Hoskins 4-H club receives award

The Rainbow Kids 4-H Club of Hoskins was recently awarded a $100 prize from the Keep Nebraska Beautiful organization. Club President Shelley Henzler, Vice President Jamie Painter, members Jean and Jennifer Severson, and leader Rosemary Severson, attended the awards dinner at Columbus on July 25. To qualify for the competition, a letter of intent was mailed and a scrapbook kept of community activities. The books were judged and the winners notified. The Rainbow Kids 4-H Club has entered the competition the past two years and has received monetary awards both years.

Fair

Saturday is also designated as Carroll, Sholes and Wayne Day and it starts off with the market hog show at 8 a.m., followed by the 4-H and open class dog show at 8:30 a.m. and the judging of open class beef at 9 a.m.

The horseshoe pitching contest will take place at 1 p.m., the same time as the open class feeder calf show begins.

A TRACTOR pulling contest, featuring the Nebraska Bush Pullers, starts at 1:30 p.m. For further information on this, contact Gerald Grole of rural Wayne at 375-3189.

Saturday evening is the sanctioned 4x4 pickup pull, beginning at 7:30 p.m., with American Pickup Pullers Association rules to be applied. There will be four classes, including a 5,800 pound local pure stock class (must be within a 25 mile radius of Wayne.)

For more information on the pickup pull, contact Jerry Pospishil at 375-2042.

The final day of the fair features a 4-H pen of three market beef show at 2 p.m. and at 4 p.m., the 4-H livestock bonus auction.

THE ANNUAL demolition derby will take place at 7 p.m. with a $1,250 purse in the derby championship. The event is sponsored by the Wayne County Jaycees.

Check-in time for the demolition derby is from 4 to 5:30 p.m. For more information on the demolition derby, contact Verdel Lutt at 375-1192 or Ken Kwapiński at 375-2528.

Sooner Amusements will furnish rides for all ages. Free discount tickets are available at Wayne County merchants. The fair books are also available at all Wayne County banks and the Wakefield National Bank.

Projects

Because the pumps are not designed to move solid suspended sewage waste, the materials accumulate for about two years and then maintenance personnel have to be lowered into the pump pit to dip out the material one bucket at a time. And new pool filtration equipment and updated mechanical systems. WSC officials say that the pool filtration system is causing increasing maintenance problems in terms of down-time, parts availability and staff time. The quality of the pool water is less than it should be because of the filtration system, college officials pointed out.

Struve said WSC will still try to get the withdrawn priority projects done over a two year period of time, possibly financed through alternative funding.

Commencement Aug. 7

WSC diplomas awarded

Diplomas will be given to 75 Wayne State College of Nebraska students at summer commencement exercises on Thursday, Aug. 7 at 10 a.m. in the WSC Willow Bowl.

In case of inclement weather, the exercises will take place in Rice Auditorium.

The summer commencement will coincide with the inaugural activities of Wayne State's eighth president, Dr. Thomas A. Coffey, who will also give the commencement/inauguration address.

He will confer degrees to 37 baccalaureate candidates and Dr. Joseph W. Fleck, dean of graduate studies, will confer degrees to 38 master's and education specialist candidates.

One of Wayne State's highest awards, the Distinguished Service Award, will be presented to the college's seventh president, Dr. Ed Elliott.

Elliott, who left Wayne State last year to become president of Central Missouri State University in Warrensburg, will become the 26th person to receive the DSA from Wayne State.

Those who are graduating from Wayne State with honors are: Summa cum Laude graduate — Barbara A. Ulrich of West Point; Magna cum Laude — Kenneth P. Lake, South Sioux City; cum Laude — Julie M. Ohlund, Stanton and Tomoko Yajima of Tokyo, Japan.

Students graduating with honorable mention honors include

Linda S. Boyer of Silver City, Iowa; Laura A. Gray of Papillion; and Crystal R. Goeden of Crofton.

Other candidates for degrees from our readership area include:

Bachelor of Arts in Education — Gloria A. Swanson Leseberg, Wayne, Elementary Education.

Bachelor of Science in Education — Layne R. Johnson, Concord, Biology, Chemistry.

Bachelor of Science — Eric J. Brink, Wakefield, Public Administration, business; Connie A. Hansen, Wayne, Business; computer information systems; Sue A. FirstTier offers grant

FirstTier of Nebraska and the Board of Trustees of the Nebraska State Colleges announced a grant to support the annual Teaching Excellence Award for State College faculty at Chadron State, Kearney State, Peru State and Wayne State Colleges. Don Engdahl, Chairman of the FirstTier Charitable Foundation, appeared at the board meeting to present a $10,000 check which is the first of three payments that will be placed in trust to support the FirstTier Award in memory of George Rebensdorf, a long time member of the State College Board and a FirstTier officer. Rebensdorf died in December, 1985.

