Plow gets to root of problem

Thanks to a new piece of machinery, farmers can plant their crop near hedges or other trees without worrying about tree roots sapping out the moisture and leaving the surrounding growth dry.

A root plow is now available at the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission in Norfolk. Steve Rasmussen, area forester, said there is no cost to use the equipment.

John Egler, who farms northwest of Wayne, and Breck Giese, a farmer northeast of Wayne, will be using the root plow during the next few days, according to Rasmussen.

Egler used the plow Friday afternoon near some Cottonwood trees, a species with shallow roots because it competes with other growth for nutrients, moisture and oxygen.

With this root plow, a farmer can sever most tree roots so they will not reach into the adjacent field and compete with crops for water. This is accomplished with a heavy-shanked chisel adapted specifically for this purpose. It can be attached to the three-point hitch on a tractor.

In some instances, crops are significantly reduced or even absent in an area up to 75 feet from the tree because of the invading roots. For all practical purposes, crop yield in this dried up area amounts to very little.

The cutting edge of the root plow should reach at least 20 inches below the surface, which cuts only those roots which tend to compete with rowcrops for moisture.

Some farmers prefer removing the brushy cover. Rasmussen said the plow is a good option over removal because as the brush, trees or hedges disappear, so does the wildlife that is dependent on its brushy cover.

One must also consider the loss of windbreak, too, he mentioned.

Many hedge trees or windbreaks are feeling the bite of the saw and blade of the bulldozer. But the disappearance of the hedgerow, can be a real detriment to wildlife.

Courtroom drama unfolds as murder trial is staged

Did Karen Andre commit a murder, or not?

That is the question that must be answered by the jury at the Wayne Community Theatre production of "Night of January 16th" which opens this Thursday night in the second floor courtroom of the Wayne County Courthouse.

The "curtain" rises at 8 p.m. sharp on Thursday, Friday and Saturday (May 1, 2 and 3) with a 2 p.m. performance on Sunday, May 4. The answer to the murder question should be answered two hours later.

No one knows the answer yet but that will be determined by the jury which is selected during each performance from those attending.

Using the term "curtain" can be misleading for this production. There isn't any curtain.

There isn't any set, either, or at least as one would normally expect. There's no bright stage lights, as the cast will perform using the actual courtroom appointments.

Some of the witnesses will mingle with the audience prior to the court convening. All will rise when the judge enters the courtroom as they would in an actual court trial.

"It really makes for an evening or afternoon of togetherness," according to Gil Haase, who will be making his directional debut here in Wayne although he has directed many productions for other community theaters.

Audiences generally leave the theatre after performances of "Night of January 16th" debating the correctness of the verdict. The play is built in such a way that the evidence of the defendant's guilt or innocence is evenly balanced and the decision will have to be based on the juror's own feelings toward the case.

The two parties opposed in the trial are as radically antagonistic as will be members of the audience and men and women who will serve on the jury. Either decision will bring the protest of the opposite side.

The case will be a challenge bound to arouse arguments and discussions for its underlying conflicts the eternal conflict of two different types of humanity.

It is really the audience that is put on trial.

Tickets for each night's production are available at Wall to Wall Decorating (a different color for each performance) and are $3 for adults and $2.50 for children 12 and under and senior citizens.

Only 110 seats will be available for each showing.

Boosalis: Voices taxing concerns

by Chuck Hackenmilller

The Omaha World Herald newspaper poll earlier this week had Helen Boosalis leading the pack of Democratic contenders vying for the position of Nebraska governor.

But Boosalis isn't about to let up on her campaigning, she told The Wayne Herald in an interview Thursday afternoon.

"I won't be happy until I'm ahead on May 13th," she said. On May 13, registered Democrats will go to the polls and elect their representative to go against the Republican challenger.

"It's always pleasing to know that you are ahead. But there is a big, big bloc of undecided voters out there," she said.

Several ways she hopes to sway the undecided into her corner is to convince the public of her strategies in the areas of budgeting, economic development and agriculture.

