Gets taste of Hollywood

Wayne man crowds his way to Carson Show

by Chuck Hackenmiller

John Agler of rural Wayne got a guest spot on a night television show that many other top movie star celebrities would envy.

After all, an invitation to appear on The Tonight Show with Johnny Carson doesn't come often — particularly if one has never made a movie or composed a top song on the hit charts. But the odds fell in Agler's favor when he was contacted by the Tonight Show production staff two days after the Wayne Chicken Show in July.

Agler's Aug. 14 guest appearance role on The Tonight Show lasted about 20 minutes. During that time, he conversed freely and joked with Carson.

Agler was able to put aside his crop and market price worries. This was Hollywood!

However, he and another guest, Judith Kluge of Fairbury, did talk about roosters and hens. Matter of fact, the whole "Agler-Kluge" segment, concentrated entirely on roosters and hens; and on the Wayne Chicken Show, which the Tonight Show staff thought would really be worth crowing about.

AND AGLER crowed. And crowed. And crowed some more.

The audience in the NBC Studio laughed. Carson laughed. Perhaps the million or so viewers who were watching the Tonight Show across the country were laughing.

Agler, winner of the Chicken Show National Cluck-off Contest this past year and in previous years, then flapped his wings and loosened his vocal chords with several rooster yells as he performed in a skit with Kluge, the Wayne Chicken Show Hen Clucking Champion.

Prior to this year's Chicken Show in Wayne, Agler had no idea his rooster crowing would get him a nationally televised appearance.

He performed at the Chicken Show this year, won the national title again, and said he would not compete in the rooster crowing event in 1987 to allow others to have an opportunity at the title.

On July 14, two days after the Chicken Show, Agler received a call from a Tonight Show production staff member. "She heard about it [the Chicken Show and events] and said it really sounded funny. She wanted to know basically what happened with the National Cluck-off and more about the Chicken Show," Agler said.

At that time, telephone conversation centered around Agler's background and an imitation of Agler's crowing over the telephone.

The telephone calls from the Tonight Show production staff continued coming in, requesting more information and seeking possible ideas for the guest spot on the Carson show.

"Then, for about 2 1/2 weeks, they left me in the air. The staff had to talk to Carson and the show's directors to get the okay for me to appear," said Agler.

ON FRIDAY AFTERNOON, Aug. 1, Agler's appearance on the Tonight Show was confirmed.

Arrangements were as such: the Tonight Show would fly Agler and his wife, Leah to Los Angeles and pay the cost for two nights lodging (Wednesday and Thursday) at the Sheridan Universal, located near Universal Studios. A chauffeur in a limousine would pick up the Aglers at the airport and take them to the Sheridan Universal. The limousine would also transport the Aglers to the NBC Studio and back to the Los Angeles Airport.

Their daughter, Jessica, also accompanied her parents on the trip to the west coast.

"Then, the day before we left for Los Angeles [Tuesday], they called and wanted more tapes of my routine. Apparently, the Wayne Arts Council tapes were not entirely what they wanted," Agler mentioned.

"That day before we left, we must have had about 30 to 40 phone calls from radio stations and other media that had heard we were going to be on Johnny Carson's show. My wife found it hard to find time to pack the suitcases," he added.

The Aglers arrived in Los Angeles on Wednesday at 2 p.m. They found the driver of the limousine and were escorted to the Sheridan Universal.

That Wednesday evening, a Tonight Show production staff member went to the Sheridan Universal to meet the Aglers. It was then that Agler was informed that Judith Kluge would also be appearing on the television show with him.

"I had to do my [rooster crowing] skit in the hotel room for her," he said.

THURSDAY, AGLER found that the production staff member had a lot of notes about himself and the Chicken Show, but she had not finalized how to program the guest appearance.

"At one time it was discussed that I was going to teach Johnny Carson how to crow," Agler said. He was also planning on presenting Carson with several Chicken Show souvenirs and other Wayne products.

"But that all changed," he said. Just before 4:30 p.m. Thursday afternoon, the limousine picked up the Agler family and Kluge and took them to the NBC Studios in Burbank.

"People don't realize the security that they have in this place. You have to get an okay just to drive through the gate," remarked Agler.

Agler was taken to a dressing room. While walking inside, he turned around and saw Ed McMahon walking behind him.

"I said 'Hi, Ed McMahon'. But he didn't return the greeting, just looked

Wakefield seniors look at life behind 8-ball

By John Prather
Sports Editor

When a visitor first enters the Wakefield Senior Citizens Center, he or she might initially think they entered a pool hall similar to ones found in earlier years.

Upon entering the senior center, it isn't uncommon to hear the knocking of pool balls, the buzzing of players discussing strategy and see players lining up shots. But unlike most pool halls of days gone by, the pool played here serves three main purposes — entertainment, exercise and recreation.

Eight of Wakefield's seniors play 11 seniors from South Sioux City and eight senior citizens from Laurel in pool tournaments twice a month.

The centers started playing tournaments a little over a year ago, and according to Wakefield team member Lloyd Anderson, no one team dominates.

"The tournaments run pretty even. Nobody ever gets beat too bad and that makes things interesting because it's good competition," Anderson said while spectators roar in approval as Anderson's teammate, Weldon Mortenson, sinks a difficult shot.

This is the second in a series of articles concerning services and activities that are available to area senior citizens.

Others from the Wakefield team include Eldon Fredrickson, Monie Lundahl, Paul Fisher, Russell Wendstran, Cliff Busby and Erwin Mortenson.

