Of first degree murder

Jury finds Ashker guilty

by Chuck Hackenmilller

Wayne resident Lewis Ashker was found guilty Tuesday evening by a 12-member jury on charges of first degree murder in the stabbing death of Jerry Pilhal of Delmont, South Dakota.

Kurt Novack, also of Wayne and charged, with first degree murder/first degree manslaughter in the stabbing death of Pilhal in June of 1985, remains at the Wayne County Jail after asking the Nebraska Supreme Court to stop his extradition to South Dakota.

Both Ashker and Novack were arrested in early December of last year following a grand jury investigation that produced the charges of murder and manslaughter. At the beginning, each of the suspects fought extradition from Wayne County to Armour, South Dakota — where the trial on the charges were to take place.

However, in January Ashker decided to be extradited to South Dakota and he was transferred to the jail facility at Lake Andes, South Dakota.

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of last week, selection of the 12 member jury took place and the trial testimony began on Thursday.

Slides of Pilhal's body were shown that day, showing several of the stab wounds to the throat and several more to various other parts of the body. It was also brought up in testimony that Novack had lived next to Pilhal for several months, and that a witness had seen Novack from the passenger side of a vehicle which was in the locale during the time frame of the murder.

Several other witnesses mentioned seeing the vehicle and two individuals inside. One of them had noticed that the vehicle had Nebraska license plates, according to one newspaper report. It was also testified that tire tracks and a pen with the name of the First National Bank in Wayne were found in Pilhal's backyard.

MOST OF FRIDAY'S testimony centered around testimony that paint chips that were found on a clothes line post in Pilhal's backyard and how the evidence was linked to the paint of a pickup that had been registered to Ashker's wife, Victoria. Hair samples taken from Pilhal's hands and neck, were compared with hairs of Ashker, but it could not be determined who the hairs came from.

On Monday, Mrs. Novack testified by disposition. Her sworn statement revealed that she and her husband had moved next door to Pilhal in April of 1983 and they considered Pilhal a friend and good neighbor. Novacks then moved to Pender and later to Wayne, where she said her husband met Ashker on a house painting job.

In the statement, Mrs. Novack overheard a conversation in her home, between her husband and Ashker (on June 15, 1985), in which Ashker said he was planning to leave his wife and go back to Denver. When Mrs. Novack left to take her daughter to the doctor, the men were gone when she returned.

HER HUSBAND arrived home late that night, she said, but there was no blood on the clothes he was wearing.

However, another witness stated that Mrs. Novack had mentioned finding blood on Mr. Novack's clothing and that she either threw the clothing away or burned it. The prosecution rested its case Monday.

Final arguments before the jury and Judge Paul Kern were presented on Tuesday and the jury went into deliberation, beginning at approximately 12:30 p.m., for nine hours.

Prosecuting and Assistant State Attorney Jon Erickson told The Wayne Herald on Wednesday morning that the guilty verdict proves cases can be won on the type of evidence presented in the Ashker trial.

It was a case of "putting two and two together", Erickson said.

What he believed convinced the jury that it was a premeditated murder, he said, was that of the nature of the wound and the evidence showing that while Pilhal laid in a pool of blood he had been stabbed several more times.

Other significant evidence he felt was instrumental in gaining the conviction against Ashker was the green and white paint on the pickup which matched the chips on the clothes line pole in Pilhal's backyard.

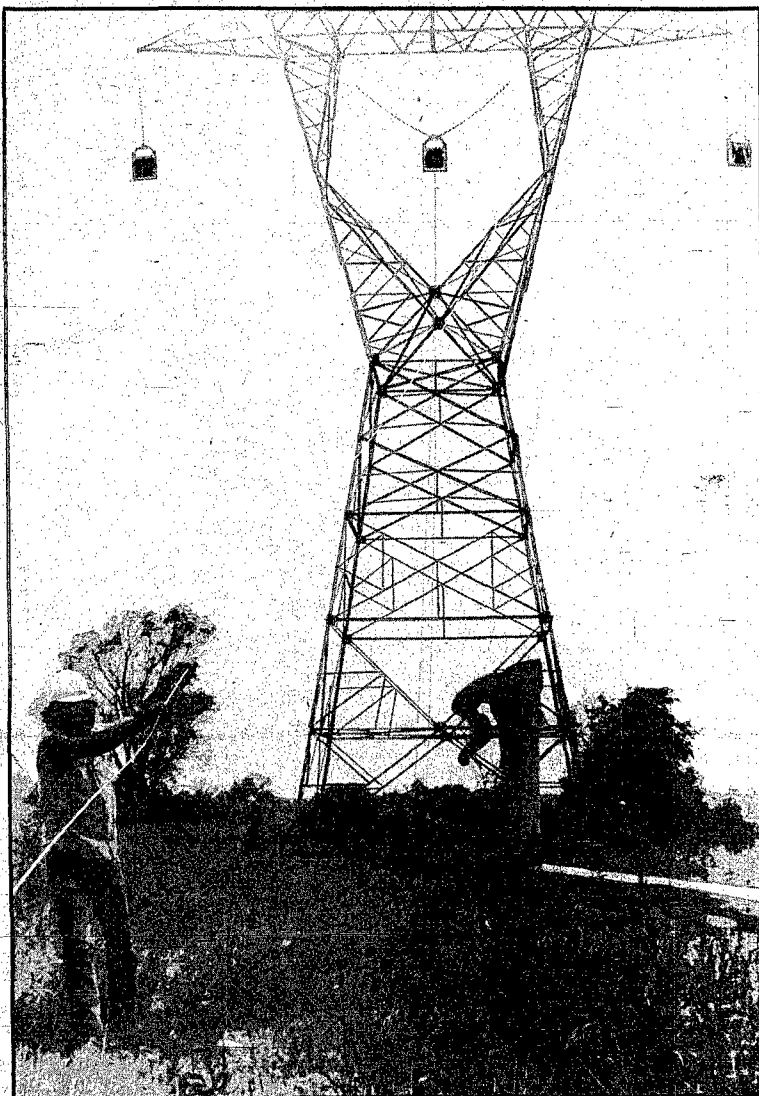

EVEN MORE damaging to the defense, he said, was the type of damage done to the pole and the pickup.

And upon initial questioning prior to Ashker's arrest in December, Ashker had mentioned to law enforcement officials that he had spent his entire time, during a time period when the had taken place, with Novack, an individual who was recognized by a witness in the location of the slaying of Pilhal.

It is anticipated that Ashker will be appealing the conviction.

In an interview conducted with Ashker in December, he told The Wayne Herald that "there's nobody that can say they saw me up there. The whole thing evidently stems from the fact that I won't deny that Kurt (Novack) is a friend of mine and that he was in my company."

He said he had a record prior to his arrest in December, that of assaulting an officer in Washington and secondly, the intent to commit grand larceny in Colorado.

Federal mediator brought in

ESU staff contracts unsettled

By LaVon Anderson

The board of directors of Educational Service Unit One has chosen to utilize federal mediation in an attempt to settle contract negotiations with ESU 1 staffers for the 1985-86 school year.

During a meeting Tuesday night in Wakefield, board members voted unanimously to make use of a federal mediator and instructed the attorney for ESU 1 to proceed appropriately.

The unanimous ballot was cast following an executive session with the board's attorney, John Gerrard of Norfolk, which lasted nearly one-half hour.

Following the meeting, board chairman Marvin Borg of Concord told The Wayne Herald that if the ESU board and ESU Education Association cannot reach an agreement through the use of a federal mediator, the matter of contract negotiations may still be taken before the Commission of Industrial Relations.

ESU 1 AUDIOLOGIST Vernae Bosch was a visitor at Tuesday night's board meeting and spoke to board members regarding the concern that the public, including elected officials, are not fully aware of the services provided by Educational Service Units.