"I do not support an increase in sales tax, especially right now," Boosalis said.

Per capita income has not increased, for many years, to levels it should be. "It would be unreal to expect the citizens to support a (one-half cent sales) tax increase," mentioned Boosalis.

"But once the legislature decided to override the governor's vetoes, there was no choice but to pass the tax increase," she said.

Boosalis said that if program budgeting was used by the state, it would be "easier to determine in what areas cuts should be offered."

She recommended that the state agencies submit 95 percent of their total budget, plus put in some modifications. "This will force everyone to look at their own budgets and tell us which programs are more expendable," she said.

"Across the board cuts in budgets are not the right answer, either, she remarked.

TWO RECENT legislative actions concerning economic development were endorsed by Boosalis: one of which is a tax incentive bill which will allow credits for substantial industrial or business expansion and additional employee hiring.

"I do support tax and business incentives," she said. But the support ends when incentives are for tax dodging purposes.

The second legislative issue that passed, which Boosalis favors, concerns the approval of an upcoming comprehensive tax study. "The state needed this a long time ago. The last one we had was in 1961," she mentioned.

Fluctuating revenues have led to crisis actions that affect the whole taxing system, which is why it needs revamping, she said.

"We need to have a tax system that has tax equity, revenue stability and adequacy. That is important to all business or industrial expansion and in other areas of economic development."

SECONDLY, WHEN studying the tax system, Boosalis said it is important that the study should encompass the total taxing structure; considering to whom or to what the state will tax for, she mentioned.

A recent passage of the telephone deregulation bill is a measure Boosalis said she hopes has "a protection in it [the legislative bill] so we can assure the people who need the telephone that they will have it [because it is still affordable]."

"I'm talking about the rural, low income and elderly people," she said. She said the telephone is "no longer a luxury item." The telephone, she said, is considered by most elderly as an important link to the outside world.

Boosalis also expressed concern of a proposal of the federal government to sell off its publicly-owned hydroelectric plants to private markets.

"In the long run, that would cost rate payers in Nebraska some $57 million," she commented.

A federal decision to sell the hydroelectric plants nationwide would affect Nebraska more than any other state. "We're the only 100 percent public power state in the whole country," she said.

Because of being public power, the state has attracted industry and business because of its favorable rates. Changing that to privately owned would "not be in the public's best interest," Boosalis said.

If elected, one aspect of her proposals she would like to incorporate once in office is her debt restructuring program for ag producers in Nebraska.

She said her plan, brought out through the efforts of a debt restructuring committee (composed of financiers, farmers and ranchers), would be tailored for Nebraska.

Fifteen other states have worked with a debt restructuring program, with various results.

Short-term debts would be converted to long-term debts and the annual payments would be reduced, according to the Boosalis plan.

One position new

Giese, Jacobs hired at Wayne State

Two positions in Wayne State College's advancement offices have been filled, Wayne State President Thomas A. Coffey recently announced.

Shane G. Giese, a Wayne native and a 1977 graduate of Wayne State, accepted the position of Executive Director of the Wayne State Foundation, and Dean W. Jacobs, who will graduate with a baccalaureate degree May 10, accepted the position of Assistant to the President for Alumni Relations and International Programs.

"I am very pleased two men of the caliber of Shane and Shane have accepted positions with Wayne State," Coffey said. "I am also happy we were able to find people of the nature we are searching for who are both from Wayne State College."

Giese, now living in Woodland, California, will have responsibility for the Foundation's fund-raising activities.

"We're very excited and pleased to come back to Wayne and Wayne State College," Giese said. "Having been born and raised in Wayne, it's something I've always had in my heart and on my mind."

GIESE CURRENTLY is a Corporate Banking Officer for the Bank of America in Woodland. He received his Master of Science in Business Administration from Southern Oregon State College School of Business. While at Southern Oregon, he was named Outstanding Male Graduate Student and Outstanding Master of Science in Business Administration Graduate Student.

