Building burns

A RUBBISH fire jumped a ditch and burned down an old barn northwest of Wayne Thursday afternoon, according to Wayne Fire Department officials. The fire on the property of Mrs. Anna Greunke, located approximately five miles north and one and a half miles west, got away from the ditch and began burning the nearby weeds. From there, the fire destroyed an old barn-type structure and continued into a grove of trees. After the firemen put out the fire, they were called back to the scene hours later as a tree was reported burning. No estimate of damage has been reported as of Friday afternoon.

Herald receives seven awards

The Wayne Herald received seven awards within its circulation division in the 1986 Nebraska Press Association Better Newspaper Contest during the Nebraska Newspaper Association Convention held this past weekend in Lincoln.

One award was for first place, with three second place finishes and three third place awards. The Wayne Herald competed in the weekly division with 2,500 or more circulation.

The first place award went for "Best Feature Series." The series of articles ran in January and February and it dealt with the topic of changing the drinking age from 19 to 21. The articles were written by Managing Editor Chuck Hackenmiller and Assistant Editor LaVon Anderson.

Second place finishes were awarded for Best Use of Color-Editorial, Best Sport Page and Best Single Feature Story.

The single feature article was written by LaVon Anderson entitled "Brother's and Sisters Meet After 37 Years" — a story about a family separated but recently brought back together.

Sports editor John Prather's photograph of a parachutist bringing down the game ball at a Wayne State football game earned a third place award.

Composition foreman for the Wayne Herald is Judi Topp and press men are Ray Murray, Al Pippitt and Jeff Sperry. The publisher is J. Alan Cramer and business manager is Jim Marsh.

The Gothenburg Times took first place honors among weekly newspapers and captured the Mark E. Cramer Sweepstakes Award. Fremont Tribune and the Hastings Tribune tied for first place honors in the daily division.

The Wayne Herald finished fifth in total points in the weekly newspaper division with 43 points, behind first place North Bend Eagle, second place Milford Times, third place Wisner News Chronicle, and fourth place Sidney Telegraph.

Primary election date approaches

Wayne County Clerk Oregretta Morris announced Friday that the voting booths have been set up and are ready for individuals who are unable to vote on the primary election date of Tuesday, May 13.

During the primary, in some cases voters will be electing candidates to various offices.

In Hoskins, residents will be electing three of four candidates to positions on the board of trustees. Candidates include Robert W. Staub, Jr., Russell L. Doffin, John Scheurich and Darrel Maier.

Three members will also be elected on May 13 to serve on the Winside Board of Trustees. There are five candidates up for the position, including Marvin Cherry, Eric Magwire, Jay Morse, Harold Ritze and Warren Gallop.

The Carroll Board of Trustees has two positions open for election on May 13. Two candidates filing for the positions are Gary Braden and Edward Simpson. In Sholes, the two positions for board of trustees will be decided on May 13, with Don Bauer and John Hansen seeking the offices.

Primary voters must also select their Republican choice for County Commissioner of the Third District, as incumbent Jerry Pospishil is being challenged by Russell Prince of Winside.

In the Wayne City Fourth Ward Councilman seat race, incumbent Larry Johnson is facing two other candidates — William Paysen of Wayne and Jon Haase of Wayne.

WHEN THE number of candidates is two or less for one vacancy up for election, then those candidates are declared already nominated and will have their names printed on the November, 1986 general election ballot.

There are two or less candidates per vacancy in the following offices: county clerk, clerk of district court, county superintendent, county treasurer, county sheriff, county attorney, county surveyor, county assessor and county commissioner for the first district.

Also, nominations for the November election already exist for candidates filing for Wayne city mayor, city councilman in first ward, city councilman in second ward, city councilman in the third ward (two-year term) and another third-ward councilman (four-year term).

There are three openings on the Winside School Board and six seeking the post, carrying those candidates into the November election. They include incumbents Melvin Meierhenry and Ray Roberts, plus Dale Topp, Richard Jenkins, Harlin Brugger and Ken Kollath.

Three positions are open on the Wayne School Board and all incumbents (Joyce Reeg, Arnold Emry and Cap Peterson) have filed for re-election with no challengers.

In the state races, first district congressman, Doug Bereuter (incumbent) from Wilcox is being challenged by Jim Lessmann from Lincoln on the Republican side; while Marlin Richard Pals of Lincoln, Steve Burns of Lincoln and Duane E.F. Dufeck of Verdigris seek the Democratic primary nod.

REPUBLICAN candidates for the governor's office include Paul Rosenberg, Kay Orr, Chuck Loos, Nancy Hoch, Everett Sileven, Roger Yant, Kermit Brashear and Monte Taylor. Democratic candidates include Marge Higgins, Mina B. Dillingham, Chris Beutler, David Domina, Barton Chandler, Helen Boosalis and Robert J. Prokop.

For Lieutenant Governor, the candidates on the Republican side are Bill Nichol, Randy Moody and Richard Mathews. On the Democratic ticket are Donald McGinley, Ken Michaelis and Rachel Hepburn.

Allen J. Beermann is running alone on the ticket for secretary of state in the Republican side, while on the Democratic side, Harold Stein of Omaha is being challenged by Wakefield resident Olga Sanchez Tappe.

The state auditor post has a Republican, Ray Johnson of Lincoln, and a Democrat, David Wilken of Omaha, vying for the position. For state treasurer, the Republican candidates are Frank Marsh and Lucille Jensen while the Democratic hopeful is DIAnna R. Schimek.

In the attorney general race, on the Republican ticket, incumbent Robert Spire is being challenged by Don Stenberg. Bernie Glaser stands alone on the Democrat side of the ticket.

Long distance interrupted

For about a two hour period Thursday afternoon, this area was shut out from long distance calling.

