Hoch: Keep workers in Nebraska

by Chuck Hackenmiller

Republican gubernatorial candidate Nancy Hoch, while on a recent campaign swing through Wayne, carries three job resumes that belong to individuals looking for employment.

One individual has an engineering background. Another has interests in science and marketing. The third resume is that of a business major.

Hoch is trying to find a job for these three individuals. Otherwise these highly qualified individuals may decide to leave Nebraska for another state.

"If they get shipped out, the chances of getting them back are reduced," Hoch said in an interview Tuesday afternoon. She brags up the work force in Nebraska and is concerned about the quality individuals seeking employment out of state.

"Nebraska is unexcelled in terms of work force and getting the job done," Hoch said.

Both Hoch and Democrat Helen Boosalis were named as the top choice as Nebraska governor by nearly 750 voters in a poll recently conducted by the Omaha World-Herald.

Hoch said she is not a staunch believer of the polls. However, she said she is really appreciative of the vote of confidence. Results of the poll indicate that she has maintained a

Life always a zoo at the Isom farm

By LaVon Anderson

Driving into Allen, a small sign at the edge of the city limits boasts a population of 290.

Snuggled amid lush rolling hillsides, most residents of that northeast Nebraska community think of their little town as a small, quaint, quiet place to live.

Val and Mike Isom may see it differently.

The Isoms own a small farm alongside the railroad tracks, within the city limits.

The Isom farm may be quaint, and small, and a great place to bring up the children. But quiet?

"It's a zoo," smiles Val, and she isn't using the term loosely.

VAL CAME TO Allen from Kearney nearly 11 years ago. She moved onto the farm when she married Allen native Mike Isom in 1977.

"I always wanted to live on a farm," smiles Val. "And then I married Mike, a farmer."

Like most young farmers, the Isoms started out with a few baby pigs and baby calves which soon became Val's chores.

"But everytime we went someplace," smiles Val, "I'd see something different, like a duck, and I'd tell myself that the farm just wasn't complete without a duck."

Val eventually got her duck. Since then, she's also acquired nine ferrets, some quail, three burros, horses, coon hounds, guinea pigs, rabbits, cats, a goat and two peacocks, along with several exotic chickens.

THE MOST UNUSUAL animals, however, to make their way to the Isom farm are George and Frieda — two emus which Val and Mike, along with friends Christy and Jerome Roberts of Allen, purchased earlier this month from an exotic animals farm near Springfield, Mo.

Emus are large flightless birds which come from Australia and resemble an ostrich.

Val has been told there are only about 200 emus in the United States, with most of them found in zoos.

"I'd been looking for a pair of emus for two years," says Val.

After finding out about the exotic animals farm near Springfield, Val said she called to find out what the emus would cost.

"I couldn't see just getting one emu," says Val, "but I couldn't afford two." That's when Val and Mike contacted friends Christy and Jerome Roberts who agreed to share the cost of the birds.

WHEN THE COUPLES traveled to Springfield on April 5 to pick up their new farm pets, Val said she wasn't quite sure what to expect.

"I'm not sure how I had them pictured," smiles Val. "I guess I thought the emus would look more like an ostrich. When I saw them, I thought they looked like a nightmare."

Since that time, Val says the birds have kind of grown on her. "I think they're kinda pretty now."

TIMID AT FIRST, the birds now greet cars driving onto the Isom farm by running alongside the fence line.

Although they can run up to 40 miles per hour and make ideal pasture animals, Val says she plans to keep the emus inside a stallion arena on the farm for fear of dogs running at large and bothering the birds.

When extended, Val says the emus can reach five to six feet and weigh as much as 130 pounds.

The birds eat a mixture of corn, calf manna and dog food, along with grass, fruits, small rodents and bugs.

Val's quick to admit she doesn't know a lot about her newly acquired purchases, but with the help of Laurel veterinarian Dr. Walter Chase, she's finding more and more information.

For instance, Val says it's unlikely the animals will breed because they lay their eggs in the late fall and winter when they are likely to be frozen.

"We didn't buy the emus to breed," says Val, "but we might get lucky. If they do breed, it will just be an added bonus."

VAL AND MIKE are more than happy for visitors to stop by and see the emus, along with their other farm pets.

On Tuesday, eight youngsters from the Building Block Pre-school in Allen, operated by Lori Koester, toured the farm along with Val.

Val introduced the children to Susie and Albert, two of her favorite ferrets, Madeline the goat, and her three burros — Sarah, Virginia and Gus.

Sarah and Virginia are named after Sarah Haglund and Virginia Wheeler — two of the girls who work at the Farmer's Cafe in Allen which is owned by Val and Mike.

The other burro, Gus, is named after Gus Longe of Wakefield, who raised Virginia.

THE YOUNGSTERS scampered from one end of the farm to the other where they also met the coon hounds, the cats, quail, peacocks, chickens, horses, goat, guinea pigs and rabbits.

Inside a shed on the Isom farm, youngsters were able to pet the pedigree rabbits, including French Lops, Rex and French Angora, which Val and Mike sell throughout Nebraska, Iowa and South Dakota.

FUN camp registration continues

The third summer FUN camp at Wayne State College for talented and creative youngsters is still taking applications until May 1, according to Cyndi Swarts, camp coordinator.

FUN, an acronym for fine arts and unique experiences in northeast Nebraska, is sponsored by the Wayne State Extended Campus division.

The June 15-20 camp is developed to better meet the creative needs of students in fifth through eighth grades. Students will have the opportunity for creative learning not ordinarily possible in the regular classroom, Swarts said.

FUN will offer courses emphasizing creativity in problem solving, movement, music, theatre, writing, visual arts and Ameslan, a sort of American Sign Language.

ANY STUDENT presently in the fifth through eighth grade is eligible to apply for FUN. Nominations to the camp may be initiated by teachers, parents or students. All students wishing to participate must complete an official application form and accompany it with three letters of recommendation (one each from a teacher, parent or guardian and the student).

Faculty members for FUN include Mary Ann DeNaeyer, Joyce Mitchell, Andre Sedraks, LeAnn Johnson, Mary Halverstadt, Eleanor Jones and Nigel Buss.

Camp tuition is $135 ($25 advance deposit) for those requiring housing, and $85 ($15 deposit) for commuting campers. The fee includes housing, food, use of facilities, supplies and teaching staffs. All participants of FUN will be housed with families in Wayne. Deposits will be refunded if the student's application is not accepted.

To obtain an application or more information, contact Swarts at 375-3251 or 375-2230 or the WSC Extended Campus Division at 375-2200, ext. 217.

Among the numbers the orchestra will play are the First Movement of Schubert's Eighth Symphony, the Light Calvary Overture by Suppe, and the Overture to Prometheus by Beethoven.

The program will also feature guest soloists Gary Davis, WSC band director, and Keith Krueger, WSC alumnaus from Wakefield.

More to a session than just budget

The Nebraska Unicameral completed its work for the Second Session of the Eighty-ninth Legislature this past week with deliberations on budget issues. While much of the media attention this session was directed to controversies over corporate farming, lotteries, the budget, and tax rates; a great deal of our time and energy was spent working on other measures that will most certainly affect our lives.

Even though the session was limited to 60 working days, over 300 measures were sent to the governor. Many are technical changes or minor changes in special areas; some, particularly in the areas of economic development, agriculture, water quality, health care, crime, and local government authority are significant. During this 89th Legislature (Consisting of a two year period) there were over 1250 ideas presented. Many of the measures that were passed have been in the works for two years and finally were amended to the satisfaction of a majority and received approval. This week I would like to share information regarding the budget and will provide information on some of the other measures that may be of special interest in subsequent columns.