The expected starting time for Giese is early June. His wife, Joan, is a native of Concord and received her master's degree in business education at Wayne State. They have a 19-month-old daughter.

Shane is the son of Wilbur and Jeanette Giese of Wayne, and Joan's parents are Qulnten and Alice Erwin of rural Concord.

JACOBS HAS BEEN president of the Wayne State Student Senate the past two years. He was known for keeping the Student Senate actively involved in many innovative projects.

"I'm very excited about the job," said Jacobs. "This was an opportunity I couldn't pass up."

As assistant to the president, Jacobs will be responsible for managing and directing the college's growing alumni system and its international programs of tours and education.

JACOBS OF Fremont will graduate from WSC on May 10 with a bachelor of science degree in biology and minors in earth science and art.

"We'll be starting a new emphasis on international programs," he said, "and we'll try to put together some new alumni chapters."

JACOBS is a member of the Tau Kappa Epsilon social fraternity and initiated Wayne State's athletic mascot "Catman."

His position is newly created at Wayne State College.

Pamida Inc. to be acquired by Citicorp

It was reported in the Saturday edition of the Omaha World Herald that a division of Citicorp of New York has signed an acquisition agreement that would pay about $168 million cash to employees that own Pamida Inc., an Omaha-based discount department store chain.

The story by staff writer Steve Jordan mentioned that under the agreement, Pamida would continue its present operations under its current management. C. Clayton Burkstrand, chairman and chief executive of Pamida, said on Friday there would be no changes in the company's stores.

Under the agreement, the 5,700 employees with owned shares in the 160 Pamida discount stores across 12 states (including one in Wayne) will receive $70.63 cents in cash per share.

The agreement, anticipated to be finalized in June, will liquidate the company and merge it with Citicorp Capital Investors Ltd., a subsidiary of the New York financial company.

Pamida employees purchased the company through an Employee Stock Ownership Plan when J.D. Witherspoon, the company's founder, retired.

In the fall of 1985, Pamida was rated by Forbes magazine as the 198th largest private firm in the country with $449 million in sales.

Potpourri of bills passed

by Melvin Paul
Governor Bob Kerrey once told reporters that he sleeps better when the senators are away.

Kerrey and like-minded Nebraska citizens can now rest easy. The state's 49 senators are out on the campaign trail or resting at home. They're no longer making law.

They left behind a one-half cent increase in the sales tax starting New Year's Day and a trail of more than 300 bills passed into law.

But in the process they made few changes that will affect individual residents directly. Buried among the rhetoric about telephone deregulation, caboose and budgets were only a handful of changes to everyday life. The biggest will be the increased sales tax on everything from fingernail polish to new cars.

Most of the changes will not go into effect until July 17, assuming the Governor does not kill them with his veto pen.

Driver's Licenses:
Senator Ernest Chambers who believes that social security numbers are a private affair was successful in getting that number removed from the driver's license. However, applicants will have to provide the number so that state employees can check driving records in other states.

The driver's licenses for those too young to drink legally will be easily identifiable. A new law requires the Department of Motor Vehicles to use a different color background on the driver's license photograph for minors. Currently pictures are taken against a red background for all licenses.

The State will soon suspend driver's licenses of anyone who fails to show up in court for traffic tickets on moving violations.

SENIOR CITIZENS:
Nursing homes will no longer be able to kick out residents who have lived in that home for at least a year. If their private income runs out and they must move to Medicaid payments.

Area aging offices will soon be offering planning services for the elderly, helping them stay at home by finding services and alternatives to nursing home care.

License Plates:
Pearl Harbor survivors will be able to get special license plates for their vehicles.

Drunk Driving:
A new state law reduces the license revocation for the third offense driving while intoxicated from a life suspension to 30 days.

The maximum mandatory jail time for first offense driving while intoxicated has been increased from seven to 30 days. Probation is still an alternative.

The license suspension for refusing to take the test for intoxication has been reduced from one year to six months.