A farmer was plowing within a waterway approximately 2 1/2 miles north of Pilger when he accidentally sliced the long distance cable, leaving the Wayne, Wakefield and Winside areas without the service of long distance calling or receiving.

Northwestern Bell District Manager Ken Berglund said that local calling was not hampered by the accident.

The long distance service went out about 3:30 p.m. and returned to the area by 5:30 p.m.

Berglund said the telephone cable that was sliced by the plowing farmer (who did not know he had caused damage to the long distance lines) was originally buried at least 36 inches. The grass waterway had eroded enough to leave only about 12 inches of earth above it, Berglund said Friday.

Business event at Wayne State

Students from 39 high schools from Nebraska and Iowa will travel to Wayne State College on Tuesday, April 22 for the annual WSC Business Competition Day.

Patricia Arneson, assistant professor of business, said the activities begin at 9 a.m. with accounting and conclude with the College Bowl at 2:30 p.m.

"Except for a few programs like typing and shorthand, the other activities deal mainly with objective tests and decision making," Arneson said.

Arneson added that the College Bowl is set up in a quiz show format. Groups of four compete against other participants until a final school emerges victorious. The schools are divided according to the size of enrollment and awards are given to schools in each category.

Many of the contests will take place in Connell Hall, according to Arneson.

Area schools competing include Emerson-Hubbard, Laurel-Concord, Wakefield, Wayne, Winside and Wisner-Pilger.

Spire answers complaints from other candidates

by Chuck Hackenmiller

Nebraska Attorney General Robert Spire, seeking re-election to the same office in 1986, certainly hears the complaints other attorney general candidates are repeating about him.

There are comments that he is a candidate not willing to back up county attorneys across the state; that he is a big spender; that he is non-supportive of capital punishment.

Spire, in an interview Wednesday with the Wayne Herald, said the arguments are more of a political nature.

"The complaints from those who are running against me are essentially political," Spire said.

His inclination is to be completely fair and impartial and to be open and accessible to the public.

In commenting about the allegations concerning not defending the county attorneys, Spire said the opposite: "I have worked very closely with the county attorneys and have given them a lot of support."

Recently, he has hired an assistant attorney general which will allow even more contact with county attorneys across the state, he said.

Likewise, there have been criticism about his actions, or lack of action, following the Nebraska Supreme Court ruling last year that changed a death penalty conviction in the Hunt murder case to a life sentence. Hunt had been originally sentenced the death penalty for the murder of a Norfolk woman, but that was overturned by the Nebraska Supreme Court last year on a ruling that the act of the crime was not heinous enough to deserve a death sentence.

"I feel that the court made a wrong decision, but we did a good job of arguing the case," Spire said, mentioning that the state was represented by one of the top qualified attorneys that specialized in death sentence cases.

HE SAID HIS office has been faulted for not repealing the supreme court's ruling. "The reason we didn't

Robert Spire was because it would have been an absolute act of futility," he mentioned. "It would be absolutely impractical to use state resources to engage in a futile act," he said.

Spire emphasized that the death penalty is a law in Nebraska and that his office vigorously enforces it. Personally, he approves of the death penalty in certain cases and that it "must be looked at on an individual case by case basis."

Spire contradicted opponent statements that say he is a "big spender." During his time serving as attorney general, he has spent less money, got by on less administration and has provided more legal services to the public.

"I have reduced the total budget of the attorney general's office and have shifted three people out of the administrative functions into direct legal services work," he said.

He said he has eliminated unnecessary administration and the office is more cost efficient, providing more for less money.

DURING HIS term as state attorney general, there have been "constant difficult decisions he had to make," he said.

The most recent difficult decision he faced was the opinion he released on the unconstitutionality of the deregulation of the major phone companies from the state's public service commission.

It was a difficult legal question on the constitutionality of LB 835, a bill which companies such as Northwestern Bell have supported to allow them to compete with private long distance companies.

"Four attorneys [including myself] studied the bill at length and made our decision on what the law is, without any political views or philosophical leanings," he said.

What brought him to the decision to run again for the office of attorney general?

"I believe all attorneys have an obligation to perform a public service. And I find the issues in state government very interesting," Spire mentioned.

"And I thoroughly enjoy the people working in state government," he added.

HE FEELS THAT the major issue in the race will be what candidate will be the best qualified on the basis of experience and credentials.

Spire said the office is strictly a legal position. "We do not make the laws, the legislature makes the laws and the attorney general must function as an attorney in a non-political sense," he added.

The attorney general's work goes by what the law is that has been enacted by the legislature and determined by the courts, he commented.

He added that the office must be open and accessible to the public. "The attorney general has an obligation to explain what the office does. It also should gain support from the public and ideas from the public as to how to do the job better," Spire said.

"We are not policy makers, but lawyers acting in an impartial manner on behalf of the entire state," he said.

To study Neihardt literature

Neihardt Conference opens April 26

When the annual Neihardt Conference convenes in Bancroft, Saturday, April 26, the participants will focus on "The Creative Uses of Tribal American Culture: The New Followers of John G. Neihardt."

The conference annually attracts scholars and other people interested in the literature of Neihardt, the man who in 1921 was named Poet Laureate of Nebraska by the Legislature.

The conference opens at 9:30 a.m. at the Neihardt Center in Bancroft and will continue through the afternoon. It is free and open to all who are interested. Wayne State College's Division of Humanities, The Nebraska Committee for the Humanities, the John G. Neihardt Foundation, and the Nebraska State

Historical Society are sponsoring the conference.

Neihardt, who died in 1972 at the age 92, published his first book of poetry, The Divine Enchantment, in 1900 at age 19, three years after completing his studies at the Nebraska Normal College in Wayne. He is best remembered for his epic poetry dealing with Indian life in the West.

