James Buckley — a person which lists on his cer registration an ad-dress of Allen, but practically no one there has ever heard of the man. Still, It was the Dixon County ties which eventually aided law enforce-ment authorities in the arrest in the 42-year-old man accused in the bank robberles.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Paul Boeshart of Lincoln, a former resident of the northeast Nebraska area, told the Wayne Herald on Friday that he has found the Buckley case interesting because of his association with the Dixon County area. It was the Dixon County license plates on Buckley's 1978 Datsun station wagon and a rolled up piece of paper carrying Buckley's finger-prints (found after a bank helst in Etnicoln) that put an end to the series of robberles.

Buckley was arrested in Garner, lowa (Hañcock County) on Dec. 5, 1985. The warrant for his arrest had been issued in October, 1985, nearly a full year after a bank robbery at Lincoln Federal Savings and Loan.

He pleaded guilty Wednesday to charges of the June 18, 1984 robbery of the First Federal Savings and Loan in Springfield, Illinois and to an attempted robbery of a bank in Oregon.

HIS ARREST LAST December was a result of quick, logical thinking — with a twist of fortune — by individuals from Tacoma, Washington and Garner, lowa.

Buckley has admitted to at least 15 bank robberles — the first being h

One month prior to what Buckley admitted as the last bank helst, the Union Bank in Tacoma, Washington was robbed. A Union Bank employee got a glimpse of the Datsun station wagon license numbers and wrote got a glimpse of the Datsun station wagon license numbers and wrote them down.

It was a Nebraska plate that began with county number 35. A check of the license revealed the car belonged to James Buckley who listed his address as Allen, Nebraska.
A check with the Dixon County treasurer's office in Ponca revealed; that the 1978 Datson station wagon, coming from low, was registered on Jan. 29, 1985. The license had expired in January, 1986 and was not renewed, sources from the treasurer's of BOESHART SAID it was his estimation that because Buckley did an extensive amount of travelling, he stopped in Ponca only to relicense his vehicle, then kept going. The license, his vehicle, then kept going. The license, sit turned out, was a key in getting Buckley's name.

Another clue turned out in an earlier robbery. Witnesses of the Oct. 30, 1984 robbery of the Lincoln Federal Savings and Loan said the individual who robbed the business had a cigar in his mouth, wore sunglasses and had his cap pulled own a bit — making the person unrecognizable.

However, across the street in a parking garage where the clothing of the bank robber was discarded was a roll-up piece of paper that contained fingerprints.

So there were the fingerprints, the Dixon County car license numbers and the name associated with the car license. But one ingredient was missing.

On Dec. 5, 1985, a Hancock County, lowa sheriff's, deputy (Scott Dodd) was serving some civil papers to a rural farmhouse. As he pulled out of the driveway, he noticed the Datsun station: wegon, with the Nebraska license plates and became suspicious and radioed for more information on the vehicle.

THE WARRANT ON Buckley had already been entered in the national crime computer. Buckley, a native of Charles City, Iowa, was arrested later that day.

Boeshart said that Buckley was willing to admit responsibility to 17 cases of bank robbery (Including the attempt in Oregon). "I doubt that we would have been able to solve them unless he had admitted it," Boeshart said.

North Main project plans made

Previous plans had called for an asphalt overlay to replace the current brick paving — similar to the work that was completed last year on East and West 7th Street.

"We would like to get it completed by July 4th so that we will have no problems maintaining the detour during a holiday like that," Echtenkamp said.

The detour, according to Echtenkamp, will be from Pearl Street on up up to 13th Street, "We will do the north end under traffic before starting with the other portion of the project," he said.

People coming into Wayne from the north will turn on West 13th Street to Pearl Street South and down to 7th Street.

Utilizing the paving last year on the extension of East 14th Street will also be a good way for people to "get in and out," Echtenkamp mentioned.

Jury arrives at verdict

A 12-member jury ruled in favor of State National Bank of Wayne in a dispute concerning a rural Wayne farmer and recovery of two promissary notes.

This is the time of year when individuals should take precautions against stormy-looking skies. It's tornade season in this part of the country. Now this writer has never seen a tornado touch down. But he has seen the results and knows the fury of the storm. One summer day I was walking along the grove of trees on our farm. The sun was out, but It was a pit dark to the south. About a half-hour later we learned that a tornado had touched down several miles.

But the sight of the destruc-tion was enough to put fear in the hearts of anyone.

Then I can recall one evening at our household when, after the family had finished farm chores, It became frightenly windy outside and the lightning flashes were intense.

Those are the longest minutes one can visualize, hoping and praying that the storm doesn't take you or your family with it. The wind roars and shakes the house—and then it is all quiet.