Bosch told the board that during a meeting last fall of the Nebraska State Education Association, ESU employees vowed to take every opportunity to speak to the public regarding ESU activities.

Since then, Bosch said ESU employees have provided services, spoken to various community clubs, and taken part in health fairs — all in an attempt to educate the public regarding the function of Educational Service Units.

Bosch asked ESU 1 board members for their assistance. "You guys are spread throughout the six-county area we serve," said Bosch, "and what I'm asking is that whenever you see an opportunity for an ESU employee to speak, please let us know."

Bosch also suggested that before each monthly board meeting, various ESU 1 employees be given the opportunity to present brief overviews of the departments they serve and the services they provide.

"It would keep you (board members) up to date and give you the opportunity to meet more of the employees," said Bosch, "and it would also be an opportunity for employees to meet the decision makers."

BOARD MEMBERS Tuesday night were presented a preliminary budget for the 1986-87 year as prepared by Assistant Administrator Rodney Garwood.

Garwood stressed that the preliminary budget is a very rough draft and will undergo several changes before it is formally presented.

In the preliminary report, Garwood stated that the revaluing of property values within the unit will have an adverse effect on revenue generated by the tax levy.

"The real question," said Garwood, "is how much will the drop be?" Garwood said figures on a county-wide basis range from a low of 2 to 3 percent to a high of 10 percent.

In preparing the preliminary budget, Garwood said the beginning questimate was based on 5 percent.

Preliminary estimated unit valuation figures for the 1986-87 year total $1,459,926,619. That compares with the 1985-86 figure of $1,536,764,862, for a total decrease in valuation of $76,838,243.

Based on those figures, the levy is expected to generate about $505,000 of the $2.17 million budget proposed at this time, including cash reserves.

The new budget shows a slight decrease over last year's budget of $2,284,379.

Discussion of the 1986-87 budget will continue next month, with final HOSKINS-RAUN LINE PROJECT, started in 1978 by Nebraska Public Power District, is currently making its way across 20 miles of Wayne County. The 63 mile line originates at the Hoskins Substation and ends at the Iowa Public Service Substation in Raun, Iowa. NPPD officials say the work should be completed by Dec. 1 and in operation by the first of the year. Purpose is to strengthen the overall grid in northeast Nebraska and to serve as a back-up when lines go down because of storms and other incidents. Above, workmen string the wire on a tower just outside of Hoskins.

Base salary up 1.8 percent

Board ratifies teacher contracts

by Chuck Hackenmilller

A salary settlement has been negotiated between the Wayne-Carroll School District Board of Education and the Wayne Education Association.

The base salary for the WEA, which includes 58 full-time and six part-time members, will be $13,700, up 1.8 percent from $13,450 the previous school year.

Both the board of education and the Wayne Education Association (WEA) had been involved in salary negotiations for the past four months. On Tuesday night, after a letter was read from the WEA accepting the school board's salary/benefit package proposal, the board of education ratified the agreement.

Along with the salary rate increase, no changes were proposed in the wage indexing and steps.

In the area of fringe benefits, there will be no change in life insurance benefits or disability insurance benefits. Concerning health insurance, there will be no change in coverage. The district will pay one-half of any increase in premium which may occur after September 1, 1986 through August 31, 1987 (in excess of $170 for family and $65 for single coverage).

Total increase when considering salary and fringe benefits amounted to 2.98 percent.

NO CHANGES were made in ratios for extra-duty, although there were some changes made in payment for extra duty for cross country, boys golf and girls golf.

There were also no changes made in the school calendar.

WEA had requested and received a one year contract on the approved salary/benefit package rather than a two year contract.

Also Tuesday evening, the board of education motioned to make no changes in the hourly wage figures of the classified staff. However, those meriting advancement on the scale will be moved up.

A 2 percent salary increase was approved for those on salary, which will include the superintendent, principals, bus drivers, secretaries, maintenance personnel, head cook, Title One and Special Education instructors.

Superintendent Francis Haun also requested, in the salary/benefit negotiations for salaried people (serving a 12-month contract), that individuals who have been with the school district for over 15 years be allowed four weeks vacation instead of three weeks.

WITH THE salaries for the upcoming school year settled, the board can begin concentrating on establishing the 1986-87 school year budget.

Haun gave the board members a sneak preview Tuesday evening of what he has proposed for the upcoming school year.

"We'll be able to put together a good budget as far as expenses are concerned," he told the board.

He said the school district should not experience more than a 4 to 5 percent increase — and that includes the purchase of a $28,000, 54-passenger bus and $8,000 less than what was actually requested for computers in the school district.

Haun said the school district will be losing approximately $40,000 in state aid and $21,000 in tuition, plus vocational and drivers education funding will be gone for the upcoming year.

He said the school district "may have to make up in property taxes what the state took away from us."

The school district has not purchased a school bus in two years. A 1972 bus will likely be removed from the seven bus fleet, according to Haun.

Was 'Red Pig' obscene or not?

Capitol News
by Melvin Paul

Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association. When Hildreth banker Kenneth Frerichs complained last winter that the recall of his "Red Pig" prestige license plates was unfair, his outrage caused a mini controversy.

The heads of state stepped in to right the wrong, officially declaring that "Red Pig" was not obscene. Senators voted unanimously that Frerichs should get back his "Red Pig" plates. Governor Bob Kerrey delivered the plates in person.

It was a festive occasion. Kerrey flew by helicopter to the Hildreth High School football field where he was greeted by more than 200 of Hildreth's 394 residents and the school's pep band.

Frerichs wasn't the only Nebraskan to lose a prestige plate. The Department of Motor Vehicle's internal review committee found 13 plates either objectionable or obscene and sent recall letters.

Only Frerichs complained. The other recalled plates were in fact more obviously objectionable. They included a POLOCK plate, a PUKER plate, and several LUDE plates (slang for the drug Quaalude). There were also several plates with a number that is usually considered obscene in its slang connotations.

THE DEPARTMENT decided Red Pig was objectionable because red is often associated with communism. It could also be construed to relate to Native Americans, explained Jeff Elliott, deputy director of the Motor Vehicle Department.

Pig is banned in other states because it can refer to police or a fat person, he said.

But Frerichs pointed out that the Red Pig plates had been on his red 1979 Chevrolet van for five years without problems. The term Red Pig started in his bank, he explained. A few local sportsmen were trying to raise money for a fishing cabin on the Harlan County Reservoir and used a red Piggy bank to collect the money. Red Pig became the name of the organization and its cabin.

In addition Red Pig is another name for Duroc hogs, Frerichs said. "I grew up on a farm. My grandfather raised Duroc hogs. We had a big red sign advertising Duroc hogs. Nobody ever called it obscene."

Frerichs beat the bureaucracy. As a result of the public controversy, Motor Vehicle Director Holly Jensen appointed a citizen's advisory committee to review all prestige plates and make sure they meet statutory standards. Nebraska law states that prestige plates "shall not express, connote or imply any obscene or objectionable words or abbreviations."

THE GROUP WHICH includes a sociologist, a senator, a clergyman, an English instructor and a law enforcement representative, met last month and suggested that five prestige plates be recalled. They are COKE HI... HI JERK, LIPS X, MAD DOG and LE COG.

The committee looked in particular for sexual, drug or ethnic references, Elliott said.

License plate censoring requires a keen mind, for some in the driving public are ingenious. The Department has lists from other states of requested wording for prestige plates that have been banned.

There are swear words spelled backwards and dozens of different phonetic spellings for the queen mother of naughty words. The dirty words that send the toddler set to giggling — referring to natural excretions of the body — are always banned, including the classy LETURD.

But the bureaucrats of some states appear to be overly cautious. California's official "no no list" includes more than 6,000 words or letter combinations.

