state title.

- 1919 — Beat Palmyra for state title.
- 1942 — Beat Sidney for state title.
- 1949 — Qualified for state.
- 1954 — Lost in quarterfinals.
- 1956 — Beat Hebron for state title.
- 1958 — Lost in semifinals.
- 1959 — Lost in quarterfinals.
- 1960 — Lost in quarterfinals.
- 1964 — Lost in semifinals.
- 1985 — Lost in quarterfinals.

B-4 tourney was nerve-racking

The recent B-4 District Basketball Tournament was nerve-racking for all Blue Devil fans. After all, Wayne won its three games by a total of 10 points, including an emotionally draining 37-34 six-overtime triumph against second-ranked Columbus Lakeview in the semifinals.

But nobody becomes more nervous, perhaps, than the parent of a participating athlete.

Sue Larsen, Don's mother, discussed what she was thinking during the Lakeview contest.

"I kept thinking about last year's State Tournament," she said. "There were a couple of times when I sat down because I thought we were going to get beat, and I kept asking myself, 'How could this be happening again?'"

The 1984-85 Blue Devils dropped a tough-luck triple overtime loss to Mount Michael in the first round at state last year.

Donna Liska, Bill's mother, said she was hoping that none of the Wayne players made a major mistake during the overtimes.

"I was hoping that none of the boys would make a mistake or a major error that would turn the game around," she said. "You especially hope your own child doesn't make a mistake, which is only natural, but basically I became insensitive to the game and just hoped that none of our boys would make a mistake."

Larsen fouled out of the Lakeview battle in the second overtime, and although she knew Don was disappointed, Mrs. Larsen admitted that it was easier on her after her son fouled out.

"I didn't want him to foul out. I wanted him in the game," she said. "But in all honesty, it was easier on me when he went to the bench. I knew he was disappointed when he fouled out and I felt bad for him, but it was easier on me."

Mary Jo Gross, Dan's mother, might be one of the more emotionally involved Blue Devil parents during 'close' games as she sometimes can't even bear to watch the action.

"I just couldn't watch the overtimes, and I couldn't last year at state, either," she said. "I just close my eyes and open them when I hear cheering. I keep my eyes closed during most of the close games and I'm just happy when they're over with."

All the parents interviewed shared Mrs. Gross' feelings about being happy when the game ended, but Mrs. Larsen summed-up best how the entire community felt about the Blue Devils:

"Right after the game I ran down to the court and started hugging everybody. Those kids work so hard, and I was just very, very proud of them all."

'Road to Lincoln' was difficult task for Blue Devils

The "Road to Lincoln" was hardly a cake walk for the Blue Devils this year.

The B-4 District Tournament, according to most analysis, was the most difficult Class B district tourney in the state. Only one team in the field had a losing record and three squads (Columbus Lakeview, Blair and West Point) were ranked in the state. But Wayne, who was unranked and seeded fourth, came away with the title.

Wayne played Hartington Cedar Catholic in the first round. The Blue Devils faced the Trojans two times earlier in the year and claimed both victories by a total of six points. And the opening round of districts was yet another close battle, but Wayne captured a 41-36 triumph.

The key to the win were Wayne's rebounding and defense. But down the stretch, it was the Blue Devils' free throw shooting that iced the victory as Wayne drilled eight free throws in the final 51 seconds to preserve the triumph.

The opening round win allowed Wayne to face Columbus Lakeview in the second round, a team most Blue Devils wanted a rematch with.

Wayne dropped a 58-34 decision (its worst loss of the year) to Lakeview earlier in the season, but the Blue Devils avenged that with a thrilling six overtime 37-34 victory.

Wayne led in every overtime except one, but Lakeview always managed to tie the game. That is until the sixth overtime.

Wayne's Ted Lueders canned an 18-footer from the right corner with 32 seconds to go and teammate Jeff Hausmann iced the win with a free throw 24 seconds later.

Although he could not confirm it for sure, Assistant Director of the Nebraska School Activities Association, Conde Sargent, said he believed the six overtimes is the longest district basketball game in Nebraska history.

The victory over Lakeview propelled Wayne into the championship game against West Point. Like Lakeview, West Point also defeated the Blue Devils earlier in the year. But Wayne once again gained sweet revenge by slipping past the Cadets, 41-39.

