

A look at Lady Liberty

The following is an account written by Mrs. Mel (Lee Julke) Brown of Wayne, who as a six-year-old immigrant had traveled in November of 1923 by ship from Germany to America with her mother (Anna Matilda Gramberg Julke), two sisters (Erna and Irma) and a brother (Carl). Her father, Ernst Julke, had immigrated to America six months prior to Lee's adventure. He was a builder.

It details the excitement and the awe of coming to America and the greeting she received in the harbor from one great landmark — The Statue of Liberty.

New York Harbor — Dec. 1, 1923.

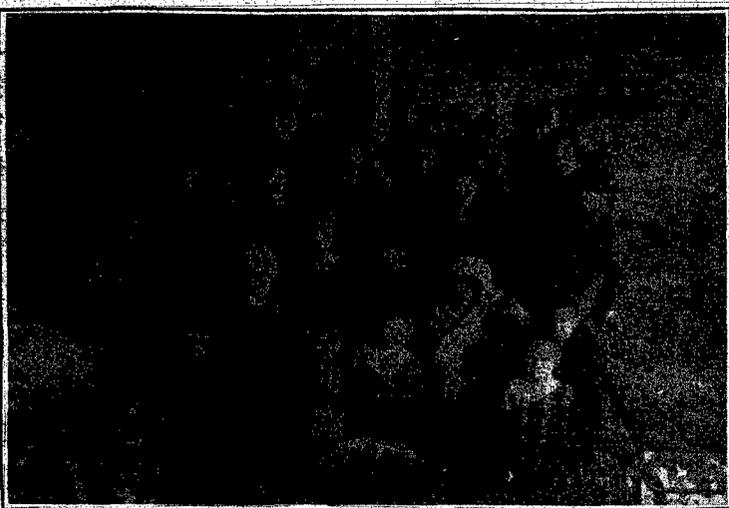

From the deck of the ship "George Washington" I first saw the Statue of Liberty. It was morning. The sun was showering her in a blaze of glory. The tall, proud lady was a bluish green color. Her right arm extended into the blue heavens, commanding you until you were safely in her harbor.

The ocean was a blue green with white sail boats skimming across it in the wind. My fascinated eyes had never seen before the huge sail boats, the barges and tug boats nudging us closer to "Ellis Island" with the New York skyline and North America right before us.

We departed from a huge train depot, stayed all night in Chicago and the next morning were on the train again.

We arrived in a snow storm at the depot in Wayne, Nebraska. My father, Ernst Julke, and Uncle Gramberg met us in a sleigh pulled by hugh horses.

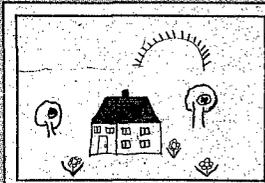

We had never seen snow before.

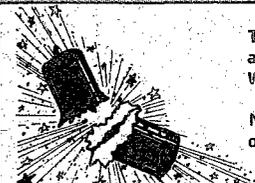

LEE BROWN is behind the life preserver, the little girl behind the word "George."

Museum celebrates 10th anniversary

It was 10 years ago this week — July 5, 1976 — that the Wayne County Historical Museum opened at its new location at 702 Lincoln St.

Relocation of the museum followed months of planning after an offer by the family of the late Rollie Ley to give the family house at 702 Lincoln St. to the Wayne County Historical Society for use as a museum.

Prior to that time, the museum was "overflowing" with items in a room located inside the Wayne County Courthouse.

Ley family members offering the house to the historical society were Henry Ley, Joy Hein and Marjorie Armstrong, all of Wayne, and Mary Alice Champe and Josephine Auker, both of California.

ON THURSDAY, July 10, the Wayne County Historical Society will mark the 10th anniversary of the museum at its new location with an ice cream social.

The public is invited to attend the event from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. on the museum lawn. Rain date is the following evening, July 11.

Loreta Tompkins, president of the historical society, said the museum will be open for viewing during the ice cream social.

TOMPKINS ADDED that all proceeds and donations during the evening will go towards a marching funds grant from Lutheran Brotherhood Branch 8212.

The funds will be used to complete restoration of the museum following extensive water damage in January 1984 due to broken radiator pipes on the second floor of the house.

"Unfortunately," said Tompkins, "the damage wasn't covered by insurance, and if it had not been for the many volunteers who donated their time and labor we simply could not have undertaken such a large restoration task."

With the majority of the work completed, Tompkins said the museum was able to re-open in time for Wayne's centennial celebration in August of that year.

To date, the historical society has spent about $9,000 for restoration, but Tompkins said more work still needs to be done.

THE WAYNE County Historical Society was organized by the Wayne

Woman's Club in 1953. In 1954, they were given the use of a room behind the courtroom in the county courthouse.

By April 1958, 786 antiques had been collected and recorded, and the room was over-crowded.

Little success was met in the search for larger quarters until 1968 when a house had to be moved off a building site on Main Street and was donated to the historical society.

A two-acre plot east of town also was donated and the house was moved onto it. However, the highway department did not grant approval of an approach to the property and activities were limited thereafter.

Vandalism finally forced abandonment of the entire project, and the search was on again for another site.

IT WAS IN 1975 that the Ley family offered to give the family house in Wayne to the historical society for use as a museum.

The house was built in 1900 by Dr. W. C. Wightman for about $13,000. It took two years to build, and the Wightman family lived there until 1912 when they moved to California. The house was then sold to a local banker, Rollie W. Ley, for about $6,000.

Tompkins said features of the five-bedroom home include a reception hall of oak paneling, built-in bookcase, stained glass and beveled glass windows, four coal-burning fireplaces, and wooden fretwork.

Tompkins added that the most unique feature, however, is the intricate parquet floors on the first floor. Each of the four rooms has a different border and center pattern than the others. Two are oak and walnut, and two are oak and mahogany.

THE HOUSE IS decorated and furnished much as it would have been at the turn of the century.

The entire structure is filled with donated items from present and former Wayne County citizens.

Some of the most interesting items on display include a bed with rope "springs" and a straw mattress, a fan presented to General Grant by the Emperor of Japan in 1865, a Civil War soldier's hat and a poem from the Andersonville prison, an 1845 map of the U.S. in which Nebraska is

For remodeling restrooms

County takes bids

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners accepted a bid of $33,240 from Otte Construction of Wayne for remodeling the restrooms and meeting rooms in the basement of the Wayne County Courthouse.

The bid was approved at the July 1 meeting of the Board of Commissioners.

"I contacted eight contractors in the area by phone," said Jack Jackson of Jackson & Jackson Associates, Architects.

Of the eight, only one submitted a bid.

"The proposal [for the renovation project] was submitted to the fire marshal and he has approved it," Jackson said. The remodeling is required to meet standards for accessibility to the handicapped.

Also during the Tuesday meeting, the board of commissioners examined bids for a dirt scraper. Nebraska Machinery Co. of Norfolk was the only company to submit a bid.

The net price was $48,918 after a $20,000 trade on a 1979 catapillar with 4800 hours. Nebraska Machinery's second bid came in at $44,408 after $20,000 trade on a 1978 model catapillar with 6,500 hours. A decision on either dirt scraper has been tabled until the next commissioners meeting.

Also during the meeting, the commissioners approved providing $2,500 to the Wayne County Museum.

School board reviews budget

by Chuck Hackenmiller

Wayne-Carroll School District board members reviewed a 1986-87 budget "proposal" Tuesday evening that calls for a 2.99 percent increase in property tax requirements.

Superintendent Francis Haun told the board members the 2.99 percent increase is less than what he had originally projected. Earlier, he had calculated an increase of from 4 to 4.5 percent.

Some of the comments he made concerning the budget was that the budget proposal is more precise for 1986-87 than it was for 1985-86 because of the salary settlements with the teachers and administration.

Receipts for 1986-87 will be approximately $42,593 less than what the actual and estimated receipts will be for 1985-86, according to the budget proposal (excluding the federal programs).