AFTERWARDS, we saw a tree that had been split down the middle, just missing the house. Beyond the farm buildings, a V-Shaped space appears through a cluster of trees in the grove.

'hacken' Market responds to accident

Grain producers may have a short-term opportunity to add a few cents a bushel to the price of stored grain in the wake of the Soviet nuclear reactor accident, a University of Nebraska-Lincoin extension grain marketing specialist said.

Lynn Lutgen said as of Wednesday (April 80) a price raily was underway in wheat, which is helping other grains, such as corn. It is not the facts, mostly unconfirmed, about the stricken nuclear reactor in the Ukraine — a prime Russian wheat-producing area — but rather emotion that is a market influence, Lutgen said.

they follow the market closely and do their homework.

"The market really is responding (to the nuclear accident and its implications for Soviet grain production)." Lutgen said, noting that the grain market, in the doldrums because of a worldwide-grain-glut, "has been looking for something to react to."

HE POINTED out that the Soviets feed half of their home-grown wheat to livestock, so loss of production in the Ukraine "breadbasket" area is not an overriding fireat to food supplies for Russians citizens, unless the nuclear disaster has long-range effects on crop production. Recognizing the potential long-range impacts of curtailed crop production on the market, U.S. producers might get their hopes up, Lutgen said. However, he referred to an analysis Wednesday (April 30) by longtime UNL agronomist Robert A. Olson, largely discounting deleterious effects-on-crop-production in the Ukraine. HE POINTED out that the Soviets
ed half of their home grown wheat fects—on-crop. production in the Ukraine.

As to specifics on what a producer can do. Lutgen reiterated, "listen to the dally market reports. this may be the only opportunity to move old-crop corn or 1985 crop wheat at a few cents a bushel above the cash market price prevailing, before the current situation unfolded near-kiev."
He urged producers to "not, limit your thinking on marketing decisions—be imaginative," and consider using the options market with the possibility of making several cents a bushel, both when the price goes up and when it come down.

"For example, let's assume a rising corn market and construct as cenario on what farmers might do."

Futures are now trading around $2,00 m 1986 crop corn; with a rally running.-long-term projections would be for a price of perhaps as low as $1.50 m 1986 crop corn; with a rally running.-long-term projections would be for a price of perhaps as low as $1.50 m 1986 crop corn; with a rally running.-long-term projections would be for a price of perhaps as low as $1.50 m 150. Which would be slightly lower in Nebraska. The national average government loan price (for corn is $1.90, which would be slightly lower in Nebraska, he said. Corn under loan would require paying interest and storage costs.

Urging that producers talk, to someone who understands the technical aspects of the market—which are the primary influences now—Lutgen said to consider taking a risk: buy an "out of the money call" as corn moves up toward $2.20 per bushel. "You might pick up 10 to 12 cents extra if the rally sustains and the futures price moves fowards $2.40, the producer should offset the call, take the profit and buy a $2.20 put, he recommended. If the market moves down to $1.90, as some have predicted long-term, the producer can pick up another 20 cents a bushel, he said.

"A producer needs to realize that From nucleor fallout"

Experts: U.S. probably safe

While U.S. monitoring stations will no doubt pick up and measure fallout from the Russian nuclear disaster, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln agronomy professor emeritus doesn't see any major problem developing from an agronomic, soil and plant standpoint.

There'll probably be no more, or even less, radioactivity here than occurs when we have an above ground nuclear explosion, Robert Otson said Wed. (April 30).

(April 30).

A big concern when the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. were exploding a lot of nuclear devices ig the 1960s was accumulation of Strontium 90 in milksheds and surface water systems.

"One of our current concerns is also accumulation of Strontium 90 because if follows the same biological pathways as does calcium and it has a half-life of 20 years." Olson said.

IN AREAS OF high concentrations, there is a potential for people — especially children, since milk is a major source of calcium for them — of acquiring a great, deal of radioactive material in their bodies. "There was a disaster-like this in Windsade Pile, England in 1957 that resulted in milkshed downwind in England and on Into the low countries of Europe having to destroy the milk for several weeks." Olson sald, "so it can cause a problem."

But, he added, "The amount of this long-lived material is, in my opinion, going to be very small compared to the past surface nuclear explosions we've had."

had."

On the other hand, close-in to a nuclear breakdown like this there is a likely release of a considerable amount of a shorter-lived isotope, lodine 131, he said, lodine 131 accumulates in the thyroid but it has only an eight day half-life. An accumulation of lodine 131 on vegetation, then being consumed by an imals near the accident site, results in a considerable amount accumulating in the milk and could be highly dangerous—to the younger people in particular—in the first few weeks after the accident, he said.