AMONG THE speakers at the conference is William Least Heat-Moon, who will talk about "The Creative Sources of Tribal American Culture." Heat-Moon published his first book in 1983 and saw it soar to the New York Times Book List for 41 weeks. Blue Highways recounted his tour of America's back roads in an old van after he lost his job as a college English teacher. The January 13, 1983 New York Times book review said of the book: "He wrote a book about his travels in order to find out where he was trying to arrive at and called it Blue Highways, because on old maps the back roads were colored in blue. The book is wonderful."

Another speaker will be Bobby Bridger, returning to the conference with increased stature as singer, troubador, poet, playwright, actor and artist. Several years ago, the descendant of mountain man Jim Bridger came to the August Neihardt Day and sang his unique "Ballad of the West." Now this work is acclaimed as a new form of creative expression — the epic ballad. It has been said that in some ways it is a musical version of poet laureate Neihardt's major work, "A Cycle of the West." The Center, for the Study of Man at the Smithsonian Institute has praised "A Ballad of the West," saying "...it tells us something of who we are and how we got there."

Hilda Neihardt Petri, daughter of Neihardt, will talk about Native American sources of Black Elk Speaks, the book her father wrote following conferences with Sioux leader Black Elk early this century. In recent years this book has gained international popularity. Mrs. Petri accompanied her father when he spoke with Black Elk.

Also part of the conference are a tour of the Sioux Prayer Garden at the Neihardt Center and discussion and question sessions.

Program should be for needy

Homestead Exemption abused

by Senator Elroy Kerrey
The popular Homestead Exemption Program received first round approval this week even though it did not have my support as written. Reports indicated that the program has been flagrantly abused across the state.

I was unsuccessful in an effort to disqualify affluent property owners from applying for the exemption by introducing an amendment to LB 1238 which defined the term "qualified person" and was designed to exclude from qualification of the homestead exemption any person with assets of more than $75,000, excluding their own personal residence. I felt that this program should be for the needy.

LB 1238 was proposed by Governor Bob Kerrey late in the session, with the prospect of using the bill as a vehicle to rewrite the Homestead Exemption Act.

The present Act exempts qualified people from a portion of the local property tax placed on homeowners and was intended to help give a tax-break to low-income, elderly, disabled, and widows of disabled veterans.

The Governor's proposal required local governments to pay ten percent of the exemption cost which would result in a $3.21 million savings to the state. Last year this program exceeded cost expectations by 25 percent and this cost overrun caused the Governor to seek revision of the exemption system.

Lawmakers amended the bill this week to have local governing bodies be responsible for the ten percent costs for one year only. Other provisions set out by LB 1238 are: 1) the requirement that an elderly recipient be 65 years of age by January 1 of the year the exemption is requested; and 2) that the same income limits used for the elderly be applicable to the disabled. The Legislature anticipates a savings of over five million dollars for the next fiscal year as a result of these changes.

Lawmakers recently overrode a Kerrey veto and approved a deficit appropriation of over $6.5 million for the Homestead Exemption Program, bringing the cost in excess of $33.1 million for the fiscal year 1985-86. I noted against LB 1238 because I did not want this amount of money to become the burden of the local governments.

The Revenue Committee is planning an in-depth study of this exemption issue during the interim.

With only six left for legislative debate, many bills will not be acted on this session and will automatically die after adjournment date.

One of the establishments noted for its big band dancing burned to the ground recently — The King's Ballroom in Norfolk.

I imagine there are many people who have a lot of memories of this place, recalling the big band performances that once played there.

Back in 1978 there was a story written in a newspaper dealing with a dance ballroom in Austin, Minnesota called The Terp. Austin is the city heard often on the national news in relation to the Hormel strike going on there. From what individuals tell me about King's Ballroom, the Terp was similar in many fashions.

This Terp dancing room was built in 1938 and burned down on Thanksgiving night in 1947.

The place was rebuilt and owned by another ballroom dancing facility corporation — the same corporation that owned The Surf Ballroom in Clear Lake (which is where rock and roll idol Buddy Holly made his last performance).

MOST OF THE big band names performed at the Terp during the 1950's, such as Guy Lombardo, who played several times there before 1,500 to 2,000 people.

Les Brown and his band played there five times; Woody Herman seven times; Lawrence Welk three times; Tex Beneke, when he had the Glen Miller band, played four times; Harry James played four times. Wayne King performed there three times.

The famous Duke Ellington drew close to 1,400 dancers in a performance in 1951. Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey played there.

There were individual performances of Louis (Satchmo) Armstrong, who appeared with Ella Fitzgerald; accordion player Frankie Yankovic was there.

The manager of the Terp mentioned that the big band dancing popularity, which thrived there from 1948 to the early 60's, began dwindling. In the 50's, the Terp averaged attendance of 1,000 or more people each night a big band came.

WITHIN THE ballroom facility at Austin are 276 booths that can seat up to 1,400 people.

During the good times, up to 40 employees were on the payroll.

As with King's Ballroom, many groups or organizations rented the Terp Ballroom for special promotions or benefits.

When the popularity of the big band ended, it was necessary to find an alternative to that style of music — something that would draw in more youths and keep the institution financially stable.

At the Terp, they introduced rock music of the 70's. In the later 70's the management went disco. Later on it experimented with roller skating.

One reason the story was written about the Terp is that it was for sale. The previous owner said that his other business would not allow him to run the dance business adequately or to promote it thoroughly. I don't know what the status of the Terp is right now.

But I do know that the Terp was a place for friends to gather and exercise the fine art of dancing.

And I imagine that the King's Ballroom in Norfolk had virtually the same characteristics.