The budget passed by the legislature this year will allow the state income tax to be lowered from 20 percent of federal liability to 19 percent for 1986, and does not cause a sales tax increase until 1987. At that time the sales tax rate will increase from 3.5 to 4 cents. The final budget for 1986-87 amounts to approximately $839.5 million. This figure is about 1.8 percent larger than last year; a year that saw cuts of over $34 million before the budget was passed.

IT MAY BE OF interest to explain the activities that lead up to this final figure. Given the revenue projections originally offered by the Economic Forecasting Advisory Board, the Legislature's Appropriations Committee recommended an $846.2 million budget with no tax increase necessary. Shortly thereafter, Governor Kerrey's staff reported that they believed receipts would be lower.

The Board reconvened and adjusted their projections downward by $12 million because of a drop in corporate tax receipts at the end of March. The governor reacted by saying the shortfall would be in the neighborhood of $25 million or more and the legislature should make up the difference by increasing the gasoline tax, adding a sales tax on some services, and cutting the budget.

The legislature did not support the governor's proposals and forwarded the budget bill to the governor without cuts or the addition of the new taxes he offered. At this point the governor exercised his line item veto power and simply made across-the-board cuts of 2 percent for state operations and 3 percent for state aid programs. These cuts plus a few other select cuts amounted to $32.5 million dollars that were sent back to the legislature.

Upon review, the legislature determined that many of the cuts made by the governor would simply remove money that was scheduled to be directed to local governments and therefore would force local property tax higher or would side track important investments that should be made. Thus, votes were taken to override many of the governor's vetoes. However, the legislature did cut approximately $10 million that had been suggested by the governor, leaving the final budget at $839.5 million.

I very much appreciated the input many of you provided during the session. Toward the end it became increasingly difficult to communicate with individuals as the work load on the floor intensified and hopefully as I travel throughout the district I will be better able to discuss your concerns and provide information.

When a bank fails

Some people may think that if a bank fails and is immediately sold to another bank — that everything will continue as it has in the past with nothing changed.

Nothing can be further from the truth. Last Thursday, The National Bank at Dyersville, Iowa was declared insolvent and was closed. This bank served in a community of nearly 4,000 people. It lost $176,000 in 1984 and $747,000 in 1985. The losses had exhausted the bank's capital, resulting in insolvency.

A Dubuque, Iowa bank re-opened the failed bank as a branch on the following day it closed, assuming the deposit accounts and about 230 good commercial loans totaling $3.5 million. Whatever assets they decide they don't want from the failed bank will go to the FDIC. The FDIC has already taken over some $25 million of the failed bank's assets, most of those assets in the form of loans. These are considered as poor quality loans.

The FDIC is an insurance company, not a lending firm and delinquent loans they obtain from the failed bank must be paid up. The FDIC cannot refinance loans, so if the loan remains delinquent the insurance company has the option of freezing the bank account of the borrower. Releasing of funds can be arranged so that one can carry on in a day to day basis.

Those that typically renew their notes on the due date will have to find financing elsewhere.

In this instance, the FDIC has been encouraging and supportive to the Dyersville residents and are willing to help any way they can.

People in the community are gearing up for the test ahead. The hospital in Dyersville has re-emphasized its commitment to the community's welfare, conducting staff seminars on dealing with the stresses of the area economic situations. Areas churches began working on a rural food pantry.

This bank failure is the 29th nationwide this year, 11 Iowa banks were closed last year. The Dyersville bank provided all those basic services and extras anyone would find at these banks here in Wayne. This writer had banked there while employed at the newspaper. His friends worked there and also banked there.

News of the closing came as a surprise. It was the last bank one would expect to see close.

No banks are immune from the complications of the current rural economic crunch.

As an expert from the Governor of Iowa's office said: "This just isn't a bunch of balance sheets and ledgers. People's lives are entangled in it all."

Judging from what is happening now in the Dyersville community, his words carry truth.

Bills aimed to prevent abuses in dairy program

Despite efforts by American dairy farmers to reduce surplus production, an Irish investment firm, Masstock International, has recently announced that they will invest $25 million in new milk production and processing facilities in Georgia. This action will singlehandedly offset almost two percent of the reduction achieved by the dairy termination program.

What makes matters worse is that Masstock has received $4.5 million in financing for this project through low interest, tax exempt industrial development bonds (IDBs). Clearly, dairy is not the only sector of the agricultural economy facing surpluses and increasing foreign investment.

I am cosponsoring two bills that are aimed at preventing future abuses in the Dairy Program. One, H.R. 4520, will simply eliminate the Federal tax exempt status of any IDB used to finance the purchase, construction or improvement of farm property by foreign persons. The other, H.R. 4519, would prohibit foreign persons, except those operating a single small or mid-sized farm from receiving any FmHA loan, crop insurance, price support, or other CCC benefits under USDA programs.

Clearly, in a time of surplus production and large Federal deficits, we ought not be providing Federal incentives to encourage foreign investment in U.S. agriculture.

Time for groundwater recharge demonstration project applications I am encouraging the Natural Resources Districts to submit applications for groundwater recharge demonstration projects authorized by my Groundwater Recharge Demonstration Act, which was signed into law in September, 1984.

The Groundwater Recharge Demonstration Act authorizes a minimum of 21 artificial groundwater recharge demonstration projects throughout the arid and semi-arid states of the Midwest and West, including Nebraska. The projects will help the Bureau of Reclamation to develop the concept of using available surface water to replenish underground aquifers.

Nebraska has received "semi-official" assurance that the state will get two or more projects if applications are of sufficient quality. It will be a sad state of affairs if we miss this opportunity.

I am somewhat surprised that the Department of Water Resources, rather than the Natural Resources Commission, is the state agency designated to oversee preparation of those applications. The Natural Resources Commission is the agency in state government with the most extensive planning experience and staff capabilities.

'Stop playing political games'

Bereuter: Democrats ignore deadline

House Democratic leadership bears full responsibility for the failure of Congress to meet the April 15 deadline for passage of a fiscal year 1987 budget, according to Representative Doug Bereuter. Bereuter, at an appearance in Fremont on Friday, pointed out that the House Budget Committee has not even met in a working session for over a month.

"House Democrats have been practicing a policy of delay ever since the President submitted his budget in February," Bereuter said.

"The Democrats on the Budget Committee flew off on a costly, highly political coast-to-coast series of field hearings designed only to elicit criticism of the President's proposals, he said."

At the same time minority Republicans on the committee cut short a District work period to return to the Capitol for working sessions on the budget with Administration officials. Senate Budget committee members of both parties were busy trying to meet the deadline.

"Majority Democrats continued to hold hearings, but they scheduled no working sessions on the budget. There has been no markup, and we have had no word on what alternatives the House Democrats might offer to the President's budget."

"Now it's well past time for the House Democrats to stop playing political games, get back to Washington, and get to work on the budget. They have missed the April 15 deadline," Bereuter said.

"It is indeed ironic that the deadline was April 15," he added. "For American taxpayers a deadline is a deadline, but for Congress a deadline is apparently just another day. It is a sad state of affairs when we require taxpayers to pay their taxes on time while Congress can't even decide how the money will be spent."

"The phroness of these Democratic maneuvers to avoid an alternative to the President's budget is very apparent," Bereuter said.

"For one thing, the Senate Budget Committee voted down both sequestration and the President's budget in committee votes, before going into serious markup on its own plans. Why couldn't the House Budget Committee Democrats follow the same procedure. The President's budget is traditionally just a starting point for serious deliberation by Congress, and the Democratic leadership knows that."

"The Democratic leadership of the House should be responsible, quit playing politics, and get down to business. The American people deserve better."

Paying more tax?

The 1986 Legislative session is over and my question is, how can the Senators come home and face their constituents?