In presenting the check, Mr. Engdahl said that he appreciated the opportunity to participate in a program that recognized quality teaching. "George Rebensdorf was my personal friend and I know he stressed quality in all that he did and was associated with. It is proper that we recognize both him and quality teaching in this way," he said. Mr. Rebensdorf was appointed to the Board of Trustees by Governors Exon and Thone while he was an officer of Omaha National (now FirstTier). He served on the State College Board of Trustees for nine years and was active in Omaha community and civic affairs.

At the time of his death, Mrs. Rebensdorf and the family designated the State College Teaching Excellence Award as a memorial for gifts given in his honor. Numerous contributions were received. Mr. J. Alan Cramer, the Chairman of the Board of Trustees, worked with FirstTier officials to arrange for the contributions for the endowment that will underwrite a major portion of the $3,000 annual award and related costs.

Mrs. Rebensdorf said, "The family and I are very happy to see George recognized in this way. He loved his work in the Omaha financial community and with the Nebraska State College System. It is really nice that the bank and the Board have cooperated together on this effort."

"I also want to thank Keith Kemper for bringing the idea of memorials to my attention," she said.

Mr. Cramer noted that the bank officers were very helpful in making these arrangements. "I'm glad we were able to work with them on this program," he said.

Mr. Tom Morrissey, current State College Board Chairman, said, "Many State College faculty provide exemplary service to the citizens of Nebraska. We are pleased that a major business like FirstTier will join us in recognizing the quality professional contributions of the more than 500 State College faculty members who serve this state." This contribution will help establish the long-term funding support.

The Trustees are reviewing plans for increasing the trust fund so additional recognition awards can be given. The Teaching Excellence Awards were given to Robert Lind in 1985 and Clifton Ginn in 1986.

Rural Accident

A 32-YEAR-old Wayne woman was taken to Providence Medical Center in Wayne by the hospital ambulance after she was involved in a one-car accident Thursday at about 2:50 p.m. Lorraine I. Johnson of rural Wayne was alone when the north-bound car she was driving went out of control on a gravel road one mile west and 1/2 miles south of Wayne and struck a bridge railing at that location. The Wayne County Sheriff's Department investigated the accident and was assisted by the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department Rescue Team. Johnson left the scene with head and knee injuries.

police report

The Wayne Police Department reported a burglary of an undetermined amount of cash last Wednesday.

No arrests have been made and the investigation is continuing.

Hacken Miller

by Chuck Hackenmiller

After the Carroll centennial, one develops the attitude that small towns do have a lot going for them. The closeness and good cooperation are common traits one can find.

My hometown is Stacyville, Iowa — a population of about 500 people in the northeast sector of the state.

It has many of the features one might find in towns like Winslow or Carroll.

Recently a reader submitted an article about small towns. These one-liners below do not necessarily poke fun at small town life, but I'm sure some people can relate to the following:

You know you are in a small town when...

The polka is more popular than disco on Saturday night.

Third street is on the end of town.

Every sport is played on dirt.

The editor and publisher of the newspaper, one and the same, carries a camera at all times.

You don't use your turn signal because everyone knows where you are going anyway.

You are born on June 13 and your family receives gifts from the local merchants because you are the first baby of the year.

You dial a wrong number and talk for 15 minutes anyway.

You are run off main street by a combine.

You can't walk for exercise because every car that passes offers you a ride.

You drive into the ditch five miles out of town and the word gets back to town before you do.

The biggest business in town sells farm machinery.

You write a check on the wrong bank and it covers for you.

The pickups on main street outnumber the cars three to one.

You miss church on Sunday and receive get-well cards.

Someone asks you how you feel, and then listens to what you say.

The newspaper's closest competition is gossip on the telephone.

The tallest skyscraper in town is the grain elevator.

All of the telephone listings can be listed on two pages.

You run into the worse traffic congestion during harvest time as farmers bring in their loads of grain.

The most popular television show is not the Cosby Show or soaps, but the noon markets.

One of the largest theatre attractions happens to be the elementary school Christmas Pageant.

You call somebody by their first name instead of their nickname, and it makes him or her upset.

How about another twist.

You know you are in a big city rather than a small town when...

People suffer more from stress driving through rush hour than from their actual jobs.

You meet your neighbor for the first time in three years.

You don't say hi or wave to a stranger for fear of being mugged.

You have to pay for a glass of water to go along with your food order.

You make a quick stop on the freeway and 40 car horns blend into one loud and angry melody.