New Crimes:
Making terrorist threats, including bomb threats, will soon be a Class IV felony with a possible punishment of five years in prison, a $10,000 fine or both. Several years ago the Nebraska Supreme Court declared a law making terrorist threats a crime unconstitutional.

Fee Increases:
Cost for a duplicate or replacement driver's license will go from $2.00 to $5.00.

Filing fees for divorce cases will go up $25. The money will go to a new Child Abuse Prevention Fund and be used to pay for child abuse prevention programs.

The price of dog tags may go up in some communities. Cities which have dog licensing fees can soon increase those fees beyond the current $3.00 maximum.

The state's statutes were also cleansed of some offensive language. The Workmen's Compensation Act is now the Worker's Compensation Act and all the references to workmen changed to workers.

State laws will no longer refer to insane persons, idiots or lunatic. That historic language has been changed to person with mental retardation or person with a mental disorder.

To the point

Competition can be good. It drives individuals to excellence.

It's also good for promoters of the contests. However, statistics show that competing is good for the community business climate, too.

Last Tuesday, Wayne State College sponsored its annual business and applied science competition which involved over 750 high school students.

A survey by the Wayne State Division of Business shows that on the day of those contests, students spent nearly $2,100 in local restaurants during their lunch period — from a period of 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

These figures do not include the money spent by students who attended the two children's theatre presentations of "Toad of Toad Hall" and the track meet which was hosted at Wayne State College.

Only eight percent stayed on campus to eat. The others spent dollars in local restaurants and developed impressions of the community of Wayne.

A while ago, the Wayne Chamber of Commerce members were debating whether or not to continue helping to sponsor its annual Band Day this year. They decided to continue it.

That was a wise choice, based on what we see the contests at Wayne State College doing to our community's economy.

There's been talk recently of allowing educational institutions to pay college athletes.

Of this there is understandable apprehension. Somehow lost in between this proposal is the original concept of what colleges or universities must achieve — providing quality education to our youth, for their future and the nation's future.

Paying college athletes will not ease the crookedness or corruption of college recruiting. It will likely add to it.

Sometimes people can interpret college athletics to the level of a step away from professional sports. A farm club, mind you.

Instead of paying the athletes, let's direct the funding to the students who are eager to learn and are extremely intelligent — but cannot afford a college education.

Nothing against college athletics, but there are times when priorities just have to be re-arranged.

This Thursday (May 1) is opening night of the community theatre production of "The Night of January 16th."

It promises originality and uniqueness and fun for the audience, all within the confines of the courtroom walls at the Wayne County Courthouse.

Also, words of congratulations should go out to the actors and actresses, crew and director of "Toad of Toad Hall" which drew thousands of youngsters into the community of Wayne.

Sometimes it can be fun to go back and remember how people did things years ago — such as making butter or piecing together enjoyable sock toys.

Plenty of individuals got a chance to do just that in a "Pride in the Past" showing at the Wayne City Auditorium Thursday night.

Every great while, perhaps to save money, our family on the farm would make butter on a Sunday afternoon. We didn't use a butter churn, just a jar that required constant shaking.

The lady at the auditorium exhibit where butter churning was taking place had three different ways to churn the butter. I would have been more familiar with the jar technique.

It worked out so well in our family. On a Sunday afternoon, there wasn't that much one could do outside on a rainy day. My parents had 10 children, which was such a help on butter-making days because when one's arm got weary, the jar was handed to the next child in line.

By the time the 10th child was completed with the shaking, it was butter.

I CAN REMEMBER being so disappointed at what remained in the jar when it turned to butter. Seemed like there should have been more in that jar when considering all the ingredients that were in the container at the start.

Two quarts of cream and a bit of salt sure didn't go very far.

My taste buds did not appreciate what our hands had made, most likely because processed butter one gets in stores was more satisfying to me. But then I can relate to what delicacy churned butter was to those on the farm in those earlier years — melting away on warm homemade bread.