They went to Lincoln with only one thing in mind — how can we collect more taxes? This they did by increasing the sales tax by 1/2 percent and if LB 662 passes, another one percent will be added on sales tax. The property tax keeps increasing, despite the fact that valuations have decreased. They now use a new formula to compute the tax and the bottom line is that we are paying more tax.

The frosting on the cake came when they raised the Governor's salary to $58,000! I'm sure 90 percent of the residents of this state would be very happy receiving $40,000 a year (the current salary of the Governor).

I hope many of the readers hear Kay Orr (the Republican candidate for Governor) on the "Voice of the People" program last Friday afternoon. She is presently the State Treasurer and she knows that the state has actually taken in more money than they did in 1985 but its never enough to satisfy our spending legislature. We really need her as our next governor, if we want some relief from all this spending.

The other thing we can do is sign the petition, currently being circulated to control state spending. Since we won't have a legislature that's willing to cut back, we need to get enough names on the petition to allow voters to amend the Nebraska State Constitution to control the rate of growth of state spending and reduce the share of money collected and spent by state government. It is the only alternative when you have a legislature that really isn't in tune with the people.

Gracious lady

I wish to let the residents of Wayne know about the kindness shown by one of our residents. She is Grace Auker who hasn't been here very long. She is a wonderful piano player and played several number on our organ.

A few days ago she gave her piano to the Home for which we are so grateful. Thank you so much Grace for this wonderful gift to our home. I know it will be enjoyed by all of us. Just last Saturday noon a young lady played beautiful tunes during our noon meal. Also our head nurse Mary Michols plays tunes for the residents after she finished with the pill cart and helping serve the meal.

I have always loved music and was fortunate in getting two tapes of hymns by Ernie Ford. They are beautiful by a wonderful singer. So with the nice piano and tapes we will enjoy beautiful music of all kinds.

Q. Are there any circumstances under which a parent can automatically stop paying child support. For example, if a child gets married or goes into the military or moves away from home, can the non-custodial parent stop paying if the child has not yet turned 19? Or, is some court action required? If doesn't make sense to continue sending checks to the child's mother, if the child no longer lives at home and is self-supporting.

A. A parent who makes child support payments cannot stop making the payments until the child reaches the age of majority, unless other arrangements are built into the child support order. Only a court can modify a child support order. The court will consider this upon a request from the paying parent demonstrating that circumstances have sufficiently changed from the time the support order was entered to warrant the modification of the support obligation.

Situations that might serve as grounds for such modification include the child's marriage, enlistment in the military or his/her move away from home. Only the court, however, has the discretion to declare such factors to be a sufficient change in circumstances to justify changing or ending the support order.

Demonstrations to focus on heritage homemaking skills

"Have you ever wondered what homemaking was like 50 to 100 years ago?" asks Mary Temme, Wayne County extension agent-home economics.

Plenty of area 'Bermanisms'

With the increasing emphasis on sports these days, criteria used to select sports programs on television is also increasing.

People have various reasons for choosing the sports programs they watch. The amount of time dedicated to highlights of the day's action, accuracy and announcers' personalities all make an impact on program selection.

ESPN's Sportscenter is in a league of its own as far as sports information is concerned. In addition to numerous highlights, Sportscenter is informative, objective, accurate and exciting.

But the main reason millions watch Sportscenter is because of the anchorman — specifically Chris Berman.

Berman is a sports enthusiast who avoids irrelevant hoopla with hard hitting facts and supportive opinions. And on top of all that, he's pretty funny, too.

Berman's imitations of hockey announcers and his audience-hooking lead sentences are second to none. But it's his nicknaming of professional baseball players that has earned him unparalleled popularity in the sports announcing business.

If one hasn't heard Berman recap the day's baseball action on the late edition of Sportscenter, initially they might not understand his delivery. But after a few minutes, viewers begin to understand and eventually enjoy "Bermanisms."

Two favorite "Bermanisms" are Bert "have me home by eleven" for Minnesota Twins pitcher Bert Blyleven, and Butch "Wyneger and oil" for New York Yankee catcher Butch Wyneger.

There are many others as well, including Terry "swimming Puhl," Jose "blame it on Rijo" and Steve "rainbow Trout." After reviewing many area athletes' names, several possible "Bermanisms" dawned on me.

Each school has different names to play with, including Dan "Gross me out" of Wayne and Winside's Paul "Sok it to me." Below are other area names that Berman himself would probably created if he were familiar with Northeast Nebraska athletics.

Wayne
Holly "Yellow Paige," Robin "thanks a Luft," Shelly "tooth Pick," Dan "Gross me out," Kevin "Griess job," Alan "big Foote," Mark "Crelghton Bluejays," David "Ahman brothers," Scott "Hammer and nails," Tom "grizzly Baier," and Brad vice-president Busch.

Winside
Wendy "lightning Boldt," Tracy "bottom to Topp," Tim Ming Voss, "Mace" yes I can, no I Kent," Paul "Sok it to me," Doug "Cherry pie," Chris "Olson wells," Mary cheese Brugger, and Dawn cook Book.

Laurel
Becky "Stanley does it right," Angie "fig Newton," Penny "garbage Dempster," Stacey "901 Bose speakers," Julie "Schutte up," Jay "great Lake," Kyle "Nixon tapes," Russ "Gade-or-ade," Kirk "won't you come home Bill Bailey," Jason "Swanson dinners," Donna "Herrmann Hermants," Carroll "Manganaro tree."

Wakefield
Steph "Fischer-man," Marci "Sorrow and Greve," Stacey "Kuhl over and die," Boyce "Bartels & James wine cooler," Jeff "I never promised you a Rassegraden," Sean "Neal down and pray," Merlin "had a little Lahm," Paul "not while I'm Eaton," Desiree "Salmon patty," Jeremy "bow our heads and say Grace," Jeremy "Murfyn USA," Michelle "you're Ofte of here" and Suzanne "Stelling bee."

Allen
Kristi "whisky and beer Chase-er," Gary "water Troth," Jan "Kavanaugh Michigan," Toni "Boyle some water," Lana "will either lose Erwin," Kris "In full Blohm," Tiffany "softer to Harder," Jeff "Gotch-ya" and LeAnn "Ronald McDonald."

Northeast boys and Ponca's girls claim Beemer Invite championships

It took a meet record to stop Allen's Deb Uehling from becoming a four-time champion at the Beemer Invitational Track Meet at Wayne State's Memorial Field Tuesday.

Ponca's Jennie Johnson claimed the 800 meter title with a new meet record of 2:29.3. Uehling finished second in the race with a 2:36.2.

But of all the races Uehling competed in Tuesday, the 800 is the only one she didn't win as she captured the 1600 and 3200 meter races and joined Denise Magnuson, Diane Magnuson and Pam Kenneely for the 3200 meter relay championship.

Allen's 2200 meter relay trailed by approximately 50 meters after one leg, but Uehling provided the Eagles with a 50-60 meter advantage after two stanzas.

Pam Kenneely, who has consistently dropped her split time in the event, maintained a slight lead after three legs and Allen went on to claim an easy victory with a 10:45.7 clocking.

Uehling's winning 1600 meter time was 5:56.1, which is a new meet record. Her winning effort in the 3200 was 12:50.

Uehling was the only area girl winner at the meet, but Winside's Lisa Greene came as close to winning as possible.

Greene and Beemer's Ann Schlickbernd both finished with official 28.6 times in the 200 meter dash. But judges ruled that Schlickbernd outleined Greene at the finish for the title.

Jyoti Kwankin of Allen continued to excel in the hurdle events. Kwankin captured the 100 meter hurdles with a 15.8 time and his 42.0 in the 300 meter intermediate hurdles was also good enough for first place.

Kwankin's teammate, Steve Jones, won the 200 meter dash championship, but not without a battle from Ponca's Bill Persinger and Chuck Heald.