You look from the top floor of the largest building and can't see below because of all the smog.

It only takes three minutes to mow the lawn.

You ask directions because you are lost and need to reach a certain destination, and you always get the answer "I don't know. I haven't been here that long."

You tell them you're from a small farming town and they make some smart remark about farmers — their full bellies, filled from a meat of grilled pork chops and sweet corn, jiggling as they chuckle.

I guess I would take living in a small town over a large, metropolitan city any day.

Discrepancy on tillage

Nearly any long-time farmer would tell you he's changed the way he gets his fields ready for planting during the last 10 years. In the past, farmers would plow their fields in the fall after harvest, turning crop residue under and leaving black soil exposed. In the spring there'd be more trips over the field before planting.

Nowadays, most farmers don't fall plow and instead leave residue standing over the winter, much to the benefit of wild fowl. When planting time comes, they plant into the residue of the previous year's crop, rather than plowing it under.

Because they have reduced their tillage operations, many farmers believe they are practicing what's called conservation tillage. An adequate residue cover can cut soil erosion in half, but a recent University of Nebraska study shows that Nebraska farmers may be overestimating their use of this new practice by a factor of two or three.

About 60 percent of farmers surveyed statewide recently said they were using conservation tillage, according to Elbert Dickey, University of Nebraska extension agronomist. But when fields in a seven-county area in eastern Nebraska were measured, only 5 to 18 percent showed use of conservation tillage.

THE DISCREPANCY between farmers' perceptions and what the fields showed may be attributable to definitions. According to Dickey, conservation tillage leaves between 20 and 30 percent of the soil surface covered with residue after planting. Among the measured fields, less than 5 percent met the 30-percent-covered criterion, while about 18 percent of fields were 20-percent covered.

A reason for the discrepancy might be the change in tillage implements which has occurred in recent years, according to Dickey. In 1974, more than 50 percent of farmers used the moldboard plow system, which buried most residue. By 1984, only about 15 percent of farmers used the moldboard plow and about 70 percent used a disk for their primary tillage.

Disks leave much more residue, depending on the crop, and the switch to the more modern implement may have created the feeling that conservation tillage was being practiced.

But "more" residue still may not be enough. In heavy corn residue, Dickey said, two diskings will usually leave the recommended minimum cover for conservation benefits. But in more fragile soybean residue, even one disking will destroy too much residue, he said.

The study's findings are disturbing, if they are generalized to Nebraska farmers as a whole. Nebraska has prided itself on being a leader in conservation tillage. Much innovative research has been done here and the extension service has worked to make farmers aware of the soil-saving and cost-saving benefits of conservation tillage.

Most farmers take good care of their soil, for stewardship reasons as well as economic benefits. Because of this study's disturbing findings, it would be well if farmers made extra effort to be sure they actually are practicing conservation tillage.

To the point

Once again the issue of establishing a city sales tax was brought up before the Wayne City Council for consideration. Do you think the time is now to bring the issue back to the people again and get their opinions — both for and against the city sales tax?

After it was initiated in Norfolk, there have been reports that property taxes have lessened each year.

Isn't that what taxpaying citizens would like to see? What is your viewpoint on the proposal? Let us hear from you.

Governor Kerrey has every right to be upset with the U.S. Energy Department.

The Energy Department had failed to officially notify Nebraska officials about a train carrying nuclear waste which was to travel through this state.

Nebraska needed advance warning so that the State Patrol could prepare to monitor the train as it passed through the state.

Can you imagine the chaos if one of those trains had overturned and spilled?

Surely the security measures are there, we hope. But Kerrey's statement saying that "we've got to worry about the public safety of the people" hits our feelings right on the nose.

Now, if we can have the Department of Energy's promise to let us know again when they'll be passing through our fine state with nuclear waste.

Chances of accidents happening are slim to none. But that's probably what they said when Three Mile Island's meltdown happened.

Devastating.

That's how one could describe the tornado that touched down near Ponca.

When you hear about the drought in the southeast section of the United States; the earthquakes that are scaring people in California and then those natural weather disasters we've been experiencing in this area, it is hard to escape the awesome thought — never underestimate the power of nature itself.

Along with that thought, we have been given rare glimpses of tornadoes through photographs and film footage. Just so people don't get the idea that they can stand outside and watch a tornado and wait until the last minute to seek shelter.

A tornado is unpredictable.

It is better to seek shelter immediately when the warning whistles blow.

We hope the support builds for the relocation of the Theophilus Church to Winslow as a branch museum. There is a large financial undertaking to consider, but it is a sterling idea and one that needs to be brought forward to test the interest of the citizens in this county.