Haun mentioned that the receipts for 1985-86 are above the anticipated level. He added that the state aid is reduced $33,857 from 1985-86 and that high school tuition receipts will be reduced $17,250 from the previous year.

LISTED IN THE proposed budget for local district taxes (which includes the homestead exemption) is $1,445,000, which is $48,500 more than the prior year.

Receipts for drivers education is not anticipated this year. "That money is gone. We will not be getting anymore," said Haun.

The area experiencing the greatest increase in proposed budget expenditures is in bus acquisition.

Budgeted for bus acquisition is $29,000.

"We've not had a new bus in three years. This is a brand new budget item," mentioned Haun.

A breakdown in proposed expenditures (according to coded areas) in comparison to the 1985-86 year is as follows:

- Regular Instruction — an increase over the previous year of $78,880. There was a request of computer hardware for the elementary and secondary schools of $19,000. That request was narrowed down to $12,000.

- In June, the board of education and the Wayne Education Association reached an agreement to increase the base pay from $13,450 to $13,700 with no changes in indexing. Those raises are reflected in the increase.

- All Special Education Programs — decreased $12,237.
- Drivers Education (for fall during school year) — decreased $295.

- Guidance — up $1,062 with increases in salary, elementary and secondary school supplies and furniture and equipment.
- Health Services — up $272. The school district's expenditures for contracting nursing services with ESU increased from $1,500 to $1,672.

- Other Pupil Support Services — decreased $715.
- Library and Audio-Visual Services — increased $1,700.
- Board of Education — increased $150.

- Executive Administrative Services (which includes line items such as the superintendent's salary and benefits) — increased $1,259.

- In June, the board of education approved a salary increase of 2 percent over the previous year's contract for administrators, board secretary, supervisor of buildings and grounds, lunchroom supervisor and bus drivers.

- Office of the Principal — up $2,571.
- General Business Support — increase of up to $2,352.
- Operation of Plant — a decrease of $15,985.
- Maintenance of Plant — an increase of $4,900.
- Regular Pupil Transportation — an increase of $30,750 proposed, with $29,000 of that amount budgeted for a new bus.
- Summer School (Drivers Education) — a proposed decrease of $235.

THE TOTAL expenditures budgeted for 1986-87, as proposed, is $2,667,987, which reflects a 2.02 percent increase over 1985-86.

Haun told the board he squeezed down the proposed budget as much as he could. The school district will be making specific reductions in staffing for teachers, cooks and custodians for 1986-87, he said.

Another savings, he mentioned, is having Carroll students eating their lunch in Wayne on Wednesdays following their library and physical education classes.

"If not for the cut in state aid, we could have cut our budget," Haun said.

A hearing on the proposed budget has been set for Tuesday, August 5 at the Wayne-Carroll High School. Haun stressed at the meeting that the budget he presented is only a proposal and has not been finalized.

In other action Tuesday, the school board is still uncertain as to what they will be paying if they use the Wayne State College of Nebraska football field for football games this fall.

In April, a committee of school

Natural gas customers will receive decrease in rates

Peoples Natural Gas customers in the Wayne area are receiving another decrease in natural gas rates this month.

According to Tim Connealy, district manager for Peoples, the decrease is due to a reduction in the price of gas that Peoples buys from its supplier to serve Wayne.

Peoples passes such decreases directly on to customers.

Connealy said the decrease will mean an annual savings of about $17 for the typical residential heating customer.

"Consumers are benefitting from the price competition among fuels and the abundant supplies of natural gas, which continue to force prices down," Connealy added.

Peoples provides retail natural gas service to 6,400 residential, commercial and industrial customers in the Wayne District.

Those deserving food stamps are encouraged to re-apply this year

Gina C. Dunning, director of the Nebraska Department of Social Services, is encouraging self-employed individuals who have been denied food stamps within the last year to re-apply for them this year. Some may have been denied food stamps due to the fact that their income was calculated incorrectly.

According to the Nebraska Department of Social Services, it is possible that some households, especially those with farm income, were denied the food stamps because of an error on a social services form that was used to calculate income of self-employed households.

The error that may have occurred was that the capital gains incurred by self-employed individuals, such as farmers, may have been counted twice in computing the income by the food stamp worker. Depreciation is not counted as a cost of doing business in the Food Stamp program although the Internal Revenue Service does allow it as a deduction.

Therefore, self-employed individuals are encouraged to re-apply at their local Social Service Office in case an error was made when they first applied.

The error on the food stamp form was corrected in April of this year.

'hacken' away

by chuck hackenmiller

My torch grows ever heavier. This symbol that I bear. It has brightened the hopes of millions. Yet why do I despair. There're troubles in America, you know. And it is widespread across this nation, causing my upright arm to weaken despite my recent rejuvenation.

Immigrants first came here with sincere hopes to fulfill a need. They forged ahead with timid confidence trying, of all else, to succeed.

Carpenters, welders, painters and others were hired to meet industrial demand. And there were those with good intentions of making a good living off the land.

Together they transformed a melting pot and from there our nation's cultures grew. They had everything to lose, but pushed to accomplish what dreams they pursue.

Now those fleets that pass me by are aware of the hardships Americans face. Dreams can be shattered by a restless world, fearing of violence or the nuclear arms race.

It is difficult to hold my head high knowing what awaits those that arrive. There's incurable diseases and hunger and people struggling just to stay alive.

Is this really a land of opportunity? Are their losses exceeding the gain? Ask those who find themselves bankrupt from producing those amber waves of grain.

Certainly it is discouraging, but I have no recourse to fake than to stand tall, keep the chin up. This nation's morale is at stake!

It is up to me to continue being that glimmer of shining hope and to turn away the pessimism and help Americans, new and old, to cope.

No, I have not the perfect answers on what we as a nation should do. But keep looking for me and I'll always be holding that torch for you!

Who am I, you ask. Well, I'm celebrating my 100th anniversary. To many, I'm a statue inspiring hope or a dream. Just consider me as your Lady Liberty.

Use fireworks with caution

Each year in Nebraska and across the United States, the use of fireworks causes hundreds of serious burns and injuries.

The Nebraska State Fire Marshal's Office has prepared a list of safety tips and reminders which, hopefully, will help reduce the death and injury toll in Nebraska.

It has been recognized for some time that fireworks, for all their patriotic associations, present a very serious safety hazard, particularly for children. Deaths, blindings, amputations, and severe burns have been, all too often, the result of the use of fireworks.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission estimates that in 1985, 10,300 people were treated in hospital emergency rooms for injuries associated with fireworks. Over half of the injuries were burns, and many of the injuries involved the head and face, including the mouth, ears, and eyes. Forty-two percent of the victims were under 15 years of age. Since January 1985, there have been 27 deaths reported to the Consumers Product Safety Commission from fireworks, 23 of which resulted from explosions in firework's factories.

The Nebraska State Fire Marshal's Office reminds you that fireworks should be used only with extreme caution. Older children should be closely supervised and younger children should not be allowed to play with fireworks at all. Only fireworks which are included on the State Fire Marshal's approved list may be sold and used legally in Nebraska. Some of the major items which are NOT legal in Nebraska include bottle rockets, sky rockets, helicopter type devices and all firecrackers larger than the lady-finger type firecrackers. These items are considered unsafe and their use should not be allowed under any circumstances.

THE SPARKLER, considered by many as the ideal "safe" fireworks for the young, burns at a very high temperature and can easily ignite clothing and can almost instantly cause serious deep burns. Children do not appreciate the danger involved and cannot act correctly in case of an emergency, such as clothing catching on fire.

If older children are permitted to use fireworks, be sure they use them only under close adult supervision. Do not allow any running or horse play while they are being used.

Before using any fireworks, read and follow all warning instructions printed on the label.

Light fireworks outdoors only in a clear area away from houses and flammable materials such as gasoline cans and dry weeds and grasses.

Keep a bucket of water or garden hose nearby for emergencies and for dousing fireworks that don't go off.