Among the more innocuous are TAGOD, NUKEIT, OGEZ, MAFIA, MCDODO.

And Wisconsin's list of several hundred recalled plates includes CRUEL, NONE, URUGLY, SEDUCE, USMINT, NO, and HICOP.

The License plate censor's must be ever vigil, however, lest a real obscenity sneaks in through the mirror image of a plate or be clouded by a lip as in the California banned plate of "Thity."

Amen for amenities

Take a good look around you. Do you like what you see? Now take a look at this word. Amenities.

In the dictionary, it is defined as: agreeable ways or manners, courtesies, the quality of being pleasing or agreeable in situation, prospect or disposition.

That one word may not move mountains. But it certainly can be moving to an industry or business looking for "that perfect place" to establish themselves.

During Monday's Harvesting Hometown Jobs workshop at Wayne State College of Nebraska, speakers could not talk enough about amenities and its luring benefit in attracting industry or business (or jobs).

Said one industrial spokesman at the workshop: the tax exemptions, land donations and other incentives offered to a company are nice, but the amenities the company witnesses in the community are also very highly regarded.

Companies will take into consideration, before relocating or building a new industry, how they are accepted by members of the community — in both the residential and business sectors.

Companies can sense if there is community-wide support. Skepticism among community residents will lead to dissension. Consider it a loss of amenities.

And then contemplate on this a bit.

Do you have the attitude that our community doesn't need any more industrial growth and that new ideas from entrepreneurs are only foolish premonitions?

Are you a discourager rather than encourager?

If this is the picture that communities have been presenting to prospective industrialists and businessmen, then one might as well say that economic development is the least of the community's worries. Another major employer prospect has been chased away to a different community or to another state.

Area communities — don't turn your back to opportunity knocking on the door. Don't be divided, but join the others in welcoming new business with open arms.

Cooperation among people is an important element in community-potential industry relations.

This area of Nebraska has a lot going for it. It has plenty of beautiful countryside rich in farming tradition and agriculture research. A state college and technical college are close at hand to offer educational or technical assistance. And this region is considered to be in the heartland of this nation.

An interested community loaded with good intentions of obtaining some economic relief for attracting industry, combined with incentives, can result in generating some positive feedback.

But without the amenities, you could end up with absolute nothing.

Fathers preach their own sermons

The role of the father of a family has long been discussed, perhaps even long misunderstood.

Writing in the Dec. 1, 1920 issue of the Nebraska Farm Journal, Mrs. Velma West Sykes stated that motherhood is stressed more than fatherhood because fathers take "very little part in the rearing of the children."

The father, granted Mrs. Sykes, "is kept busy providing the funds" for the family, but "too often the father fails to exert the influence that he might in his family..."

A study released fifty years later — in the 1970's — indicated that "dads spend only 38 seconds a day" with their one-year-old children.

MANY PROBABLY disagreed with Mrs. Sykes in 1920. Many probably disagreed with the 1970 study.

Historical research could bear them out. Writers of countless books, articles, and letters at the Nebraska State Historical Society attest to the influence that their fathers had on their lives.

For 76 years Americans have set aside a day to honor their fathers. Father's Day was first observed in June, 1910 in Spokane, Washington — three years and one month after Mother's Day was initiated in Pennsylvania. There is a connection between the origin of the observances.

Mrs. John Bruce Dodd of the state of Washington conceived the idea of Father's Day in 1909, while she was in church listening to a sermon on motherhood. Her mother was dead but she thought "fathers were special, too," so the following year Mrs. Dodd presented a petition to the ministerial society of Spokane requesting that sermons on fatherhood be preached in the churches sometime in June. She chose June because it was the month of her father's birth.

THAT SAME YEAR the governor of Washington proclaimed the third Sunday of June "Father's Day." The idea spread throughout the nation.

Eloquent sermons have been preached about fatherhood on Father's Day in the past and undoubtedly will continue to be preached in the future.

But through their actions fathers preached their own sermons — often with few, if any, words.

The following story, written by a clergyman about his father, illustrates this. It was published in the Osmond Republican, Dec. 18, 1985:

"Forty-some years ago, my father sent two sons off to war. He didn't know if they would return, and if they did, whether they would be corpses or cripples or what.

"Before they went, they sat together for a while and talked — small talk, clumsy talk.

"Over and over again, Dad would say: 'Do you have everything you need?' Yes, they said.

"As a young child, I thought: what does a fellow really need, going off to war, but a toothbrush and a razor? (I didn't understand what it all meant.)

"Finally, he said, 'We will miss you.'

"We will miss you,' they said.

"We will pray for you,' he added.

"I will pray for you.'

"We love you, he said.

"We love you.'

"(I was just waiting to hear and see the train come in. Finally it arrived.)

"I cannot remember ever seeing my father cry, yet after the train pulled away from the depot, Dad placed his head on the steering wheel of his car, and sobbed."

The details of Medicare Patients must be cured before discharged

We have all seen the charges recently that hospitals are sending Medicare patients home before they are ready because of the new Medicare prospective payment system. I have heard comments from family, friends and constituents about the unfortunate consequences of people being forced out of the hospital too early.

Under the Medicare prospective payment system, which started in fiscal 1984, hospitals are being paid a flat rate per stay. Before 1984, hospitals billed Medicare for all the cost of caring for a patient. They were limited only by Medicare's definitions of what fees were reasonable and customary for each procedure. Now, under the new system, the Medicare payment to a hospital is not reduced if the patient leaves the hospital early and it is not increased if the patient must stay longer.

This is an effort at cost containment. It is designed to get hospitals to discharge patients as soon as medically appropriate, instead of letting them stay for extra rest or to relieve their families of the burden of taking care of them. It should also limit the practice in some hospitals of delaying a patient's release in order to keep beds full.

When it comes right down to it, we must find ways to control unnecessary costs. And, the primary responsibility for the release of a patient from the hospital still falls on the physician who makes a judgment about that patient's health.

I am cosponsoring a bill that would require that the Department of Health and Human Services consider the severity and complexity of an illness when it prepares the regulations governing hospitals reimbursement for certain illnesses and procedures. The bill also would require that Medicare patients be informed of their rights to protest discharges that they consider premature and of their eligibility for further Medicare aid. In addition, patients would be guaranteed a three day grace period, during which they could stay in the hospital, while their appeal was processed. Hospitals would be prohibited from offering incentives to physicians who meet specific length-of-stay or per-case cost targets. And discharge planning would be required, to assure that patients receive necessary home or institutional care after their hospital stay.

Transfer of shuttle engineers reconsidered

Several weeks ago I expressed my concern about apparent efforts to punish the two space shuttle engineers who cooperated with the Presidential Commission investigating the shuttle accident and who questioned the safety of the Challenger. The two engineers were transferred and lost their staff and responsibilities.

At that time, along with some of my colleagues, I introduced a resolution that would require NASA to debar Morton Thiokol Inc. from participating in NASA contracts until the General Accounting Office found either that the employees had been restored to their former positions or that the transfers were unrelated to their cooperation with the shuttle investigation. I am pleased to see that those two engineers have now been restored to their former job responsibilities.

ask a lawyer

a public service of the nebraska state bar association

Q. I have a daughter who is 17. She graduated from high school and moved away from home in May. Now she is in college. Her mother and I are divorced and I send $150 a month in child support. Now that my daughter is not living at home, I think her mother should give her this money for college and living expenses, dating back to the month she left home. I don't think I should have to pay her mother this child support money when my daughter receives no benefit from it. What can I do?

Under Nebraska law, child support paid to the parent who has custody of the child becomes the property of that parent. Therefore, the amount you have already paid for child support is your ex-wife's property, despite the fact that your daughter no longer lives at home.