"It know there's great excitement about fallout affecting soil and plant life, but I don't think its going to affect us in this country." Olson concluded.

the United States, on the other hand, is going all out in of-fering technical assistance and manpower to the Russians following the nuclear accident at Chernobyl. Our requests for assistance has virtually been disregarded by the Kremlin.

The president of Northern Nebraska EMS Council, Tom Lambert, in taking note of the recent National Volunteer Week, said there are 1100 volunteer EMT's in Northern Nebraska and approximately 6,000 statewide.

There are countless others involved in CPR, First Aid, First Responders and other emergency response persons. They are directly responsible for saving countless lives and they save countless dollars for the taxpayers.

Over the past decade, there has been a 45 percent reduction in sudden cardiac deaths and trauma deaths.

Lambert said volunteers have played a very large role in that reduction. He noted that if the volunteers had been paid employees, even at minimum wage, such care and lifesaving services would put many communities into bankruptcy if services were provided by that particular community.

An Illinois study, on the effects of driver education training, had analyzed data on 516,776 students.

There findings showed that the untrained students were invovled in 493 traffic violations and 111 accidents per 1,000 drivers. The corresponding figures for the driver education group were 171 traffic violations and 56 accidents per 1,000 drivers.

Another thing worth mentioning: Alcohol is the single largest factor involved in automobile deaths. Every driver education program has been provided a special alcohol curriculum for instructional purposes, to help reduce these traffic deaths involving alcohol.

Q. If you break your engagement, are there any guidelines about who may keep the ring, or what to do with the gifts received?

A. The determination of whether a gift must be returned when an engagement is broken depends on the infent behind the gift. If the man gives the woman gifts before they are engaged, courts will usually find that such gifts need not be returned, since they are thought to be expressions of the man's regard. In other words, such gifts are not made in contemplation of marriage and thus have the status of unconditional gifts. On the other hand, an engagement ring is a conditional gift, since it is given to the woman in contemplation of the couple's marriage. Once a gift is found to be conditional, it must be returned if the engagement is broken without justification by the woman. If the man breaks the engagement without justification, however, the woman may keep the ring. an breaks the engagement without justification, however, the woman may sep the ring.

Giffs made by others to the couple before their marriage are also condi-onal, and should be returned when the engagement is broken.

ETV plans to reduce broadcast hours

The Nebraska Educational Television Network—a joint operation of the Nebraska Educational Telecommunications Commission and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln—will begin a reduced broadcast day, effective June 2, in response to cuts made in the Commission's 1986-87 budget.

McBride said. "This represents the first subback in broadcast service since the Network began its statewide broadcasting in 1963."

The total Network problem, however, is even more serious. McBride explained. In addition, Federal grants to both the Commission and the University's stelevision station will be reduced, as they are based on non-Federal funding generated by public television stations during each operational year, according to McBrides. Though the total amount of additional reduction cannot be determined until the close of the pressnt fiscal year, McBride indicated that the combined funding losses for the next fiscal year will mean a reduction of personnel, a reduction in programs produced by the Network, and reduction of pro-

Rothrock and Ruiz key Wayne State sweep

SIOUX/CENTER, IOWA — Two weeks ago double against Briar Clift, wayne State head coach Lenny Klaver discussed his concern about his pitching staff to surrounding reporters and assistant coaches. But the pitching effort he received here Wednesday night has turned Klaver's concern 180 degrees in the other direction. "The pitching was just outstanding," he said after his club downed Dordt 2-0 and 3-1.

Much of Klaver's praise centered around Jeff Rothrock, Rothrock struck, out nine, only allowed two walks, and just missed a no-hitter in the opener.

Rothrock's no-hit bid was ruined in Rothrock's no-hit bid was ruined in the 7th with one out on a controversial call, according to Klaver.

"The hitter hit it just past the mound and (Dale) Clayton fielded it and threw it to first. From where I was at, it looked like he threw him out, but the umpire called him safe," Klaver sald.

Although a tad disappointed Rothrock's no-hitter was lost, Klaver was obvlously more overloyed with his club's -\u03c4cfory.
"We're playing good ball. We've won seven in a row now, and 14 of our last 18. We're getting good pitching and filelding, and timely hitting," he said.

wayne bowling

Senior Citizens
On Tuesday, April 29, 16 senior citizens bowled in league action at Melodee Lanes. The Orto Baler feam downed the Ben Fuelberth team 3,612-3,529.

High series and games were bowled, by: Warren Austin, 508,176;
Milton Matthew, 507,180; Vern Harder, 484,165; Gilbert Rauss, 478,170; Glenn Walker, 459,172; Otto Baler, 442,161; and Art Brummond.

Bat control keyed Wayne in the se-cond inning of the nightcap when the Wildcats made all three runs they scored stand up for a 3-1 victory.