National debt growing

by Jim Exon
United States Senator
From Nebraska

The United States is a world leader for democratic, industrial, agricultural and scientific achievements. On the darker side the United States is also the world's largest debtor nation. A debtor nation relies on foreign investments to finance its economy.

Our new debtor nation status hangs as a noose around the economic neck of the United States; just as it does for Venezuela, Mexico, Argentina and many third world nations which flounder on the verge of economic catastrophe.

The debtor nation status jeopardizes the country's economic health and security. For the last 72 years foreign nations have asked the United States for investment capital, but in 1981 the tables began to turn and the USA now looks to foreigners for money to support investment and government spending habits.

The federal government is the nation's biggest borrower. Interest on the national debt already takes the first 15 cents of every tax dollar collected. The old adage of "tax and spend" has been replaced with "borrow and spend." Instead of cutting spending, sufficiently raising taxes or using a balanced approach of both, the federal government has borrowed money to pay for increased spending and giveaways.

It took 105 years for the national debt to reach $1 trillion. Now only six years later, the national debt has doubled to $2 trillion and President Reagan has a request before Congress to raise it further to $2.3 trillion. That is a sad legacy to leave our children.

THE UGLY FACTS are startling. In 1970 our national debt was $39.3 billion; $54 billion in 1975; $1 trillion in 1981; and over $2 trillion in 1986. "Supply-side" economics has not increased the savings needed to finance the federal government's huge hunger for credit. Instead supply-side economic policies of the last four years have resulted in an unhealthy reliance on foreign money. This dependence hides the real costs of deficit spending. Rather than creating hyper-inflation, or a recession, they have substituted record borrowing. The nation's borrowing spree has produced record trade deficits and doubled the national debt.

The merchandise trade deficit grew from $25.5 billion in 1980 to over $48 billion in 1985. The U.S. Department of Commerce estimates that 25,000 American jobs are lost or not created for every $1 billion increase in the trade deficit. To make matters worse, economists do not see any quick reversal of the nation's trade deficit.

To restore our international economic standing the federal government must reduce its demand for credit. Cutting deficit spending and reforming the federal budget process is the key to reducing the trade deficit. Unfortunately, the legislative gimmick known as the Gramm-Rudman law targets spending cuts in only about one-half of the total federal budget while protecting the rest from cuts.

If there is a silver lining in the nation's debtor status, it is that it might act as a catalyst to prompt action. The nation's debtor status is a warning signal that all is not well. The United States must head the warning and act before the noose strangles the economy.

ask a lawyer

a public service of the nebraska state bar association

Q. I had an uncle who passed away, leaving a very large estate. My mother is his sister; she has heard nothing about this estate. My mother and I both have worked for him for no paying several times. How can we find what is happening with this estate?

A. The best way to determine where you stand would be to contact the lawyer who is probating the estate. Perhaps the reason that you and your mother have heard nothing about the estate is that you are not beneficiaries of the estate. If there is a will, you can read the will, which is a part of the court file as a public record, and determine whether you have an interest. There is not sufficient information to determine whether there would be an inheritance if there was not a will but the lawyer handling the case could assist you in this respect.

If you have a financial or property interest in the estate, which can be determined as previously stated, you may file a Demand for Notice of all proceedings in the estate. After you have filed such a demand, no action will be taken on matters to which the Demand for Notice relates without notice to you or your attorney. We would suggest that the first thing to do would be to find out if in fact you do have a financial interest in the estate.

If you have a legal question, write "Ask a Lawyer," P.O. Box 2529, Lincoln 68502. This column is intended to provide general legal information, not specific legal advice. "Ask a Lawyer" is a public service of the Nebraska State Bar Association.

FERN HANSEN DISPLAYS HER very first painting — an old cottonwood tree which once stood alongside Highway 20.

Photography: LaVon Anderson

I think everybody should paint. Everybody can. A lot of my friends in Allen are wonderful painters and I enjoy visiting their homes and looking at their work. You appreciate the expressions on people's faces. How they sit and how they walk.

It's never too late Allen woman finds painting relaxing, therapeutic

By LaVon Anderson

Fern Hansen leads the way to the pantry, located just off the kitchen. There's a good north light and Fern takes a step back to study her latest project.

"It's a willow in the making," she smiles, pointing to a snapshot on a nearby shelf where children, frolicking around a magnificent weeping willow tree, are suspended in time.

"A friend in Iowa sent the picture to me and asked if I would paint it. I've never done a willow before but there's a pretty good description of how it's done in one of my books."

Fern's house in Allen is filled with art books and magazines — a collection she has acquired since taking up painting just five short years ago.