All three runners finished with 23.9 times, but like Schlickbernd, judges ruled Jones the winner.

Northeast won the boys team title with 105 points, while Ponca claimed the girls championship with 93 markers.

Area team scores in the boys field were: Allen, 39; Laurel, 16; and Winside, 0. Team scores for area squads in the girls division were: Allen, 64; Winside, 61; and Laurel, 18.

Lady Wildcats continue to roll

With a 24-8 overall record, an 8-0 mark in District 11 play and a national ranking, it's safe to say Wayne State's on a roll. But despite all the accolades, the Lady Wildcats keep playing hungry, and Tuesday afternoon they thumped Morningside 3-1 and 10-0 to sweep a doubleheader.

Wayne's impressive performances of late can be credited to a team effort, but if one player could be singled out as being the most steady performer, it would be Shelle Tomaszkievicz.

Tomaszkievicz is one of the nation's leaders in slugging percentage, and Tuesday it was two Tomaszkievicz triples that fueled the Lady Wildcats to a 3-1 victory in the opening game. Teresa Durbala started Wayne's second inning with a walk and scored on Tomaszkievicz's first triple. Tomaszkievicz then scored on a wild pitch to increase the Lady Wildcats' lead to 2-0.

Morningside pulled within one in the third frame, but Durbala led off the fifth inning with a solo shot over the left field fence to round out the game's scoring.

Wayne ranked 18th in the nation going into Tuesday's games, totaling two six hits in the victory, including two each by Tomaszkievicz and Durbala.

Mary Lingelbach tossed a three-hitter and fanned four Chiefs to pick up the win. Her personal record is now 8-6.

The second game was all Wayne as the Lady Wildcats fanned four runs in both the first and third innings before adding two more markers in the sixth to end the contest with the 10-run rule.

In the Wayne first, Kristi Govig, Rhonda Peck and Tomaszkievicz all tripled, while Durbala cracked a double and Mary Jean Guenther singled.

The Lady Wildcat fireworks continued in the third — when Shelli Schumann scored on a Peck double, and Peck, Paula Dolesh and Govig all crossed the plate when Morningside's right-fielder misplayed a fly ball by Govig.

Wayne ended the game with two runs in the sixth. Guenther started the inning by singling and scored on a base hit by Tomaszkievicz. Lingelbach then scored Tomaszkievicz on yet another single.

Peck improved her personal record to 8-0 by firing a five-hitter and striking out two.

The Wildcats totaled 20 hits on the afternoon, including 14 in the nightcap. Guenther and Tomaszkievicz both finished with three hits in the second game, while Durbala and Peck each collected two safeties.

Wayne will attempt to keep its undefeated District 11 record in tact Wednesday afternoon when the Lady Wildcats host St. Mary's for a doubleheader.

Aggers inks two more cage recruits

Wayne State head basketball coach Steve Aggers announced the signing of two more recruits earlier this week.

Rod Hunke of Snyder and Tim Wobken of Scribner join Wade Behlen as players who have indicated they will attend Wayne State next year to play basketball.

Behlen, a 6-4 point and off-guard from Columbus Lakeview, signed a letter of intent last week.

Don Larsen, Wayne's standout center and forward the past four seasons and one of the most heavily recruited players by the Wayne State coaching staff, still has not decided where he will attend college.

Parental grid meeting April 29

Athletic officials at Wayne High School will conduct a football meeting Tuesday, April 29, in the lecture hall beginning at 7 p.m.

The meeting is extremely important for both the parents and players in grades 9-12, according to Wayne's athletic director Ron Carnes.

"It's a very important meeting," Carnes said. "What we're going to focus on is protective knee equipment for the athletes, and it's important that all the parents and their children attend."

Brosamle and Asay Athletes of Year

Kurt Brosamle and Diana Asay were named Wayne State's athletes of the year during the Second Guesser's Sports Appreciation Banquet Sunday night at the college's student center.

Brosamle, a senior from Merville, Iowa, is a three-year letter winner and three-year starter on the Wildcats baseball team.

This year, the Industrial-Arts major is hitting .412 and is the team captain.

Asay, a junior from Columbus, holds five school records in volleyball and the school's shot put mark.

Asay was an honorable mention All-Central States Intercollegiate Conference selection last season in volleyball and has qualified for the NAIA National Track Meet which will be held later next month.

The guest speaker at the banquet was Wayne native Don W. Meyer. Meyer is currently the head coach at David Lipscomb College in Nashville, Tenn., and guided David Lipscomb to the NAIA National Tournament championship this year.

Wayne State athletes who earned all-conference, all-district or all-American honors were also recognized during the banquet.

WAYNE NATIVE Don W. Meyer was the guest speaker at the Second Guesser's Appreciation Banquet Sunday night.

WAYNE STATE'S Dale Clayton avoids being picked off during the first game of a doubleheader against Briar Cliff Tuesday night at Overin Park.

Wayne State splits with Briar Cliff and Bellevue

Wayne State's baseball team split a doubleheader with Briar Cliff at Overin Park Tuesday night. Briar Cliff escaped with a 5-4 victory in the opener, but the Wildcats bounced back to claim an 8-2 triumph in the nightcap.

Briar Cliff opened a 4-1 lead after three innings in the first game. The Chargers scored all four of its early runs off of Wayne's starting pitcher Kevin Hoffart.

But Briar Cliff had a difficult time with reliever Ed Heritage, and while Heritage was able to keep the Charger bats quiet, Wayne's bats came to life.

Briar Cliff added another run to its lead, but the Wildcats baffled back and pulled within one, 5-4, in the last inning.

Wayne then had a chance to win as they loaded the bases in their last at bat. However, Briar Cliff's shortstop snared a linedrive to end the game, 5-4.

The second game was all Wayne as the Wildcats cruised to a six run victory.

The big blow for Wayne in the second game was a lowering home run by Kurt Brosamle.

The Wildcats pounded Bellevue 11-1 on the Wildcat diamond Monday. Randy Raabe checked Bellevue on four hits during six innings of work. The game was called after the sixth because of the 10-run rule.

Wayne slugged 10 hits in the win, including a double and single by Pierce native Gale Bretschneider.

Paul Calvert also collected two hits for Wayne, and Brosamle received credit for two RBI on a sacrifice fly.

Bellevue hung on for a 9-8 victory in a suspended game that began Saturday but was moved to Monday because of rain.

Brosamle doubled and tripled for the Wildcats during the suspended game.

Wayne State played a doubleheader at Westmar Wednesday afternoon.

The Central States Intercollegiate Conference Tournament will be played Friday and Saturday, but the Wildcats did not qualify for the tourney this season.

Liska sets high jump record

RANDOLPH — Ted McCright might have set a record for owning a track record for the shortest amount of time.

McCright leaped 6-2 to break Wayne's old record of 6-2 set by Ted's brother Pat. But when teammate Bill Liska entered the scene.

Bill Liska

Just seconds after McCright established the new record, Liska tied the mark with another 6-2 jump. And then, approximately three minutes later, Liska set a new record with a 6-4 effort.

Liska's and McCright's high jumping performances helped Wayne to stack up 113 points for a third place finish in the Randolph Invitational Track Meet here Tuesday. Pierce won the title with 145 markers, while Battle Creek placed second with 133 points.

Dan Gross finished the day with two championships for Wayne. After winning the 400 meter dash with a 52.3 clocking, Gross joined Andy Hillier, Tim Fleming and Jeff Simpson for the 1600 meter relay championship. The Blue Devil quartet's winning time was 3:44.2.

Jon Stoltenberg also picked up a championship for Wayne as his 15.6 in the 110 meter hurdles was a little faster than Fleming's 15.8. Corey Dahl, also of Wayne, placed fourth in the event with a 16.0 clocking.

