LB 662 law gets criticized

by Chuck Hackenmiller

"Don't try and convince Bob Mullendore of Lincoln that LB 662 is a bill that should remain as a legislative law. He'll gladly tell you differently. "LB 662 is a lousy law. It has no business being in the books," Mullendore, a spokesman for the Nebraska School Improvement Association, told a handful of people Monday evening at the Wayne County Courthouse during an informational session dealing with the repeal of LB 662.

LB 662 was signed by Governor Bob Kerrey on April 24, 1985. The legislative bill stipulates that all Class I school districts in the state that are not within a Class IV school district on Sept. 1, 1989, or affiliated with another school district prior to March 1, 1989, shall be merged with a Class II (K-12) or higher school district.

It also places a 45 percent limit on property tax support of school districts and will raise the state sales tax rate a percentage point to finance more state aid to education.

Wayne County, during the 1985-86 school year, had 10 Class I (elementary school only) districts. Dixon County had three Class I schools and Cedar County two.

A successful petition campaign has given voters in the state an opportunity to repeal LB 662 in the November general election.

MULLENDORE said a legislative bill must deal with only one subject LB 662, he said, deals with at least nine subjects. "LB 662 is a multi-subject bill that just doesn't cut it," he mentioned, pointing out that the Nebraska Constitution says "no bill shall contain more than one subject and the same shall be clearly expressed in the title."

A segment in the legislation, which mentions that a lid of 45 percent of the costs of public schools be paid from property taxes, also was discomfiting to Mullendore. "It was not meant to be a district by district limit," he told the audience.

He said some districts would be paying higher — others lower — property taxes. He anticipated those with the lower property taxes to be the urban districts. "I believe the rural property taxpayers will be holding up that 45 percent average statewide," he mentioned.

"Where is the justice from that?" he added.

Mullendore was also concerned about the single cent sales tax raise, which he said is needed to cover for the 45 percent lid of property tax provision to public schools.

"What is going to be required [in state sales tax] is over two cents," Mullendore said.

IN PRIOR years, the state property tax had supplied up to 60 percent of public school costs.

Some cities have a local option sales tax. That, added on to the current 4 cent sales tax and the added sales tax to finance the state aid to education, could bring some sales taxes in several Nebraska cities to over 7 cents, he said.

Those that favor leaving LB 662 as law say that aid to school would increase to about $250 million under the bill and property taxes would decrease by about 24 percent, using 1984-85 figures.

Proponents of LB 662 say Class I districts have the choice of which district or districts to consider for either affiliation or merger and that LB 662 does not mean that attendance centers have to be closed.

However, Mullendore compared the affiliations or mergers of the Class I school to a K-12 school as an eventual "shotgun wedding."

He said LB 662 is unworkable and impractical. The issue of LB 662 providing better education quality or equal educational opportunities was never defined. "Those definitions will eventually be decided in the courts," Mullendore said.

There is no definition in the bill, he

Proud to be an American

ASHLYN BLOOM OF LAUREL, age 3½, was all smiles last week after taking part in a ceremony in which she became a U.S. citizen. Ashlyn, daughter of Rhonda and David Bloom, was among more than 40 men, women and children from more than 20 countries who took part in the ceremony in federal court in Omaha. A native of Korea, Ashlyn was adopted by the Blooms on June 28, 1984. She is the Blooms' third child to take part in the naturalization ceremonies. Brothers Jordan, age 7, and Evan, age 4, also are natives of Korea. Blooms also are the parents of another daughter, five-year-old Hayley.

County budget set for 1986-87 year

by Chuck Hackenmiller

Looking down the barrel of a decrease in state aid, less interest to be earned and a state law requiring mandatory retirement pay to county employees, the Wayne County Commissioners have approved a 1986-87 fiscal budget calling for an approximate 3 percent increase in tax askings over the previous year's property tax requirement.

The increase comes despite a nearly 6 percent decrease in budget requirements.

The commissioners conducted a public hearing on the proposed budget Tuesday at the Wayne County Courthouse.

Tax askings last fiscal year was set at $1,199,508. Although calculations are not official, it is estimated that the 1986-87 budget will call for $1,241,294 in property tax requirements.

included in that figure is a fee and delinquent tax allowance. The preliminary budget had established a 1 percent delinquent tax rate. That rate was changed to 3 percent to compensate for the growing number of delinquent taxes.

Originally, with the 1 percent delinquent tax rate, the budgeted amount for 1986-87 was $1,111,530. That figure was changed with the 3 percent delinquent tax rate, making it approximately $34,990.

Budget requirements from July 1, 1986 to June 30, 1987 were established at $3,460,390.31, nearly a 6 percent decline from the previous year.

DEPARTMENTS within the county system had their budgets frozen, or equal to last year, according to the county commissioners.

Wayne County Clerk Orretta Morris said the county is anticipating nearly a $36,428 decrease in state aid this coming fiscal year. A $43,000 decrease is anticipated in the amount of interest earned this past year over the previous fiscal year, Morris said.

The county commissioners are also contending with nearly a $6.2 million decrease in valuation.

"You take that [valuation decrease], loss of state aid and interest — that adds up!" remarked Commissioner Jerry Pospisil.

Valuation which was recently received by the county clerk's office shows this year's figures at $254,981,260, compared to $261,166,550 valuation last year.

One fund which increased from nearly $168,700 budgeted last year to $292,752 this year, Inheritance Tax, contains the mandatory retirement fund which counties must now provide to its employees.

Employees are required to place 3.2 percent of their paycheck earnings into the mandatory retirement program, with the county contributing another 4.8 percent of the employee's earnings to the fund.

A BREAKDOWN of funds, and how they compare to last fiscal year's budget, are as follows:

•General fund — previous budget $852,552.72; proposed budget $901,915.69; increase of nearly 5.8 percent

•Road and Bridge fund — previous budget $1,209,343.71; proposed budget $1,104,343.71; decrease of about 9.5 percent

•Relief/Medical fund — previous budget $73,000; proposed budget $58,397; decrease nearly 25 percent

•Soldiers and Sailors fund — previous budget $1,200; proposed budget $1,200; no change

•Federal Grants (primarily finances special police for Winslow, Hoskins) — previous budget $50,907.19; proposed budget $50,126.46; decrease of 1.5 percent

•Revenue Sharing Fund — previous budget $329,092.76; proposed budget $338,407.80; increase of 2.8 percent

•Inheritance Tax Fund — previous budget $168,694.65; proposed budget $292,752.30; increase of 73.5 percent

•Noxious Weed Control Fund — previous budget of $30,035; proposed

Crop market price outlook not too encouraging

by Chuck Hackenmiller

"I'm sorry that I can't be more optimistic on commodity prices. But that's where we are at."

That's what Roy Frederick, extension economist, told an audience Tuesday during the annual Field Day at the Northeast Research and Extension Center in Concord.