Most of the players are men, however, South Sioux City does have three women players. Anderson said an attempt to stir interest in Wakefield's women failed.

"We tried to get the Wakefield women to play, but it just wouldn't take. They'd rather quit, and they do quite a good job of that so you can't complain too much," he chuckled.

The tournaments consist of doubles play in the morning and singles play in the afternoon. Most tournaments involve the participants for most of the day as the first break is usually at 10 a.m. and the last eight ball isn't made until later in the afternoon, usually around 3 p.m.

Although the tournaments serve primarily as social purposes, Anderson said it isn't totally uncommon for pressure to mount.

"Some of the players get nervous so they don't play in the tournaments. A lot of them have had heart trouble in the past and it's probably best they don't play so they don't get worked up," he said.

Anderson added that occasional dirty play and heckling isn't obsolete.

"Some of the guys play a little dirty once and a while, a lot of the guys like to tease other players when they shoot. But it's all in fun for the most part. We don't go for crossing and things like that," he said.

As two tables are occupied, other team members huddle around on benches and folding chairs to wait their turn. And as Anderson said, things are usually quiet; that

Buddy Rich scheduled to entertain at WSC

The big sound of Buddy Rich and his band and the Guthrie Theater's performance of "Candida" highlight the 1986-87 season of the Black & Gold Series at Wayne State College of Nebraska.

Buddy Rich and his 15-member band will be the initial program of the Black & Gold Series. Rich will appear at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 7 in WSC's Ramsey Theatre.

The Guthrie Theater's production of George Bernard Shaw's "Candida" is booked into Ramsey Theatre on March 23.

The other Black & Gold performances are the Midwest Opera Co.'s stage production of "Hansel & Gretel" on Nov. 6, the Franz Liszt Orchestra of Budapest, Hungary, on Feb. 18, and the Los Angeles Piano Quartet on April 14.

THE NAME "Black and Gold Series" is new in 1986-87, replacing "Special Program Series." The new name is more definitive and reflects the college's pride in its school colors, says Professor James Day, coordinator of the Black & Gold Series.

Rich began performing with his parents' vaudeville act as a tiny child.

"Buddy Rich is one of the few names in jazz that is instinctively known," said Day. "We are excited to bring him — and his drums — to Wayne State College."

Rich and Frank Sinatra have performed together throughout the years, including a successful schedule in 1983.

DAY CALLS THE Guthrie Theater of Minneapolis "one of the best known live theatres in the Midwest." "Candida" is the Guthrie's current touring production.

The Midwest Opera Co. will make its second trip to Wayne in November. The company staged "La Boheme" at Wayne State last year. The Minneapolis opera company is now reprising its production of "Hansel and Gretel," bringing to life the storybook tale the company first presented in a 1981 tour.

The Franz Liszt Chamber Orchestra of Budapest will be on its sixth North American tour when it travels to Wayne in February.

And the Los Angeles Piano Quartet will combine the art of piano and strings as the finale of the 1986-87 Black & Gold Series.

Ticket information to Buddy Rich and his band, and the other Black & Gold Series performances at Wayne State College, will be announced at a later date. For more information, persons can call the Fine Arts Office at 402/375-2200.

BILL KRANZ, Extension Irrigation Specialist points toward a rough soil surface created by a subsoiler. Kranz will discuss the use of interrow tillage as a means of controlling runoff from sprinkler irrigated fields at the Northeast Center Field Day starting at 10:00 AM on Tuesday, August 19.

RUSSELL MOOMAW, Extension Crops and Weeds Specialists, examines soybeans interseeded in winter wheat. Moomaw will discuss intercropping and double cropping techniques at the Northeast Center Field Day.

hacken away

by Chuck Hackenmiller

Sam the Hog and Wooley the Sheep were resting peacefully in their separate pens but in the same building at the County Fairgrounds. Both had a very tiring day in the show ring and both did quite well.

Sam was the grand champion hog, Wooley the tops in its class. Last year, both had to settle for reserve champions.

Upon developing a thirst, Sam got up from his straw bedding for a drink of water. Then, as he gazed out of his pen — the ultimate horror struck him.

There he was. The man with the black bag strapped to his shoulder. The guy that had the camera. It was the dreaded hour of the day to take pictures of all the 4-H winners and the animals.

"Psst, Wooley! Run for your life. The camera guy is here!" Sam grunted.

"Oh no, not again!" said Wooley. "Do we have to go through this again?"

"Looks like it. Here comes our owners. These people just don't realize how much we hate to have our pictures in the paper. I hate photographers. They should know that by now!" exclaimed Sam.

"Yea, you'd think the photographers would learn by now, with all those stunts we've pulled over the years. The guy is a real survivor," mentioned Wooley.

WOOLEY WENT on. "Last year I made my owner chase me all over the pen. Then she had the guts to take me outside the pen where I could run in the wide open spaces. They'd have never caught me if I hadn't run out of wind.

"When they posed me, I did everything possible to throw off the photographer. At the last second I would turn my head and beat at him. He wasted about five frames on me until he got me napping and shot a presentable picture."

Sam told his story about what happened last year. "I was warned that the photographer was coming from Shep the Horse. Shep told me that the photographer won't even snap a picture until his ears were pointed forward. The photo session lasted, it seemed for hours.

"When it came my turn, I was ready. Like you, I played hard to catch, slipperier than a greasy pig. No way were they going to make me point my ears forward.

"That's degrading to a hog. When my owner and the photographer thought they had me still enough to snap a picture, I'd knock down the guy and go back into my corner to hide my face in the bedding of straw or hay for the other side of the building.