Her hobby isn't all that unusual — until you consider that she didn't begin painting until she was in her late 60's.

Now age 72, Fern considers painting relaxing as well as therapeutic. "I never have to worry about what I'm going to do. I'm always browsing through paint books and magazines."

FERN, WHO HAD always "dabbled" in painting, began taking her interest seriously a few years ago when the Allen Senior Citizens Center offered an art class.

"I took a few lessons there, but I guess you could say I'm mostly self-motivated. The kids have given me art magazines and books which is where I've learned the most."

The first picture Fern painted — and her most favorite — is of an old cottonwood tree which stood alongside Highway 20 east of Sioux City near where she and her husband Herman once lived.

"It was such a beautiful tree," says Fern, "and then the road department began spraying it. Now it's just a trunk."

Although the old cottonwood died, Fern's memory of its grandeur did not. With brush in hand and memory intact, she set out to recapture the tree's stateliness.

Today, Fern's old cottonwood spreads its branches across a 3 x 4-foot piece of masonite board which hangs in the bedroom she shares with her husband.

"I'm most proud of the trees I've painted," Fern smiles modestly. "I like to paint old trees and old windmills. They sort of tell a story, don't you think?"

BESIDES TREES, Fern also enjoys painting landscapes. She's also undertaken a few portraits of her grandchildren and great grandchildren.

Portraits and animals, she admits, are the hardest. "I'd like to take portrait lessons so I didn't have to struggle so much with them."

Fern adds that she also used to have trouble choosing colors. "But I'm beginning to overcome that pretty good. I took some classes in Florida last winter and that's where I learned to mix colors."

ALTHOUGH SHE often paints from photographs or pictures in magazines, Fern says the ones she likes best are the paintings drawn from her memory.

Those "memory" paintings include an old country schoolhouse and the Lutheran church at Ober, where Fern grew up.

Fern's collection also includes a painting of a barn which stood on the place she grew up, and a picture of the church in South Dakota where her mother was married and which still stands.

"The church, that's my favorite," interrupts Herman, Fern's husband of 55 years.

MOST OF FERN'S paintings are done on canvas or masonite board. She also has painted on old saws and barn siding.

She paints with both oils and acrylics, although the first painting she did of the old cottonwood tree was done with ordinary house paint flinted with ink.

"When I run into a pinch and can't find a frame, Herman builds me one," Fern says proudly, pointing to a bookcase which Herman built and which decorates one entire wall of the living room.

"Herman's always enjoyed woodworking."

FERN'S STUDIO is located in a small pantry just off the kitchen. "That way I don't have the house all messed up," Herman hates a messy house.

"Another advantage of painting in the pantry," points out Fern, "is that I can look at my work while I cook supper and see what I've done wrong. The only problem is that dinner might be delayed while I'm fixing it."

Fern says she doesn't paint everyday, only when the mood strikes. "Then its day and night," says Herman.

"When I'm done," laughs Fern, "Herman has someone to talk to again."

MOST OF FERN'S paintings are given away as Christmas, birthday and wedding gifts, although she did sell several during an art show about three years ago at the Allen Senior Citizens Center.

"That's my only showing," jokes Fern, adding that she has also sold a few paintings to other people — mostly of their old home places or churches.

"Once in a while I'll paint something for a friend if they see a picture they like."

"I don't get rich, but I take in enough to support my hobby."

Fern admits that most of her paintings go to she and Herman's three children, 11 grandchildren and 17 great grandchildren.

Daughter Barbara Zellmer, who also paints, resides with her husband Al at Lawton, Iowa. Al Farms and Barbara is employed at Luckhart Insurance in Sioux City. They have six children.

Another daughter, Janice Matson, resides in Rockledge, Fla. and works for Pan Am. She has two children.

Son Mike runs Nustrum Electric in Sioux City. He and his wife, Joni, are the parents of three sons.

FOLLOWING THEIR marriage in 1931 at Elk Point, S. D., Fern and Herman moved to Sioux City where Herman drove truck for 38 years and Fern ran a dressmaking shop in her home for over 20 years.

When they retired, the couple moved to a lakeside cabin at Park Rapids, Minn. It was there that Herman, who will be 79 on Aug. 17, put his woodworking skills to use when the couple added two rooms and a garage onto the one-room cabin.

They lived in Minnesota until about five years ago when they moved to Allen.

Although they are retired, Fern and Herman still put in a "nice" garden every year and enjoy reading, playing cribbage, and visiting with their grandchildren and great grandchildren.

And while Herman has his woodworking, Fern has her brushes and canvas. She's an artist.

"I THINK EVERYBODY should paint," says Fern.

"Everybody can."