Stoltenberg also placed fourth in the high jump and fifth in the long jump, while Fleming finished third in the pole vault and fourth in the 300 meter intermediate hurdles.

Hillier finished with a pair of second place finishes as he placed second in the 400 and 800.

Gross and Eric Runestad placed second in the 200 and 1600, respectively.

The only other individual placer for Wayne was Liska who finished sixth in the long jump.

Brad Bush, Ted Lohrborg, Shane Geiger and Matt Hillier teamed up for a fifth place finish in the 3200 meter relay, while Al Foote, Seth Anderson, Chad Davis and Dave Heineman placed fifth in the 400 meter relay.

Wayne competes again Monday when the Blue Devils host Emerson and Hartington at Memorial Field.

Things go Lady Cats' way

LINCOLN — When baseball and softball teams are winning, things just seem to go their way. And Saturday afternoon, things went Wayne State's way during a doubleheader sweep over Nebraska Wesleyan.

After posting a 5-2 victory in the opener, the Lady Wildcats and Wesleyan were deadlocked at zero after six innings in the nightcap.

And things weren't looking too bright for Wayne in the seventh after two consecutive outs. But then the Lady Wildcats tallied three runs and hung on for a 3-0 triumph.

Kristi Govig slapped a two-out single to start Wayne's seventh and Rhonda Peck followed by drawing a walk.

Govig then scored when Shell Schumann's grounder was bobbed, and Peck scored when Wesleyan misplayed Mary Jean Guenther grounder.

Schumann then scored on a passed ball and Heidi Anderson achieved her shutout bid by holding Wesleyan scoreless in the seventh.

Anderson finished with five strikeouts and fanned the side in the second inning. The win improved Anderson's personal record to 7-1.

In the opener, Wayne scored twice in both the first and fifth innings and added an insurance marker in the sixth to claim a 5-2 victory.

In the Lady Wildcat first, Schumann singled and Mary Lingelbach walked before Shelle Tomaszewicz knocked them both home with a double.

Guenther had the big blow for Wayne the fifth when her single scored Kristi Govig and Michelle Blomberg.

Kathy Didier rounded out Wayne's scoring in the sixth when she singled base of support across the state.

SHE MENTIONED that her base-building of supporters began from scratch with her race for the U.S. Senate seat in 1984 against J.J. Exon. "I won a lot of votes, even though I didn't win the race," Hoch said.

There is not enough time in a week to do as much campaigning from one end of the state to the other, so having a strong base of supporters is important, she mentioned.

Hoch said she was not supportive of the half-cent sales tax increase which the legislature passed. "I believe the people of Nebraska are not prepared for another tax increase," she said.

When it got down to the wire, Hoch said the legislature passed a budget considered to be a "crisis management budget."

"That's the worst we can do," she said.

She proposes organizing a task force, similar to a Grace commission, to study state government.

"We want to provide the service, but not necessarily the same way," she mentioned.

One way to cut down on crisis management budgeting is to build a reserve of up to $45 million. This is why she supports the lottery — not as a bail-out for building state revenue (because the revenue from lottery would be inconsistent), but for taking the proceeds and putting the money in cash reserve.

THIS PROCEDURE will allow the state government and legislature more stability in planning, offer less short-sightedness and would also likely eliminate extra spending.

Once the cash reserve reaches the $45 million, the overflow from the lotteries could go to economic development.

She supports the intentions of the legislature for a serious comprehensive tax study in January, 1988. If elected, in September of 1987 she will ask for a special session of the legislature to concentrate on nothing but tax, with no disruptions, to seek out a "fair and balanced taxing system."

In November of this year, if elected she proposed establishing two other task forces — one a tax committee that will work with the state legislature and the other in the area of economic development.

She added that "there has been a downward spiral in terms of state growth and expansion."

Nancy Hoch

Hoch said the state officials need to brag about — and market — the strength of the state's exceptional work force. She said a uniform plan must be developed for economic growth that includes a positive business and industrial climate, a fair tax system, offering of incentives and the willingness to compete.

Hoch said that she would be the first "Republican" woman governor in the nation if elected.

For now, she is selling her proposals and strengths as a governor candidate in the same fashion that she wants the state to sell its strengths in the promotion of economic development — with a lot of pride.

Annual NPTV auction airing

Volunteers who have obtained donations of merchandise and services from Wayne area merchants and individuals have played an important part in the preparation for the 13th Annual Nebraskans for Public Television Auction, Auction '86, which will air statewide nightly from Friday, April 18, through Saturday, April 26, on the Nebraska Educational Television Network. Auction '86 will begin at 6 p.m. (5 MT) each night.

Don Boyce of Wayne (Tel: 375-3818) has headed the Wayne area go-getting effort for the Auction '86 which is a project of the citizen support group, Nebraskans for Public Television, Inc., whose membership numbers over 30,000. Membership is open to the general public and members come from bordering states in the Nebraska ETV Network viewing area as well as all parts of Nebraska. Proceeds from Auction '86 go to enhance the programming of Nebraska public television by providing funds for local program production and acquisition of programs.

"The key to our entire effort is the go-getter volunteer," says Sharon Keith, Auction '86 general chairman, and her co-chairman, Sally Oglesby, both of Lincoln. "We are indebted to the Wayne area volunteers, merchants and other individuals who have worked so hard to prepare for what we believe will be our biggest and best auction yet," Keith said.

During the nine nights of Auction '86, a wide variety of merchandise and services will be up for telephone bid by Nebraska ETV Network viewers. More than 75 major items, each having a donor value of $1,000 or more, include such diverse items as tuition grants, original paintings and artwork, furniture, antiques, jewelry, airline tickets and travel packages, and agricultural equipment. Five of the major items have a donor value over $4,000. One of the major items this year is a 1966 Chevrolet Chevette automobile donated by Employees of Northwestern Bell, Friends of NPTV, and Frohner Auto of Wahoo, having a donor value of $6,300.

According to Karen Dahlstrom, Auction Staff coordinator, Auction '86 will have 3,500 items to sell on-air when the Auction '86 whistle on the Great NPTV Auction Train signals the opening of Auction on Friday, April 18. "Throughout auction many people see something up for bid which motivates them to call us with a donation and we are glad to receive these donation calls," Dahlstrom said. Those wishing to donate should contact: Auction Office, P.O. Box 8311, Lincoln, NE 68501 or call (402) 472-3611.

Schimek: Treasurer's office needs good administrator

State Treasurer candidate DIANNA Schimek made Wayne one of her stops Friday as she toured northeast Nebraska.

She is unopposed in the May 13th primary. Her schedule included speaking to a social science class at Wayne State College and interviewing in the morning with local media. Schimek told Wayne State College students that her administrative experience and strong commitment to the state have been strong forces in her decision to seek the treasurer's post.

Still, she said she initially had to be "talked into" running for the position.

When current state treasurer, Kay Orr, announced her candidacy for governor, a number of people had convinced Schimek that she should run — primarily because of her political science and business background.

"I believe the challenges facing Nebraska warrant strong effective leaders. All of our elected officials must be willing to work hard; be willing to make changes when needed and most importantly, work as a team to promote Nebraska," Schimek said.

"I will be a working treasurer and a team player in our statehouse," she told the class at Wayne State.

She told The Wayne Herald that she has the kind of background necessary for the office of state treasurer. While serving as chairperson of the Nebraska Democratic Party for two consecutive terms, she has obtained "a real education in administration, working with the party budget and finances," she mentioned.

"I've talked with several state treasurers and found out you don't have to be a Wall Street broker for this office. You have to be a good administrator," she said.