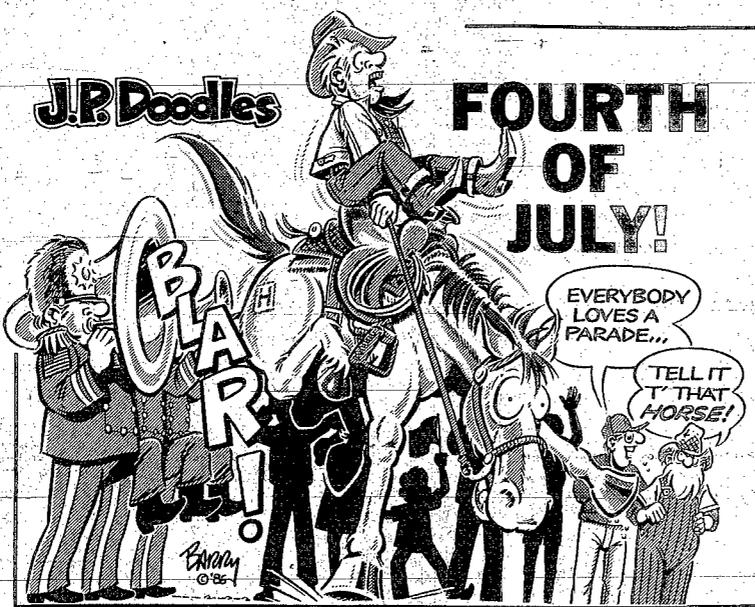

Do not try to relight or handle malfunctioning fireworks. Soak them in water and throw away. Be sure other people are out of range before lighting fireworks.

Never ignite fireworks in a container, especially a glass or metal container.

Store fireworks in a dry, cool place. Check instructions for special storage directions.

Parents should prohibit the ordering or use of mail-order "make-your-own" fireworks kits. The use and possession of such material is extremely dangerous and also illegal. Parents should also prohibit the purchase of fireworks from nearby surrounding states. Much of the fireworks legal in other states, such as Missouri and South Dakota are illegal in Nebraska. Illegal fireworks cause a large number of the fireworks injuries each year in Nebraska.

Persons should be sure to check with their local officials for their City Ordinances pertaining to fireworks.

War Wounds Healed, South joined North in Historic Fourth of July Celebration
Fourth of July celebrations in some Nebraska communities may be somewhat muted this year because of high liability insurance premiums and additional restrictions on fireworks displays.

Neither factor was considered important in planning celebrations of yesteryear.

This year 400 people, campaigning for nuclear disarmament in their Great Peace March across the nation, will spend Independence Day in Omaha.

In former years, Omaha has played host to many. In 1898 upwards of 50,000 people flocked into the city for the great Fourth of July celebration at the Trans-Mississippi Exposition.

The nation was then at war with Spain, and the fervor of the celebration was due in part to the American victory at Santiago, Cuba.

The Secretary of the Navy had just received Admiral Sampson's dispatch proclaiming that "the fleet under my command offers the nation as a Fourth of July present the destruction of the whole of Cervera's fleet."

Yet there was greater cause for celebration.

The South, for the first time since the Civil war, joined the North in celebrating the nation's birthday.

At Atlanta both the state capitol and the governor's mansion were draped in the national colors. Cannons boomed in the city, and there were flag raisings at 20 factories.

At Mobile, for the first time in 38 years, the city publicly honored the Fourth "unanimously and with its whole soul."

AT VICKSBURG, for the first time in 36 years, Independence Day was observed, and there was a salute of 101 guns. Brass bands played patriotic airs.

At the Omaha celebration the orator of the day was the Hon. James M. Beck, the U.S. attorney for Pennsylvania.

"Today," he said, "as never before we face the world as a united country. If wounds there have been, they are healed; if cause for quarrel, it has gone."

"East and west from the Father of Waters, north and south of Mason and Dixon's line; we are one today, my fellow countrymen, one in the proud possession of a glorious past, one in resolute purpose to meet the duties of the hour and one in an abiding faith in the future of our beloved country."

"For one land, one people, one flag and one destiny, let us reverently thank the God of our fathers. May the glory of the republic be as lasting as the day which shines upon its flag and its beneficent influence upon future generations as ceaseless as the majestic flow of the Mississippi to the sea!"

Elsewhere in Nebraska other communities celebrated the glorious Fourth with gusto.

Though Tekamah itself was quiet because many of its citizens were at the lake or in Omaha, Ashland opened the day with a prayer meeting at sunrise.

At West Point the farmers poured into town in large numbers, and a great many impromptu celebrations were organized.

AT BEATRICE the day passed quietly, but when the people learned of the success of the American army in Cuba they became nearly delirious with joy and the town fairly went wild. The noisy celebration lasted far into the night.

Sidney enjoyed one of its "old-time celebrations," and people came in from the country by the hundreds. The order of the day called for a sunrise salute, a parade, speeches, a barbecue, a dance, and a pyrotechnic display such as had never before been witnessed.

At Central City there were trick races, potato races, bicycle races, and a baseball game. (Central City was defeated by the Genoa Indians, 6 to 10.)

Tecumseh's celebration was "the best in the history of the city," with music and sporting events. The Tecumseh bicycle club "came out on dress parade fifty strong and the whole wound up with the customary fireworks."

At Schuyler nothing occurred during the day, but the night was "made one of great news and jubilation upon receipt of the news of the fall of Santiago." The usual speeches were "followed by a huge bonfire and fireworks accompanied by anvil and cannon cracker's roar."

Sgt. Miles, recruiting officer of the 2nd Regt., Nebraska Volunteer Inf., went to Howells on the Fourth and secured eight enlistments. — Betty Loudon, Nebraska State Historical Society.

Bitter struggle
Friday, July Fourth we will celebrate 210 years of the enduring freedoms our forefathers won for us. America's Fourth of July is a day to remember our struggle for independence. That struggle goes on every day for our country and for each of us individually.

shown we don't intend to lose our hard-fought freedoms or retreat from pursuing peace through strength, but national strength means more than military might. Strength means a strong economy, healthy and well educated people, secure energy supplies and a patriotic spirit.

in size or power but in the service of noble ideals and that's where the struggle becomes individual. At our job, in our community, with our families, each strives to be — in the tallest sense of the word — an American.

Happy Fourth of July, Communi-
Senator Elroy Helner

Creed to heed

The following information appeared in a column written by Robert L. Bishop, editor of the Nebraska Farmer.

How many times have you recited the Pledge of Allegiance? Did you know that there is also an American's creed? It goes like this:

The American's Creed:

I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic; a sovereign nation of many sovereign states; a perfect union, one and inseparable; established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice, and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes.

I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it; to support its Constitution; to obey its laws; to respect its flag; and to defend it against all enemies.

This creed was written by William Tyler Page and accepted by Congress in 1918. If most of the phrases sound familiar, they should.

The creed was compiled from various major documents in our country's history, ranging from the Declaration of Independence, to the Preamble to the Constitution, to Washington's Farewell Address.

Our copy of the creed comes from the Honor American Committee of the American Historic and Cultural Society. They are the ones who established the 21-day Salute to America. Each year, that period runs from Flag Day on June 14 to Independence Day on July 4. Citizens are asked to make sure that they fly the flag each day during that 21-day period.

Flying the flag daily is especially apt this year, which has been designated by Congress as the Year of the Flag.

Selling ag loans

"Farmer Mac" Would Help Relieve Farm Credit Crisis

A concept that has already proven successful in solving problems in the areas of housing and education could help to relieve the credit crisis facing farmers and agricultural lending institutions. I am one of the cosponsors of a bill that would establish a secondary market for agricultural real estate and other farm-related loans. This would let the Federal government make the same commitment to agriculture as it has to housing and education.

The bill that Representative Richard Lehman of California and I have introduced would allow commercial agricultural lenders, such as banks and insurance companies, to sell their agricultural loans to a new secondary market entity, a quasi-private corporation — "Farmer Mac." These loans would then be repackaged or pooled under the authority granted to the Corporation and resold to institutional investors, such as pension funds, insurance companies, and other large investors.