The Blue Devils led most of the game, but West Point opened its biggest lead of the contest with a 34-31 advantage at the 4:33 mark in the last quarter.

But Wayne battled back and regained a 41-37 lead on two free throws by Dan Gross with 33 seconds to go. West Point hit a quick basket and regained possession of the ball with 14 seconds remaining. However, two Cadet shots missed and Wayne qualified for its second straight State Basketball Tournament.

Bob Uhing, Wayne's head coach, said the 1986 B-4 District Tournament was the most difficult district tourney he has ever coached in.

"This was by far the toughest district I've ever coached in," he said. "I think it showed what kind of character our kids have, and I'm very proud of the way the kids handled themselves during districts."

Wayne's seventh seed deceiving

Wayne's 15-5 record and its seventh seed at the State Basketball Tournament might be a little deceiving.

Although the Blue Devils' five losses are the second most in the Class B field, Wayne probably played one of the more difficult schedules out of the eight qualifying squads.

Half of Wayne's games this year came against teams either ranked in Class B or Class C. And two other contests were against Class A schools (Sioux City North and South Sioux City).

The Blue Devils struggled early in the year. After winning two of their first three games, the Blue Devils were bombed by Columbus Lakeview 58-34 and slipped to 2-2.

But Wayne regrouped and won its next four games, including the Wayne State College Tournament championship in which the Blue Devils defeated Pierce 61-46 and O'Neill 52-40.

The Blue Devils then lost two-of-three games during a five day stretch in the middle of January, but closed the season strong by winning eight of their last nine.

A major concern for most coaches is getting their team to peak at the right time, and Wayne appears to be peaking perfectly as the Blue Devils will be riding a seven game winning streak when they enter the State Tournament, which includes three emotional victories in the B-4 District Tournament.

Bob Uhing, Wayne's head coach, commented on the 1985-86 schedule.

"In the 20 games we played, 10 games were against ranked teams, and the B-4 District Tournament was very tough so I think we played as tough of a schedule as you can play."

Superstitions part of Wayne's success?

Wayne appears to be a well-rounded squad heading into the 1986 State Basketball Tournament. The Blue Devils have size, hustle and, have excellent coaching — and even luck?

Luck, it seems, plays a big part in every successful season, and Blue Devil head coach Bob Uhing isn't taking any chances this year.

Many athletes and coaches are known to be superstitious, but Uhing might be the most superstitious participant at this year's state tourney.

Uhing said he was never superstitious until his first year as head coach at Harlington Cedar Catholic.

"It all started in 1980. We (Cedar Catholic) had a big game at Creighton when Creighton was rated in the state. Earlier that day I found a penny and we ended up winning by 30 points, and I've been collecting pennies ever since," he chuckled.

But finding lucky pennies isn't the only preparation Uhing takes before games. During the recent B-4 District Basketball Tournament, the Wayne skipper practiced several different rituals because of the success he achieved with them in the past.

"I had to have the same lockerroom at districts, and we had to go out the same door to get on the court," he said. "We also used the same towels every night and I ate a certain amount of Certs before each game," he said.

But Uhing's superstitions don't end after the game starts.

"I always wear the same clothes for each game, I also use the same water bottle and I keep a towel in a certain place because after each timeout I wipe off the place where I sit," he said.

Uhing's superstitions filtered down to his players. Bill Liska, a 6-4 junior, clips his fingernails every game day, while teammate Jason Jorgensen wears the same socks and gym trunks in every game. The Blue Devils' recent success even dictates the length of Jorgensen's hair.

Jorgensen usually wears his hair in a butch, but lately he's been letting it grow. "I was going to get another 'buzz,' but we started winning so I let it grow. I felt like I'd lynx us if I cut it again," he said.

But Uhing's the "superstitious king," and he said there are even certain rituals he will go through at the State Tournament.

"We'll practice at the same two sites in Lincoln that I've always practiced at," he said. "And we'll go out the same door, just like we did at districts."

Entering the court from the same door almost backfired on Uhing at a past state tourney.

"We were at state once and in order to go out the same door we were forced to walk clear around the building," he said. "One of the guys working the tourney wasn't going to let us do it, but I insisted and we came out the same door."

Uhing said he only practices these rituals during the basketball season, and although these superstitions might all sound irrational, Uhing has qualified for five State Tournaments in seven years as a head coach, and he has won two state championships.