SCHIMEK SAID she has no qualms about how the current treasurer's office is being handled. One of the first things she will do in office will be to do an evaluation, calling in people from the business and finance sectors as a committee, to see how the office is doing its functions and if there are more cost effective ways of doing things.

She said the state treasurer's office should be enhanced with other constitutional offices, working with colleagues in the statehouse to help promote Nebraska.

"We must sell business and industry on the merits of Nebraska," she said.

Another issue, she said, is that she believes the state treasurer should be a member of the Nebraska Investment Council — which currently is a five-member board appointed by the Governor's office which does long-term investing for Nebraska.

"In other states this situation exists, so this is not a unique idea," she said.

The state treasurer's office is responsible for receiving, keeping and dispersing all of the state's monies as designated by law. In fiscal year 1984-85, the office received a total appropriation of $34,781,692.

"Approximately 9,500 warrants go through the office daily. To see that the local governing boards get paid in time is very important," she said.

The treasurer must also deposit money on a short time basis, which if done properly can result in the savings of millions. She said the treasurer's office is also responsible for recording the unclaimed property in the state, which requires "a great deal of investigation if not found."

She said the state treasurer also serves on the state Board of Equalization and on the Board of Canvassing (verifying vote counts).

Responsibilities also entail financial reporting to the executive offices or legislature on a continual basis.

Schimek feels all these responsibilities make the treasurer's office a big job, requiring experience, commitment and energy.

She can fulfill all these roles, she said.

Ashker trial June 2

The murder, manslaughter trial of Lewis Ashker of Wayne will begin June 2 in Armour, South Dakota.

Ashker, age 43, is charged with two counts of murder and one count of manslaughter in the June, 1985 stabbing death of Jerry Pilhal at Delmont, South Dakota.

The trial originally had been scheduled for April 14 but was moved back after a death in the defense attorney's family.

It was rescheduled for April 21, but was again postponed because the subpoenas had to be re-issued before the trial could begin.

Curt Novaock, age 26, the second person charged in the case, is currently being held in the Wayne County jail, appealing to the Nebraska Supreme Court for his extradition to South Dakota.

Voter registration continues

Wayne County Clerk Orgetta Morris said voter registration for the upcoming primary election will continue till May 2.

Registration is currently being conducted at Farmers State Bank in Carroll, Winside State Bank, Hoskins State Bank and the city clerk's office in Wakefield. Deadline for these places will be May 2 at the end of the regular business day.

Deadline for those wishing to register at the Wayne County Courthouse will be 6 p.m. on May 2.

If an individual that is eligible to vote has moved from another precinct, or has married or has changed political parties, they must re-register, Morris said.

The primary election will take place on Tuesday, May 13. Voting booths are already set up at the Wayne County Courthouse for the eligible voters who cannot cast their ballot on the specified primary election day.

Kiwanis set honor banquet

The Honors Banquet recognizes the highest ranking students in the Wayne Public Schools and it is considered to be the club's premier activity each year.

Guest speaker during the program for the event will be U.S. Congressman Doug Bereuter.

The dinner is set for 6:30 p.m.

EIGHT YOUNGSTERS FROM Lori Koester's Building Block Pre-School in Allen visited the Mike and Val Isom farm Tuesday morning. Young Tommy Swanson, top photo, gets acquainted with Gus the burro. VAL AND MIKE'S little farm just keeps growing with no end in sight.

"I love it," says Val, "and Mike is just as bad as I am when it comes to loving and wanting the animals."

Both Mike and Val are anxious to share their love of animals with others, especially school children who want to visit the farm.

Val says she's hoping that area schools will take advantage of her "petting zoo" and arrange field trips for youngsters to visit.

"Basically," smiles Val, "that's why I'm doing this — for the kids. I'm so tickled to see the different reactions on their faces."

Persons who would like to visit Love-a-Lop Acres can contact Val at the Farmer's Cafe in Allen, 635-2142, or at her home, 635-2265.

When the Isoms began selling the rabbits several years ago they registered their farm as Love-a-Lop Acres.

Isoms also sell ferrets and guinea pigs, which Val says helps pay for the feeding of the other animals as well as purchasing new pets.

Val points out that the ferrets are excellent with children and make very clean house pets.

WITH ALL THE animals they have, Val says the farm still isn't complete.

She and Mike obtained a game farm permit about a month ago which will enable them to keep such birds as ring-necked pheasants, bobwhite quail, wood ducks, Canadian geese, etc.

They also plan to purchase a Llama this fall from Krause's Crazy Kritters exotic animal farm near Hinton, Iowa.

"And, for sure," says Val, "we're going to get some silver pheasants and golden pheasants."

Val adds that she is always looking for different exotic animals and that persons who have exotic-type animals which they can no longer care for should contact her.

"I can promise them their animals won't be sold," says Val, "but they will be loved."

VAL SAYS CHORES on the Isom farm can last anywhere from 1½ to 2 hours each night because, except for the poultry, she likes to handle everyone of her animals.

"They all need a hug, or a pet, or a scratch," smiles Val. "I think they do a little better."

Although she and Mike do the majority of chores, Grandpa Wendell Isom also helps out.

"Grandpa claims he doesn't like all this stuff," chuckles Val, "but he's always here."

Technology & Agriculture

Roy Frederick, UNL Extension Economist writes a weekly newsletter and in his recent letter he comments on a newly released report from Congress's Office of Technology Assessment. Here are some of the highlights from their 374-page report, Technology, Public Policy, and the Changing Structure of Agriculture.

• In the 1980's, American Agriculture is being propelled by a new major technological thrust—the biotechnology and information technology era. The effects of this era on agricultural productivity may be more profound than those experienced from either the mechanical (1920-50) or chemical (1950-80) eras.

• Like the eras that preceded it, the biotechnology and information technology era will bring technologies that can significantly increase agricultural yields. The immediate impacts of these technologies will be felt first in animal production. Through embryo transfers, gene insertion, growth hormones, and other genetic engineering techniques, dairy cows will produce more milk per cow, and cattle, swine, sheep and poultry will produce more meat per pound of feed.

• Impacts on plant production will take longer, almost the remainder of the century. By that time, however, technical advances will allow some major crops to be altered genetically for disease and insect resistance, higher production of protein and self production of fertilizer and herbicide.

• In both plant and animal production, information technologies will be widely used on farms to increase management efficiency. In particular, computer applications for production agriculture will grow rapidly.

• Like their predecessors, the emerging technologies will make considerable impact on farm structure. Biotechnologies will have the greatest impact because they will enable agricultural production to become more centralized and vertically integrated. Although in the long run the use of new technologies will not increase the farmer's overall need for capital, there will be tradeoffs! Biotechnology will require less capital; information technology will require more.

• The largest farms are expected to adopt the greatest amount of the new technologies. Generally, 70 percent or more of the largest farms are expected to adopt some of the biotechnologies and information technologies. This contrasts with only 40 percent for moderate-size and about 10 percent for the small farms. The economic advantages from the technologies are expected to accrue to early adopters, a large proportion of which will probably be operators of large farms.

Tillage specialist available

On-farm assistance with conservation tillage practices will continue to be available this summer to Wayne, Burt and Thurston county farmers within a target area of the Agricultural Energy Conservation Project.

Two tillage specialists from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln will be working with local cooperative extension agents to provide information and assistance on conservation tillage practices.

Paul Jasa, Extension engineer, and Bryn Dolesh, Extension technologist, will work with producers through individual sessions, coffee shop meetings, tours, and field demonstrations. They also will be available by phone to answer questions or schedule farm visits. Jasa and Dolesh can be reached through your local Extension office or by calling their home office in Lincoln at 472-6715.

A number of area farmers have participated in the Conservation Project during the last two years by using conservation tillage practices and by planting plots to be used for field demonstrations and tours. Large road signs often have been used to identify their demonstration plots.