"Farmer Mac" would be similar to other existing secondary market institutions such as "Freddie Mac" (Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation), "Fannie Mae" (Federal National Mortgage Association), and "Sallie Mae" (Student Loan Marketing Association). Each of these institutions has helped to provide a stable source of capital to meet the needs of the nation's housing or education markets.

This new institution would be governed by a Board of Governors comprised of the U.S. Comptroller of the Currency, the Chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC), and three private sector experts in agricultural lending appointed by the President. Eventually this interim board would be replaced by a board elected from the private investors in the Corporation.

The secondary market concept for agricultural mortgages has been endorsed by the task force on agricultural credit sponsored by the two major bankers associations—the American Bankers Association and the Independent Bankers Association of America.

We have maintained a long-standing commitment to the housing and education needs of the nation, and it is time that we extended this same degree of long-term commitment to America's farmers.

TODD AND SONJA SKOKAN pose inside their fireworks stand at the corner of Diers Supply in Wayne.

Skokan's Fireworks Business begins with seventh grader's dream

By LaVon Anderson

It was 12 years ago that Todd Skokan, then a seventh grader at Wayne Middle School, decided it would be less expensive to purchase fireworks from his own stand than from someone else's.

It was also about that same time that Wayne resident Eddie Niemann decided he'd been in the business of selling fireworks long enough.

So, Todd and Eddie put their heads together, and Niemann's Fireworks soon became known as Skokans Fireworks.

The stand remained, and still remains, at its location on the corner of Diers Supply, alongside East Highway 35.

WITH HIS NEWLY acquired business, Todd was able to earn his own spending money through high school, and helped pay his own tuition when he headed for college at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

"I haven't given him money since the eighth grade," chuckles his mother Vicky Skokan.

Now 23, Todd is employed as a student loan officer at Farmers State Bank in Shelby, Iowa.

This summer was the first summer he couldn't be found for the 10 days preceding the Fourth of July in his fireworks shed alongside Highway 35.

Still, Todd couldn't stay away completely, and he returned last weekend to check out the fireworks shed which is now managed by his 17-year-old sister Sonja, a May 1986 graduate of Wayne-Carroll High School.

"He thought we couldn't handle it," laughs Vicky, "but we did."

Todd will be back in Wayne tonight (Thursday) and in the fireworks stand until it closes at midnight on the Fourth of July.

"But he doesn't get the money," says his mother. "This year it all goes to Sonja."

ALTHOUGH THE fireworks shed was Todd's dream and later turned over to Sonja, their mother Vicky grins when she says it also has been her "vacation spot" for the past 12 years.

Vicky is employed full-time in the business office at Wayne State College.

"It was Todd's decision to get into the fireworks business," says Vicky, "but I've always helped."

"I started work at the college the same year we opened the fireworks stand, and for the past 12 years this is where I spend my two-week vacation."

ALTHOUGH VICKY and husband Larry help out, Vicky said it was Todd who did all the ordering from the very beginning.

"We purchased the fireworks from Schuyler," says Vicky, "and those people taught Todd everything — from how to order to how to take care of the books."

Although she jokes about spending her vacation in the little white fireworks shed, Vicky says it's all been worth it.

Although at one time there were as many as five fireworks stands in Wayne, Vicky said this year the number is down to two — Skokan Fireworks and Barner Fireworks.

"We both have about the same things and about the same prices," says Vicky, "and we get along very well."

SINCE OPENING the stand in 1974, the Skokans say there have been several changes.

New laws since that time prohibit the selling of various fireworks considered dangerous, including pop bottle rockets and night parachutes.

"Pop bottle rockets were banned about 10 years ago," says Vicky, "and they were our very best selling item."

This year, daughter Sonja, who is also earning money for college by spending her days at the fireworks shed, says the most popular item with the youngsters is the snappers.

Sonja says her personal favorites are the fountains. "Actually," she adds, "I like all the pretty ones."

Because Sonja plans to enroll in Wayne State College this fall, Vicky says that means the family will probably stay in the fireworks business for at least the next four years.

"It's fun," says Sonja, "and we get to meet a lot of people."

LAW DICTATES that all fireworks stands in Nebraska cannot be open until 10 days before the Fourth of July, and must close at midnight on the Fourth.

Owners of fireworks stands also must be state and city licensed, and have a moving permit.

Skokan Fireworks opened June 25 at 9 a.m. and will remain open until midnight July 4. Then, the Skokan family will have their own Fourth of July fun.

For other Fourth of July enthusiasts, an article from the American Pyrotechnics Association offers the following tips on how to gain greater enjoyment in watching the night sky bursts.

Their suggestions include:

- Don't get too close. To observe the full effect of aerial shells it is best to be at least several hundred feet from the display site.
- Watch the quality of the colors. Blue is an especially difficult color for the pyrotechnician to make and a deep, beautiful blue is a true work of art. A good white also should be appreciated.
- Count the number of "breaks" — or individual explosions — in each shell. The fanciest display shells are the multiple break variety. After being launched several hundred feet into the air, they produce several "effects." An "effect" generally consists of either a burst of color made by many individual pellets called "stars," or a thunder-like explosion produced by powder-filled cylinders called "salutes."
- Know the difference between an oriental shell, which is cylindrical before it explodes, and an American shell, which is cylindrical. When the oriental shell bursts, you see a spectacular, spreading chrysanthemum shape that takes up the whole sky. The random pattern of color given by the American shell is easily distinguished from this symmetrical pattern.
- Appreciate the art of packing an aerial shell. The "stars" in an oriental shell, for example, must be carefully packed in symmetrical layers to make the beautiful flower patterns they are known for.

Old and new wedding gowns were modeled at Wakefield Health Care Center during a bridal fashion show and reception on June 22.

Over 350 guests were welcomed by Administrator John Viken.

Stephanie Torczon sang "Arms of Love," accompanied by Christi Oswald, and "Because," accompanied by Sharon Croasdale.

Gloria Oberg introduced the models, including staff and family members, and gave brief accounts of their dresses.

A WEDDING CAKE, baked by Wilma Gustafson, an employee of the Care Center, centered the reception table. Mints, nuts, punch and coffee also were served.

Bridal decorations were throughout the center, and numerous bridal pictures, albums and bridal accessories were on display.

A gazebo adorned the west lobby and featured a mannequin dressed in bridal attire.

Hopefully, something good will come out of drug deaths

Len Bias' and Don Rogers' deaths will hopefully turn the old saying "some good comes out of every bad" into a factual statement.

The news is old by now. Bias, the former Maryland basketball star, and Rogers, the former UCLA and NFL standout, both died within nine days of each other from cocaine poisoning.

But the two deaths had a shocking effect on the general public, mainly because the people killed were household names and because cocaine is considered by many a casual drug.

The fact is, however, cocaine and other drugs aren't casual, but instead are unpredictable killers that claim the lives of misled people every day — everywhere.

The principal from George Washington High School (GWHS) in the Los Angeles area recently stated that Bias' and Rogers' deaths were, indeed, tragic, but added that people die from cocaine and other drugs every week within the GWHS school district.

Dr. Robert J. Murphy, an associate clinical professor of preventive medicine and the head team physician at Ohio State University, says he has data showing that in the last five years, 20 to 25 percent of college athletes use marijuana or cocaine — some use both — on an average of once a week.

A 1984 multi-college survey compiled by Heitzinger & Associates of Madison, Wis., found that of 2,100 athletes at 12 colleges, 27 percent used marijuana and 14 percent used cocaine.

But cocaine doesn't only kill those in colleges or in metropolitan areas. Cocaine and other drugs don't discriminate, it's addictive arms reach out for susceptible users in every corner of the earth, including the midwest.

But now, after news of Bias' and Rogers' life-ending decision to use drugs has spread across the country, maybe more people will understand the impact drugs can have.

It's a very costly price to pay — the lives of two rising superstars who had everything to live for, but if Bias' and Rogers' deaths have a lasting effect and persuade even one person considering using cocaine or other drugs to deter, Bias and Rogers will not have died in vain.