A wide variety of Field Day topics were discussed by research and extension center's staff members. Frederick's portion of the Field Day presented information on the commodity prices and the farm programs.

In the first part of his presentation, he showed a comparison (using 1984, 1985 and 1986 figures) of corn and soybeans in the areas of harvest, yield and production.

Corn production in 1986 will be down from the record high 953,600,000 figure of a year ago because there is "less acre-planted for harvest," he said. However, 1986 corn yields are anticipated to be 130 bushels to the acre and that will be a record over last year's 1985 yield average of 128 bushels to the acre.

"Looking at dryland corn, the average could be 102 bushels to the acre," said Frederick.

A RECORD soybean production is expected in 1986 at 90.6 million bushels, with yields anticipated at 37 bushels to the acre.

U.S. estimates follow the same pattern as Nebraska in corn, with less production but greater yields. The nation's soybean crop report differs from Nebraska, with indications showing reductions in soybean production, yields and amount of acres for harvest.

A breakdown comparison of Nebraska districts shows that the northeast region of the state, when comparing 1985 to the 1986 estimated figures, will increase its yield per acre in soybeans from 34 to 36 bushels to the acre and corn from 113.2 bushels/acre to 116 bushels/acre.

FREDERICK presented an overview of price prospects on corn and soybeans. Supplies are large, he said, and demand continues to be soft. Carryover stocks are still increasing for the major crops grown in Nebraska.

Corn exports, although it could increase by 20 to 30 percent in the next year, is still behind when compared to the early 1980's, he said.

A major problem for the soybeans, Frederick said, is in the soybean oil market. "World-wide, there is a tremendous stock of vegetable oil (especially palm oil) on hand," he said. "It is hard to compete on a world-wide basis."

World oilseed production in 1986/87 is forecast at a record 196.5 million metric tons, he pointed out.

Concerning market strategy, Frederick mentioned that cash prices for both corn and soybeans will probably continue to weaken up to harvest time, especially with the good crop prospects and storage space continuing to be tight. At that time, corn might additionally lose up to 15 cents a bushel and soybeans perhaps up to 25 cents a bushel.

Frederick said that in mid-October and early November, prices may improve somewhat.

"Wait and make the sale a few weeks, or better yet a couple months after harvest," Frederick advised. In years when the crop is large and storage tight, the seasonal low for prices often occurs at harvest. After that, prices begin to improve as the market focuses on the demand side of the market, he mentioned.

One obvious strategy, he mentioned, is to price both corn and soybeans by taking out nonrecourse loans if eligible to do so.

HE OUTLINED the effects of the farm program on soybeans and corn with the following details:

•The 1986 loan rate on soybeans is likely to be reduced to $4.77/bushel, although that loan rate hasn't officially been decided yet. The 1987 soybean loan rate may be reduced another 5 percent from the 1986 level.

•The loan rate on 1987 corn is likely to be reduced from this year's $1.92 to $1.82/bushel. The official announcement must be made by Sept. 30 of this year.

•Most other provisions of the 1987 program for corn will be similar to 1986.

•And PIK certificates will apparently continue to be an important part of any direct payments for participation in government programs.

Other topics discussed on Tuesday during the 1986 Field Day near Concord included information on swine nursery energy management; mini-furrow plantations; irrigation runoff control; chemigation, corn variety performance testing; proper application of hay and silage additives; comparison of fertilizer programs from several soil testing laboratories; alternative crop demonstration; soil compaction; weed garden; weed control in field crops; and intercropping and double cropping.

In addition, the tours covered terraces that were under construction; soybean defoliation; soybean residue cover — use of living mulches in corn production; establishment of cover crops; what can be learned from Ag Marketing Clubs; using spreadsheets on farm computers and computer displays.

An omelet feed, partially financed through TWJ Feeds, Nebraska Pork Producers, Orchard Dairy Products, Farmers Feed and Fertilizer of Laurel and the Northeast Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association, took place during the Field Day. Lunch was also served by the Merry Homemakers Extension Club.

Chairperson of the Field Day committee was Charles Shapiro, with Bill Kranz as vice chairperson.

PEOPLE ON A wagon wait for a driver to begin a Field Day Tour. The annual Field Day event took place on Tuesday at the Northeast Research and Extension Center near Concord. A wide variety of ag-related subjects, from crops to finance, were discussed.

news briefs

St. Mary's school starts Aug. 27

Kindergarten through sixth grade classes at St. Mary's School in Wayne will begin on Wednesday, Aug. 27 at 9 a.m. Classes that day will dismiss at noon, with classes the remainder of the week running from 9 a.m. until 3:30 p.m.

There will be late registration at the school on Friday, Aug. 22 from 9 a.m. to noon.

A parent/teachers meeting is scheduled Wednesday, Aug. 27 at 7:30 p.m. in the school hall.

Persons who would like additional information are asked to call 373-2337.

Laurel-Concord classes start Aug. 25

Laurel-Concord School will open the new 1986-87 school year on Monday, Aug. 25. Classes will begin at 8:30 a.m., with dismissal at 3:30 p.m.

A spokesman for the school said all kindergarten through 12th grade students must be pre-registered. Parents of students who have not registered are asked to notify the school.

Bus service will begin on Aug. 25. New rural residents who are not aware of the bus schedules may contact the school for information.

Vacation days include Sept. 1, Labor Day; Oct. 23-24, teachers convention; Nov. 27-28, Thanksgiving; Dec. 22 until Jan. 5, Christmas; and April 17-20, Easter.

Natural Family Classes

Our Lady of Lourdes Hospital will again sponsor a Natural Family Planning series beginning Sept. 19. The complete series will consist of four consecutive monthly meetings. Subsequent class dates will be Oct. 17, Nov. 14, and Dec. 12, 1986 at 7:30 p.m. in the Skyview Medical Center in Norfolk. The classes will be conducted by Cliff and Jean Kreifels.

For further information or pre-registration interested couples can call, Sr. Salsela at 371-3402.

District 57 schedules classes

Wayne County Rural School District 57 will begin classes on Tuesday, Sept. 2.

Classes the first day will run from 9 a.m. to noon, with regular school hours the remainder of the week.

Wayne High Registration

Students who have not registered for classes at Wayne High School are requested to do so prior to the start of school on August 27. Those students who have a class schedule but want to make changes should also get this done before classes start.

For registration or schedule changes, see Mr. Munson in the guidance office at Wayne High School.

Pedestrian safety school

The Wayne Police Department will conduct its 19th annual Pedestrian Safety School for Kindergarten children under the direction of Patrolman Robert McLean.

The school will last approximately one hour and will include the proper method of crossing streets, crossing streets with stop signs, crossing streets with traffic signals, and similar information that can be important for your youngster to know. There will also be a short film which will illustrate the above. Refreshments will also be served following the instructions.