"It took a bucket of feed before my snout to calm me down. They got the picture taken, I had to smile. It's funny when the photographer kneels down in a fresh pile of manure."

"That photographer is sure a 'mutton' for punishment, said Wooley.

SAM SAID HE has conferred with the beef cattle, cows, chickens and the rabbits. All of them disliked the photo sessions.

"Some say that the photo sessions wear them out more than the show ring. Others say that it's just a pain in the carcass," Sam remarked.

"All except Prissy the Goat. She just loves getting her picture taken. Says the reviews she gets are just wonderful. That Prissy! All she does is look out for herself. That greedy goat is 'baa-d news!' mentioned Wooley.

"Zippy the dog likes it too. But he's always been a publicity hound," added Sam.

The sound of the opening gates immediately quieted Sam and Wooley. In comes the owner, followed closely behind by the photographer.

"Don't worry. Getting your picture taken is painless," the photographer joked to the 4-H exhibitor.

"Hmph! Easy for him to say. He doesn't have to be combed and poked with a prodder. Ouch!" squealed Sam as he passed Wooley's pen.

Concern for user protection

Should state sell its water?

By Cheryl Stubbendieck, Vice President/Information Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation
Among Nebraska's many blessings is its plentiful water supply. As the state looks for new ways to finance water projects — and even state government expenditures — the question is being asked, "Should Nebraska sell some of its water to out-of-state users?"

The Nebraska Legislature is expected to consider this controversial and far-reaching idea again in its 1987 session. Last year, State Sen. Lorán Schmit of Bellwood introduced legislation to sell surface water, groundwater and water rights to out-of-state buyers. The bill wasn't adopted, but it sparked a vigorous and on-going discussion about how Nebraska should use its vast underground water resource.

Under Schmit's proposal, the existing Water Management Board would be authorized to divert, transfer or sell surface water, groundwater and water rights to users outside of the state's boundaries. Profits from the sales would be used to finance new water development projects.

The board would have authority to export groundwater for public water supply and industrial purposes, but not for agricultural or other purposes. Under the Schmit plan, surface water and water rights could be sold and exported for any purpose.

The board also would have powers of eminent domain to secure land. If negotiations with owners of water rights were not successful, as a part of its authority to secure water for export.

SCHMIT'S PLAN also would allow private landowners to transfer and sell water, and would allow them to transfer surface water rights regardless of the use a purchaser might have for the water right. This could provide substantial income for farmers and ranchers and other landowners.

Proponents of the state selling its water believe this would help to compensate for reductions in federal financing for water projects, as well as generating dollars for the state's general budget. Schmit believes water may become more valuable as a commodity in and of itself, rather than as an input for agricultural production.

Opponents of selling the state's water are concerned that legislation may not adequately protect third party water users. Current Nebraska law considers that water and water rights go with the land and cannot be sold separately. But as proposed by Schmit, if a landowner or the state through eminent domain sells surface groundwater, an adjoining landowner could experience a decline in the water table or the supply and have little recourse.

ANOTHER CONCERN is that because individual landowners could sell their own water or water rights without government regulation, it's possible that existing water supplies could be depleted to the detriment of all Nebraskans.

Under Schmit's proposal, the legislature must determine whether there is unappropriated water to sell and whether such a sale is in the public interest. It's possible that water which might be considered expendable now could be sorely needed in the near or long-term future.

It's unlikely that the Nebraska Legislature will decide in 1987 to sell the state's water, but it's also unlikely that the issue will go away. Instead, the question of selling Nebraska's water is likely to be on the legislative agenda for years to come.

viewpoint

To the point

Farmers (and businessmen) should take advantage of the unique Field Day coming up Aug. 19 at the Northeast Research and Extension Center near Concord.

It can only enhance agricultural knowledge and management practices, plus answer many of the unknowns one may have in regard to certain topics.

Participants will be given a look at swine and beef production, new terraces, a pesticide disposal area, soil fertility, irrigation management and much more.

There's a miniature firewood plantation to show. What are the benefits and disadvantages of using living mulches in corn production?

The Northeast Research and Extension Center continues its ongoing research in evaluations of various herbicides and application methods.

You really can't go wrong in attending this event from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The Field Tour is just one way the Northeast Research and Extension Center is fulfilling its obligation of providing valuable information and answers to those in the agriculture profession.

Go Wildcats!

A recent luncheon and a poll showed the CSIC surprise of two years ago, the Wayne State Wildcats, picked to place in the bottom of the heap in 1986.

No, the Wildcats will not finish that low. There is just too many good football players and athletes on the team to merit such a low rating.

One thing we, as WSC loyalist, can do for the sake of morale is to beef up the attendance at the home games and root on the local team. There's nothing more exciting than to watch a team, expected to be the underdog, clean up on opposing teams.

Spend a Saturday afternoon at the football field and watch some good college football being played. Wayne is one of few cities in Nebraska under 6,000 population that can boast of its own college football team. If they got a good following, you know the players will give it all they got.

And the local college has one of the best performing college marching bands in the state.

As the season progresses, look to the sports pages for home game promotions and take part in the activities the college has to offer throughout the fall football season.

Businesses bear obligation

Leading the war on drugs

by Richard Lester, President, Chamber of Commerce of the United States

"O God, that men should put an enemy in their mouths to steal away their brains."

Shakespeare was referring to alcohol, but his anguished cry could apply even more aptly to heroin, cocaine and other illegal drugs that are running rampant in our society today.

The recent deaths of two prominent young athletes have underscored the hazards of drug abuse, focusing the nation's attention on what can only be described as an epidemic.