SCOTT THOMPSON (left) and Dave Diediker proudly display the trophies they received after winning the Member-Guest Tournament Friday and Saturday.

Diediker and Thompson team to win Member-Guest Tournament

Dave Diediker of Wayne and Laurel's Scott Thompson teamed to win the Member-Guest Golf Tournament at the Wayne Golf and Country Club Friday and Saturday.

Diediker and Thompson finished the handicapped tournament with a 109 net score, shooting a 55 on Friday and a 54 on Saturday. Diediker's scratch scores were 40-41, 81, while Thompson fired a 41-45, 86.

The winners were tied for second place, one stroke out of first, after Friday's action. But four scratch birds dies on Saturday boosted them to the title.

Diediker and Thompson won a $200 gift certificate for placing first. Sponsors from various local businesses also donated $25 for hole prizes both days.

Gene Casey and Dave Anderson had the lowest scratch score after the first day's action.

Ralph Barclay and Jim Potts placed second in the tourney.

Errors sink Wayne, 15-4

"You aren't going to win too many games when you make as many errors as we did," Wayne head coach Marilyn Strate said after her 18-and-under softball team committed eight fielding miscues and dropped a 15-4 decision to Emerson at Overlin Field Sunday night.

In addition to the eight errors, Wayne pitchers yielded 10 walks, but limited the visitors to five hits, while Wayne clubbed eight safeties.

"We out-hit them, but we made way too many mistakes in the field," Strate said.

Emerson opened a 1-0 advantage in the first before exploding for 11 markers in the top of the second for a 12-0 lead. The visitors took advantage of four errors and five walks in the second frame.

Wayne got on the scoreboard in the bottom of the second. Lori Jacobsen started the Wayne second by drawing a walk and scored one out later on Robin Lutt's double.

Lutt advanced to third on Kerri Leighton's single and scored when Amy Schluns delivered a two-out single.

Emerson matched Wayne's two runs with a pair of markers in the third and then rounded out its offense with an insurance run in the fourth.

Wayne scored one run in both the third and fourth innings. Kathy Mohfeld ripped a two-out double in the third and later scored on Lutt's second double of the game.

Marnie Bruggeman scored Wayne's final run in the fourth after walking, stealing second and crossing the plate on a single by Schluns.

In addition to Lutt and Schluns, Mohfeld and Leighton totaled two hits apiece for Wayne.

The loss dropped Wayne to 8-9 on the year. Wayne's 18-and-under team played Wednesday against Homer at the college field and plays again Thursday at Beemer.

Strate hoped to schedule a game for Wayne's 15-and-under team over the weekend, but could not locate an opponent. Wayne's 15-and-under squad also played Wednesday against Homer and play again Thursday at Beemer.

Both Wayne squads have qualified to compete in the Class B State Tournaments outright because Wayne is the only Class B school in the area.

The Class B 15-and-under State Tournament will be held July 11-13 at Norfolk, while the Class B 18-and-under State Tournament will be held July 25-27 at North Platte.

Middle hitters lift Wayne past Norfolk

NORFOLK — Had Norfolk's pitchers been able to get around the middle part of Wayne's batting order, it probably would've won Tuesday night's game. But Wayne's second, third and fourth hitters (Dan Gross, Jeff Hausmann and Don Larsen, respectively) combined to go 9-for-11 at the plate and scored three runs in Wayne's 2-3 victory. Wayne's 'B' team dropped an 11-3 decision in the opener.

Norfolk opened a 1-0 lead in the second when the hosts used two walks and a single to tally the game's first run. But Wayne came right back and tied the game in the top of the third.

Shannon Dorcey doubled to lead off the third but was forced at third. However, Gross singled and stole second and Hausmann plated Gross with another single.

Larsen followed Hausmann with another safety, but Norfolk escaped further damage by recording the final out.

Norfolk retook the lead by scoring another run in the fourth inning. But Wayne tallied two runs in the fifth, one in the sixth and escaped a mild Norfolk threat in the seventh to claim the victory.

Gross started the Wayne fifth by clubbing a one-out double and scored on Hausmann's third straight single. Larsen followed by drawing a walk and Brent Pick plated Hausmann with the go-ahead run.

Bill Landanger scored the eventual game-winning run for Wayne in the sixth when he walked, advanced on a Dorcey single and crossed the plate on a Norfolk error.

Norfolk pulled within one in the seventh inning. Norfolk's lead-off hitter reached on an error and two outs later, scored on a single. But Ted Lueders, Wayne's starting pitcher, retired the next batter to end the game.

Hausmann finished 4-for-4, while Larsen totaled three hits in as many tries. Gross and Dorcey went 2-for-4 and 2-for-3, respectively, while Pick and Scott Baker both totaled one hit apiece.

Lueders fired a two-hitter, totaled six strike outs and walked five.

Norfolk pushed across four runs in the first inning of the first game and cruised to an eight-run victory.

Jason Jorgensen scored Wayne's first run in the second when he reached on an error, moved to second on another fielding miscue and crossed the plate on a Mark Creighton single.

Jorgensen made it 5-2 in the fourth after he doubled, moved to third on a force play and scored on a sacrifice fly by Creighton.

Dorcey scored Wayne's final run in the seventh when he singled, moved to second on a force play, advanced to third on a balk and scored on a Jorgensen single.

Jorgensen finished 2-for-3 with two runs scored, while Ted McCright went 2-for-2 with a walk and a stolen base.

Lueders, Dorcey and Creighton each collected one hit apiece for Wayne.

Wayne Juniors split with Sioux City West

SIoux CITY — Jeff Hausmann and Ted Lueders shut down one of the better teams in Northwest Iowa when Wayne's Junior Legion baseball team trimmed Sioux City West 4-1 in 11 innings to salvage a split of a doubleheader at Wolverine Field here Saturday. West claimed the opener, 12-0, in five innings.

Hausmann and West's Chuck Rich were engaged in an all-out pitcher's duel in the second game as both hurlers carried shut outs into the sixth inning.

But Wayne broke the ice by opening a 1-0 lead in the top of the inning when Hausmann doubled and scored on Don Larsen's double.

Hausmann retired the side in order in the bottom of the sixth, but yielded two singles, a walk and the tying run in the bottom of the seventh.

Hausmann then allowed only one single and faced seven batters over the next two innings before being replaced by Lueders because of an Iowa rule that states a pitcher can only throw nine innings in one day.

Lueders allowed a two-out single in 10th before recording the final out on a fly ball to center field. And Wayne followed by tallying three runs off relief pitcher Todd Hemmingfield in the top of the 11th.

Hausmann led off the 11th with a single before Larsen and Brent Pick followed with consecutive walks.

After a strike out, Lueders dropped down a squeeze bunt in an attempt to score Hausmann. The bunt was fielded by Hemmingfield and he forced Hausmann out at home, but West's catcher threw the ball over the first baseman's head in an attempt to double off Lueders and Larsen and Pick both scored.

Shannon Dorcey then plated Lueders for Wayne's fourth run with a single.

West's first batter in the 11th reached on an error, but Lueders struck the next two batters out and after issuing a walk, recorded the final out on a fly ball to left field.

Hausmann, who entered the game with 58 strike outs in 27 1/3 innings, fanned only three Wolverines, but allowed only five hits and two walks.

Hausmann also finished 2-for-5 at the plate, while Dan Gross, Larsen and Dorcey each collected one hit apiece.

West's Brian Miller limited Wayne to one hit and the hosts held a 5-0 lead after two innings before exploding for seven runs in the fourth to claim a 12-0 victory in the opener.

Wayne's Tim Fleming led the game off with a single, but that was the only hit off of Miller and only two other Wayne players reached base.

Fleming was stranded on first in the opener, while Scott Baker was stranded on first in the second after reaching on an error and Steve Lutt was stranded on first after drawing a walk.

Miller finished with eight strike outs, while West collected seven hits and drew seven walks in four innings.