The program will be held on the third floor (top floor) of the City Hall building at 306 Pearl Street. Due to the number of children in this age group, the following schedule will be set:

Last names beginning with the letter "A" through "K" 10:00 a.m. August 22, 1986.

Last names beginning with the letter "L" through "Z" 1:30 p.m. August 22, 1986.

Gets firsthand report on NASA program Brogie completes NASA workshop

Ed Brogie, a teacher at Laurel Public School, has successfully completed a NASA Education Workshop for Math and Science Teachers (NEWMAST).

The workshop was conducted July 14-25 at NASA's National Space Technology Laboratories near Bay St. Louis, Miss. Brogie was one of 11 teachers from across the country to be selected as a workshop participant.

NEWMAST is a national collaborative effort of NASA, the National Science Teachers Association (NSTA) and the National Science Foundation. The concept for the program was based on the classroom and hands-on training offered by NSTL's annual Aerospace Education Workshop which began in 1981.

NSTL and the eight other NASA field centers located around the country host the NEWMAST education workshops during the summer months. The educators who participate in the project are selected by a committee of representatives from NSTA and the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics.

The aim of the workshop is to provide the math and science teachers with a first-hand report on current NASA programs and technology developments.

Brogie and the other NEWMAST participants are available for teacher in-service workshops to share the knowledge and training experiences they gained during the two-week session.

Jim McMurray, NSTL's aerospace education specialist, conducted the workshop for the second consecutive year. He said the educators were briefed by resident scientific and engineering specialists and they observed work in progress at the center. A highlight of the workshop for the teachers was viewing a static test-firing of a Space Shuttle Main Engine. One of NSTL's missions is to test and certify for flight all Space Shuttle Main Engines used in actual shuttle missions.

Several of NSTL's resident federal agencies again joined NASA in taking part in the NEWMAST sessions. Topics of discussions and presentations included space science and propulsion, oceanography, remote sensing and earth sciences.

Catch is in the price

Becoming competitive in exports

Wheat Sales to the Soviet Union
As most of you know, President Reagan authorized a $13 per ton "Subsidy" paid in CCC commodities on wheat sales to the Soviet Union. This procedure was authorized by the Export Enhancement or Export PIK program authorized by the 1985 Farm Bill. The so-called "subsidy" is limited to 4 million metric tons that the Soviets have yet to buy on their long-term grain contract with the United States. Thus far, the Soviets have not said whether or not they will accept the offer, which expires on September 30, and buy the remaining wheat.

Recently, America wheat has been consistently priced at about $10 per metric ton above the world price, because most wheat sold in international commerce is subsidized. With that differential price, the Soviets have in the past and will continue to bypass U.S. grain and buy grain from our competitors, like Australia and Argentina, unless we offer them the world price.

THE REAL PROBLEM with offering the Soviets a world price for our grain, a price which includes what news commentators and newspapers frequently call a "subsidy," is that we have failed to offer that price to all of our other traditional good foreign grain customers. We could extend Export PIK, which is essentially the world price of grain, to every country — e.g., Nigeria. And, if we are unwilling to implement the Export PIK program across the board, then perhaps we should implement a marketing loan plan. (Through the marketing loan we enable the U.S. farmer to compete in the world marketplace by making commodity price-competitive while continuing to protect farm income. Keep in mind that a marketing loan proposal only failed by 28 votes on the House floor, and I never heard any allegations on the floor that a marketing loan would subsidize the Soviets; I voted for it.)

If we are to maintain a tough position against our adversaries, we must make ourselves competitive in the export markets. Either the United States goes out and competes in the world market, or we might as well admit we will have to take vast areas out of production that will devastate our rural communities and rapidly change for the worse the whole way of life and basic prosperity of the Grain Belt.

Veto of Textile Bill left new restrictions on South African Imports
A vote to sustain the President's veto of the Textile Bill was also a vote to restrict South African access to our textile market at a level well below the level permitted in the bill.

The Administration recently negotiated a textile agreement with South Africa that is expected to lower South African imports to the United States from 82 percent to 41 percent of total textile imports. The Administration estimates that the new agreement will give South Africa 37 percent less access to U.S. markets than the Textile Bill recently considered by Congress.

The reason that the Administration had to negotiate was the strong, 139 percent surge of South African imports in 1985. The new agreement will prevent surges and covers items not subject to restrictions under the existing bilateral.

Sixty two percent of South African imports are yarns bought by the textile industry. Thirty eight percent is apparel. The retail industry has challenged the textile industry saying that it will cease buying apparel if the textile people will stop buying yarns. If the challenge is accepted, there will be virtually no textile imports from South Africa. Therefore, as a result of the recent negotiations by the Administration, my vote to sustain the veto of the Textile Bill was, in addition, a vote to restrict South African access to our markets.

Tax sales dip

Comparison of May, 1986 to May, 1985 net taxable sales slightly decreased in Wayne County by about 1 percent. It was about the same for the city of Wayne, down only .06 percent.

Looking at other areas, Dixon County increased its net taxable sales by 5.1 percent over May of 1985 and Cedar County's May totals were about 2 percent higher than the previous year.

Soon, children will be packing their books and heading back to classes.

The Wayne Police Department is, for the 19th year, conducting its Pedestrian Safety School for kindergarten children — this year under the direction of Patrolman Robert McLean.

This service is important to the safety of young children and should be continued. The police department should be commended for showing its concern.

The school, which lasts for approximately an hour, will include the proper method of crossing streets, crossing streets with stop signs or crossing streets with traffic signals — things that young children should know.

Why the urgency here? Because children returning to school are more vulnerable to traffic accidents than at any other time of the year. That's why.

Young people tend to forget good pedestrian habits during the summer months and do not have the benefit of renewed safety emphasis by teachers during the first few days of the new school year, says a spokesperson for AAA of Nebraska. Physical limitations of children, such as height, hinder the ability of children to practice safe pedestrian rules.

They can be handicapped by their lack of judgment of speed and distance of moving objects.

Last year, 221 children under the age of 15 were injured as a result of a pedestrian accident on Nebraska roadways. That is up from the 203 reported the previous year.

AAA advises motorists and parents encourage the following of these safety rules:

- Review safe walking rules with your children and map out the safest walking route to school.
- Drive children to school only when it's necessary to alleviate traffic congestion in the school zones.
- Motorists should always observe the reduced speed limits posted in many school and park areas.
- Watch for children riding bicycles, and don't be afraid to use the horn to warn them you are near.
- Stop for school buses that have halted to load or unload children; remain stopped until the children are safely across the street and the bus is in motion again. It's the law.
- And parents should walk to and from school with their children several to make sure they know and practice traffic rules.

A dry run in the living room is no substitute for training in the street.

PAC spending grows

Limit special interest contributions

In a moment in U.S. Senate history, Oklahoma Senator David Boren won a hard fought victory today when his amendment to limit the amount of special interest money going into congressional campaigns was passed on a 69-30 vote.