The big band sound wasn't what I listened to when I went to the big band sound, just to see what it was really like. I really believe I missed the boat.

ask a lawyer

Q. My wife is a waitress in a bar, and she agreed as part of her job to participate in topless boxing matches in an attempt to increase the bar's business. She participated in this for about 1 1/2 years, until she found out she was pregnant. After the baby was born she found she was unable to nurse the child, and the doctor has advised us that she has suffered damage to the breast tissue, and that surgery was required. Her employer refuses to accept responsibility for any injuries or medical expenses, saying that she agreed to box as part of her job. Do we have any legal recourse?

A. When an employee is injured as a result of an accident arising out of and in the course of his or her employment, the employee is entitled to workers' compensation benefits. According to your letter, the employer made topless boxing one of the job duties of his waitresses and it was while performing this duty that your wife was injured. A blow to the body is considered an "accident" under the Nebraska Workers' Compensation Law.

The fact that your wife agreed to certain duties as part of her job, and may or may not have been aware she could be hurt by performing those duties, does

Underground storage tanks to be regulated

From the Nebraska State Fire Marshal Office

Thousands of owners who have underground storage tanks containing gasoline or other regulated substances are receiving forms that they must use to notify the Nebraska State Fire Marshal of details regarding their tanks.

This notification program, for which there is no fee and which must be completed by May 8, is part of the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act amendments enacted by the 1984 U.S. Congress.

Concern about contamination of the nation's ground water, widely used for drinking and other domestic purposes, and the environmental damage caused by leaks of petroleum products and other hazardous chemical substances was what prompted the legislation. The State of Nebraska has designated the State Fire Marshal's office to manage the notification and inspection program.

Under the new law, storage tanks are defined as "underground" if 10 percent or more of the tank, including piping, is beneath the ground. Farm and residential motor fuel tanks are exempted unless they are larger than 1,100 gallons.

On-site heating oil storage tanks, septic tanks and certain other tanks are also exempted.

The new law applies to liquid petroleum products and all substances defined as hazardous under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980. This includes almost all chemicals, including industrial solvents.

The notification requirements apply not only to underground storage tanks currently in use, but also to tanks taken out of operation after Jan. 1, 1974, but still in the ground. Notification of underground tanks applies to all owners, including political subdivisions.

To enforce the notification requirements, Congress provided for a penalty not to exceed $10,000 for each tank for which notification is not given or for which false information is submitted.

Further information on this program is available from the State Fire Marshal's office in Lincoln and additional forms are available through the State Fire Marshal Personnel. The telephone number for the Underground Storage Tank Program is 402/471-9465.

Cut spending, not raise taxes to reduce nation's deficit

by Cesar Conda and William Czuchra
Does anyone remember the last time we elected a Republican in Washington since they are still in office?

More Americans are working today than ever before. Inflation has been tamed. Interest rates have tumbled. The stock market is soaring. The U.S. economy is better than it has ever been.

Moreover, the outlook for the federal budget deficit looks promising. Recent Congressional Budget Office and Office of Management and Budget forecasts show declining deficits even without changes in current tax and spending policies. In fact, the deficit will melt to $100 billion in 1991 by itself. Why? The improved economic outlook combined with past policy decisions to restrain spending are responsible for these lower deficit projections. Consequently, the deficit mandates of Gramm-Rudman-Hollings Act can be easily achieved through spending reductions alone.

So everything seems rosy on the economic front. But wait — Congress has a better idea: "Let's raise taxes, too." In an effort to meet the G-R-H deficit targets, the Senate Budget Committee has approved a budget plan that raises $18.7 billion in new taxes in 1987 and $73 billion over the next three years. In addition, the plan would raise $2.4 billion in the present fiscal year. That's a total of $21.1 billion more spending by 1991.

THERE IS NO easier way to derail the economic recovery we are presently enjoying than to raise taxes. A tax increase would slow investment, hurt productivity, increase unemployment, and reduce the government's ability to fund social programs that help people out of debt.

But the most important fact is that a tax increase would not even reduce the deficit. The tax increases in the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982 illustrate this point: The act promised $5.5 billion in budget cuts for every $1 of new taxes. Instead, we ended up with $1.16 of spending increases for each $1 of new taxes. Do you know any big spenders who spend less when their allowances are hiked?

Proponents of the Committee's budget plan argue that a tax increase is necessary if Congress is to cut $14 billion in non-defense spending. Upon closer inspection, much of this $14 billion is composed of already-enacted spending cuts. If you take them out, the Committee's budget would raise $4 billion in new taxes for every $1 dollar cut in new domestic spending. Some sacrifice Congress gives up

$1 dollar in spending while we pay $4 dollars more in taxes.

CONGRESS: HOWLS that further budget cuts are intolerable. Let's name the budget debate in terms that everyone can understand: The federal government will spend $1 trillion dollars ($1,000,000,000,000) in 1987. To reach the G-R-H targets for 1987, the Congress would have to cut $28 billion from the deficit — or a mere 4 percent of the total budget. What family or business can't cut 4 percent from its budget without great pain?

The fact is that there are hundreds of billions of dollars that can be cut easily from the bloated federal budget. The Grace Commission has documented $40 billion dollars in potential savings. The best way to reduce deficits and spur economic growth is to cut wasteful spending. But Congress believes that the best way to accomplish these goals is to hike taxes.

Incidentally, if you want to call your senator to express your opinion on the Senate Budget Committee's plan, do it soon. In compliance with the G-R-H Act, the Senate must pass a budget resolution by April 15 — coincidentally, the same day that all of us must pay our taxes.

not take away the legal remedies available to her including the right to recover workers' compensation benefits. Many people have the mistaken impression that just because an employee agrees to a certain job duty, that the employee assumes the risks associated with the job duty, and that he or she cannot recover damages if subsequently injured while performing those duties.