My son and I are big butter users. Going without a solid layer of butter melted to the core on toast or a caramel roll is simply tasteless to us.

You don't drip butter lightly onto popcorn, you drench it.

Sometimes when dinner rolls are served in a restaurant, I swear I can hear the waitress mumble: "Jeez, mister — do you like a little dinner roll with your butter?"

Anyway, those are some of the memories that the butter-making demonstration brought on.

I'VE NEVER received a sock toy — but when you think of the practicality of the idea, you wonder why it wasn't considered.

Mari Porter of Wayne was making them at the "Pride in the Past" demonstrations. Doll monkeys were made by her grandmother and passed down to the grandchildren. One of the works was on display.

All you need for materials is a pair of socks with red markings for the heels (one to form a mouth and the other to form the monkey's seat) and something that will be good for stuffing the socks.

The problem I would have is finding socks in complete pairs. That darn washing machine of ours chews up more socks and causes more mismatches than anything that I've ever seen.

It's not my wife's fault because it only happens when I do the wash.

Somewhere within the state of Nebraska and in Iowa, a sock is someplace that it should not be. Heaven knows I've looked all over for them.

Perhaps it is stuffed in a previous closet during my bachelor days.

Maybe that sock is still lodged inside a dryer at a local laundromat.

My suggestion: sell socks for the right foot and the left foot and then add a spare. They have spares for automobiles, why not another means of transportation — your feet?

That's a "feet" that nobody's covered.

Enough said.

More working in towns than ever

Farm women employment critical

by Cheryl Stubbendieck, vice-president/information of the Nebraska Farm
Bureau Federation

It's no secret that off-farm employment income is awfully important to a lot of farm families today. But it may be less well-known that farm women are the largest source of non-farm income.

Often we think of a farmer holding an extra job in town, and many do. But more importantly, farm women in large numbers are working in town, many of them full-time. Like their urban counterparts, rural women's participation in the workforce has skyrocketed. From 1960 to 1980, the number of rural women with jobs increased more than 100 percent, and the percentage of rural women in the workforce is now only slightly lower than that of urban women.

The nature of farm women's employment also has changed, according to research by Patrick C. McKenry, an Ohio State University associate professor. Traditionally, farm women made substantial contributions to their families' income through goods produced at home, sale of ag products and assistance with farm management, and their work was largely part-time, temporary or both.

But nowadays, McKenry found, rural women are much more likely to be employed full-time and to be participating in the workforce on a long-term basis. And, many are working for personal satisfaction and self-esteem, as well as for the financial contribution they can make to their families.

IN SHORT, farm women are working for many of the same reasons as urban women, and in much the same way. McKenry did note some differences, however. Below age 40, urban and rural women are involved in the workforce to the same extent, but after age 40, rural women are much less likely to be employed outside the home/farm/ranch.

Young rural mothers are also much less likely to be employed than their urban counterparts, McKenry found, because of more traditional values, lack of job skills and job opportunities, and lack of child care facilities.

As it has in the cities, the employment of women has dramatically changed family life on the farm. Both rural and urban women hold four often conflicting roles: employee, wife, mother and homemaker. But, and this is interesting, McKenry found that because traditional sex roles are more prevalent in rural areas, rural women expect and receive much less support from family members, friends and neighbors than urban women.

McKenry has three recommendations to policy makers, based on his research findings:

- Educators and the helping professions should focus on vocational guidance to help rural women discover their vocational interests and get the needed training, rather than on programs to help women adjust to the demands of their four roles;

- Employers should seriously consider offering various alternative work arrangements, which admittedly, are still new in the cities, such as job sharing and flex time, to meet the needs of workers who combine job and family roles; and

- Rural areas should receive funds to increase job opportunities, at a level comparable to those granted to urban areas.

Q. Under what circumstances would a court allow joint custody?
A. The court may give custody of a child to both parents on a shared basis when both parents agree to, or ask for, such an arrangement. The parents then have equal rights to make decisions in the best interest of the child in their custody.