"A lot of my friends in Allen are wonderful painters and I enjoy visiting their homes and looking at their work."

Since taking up painting, Fern says she's come to appreciate life around her much more. "You appreciate the expressions on people's faces. How they sit and how they walk."

Fern adds that she also looks at nature much differently than she did a few years ago. "I see purple in the ground, and before I saw just green trees, now I see whites, yellows and even blues."

"Oh my yes, I do see the world differently."

news and notes

Come to the fair

There is one place where you can see the latest fashions, home baked foods, garden produce, insect collections, rockets, accessories for the home and many more items.

You will find all of these things and more in the 4-H building at the Wayne County Fair — Thursday through Sunday. All of these exhibits will be the results of many hours of learning and hard work by young people. What you will see is only the tip of the 4-H project iceberg.

Four-H'ers have learned that color can affect your appearance, and they select clothing and furnishings with that knowledge. They know that an abundant vegetable crop is the result of planning and muscle. A well-balanced diet is more than cakes and cookies, it requires foods from four important food groups.

AS YOU WALK through the building you may only see colorful ribbons and not realize the knowledge learned from each exhibit.

The judge who evaluates these exhibits only has the item before him to assign a ribbon placing. Sometimes the judge doesn't know why the 4-H'er has done things in a certain way and awards a lower place ribbon than the 4-H'er thought he deserved.

The brightly colored ribbons attached to exhibits mean a great deal to some people. Some people put too much emphasis on the ribbon earned and not what was done. A ribbon placing means that this person, at this time, judged the exhibit to be average or above average.

Until we develop a robot that is totally objective, evaluating exhibits will always be somewhat subjective. That means we use people to judge and they sometimes make mistakes.

PURPLE RIBBONS are wonderful. They mean that the exhibit was exceptional in quality. After considering all the criteria involved for that particular item, the judge said there are few or no improvements to be made. The 4-H'er did a careful job of preparing the exhibit and deserves the top award.

A blue ribbon is exciting, but for some it isn't good enough. This award signifies an above average exhibit. The majority of the criteria were fulfilled. There are some improvements that could be made on the item. Usually the difference between a purple ribbon and a blue ribbon item will not effect its use. Blue ribbon food still tastes good and other items are not unusable.

The red ribbon signals failure to many. Maybe it's because we associate the color red with a lot of negative things. In the 4-H award system, a red ribbon designates an average exhibit. The garment is wearable (and may even be better than some purchased garments), the food won't poison anyone. There are just more things to improve and maybe more the 4-H'er must learn.

Finally, there is the lowly white ribbon, scorned by everyone. Some people feel that no one should receive a white ribbon. A 4-H'er who's work is below average probably can see that others have done a better job. You don't do them a favor by pretending that they did an average job. White ribbons don't brand a person for the rest of his life. The next time new skills are learned and that white ribbon may lead to a blue or purple.

COME TO THE FAIR, enjoy the exhibits, and remember it isn't always the color of the ribbon that's important. It's the knowledge gained by the 4-H'er.

'Only a Woman'

Former resident publishes second Harlequin romance

Sally Bostwick McCluskey, a Wayne State College graduate and former faculty member, will publish her second Harlequin romance, "Only a Woman," in August.

Harlequin will issue another of McCluskey's novels, "A Thousand Roses," in December, followed by "Sea Promises" in February, and "The Long Way Home," the release date of which has not been set.

McCLUSKEY, WHO has contributed to a number of textbooks for Harcourt-Brace Jovanovich, Inc., said she began writing romance when she and her husband lived in New Hampshire. She was snowed in and her car broke down.

"It seemed a more interesting thing to do than knitting an afghan, and besides, I can't knit."

McCluskey writes under the pen-name of Bethany Campbell. She graduated with a degree in English from Wayne State and later returned as a part-time member of the English department.

McCLUSKEY IS married to D. L. Borengasser, vice president of Ozark Video Productions of Springdale, Ark.

Borengasser has published articles in national and regional publications as well as written a number of video scripts.

The couple have one son, Pete, a senior English major at Hendrix College in Conway, Ark. They live in Bentonville, Ark.

Hoskins Trinity Lutheran marks centennial year

Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church at Hoskins celebrated its centennial on July 27 with special worship services and a dinner. Theme for the occasion was "A Century of God's Grace and Blessings."

Guest speaker for the 10 a.m. service was the Rev. Joel Frank of Plymouth. Pastor Frank is the son of the late Rev. G. B. Frank, who served as pastor at Trinity from 1954 to 1965.

The Rev. Wesley Bruss of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, a former pastor at Trinity, served as liturgist for the service. Mrs. Wesley Bruss was guest organist.