Assume for example, that an employee asks a secretary to take a letter to an outside mailbox so that the letter will go out immediately. If the secretary is hit by a car while crossing the street, the fact that the employee agreed to the extra duty and knew of the dangers of crossing busy streets does not mean he or she gave up any legal rights and remedies which might be available.

Whether your wife is entitled to benefits or not depends upon many circumstances and facts not contained in your letter. We suggest that you contact the Nebraska Workers' Compensation Court in Lincoln directly for assistance. As the Nebraska Workers' Compensation Law has a two-year statute of limitations, you should call (402) 471-2568 or write immediately to: Nebraska Workers' Compensation Court, State Capitol Building, Lincoln, Nebraska, 68509-4967.

To study Neihardt literature

Neihardt Conference opens April 26

When the annual Neihardt Conference convenes in Bancroft, Saturday, April 26, the participants will focus on "The Creative Uses of Tribal American Culture: The New Followers of John G. Neihardt."

The conference annually attracts scholars and other people interested in the literature of Neihardt, the man who in 1921 was named Poet Laureate of Nebraska by the Legislature.

The conference opens at 9:30 a.m. at the Neihardt Center in Bancroft and will continue through the afternoon. It is free and open to all who are interested. Wayne State College's Division of Humanities, The Nebraska Committee for the Humanities, the John G. Neihardt Foundation, and the Nebraska State

Historical Society are sponsoring the conference.

Neihardt, who died in 1972 at the age 92, published his first book of poetry, The Divine Enchantment, in 1900 at age 19, three years after completing his studies at the Nebraska Normal College in Wayne. He is best remembered for his epic poetry dealing with Indian life in the West.

AMONG THE speakers at the conference is William Least Heat-Moon, who will talk about "The Creative Sources of Tribal American Culture." Heat-Moon published his first book in 1983 and saw it soar to the New York Times Book List for 41 weeks. Blue Highways recounted his tour of America's back roads in an old van after he lost his job as a college English teacher. The January 13, 1983 New York Times book review said of the book: "He wrote a book about his travels in order to find out where he was trying to arrive at and called it Blue Highways, because on old maps the back roads were colored in blue. The book is wonderful."

Another speaker will be Bobby Bridger, returning to the conference with increased stature as singer, troubador, poet, playwright, actor and artist. Several years ago, the descendant of mountain man Jim Bridger came to the August Neihardt Day and sang his unique "Ballad of the West." Now this work is acclaimed as a new form of creative expression — the epic ballad. It has been said that in some ways it is a musical version of poet laureate Neihardt's major work, "A Cycle of the West." The Center for the Study of Man at the Smithsonian Institute has praised "A Ballad of the West," saying "... it tells us something of who we are and how we got there."

Hilda Neihardt Petri, daughter of Neihardt, will talk about Native American sources of Black Elk Speaks, the book her father wrote following conferences with Sioux leader Black Elk early this century. In recent years this book has gained international popularity. Mrs. Petri accompanied her father when he spoke with Black Elk.

Also part of the conference are a tour of the Sioux Prayer Garden at the Neihardt Center and discussion and question sessions.

Program should be for needy

Homestead Exemption abused

by Senator Erroy Heiner

The popular Homestead Exemption Program received first round approval this week even though it did not have my support as written. Reports indicated that the program has been flagrantly abused across the state.

I was unsuccessful in an effort to disqualify 25 percent property owners from applying for the exemption by introducing an amendment to LB 1258 which defined the term "qualified person" and was designed to exclude from qualification of the homestead amendment any person with assets of more than $75,000, excluding their own personal residence. I felt that this program should be for the needy.

LB 1258 was proposed by Governor Bob Kerrey, late in the session, with the prospect of using the bill as a vehicle to rewrite the Homestead Exemption Act. The present Act exempts qualified people from a portion of the local property tax placed on homeowners and was intended to help give a tax-break to low-income elderly, disabled, and widows of disabled veterans.

The Governor's proposal required local governments to pay ten percent of the exemption cost which would result in a $3.31 million savings to the state. Last year, this program exceeded cost expectations by 25 percent and this cost overrun caused the Governor to seek revision of the exemption system.

Lawmakers amended the bill this week to have local governing bodies be responsible for the ten percent costs for one year only. Other provisions set out by LB 1258 are: 1) the requirement that an elderly recipient be 65 years of age by January 1 of the year the exemption is requested; and, 2) that the same income limits used for the elderly be applicable to the disabled. The Legislature anticipates a savings of over five million dollars for the next fiscal year as a result of these changes.

Lawmakers recently overrode a Kerrey veto and approved a deficit appropriation of over $4.5 million for the Homestead Exemption Program, bringing the cost in excess of $3.1 million for the fiscal year 1985-86. I voted against LB 1258 because I did not want this amount of money to become the burden of the local governments.

The Revenue Committee is planning an in-depth study of this exemption issue during the interim.

With only six left for legislative debate, many bills will not be acted on this session and will automatically die after adjournment date.

One of the establishments noted for its big band dancing burned to the ground recently — The King's Ballroom in Norfolk.

I imagine there are many people who have a lot of memories of this place, recalling the big band performances that once played there.

Back in 1978 there was a story written in a newspaper dealing with a dance ballroom in Austin, Minnesota called The Terp. Austin is the city heard often on the national news in relation to the Hormel strike going on there. From what individuals tell me about King's Ballroom, the Terp was similar in many fashions.

This Terp dancing room was built in 1938 and burned down on Thanksgiving night in 1947.

The place was rebuilt and owned by another ballroom dancing facility corporation — the same corporation that owned The Surf Ballroom in Clear Lake (which is where rock and roll idol Buddy Holly made his last performance).