This is a grave crisis that will not yield to government action alone. The Reagan administration is doing all it can to stem the flow of drugs in this country; the first lady devotes practically all of her public life to educating young people about drugs; and government agencies at the state and local level are applying herculean efforts to the problem.

All of which seems to have no more effect than spitting on a forest fire. The grim truth is that the war on drugs is being lost and no turnaround is possible until every sector of society — schools, businesses, churches, social groups, charities, all of us — acknowledge the threat and join hands with government to deal with it.

BUSINESS in particular must shoulder a major share of the responsibility. By some estimates, the direct cost of drug abuse to business is over $60 billion a year, measured in lost productivity, increased absenteeism, rising medical costs, more workplace accidents, and stealing by employees desperate to support their expensive addiction.

More importantly, business bears an obligation to society that transcends its economic interests. Business people wield significant power and influence in their communities. They are looked to for leadership in setting standards of personal behavior and participation in public affairs.

This is not a role that all business people seek or enjoy, but it is ours whether we want it or not. It is imperative that business people take the lead in the campaign against drug abuse in our society.

We must begin with a concerted effort to eliminate drugs from the workplace. It will not be easy and our efforts are certain to stir up a hornet's nest of controversy. But our nation, and especially our young people, face a great peril that will not yield to cautious measures.

I am certain that when business gets out front on this issue, other groups and organizations will rally to our cause and work with us. I am certain also that government officials at all levels are eager to work with us in every way they can to help rid our country of this pestilence.

We have no alternative but to commit ourselves to this cause and resolve to see it through.

Trading with Mexico

Bereuter bartering grain for oil

Representative Doug Bereuter has asked the President to offer a barter arrangement in which U.S. grain would be traded for Mexican oil at his meeting with Mexico's President on Aug. 13.

In a letter delivered to the President, Bereuter said, "During your meeting with President Miguel de la Madrid I suggest that you offer a proposed barter arrangement using our surplus CCC commodities to acquire Mexican oil for the Strategic Petroleum Reserve."

Bereuter pointed out in his letter that one of the barter provisions in the 1985 Farm Bill authorizes the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) to make at least $300 million worth of CCC commodities available to the Department of Energy (DOE) to acquire oil for the Strategic Petroleum Reserve.

In light of the recent plummet in world oil prices, a drop in Mexican purchases of U.S. grain and the record surplus of CCC grain causing severe storage problems in the Midwest, it would be in the best interests of not only our farmers, but also the governments of both the United States and Mexico to enter into a ed competition from other grain producing nations.

"Given the importance of maintaining U.S. agricultural exports," Bereuter said, "the present circumstances provide us with a unique opportunity to negotiate a barter agreement to acquire Mexican oil for the Strategic Petroleum Reserve.

"The benefits of a barter agreement to both countries are obvious," he said in his message to the President. "The United States can continue to fill the Strategic Petroleum Reserve, and we can use surplus commodities to recapture our previous share of the Mexican grain market. But, more immediately, it would be one solution to the grain storage problem we are facing in the Midwest."

Officials from both the USDA and DOE have indicated to Bereuter that they are receptive to the barter idea. In addition, the President's Chief of Staff, Don Regan, told Bereuter several months ago that he thinks the barter arrangement has potential.

MEXICO HAS traditionally been a major market for U.S. agricultural products. In the past year the volume of U.S. agricultural exports to Mexico has fallen dramatically because of a drop in oil earnings and increasbarter agreement for the additional purchase of oil," Bereuter said.

Officials from both the USDA and DOE have indicated to Bereuter that they are receptive to the barter idea. In addition, the President's Chief of Staff, Don Regan, told Bereuter several months ago that he thinks the barter arrangement has potential.

Q. I recently had a court hearing at which I requested a reduction of child support. My ex-wife now makes more money than I do, and also has income from a trust fund. However, at the hearing I was required to bring income tax returns and other financial information, and she was not. Is this only one party required to produce evidence of their financial situation, and if so why?

A. Ordinarily both parties may be required to produce background financial information at child support hearings. However, if you were the one requesting a reduction of child support, your circumstances would probably be the primary concern. In many cases, the financial ability of the parent paying support is the decisive issue. And when a modification request such as yours is presented, it would usually be based on a decline in your ability to contribute support for your children.

As a general matter, your obligation to provide support for your children will continue the same as long as your circumstances have not materially changed, even if your former wife's circumstances have materially improved. The focus of the proceedings is on your obligation to support your children, and not on your former wife's fortunes.

A dozen tips to help plan a financial future

Concerned about your financial future? Most of us are, but if we channel our concern in 12 basic areas, our financial future will be much more secure.

First of all, stop procrastinating! Being afraid of doing something wrong can keep you from acting, but the worst mistake you can make is to do nothing at all. To help you stop from putting financial planning off, set a special time aside each month to contemplate, discuss and decide where you will invest your money.

For example, read a good financial management book and attend a financial planning seminar in your community. List your own special financial goals. Make out a will.

SAVE REGULARLY. If you're not doing this, keep track of where your money goes now, then make adjustments in spending patterns so you can put money in savings at the beginning of the month.

Treat savings as a regular bill due at the first of the month. To make it easier, have your financial institution automatically transfer money into your savings on the first of each month.

Deposit the transferred money in savings, to accumulate as much interest as possible. Also, consider money markets as an alternative to a regular passbook savings account.

Your third key concern for financial security is setting your money goals. If you do not live alone, this means discussing these goals with other members to ensure acceptance of your financial plans, and the priority in which these goals exist.