SPEAKING DURING the afternoon service was the Rev. Andrew Domson of St. Cloud, Minn., who served as pastor at Trinity from 1971 to 1975.

Liturgist was the Rev. Mark Zander of Naper, who attended Trinity Lutheran School and is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Zander. Mrs. Zander was a teacher at Trinity school from 1960 to 1973.

Tracy Pochop was organist for the afternoon service. Special music for both services was provided by the church choir and Trinity Lutheran School children.

The Rev. James Nelson, pastor at Trinity, read letters of congratulations from pastors and teachers who were unable to attend the celebration.

A CATERED dinner was served at noon to 575 guests. Anniversary cakes and bars were served at a coffee hour following the afternoon service.

Guests attended from Colorado, South Dakota, Arizona, Iowa, Minnesota, Michigan, Texas, Wisconsin, California, Kansas, Washington and Tennessee.

Nebraska towns represented were DeWitt, Lexington, Wauneta, Battle Creek, Naper, Pierce, Hadar, Elgin, Plymouth, Plainview, Lyons, Harvard, Raymond, Carroll, Laurel, Seward, Lincoln, Norfolk, Wayne, Madison, Elkhorn, Stanton, Wakefield, Schuyler, Omaha, Howells, Columbus, Winside and Hoskins.

Among those attending were 10 of the 11 children of the late Rev. and Mrs. Immanuel Frey. Pastor Frey served Trinity from 1930 to 1939.

Also attending were Mrs. Margaret Frank of Watertown, Wis., wife of the late Rev. G. B. Frank, and their four children and their families.

bridal showers

Jill Twiford

Laurel bride-elect Jill Twiford was honored recently with two bridal showers. Navy and Ivory were used in the decorations for a miscellaneous fete on July 25 in the Tom Fredricksen home. Hostesses were Julie Hart and Anne Schultz, both of Laurel. Diane Ebmeier of Wayne, and Deb Jorgensen of Norfolk.

Sixty guests attended a miscellaneous fete July 23 at Immanuel Lutheran Church in Coleridge.

Decorations were in ivory, navy and yellow, and the program included Mary Jo Hansen reading a story on the beginning of bridal showers and a poem. Sue Brodersen presented a skit about the couple, and Sarah, Amy and Grete Anderson sang two songs.

Hostesses were Bev Brodersen, Sue Brodersen, Mary Jo Hansen, Shirley Anderson, Carol Hefner, Janice Wilkerson, Vivian Papenhausen, Shirley Papenhausen, Jackie Domina, Marcia Feelhaber, JoAnne Hofarth, Kate Hansen, Dorothy Frerichs, Dora Peck, Ruby Hansen and Marilyn Hansen, all of Coleridge.

Jana Twiford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Twiford of Laurel, and Kris Olesen, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Rollin Olesen of Coleridge, will be married Aug. 9 at the United Lutheran Church in Laurel.

Jana Cunningham

Fifty-five guests attended a miscellaneous bridal shower honoring Jana Cunningham of Laurel on July 26 at 9:30 a.m. at the United Lutheran Church in Laurel.

The guests attended from Laurel, Randolph, Norfolk, Grand Island, Plainview, Carroll, Concord and Creighton. Decorations were in the honoree's chosen color of dark rose.

Aryce McCorkindale welcomed the guests, and Shirley Fredricksen had devotions. The program also included a piano duet by Bev Dahlquist and Jill Twiford. All are of Laurel.

Hostesses were Jan Twiford, Liz Norvell, Anita Gade, Cherry Johnson, Deb Urwiler, Lavonna Bowman, Shirley Fredricksen, Karen Granquist, Grandel McCorkindale, Aryce McCorkindale, Phyllis Graverholt, Joan Malchow, Norma Maxon, JoAnn Johnson and Joyce Karnes, all of Laurel.

Jana Cunningham will become the bride of Arnie Christensen on Aug. 16 at the United Methodist Church in Laurel. Their parents are Gerry and Ardis Cunningham, and Marvin and Mary Ann Christensen, all of Laurel.

policy on weddings

The Wayne Herald welcomes news accounts and photographs of weddings involving families living in the Wayne area. We feel there is widespread interest in local and area weddings and are happy to make space available for their publication. Because our readers are interested in current news, we ask that all weddings and photographs offered for publication be in our office within 10 days after the date of the ceremony. Information submitted with a picture after that deadline will not be carried as a story but will be used in a capsule underneath the picture. Wedding pictures submitted after the story appears in the paper must be in our office within three weeks after the ceremony.