The contest is sponsored by the Wayne Herald, with prizes going to the best poetic entry, the best essay entry, and the best entry related to the theme "Legendary Chickens."

One free chicken dinner will be awarded to the first place winner in each of the three categories. Each winner has his/her choice of where to dine at any of the Wayne eating establishments.

Send in the entries to: The Wayne Herald, c/o The Legendary Chickens, Box 70, Wayne, NE 68787.

Another Chicken Show event that has been shown during the past two years is the Chicken Show Dessert-Box Social. Prizes will be awarded to the best box which contains a dessert for two people.

The boxes will be auctioned off to the highest bidder during the Chicken Feed from 3 to 7 p.m. An added incentive to the bidders will be hidden cash added to three of the dessert boxes in amounts of $5, $15 and $30.

A new feature of the annual Wayne Chicken Show will be the "Olympick" Challenge.

The annual Chicken Show is scheduled for Friday and Saturday, July 11 and 12.

The purpose of the Olympick event is to allow teams assembled by area business and organizations to demonstrate their superiority in chicken related events. Each team will consist of three women and three men.

Competition starts at 5:30 p.m. on July 12 as the grand finale for the Chicken Show.

Events will include the Shoe Scramble, Eggroll (pushing an egg with your nose over a short course), Eggtoes, Egg on Face Relay; Three-legged Chicken Race; Spoon Race; and a Mystery Event.

For more information on the events, contact Dean Jacobs at 375-2200, Lyle George at 375-1123 or 3353, or Duane Henneman at 375-4770.

Another new event this year is the "Chicken Song Contest."

Entries will be placed in two categories — ages 12 and under and ages 13 on up.

Rules state that the contestant must choose a well-known song that has a familiar melody, and then create their own lyrics related to the chicken theme.

Contestants are asked to provide their own background music. Tape players and sound system will be made available and the entrant will be judged on originality and theme content. Prizes will be awarded.

Entry forms for this event are available at the State National Bank in Wayne. Those wishing more details can call Kaki Ley for more details at 375-2017.

The entry form for the annual Chicken Show Parade is on page 2a. The parade begins at 11 a.m. on July 12. Deadline for submitting the application to enter the parade is July 8, according to Dorothy Nelson of the Chicken Show Parade Committee. The parade is sponsored by the Eagles Auxiliary.

For more information, call 375-3437.

MEMBERS OF the Civil Air Patrol Squadrons at Wayne and Norfolk got a look at what Army National Guard uses for rescue operations — two military helicopters. Crews who flew the machines to Wayne are members of the 24th Air Medical Company, Air Ambulance, stationed at Lincoln. Wayne Squadron Commander Mitchell Nissen said their visit to Wayne was arranged by Dr. Joseph Fleck, a colonel in the U.S. Force Reserve, a member of the Wayne CAP, and in civilian life head of the Wayne State Division of Education. Through his military contacts Col. Fleck knew the Army National Guard's helicopter unit sometimes makes flights like the one to Wayne as a training exercise. For this occasion, the company agreed to take members of the Wayne and Norfolk CAP squadrons on brief flights — but only those who appeared in CAP uniform and signed waivers of liability in case of accident. Twenty-four CAP members arrived in uniform, along with others not in uniform — and several dozen spectators flocked to the airport by the helicopters' conspicuous arrival. After about an hour of briefing the big event came: flying.

Board

board members were appointed to negotiate with Wayne State College regarding the rental fee for use of the college football field. Presently, the school district pays $40 per game, plus up to $90 for labor per game.

One figure that has been proposed by Wayne State College officials is $1,322.41 per season, plus the regular labor costs. Wayne-Carroll plays approximately four home games during the regular football season.

The Board of education decided to try again and negotiate with Wayne State College administration concerning the rental fees. No final proposals have been presented by either side, according to Haun.

Also, the board of education approved the resignations of Ron and Mavis Dalton as instructors of the Wayne-Carroll School District.

Ron headed the high school band program for 17 years. Mavis was physical education instructor and head coach of volleyball and girls track.

They will be moving to Waverly, Nebraska.

Marlene Uhing was appointed to replace Mavis as physical education instructor and head volleyball coach.

On Tuesday night, the board of education approved hiring Brad Weber of Wayne as high school band instructor.

Weber has served as band instructor in the Emerson-Hubbard School District since the 1977-78 school year.

The board also took no action on an agenda item to provide insurance coverage to board members.

The next board meeting will take place on Aug. 5.

shown as "Indian Territory," an unusual "fly fan," letters written to a local woman from Henry Wadsworth Longfellow Dana, grandson of the famous poet, and hundreds of other interesting items.

THE CURRENT display at the historical museum is "Mirror of Fashion," a complete line of historical clothing which spans the time period with aprons from 1845 to an inaugural ball gown from 1941.

The historical society now has 89 members, down from previous years. Yearly memberships are $5.

Tompkins pointed out that the museum is not supported by a mill levy and needs donations for financial assistance.

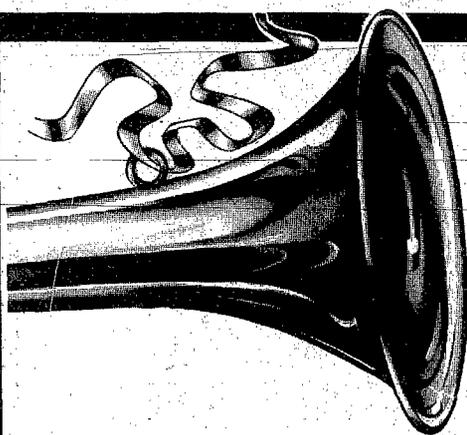

Last year, approximately 725 adults toured the museum, many from out of town. Since January, there have been 360 school children visit the museum, most from surrounding communities.

"It is always rewarding to see their enthusiasm for learning of older times," said Tompkins. "One of the greatest gifts we can give our children is a knowledge of their past heritage."

Wayne County has one of the nicest museums I have seen. It has many artifacts unique to our area and cultural heritage.

"We are trying to increase attendance through special summer displays and to make the public more aware of this valuable asset to our community and the citizens of the county."

Flea time approaching

Now is the time to keep an eye out for flea infestations on pets. While flea infestations usually reach their highest populations later in the summer, controlling them before they get out of hand may prevent a major problem.

Fleas suck blood, causing irritation and weight loss of dogs and cats. Heavy populations can cause anemia, particularly in young, old or sick animals and cause ragged, uneven coats. Fleas also may transmit bacterial viral and protozoan disease as well as tapeworms. Fleas also occasionally bite humans, producing small red marks with accompanying itch.

Fleas are about 1/8 inch long with a body that is compressed from side to side like a sunfish. They are brown and have no wings, but their legs are well-developed for jumping.

Fleas have four stages of development and can complete a generation in as little as three to four weeks. Adult fleas stay on the hosts to feed and deposit eggs which drop off into carpets, lawns and pet bedding.

When controlling fleas, both the animal and the infested premises need to be treated. Kennels should be regularly cleaned and bedding thoroughly washed or vacuumed.

Insecticide labels should be read carefully and directions followed carefully. Not all compounds are labeled for use on both dogs and cats.

It takes considerable effort to bring fleas under control. No single application of insecticides to pets or premises is likely to provide satisfactory control.

Fertilizing Sudan or Hybrid Sudan

Sudan grass or hybrid Sudan usually require fertilizer for good forage yields. During years when drought stress is likely, excessive amounts of nitrogen fertilizer should be avoided since most varieties of Sudan grass are nitrate accumulators when growth is restricted. Providing adequate levels of phosphorus may reduce nitrate accumulation, but will not eliminate it if stress is severe. It is best to base the fertilizer recommendation on a soil test. Sixty to 90 pounds of nitrogen may be used. If the soil is known to be low or very low in available phosphorus, use 20 to 40 pounds of phosphate per acre.

If the Sudan grass is planted on a field that was well-fertilized last year, but little crop harvested due to drought, no fertilizer may be needed this year. A soil test provides the best answer.