For many households, the first financial goal is to establish an adequate emergency fund that is kept in easily accessible places such as in a money market account. This money is used to handle emergencies and irregular expenses. After reaching an adequate emergency fund, then you're ready to invest your money to reach your other financial goals.

RECRUIT A TEAM of financial advisers. Include your attorney, an accountant, a banker, and an investment and insurance adviser. For the captain of the team, include a general financial planner.

Diversify your investments. As the old saying goes, "don't put all of your investment eggs into one basket." Consider your investment objective. Why are you investing? Match your investment choices to your reason for investing.

Pay as little income tax as legally acceptable. Consider consulting an accountant or financial planner to help you find additional ways to trim your tax bill.

Maintain ongoing credit bills to a minimum. Due to changes in the economy and the tax law, it is no longer economically feasible to borrow and pay back later. Shop for the best credit rate possible. If you are having trouble with credit, or feel you're drowning in debt, consult a non-profit credit counselor to help you arrange for a more suitable payback plan.

ALWAYS COMPARISON shop for the big items. The more expensive the item, the more reason you have to take your time, check around and find the best price. Also, comparison shop for financial reasons.

Use common sense in purchasing the right type of life insurance for your needs. Good money management always makes sense. Before you make any financial decisions, think about the consequences and pitfalls. Make sure your expectations are realistic. Seek additional advice and information if you don't have all the information you need before making a decision.

Stay flexible. Remember, no financial decision is truly irreversible. As your life situation changes, so should your financial plans and methods for carrying out those plans.

FINALLY, TAKE charge of your own financial future. No one is going to do it for you. Be sure you have a credit file in your own name. Also, know the details of your finances. If you're married, be sure you're involved in financial decision making.

Blair's program turning into baseball Dynasty

Blair wins second straight Legion title

There are very few sports dynasties, even in high school athletics. But with Blair's 9-4 triumph over Beatrice at Overin Field Thursday night, it's safe to call Blair's baseball program a Nebraska sports dynasty during the 1980s.

During the past four years, Blair's Juniors and Midgets have qualified for state tournaments seven times, have won four state titles and have placed second twice.

Thursday night's victory was Blair's Juniors' second Class B state championship in as many years. Blair also qualified for the state tourney the two previous years before the '85 championship, and placed second in 1984.

Blair's Midgets are just as successful. In addition to winning the state championship this year, Blair's Midgets claimed the state title in 1984 and placed second in 1985.

A big Blair fifth inning proved to be the difference in the title bout as the visitors overcame a 2-1 deficit by scoring eight runs in the top of the fifth.

Tim Barner and Mark Clements started the inning off by stroking consecutive singles before lead-off hitter Brad Lehl walked to lead the bases. Barner then tied the game when Dan Sellon reached on an error.

Troy Carmichael and Kevin Rasmussen have been Blair's main offensive standouts during the last half of the season, and the third and fourth hitters provided Blair with consecutive blows in the fifth.

After Carmichael ripped a single to plate Clements and Lehl, the hard-hitting Rasmussen slugged a double to score Sellon and Carmichael with Blair's fifth and sixth runs.

Rasmussen's double chased Beatrice starting pitcher Doug Tegtmeyer. But reliever Jerry Madison walked Jeff Nielson and Joe Foley to load the bases.

Rasmussen was then forced out at home, but Barner followed with his second single of the inning to plate Nielson and Foley.

Craig Aman, who reached on a fielder's choice, scored Blair's final run on a ground out.

The visitors totaled five hits and took advantage of three walks and an error in the wild eighth-inning fifth.

Beatrice scored once in the bottom of the frame. Madison led off with a single and reached scoring position on an error by Blair. Tegtmeyer followed with a single to score the speedy Madison.

Beatrice scored once more in the bottom of the sixth. Pinch-hitter Ryan Timmerman led off with a single and was replaced by pinch-runner Scott Galindo.

Galindo advanced to third base when Mark Nuismer singled. Galindo then scored on a wild pitch.

But it wasn't nearly enough and Blair hung on for the title.

Blair opened a quick 10 lead in the first when Lehl coaxed a lead-off walk, stole third, moved to second a sacrifice bunt by Sellon and crossed the plate on a wild pitch.

Rasmussen stoked a two-out single in the first, but Tegtmeyer left Rasmussen stranded on first by retiring Nielsen.

Beatrice tied the game in the bottom of the inning when Tegtmeyer reached on a fielder's choice after Madison singled.

Tegtmeyer then moved to second when Brad Tesar walked and scored on an RBI single by Alan Schoenhofar.

Beatrice took its only lead of the game in the third. The speedy Madison led the third off by drawing a walk and stealing second. Madison then moved to third on a wild pitch and scored on a Blair error.

Beatrice threatened to score another run in the third when Schoenhofar reached on an error with two outs, stole second and moved to third when Jeff Scott reached on an error. However, Foley ended the threat by getting Mike Cook to ground out.

Beatrice had several other opportunities to score, but Blair always managed to thwart potential rally innings.

For example, Cook and Miller both advanced into scoring position with one out in the second, but were left stranded on third and second base, respectively.

Beatrice also left two men stranded in the fifth, sixth and seventh inning in addition to the second and third frames.

For the game, Beatrice left 11 men on base and the only inning the home team went down in order was in the fourth.

But Blair's Foley deserves credit for being able to "dodge" potential rallies and keeping Blair close until the fifth-inning eruption.

Foley allowed only two hits and two runs over the first four frames before receiving the supportive fifth-inning.