Action on the Boren amendment marked the first time since 1977 that the U.S. Senate has voted on a campaign finance reform measure. A bill to limit special interest campaign contributions was first introduced by Boren during 1979, his initial year in the Senate.

Boren, one of only three Senators who does not accept special interest Political Action Committee (PAC) contributions, said, "This vote is a great victory for the people. We now have campaign finance reform firmly on the national agenda for the first time in nearly a decade. This strong vote shows that we have the support of the people at the grassroots and the momentum needed to secure final passage of this much-needed reform."

During Senate debate, Boren told his colleagues, "We're being pounded by a tidal wave of special interest money. How long are we going to wait before we do something about it? We must not allow the high positions of public trust in our government to be put on the auction block!"

BOREN CITED figures showing that in less than 10 years PAC spending grew from $8 million to over $104 million in the 1984 elections. While contributions by PACs have increased, the percentage of campaign funding provided by individual donations of less than $100 has been cut by half, signaling danger to our system of grassroots democracy, he said. In addition, 98 members of Congress got more than half their campaign money from PACs in 1982, while 163 members were in that category in 1984.

The Senator added that the growth in available PAC funds has contributed to a sharp increase in the price of being elected. Successful Senate candidates in 1976 spent an average of $600,000 but the average winner in 1984 spent $2.9 million.

While Boren's amendment, attached to an unrelated bill on radioactive waste, gained passage today, it still faces additional hurdles. The bill to which it is attached, S. 655, remains on the Senate calendar and must be brought back to the floor for a final vote this fall. At that time it could be subject to additional amendments.

It must also be passed by the House of Representatives where an identical bill has been introduced by Oklahoma Congressman Mike Synar.

"Today's upset victory is an important first step. We have won the battle on our amendment and we now must keep pushing on to see campaign finance reform passed and enacted into law," Boren said.

BOREN'S amendment was co-sponsored by a bipartisan group of 17 Senators including Barry Goldwater, R-AZ and John Stennis, D-MS.

It would limit PAC contributions to House candidates to $100,000 per election cycle and to an amount varying with the state's population for Senate candidates, with a low of $175,000 and an overall cap of $750,000. The current PAC contribution limit per candidate would be lowered from $5,000 to $3,000 and the individual limit per candidate increased from $1,000 to $1,500.

Odometer fraud evident in Nebraska

By Melvin Paul
Nebraskans are getting ripped off every year by buying cars that have seen more of the road than their odometers indicate.

Four years ago investigators estimated that about 5,000 vehicles whose odometers have been rolled back were being sold within Nebraska each year.

Times haven't changed. That figure is accurate today, said Steven Moeller, an assistant attorney general who heads the Motor Vehicle Fraud unit of the Nebraska Attorney General's office.

And odometer fraud means money lost for car buyers. The consumer is cheated out of an average $1,000 per vehicle, Moeller said.

A 1984 Ford club wagon lost 50,000 miles in just a few days before being sold in Nebraska. The car went into a Denver auto auction in October 1985 with odometer readings of about 79,000. Several weeks later it sold in Nebraska with odometer readings of about 28,760.

A 1984 Buick that came through the Denver auction in November 1985 with 29,167 miles was sold in Nebraska several days later with an odometer reading of 29,097.

Both cars came through Auto Brokers, a Scottsbluff used car dealership. This year the Nebraska Motor Vehicle Industry Licensing Board permanently revoked the dealership license after investigators documented almost a dozen cases of odometer fraud.

IN LATE JUNE the Scottsbluff County Attorney's office, charge car salesman Dennis Carroll with six criminal counts, all connected to odometer fraud. That arrest came out of an investigation in South Dakota which led to the Scottsbluff area, said Douglas Warner, deputy county attorney. Though consumers should be cautious, they should also remember that most car dealers are not crooks, says Bill Edwards, director of the state's Motor Vehicle Industry Licensing Board.

Those few dealers who practice odometer fraud on a large scale usually use a complicated system that makes it difficult for the average person to trace ownership. They often switch the title back and forth among several people so the change in the odometer figure on paper is difficult to detect.

One of Moeller's jobs is to help consumers who believe they have been victimized by odometer fraud. "This is my top priority. This is the reason I'm here," said Moeller, whose Lincoln office address is PO Box 9406, Lincoln, NE 68509.

AND MOELLER listed several steps consumers can take to avoid being cheated by odometer fraud. — Look at all the service stickers on the door post and engine compartment plus documents associated with the car to make sure there are no discrepancies. For example, a sticker indicating an oil change at 70,000 miles and an odometer reading of 40,000 miles would be a clue that something is amiss.

— Ask the salesperson for the name of the previous owner and verify mileage and condition of the car with that owner.

— Take extra precautions if the car has been owned by a rental or leasing company. Federal statistics show that 90 percent of all leased vehicles have their odometers rolled and have problems with altered titles.

— Have the car checked by a qualified mechanic, someone who will notice if there is more wear on car parts than the mileage reading would indicate.

— Examine the odometer disclosure statements and title documents carefully and never sign a statement where the mileage figure is left blank.

Many Thanks

To the people of Wayne
I want to thank everyone who helped out in any way with the State Legion Baseball Tournament, that was held here the past week. I won't even try and name each of you, because I'm sure I would miss some of you.

The Tournament was a success because of all the work that was done by you, the people of Wayne.

There were a lot of good comments about our community, from the visiting fans. A very special thanks to Hank Overlin and Paul Otte for their help. Thanks again.

Redeemer LCW circles view church paraments

Redeemer Lutheran Church circles met together on Aug. 13. Hostesses were Elfrieda Vahkamp, Esther Gathje, Doris Lutt and Emma Foote.

Irene Reibold greeted the 36 women and the Rev. Daniel Monson. Guests were recognized and included Mrs. Maxon and Mrs. Ellen Johnson of Laurel, Mrs. Hazel James and Mrs. Mardeil Brasch of Wayne, and Annette Hellmers of Wisner.

The group sang "Beautiful Savior," followed with the reading of the 23rd Psalm.

LEONA HAGEMANN and Mardell Brasch presented the program which was a showing and explanation of the church paraments. They were assisted by Viola Meyer and Irene Reibold.

The women represent the Altar Guild whose duties include taking care of the paraments and placing the proper paraments for each Sunday's worship service.

The paraments have been designed and constructed by Leona Hagemann, Mardell Brasch and Joann Ostrander, assisted by Pastor and Mrs. Monson and others.

It was noted that money to purchase materials has come from memorial gifts to the church.

The program closed with the offering and Lord's Prayer.

BLANCHE BACKSTROM, LCW president, conducted a brief business meeting. Audrey Grone read minutes of the July Dorcas Circle meeting. Several thank you notes also were read.

Plans were made to send personal notes to all women of the congregation inviting them to attend circle meetings in October.