Discrepancy shows on conservation tillage

The perceived use of conservation tillage among Nebraska farmers may be two to three times greater than actual use, according to recent research by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

About 60 percent of the farmers surveyed statewide said they thought they were using conservation tillage, while field measurements and other tests indicated that only about 5 to 20 percent actually were, according to Elbert Dickey, UNL extension agricultural engineer. Conservation tillage will be released in late June at the summer meeting of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers in San Luis Obispo, Calif.

The survey indicated that although farmers may have reduced their number of tillage operations, they still may not be leaving enough residue to qualify as conservation tillage. Conservation tillage is any planting or tillage practice which leaves 20 to 30 percent of the soil surface covered with residue after planting. Tests in Nebraska have proven that leaving at least 20 percent of the soil surface covered with residue after planting can cut erosion in half.

county test area in eastern Nebraska were found to be using conservation tillage. When the 30 percent criterion was used, less than 5 percent of the surveyed fields qualified.

"A reason for the discrepancy between the measured and perceived use of conservation tillage appears to be related to a change in type of tillage implements used," Dickey said. "In 1974, the primary tillage system, used by more than 50 percent of the farmers, was the moldboard plow system. By 1984, this use had decreased to about 15 percent and may have created an impression that conservation tillage had been adopted."

Dickey said the survey indicated there had been a significant shift to the disk tillage system in the last 15 years. About 70 percent of the producers said they now were using the disk for their primary tillage system. The disk system can qualify as a conservation tillage method if it meets the minimum residue requirement. In heavy-corn residue, two diskings usually will leave the recommended minimum cover, although in the more fragile soybean residue, even one disking will destroy too much residue.

A similar survey is expected to be taken in several years to measure further changes.

WHEN THE 20 percent figure was used as a criterion, about 18 percent of the fields measured in a seven-

HELPING HANDS

Cindy Berg presided over the June 14 meeting of the Helping Hands 4-H Club at the Winside fire hall.

Organizational leader Mrs. Dennis Greunke made several announcements, including a song practice schedule and date of a meeting for parents and leaders concerning new activity record books.

The club decided not to build a float this year for various parades.

Three demonstrations were given following the business meeting, including Matt Brogren's on atmospheric conditions and happenings, Margaret Brugger's on how to prepare baking dishes and pans, and Ryan Brogren's on making a nail point design.

Wendy Morse and Cindy Berg served lunch.

Next meeting will be July 12 at 1:30 p.m. in the Winside fire hall. The Brogren family will host and Brugger will co-host. Each member is to bring a finished project.

Cindy Berg, news reporter.

CARROLLINERS

The Carrolliners 4-H Club met in the Dennis Junck home on June 9. Misty Junck conducted the business meeting, and Pam Junck was acting secretary. The group recited the flag salute.

Members discussed making a float for the Carroll centennial parade. Some members also announced plans to attend Ponca Day Camp.

Club members will paint trash cans at the Carroll park on July 8.

The Carrolliners 4-H Club met June 23 at the Ron Sebade home with 16 members present. Kristie Mundt was a guest.

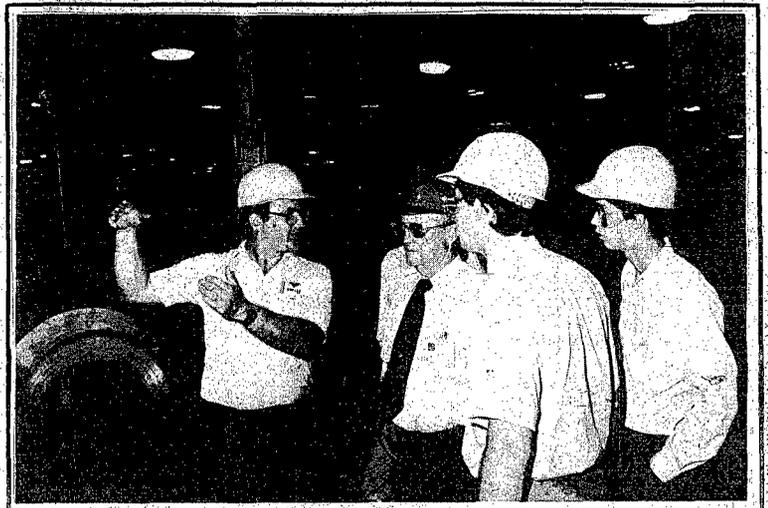

Misty Junck conducted the business meeting. Pam Junck read the secretary's report, and Christina Bloomfield read the treasurer's report. For roll call, members brought completed fair projects.

The group discussed making a float for the Carroll centennial parade. They also discussed plans for making a time capsule to be buried during the centennial.

Dwayne Junck and Trevor Hall had a demonstration on knot making. Misty and Carrie Junck served.

Next meeting will be July 8 at 1:30 p.m. at the Carroll park where members will paint trash cans, picnic tables and the merry-go-round.

Carrie Junck, news reporter.

On tour at Valmont

ROB KING, large pole operations manager at Valmont Industries, explains the galvanizing process to participants of the Nebraska State 4-H Conference, June 19. Dean Robinson, a conference coordinator from Western (center), Tim Druke from Cuming county (foreground) and Marc Rahn from Wayne county (right), visited the Valley-based corporation to learn more about its fabrication and marketing of agricultural products like the centerpivot irrigation system that Valmont pioneered in the 1950's. Throughout the day, 4-H'ers in the week-long conference toured different companies and organizations in the around Omaha, learning more about their prospective careers.

Chemigation use to be regulated

As of this year, Nebraska is one of only a few states to have legislation regulating the practice of chemigation. Chemigation and the legislation governing it are both controversial, said University of Nebraska-Lincoln water and agriculture law specialist J. David Aiken.

LB284 establishes a program for regulating chemigation systems by Natural Resource Districts (NRD's) under the Department of Environmental Control (DEC) supervision.

After Jan. 1, 1987 irrigators must obtain an annual chemigation permit from the local NRD to operate a chemigation system. Permits are $30 and must be renewed annually with a $10 renewal fee. The permits may be issued after the NRD has inspected the chemigation system and the applicator has been certified as a chemigator. A training course and written tests are required to become certified by the DEC. The certification is good for two years, after which the application must be re-certified.

Provisional chemigation permits may be obtained for the 1987 irrigation season if the NRD is unable to inspect the system within 45 days after the permit application has been made, or if the applicant is unable to take certification training. Provisional permits may be revoked if equipment or certification requirements are not met by Jan. 1, 1988.

Emergency permits — issued without NRD inspection — may be obtained if an applicant is certified and his equipment meets all requirements. The fee for emergency permits is $100.

Chemigation systems will be required to have a number of safety features including check valves, an inspection port and a shut-off valve between the chemical injection unit and the pumping plant. Fields also must be posted when using certain chemicals.

If a spill occurs, operators have 24 hours to report it to the DEC.

Pork board directors meet

Gene Luff and Dick Sorensen, both of Wayne, attended the summer quarterly meeting of the Nebraska Pork Producers Association, Inc., State Board of Directors on June 20, in North Platte. They are both members of the Wayne County Pork Producers Association where Luff is currently serving as State Director. Sorensen is the state association's Pork Industry group director on the National Live Stock and Meat Board.

The directors were updated on committee activities and actions as well as industry issues and the Pork Act Delegate Election that will take place July 7-11 at county extension offices.

In other business, the directors selected Grand Island as the site of the 1987 annual meeting.

No-till tour July 10

What are two of the most successful ways to break into no-till farming? According to Thurston County Extension Agent, Andrew Christiansen, "no-till corn in soybean residue and no-till corn in alfalfa have been very successful for Thurston County farmers who try no-till farming as a means to reduce production costs and erosion."

These two systems will kick-off the Conservation Till-Age Field Day on July 10, which begins at 3 p.m. at the Leonard Peters farm, 1 mile south of highway 94, 4 1/2 miles west of Walthill, culminating at Cooney's Fertilizer where the annual field day events will take place.