The Project target areas include all of Wayne County and parts of Burt, Thurston and Washington counties. Information and assistance on conservation tillage outside the target is also available from the Cooperative Extension Service.

Livestock Feeders Banquet

The annual banquet of the Northeast Nebraska Livestock Feeders was held Saturday, April 12, Col. Jon Phillips of Sioux City, Ia. served as the toastmaster for the evening. Jay Clary of Norfolk, Ne. provided the group with a very informative, yet entertaining, presentation on communication. A highlight of the evening was the presentation of awards. The stockman's award was presented to Art Greve of Wakefield in recognition of his outstanding service and leadership provided to the livestock industry. The Black Knight restaurant (John Moore, owner) was presented the distinguished service award in recognition of its outstanding support and efforts devoted to promoting the red meat industry.

Krista Ring of Wayne will continue her reign as the Feeders queen. The Feeders Association would like to thank those individuals who helped plan this year's events and in particular appreciate the services provided by the award winners.

Dairy buyout program overestimated

Well-intentioned but unfortunate misinterpretations of terminology and faulty statistics have unnecessarily compounded the impact of the Dairy Herd Buyout Program on cattle prices and fueled negativism among both beef and dairy cattle producers, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension dairyman recently said.

Don J. Kubik said the most misleading statistic, widely used in nationally circulated press reports, is that 1.55 million female cattle include 257,000 calves, most of which will be disposed of at under 500 pounds of weight; 340,000 heifers, many of which will not reach the desired weight of 800 pounds or more by the deadline of the first disposal period, and leaving only 951,000 mature weight cows.

Thus, as far as translating dairy cattle going on the market and to slaughter, the potential of adding significant poundage of red meat is overestimated on nearly 600,000 animals the specialist said. Of the 951,000 cows mandated for market nationally, about 300,000 would have been culled and slaughtered by producers who are in the program if they had stayed in the dairy business, Kubik said.

"Some of these clarifications should help restore faith in the market, based on this more realistic supply information," Kubik said, "which makes the situation better than commonly portrayed and perceived. This is my only purpose for this analysis."

"The 651,000 cows which are the net addition to the market could and should be offset by purchase of the 400 million pounds of red meat authorized by the 1985 farm bill to offset the influx of whole-herd buyout cattle into the market," Kubik said. "It's unfortunate the program for these purchases was not in place and announced prior to the start of the program," he commented.

KUBIK SAID Nebraska dairy producers are being advised to make a hard decision that if a dairy heifer cannot be carried to at least the 600-pound level before the end of the appropriate disposal period, the first one scheduled to end Sept. 30, "to dispose of her by calling the rendering truck, because the costs of feeding and keeping her for the price she will bring just won't pencil out."

The bottom line is that very little additional red meat poundage will be added by these heifers, Kubik said. An even smaller, basically insignificant amount will be added by the disposal of 257,000 calves. These are veal calves, and there is now readily available veal market in the area to serve Nebraska producers, which means many of these calves will be destroyed. The exception may be where producers can pool calves by the truckload and feasibly ship them to an Eastern market, Kubik said. Some markets and order buyers are working on this possibility, he said.

Government inspectors decide which carcasses are classified as calf meat, Kubik emphasized. Calf meat cannot be mixed and sold as ground beef. This meat from the lightweight animals has very limited uses. This means more of this class of animal will be destroyed by Nebraska producers than in dairy-producing states nearer large population centers, where veal can be marketed, Kubik said.

"If all boils down to the fact that processors don't want any (dairy animals) under 800 pounds but may take 600 to 800 pound heifers," he said. Kubik said dairy producers are sympathetic to beef interests who have filed the lawsuit against USDA in an effort to lessen the impact, both actual and psychological, of dairy cattle coming on the market for slaughter.

IN TERMS OF calls for delayed and more orderly marketing, Kubik said Nebraska producers "prior to and since the initiation of the program have been aware of the need for orderly marketing." Many producers, he said, have held sales early and have tried to schedule sales direct to packers to avoid runs on the open market.

While attempting to put a more positive tone on the situation as it has existed up to now, Kubik said there are undeniable problems which must be recognized by both beef and dairy producers. Some of these difficulties can be worked with, he said, others appear difficult to control or influence.

• For export purposes, high-producing dairy animals and their offspring giving 15,000 pounds or milk per year verified by records are the only ones likely to move in foreign trade. These will make up only a small percentage of animals involved in the dairy termination program.

• Because of poor market conditions, dairy producers not part of the dairy buyout program are likely to be slow to cull and therefore reduce pressure on the slaughter market. This may provide significant help in total numbers marketed.

• "Life goes on" in the dairy herd, and more calves will be born throughout the three disposal periods, thus adding to the totals of cattle ultimately destined for slaughter or disposal. However, odds are high that many or most of the calves will be aborted or killed before they become a factor in the red meat market.

• Statements that 65 percent of the cattle involved in the program nationally must be slaughtered by Sept. 30 represent a misinterpretation of the regulations. Actually, producers in the second and third disposal periods are required to sell 50 percent of their cows in their designated disposal period. They can sell up to half of their cows and all their young stock any time after April 1, 1986. Realistically, potential sales could be nearly 82 percent in the first period, 6 percent in the second period and 12 percent in the third period. The 82 percent figure, depending on the proportion of cows, heifers and calves involved, would put greater actual pressure on the beef market than the 65 percent figure commonly used.

While Nebraska producers are not contributing as much proportionately to the problem as producers nationally, Kubik said, there are serious problems, "there are serious problems," Kubik said. Kubik said he has been in touch with Sen. Zorn's office and sent material to other elected officials over the weekend "as they (senators, congressmen and others) attempt to design a system to put realism into the market. Our (Nebraska) delegation's efforts have been in the right direction," he commented.

"Government markets for the 400 million pounds of red meat have not been disclosed," Kubik said. Our processors need to know how to arrange for the contracts for government purchases of this meat. Producers can then schedule the marketing of their dairy cattle with them."

Kubik said he has tried to keep Nebraska beef industry officials informed on his and the state dairy industry efforts to ameliorate the situation for both sectors of the state's animal agriculture.

the farmer's wife by pat meierhenry

It's really the little things that make or break a marriage, isn't it? I always remember the couple celebrating their golden anniversary, and a friend asked, "During all those years, did you ever once think of divorce?" The lovely wife answered, "Divorce? No. Murder maybe, but never divorce."

I loved it when Joan Burney wrote, that they did not heed her father's advice "never to go to bed angry" or they would have gone for weeks without sleep.

One of the problems at our house revolves around sleep. I need at least seven hours of sleep a night, don't fall asleep readily, am awakened easily and often cannot get back to sleep at all.

Phone calls at 2 p.m., for example, ruin a night for me. By the time my thumping heart slows down, I get mad at whoever called, and I spend at least two hours trying to get back to dreamland. After that, it's almost time to get up.

Kids out after curfew can really get the adrenalin flowing; between imagining accidents and emergency rooms, imagining passionate dates and imagining cruel and unusual punishment for the culprit.

THIS TIME OF year, calving season, can be murder. If the weather's bad, the Big Farmer checks every three or four hours. If he has trouble, he doesn't always get right back. I wake up because of the bare space in bed and wonder when he left, if a cow has "taken" him, and if I should be out looking for him.

Sometimes he falls asleep on the couch, and if I get out of bed, which I hate to do, I'll find him there. He always falls asleep on the couch in the evening, regardless, and takes a nap before he goes to bed. I usually read until I get sleepy.

Yesterday, in fact, since the girls didn't go to school and the phone did not ring, it was more than a few. I usually hear the stirring around, throw a pillow over my head, and snuggle back under the covers, grateful that I don't have to get up yet.