If you think that your daughter is no longer receiving the benefit from your support payments, your recourse is to petition the court that entered the child support order; that court has continuing jurisdiction to modify the order. The standard that the court uses when the appropriateness or necessity of a support order is called into question is whether the circumstances surrounding the order have changed to a degree that modification is warranted. The court might view your daughter's move away from home as a change sufficient to warrant modification of the support order. If you think that your support obligation is no longer necessary, consult your lawyer about filing a petition with the court for a modification hearing.

Some accomplishments are difficult to grasp when you first hear them.

For example, I remember when a young man by the name of Steve Fonyo ran 5,000 miles across Canada. Oh yea, I forgot to add that Fonyo only had one leg.

Although his accomplishments hardly compare to Fonyo's 14-month trek across Canada, one of my best friends had to endure quite a bit during his life, too.

My friend is about 30 years older than me, but he tells me that when he was young, he was raised in a poor section of Sloux City, Iowa.

One startling example he uses to reveal how poor he actually was is as a child, baby chickens he raised in his house were killed by hungry rats that also lived there.

The poverty he encountered while growing up, made him develop a fierce desire to continuously better himself. And this attitude is a reason why he excelled in athletics.

Although extremely small, he made up for what he lacked in size by working extra hard and hustling. And all the hard work eventually paid off because as a freshman, he made the varsity basketball team.

Unfortunately, the poor neighborhood he was raised in eventually got the best of him and he started hanging around the wrong crowd. One thing led to another and his off the court antics got him kicked out of all high school athletics.

Although sports was all he cared about while in school, he was smart enough to stay in school and receive his diploma.

He worked odd jobs after graduation and always remained interested in athletics. He even set a record for the most points scored in one game in the Sloux City Recreation Basketball League. And to the best of my knowledge, his 46 points still hasn't been topped.

But realizing there wasn't much future in odd jobs, he enlisted in the Marines. Then, he married his high school sweetheart and went to Korea to fight in a war.

Although he never talks about the horrifying experiences he encountered while over seas, at one time he was missing in action and he did get wounded. However, the worst wound he received is the memories of the war. His wife tells me that today he still wakes from nightmares concerning his stay in Korea.

But like everything else in his life, he overcame the hardships of war and returned to Sloux City and raised a family.

He and his wife had three children, and two were still in school when he encountered the worst experience of his life. While at work in the spring of 1972, he ruptured a disc in his back.

Doctors told him that his working days were over and that he might never walk again. But he had come through plenty of other times when the odds were against him, and he was determined to prove the doctors wrong, too.

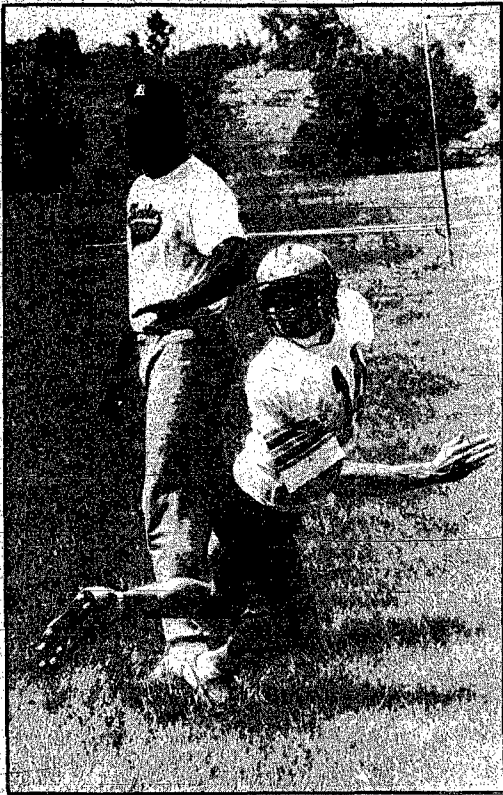

After a few weeks, he eventually got out of bed and realizing he needed to strengthen his back, started a rigorous workout schedule.

It was during this time that we really became close friends. Since I was out of school for the summer, I rode my bike while he walked in the back of his house. And I'll never forget the pain on his face and the drenching sweat he worked up while exercising.

But you know, just like every other obstacle in his life, he overcame the back injury, too. And 12 months after the disc operation, he returned to work.

During all these hardships, he never complained once, and he always remained modest despite his numerous triumphs. And when he sees this column, he'll probably be embarrassed and possibly angry I wrote it.

But Dad, I just want you to know how proud I am of you. Have a happy Father's Day.

Wayne totals 12 hits

Wayne's Juniors explode

PENDER — Wayne's Junior Legion baseball team have had occasional trouble generating its offense this summer. But Wayne rolled out its lumber and tallied 12 hits and tallied 10 runs in a 10-6 triumph over Pender here Monday night.

Jeff Hausmann, Don Larsen and Brent Pick each collected two hits apiece for Wayne, while Dan Gross, Tim Fleming, Russ Longe, Ted Lueders, Shannon Dorcay and Casey Nichols all totaled one hit apiece for the victors.

Wayne opened a 1-0 lead in the first when Gross walked, stole second and scored on Hausmann's RBI double.

Pender answered with two runs in the bottom of the inning, but Wayne opened a 3-2 advantage in the second.

Pick started the second by reaching on an error and Longe followed with a single. Dorcay plated Pick with a one-out single and Longe scored when Pender booted Bill Landanger's grounder.

Wayne made it 4-2 when Larsen led the third inning off with a triple and scored on Pick's sacrifice fly to right field. But Pender pulled ahead 5-4 by scoring three runs in the bottom of the third.

Its third inning rally was Pender's last gasp, however, as Wayne scored once in the fifth and six times in the sixth to blow the game open.

Wayne's fifth inning run came on a Larsen solo home run to center field, some 340 feet away.

Fleming and Hausmann both singled and scored and Pick and Longe both doubled and scored in Wayne's wild sixth inning attack. Landanger and Larsen also scored in the sixth after reaching on an error and walking, respectively.

Pender picked up a meaningless run in the bottom of the seventh to round out the game's scoring.

Longe picked up the win. He hurled a six-hitter while striking out three and allowing just one walk.

Wayne plays again Friday at Heelan. Last Friday, Wayne beat the Crusaders 6-3 in a game in which Heelan's shortstop and coach were ejected.

Zeiss' power lifts Midgets, 7-1

PENDER — One doesn't have to be big, physically to possess enough power to club home runs. Just ask Wayne's Jess Zeiss.

Zeiss, one of the smaller players on Wayne's Midget roster, slammed a pair of round-trippers in Wayne's 7-1 victory over Pender here Monday night.

Zeiss, a switch-hitter, batted from the left side to take advantage of Pender's short right field fence. But Wayne head coach Hank Overin said both of Zeiss' homers would have also been out at Overin Park in Wayne.

"He hit from the left side because the right field fence at Pender is only 242 feet away," Overin said. "But both home runs sailed clear across the road beyond the fence. They were probably 310-foot homers, and they probably would've gone out here (Wayne), too."

Wayne scored all the runs it needed in the top of the first when Craig Schmitt led the game off with a walk and advanced to third on Kevin Hausmann's single.

Hausmann followed by stealing second and two outs later Scott Pokelt delivered a clutch two-run single.

Pender touched Wayne pitcher Jarrod Wood for its only run in the bottom of the first. The hosts used a walk, two stolen bases and a passed ball for its only marker.

Wayne tallied two more runs in the third when Hausmann and Zeiss reached base and eventually scored on a series of errors, stolen bases and passed balls.

Wayne then made it 6-1 in the fifth. Zeiss led the inning off with his first home of the night and Wood followed by singling and eventually scoring on a fielder's choice.

Wayne's final run came in the sixth when Zeiss clubbed a one-out solo shot.