Prior to awarding joint custody, the court will hold a hearing in open court. The court will not give the parents joint custody of the child unless it finds in the hearing that joint custody is in the best interest of the child, regardless of any prior agreement between the parents.

Paint or wall coverings give rooms facelift
In addition to spring cleaning, many people begin to think of redecorating at this time of the year. The following information on paints and wall coverings will help you choose the best treatment.

Painting the interior walls of a room can not only improve the appearance of your home but also can reduce wear and ease maintenance. Just be aware of the different kinds of paints and their characteristics.

Most home interior paints are either water-thinned, commonly called latex, or solvent-thinned, commonly called alkyd paints.

Latex paints are very popular because they are easy to use, quick drying, and, after painting, cleaning can be conducted with soap and water. Good quality latex paints are durable and have excellent color retention.

ALKYD PAINTS ARE solvent-based paints that are an improvement over the oil-base paints that have almost disappeared from the market. Alkyd paints tend to be thicker, giving better coverage, a smoother finish and fewer brush marks than latex.

Alkyd paints are somewhat more durable and have excellent washability and are abrasion resistant. They are a good choice for high wear areas.

Both types of paints have their drawbacks. Latex paints tend to show brush marks, and do not adhere well to thick surfaces. Alkyd paints give off an odor, and require good ventilation when applying. Solvents must be used in cleaning.

WALLPAPER ISN'T THE only thing you can use to spruce up your walls. Wall coverings also are made of vinyls and laminates.

Wallpaper is the oldest and most familiar wall covering. The durability of wallpaper varies with its weight and quality. High grade papers are firm, easy to handle when wet, and do not tear or wrinkle readily.

Plastic-coated papers wear better than uncoated papers. They are not recommended for use in heavy traffic areas. They can be washed with soap and water, but cannot be scrubbed or cleaned with bleach or abrasive cleaners.

Vinyl coverings are synthetic films made of polyvinyl chloride. Most are laminated to a fabric or paper backing. Vinyl wall coverings are fairly resistant to soil, stains and scuffs. They are washable with warm, soapy water and a soft-textured brush. For this reason they are recommended for bathrooms, kitchens, or other areas which require frequent cleaning.

FOIL WALL COVERINGS are made of thin, flexible sheets of aluminum or simulated metal and laminated to a paper or fabric backing. Foils and mylars require careful hanging. Scratches, creases or folds affect their appearance. Unlike other wall coverings, foils neither contract nor expand when drying, so air bubbles must be removed immediately. Because foils conduct electricity, take care to avoid touching wires or switches when applying them.

Flocked wall coverings have raised fibers, usually nylon, applied in a design to simulate the look of velvet. They require careful handling during application and care. Some may be washed with a sponge and sudsy water.

Area women invited to May Fellowship Day

All area churchwomen are invited to attend the annual May Fellowship Breakfast, sponsored by Wayne Church Women United, on Friday, May 2 at Redemer Lutheran Church in Wayne.

The event begins at 9:30 a.m. and will include a video tape on the life and history of Hawaii.

May Fellowship Day is an ecumenical worship event that brings together women from different Christian traditions to strengthen their feelings of community and enable them to address mutual concerns.

The 1986 service, entitled "Let Us Speak and Pray Together, Sisters," was written by a group of Church Women United in Hawaii. It reveals the pain suffered by the indigenous Hawaiian people whose land, gods, culture, spiritually, language and dignity were desecrated by early Christians.

Through this service, they challenge their Christian sisters to join in their struggle for justice and human rights — economic, political and spiritual.

Wayne State blasts Westmar 13-3 and 15-0

LEMARS — Wayne State's baseball team has won 10 of its last 14 games, but Wednesday night's doubleheader sweep over Westmar might have the most impressive victories during that stretch as the Wildcats pounded the Eagles 13-3 and 15-0.

Lenny Klaver, Wayne State's head coach, credited his team's recent success to steady pitching, solid defense and especially timely hitting.