The LCW unit convention will be held at First Lutheran Church in Kearney on Oct. 6. Any members wishing to serve as delegate, alternate, or attend as a visitor should contact Blanche Backstrom.

REDEEMER LCW will hold a general meeting on Sept. 10 at 7:30 p.m. at the church, hosted by Martha Circle. Election of general secretary and treasurer will be held at that time.

Steve Schumacher will be the guest speaker.

Family reunions held in area towns

Hamm-Wooden

Forty-three persons were present for a Hamm-Wooden reunion on Aug. 17 at Bressler Park in Wayne.

Receiving prizes were Amy Hancock, youngest girl; Michael Lind say, youngest boy; George Johnston, oldest man; Vergie Sandage, oldest woman; Sharon Hamm, most loose change; Dwayne Hamm, biggest wedding ring; Muriel Hamm, biggest earrings; Karen Wade, brightest clothes; Derald Hamm, early bird; and Leona Graves, attending from the furthest distance.

The 1987 reunion will be held the third Sunday in August in Wayne's East Park. There will not be a white elephant sale.

Rohlf reunion

The 33rd annual Rohlf reunion was held Aug. 17 in the Winside park. Hosting the event, which began with a noon cooperative dinner, were the families of the late John Rohlf.

There were approximately 60 persons attending, representing 22 families. Mrs. Ella Reinhardt had the most family members present.

Five births, two deaths and one marriage were reported since the last reunion. One family member, Darlin Rohlf, is in the Air Force stationed at Offutt Air Force Base in Omaha.

Gifts were presented to Edgar Marotz, the oldest man; Frieda Pfeiffer, the oldest woman; and Amber Renee Ritze, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ritze of Battle Creek, the youngest family member. Attending from the furthest distances were the Rev. and Mrs. Doug Toepel of Lincoln, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Rohlf of Omaha and Mrs. Joan Wilson, Jennifer and Shawn of Los Alamos, N. M.

Other family members were from Wayne, Hoskins, Battle Creek, Norfolk and Winside.

LeNell Zofka was in charge of games during the afternoon. The birthdays of B. J. Woehler and Chester Marotz also were observed.

The families of Mrs. Frieda Pfeiffer will host the 1987 reunion.

Tullberg reunion

Thirty-two members of the late Axel and Sigrid Tullberg family met for a reunion on Aug. 10 at the Donna Tullberg home in Wakefield.

Next year's reunion will be July 12 in the Wakefield city park. Linda Granfield and Diane Row are in charge of organizing the reunion and obtaining information for a family book.

Wagner-Miller

Descendants of the late Jacob and Elizabeth Wagner and Jacob and Elizabeth Miller gathered for their annual reunion on Aug. 10 at Ta Ha Zouka Park in Norfolk.

A total of 119 family members were present from Elmhurst, Ill.; Gainesville, Ga.; Santa Cruz, Calif.; Wichita, Kan.; Des Moines, Iowa; Norfolk, Hoskins, Winside, Omaha, Tilden, Meadow Grove, Fremont, Grand Island and Columbus.

Mrs. Marie Wagner, 87, of Hoskins was the oldest attending. The youngest were six-week-old Eric Roberts, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Roberts of Norfolk, and seven-week-old Edwin-Bessard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Bossard of Tilden.

Traveling the furthest distances were Robert Wagner of Santa Cruz, Calif. and Mr. and Mrs. Darvin Puls of Gainesville, Ga.

The 1987 reunion will be held the second Sunday in August at the same location.

Wakefield church hosting Sunday school convention

A recently released film, entitled "The Angel of Sardiis," will open the 107th Dixon County Sunday School Convention on Friday, Aug. 22 at 8 p.m.

This year's convention will run Aug. 22-24 at the Wakefield Evangelical Covenant Church. The Saturday session will begin at 10:30 a.m. with coffee, rolls and bookshop browsing.

Workshops featuring elementary teaching tips and a series of workshops on "Teach From the Bible" will begin at 11 a.m. on Saturday. A potluck lunch will be served at noon, followed with afternoon workshops from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m.

Featured during the 8 p.m. service on Sunday evening will be the Rev. David Jenkins, interim director of Christian education at Grace College of the Bible, Omaha.

Chairman of this year's Sunday School Convention is Curtis Armstrong of Ponca.

policy on weddings

The Wayne Herald welcomes news accounts and photographs of weddings involving families living in the Wayne area.

We feel there is widespread interest in local and area weddings and are happy to make space available for their publication.

Because our readers are interested in current news, we ask that all weddings and photographs offered for publication be to our office within 10 days after the date of the ceremony. Information submitted with a picture after that deadline will not be carried as a story but will be used in a outline underneath the picture. Wedding pictures submitted after the story appears in the paper must be in our office within three weeks after the ceremony.

Medicines for Lungs

Lung problems are common and include bronchitis, asthma, and emphysema as well as the common cold. Because the lungs are exposed to the external environment as well as the blood stream, medicines used to care for lung problems can be given by several routes.

Inhalation: One of the fastest and most effective ways to get medicines to the lungs is through inhalation. Metered-dose aerosols, hand-held nebulizers, and nebulizers attached to compressors for home and hospital use have been developed for this purpose.

By Mouth: Medicines taken by mouth as tablets, capsules, liquids, and granules are absorbed through the intestines into the blood stream and travel to the lungs in the blood where they are released into lung tissues.

Injection: Medicines injected into muscle, directly into the veins, or beneath the layers of skin travel to the lungs in the blood stream — usually much faster than when taken by mouth.

Rectal Route: Medicine in solutions or suppositories given via the rectum enters the blood stream and travels to the lungs. Upset stomach may sometimes be avoided with this route of administration.

Mendoza's chances are looking pretty good

Former All-American and Wayne State football star Ruben Mendoza is impressing the Green Bay brass. He's impressing them so much, in fact, that he's drawing praise from head coach Forest Gregg.

In a press conference to the Green Bay and Milwaukee Press earlier this week, Gregg said, "We moved Mendoza from tackle to guard...and I might add that he's doing well there."

Mendoza made Green Bay's latest cut. The team is now down to 60 players, not including five United States Football League (USFL) players and tight end Dan Ross, whom the Packers acquired Tuesday from Seattle. Players from the USFL have a two-week exemption period.

The switching of Mendoza to a different position rather than cutting him combined with Gregg's praise leaves only an optimistic feeling that Mendoza will make Green Bay's final 45 man roster.

Keep up the good work Ruben!

Speaking of football, I'd be willing to bet Wayne State head coach Pete Chapman was drooping when CSIC coaches picked the Wildcats to finish last in the conference this year.

That takes a lot of pressure off Chapman's young squad, and makes each victory that much more impressive.

As usual, Wayne State has a rugged schedule this season, including the season opener with Morningside Sept. 6 and the finale Nov. 15 at the Metrodome Classic in Minneapolis, Minn.