In addition to Zeiss, Wood and Pokelt both finished with two hits apiece for Wayne. Hausmann and Corey Frye each totaled one hit apiece for Wayne.

Wood allowed just six hits and four walks. He also struck out eight batters, including the side in the fourth inning.

'Serious' Jorgensen leads Wayne's Juniors to 13-5 victory over Winside WINSIDE — Because of his care-free style, Wayne's Jason Jorgensen is considered the team clown by most teammates. But Jorgensen was nothing but business in Wayne's 13-5 victory over Winside in Junior Legion action here Tuesday night.

Jorgensen clubbed a home run, doubled off the fence and pitched all seven innings to pick up the win.

Although it was his first start of the year, Jorgensen hustled Winside's bats for the most part, finishing with a three-hitter. Earlier in the year he relieved in the Norfolk and Elkhorn games.

The big blow of the game for Wayne was Scott Nichols' first inning grand slam home run. Jorgensen then followed with a solo shot to left-center field to make the score 5-0.

Nichols' home run was his second of the year. He also poked a two-run homer against Sloux City West last Tuesday.

Nichols and Jorgensen weren't the only players to enjoy success at the plate Tuesday night as every Wayne player collected at least one hit in the game.

Wayne's Juniors drop heart-breaker

Elkhorn sweeps Wayne teams

Elkhorn's Junior Legion baseball team pushed across two runs in the eighth inning for a 5-3 victory over Wayne in the first game of a doubleheader at Overin Field Sunday and followed by claiming a 9-3 triumph in the second contest.

Elkhorn used two doubles and singles in the eighth inning of the first game to pull out the two-run win.

After getting the first Elkhorn batter to fly out, Wayne pitcher Jeff Hausmann yielded two doubles and a single before giving way to Brent Pick.

Pick allowed a single and a walk before recording the final two outs in the eighth, but Wayne went down in order in the bottom of the inning and Elkhorn claimed the victory.

Elkhorn scored first on an unearned run in the second inning. Elkhorn then opened a 3-0 lead in the third by tallying two more markers.

Wayne started its comeback in the bottom of the third when Ted Lucders reached on a fielder's choice, advanced to second on an error, stole third and scored on another Elkhorn miscue.

Wayne then tied the game in the fourth when Russ Longe and Mark Creighton both scored. Longe reached base by doubling and Creighton drew a walk.

Hausmann's best innings were the fourth through seventh frames. During that stretch, the strong right-hander retired 12 consecutive batters and recorded six strikeouts. Hausmann finished with 10 strikeouts.

Wayne's biggest chance to take its only lead came in the sixth. Jason Jorgensen drew a one-out walk and after advancing to second on an error, moved to third on a passed ball. But the next two Wayne batters went down on strikes.

Wayne also stranded a base runner in the seventh. Hausmann reached on an error with one out and moved to second when Elkhorn booted Pick's grounder. But Elkhorn once again managed to escape without yielding a run.

Wayne totaled five hits in the loss. Landanger finished 2-for-2 with a single and double. Robbie Gamble also doubled and singled in four plate appearances. Longe added Wayne's other hit when he doubled in the fourth.

Walks haunted Wayne in the second game. Elkhorn capitalized on seven bases on balls and six of those eventually scored.

Elkhorn tallied all the runs it needed in the first inning when the visitors capitalized on four walks and two singles to open a 4-0 lead.

Elkhorn didn't score again until the fourth and fifth innings when it scored two and three runs, respectively.

Wayne cut Elkhorn's lead in half in the third with two runs. Leaders reached base on an error with one out and scored on Dan Gross's RBI double. Shannon Dorcey and Hausmann followed with consecutive singles to plate Gross.

Wayne's final run came in the fourth when Pick walked, advanced into scoring position on Tim Fleming's double and crossed the plate on Scott Baker's RBI ground-out.

Wayne totaled five hits in the loss, including two by Fleming, Gross, Dorcey and Hausmann accounted for Wayne's other hits.

Wayne plays again Wednesday at

Brian Lewon of Randolph places third

LAWRENCE, KAN. — Brian Lewon of Lewon's Taxidermy of Randolph attended the 1986 World Taxidermy Championships here May 28-31.

Lewon participated in competition in four categories, including two deer head, a large mouth bass and a walleye. He received a third place ribbon in each category.

Officials stated it was the toughest competition held yet with participants from Finland, Holland, Canada and from all over the United States, including Alaska.

Lewon has many references such as close up pictures of faces of birds and animals and molds that are made of the nose, eyes and ears. He uses these references to make the animal look life-like.

Brian earned enough awards at the World Competition to be certified as a professional taxidermist in deer heads and fish by the International Guide of Taxidermy.

He also plans to enter the Nebraska Taxidermy Guild State Competition in Lincoln June 21-22.

Assessments made on South Douglas

by Chuck Hackenmilller

Special assessments were established Tuesday evening on the South Douglas paving project by the Wayne City Council, acting as the Board of Equalization.

Several individuals representing residents along the South Douglas Street protested the assessments.

The total cost to complete the project was $31,680.21. Of that amount, $12,882 was storm sewer and intersection costs which was absorbed as general obligation by the city of Wayne.

That leaves $38,797.74 to be assessed to 15 property owners, with the individual assessments ranging from $728.21 to $8,509.26.

Property owner LeRoy Janssen told the equalization board he wanted to see the city pick up the costs on the storm sewer, because when he signed the petition to get a new street, he had no idea they would be getting storm sewer improvement.

Janssen said he felt the storm sewer in place prior to improvement had been sufficient.

He also asked the council to consider reducing the total assessment cost. Property owners could pay 75 percent of that total cost, while the remaining 25 percent could be picked up by the city since the whole community would be utilizing and benefiting from the South Douglas Street project, Janssen mentioned.

Faunell Lynch expressed dissatisfaction on how the street was constructed. She asked why the council did not consider running the street east and west rather than north and south through the residential area.

Harvey Brasch suggested that the council come up with the assessment schedule before the construction begins. However, City Attorney Kern Swartz mentioned that it was against state statute to follow that procedure.

Also during the council meeting, the city council was informed of a request to close off West Third Street, between Main Street and Pearl for Country Store Days on Saturday, June 14.

City Administrator Phil Kloster also recommended to the city council that the closing proposal of a east end of an alley immediately south of city hall, brought before the council previously, should be placed back on the agenda.

"There is no way that this is an alley. We're fooling ourselves by retaining it as an alley," said Kloster.

The city council also passed a resolution that is a first step in satisfying the state of Nebraska as far as reuse of revolving loan funds — loans paid out to qualifying businesses and repaid back to the city — relaying a plan of action as to how the loan funds will be redistributed.

The council went into closed session to discuss personnel matters. However, no action was taken.

Republicans hold county convention

Wayne County Republicans conducted their 1986 convention last Thursday, June 5, selecting new officers and delegates to the Nebraska State Republican Convention in Lincoln on June 21.

Seventeen resolutions were also adopted at the convention.

Guest speaker for the convention was Sharon Beck, legislative candidate for the Eighth District, who will face Ward Johnson in the November election.

New officers of the Wayne County Republican Committee include Fred Mann of Wayne, county chairman; Carol Rethwisch of Wayne, vice-chairman; and Dorothy Stevenson of Wayne, secretary.

The speed limit on interstate highways to 70 miles an hour with the provision that this limit, unlike the present one, be enforced; object to the circulation and distribution of petitions calling for the repeal of Initiative 300 without the consent of the state convention.