MOST OF THE big band names performed at the Terp during the 1950's, such as Guy Lombardo, who played several times there before 1,500 to 2,000 people.

Les Brown and his band played there five times; Woody Herman seven times; Lawrence Welk three times; Tex Beneke, when he had the Glen Miller band, played four times; Harry James played four times; Wayne King performed there three times.

The famous Duke Ellington drew close to 1,400 dancers in a performance in 1951. Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey played there.

There were individual performances of Louis (Satchmo) Armstrong, who appeared with Ella Fitzgerald; accordion player Frankie Yankovic was there.

The manager of the Terp mentioned that the big band dancing popularity, which thrived there from 1948 to the early 40's, began dwindling. In the 50's, the Terp averaged attendance of 1,000 or more people each night — a big band came.

WITHIN THE ballroom facility at Austin are 276 booths that can seat up to 1,400 people. During the good times, up to 40 employees were on the payroll.

As with King's Ballroom, many groups or organizations rented the Terp Ballroom for special promotions or benefits.

When the popularity of the big band ended, it was necessary to find an alternative to that style of music — something that would draw in more youths and keep the institution financially stable.

At the Terp, they introduced rock music of the 70's. In the later 70's, the management went disco. Later on it experimented with roller skating.

One reason the story was written about the Terp is that it was for sale. The previous owner said that his other business would not allow him to run the dance business adequately or to promote it thoroughly. I don't know what the status of the Terp is right now.

But I do know that the Terp was a place for friends to gather and exercise the fine art of dancing.

And I imagine that the King's Ballroom in Norfolk had virtually the same characteristics.

The big band sound wasn't what I listened to when I went to these ballrooms. It was more or less country, music, polkas, square dancing and waltzes — dancing music that would adhere to all ages.

But I always had this urge to go back in time and whoop it up to the big band sound, just to see what it was really like.

I really believe I missed the boat.

Q. My wife is a waitress in a bar, and she agreed as part of her job to participate in topless boxing matches in an attempt to increase the bar's business. She participated in this for about 1 1/2 years, until she found out she was pregnant. After the baby was born she found she was unable to nurse the child, and the doctor has advised us that she has suffered damage to the breast tissue, and that surgery was required. Her employer refuses to accept responsibility for any injuries or medical expenses, saying that she agreed to box as part of her job. Do we have any legal recourse?

A. When an employee is injured as a result of an accident arising out of and in the course of his or her employment, the employee is entitled to workers' compensation benefits. According to your letter, the employer made topless boxing one of the job duties of his waitresses and it was while performing this duty that your wife was injured. A blow to the body is considered an "accident" under the Nebraska Workers' Compensation Law.

The fact that your wife agreed to certain duties as part of her job, and may or may not have been aware she could be hurt by performing those duties, does not take away the legal remedies available to her including the right to recover workers' compensation benefits. Many people have the mistaken impression that just because an employee agrees to a certain job duty, that the employee assumes the risks associated with the job duty, and that he or she cannot recover damages if subsequently injured while performing those duties.

Assume for example, that an employee asks a secretary to take a letter to an outside mailbox so that the letter will go out immediately. If the secretary is hit by a car while crossing the street, the fact that the employee agreed to the extra duty and knew of the dangers of crossing busy streets does not mean he or she gave up any legal rights and remedies which might be available.

Whether your wife is entitled to benefits or not depends upon many circumstances and facts not contained in your letter. We suggest that you contact the Nebraska Workers' Compensation Court in Lincoln directly for assistance. # Cut spending, not raise taxes to reduce nation's deficit

by Cesar Conda and William Orzechowski

Dear Reader: If our elected representatives in Washington act as they are acting on a national plan?

More Americans are working today than ever before. Inflation has been tamed. Interest rates have tumbled. The trade deficit is tending to be eliminated. The U.S. economy is on the verge of a wave of high economic growth.

Moreover, the outlook for the federal budget deficit looks promising. Recent Congressional Budget Office and Office of Management and Budget forecasts show declining deficits even without changes in current tax and spending policies. In fact, the deficit will melt to $100 billion in 1991 by itself. Why? The improved economic outlook combined with past policy decisions to restrain spending are responsible for these lower deficit projections. Consequently, the deficit mandates of Gramm-Rudman-Hollings Act can be easily achieved through spending reductions alone.

So everything seems rosy on the economic front.

But wait — Congress has a better idea: "Let's raise taxes, too." In an effort to meet the G-R-H deficit targets, the Senate Budget Committee has approved a budget plan that raises $18.7 billion in new taxes in 1987 and $73 billion over the next three years. In addition, the plan would increase the gas tax and increase the estate tax by $1 billion.

THERE IS NO reason why federal tax revenues should be raised. The country is presently enjoying them to raise taxes. A tax increase would slow investment, reduce productivity, and increase unemployment. It is a sure way to slow the economic growth of the country.

But the most important fact is that a tax increase would not even reduce the deficit. The tax increases in the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982 illustrate this point: The act promised $3 of new budget cuts for every $1 of new taxes. Instead, we ended up with $1.16 of spending increases for each $1 of new taxes. Do you think any big spenders who spend less when their allowances are hiked?

Proponents of the Committee's budget plan argue that a tax increase is necessary if Congress is to cut $14 billion in non-defense spending. Upon closer inspection, much of this $14 billion is composed of already enacted spending cuts. If you take them out, the Committee's budget would raise $4 dollars in new taxes for every $1 dollar cut in new domestic spending.

Some sacrifice! Congress gives up $1 dollar in spending while we pay $4 dollars more in taxes.