Pat Salerno started Wayne's se-cond with a single and Gale Bretschneider followed by reaching on an error. Jeff Strain then loaded the bases by drawing a walk.

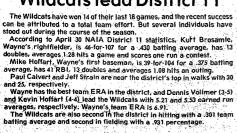

One out later, Koehler and Paul Calvert laid down perfect squeeze bunts to plate Salerno and Bretschneider. The bunts were so perfect, in fact, that Koehler and Calvert were both awarded singles.

But it was the third Wildcat RBI that was, perhaps, the most impressive. With Strain standing on third, Clayton squered around as if to squeeze home another run. But with the infletd charging, Clayton slashed at the ball and blooped it over the pticher's mound to plate Strain.

then pitched the seventh to record his fourth save. 20 on the year, while Rulz is now 2-0 on the year, while Rothrock is 4-4. Wayne improved to 18-22 overall. The Wildcats entertained Peru State Friday night and Saturday, and will compete in the Dristict 11 Playoffs science, math and foreign language teachers in new teaching techniques was started. The goal of the project is to create a state-wide network of outstanding, K-12 teachers who can provide assistance in local schools.

Nominations were made through

al Service Units

around the state.

Teachers selected will attend a one-week training institute in early June and will then serve as valuable Human Resource Teams for each ESU and the Nebraska State Department of Education.

Each ESU selected seven (7) cadre members. Wayne High School is proud to have two (2) teachers selected; Edith Zahniser. Foreign Language and Judy Zobel, Physical Science.

Honors and Awards
A great deal of attention is afforded to elementary and secondary students who participate in athletics, drama, music, and debate. They are given medals, certificates, letters, banquels, and much attention by the media. By the time these students graduate from high school, they usually have many honors and awards. But the students who do not participate in these and similar activities often receive little recognition. Indeed, most students complete their academic studies with no honors, awards, or celebration other than the high school graduation exercise.

At a time when academic achieve-ment is being emphasized, many parents are puzzled as to why this condition exists. It's true, if a student is elected to the National Honor Society or is the recipient of an im-portant scholarship, he or she may receive a certificate and some media attention. But few students are elected to the National Honor Socie-ty; and few students are left out of the limelight.

ships. So, most students are left out of the limelight.

There Is a newsmedia truism that If a dog bites a man, that isn't news. That incident isn't newsworthy because it happens too frequently. But should a man happen to bite a dog, the incident may well warrant a headline. The purpose of the schools is learning, and fearning is part of the ordinary routine. That doesn't always make it newsworth though learning is always god But we, as parents, would do remember that learning is But we, as parents, would do well or remember, that learning is its own honor and reward. It is more important than any certificate, medal, of news coverage that students might receive. Once we learn something, no one can take it from us. And we can benefit from it all of our lives. That is a true honor and a real award.

The certificates, medals, and letters a student receives are nacked upset that so much attention is pair, to the extracurricular successes of students while so little is given to academic achievement. If Is a characteristic of human society to honor those who entertain us and amuse us more than those who lebor; day after day to keep civilization on course. That reality shouldn't disturb is It is much more limportant that. course. That reality shouldn't disturb us. It is much more important that we as parents honor our children for their—scademic achievement in school rather than lament the absence of honors and awards for academic achievement.

The most significant adults in any child's life are his or her parents. If we cherish learning for ourselves and our children, and if we praise our children, and if we praise our children for their learning successes.

Choir joins with symphony

The Wayne State College Concert Choir will be finishing the year on a rousing note when it joins ranks with the Omaha, Symphony Orchestra in performances on May 8 and 10 of the "Resurrection" Symphony by Gustav Mahler in the Orpheum Theatre.

Gustav Mahler in the Orpheum Theatre.

The Omaha Symphony is directed and conducted by Bruce Hangen.

"It's our first opportunity ever to be asked to perform with the largest symphony in the state," said Dr. Corinell Runestad, WSC conductor." We are very happy to be asked, especially when other college groups nearby were not."

ly when other coneye governed to the work not."

The Mahler Symphony is a large, extended work lasting more than an hour and includes chorus in the last movement. Because the orchestra will number more than 100 players for this performance, large numbers of singers are needed for balance. Joining the WSC choir will be choirs from Nebraska Wesleyan and the University of Nebraska desleyan and the University of Nebraska at Omaha. The performance will also be broadcast live on Nebraska Educational TV and simulcast in stereo by Omaha FM station KVNO (90.7), Runestad said.

Although this is the choir's first performance with the Omaha Symphony, Runestad said Wayne State singers have performed in the Orpheum before. In 1976 they performed AIDA with Opera Omaha.