This morning, I kept hearing the birds, and feeling various aches and pains. Finally, I got up and took two aspirin. I had a lot going on today, so needed my rest.

I was blissfully in dreamland. I was snowed in at a friend's home and trying to make the best of it. I don't remember what the conversation was, but I had just remarked to the friend, "Those kinds of things can really put a strain on a marriage." Instead of a "warm and tender body close to mine," I felt cold feet! Mike had opted for the bed instead of the couch.

I glared. I said, "Do you have any idea how long it took me to get back to sleep after you left this morning?" No answer. The silence said, "Do I care?" and he was sawing logs. "Murder, yes, divorce, never!" If looks could kill, the Big Farmer would be dead.

Donald Hudman

New director at NE Center

The University of Nebraska Board of Regents recently approved the appointment of Donald Hudman as director of the UNL Northeast Research and Extension Center. He replaces Cal Ward, who retired Jan. 31.

Since October 1981, Hudman has been associate director of UNL's West Central Research and Extension Center, North Platte. Prior to that, he was extension swine specialist at the UNL Panhandle Research and Extension Center, Scottsbluff.

The Texas native received his bachelor's and master's degrees from Texas A & M in 1948 and 1954, respectively. He earned his doctorate in animal nutrition from Iowa State University in 1956.

From 1956 to 1966, Hudman served as a teacher researcher in UNL's animal science department. His research area was in swine nutrition and production and he taught courses in swine production, feeds and feeding as well as undergraduate and graduate seminars.

Hudman's other experience includes being an extension swine specialist at Texas A & M, manager of the Agriscience Division for Wilson & Co. in Oklahoma City, and director of the Agricultural Division for the Kerr Foundation in Poteau, Okla.

Before beginning graduate school, he served as an assistant agricultural extension agent in Texas and completed two-year hitchhikes as an officer in the U.S. Army.

He is a member of the American Society of Animal Science and Gamma Sigma Delta agricultural honorary.

Check redeemed grain for feeding, quality could pose health problem

Grain redeemed under the 1986 farm program may present a quality and health problem when fed to swine, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension swine specialist said.

Mike Brumm of the Northeast Research and Extension Center said many livestock producers will be redeeming PIK certificates issued as a part of the feed grain program, with the redeemed grain fed to livestock. In addition, some producers needing to buy grain may consider purchasing PIK certificates and redeeming them as a source of grain.

"Many producers sealed their 1985 corn at less than ideal conditions for moisture," Brumm said.

Richard Pierce, UNL extension ag engineer specializing in grain storage problems, reported much of this grain — corn and sorghum — is going out of condition because of difficulties in getting the moisture content down last fall and an ensuing warm winter and early spring.

THE UNL EXTENSION Stored Grains Task Force, meeting April 15, reported that grain quality problems in on-farm storage are especially noticeable in northeast Nebraska, which also has a large hog population.

"Producers considering feeding redeemed grain to swine should carefully check this grain for appearance of mold and/or large amounts of broken kernels, along with off-color and strong odors," Brumm said.

"While these symptoms are not proof positive of potential problems, they would indicate mismanaged grain and suggest potential mycotoxin contamination," Brumm said.

Producers who have or acquire grain in this condition and decide to feed it are advised to observe whether hogs are refusing to burrow. Gilts on the finishing floor should be observed for swollen vulvas and enlarged nipples, symptoms of mycotoxin contamination.

"Producers should use caution in feeding suspected moldy grain to pregnant sows," Brumm emphasized. If the grain does contain the right combination of mycotoxins, it will result in abortions and rebreeding problems, along with refusal to eat rations containing the grains.

"Producers suspecting poor quality grain with no alternative but to feed it can reduce potential problems by diluting the grain with good quality grain and feeding the suspected poor quality grain only to the finishing phase of production," Brumm said.

Crop rotation to increase yields making a comeback

Growing continuous corn (or sorghum) became a common practice in Nebraska during the last 30-40 years when nitrogen fertilizers came into wide use. In today's economic climate, however, with high costs of production and low prices due to market excess, it is once again important for producers to look at crop rotation as a method to increase yields.

Steve Mason, University of Nebraska-Lincoln agronomist, said as a general rule, rotations increase cereal and soybean yields by about 10 percent. One of the reasons for this increase is due to the nitrogen fixed in the soil by the previous crop. The amount of fixation will vary with rainfall, time of planting, and other environmental and management factors.

ALFALFA, FOR example, can fix up to 100 pounds per acre per year of nitrogen, most of which will be available to future crops over the next several years, Mason said. "Producers who carefully evaluate soil tests as well as cropping history of fields include this nitrogen in calculations for the next season's application."

Yields from eight-year trials at the UNL Agricultural Research and Development Center at Mead for corn, sorghum, and soybeans have shown dryland crops in rotation far outyielding continuous cropping. Increases in yield for corn and sorghum were an average of 46 percent and 19 percent, respectively, after soybeans compared to continuous cropping. A 21 percent increase in soybean yields resulted after corn or sorghum, compared to continuous soybeans.

"The benefits of crop rotation do not end with the fertility-related yield boost," Mason said. "Crop rotation provides cultural controls of weeds and some insect or disease problems. Rotations also appear to help improve soil physical structure when deep-rooted legumes are a part of the sequence."

RIDERS ON THE STORM: The Challenge of Non-Point Source Pollution
While there has been a dramatic reduction in recent years in surface water pollution caused by industrial waste, more than half of the remaining water quality problems come from non-point sources - agricultural run-off, urban storm water run-off, pesticide and fertilizer leaching into the ground.

BROWNIE ADVENTURE DAY

Winside hosted the District IV Brownie Adventure Day on April 19 with 248 Brownies and 78 adults in attendance. The Brownies came from Bloomfield, Creighton, Crofton, Emerson, Hartington, Laurel, Newcastle, Niobrara, Orchard, Pierce, Ponca, Randolph, Wakefield, 2 Wayne troops and Winside.

Registration was from 10:30-10:45 a.m. followed by the flag ceremony presented by Winside Troop 167.

Peg Eckert, Girl Scout leader for Winside, introduced each troop. The girls were then led in aerobic exercises by some of the Winside girls.

The Brownies were entertained by Paul Mesner's "walking puppet theatre" with the support of the Nebraska Arts Council and coordinated by Ann Stevens, field director of Prairie Hill Girl Scouts of Columbus. Paul has performed "Mobile Mesner" in virtually every setting from auditorium stages to outdoor festivals, anywhere his two legs can carry him. Since the stage is worn on his shoulders, he simply puts "Mobile Mesner" on, and performs.

The show is hosted by Georgette, star of several of Paul's productions. She performs with the usual zany flair and introduces fables, nursery rhymes and vignettes with contemporary characters, starring many of Paul's most popular puppet characters including "Little Miss Muffet" and "The Tortoise and the Hare."

Following the half hour puppet show, the girls divided into groups, some playing games and singing while others ate their hot dog sack lunches.

After lunch the girls worked with Mr. Mesner learning how to make puppets from socks and other materials.

The group closed with a friendship circle, singing and closing flag ceremony.

JOHN DEERE

WITH ALL OUR NEW FEATURES, IT'S THE OTHER GUYS WHO SHOULD BE GREEN.

The competition is exactly what the new John Deere walk-behind mowers were designed to leave behind. Because, this year, they come with a lot of new conveniences and safety features you might not expect to find in other mowers. At a nice, competitive price you might not expect from John Deere.

You can look for outstanding options like adjustable speed drive, which lets you choose the pace of your self-propelled mower. A blade brake clutch that automatically stops the blade and still leaves the engine running. And your choice of a 2- or 4-cycle engine. In fact, once you see what the new John Deere mowers have to offer, the thought of getting anything else will make you blue.