But CSIC opponents that think they can already go ahead and mark a W by the Wayne State game had better think again.

The 1986 Wildcats are admittedly untested, but they're also talented.

Hank Overin called the Class B State American Junior Legion Baseball Tournament at Overin Field last week one of the best tournaments he has ever participated in.

That's quite a mouthful, considering Overin has coached Junior Legion and Midget baseball teams for the past 28 years. But the tourney did go quite well, and it received many compliments in addition to Overin's.

When Mr. Schoenhofar, father of Beatrice right fielder Alan Schoenhofar, stopped into the Wayne Herald to purchase a paper last week, he raved about how well the tournament was conducted and said he was most impressed with Wayne's hospitality.

Most of the Legion coaches were also impressed with the tourney and several professional coaches told Overin that the field was in better shape than some minor league parks.

The tournament was, indeed, a success. And John Melena, Paul Ote, Overin and all others that helped during the seven-day event deserve praise for their efforts.

Speaking of Overin, the Wayne Herald (actually, the Wayne Herald's sports editor) accidentally misquoted him last week.

The Wayne Herald quoted Overin as saying this year's Junior Legion baseball team was one of the most talented squads he has ever coached. But that wasn't exactly true.

What Overin actually said was this year's team had several players that could've played with some of the more talented teams he's coached in the past.

That's still an honor, considering Overin has coached in 17 Midget or Junior Legion state tournaments, and has coached seven state championship teams.

Second consecutive championship for Reeg

Reeg captures 'Club' title

Ken Dahl was probably hoping for a finish similar to the one Bob Tway experienced last week during the PGA Championships.

Tway holed out from the bunker on the final hole to claim the title over Greg Norman. And Dahl faced a similar task on the last hole Sunday during the Wayne Golf and Country Club Tournament.

With defending champion Bob Reeg owning a three stroke lead, Dahl needed to sink a difficult 20-foot putt which was positioned above the 18th cup in order to tie.

But Dahl's final attempt missed, and Reeg responded by sinking a 10-footer to claim the championship with a 147, three strokes better than Dahl.

The first day (Saturday) was, perhaps, Reeg's key to the victory as he fired a 71-for-a one stroke lead over Rod Dahl (Ken's son) and a four stroke advantage over Ken.

During Sunday, Reeg said he led by three strokes over most of the way until Ken Dahl cut the lead to two with six holes remaining.

"Kenny cut the lead to two with about six holes left. Then we both bogeyed the last two holes. He could've tied if he would've made the long 20-footer and I would've missed, and he made a good run at it, but I made my 10-footer anyway," he said.

Reeg described his play as inconsistent, and mentioned a bizarre first on Saturday to reinforce his point.

"The first day I finished with an eagle, then double-bogeyed and then birdied," he chuckled. "That's how it went for me. There really wasn't any one part of my game that stood out."

But although Reeg finished inconsistently on Saturday, he took a big step towards the title because Dahl finished Saturday's play with a triple bogey.

Rod Dahl finished one stroke behind his father for third place, while Jim Lindau placed fourth with a 154.

Don Koeber captured the Presidential Flight with a 161, while Grant Ellingson trimmed Chuck Surber in a tie-breaker to capture the First Flight with a 163.

Robb Reeg leads Nebraska past Kansas golfers

LAWRENCE, KAN. — Robb Reeg of Wayne led Nebraska to a 10-6 victory over Kansas in Junior Cup golf match play here at the Alvarado Country Club Aug. 11-13.

Nebraska won five of eight matches. In addition to Reeg, Corey Fletcher of Lincoln, Jason Peterson of Oakland, Craig Loseke of Columbus and Bryon Britain of Hastings all defeated their Kansas opponents in singles match play on the final day of competition.

Reeg was three holes up with one to finish against Jeff Witse of Chanute, Kan., on the final day.

Dave Ellis of Wayne, who also competed at the event, was down five holes with four to go against Danny Langer of Columbus, Kan.

The golfers participated in 36 holes on the first day of competition, including 18 holes of two man best ball and 18 holes of two man alternate shots.

Reeg and Ellis teamed to win the 18-hole alternate shot match, and Reeg joined John Roper of Lincoln to win their match in the two man best ball.

The 36 holes played on opening day took 13 hours to complete because of rain, according to Reeg.

"I look us 13 hours to finish the first day because it rained so much. It didn't let up, so we went ahead and played in pouring rain," he said.

Reeg, who is the son Bill and Betty Reeg, earned the right to compete in the tourney by placing seventh at the State Junior Golf Tournament at the Elks Country Club in Columbus July 9-11. The top eight golfers qualified for the tourney. Ellis was a third alternate after the tourney in Columbus.

SANDY DOLEZAL of PBR rounds first base after singling against the Rusty Nail Tuesday night. PBR lost to Rusty Nail 10-4, but came back to claim an 11-5 victory over Hardee's to stay alive in the Wayne Women's Softball League tournament.

4th Jug reaches championship round with perfect 3-0 mark

The 4th Jug is "in the driver's seat" after two days of the Wayne Women's Softball League Tournament.

The 4th Jug has entered the championship round with a perfect 3-0 record and can finish no lower than second place.

Steler's Fun 'N Games will play PBR Wednesday night at 6 p.m. and the winner will then play the Rusty Nail at 7:30 p.m. The winner of the 7:30 p.m. game will face the 4th Jug for the title at 6 p.m. Thursday night. Should the 4th Jug lose the first game played Thursday, another game will be played at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

After knocking off Hardee's and Steler's Fun 'N Games in the opening two rounds Monday night, the 4th Jug downed the Rusty Nail 6-2 Tuesday night to reach the finals.

In other games played Tuesday, the Rusty Nail beat PBR 10-4, Steler's Fun 'N Games trimmed R&W Construction 8-6 and PBR thumped Hardee's 11-5.

The Rusty Nail, seeded first in the tourney, still has the best overall league record at 14-3. The 4th Jug is now 13-4, while Steler's Fun 'N Games is 12-5 and PBR is 9-8.

R&W Construction, which entered the tournament with an 8-6 record, finished the season with the only other .500 or better record at 9-8.

Other final league records include: Lull 'N Sons, 5-11; Hardee's, 5-11; and Bill's GW, 0-16.

Tim Book

Tim Book wins Games wrestling championship

Tim Book, a 1985 graduate of Wayne High School, won the 190-200 pound wrestling division in the 19-25 year old age bracket at the Cornhusker State Games in Lincoln July 18-20.

Book defeated Paul Rump of Omaha 5-4 for the championship. Book downed David Macholan of Lincoln 14-5 in the opening round before beating Larry Blackwell of Plattsmouth, 3-0, in the semifinals.

It was the second time the 19-year-old grappler won a wrestling title at the Games. Last year, Book won the High School Division championship.