MORE RESOLUTIONS call for the United States senators and President Reagan to continue the search for M.I.A.'s in Southeast Asia and not to forget about them; call on Nebraskans not to retain the following justices when it comes time for a vote on their retention — Justice Krivosha, Justice White, Justice Hastings and Justice Caporale — because of the Nebraska Supreme Court's decision overturning the death sentence of Robert Hunt, Jr.; repeal of the Nebraska Mandatory Seal Bell Law; exhort the voters to vote for repeal of LB 662; urge officials and private citizens to familiarize themselves with the contents of recent studies of schools and proposals for improving schools; support keeping as many government operations as possible at the level of local government and restoring to the local level, where feasible, some operations now assigned to a higher level, especially those involving schools; urge not to waste time debating the merits and demerits of a partisan legislature; and to be supportive of new manufacturing enterprises in Nebraska only if they are economically rational, or can earn a profit without a government subsidy.

Discussion on prolonging the life of those seven buses through preventive maintenance was also discussed Tuesday evening by the board of education.

Board Member Neil Sandahl asked others on the board about the feasibility of building a bus barn and hiring a mechanic/part-time bus driver. "It would be a lot better in the winter time for those buses," Sandahl said.

Haun was directed to tabulate the total figures of costs made on maintenance of each bus used by the school district. Discussion also entailed the prospect of leasing or contracting for bus service, but it was estimated that the school-provided busing service is the most cost-efficient.

It was approved by the school board to have Arnie's Ford-Mercury and Ellingson Motors inspect the buses on an alternative basis.

ALSO, THE SCHOOL board:
—Reviewed a copy of the 1986 school census which shows the total of those in the school district, from age 5 to age 20, is 1,022 — 11 more than the 1985 school census. The greatest increase showed in the number of those age 5 — up from 48 in 1985 to 92 in 1986.

The pre-school census shows one less than the 263 count in 1985. Eighty-one families moved out of the district while 101 families moved in.

—Approved the expenditure for 60 percent of the cost to finance the "New Technologies", vocational education project to be conducted the upcoming school year at Wayne-Carroll High School in coordination with Wayne State College.

That local amount will be approximately $5,042 while the remainder of the $8,404 in costs ($3,362) will be the federal-state match for the project.

The course was developed to provide individualization as well as group experiences for secondary level industrial education students at Wayne-Carroll in the areas of new technologies.

It will include Computer Aided Drafting; Computer Assisted Manufacturing; Robotics; and Applied Science.

William Wilson will be the vocational instructor and Dr. Howard Schmidt and Dennis Linstar at Wayne State College are listed as consultants.

Existing facilities at the high school, plus new project equipment and instructional materials, are to be utilized, in addition to audio-visual materials and new technology equipment at Wayne State College.

—And heard a report from Sid Hillier concerning his attendance at the National School Board Association Convention during April in Las Vegas. Some of the topics covered in the education sessions, he said, were: how to establish instructional priorities; how some school boards feel the most important task they face is to render their thoughts on what should be taught in the school system; and how to administer performance appraisals for the school administrators.

Endometriosis Relief

Endometriosis is a painful condition of the reproductive organs of women. The name endometriosis relates to the endometrium — the tissue lining the walls of the uterus. It is believed that endometriosis occurs when fragments of this lining material become implanted at various sites in the pelvic cavity. The implanted fragments form new tissue each month and then go through a shedding process similar to that of the normal menstrual cycle. Blood from the fragments has no way to leave the body. Consequently, there is internal bleeding, pain, cramping and inflammation.

According to a recent report in the FDA consumer, the number of American women who suffer from this condition may be as high as 5 million. It is estimated that almost one-third of all reported cases of infertility may be associated with endometriosis.

One of the few drugs that has shown to be somewhat effective against this condition is an agent called danazol, a synthetic male hormone capable of shrinking the implanted endometrial fragments, thus decreasing pain, cramping, and other symptoms. Some reports indicate that symptoms may reoccur, however, within 8 to 12 months after the hormone is discontinued.

County committee nominees sought

Farmers Home Administration County Supervisor LaVern Ostendorf has announced that eligible farmers in Wayne and Stanton counties are invited to become nominees for the FmHA county committee.

As a result of the 1985 Farm Bill, two of the three members of the FmHA county committees must be elected. The third member is designated by FmHA.

The Wayne and Stanton county committee assists the FmHA county office in determining the eligibility of applicants for certain types of FmHA loans.

For this first election only, two members will be elected at the same time. One member will be elected for a term of one year, and one member will be elected for a two-year term. In the future, all terms of service will be for three years each on a staggered basis.

Nominating petitions are available at the FmHA Wayne County office, 120 Logan St., Wayne, and must be returned by Monday, June 16.

4-H'ers touring east coast

Nearly 40 area 4-H'ers are taking part in a citizenship tour of the east coast. The group left June 8 and will return June 22.

Highlights of the tour include stops in Chicago, Ontario, Canada, Boston and New York City.

The tour concludes with a week in Washington, D. C. at the National 4-H Center, where other four groups from across the country will also take part in workshops and assemblies focusing on government.

Attend 4-H small animal show

Jean and Jennifer Severson of the Rainbow Kids 4-H Club of Hoskins attended the statewide 4-H small-animal show in Lincoln on June 6-7. They participated in the dairy goat classes.

Jean Severson, age 11, received a blue ribbon in showmanship. Her entry in the four-year and up milking doe class was awarded a purple ribbon, then was selected the Reserve Champion Nubian in the senior doe show. Her mother-daughter entry received a purple ribbon, and the dry-yearling she showed received a red ribbon.

Jennifer Severson, age 10, won a blue ribbon for showmanship class. Her entry in the milking class won a blue ribbon, and her entry in the dry-yearling class received a red ribbon.

Pork Delegate Election

Six Nebraska pork producers have been nominated for positions on the National Pork Producer Delegate Body. Nebraska has been allotted six of the 165 seats in the newly-created Delegate Body.

Among the six candidates nominated by the Nebraska Pork Producers Association is Richard L. Sorenson of Wayne.

Bill Ahlschwede, University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension swine specialist and election coordinator for Nebraska, said Nebraska Pork Producers vote for delegates July 7 through July 11 in all Cooperative Extension Service Offices in counties throughout the state. Following the election, the Secretary of Agriculture appoints those elected to the Delegate Body for a one-year term.

The National Pork Producer Delegate Body will be the overall governing body for the administration of the Pork Promotion, Research and Education Act of 1985, Ahlschwede said. Passed as part of the Farm Bill, the Pork Act establishes a mandatory checkoff on all hogs marketed in the United States including imported hogs and pork products.

The legislation requires a Marketing Order and a producer panel to oversee implementation of the checkoff Ahlschwede said. The Delegate Body recommends the checkoff rate, the percentage of the funds which are returned to state organizations to support local programs and nominates members for the Pork Board. The Pork Board, a 15-member group, allocates the funds collected as part of the marketing order, he said.

Nebraska pork producers can vote at the Extension Office in their county during normal working hours from July 7 through 11. Exact times and locations will be announced locally. All pork producers are eligible to vote and will register at the polling place at the time of voting.

Those unable to vote in person may receive an absentee ballot by contacting Jim Epstein, National Pork Producers Election, P.O. Box 23762, Washington, D.C. 20026-3762; Phone: (202) 475-5407.

Howard named agent in Stanton County

Larry Howard, extension agent-agriculture in Cuming County, will be transferred to the position of extension agent-chair in Stanton County, effective Sept. 1, subject to approval of the shift by the University of Nebraska Board of Regents.

The announcement was made jointly by the UNL Northeast Research and Extension Center at Concord and the Stanton County Extension Board.

Don Hudman, director of the center and of Cooperative Extension District 3, said "this transfer is a result of downsizing of extension staff to meet the budget squeeze caused by reductions at the state and federal levels."

Howard, a native of Sargent, has served in his present position in Cuming County since June, 1985. Prior to that date, he served as a vocational agriculture instructor at Snyder High School for 5 years.