You have to do with what works for you, and for Bob Uhing, it's being superstitious.

Bob Uhing — 'Mr. March'

If Reggie Jackson is called "Mr. October," then Wayne head basketball coach Bob Uhing must be "Mr. March."

When the Blue Devils take the court during the Class B State Basketball Tournament later this week, they'll be in good hands under the direction of Uhing.

This year's state journey is Uhing's fifth in the last seven years since he became a head coach in 1980 at Harrington Cedar Catholic. And it's his fourth consecutive appearance.

Uhing's coaching career began in 1975 when he was the head coach at Harrington Cedar Catholic Junior High School. Five years later, he was promoted to the high school team and he made the most of his promotion by winning the State Tournament title.

Uhing and his teams failed to make the trek to Lincoln the next two years, but he returned again in 1983 and he hasn't missed a state tourney since.

Uhing said that all the teams he coached to the State Tournament varied for the most part, but added that they did share one common bond.

"There wasn't one better team compared to another, all the teams were different in their own way with their own strengths and weaknesses," he said. "But all the kids on those teams had a lot of character because they did what it took to win."

Cedar Catholic's 1984 squad was Uhing's second State Tournament championship team, and it was one of his personal favorites because of the character they possessed.

"The '84 team was one of my personal favorites because they probably shouldn't have gone as far as they did," he said. "There were a lot of other better teams as far as talent goes, but those kids found other ways to win."

Although the 1986 State Tournament has not started yet, Uhing said this year's Blue Devil outfit is another one of his favorites.

"This year's team is comparable to the '84 team I had because the kids are so competitive and they find ways to win and played so many good teams, just like the '84 team did," he said.

Uhing brings up an interesting point. In Wayne's 20 games this year, the Blue Devils have played 10 ranked teams, whether they were rated in Class B or Class C. And the B-4 District Basketball Tournament has been called the roughest district in the state.

"That's as tough a schedule as you can get, and this was the toughest district I've ever coached in."

Uhing said he has fond memories of each State Tournament, but listed two of his most memorable experiences.

"My main memory is probably all the nice kids I've coached," he said. "And last year is memorable because it was my first year at Wayne. We had such a good following and great support. It was just an enjoyable experience and made it fun to coach."

Uhing added that he is proud of the Blue Devils' accomplishments this year.

"This year's team is very special to me. They've done everything I've asked them and I just like them and I'm very proud of them."

Blue Devils rally in fourth frame

Wayne upsets Sidney for '42 title

The following is a reprint from the Wayne Herald concerning the 1942 state championship team. The '42 Blue Devils reached the state tourney by downing Bloomfield 29-20 in the district finals.

Coach Axel Bundgaard's Wayne High Knights staged a fourth quarter rally to defeat the strong Sidney quintet, 26 to 19, in the finals of the state Class B basketball tournament at Lincoln Saturday night and crown a successful season with the tourney championship.

The championship game was closely contested throughout as were a majority of the tourney battles. Wayne held a one point margin at the half, when the score was 15 to 14, and it was not until the local team staged a rally in the fourth quarter that the contest was decided.

The excellent zone defensive work of the Knights was the major factor in stopping the heavy scoring Sidney team, which had eliminated the O'Neill five, 21 to 13, in the semi-finals the previous day. Duke Derry, who with Bob Stull provided Wayne's greatest scoring punch throughout the season, led the scoring in the championship tilt, accounting for nine points while Stull was credited with six.

However, all the Knights played excellent basketball and were favorites with most of the basketball fans attending the tourney. A large delegation of Wayne fans witnessed the game including the Wayne High band, which made the trip to Lincoln for the finals.

The Wayne team made its way to the championship tilt by defeating it's strong Auburn team in an equally exciting semifinals game in which a second half rally by the Knights was also responsible for the victory. Auburn's elimination by the con-vin-

cing score of 29-22 left Class B division without a seeded team as Geneva, which was favored with Auburn in the drawings, was ousted in the initial round.

Auburn had a slight edge the first half, showing off to a 9-5 quarter lead and it vanished to 12-12 at halftime.

Bob Stull slapped in three fielders during the third period, so Wayne pulled ahead, 20-17. Duke Derry's onehander with two minutes left iced it.