Foley yielded eight hits in the game, recorded five strike outs and allowed only three walks.

Tegtmeyer had a fine outing until the wild fifth. Over the first four frames, the highly touted Tegtmeyer allowed only one hit, recorded two strike outs and faced only 16 batters. However, Blair finally reached Tegtmeyer in the fifth and blew the game open.

Rasmussen and Barner led Blair offensively with two hits and two RBI apiece. Carmichael added a hit and two RBI, while Clements singled once.

Cook and Madison led the Beatrice offense with two hits apiece, while Schoenhofar finished 1-for-3 with two RBI.

Tegtmeyer, Timmerman and Nuismer all added one hit a piece for Beatrice.

The game ended the seven-day tournament. The tourney began last Friday and Sunday's games were rained out.

Hank Overin — for whom the park is named after — said the tournament was a success and added that he received many compliments on the playing field's condition.

"This was one of the best tournaments I've been in, and I'm not saying that because it was played here, but because everything just went so smooth," he said.

"Everything went according to plan, and everybody seemed to be pleased with the facilities. As a matter of fact, some of the scouts that were here said the field was in better condition than some of the minor league parks."

Madison slam powers Beatrice

Beatrice forces second game with 10-1 thrashing

Blair probably felt like it was in the driver's seat after Dan Sellon scored in the top of the fifth inning to provide the hosts with a 9-0 lead.

But Beatrice tied the game in the bottom of the frame and tallied nine more runs in a wild sixth-inning to force another game in the championship round of the American Junior Legion Class B State Baseball Tournament at Overin Field Wednesday night.

Sellon provided Blair with its one run advantage after he led the fifth off with a walk, moved to second on a single by Kevin Rasmussen, advanced to third on a passed ball and scored on a wild pitch.

But Brian Boesiger tied the game in the bottom of the fifth by clubbing a one-out solo home run and after Boesiger retore Blair in the top of the sixth, Beatrice erupted for nine runs in the bottom of the inning.

Brad Tesar led the bottom of the sixth off with a double and Alan Schoenhofar followed with a single. Tesar then scored when Jeff Scott's grounder was misplayed and Mike Cook followed with a two-run double.

Heath Miller then singled home Cook and Mark Nuismer, and Boesiger loaded the bases by drawing consecutive walks.

That brought up Jerry Madison. Madison is known mostly for his speed, but he displayed he also possesses power as he unloaded a grand-slam home run to put the game out of reach.

Brad Tesar added an insurance run in the sixth after he walked and scored on consecutive singles by pinch-hitter Scott Galindo and Cook. Boesiger hurled a beautiful game for the victors as he finished with five strike outs against four walks and seven hits.

Jim Genrich retired all three batters he faced in the seventh to preserve the Beatrice victory.

Blair threatened several times throughout the game, but Boesiger always managed to escape severe damage.

Blair loaded the bases in the first when Brad Lehl and Troy Carmichael singled and Sellon walked. But after Lehl was out at home, Boesiger fanned the hard-hitting

Blair also loaded the bases in the second inning when Craig Aman reached on an error, Tim Barner reached on a fielder's choice and Lehl singled. But Boesiger once again escaped further damage by striking out Sellon.

After Sellon scored the first run in the fifth, Blair had yet another chance to blow the game open as Nielson and Aman followed Rasmussen's single with a pair of walks. But Boesiger ended the threat by getting Barner to ground out.

Beatrice also threatened a couple of times in the early going. Madison stroked a one-out, double in the first but was left stranded on second, and in the second Scott and Cook both singled and Schoenhofar walked but the home team failed to score again.

Barner started for Blair and pitched well despite losing. In five innings of work, Barner allowed five hits, one walk and only one run. But he was replaced in the sixth after Tesar greeted him with the lead-off double.

Lehl and Rasmussen led Blair offensively with two hits apiece, while Sellon, Carmichael and Clements all added one safety.

Madison and Cook were the hitting stars for Beatrice. Madison finished 2-for-4 with one run scored and the four RBI, while Cook totaled three hits in four plate appearances and drove in three runs.

Boesiger, Tesar, Schoenhofar, Scott, Galindo and Ryan Timmerman all added one hit apiece for the victors.

Lincoln golfers trying their hand with new 'Cayman' golf balls

LINCOLN — The climate isn't really what one might consider tropical, even in the month of August, but that didn't stop Knoll's Golf Club professional Luke Stevenson from bringing a Caribbean flavor to Nebraska.

Always looking for something new and exciting to offer members of Lincoln's unique 18-hole par three golf club, Stevenson took the cue from Jack Nicklaus in making his course more challenging than it already is.

In addition to his obvious skills as a golfer, Nicklaus is also a world-famous golf course architect.

And in golf course architecture, Nicklaus prides himself in challenge. One of the supreme challenges was building a golf course on the small (100 square mile) Cayman Islands.

To accomplish such a feat on a small island setting, Nicklaus built a scaled-down course, then worked with McGregor to design a ball with scaled-down distance to fit.

Thus, the tie-in with Stevenson, a young professional who grew up in Lincoln.

Even though the Cayman Islands were so far away, the experience of playing Cayman golf didn't have to be.

Stevenson obtained several dozen of the Cayman balls (lightweight, with pimples instead of dimples) and organized the first Knoll's Cayman Open, August 16.

"It's really a unique experience," Stevenson said of the Cayman ball. "I've played four or five rounds with it, and it's fun."

In addition to Stevenson's idea to market the concept with the Cayman Open, he suggests that adults playing par three courses with their youngsters might find the ball a challenge, and of course, the obvious, it makes a short course longer.