Book also wrestles and plays football at Buena Vista (BV) College at Storm Lake, Iowa. Last season, Book posted a 5-5 mark at 190 pounds and started at center on the BV football squad. Buena Vista placed third in the nation in wrestling in Division III, which was the highest finish ever by any private school in Division III.

Book, who is the son of Gary and Jahe Book, also excelled in athletics during his high school years and was named to the Wayne Herald All-Area football and wrestling teams twice. He was also a two-time state qualifier in wrestling.

Book is majoring in banking finance/marketing at BV.

Dodge County Baseball League has post season banquet

SNYDER — The Dodge County Baseball League's annual post season supper meeting was held here Monday at Adie's.

The season's individual and team statistics were reviewed, and trophies were handed out for several of the best performances.

League president Deibert Elkmoer of Dodge, and secretary-treasurer Dave Heywood of Snyder presented the league championship trophy to West Point baseball commissioner Tom McMahon. West Point captured the regular season file with a 16-3 record.

Play-off champion Arlington was also awarded a trophy. Arlington whipped West Point and Wakefield enroute to the tournament title.

Arlington players Pat Roll and Ed Menking accepted the trophy on behalf of the team.

Other trophy recipients were batting champion Doug Halley of Columbus, who finished the season with a .438 average, and Arlington's Dan Hilgenkamp, who wound up the top pitcher with an earned run average of 2.72.

During other business, the league officers placed the proposed rule of a 15-run rule after five innings on the agenda for a future meeting before next season.

Wayne State College plans to focus on enthusiasm during orientation Enthusiasm for the college is the focus of this year's revamped orientation for new students at Wayne State College of Nebraska.

Curt Frye, associate dean of students and organizer of the orientation program, said the purpose for a college orientation is to give new students — freshmen and transfers — an intensive introduction to academics, student life and personal development.

This year's program, Aug. 23-25 (Saturday-Monday), will involve the college's eight academic divisions more than in the past. Each division will give a presentation on its general education requirements and the job prospects within its majors.

"By introducing the students to all of the divisions, they will get an overview of the whole college and not just that of their major," Frye said.

Classes fully begin at Wayne State on Aug. 26.

Frye said he expects 400 students to attend orientation, which is a slightly higher number than last year's attendance. The new students will be divided into 36 small groups, which will give them a better chance for interaction than did last year's 24 groups.

THERE ARE ALSO many activities planned to let all of the students get acquainted in a large group. Activities include a faculty and student picnic and dances at some of the residence halls. The Saturday evening dances will give the students a chance to see the dormitories and meet more students, Frye said.

A "beach party" of swimming and dancing is planned at the Carlson Natatorium swimming pool Sunday evening. Monday's events include the freshman olympics, an all-campus picnic and a big pep rally to meet with the Wildcat football and volleyball team.

Students will also get to view an old and humorous — Wayne State promotional film and hear about famous Wayne State graduates.

Orientation is not all fun and games.

Students will be introduced to academics, the college itself and student life. There will be informative sessions designed to help students make informed choices on college relationships, choosing a major, living with differences, and substances and their abuse.

There will be seminars on better study skills, goal setting, time management and career planning. The students will be introduced to the library, the Teaching Learning Center and the available student services.

Names circulate for ballot

by Chuck Hackenmiller

As of Tuesday evening, three petitions are currently circulating to place three names on the November general election ballot.

Two of the petition papers, taken out by Phil Kloster of Wayne and Dick Manley, also of Wayne, are being circulated to fill two positions on the Wayne Airport Authority Board.

Currently, nobody has filed for the airport authority board vacancies.

The remaining petition is currently being circulated to place Glenn L. Wiseman of Wayne on the November general election ballot to oppose incumbent Robert Sheckler, also of Wayne, as county superintendent in Wayne County.

Sheckler ran unopposed in the May primary, gathering in 1,177 votes.

Wiseman received his bachelor of science in education and his master of science in education at Kearney State College, continuing his graduate work at the University of Nebraska and Kearney State.

His experience includes: nine years of teaching, supervisory and administrative, at North Platte; six years as county superintendent of school districts in Lincoln County, North Platte; seven years as superintendent of schools in Hershey, Nebraska; four years as director of counseling at Central Technical Community College in Hastings; and seven years as administrative assistant for personnel, research and federal programs, Central Technical Community College Area Office in Grand Island.

He moved to Wayne in 1976.

Wayne County Clerk Orgetta Morris said the deadline for returning the petitions is Aug. 26.

Winside School District reduces 1986-87 budget

by Chuck Hackenmiller

Winside School District reduced its 1986-87 school year budget from the previous year after passing the budget Monday evening.

There will be a decrease in tax askings.

The 1986-87 school budget shows the projected cash balance (on Sept. 1, 1986), plus the projected non-tax income will bring in available revenue of $582,944.

Winside School District's budget calls for $978,129 in school district needs, which is $17,277 less than the previous school year's budget.

General fund tax askings is established at $565,236, an increase of about $23,800 from the previous year.

However, a proposed decrease of $24,111 was recorded in the "bond tax" requirement, bringing the total general fund and bond tax requirements to $610,181 (which includes the 1 percent collection fee), which is $303 less than the previous school year.

Decreases were recorded in instructional services; support services for pupils, general administration, school administration, operation of the plant, and pupil transportation.

Expenditures were increased slightly in the areas of support services for instructional staff and support services for business operations.

Pleads innocent

Kurt Novack of Wayne, who is accused in the slaying of former Delmont, S. D. Police Chief Jerry Pilhal, has pleaded innocent to charges of first-degree murder and first-degree manslaughter.

A trial for Novack, 27, has been set for Oct. 14 in Yankton, S. D.

Novack is charged in the June 1985 death of Pilhal, 67.

Lewis Ashker, 44, of Wayne, was convicted in June of first-degree murder in Pilhal's death. He is presently serving a life sentence.

Use microwave for testing forage moisture

A microwave oven can give a quick, accurate check on forage moisture. The method works well on grasses and legumes chopped for silage or hay. With extra effort a good test can be made on long windrowed forage. The testing process takes about 15 minutes.

If forage is not chopped during harvest, first collect a representative sample of the forage crop. This requires sampling from several locations of windrowed forage. Chop this into 2-to-3 inch lengths with heavy shears. Previously chopped forage could be tested as is.

Place a microwave-safe ceramic plate or heavy paper plate, preferably on a gram scale. Record the weight of the empty plate. Then weigh out 100 grams of fresh, chopped forage and spread it evenly on the plate. The accuracy of this test depends on the quality of the scale and the accuracy of the weights record ed.

Fill an 8-ounce measuring glass with water to the three-quarter level and place it on a back corner of the microwave to prevent the forage from charring and to protect the oven.

PUT THE forage plate in the oven. For haylage (50 percent to 70 percent moisture content) allow four minutes for drying; for ready-to-rake hay (85 percent to 40 percent) or baled hay (20 percent to 25 percent) allow two minutes.