WAYNE'S CHEERLEADERS participated in a camp at the University of South Dakota July 21-23. Wayne's cheerleaders include Kathy Mohfeld, Deanna Nichols, Kara Janke, Tracy

McFarland, Melinda Olgon, Tiffany Benson, Kelli Frye, Kim Backstrom, Lori Perry, Melissa Johnson, Eunice Wacker, Kristy Bahns, Kelly Fleming and Jill Davis.

Wayne's cheerleaders participate in USD camp

VERMILLION, S.D. — Eunice Wacker, Wayne High School's head cheerleader, was one of 12 girls voted to the spirit squad at the second annual Coyote Cheerleader's Camp here July 21-23.

Over 250 cheerleaders and advisors attended the camp on the campus of the University of South Dakota (USD).

In addition to Wacker's selection to the spirit squad, the Wayne girls claimed two second place finishes in various competitions.

Members of the Wayne cheerleading squad are: Kathy Mohfeld, Deanna Nichols, Kara Janke, Tracy McFarland, Melinda Olgon, Tiffany Benson, Kelli Frye, Kim Backstrom, Lori Perry, Melissa Johnson, Wacker, Kristy Bahns, Kelly Fleming and Jill Davis. Nannette Weber and Mary Lou George, the cheerleader's advisors, also attended the camp.

Laurel-Concord, Lyons-Decatur, Northeast and Walthill cheerleading squads joined the Wayne girls at the camp.

According to camp director Robin Fritsch, the camp, which is one of the few cheerleading camps in the region, drew twice as many participants as a year ago.

"We have drawn well this year," said Fritsch. "But, we are the only college in South Dakota to put on a camp like this and only one of a few in the four-state region of South Dakota, Nebraska, Minnesota and Iowa," she said.

"1986-87 USD cheerleaders gave instruction to the participating cheerleaders in the areas of gymnastics, dance, coaching and routines during the three-day camp.

Members of the Laurel cheerleaders that attended are: Hollie Helgren, Donna Herrmann, Stacy Strawn, Jessie Monson, Emily McBride and Kasa Long.

Juniors

usher in the seventh, Lueders gave up a towering triple to Jeff Nielsen.

Nielsen's drive traveled approximately 380 feet to center field for a triple. But fortunately for Wayne, Nielsen didn't pull the ball, because if he had, the game would have been tied.

But with the tying run just 90 feet from home, Lueders buckled down and after striking out the next batter, ended the game by getting the final out on a routine grounder to third baseman Hausmann.

The victory was a big one for Wayne in several respects. First and most obviously, Wayne is now the only undefeated team left in the double elimination tourney.

Secondly, Wayne will have Saturday off which will provide its pitching staff with a precious extra day's rest. And the victory can be observed as a psychological boost. Most followers predict Wayne and Blair to battle each other in the opening round of the state tournament. Should that be the case, Wayne now knows that it can defeat Blair even without throwing its ace — Hausmann.

Wayne plays again Sunday at 8:30 p.m. against the winner of West Point and Blair game. West Point eliminated Schuyler earlier in the night, 7-3.

with no holds barred. His campers are on the go, too. They are up as early as 6 a.m. for a day full of basketball. Clinics in the morning and afternoon. Motivational talks and games at night.

"I don't think there is any doubt that we ask more than any other camp in the country. The kids we've had who don't come back are not into serious basketball," said Meyer.

"For the 8-year-old campers — the youngest — the emphasis is on fun. Junior high campers work on fundamentals. High schoolers get the most intense drills.

"For a lot of kids it is a shock when they get here. It is the first time anyone has demanded that they do everything the way it was meant to be done," said Turner. "There is a big stress on relationships with people, respecting authority, goal-setting — the mental aspects of basketball."

Said Meyer of the demands: "They don't come here just to pay us money. They are making an investment in themselves."

There are rewards for Meyer. The approximately 1,000 campers at week-long boarding sessions pay $20 each; the 1,000 at the three-day specialty camps pay $105 each; and the 500 or so day campers will spend $55 each. That comes to a gross of more than $300,000.

Expenses for rent, food and staff will take a huge bite out of that gross, but as one local coach notes, "Meyer has to be making a killing over there."

The other bonuses: Recruiting for the team. Signees Phillip Hutchison of Nashville and Wade Tomlinson of Decatur, Ala., both attended the camp for at least five years.

Recruiting for the school. "One of the important things we do is bring lots of potential students on to the Lipscomb campus," said Turner.

Keeping the Bison team together during the off-season. NAIA players can work at camps in the summer. But that helps not just Meyer, said Gaskins. "It is a lot more impressive for the campers to see a bunch of 20-year-olds show them how to do it, than to see a bunch of out-of-shape coaches try to show them."