Along the way, tours will be made of fields of no-till corn in oat stubble, soybean residue and killed alfalfa. Christiansen, points out that "all of these systems can put money in the farmer's pocket. Corn on beans is something most farmers are able to do with no equipment changes." Christiansen says he is "partial towards no-till corn in alfalfa because it is usually weed free and may not need cultivation. It's a big savings compared to plowing and disking."

Other highlights of the field day will be a weed clinic, insects and no-till, farmer inventions and a look at the root zone of a compacted field. Dinner will be provided by sponsors of the event. Farmers and their partners are invited.

Makes control feasible

Law attacks pseudorabies

LB755, a Pseudorabies Control Act passed by the 1986 Nebraska legislature, does not mean that pseudorabies will be eradicated in Nebraska soon according to Dr. Alex Hogg, University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension veterinarian.

Until LB755 was passed, "we never had a legislative bill designed to control the spread of pseudorabies, a disease that affects all animals, particularly swine," he said. Briefly, LB755 states that the Nebraska Department of Agriculture may:

Require a change of ownership test of both breeding and feeder swine.

Quarantine pseudorabies infected or exposed swine herds.

Regulate the sale and uses of pseudorabies vaccines.

In addition, LB755 authorizes the State Veterinarian to write specific regulations to control pseudorabies, he said. The new regulations will be put into effect on Sept. 1, 1987.

HOGG SAID HE anticipates Nebraska's feed pig regulations, when written, will follow the Illinois feeder pig regulations.

"Illinois requires that the owner of a herd from which feeder pigs will be sold blood test about 10 percent of the breeding herd each year and be found negative to pseudorabies," he said. "The plan has worked well in Illinois. Only 1.7 percent of 3,500 herds tested were found infected."

Hogg said two technological breakthroughs on the horizon will make control of pseudorabies more feasible.

"We anticipate the availability of sub-unit pseudorabies vaccines. These vaccines will allow us to distinguish between infected animals and those that react to the blood test just because they were vaccinated."

"The second development is quick, economical blood tests that can be done right on the farm," he said. "By using these new tests we can remove infected animals from a herd immediately and avoid spreading pseudorabies to other animals in the herd."

Driving north from Maskenthine towards Hoskins (Saturday), we could see the big black clouds moving east ahead of us. We didn't make it in time before the downpour; we had to race for the house. We had over one inch in 30 minutes. But the basement appears to be dry, thanks to the new sidewalk. And no hail.

It's a fitting end to a hot, muggy week. Hopefully, it will be a bit cooler this week.

My legs hurt from just an hour in the strawberry patch yesterday. I went to a "pick-your-own" place near Norfolk. It was wonderful. The plants are in rows, no flies or mosquitoes, and the berries were delicious. But, tonight, I'm having trouble moving around.

The country is getting ready to celebrate The Fourth, along with the 100th birthday of the Statue of Liberty.

There are so many centennials in Nebraska this year, there is no way to take them all in. But it's a fun time to remember our heritage.

The Lady with the Lamp was not in the harbor when my ancestors arrived. But after seeing her myself, and reading of the emotions of the immigrants when they first viewed her, I can appreciate the impact she's had.

Reading of the sculptor, Auguste Bartholdi, and how he accomplished his dream of a beacon of freedom helps me to remember why we celebrate the Fourth.

DID YOU realize that there has been a bill introduced to replace The Star Spangled Banner with America, The Beautiful as the national anthem?

I have mixed feelings about this. "The Banner" is difficult to sing. But it gives goose bumps. Would "America" have the same effect at the Olympics?

Patriotism seems to be popular again. We've come to realize that we can be patriotic and still admit we have a lot of problems.

I've always been one who gets teary at the sight of flags and sounds of brass bands. Even though "Halls Across America" had its detractors, I was still moved by the news reports we saw.

Just the other night, 20/20 interviewed the man who first sold frozen pizza, Jeno's. He was from Italy, lived in Duluth, and made his first fortune on Chun King canned foods, which he sold to R.J. Reynolds Co.

As he said, "Where else but in America could an Italian immigrant come to a Swedish state, manufacture Chinese foods, and sell it to a tobacco company, when I don't even smoke?"

So I'll fly my flag, light some firecrackers and watch the Liberty festivities on television. And I'll be thankful once again that the "door to freedom" was open in the middle 1800's, and that my particular German immigrant was not denied admission, and that the Lady continues to lift her lamp beside the Golden Door.

By David Garst

Video games are to kids today what marbles were to my generation.

I can remember playing marbles with my friends. It was a way to prove myself. I knew that my success in life was somehow tied to winning the marbles.

And, according to Tracy Bowchatin of New Athens, Illinois, that way of thinking still holds true. Writes Tracy, "Farming is a lot like one of those video games in an arcade. The player is the farmer, and the coin in the slot is the farmer's determination and know-how."

Like a video game, farming is an individual effort. It's you against the game. Even though others may occasionally look on — perhaps even offer a few suggestions — you're still the one who must make the decisions. It's your game, and how you choose to play is up to you.

It has a variety of obstacles that the player must dodge, whether it be an unforeseen change in prices, or the weather. You need good instincts, and quick reflexes. Plus, it helps to have nerves of steel because of the risks involved. In spite of the risks, farmers believe nothing ventured is nothing gained. Many risk everything on their ability to grow a crop and make a profit.

It's fun. A few part-timers play just for the entertainment. They're not too worried about their score. But most play to win because their livelihood depends on it. For these people, farming is a game with high stakes.

Like playing video, farming skills improve with practice. And in recent times, U.S. farmers have mastered the traditional skills needed to produce abundant food. But just as one skill level is mastered, the game changes. And each new game presents a new challenge. It's a process that never ends.

It's difficult to win at farming every time. The newer games are harder to win than ever before. Sometimes, farmers wonder if it's possible to ever win again. But each new coin is a new season, a new opportunity. Although risks are always there, experience teaches you how to overcome them. . . . and you gain confidence each time you play.

It's this challenge that keeps farmers coming back for more. And when you do win, you know you've won the toughest game in town.

LENRD considering move to reduce director numbers

Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District Directors at their June 26 board meeting began considering a reorganization of election sub-districts and a reduction in the number of directors. The board will develop a plan dividing the NRD into seven subdistricts of similar populations, with two directors from each subdistrict and one director-at-large, for a total of 15 directors. Lower Elkhorn NRD currently has nine sub-districts and 19 directors.

The reorganization is enabled by the passage of legislative bill 302 in the last session of the Unicameral. NRD election procedures have been a point of contention by some state senators, and the changes being considered would answer the concern of equal representation voiced by some legislators.

Directors approved cost share payments to landowners for soil and water conservation practices, which brings the total for fiscal year 1986 to $782,858.46 of LENRD funds. An additional $136,667.51 of Nebraska Soil and Water Conservation Program funds was administered by the NRD. Requests approved for F. Y. 1987 cost sharing now stand at $1,375,698.61.

In other actions, directors approved:
• Agreement with H.W.S. Technologies Inc. for an annual safety inspection of the Willow Creek Dam.
• A study of the effects on crop production and economic benefits of free root plows used between crop fields and windbreaks.

Chiggers

Chiggers are small red mites that are sometimes called red bugs or harvest mites. They are most prevalent during the summer and fall — especially in the southern United States. Chigger larvae attach themselves to the skin, release a destructive chemical that causes intense itching, and then fall from the body after becoming engorged with blood.

Bites are most commonly found on the feet, legs, and at the beltline and neckline. Golfers, berry pickers, farmers, hunters, and picnickers are frequently affected.

There are three approaches to avoiding chigger bites: (1) Stay out of weeds and grasses. (2) Wear clothing that fits tightly at the ankles, waist, and neckline. (3) Use insect repellent lotions or sprays. Although repellents are not universally effective, they will turn away some chiggers and reduce the number of bites.

When chigger bites occur, the primary symptom is itching which can be relieved to some extent by any of several non-prescription products. These include several skin preparations as well as oral antihistamines. Inflammation may be relieved by hydrocortisone preparations.