CONGRESS HOWLS that budget cuts are intolerable. Let's make the budget debate in terms that everyone can understand. The federal government will spend $1 trillion dollars ($1,000,000,000,000) in 1987. To reach the G-R-H target for 1987, the Congress would have to cut $38 billion from the budget — or a mere 4 percent of the federal budget. What family or business can't cut 4 percent from its budget without great pain?

The fact is that there are hundreds of billions of dollars that can be cut easily from the bloated federal budget. The Grace Commission has documented $49 billion dollars in potential savings. The best way to reduce deficits and spur economic growth is to cut wasteful spending. But Congress believes that the best way to accomplish these goals is to hike taxes.

Incidentally, if you want to call your senator to express your opinion on the Senate Budget Committee's plan, do it soon. In compliance with the G-R-H Act, the Senate must pass a budget resolution by April 15 — coincidentally, the same day that all of us must pay our taxes.

news and notes

Spring fashions spotlight prints
This spring people are talking about prints. They range from florals to tropicals, punk to preppy, and paisley to geometric.

The florals stand out in the print spotlight. Look for country florals that are slightly faded and very detailed. Liberty florals are updated in dusky colors and muted tones. Cabbage rose prints and delicate country pansies will be seen in intense reds, pinks and peaches.

The tropical prints range from brilliant Hawaiian shirt colorations to sophisticated darks. The floral parade will continue with pastel watercolors of ponies and delicate flowers.

THE SPRING COLLECTORS include bright fuchsias, Kelly greens, clear yellows, and sky blue, among others. In with the sunny colors are the dark tropicals and batiks in transitional tones for cooler weather.

The fabrics include 100 percent cotton, as well as cotton blends. Rayon fibers add a soft luster along with the linen-like type fabrics. Many of the fashion silhouettes for spring are simple tops, skirts and shorts. The simple lines make sewing your own garments an option for even the beginner sewer. Pattern companies have a variety of very simple patterns available that require only a few hours of sewing time.

The print fabrics being shown also help make sewing a simple task. Most prints require no matching and after preparing the fabric, you simply cut and sew. Cotton fabrics and polyester/cotton blends are some of the easiest fabrics to sew and are often recommended for beginning sewers.

START BY SELECTING a pattern that offers you a variety of garments or styles. Reusing your pattern will help save you money. Check the pattern envelope for suggested fabrics and notions. Buy all the supplies you will need at one time, then you will be ready to sew when inspiration strikes.

Prepare your fabric and notions, such as trim and zippers, by preshrinking. Simply handwash everything in the appropriate temperature of water and machine dry. You will not only preshrink fabric but also learn if bright prints will fade when laundered.

Sewing the garments can be a creative experience or a major frustration. Remember to keep things simple. If fabric ravels very little, leave seams unfinished or simply trim seam allowances with a pinking shears.

Garments that will be worn a great deal and laundered frequently may need a more durable seam finish such as zig-zagging the seam allowance. Use simple machine hems and keep hand sewing to a minimum. That will help keep your sewing time short.

FINALLY, LET YOUR creativity shine by combining fabric, notions and pattern for a look that is yours alone.

Have fun with the new fabrics and fashions of spring and summer 1986.

53 teams compete at WSC Invite

Wayne, Wakefield capture two championships

Wayne's boys and Wakefield's girls both finished with two event championships at Wayne State Invitational track meet at Memorial Field Thursday and Friday.

Dan Gross of Wayne captured the Class B 400 meter title with a 52.1 clocking and his teammate, Jon Stollenberg, won the 100 meter hurdles with a 15.7 effort.

Wakefield's Suzanne Stelling won the Class C high jump with a 5-0 leap and Kelly Fredrickson, Shellia Anderson, Michelle Otle and Beth Engstedt captured the 3200 meter relay with a fine 11:02.1 clocking.

Dennis Wilbur, Wakefield's head coach, said he was pleasantly surprised with the 3200 relay time because the Trojan quartet made a drastic improvement in just one week.

"I'm very happy with the relay. They knocked off almost 30 seconds in just one week," he said.

Wilbur added that the progress came about with hard work.

"I've been pushing them pretty hard the past week, and they've been pushing themselves, too, and that's why I improved so much," he said.

"We'd like to set a new school record. They'll have to improve by about 15 seconds to do it, but if they keep working hard they have a shot at breaking it."

Although Stelling won the high jump, Wilbur said she was disappointed because she usually jumps higher than 5-0. However, the Trojan mentor added that he's been working more on her conditioning than high jumping.

"She wasn't real happy because she went 5'2 last week," he said. "But we've been working on getting her in better shape and really haven't been jumping that much, so she doesn't have anything to be disappointed about."

Stelling underwent back surgery just over one month ago.

The only other winner from the area in the girls competition was Deb Uehling of Allen who captured the Class D 3200 meter championship with a 10:06.4 effort.

Jyoti Kwankin, also of Allen, won the Class D 300 meter intermediate hurdle title by crossing the finish line in 42.3.

In the girls' competition, Pierce dominated the Class B title and tallied 173 points. Battle Creek won Class C with 97 markers and Leigh won the Class D title by scoring 90 points.

Battle Creek made it a clean sweep in Class C by also winning the boys' competition with 151 points. Wisner-Pilger won Class B with 139 markers and Beemer won Class D by scoring 120 points.

Run win streak to four Lady Cats thump Briar Cliff

Wayne State's softball team ran its win streak to four with a doubleheader sweep over Briar Cliff at the Lady Wildcat diamond Wednesday.

Wayne State rode Shelle Tomaszewicz's hot bat to claim 5-2 and 4-3 victories. Tomaszewicz finished the day 5-for-6, including a home run and six RBI.

In the opener, Tomaszewicz broke a 2-2 tie in the fifth inning with a three-run shot. Kristi Govig started the Lady Wildcat fifth by drawing a walk and one out later, Mary Lingelbach singled. Tomaszewicz followed another out by popping her fifth homer of the season.