Derry with 10 led the victors, while Dick Gifford and Joe Kessler came thru with timely help. Bob Griz, Dick Ely and Richard Hutton were the main contributors to Auburn's cause.

In the initial round of the tourney, Wayne had little difficulty eliminating the West Point High team, 23 to 13. The local team held a 14 to 9 lead at the half which was never threatened.

Blue Devils down Hebron for 1956 state championship

The last time a boys basketball team from Wayne won the state title was in 1956 when the Blue Devils downed Hebron 61-56 for the championship. The following information is material taken from the 1956 Devil Daze year book and the March 15, 1956, Wayne Herald.

A 13-point margin won the District Class B trophy for Wayne when they edged Pender 73 to 60. Larry Hofeldt was high point man with 22 points while Shipwright from Pender had 26 points. Pender's best man, Shipwright, was covered by Glen Houdersheldt and Hofeldt, making it hard for him to shoot.

Wayne won a state tournament bid by Howells 83 to 50 in the Class B playoff at Norfolk Auditorium. Howells offered little competition for Wayne after the first quarter. Glen Houdersheldt meshed 26 points to lead the Blue Devil attack.

Wayne's height and shooting proved to be too much for Loup City as the Blue Devils downed the Red Raiders 65 to 50 in a loosely played ball game. Ken Dahl and Hofeldt scored 19 and 18 points respectively. Wayne was never behind after the opening minutes of play.

The victory was a sweet one for Coach Maciejewski, who coached the Loup City squad six years before coming to Wayne. His brother-in-law, Larry Jasnoch played with the Red Raiders Thursday.

Wayne High brought a climax to their 1955-1956 basketball season by downing Hebron in the State Tournament finals 61 to 56. Wayne came from behind in the second half to win.

Dahl took over rebounding chores in the third and Houdersheldt and Bob Schwartzbach sparked the scoring attack which carried Wayne into the lead midway in the third quarter.

The Blue Devils took a 46-41 lead entering the final eight minutes and increased it to 54-45 before Hebron could start narrowing the gap. The Bears suffered their biggest blow when Center Mel Harmon fouled out with 6:56 remaining.

Dahl's 21 points paced Wayne. Houdersheldt finished with 14 and Schwartzbach added 13 more. Hofeldt went scoreless after dropping eight points in the first period. Larry Dankenbring paced Hebron with 18.

The team set three new records during the tournament by breaking the Class B team scoring record, 65 points; total of opponents and team's score, 117 points; and Ken Dahl broke the free throw record in the Hebron game when he made 13 free throws in a single game.

Wayne downs Palmyra for 1919 title

Editor's Note: Most Wayne basketball enthusiasts know that Blue Devil basketball teams captured state titles in 1942 and 1956, but Wayne also won the championships in 1919. The following is a reprint from the March 20, 1919 Wayne Herald.

Representatives of Wayne high school won first place in group H in the state basketball tournament in Lincoln last week, and brought back an elegant silver cup, neatly engraved, which becomes the permanent property of the school. Sixteen schools were represented in group H, and the Wayne boys won in the following games: Cortland, 28-5; St. Edwards, 19-11; Trenton, 20-4; Palmyra, 30-12. The Wayne boys were declared champions of the state in group H.

Accompanied by Supt. J.R. Armstrong, the following boys went from Wayne: Don Miller, Edward McChesney, Cloud Holtz, John Carhart, Ervill Thompson, Howard McEachen, and Leslie Rundell. Mr. Armstrong says the boys improved seventy five per cent while in Lincoln. They were lighter than any team excepting one. The Wayne boys showed superiority in skill and team work. One professional coach said the Wayne boys showed the result of good habits. Not one in the crowd uses tobacco in any form. The Wayne high school is proud of the victory and is a much pleased possessor of the silver cup.

Another story in the March 20, 1919 Wayne Herald read as follows:

The basket ball boys returned from Lincoln on Saturday, very tired after playing four games in three days, but happy because they were the proud possessors of the cup for winning four games from the sixteen teams in class H. The cup was presented to the high school Monday morning by the captain, John Carhart.

WAYNE FANS 'revealed' letters on their chest that spell W-A-Y-N-E during the B-4 District basketball tournament. The Wayne quintet is just one example of the fine fan support the Blue Devils received at Districts. Bob Uhing (upper right), Wayne's head coach, argues a call during the B-4 tourney.