"We've been getting good pitching and our defense has been playing well, too," he said. "And our hitting has been very good. We've had two or three guys hit well all year, but lately everybody's been hitting well."

Everybody hit well in Wednesday's second game as the Wildcats clubbed out 16 safeties.

Kurt Brosamle, voted Wayne State's male athlete of the year last week during the Second Guesser's Sports Appreciation Banquet, led Wayne's offensive attack with four hits, including a home run and five RBI.

Destry Jaeger finished 2-for-2 with a homer for the Wildcats, while teammates Gale Bretschneider and Monty Shultz both added two hits apiece.

Over shadowed during the offensive explosion was Jose Ruiz's nifty pitching performance. Ruiz tossed a three-hitter over five innings before giving way to Steve Roberts in the sixth.

Klaver was impressed with Ruiz's performance, calling it his first big outing of the year.

"Jose pitched very well. He's had arm trouble most of the season and Wednesday was his first big outing of the year."

Westmar yielded 16 walks in the opener and Wayne took advantage by claiming a 10-run victory.

The Wildcats totaled a modest seven hits in the win, including two by Dale Clayton and a homer by Bretschneider.

Jeff Rothrock improved his personal record to 3-0 by hurling a six-hitter and striking out seven.

In addition to winning 10 of their last 14 games, the Wildcats have also won four of their last five and have improved their overall record to 14-22. Wayne was 3-15 at one point this season.

The Wildcats play again Monday when they host Nebraska Wesleyan for a doubleheader at Overin Park. The first game is scheduled to begin at 5 p.m.

Wayne State stops No. 1-ranked Washburn, 4-1

PITTSBURG, KAN. — During the course of the 1985 softball season, Wayne State has sparred with several of the nation's best. But Friday night the Lady Wildcats dealt Washburn a TKO in the quarterfinals of the Central States Intercollegiate Conference (CSIC) Softball Tournament.

Washburn, who entered the game with the NAIA's No. 1 ranking and a 40-5 record, battled the 17th-ranked Lady Cats close, but not close enough as Wayne claimed a 4-1 victory.

There were two keys to the Wayne triumph. Shelle Tomaskiewicz's offensive performance and Teresa Durbala's impressive defensive effort.

Tomaskiewicz finished 3-for-3 with two runs scored and one RBI on her third homer of the day. But it was Durbala's throwing arm that baited the Lady Wildcats out of trouble during most of the contest.

Durbala, Wayne's catcher, threw four-of-five base runners out-trying to steal and picked another off first base. She gunned down Washburn base runners in the first, fourth, fifth and seventh innings. Two of her put outs were on pitch-outs she called for.

Wayne opened a 1-0 lead in the second when Tomaskiewicz singled and moved to third on another single by Ronda Peck. Paula Dolech then plated Tomaskiewicz with the Lady Wildcats' third single of the frame.

Tomaskiewicz provided Wayne with a 2-0 lead in the fourth when she belted her third homer of the day to dead center field. Tomaskiewicz slugged two other round trippers to the same location in Wayne's opening round 8-3 victory over Kearney State.

Washburn inched closer the Wayne in its half of the fourth when the Ichabods used a triple and single to pull within one, 2-1.

But the Lady Wildcats added a couple of insurance runs in the seventh and hung on for the upset.

In Wayne's seventh, Tomaskiewicz singled but was thrown out at third. However, Peck followed with a single and Dolech reached on a fielder's choice. Both base runners then scored on Shelle Schumann's two-run single to right-center.

Wayne had little trouble with All-American pitcher Diana Klamm as the Lady Wildcats totaled nine hits.

Wayne pitcher Mary Lingelbach, now 10-7, also yielded nine hits, but helped herself by not walking a single batter. Durbala also assisted with her four put-outs.

In the two games, Tomaskiewicz is 5-for-7 with three homers, four RBI and four runs scored.