Farm Bureau guest

NEBRASKA FARM BUREAU president Bryce Neidig (standing) was a guest at a Farm Bureau picnic gathering at the John Anderson farm about three miles west and three miles south of Wayne. Neidig spoke on several international issues affecting agriculture today, commenting on his European tour of ag farms and industrial areas.

Growers should examine corn fields now for presence of egg masses and larvae

European corn borer (ECB) activity is increasing rapidly and growers should examine corn fields now for the presence of egg masses and larvae, according to Fred Baxendale, University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension entomologist.

Few fields are susceptible to ECB at this point, but will be as plants increase in height during the next few weeks. ECB moths prefer to deposit eggs on the tallest corn, but if all fields in an area are late-planted, moths will lay eggs there as well.

Borer eggs are laid in masses with individual white eggs overlapping like fish scales on the undersides of leaves, Baxendale said. Eggs hatch in 4 to 5 days and young borers move to whorls to feed, producing the characteristic "shot-hole" damage. Evidence of whorl feeding damage, however, is not sufficient information to make a decision to treat.

Producers should scout all corn fields at least once a week for a 2 to 4-week period following peak moth flight — usually from early June to early July.

"A minimum of 20 plants at each of five locations in each field should be examined," he said. "Enough samples must be taken to ensure that estimates are representative of the entire field. Unroll the whorls of several infested plants to estimate the number of live borers per plant. Bear in mind that the normal resistance factors can cause mortality of the smallest ECB, about 1/16 inch, and dead worms do not cause damage."

TO DETERMINE the need for treatment of first generation ECBs, UNL entomologists recommend determining the percent of total plants infested and the average number of worms per infested stalk. The location of worms should also be noted, since ECBs still in the whorl are controllable, while those that have left the whorl and entered the side of the stalk are not.

After determining the percent of plants infested and the number of worms per plant, producers should consider the potential yield loss, cost per acre of application, anticipated value of grain per bushel and an estimated percent control given a particular insecticide, Baxendale said.

"An average of one borer per plant is capable of causing a 15 percent yield loss," he said, "and a reasonable expectation for insecticidal control of ECBs under typical field conditions is approximately 75 percent."

"Determine preventable loss by comparing dollars saved by treatment and treatment cost. If preventable loss exceeds total cost of treatment, insecticides should be applied as soon as possible," Baxendale said.

Time to prepare wheat bins

With wheat harvest approaching, it's time to prepare bins to receive the grain.

Leroy Peters, University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension entomologist at the South Central Research and Extension Center, Clay Center, said producers need to follow a series of steps to ensure grain quality is maintained while in storage:

- Combines, truck beds, augers and other equipment to be used in harvesting and transportation of wheat should be thoroughly cleaned.

- Bins should be cleaned before storing new wheat. All old wheat should be removed with brooms and vacuum cleaners. "Never put new wheat on top of old wheat," Peters said.

- All inside surfaces of the clean bin should be sprayed to the point of runoff with premium grade malathion, methoxychlor or Reldan at least two weeks before storing wheat. "Spray also should be forced into cracks and seams," he said.

- In bins with perforated drying floors, as much debris as possible should be removed and the empty bin fumigated with chloropicrin.

- Wheat stored with a moisture content of 12 percent or less will reduce insect activity.

- Liquid or dust grain-protectant (premium grade malathion or Reldan) should be applied to the wheat as it is augured into the bin.

- After wheat has been leveled, the surface should be topdressed with both Dipel and malathion, or Reldan. "Dipel works against Indian meal moths while malathion is needed for beetle control," Peters said. "Reldan will control both." The topdressing should be worked into the first 4 to 6 inches of grain.

- If Indian meal moths have been a problem in the past, Vapona resin strips, at one per 1,000 cubic feet of air space should be placed in the bin overspace.

"Finally, inspect the grain every 2 to 3 weeks for insect activity and other quality degrading factors," Peters said, "and always follow container label instructions for dilution and application directions."

RAINBOW KIDS

President Shelly Henzler called to order the June 2 meeting of the Rainbow Kids 4-H Club. Nineteen members, seven leaders and guests attended the meeting at the Hoskins fire hall.

Melissa Miller and Jennifer Hoefler led the pledges. Secretary Michelle Scheurich took roll call and read minutes of the previous meeting.

Club members voted to attend the second day of the 4-H camp at Ponca. A swim party will be held at the Norfolk YMCA on June 14 at 1:30 p.m.

Final enrollments were checked. Adults, boys and girls divided into groups for a song contest. Jason Gillespie furnished treats.

Next meeting will be July 7 at the fire hall.

Harvesting Asparagus

When the spear size begins to decline in your asparagus bed, stop harvesting the crop. Eight to ten weeks of harvest is usually maximum for a mature asparagus bed.

After the asparagus harvest is complete, you need to take several maintenance steps to assure an equally good harvest next year.

Two pounds of urea or ammonium nitrate per 1,000 square feet side-dressed on your rows after harvest will increase vegetative growth and strengthen the plant for next year's production. If fertilizer is unavailable, compost or well rotted manure should be used on the asparagus bed after harvest.

Princep, a preemergent herbicide, could be used in the asparagus bed after the harvest is completed or in the fall. If label directions are followed, many weed problems will be solved after using Princep.

North-South vs. East-West rows

There can be a difference in performance in crops planted in rows running north-south and those planted in rows running east-west, especially for crops planted in wide rows.

This performance difference is thought to be due to the small microclimatic differences due to the row orientation. For example, onions planted in wide rows oriented east-west showed different flowering times: the southern row was sufficiently warmer than the northern row, resulting in lower flowering in the southern row.

For uniform harvest in wide-row crops, orient rows north-south; for non-uniform harvest times (to stretch out a harvest), orient rows east-west.

Tomatoes better in cages

Here's another confirmation of the advantages of growing tomatoes in cages as opposed to staking them.

A trial of 34 tomatoes in Minnesota showed that even though each staked plant required half the space of caged plant, the overall yield per unit area was higher with cages, and the fruit was of higher quality.

Lawn weeds

Many homeowners believe that once all the weeds are eliminated from a turf area there will be no more battles. Unfortunately this is not the case. Weed seeds can live in the soil for many years. Germination will occur once conditions are favorable for growth.

Even though the actual weeds themselves are eliminated, weed seeds can be brought in the lawn by wind, water, and animals. The most effective management of weeds comes from producing a healthy, dense turf to combat the weed problem.

by [author name]

Now that Father's Day is drawing near, it seems only fitting that Wayne County hear the other side of the story; what it's like to be one of the daughters of the Big Farmer. Seeing that in print really makes it sound like quite a distinction.

Most couples I am acquainted with consist of two opposite personalities — one that does most of the talking and the other who serves as the quiet complement. Gender has no bearing on who assumes which role; I've seen examples of both. It's fairly obvious to anyone who knows our family, which is which. Dad usually lets the conversation proceed on around him until you begin to think he's not listening. Suddenly, he interjects and you know he hasn't missed a beat.

It's not often that Dad laughs at a joke, either; so if you can get him to respond, you know you've said something funny. He might smile in response to many things, but for him to laugh out-right is truly an accomplishment.

My father is probably one of the most patient people I know, except for Grandma Meierhenry, my mother. Sometimes we kids get together and compare notes on the number of times we've seen Dad get angry, just because they're so rare. I think we could put all of our experiences together and count them on one hand. You know you'd better run, though when he throws his cap down.

I still remember the time Dad took me out to the field and attempted to teach me how to cultivate. Denny Bowers still laughs when he tells about driving and seeing Dad standing behind me, shaking his head in disbelief as I zigzagged back and forth across the rows.

I know we would never have participated in 4-H as long as we did if it hadn't been for his perseverance. At times I think he got more of a kick out of showing calves than we did. It just made his day when the home-raised calves did better than those purchased out of the county.