"My assistants in the shop are the ones who have played the most with it," Stevenson said. "They keep trying to establish new Cayman course records."

Currently, the Cayman course record at the Knolls is a 59. Par Stevenson figures, is approximately 62 with the light-weight ball.

"The course record with a regular ball is about 45, so that gives you an idea of the distance," he said.

Distance with the Cayman ball is about half of a regular ball. Stevenson said, but play around the greens closely resembles a regular ball.

"The ball is real light, so you can't cut it, it floats so you can't lose it in the water and you can't hit it far enough to lose it from the tee," Stevenson said. "We've had a lot of fun with it here. And it has one-third less calories than a regular ball."

nebraska game & parks

Commission will continue to enforce laws on Indian reservations

LINCOLN — The Nebraska Game and Parks Commission has received various inquiries concerning its policy of enforcement of Nebraska Game laws on Indian reservations against non-Indians, according to assistant Game and Parks Commission director Bill Bailey.

He says the Commission will continue to enforce Nebraska Game laws against non-Indians on Indian reservations including: the requirement of a valid Nebraska hunting and fishing permit for non-Indians hunting or fishing within the boundaries of the reservation, including Indian-owned land; compliance with season dates, shooting hours, methods of take and bag limits established by the Game and Parks Commission and all other hunting laws and regulations of the state of Nebraska.

To the extent that Indian tribes establish their own laws concerning the taking of game on Indian-owned land within the reservation, Indians and non-Indians alike will be required to abide by those regulations so long as compliance by non-Indians does not constitute a violation of state regulations, Bailey said.

LIBRARY PROGRAM CONCLUDES

Winside's "Have a Bearable Summer" library reading program concluded Aug. 11 with a teddy bear picnic in the park. Approximately 75 guests participated, with each family bringing a covered dish. In the game Bear Once Over the Mountain, Nichole and Amanda Deck finished first and each received a canvas book bag. Dereck Van Houten was third and received a bag of candy.

For the older children in the Bearable Summer Game, there were two winners, Cindy Van Houten and Jennifer Wacker. Each received a book.

Novaock to enter plea

Arraignment is scheduled on Monday for Kurt Novaock of Wayne, who faces first degree murder and first degree manslaughter charges in the death of Jerry Pihlal of Delmont, South Dakota in June of 1985.

Novaock, age 27, is expected to enter a plea to the charges on Monday, and the trial date is expected to be set for late September or early October.

He was arrested in December last year on the charges of first degree murder, first degree manslaughter, along with Lewis Ashker of Wayne, and held in the Wayne County Jail until his extradition to South Dakota in July of 1986.

Ashker was convicted in June of first degree murder in Pihlal's death and was sentenced to life in prison.

LB 662 meeting set

The Nebraska School Improvement Association is conducting an informational meeting concerning the repeal of LB 662, the forced school consolidation and multi-million dollar state tax increase bill.

Voters will determine the repeal of LB 662 (Referendum 400) at the November ballot because rural school supporters gathered 90,253 signatures through a referendum petition campaign last summer.

The public is invited to attend the meeting in Wayne on Monday, Aug. 18 at 8 p.m. in the Wayne County Courthouse.

Literature will be provided, and a question and answer time will follow the presentation. For information call Gene Luft at 375-1686.

Musical has popular hits

"It's full of happy music with lots of lively lyrics."

That's "Kiss Me, Kate," the musical comedy which Wayne Community Theatre will stage Aug. 29-31 in Ramsey Theatre.

It's a melodious, tuneful show, with music and lyrics by Cole Porter. His name alone is enough to get the attention of anybody who remembers when he spun musical magic back in the Forties, Fifties and Sixties. He created countless single hits and several stage shows—nearly always writing both music and words.

"Wonderbar" probably ranks as the best-known song from "Kiss Me, Kate," Sedricks believes. It made the hit lists for quite a time after the show opened on Broadway in the late 1940's, and it's the kind of tune that listeners remember—and hum all the way home.

BUT OTHER SONGS from the show will be familiar from that Golden Age of musicals, Sedricks predicts.

The play opens with the rousing chorus "Another Op'nin', Another Show." It proceeds to the plaintive songs "Why Can't You Behave" and "So in Love," and later, another love song titled "Were Thine That Special Face."

In between, there's the furious and hilarious "I Hate Men," sung by Lisa Soseman in the shrewish roles of Lilli Vanessi and Katharine. This provokes an answer from Chuck Higbee in the shrew-taming roles of Fred Graham and Petruchio. He belts out "I've Come to Wive It Wealthily in Padua" and "Where is the Life That Late I Led."

These songs develop the show's plot about a troupe of actors who get their personal lives and their stage roles all mixed up.

At intervals, there are brief scenes from "Taming of the Shrew," and sometimes it's hard to tell whether the shrew is being Lilli or Katharine. But that's what makes the play hilarious, Sedricks said.

Perhaps the funniest song of the show is "Brush Up Your Shakespeare," a lusty song/dance duet by Marvise Anderson and Gil Haase.

SEDRICKS EXPLAINS that "Kiss Me, Kate" is not a Shakespeare play—test people who think they can't understand Shakespeare decide not to attend.

Tickets will go on sale soon for the three performances: 8 p.m. Aug. 29 and 30, and 2 p.m. on Sunday, Aug. 31.