The Lady Wildcats played 13th-ranked Pittsburg State in semifinals at 11 a.m. Saturday.

Lady Wildcats thump Lopers, 8-3

PITTSBURG, KAN. — Wayne State began its quest for the Central States Intercollegiate Conference (CSIC) Softball Tournament championship out on the right foot with an 8-3 victory over Kearney State here Friday afternoon.

Wayne, which entered the tourney with 25-9 record and the fourth seed, exploded for five runs in the top of the seventh to break open a 3-1 contest.

Three Kearney State errors and a delayed steal of home by Michelle Blomberg keyed the Lady Wildcats' eruption in the seventh, but the big blow of the frame was a two-run homer by Shelle Tomaskiewicz.

Tomaskiewicz also ripped a solo shot in the second inning to supply Wayne with a 1-0 advantage. Both homers were to dead center field and were her sixth and seventh round-trippers of the year.

Kearney tied the game at one in its half of the second, but the Lady Wildcats opened a 3-1 lead in the sixth. After two outs Paula Dolech drew a walk and advanced to third on a Blomberg single. Dolech then scored on an error and Blomberg eventually crossed the plate on a passed ball.

In addition to Tomaskiewicz, who finished 2-for-4, Teresa Durbala and Ronda Peck both had multiple hit games. Durbala finished 3-for-4 with a double and two singles, while Peck went 2-for-4 with a double and single.

Peck was the winning pitcher. She is now 9-0 on the season.

The four-game run through Saturday. The following is team seedings: Washburn, 1; Missouri Southern, 2; Pittsburg State, 3; Wayne State, 4; Kearney State, 5; Missouri Western, 6; Emporia State, 7; Fort Hays State, 8.

Wayne has now won 18 of its last 20 games and is ranked No. 17 in the NAIA national poll.

Wayne State splits softball doubleheader

Wayne State split two games of a thrilling doubleheader with the College of St. Mary's at the Lady Wildcat diamond Wednesday afternoon. The visitors won the opener 4-3, but Wayne bounced back to claim a 5-4 triumph in the nightcap.

St. Mary's opened a 3-0 lead in the first game, but the Lady Wildcats tied the contest in the sixth.

Teresa Durbala began Wayne's half of the sixth with a double and scored on a Shelle Tomaszewicz triple. Shelle Schumann then plated Tomaszewicz with a single and Paula Dolech drove in Schumann with a triple.

But Wayne's rally was short-lived because St. Mary's used a single, a sacrifice and a triple to open a 4-3 lead in the top of the seventh and hung on for the win.

Wayne finished with five hits. Mary Jean Guenther collected the other Lady Wildcat safety.

Heidi Anderson was credited with the tough loss. Anderson's record is still an impressive 8-2 on the year.

The Lady Wildcats held a seemingly comfortable 4-0 lead in the fourth inning of the nightcap, but St. Mary's scored once in the fifth before using four hits in the seventh to tie the game.

However, consecutive doubles by Kristi Govig and Guenther in the bottom of the seventh allowed the Lady Wildcats to salvage a split.

Wayne native Lisa Jacobsen started Wayne's offense in the third when she singled and eventually scored once in the fifth before using four hits in the seventh to tie the game.

However, consecutive doubles by Kristi Govig and Guenther in the bottom of the seventh allowed the Lady Wildcats to salvage a split.

Wayne finished with five hits. Mary Jean Guenther collected the other Lady Wildcat safety.

Heidi Anderson was credited with the tough loss. Anderson's record is still an impressive 8-2 on the year.

The Lady Wildcats held a seemingly comfortable 4-0 lead in the fourth inning of the nightcap, but St. Mary's scored on a Govig single. The Lady Wildcats opened their 4-0 advantage in the fourth when Mary Lingelbach, Rhonda Peck, Paula Dolech and Kelly Zierke all ripped consecutive singles.

Jacobsen, Zierke and Govig all collected two hits for the winners, and Lingelbach improved her personal record to 9-7 with the win.