MOM ALWAYS SAYS I can fall asleep almost anywhere and I think I know who I inherited that from. His favorite place to snooze is on the couch in front of the television. One evening, he was giving Kay, who was busy with something else, a play-by-play report of a very exciting Celtics basketball game in which he was seemingly engrossed. Later, she asked him how it turned out, only to have him sheepishly reply that he had fallen asleep during the last three minutes.

It's hard for me to imagine this quiet, respectable man ever being a frat rat in college. I decided maybe there was some hope for Jon after stumbling across some of them's old clippings. Seems Dad got quite a speeding ticket back in his college days. It tops anything Jon's had yet. When I got the whole story from Mom, I was even more amazed to learn that he had actually been dragging, of all things! I won't disclose the actual speed; his being on the school board and all, it might ruin his reputation.

Dad is pretty well known for his devotion to duty. He takes all of his obligations seriously. The night of Kay and Ann's accident, he somehow managed to attend a school board hearing in spite of the fact that his daughters were seriously injured and on their way to Lincoln by ambulance. I know I wasn't capable of turning my attention elsewhere in that situation. I happened to be at work that night, and had to leave early because I wasn't accomplishing anything.

OF COURSE, HIS devotion to his "obligations" borders on being obsessive-compulsive behavior at other times. Ever since we became owners of an Earth stove, Dad has become the "faithful tender of the fire." Ann, our resident housecleaner, is constantly complaining about the dust it makes, real or imagined. Sometimes I think he gets a little carried away — the slightest chill, be it winter or summer, will send him scurrying to the woodpile!

I don't think I could end this article without expressing the pride I feel for a man who has accomplished so much with one arm. It seems strange to hear myself mention it even now because I've never thought of him as handicapped. It has never stopped him from accomplishing anything he sets out to do. That's the most amazing part about it, and what makes his other qualities so much more admirable.

Thanks, Dad, for all your faith and support. I truly appreciate it. Happy Father's Day!

GOSPEL CONCERT

A three-hour gospel concert was held June 1 at Winside in the school multi-purpose room as a benefit for the Epiphy Adolescent Chemical Dependency Service of the Methodist Hospital Foundation in Omaha. There were approximately 80 in attendance. A free will offering was collected with all proceeds matched by the Kiewit Foundation. This was the third year a benefit was held in Winside.

Master of Ceremonies was Rev. Sandy Carpenter of Osmond. Guest speakers included Rev. Walter Bailey of Omaha with the Epiphy Adolescent Chemical Dependency Service and Bryan Hamel, a psychiatrist at the Service. Both men spoke on the services available, length of the program, cost, and fold of the facilities. The facility can accommodate approximately 45 adolescents and has them from all over the United States. They also provide a follow-up program for those who have been rehabilitated.

Featured vocalist was Marie Froberg of Norfolk, accompanied on the piano by David Shipley. Other entertainment was provided by Eileen Kim, and Kay Damme of Winside; Pat Meierhofer of Hoskins; Rev. Shirley Carpenter of Guide Rock; Rev. Arthur Winkler of Pierce; Marvin Weber of Randolph; Brenda Seeman of Winside; and the Missionary Benedictine Sisters of Immaculata Convent in Norfolk. The Rempfers say they will be planning another concert for next year.

Stress Center focuses on high blood pressure

This Saturday the Wayne Stress Prevention Center will focus on High Blood Pressure and ways to deal with it.

Statistics from 1982 show that High Blood Pressure took the lives of 31,500 people. There are approximately 37,900,000 American adults with high blood pressure today. Many times we hear mention of high blood pressure, but do we actually know what it is; or how it effects our body?

Blood pressure is the force of blood against the walls of the arteries and veins created by the heart as it pumps blood to every part of the body. When the small arteries that regulate blood pressure become smaller, blood cannot pass through. This causes the heart to pump harder to push blood through. While the heart is pushing harder, this is increasing the pressure in the arteries.

It is when this pressure increases above normal and remains elevated that high blood pressure occurs. The next question would be, what causes the small arteries to become smaller? This question is still a puzzle. In 90 percent of the high blood pressure cases, the cause is unknown. Although the disease is not completely understood, scientists have been able to develop treatments with long term effectiveness.

How do you know if you have high blood pressure? A person may have high blood pressure for years and never know it, because usually there are no symptoms. The best way to find out if you do have high blood pressure is to have it checked regularly by a health professional.

There are two ways of controlling high blood pressure. The first is through medication prescribed by your doctor, in most cases this will lower blood pressure. The second way of controlling high blood pressure is through an eating plan that helps the person, who is overweight to reduce and to restrict the amount of table salt used at mealtime.

The overweight person with high blood pressure often can lower the blood pressure by losing weight. Although the cause of high blood pressure is not clearly understood, there are several factors known to contribute to it. As mentioned earlier, overweight, age, race and family history to mention a few.

The medical name for high blood pressure is hypertension. It does not mean nervous tension or being emotionally upset. (A person can be very relaxed and calm and still have high blood pressure. The "tension" in the word hypertension refers to the stress on the walls of blood vessels that have lost their ability to expand or contract.) Blood vessels normally can expand and contract, making them smaller or larger. These changes in the size of the vessels allow more or less blood to flow through according to the body's needs.

Headaches, nosebleeds & dizziness can be due to the effect of high blood pressure on blood vessels. When blood vessels are damaged, the body cannot function normally and this causes signs or feeling of illness to appear.

There are several ways to prevent high blood pressure.

1. A low sodium diet. In hypertension and types of heart disease the body retains an excess of sodium and water.
2. Low cholesterol diet. Your body supplies its own cholesterol, therefore fats and cholesterol intake is unnecessary.
3. Quitting cigarette smoking. Cigarette smoking narrows small blood vessels. It also makes the heart beat faster. This increases the amount of work the heart must do.
4. Lose weight. Excess weight increases the work of your heart by making it pump harder to push your blood to all parts of your body.
5. Lower stress. Stress tends to raise the blood pressure by narrowing the blood vessels. When the stress or excitement is over, blood pressure is supposed to return to normal as the blood vessels regain their normal size. However a person with high blood pressure, the blood pressure does go down slightly as the person relaxes, but it does not return to normal.
6. Exercise. Exercise makes your heart a stronger pump and so improves your circulation.

This Saturday at 10:00 the Wayne Stress Prevention Center will be conducting free Blood Pressure screenings at Bill's C.W. Additionally, from 10:00 until noon in room 202 at Wayne High School we will present methods for reducing stress to help combat high blood pressure. Everyone is welcome.

Initiative 300 petitions can be signed at county offices

Persons wanting to sign a petition that seeks a change in Nebraska's constitution relative to corporate farming, may do so at offices of county clerks or county election commissioners, it was announced by Don Steen, treasurer of the Citizens to Restore the Constitution.

The petition asks that the issue be placed on the November 4 general election ballot. The proposed change would allow the Legislature to classify corporations to prohibit, permit or restrict ownership and operation of agricultural land and preserve family farm and ranch operations in the state.

Steen pointed out that the petitions must be returned to the headquarters of Citizens to Restore the Constitution for delivery to the Secretary of State on July 3.

"This is a critical issue for all Nebraskans," Steen said. "Our agricultural and main-street economies will continue to be hurt as Initiative 300 limits land ownership and the right to corporations to do business in a wide range of businesses like cattle feeding, vegetable and egg production, food processing and other ventures that we need right now. Without this change, we're limiting our ability to recover from the current economic challenges facing agriculture."

He encouraged backers of the change to contact their local county clerk or election commissioner and sign a petition. Also, many real estate offices and banks have petitions available for signing. Citizens to Restore the Constitution need 54,790 signatures of registered voters from 38 Nebraska counties.