At State Fair

Unclaimed funds advertised

State Treasurer Kay Orr announced that the Unclaimed Property Division Staff will be available at the State Fair again this year, with lists of owners of unclaimed funds. Nebraska citizens are urged to visit the Unclaimed Property Booth (#235) in the Bob Devaney Sports Complex. A computer terminal will be on-site for use in assisting fair-goers to learn if funds are held in their name. Last year contact was made with over 650 owners of unclaimed property, and $28,000 in funds were paid out as a result of contact made at the 1985 Fair.

Orr, whose office is responsible for administering this program, explained that unclaimed property is any financial asset which has been unclaimed by its owner for at least seven years, such as savings accounts, checking accounts, stock certificates, uncashed dividends, utility deposits and insurance proceeds. Abandoned safe deposit box contents are also remitted to the Treasurer for safe-keeping.

An added effort to locate owners, and make the public aware of this program, is planned for this fall. State Treasurer Orr's staff will be visiting shopping malls around the state in the months of September and October. Announcement will be made in each city shortly before the planned visit.

Each football Saturday Nebraska citizens visiting the downtown Centrum Shopping Mall in Lincoln will also be able to view these lists between the house of 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. on," Agler commented. After about five minutes in the dressing room, he was taken to a make-up room. He was waiting for Judith when out of a small make-up room came none other than the host, Johnny Carson.

"How are you folks doing tonight?" Carson asked Agler. He asked cordially about the Wayne area and how far it was from his hometown of Norfolk, Nebraska. Some of the questions he asked were repeated when Agler appeared on television as his guest on his show.

"We were told that Johnny Carson does not like to meet his guest before the show. I think he met with us simply because we were from Nebraska," Agler said.

Agler and Kluge were finally told what was to happen on stage. If one person got tired of talking, the other person should be ready to keep the conversation going, they were told.

Agler and Kluge didn't know they were going to do a skit until Carson began his monologue. They were also told that their crowing and clucking would be put to the test of whether or not the audience could tell the difference between the live cackles and crows of Kluge and Agler and a tape of the real animals.

"We already had an idea of what type of skit we were going to do. Judith was really cooperative, saying she was willing to let me do my entire routine," said Agler.

is until someone makes a difficult shot.

"There's a lot of good players and a lot of good shots when we play," Anderson said. "People appreciate good shots. Weldon Mortenson and Cliff Busby are probably the two best players from Wakefield."

But regardless of who's good and who isn't, Anderson said playing pool provides all the participants with daily exercise, fulfilling entertainment and desired recreation.

"We only play in tournaments twice a month, but we practice almost every day. It's a good pastime for us. I'll tell you one thing, it sure beats watching TV," he said. "Playing pool is our entertainment, we have quite a time and besides, you get a little exercise."

TIM AND Pam Schram are host parents for Albertha Feenstra, a Netherlands exchange student who will be attending Ponca High School this fall.

MEMBERS of the Madison city council last week heard that the city employees were not happy with the proposed new contract that would have given them an "across the board" wage increase of 15 cents per hour. City employees have made a counter proposal that would give them an increase of 25 cents per hour.

PLAINVIEW may not have an ambulance service and may have to rely on delayed service from other communities. Such was the word last week with the announcement that members of the Plainview rescue squad, presently only seven strong, had agreed to disband effective Sept. 1 unless a drastic change occurs. Rescue squad members say they aren't physically able to continue with the existing staff.

PAUL AND Peggy Leitling are the new owners of Kessler Auto Supply in Randolph. The name of the business will be Leitling Auto Supply. Paul is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Leitling of Randolph, and Peggy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Rethwisch of Carroll.

DISTRICT Two property tax requirements are expected to show an increase, possibly 50 percent, from 1985-86 to 1986-87, according to the proposed budget prepared by Pierce Public Schools Superintendent Phil Fahik. Max Oswald from Allen has just returned home from Basic Training in Ft. Benning, Georgia. Max who is a member of the Wayne National Guard, will be entering his senior year in high school at Allen. Max will be returning to Ft. Benning next summer to complete his Infantry training.

Max is the son of Marvin and Eunice Oswald of Allen.

the "green room" backstage. She caught a glimpse of Doc Severson and was about to snap a picture of him when Carson's bodyguard said no photographing was allowed.

Still, the Aglers were able to have a conversation with Severson, get an autograph from Alan Thicke and another signature from a member of the Miami Sound Machine, who were also guests of the Carson show.

After the taping, the Aglers returned to the Sheridan Universal. Another celebrity they saw while at the lodging place was Telly Savalas.

Friday the Aglers reserved for hours as they were guided along streets saturated with movie star homes. On Saturday, the Aglers went to Disneyland. The trip home to Wayne was on Sunday.

"It felt good to get back home," mentioned Agler.

"We were in a part of Los Angeles where money was no obstacle at all. The Sheridan Universal is one of the top 10 lodging places in the city and the eating places are not by any means cheap," he said.

Agler said that he will probably compete again next year in the Wayne Chicken Show National Cluck-off. "I would like the chance to go back there again," he said.

And that possibility exists, because the Tonight Show staff is interested in receiving video-taping of next year's Chicken Show.

FOR AGLER, HE must now concentrate on bringing in the yields from his harvest.

Sitting in a tractor seat definitely isn't like sitting in a seat across the desk from Johnny Carson.

But it certainly has its advantages. It is the quiet times on the farm, away from the bright lights of the city, that Agler will likely practice his rooster crowing. He's away from the bright lights; away from the cameras and microphones.

There is little doubt, however, that Agler will ever forget that fleeting moment of celebrity status he attained, and how he helped put Wayne, Nebraska on the lips of millions of television viewers.

How many people can claim that achievement?