Kathy Didier scored the game's first run in the bottom of the first. Didier walked, stole second and eventually crossed the plate on two consecutive errors by Briar Cliff.

The Lady Chargers opened a 2-1 lead in the top of the second, but Wayne State tied the game in its half of the inning.

Lingelbach cracked a one-out single in the second and was sacrificed to second by Teresa Durbala. Tomaszewicz then accounted for her first of four RBI by plating Lingelbach with a single.

Ronda Peck, now 4-0, fired a four-hitter to pick up the win. Peck walked two, struck out three and allowed just one earned run.

Wayne State had a defensive breakdown during the last four innings of the second game, but Briar Cliff stranded three base runners in last three frames and the Lady Wildcats prevailed, 4-3.

Wayne State committed five errors in the last four innings and Briar Cliff pushed across three runs, including two unearned markers, but it wasn't enough because the Lady Cats tallied four runs in the first five innings.

Durbala scored Wayne State's first run in the second when she singled, was sacrificed to second by Paula Dolosh and scored on two straight passed balls.

The Lady Cats' big inning was the third when Lingelbach plated Shelli Schumann with a double and then scored on a Tomaszewicz single. Schumann started the inning by singling.

Tomaszewicz capped her outstanding performance by knocking in the winning run in the fifth. After Didier walked and reached third on two wild pitches, she scored on a Tomaszewicz single.

Tomaszewicz and Durbala both finished 3-for-3 at the plate.

Heidi Anderson improved her personal record to 4-1 by spacing seven hits over six innings. Lingelbach pitched the seventh for the save.

Wayne State is now 12-7 on the year and played at the Augustana Tournament over the weekend. The Lady Cats play again in a doubleheader Tuesday at Kearney State.

Wildcats pound Dana, 18-4

Wayne State pounded out 18 hits and whipped Dana 18-4 at the Wildcat diamond Wednesday afternoon.

After opening a 1-0 lead in the first, Wayne State blew the game open with nine runs in the second and five more in the third. The Wildcats rounded out their scoring with one in the fifth and two more in the sixth.

Lenny Klaver, Wayne State's head coach, said he was happy with the lopsided victory because it enabled him to insert all of his players into the lineup.

"It's nice to win like this because then you can get a lot of kids into the lineup and let them get some swings in. Everyone got to play," he said.

Kurt Brosamte continued his torrid pace at the plate with two singles and a double. Craig Koehler also collected three hits for Wayne State.

Monty Schultz, Mike Hoffart, Gale Bretschneider and Dale Clayton all totaled two hits apiece for the Wildcats. One of Hoffart's hits was a triple, while Clayton and Bretschneider both doubled once.

Mike Brazda added a double for the winners and Jeff Strain finished 1-for-2.

Mark Priegnitz pitched a nifty five innings to pick up the win. Priegnitz, now 2-2, allowed just three hits and one run while striking out five.

Jose Ruiz threw the last two innings for the Wildcats and allowed seven hits and three runs.

The victory allowed Wayne State a sweep of the series. The Wildcats downed Dana 9-5 and 10-0 Tuesday afternoon.

Wednesday's victory was also Wayne State's seventh at home this year. The Wildcats have not lost at home this season.

Wayne State played again at Doane Friday and Saturday and hosts Kearney State for a doubleheader Sunday at 1:30 p.m. Two seven inning games will be played Sunday.

Nebraska game & park

The Nebraska Game and Parks Commissioners increased the number of available deer hunting permits and decreased the number of antelope hunting permits for the 1986 seasons, at their meeting in Lincoln March 28.

This year there will be a total of 44,650 firearm deer hunting permits issued for the regular season, a total of 2,750 more than last year. In addition there will be five special seasons, for which another 2,050 permits were authorized, bringing the total for all seasons to 46,700.

Last year 49,330 licensed hunters (44,850 permit holders authorized by the Commission and another 4,480 holders of landowner permits) took a record 35,510 deer, a hunter success rate of 65 percent.

This year the number management units, the number of permits authorized for the regular season Nov. 8-16, and the percentage of either-sex permits will be: Blue, 5,000; 60%; Buffalo, 2,600; 70%; Calamus East, 1,900; 60%; Calamus West, 2,000; 70%; Elkhorn, 3,200; 70%; Frenchman, 2,500; 100%; Keya Paha, 2,500; 100%; Loup East, 2,600; 60%; Loup West, 2,400; 60%; Missouri, 3,200; 70%; Pine Ridge, 3,750; 100%; Plains, 1,500; 70%; Platte, 2,200; 70%; Republican, 2,200; 70%; Sandhills, 2,900; 60%; Upper Platte, 1,200; 70%; Wahoo, 3,000; 70%.

The 1986 special season units, dates of the seasons, number of permits and percent of either-sex permits are:

East Republican River Late Season, Dec. 13-21; 400; 100%; West Republican River Late Season, Dec. 13-21; 700; 100%; Platte River Late Season, Jan. 10-18 1987; 800; 100%; North Platte River Late Season, Jan. 10-18 1987; 150; 100%.

The Muzzle-loading rifle seasons at DeSoto Bend National Wildlife Refuge will be Dec. 6-7 and Dec. 13-15. There will be 100 permits available for each season. Last year 200 hunters took 96 deer, a hunter success rate of 48 percent.

The 1985 archery deer season will be Sept. 15-Dec. 31, except during periods open to firearm hunting in the same area. There are an unlimited number of archery permits available. Last year 12,681 bowhunters took 2,986 deer, a hunter success rate of 24 percent.

A decline in antelope numbers determined by summer aerial surveys and harvest data resulted in a reduced number of firearm antelope permits being authorized for the 1986 hunting season.