Remove the plate, weigh it, and record the weight. Mix the forage, rotate the plate and return it to the microwave. Heat haylage and additional minute, or hay an additional 30 seconds. Remove the plate, weigh again, and record.

Continue this drying, mixing, and weighing procedure until the forage weight does not decrease by more than 1 gram, at which point you have reached the dry weight. If the forage starts to char or burn before this stage, use the last recorded weight.

To figure the moisture content, subtract the final dry weight from the beginning fresh weight of the forage. Divide this difference by the beginning fresh weight and multiply by 100.

Vegetables studied

According to the results of a recently completed survey by the Nebraska Food Processing Center and the Department of Economic Development (DED), approximately $220 million in fresh, processed vegetables are imported into Nebraska each year.

The study, funded by the Nebraska Department of Economic Development and conducted by Dr. Robert O'Keefe of the UNL Food Processing Center, surveyed nearly 51,000 Nebraska farm operators to determine the distribution and magnitude of vegetable production in Nebraska and the type of marketing systems that were being used for the various crops. According to Dr. O'Keefe, an estimated 65 percent of these crops and products could be produced within the state of Nebraska.

Results indicate that of the over 3200 survey forms returned 47 percent of the farm operators are growing grow vegetables in the home garden only. Another 7.9 percent grow vegetables for direct and/or wholesale markets in addition to their own home use, but that an additional 21.0 percent produced vegetables for either direct and/or wholesale commercial markets. Approximately 24 percent of the returned survey forms were from operators who did not produce a product in any of the vegetable or alternative crops listed.

THE STUDY ALSO included estimates by Dr. James Robb from the Panhandle Research and Extension Center of per acre costs for production of irrigated Corn, Dry Beans, Potatoes, Onions, and Carrots, as well as other information on Sweet Corn, Vine Crops, Peas, Snap Beans, and Lima Beans, and other crops listed by respondents to the survey.

"There is a growing interest and need in Nebraska to find new agricultural markets," said Stu Miller, deputy director of DED. "Now with the advanced capabilities of the Food Processing Center, combined with efforts of the Department of Economic Development and the Department of Agriculture, we have the ability to capitalize on these markets and to diversify our agricultural economy."

The report, entitled "Vegetable Production, Processing and Marketing in Nebraska," is available from the Department of Economic Development on request. For technical information, contact Dr. Robert O'Keefe, UNL Panhandle Research and Extension Center, Scottsbluff, NE (308) 632-1240.

ETV special depicts farm family anguish

The farm crisis in America is seen through the eyes of an auctioneer whose job it is to sell the possessions of bankrupt farmers in "For Auction: An America Here," airing Wednesday, August 27, at 9 p.m. on the statewide Nebraska ETV Network.

The hour long program follows the travels of Ord, Nebraska farm auctioneer Leo Wolf — the man many farmers call when they are near their financial end, when the loans are in default and foreclosure is imminent. Wolf travels to the homes of farmers to help them assess the value of their property. Later he presides over the auction, doing his best to insure that the farmers get as much money as possible.

One Nebraska farm family, Ray and Shirley Kolbo of Callaway,

Nebraska, contacted Wolf to auction off their possessions to pay off a large debt. "For Auction: An America Here" depicts the anguish and frustration facing farm families in such a situation: Shirley Kolbo tearfully watches her family belongings sold; her husband Ray watches in agony as his tractor is purchased for much less than it is worth.

For farm families like the Kolbos, selling their land and property is more than a loss of material items — it is a loss of a lifestyle and a means of support.

Wolf knows that many farmers see him as "the executioner," but he is no stranger to the plight of farmers. When he was nine years old, Wolf watched his father auction off their own farm

Removing old grain in storage key to avoiding loss

The ability to move substantial amounts of old grain from both commercial and on-farm storage to other locations as soon as possible will determine whether Nebraska grain producers lose millions of dollars as a result of having to store an excessive amount of new crop grain on the ground for a lengthy period.

Lynn Lutgen, University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension economist, said, "in a nutshell, feed grain stored on the ground, especially in September under early harvest conditions, runs a big risk of deteriorating in quality and becoming subject to severe discounts on the cash market. Grain piled on the ground also is not eligible for the farm program 9-month loan figure, which would be as much as 63 cents more per bushel than a depressed cash price which might plummet to as low as $1.21 per bushel."

The key to avoiding an avalanche of grain ending up on the ground is to secure permission from the U.S. Department of Agriculture to move grain early from CCC (Commodity Credit Corporation) 9-month loan storage stocks to available terminal facilities, Lutgen said. This would allow country elevators and larger grain warehouses who have made arrangements for a place to put grain to make space available locally for some of the anticipated bumper crops of corn and grain sorghum, he explained. Early movement also would help alleviate problems for railroads in moving a mountain of grain expected to accumulate rapidly because of an early harvest — to begin as soon as the first week in September in some south central Nebraska counties if current weather conditions hold.

Early movement would simply mean that the government would allow grain in 9-month loan storage to be moved to pre-determined locations accepting grain for the 3-year reserve, Lutgen said. "There would be no added transportation costs, because the grain would have to be moved anyway," he said. "When the grain can be shifted immediately into the 3-year reserve.

ONE ARGUMENT MADE by some state farm groups for early movement is that in a number of cases a 9-month loan arrangement is actually for longer than nine months. For example, if a farmer put his 1985 grain into the 9-month reserve

As production drops

Cattle prices expected to rise

Lower beef production in the last half of 1986, coupled with reduced pork supplies, could lead to stronger cattle prices this fall, according to a University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension economist. Livestock marketing.

Al Wellman said beef production is expected to be lower than the comparable period of 1985 despite an increase in cow slaughter stemming from the dairy herd reduction program.

Guarded optimism regarding the effect of the supply side of the picture is based on two major USDA reports released recently. The quarterly 13-state cattle-on-feed report, which includes Nebraska, showed 8 percent fewer cattle in the nation's feedlots on July 1 than a year earlier, Wellman said. And the total inventory of cattle and calves on U.S. farms and ranches was estimated to be down 4 percent from a year earlier.

Cattle on feed were down from year-earlier levels in all of the major feeding states. Wellman said placements on feed and marketings from lots during the second quarter, ending in June, were both estimated to be about the same as in 1985.

The significance of the two reports, Wellman said, is the indication they provide of the number of cattle potentially available for placement into feedlots.

Highlights of the mid-year cattle inventory and cow-calf report:

- Cattle and calves on U.S. farms and ranches on July 1 were estimated at 112.2 million head. The nation's cow herd is continuing on a downward trend, with all cows and heifers that have calved estimated at 45 million head, down 3 percent from July 1, 1985.

- The 1986 calf crop is estimated at 40.1 million head, down 2 percent from a year ago.

- And young cattle not on feed nor held for herd replacement on July 1 were about 3 percent below a year earlier.

PROSPECTS FOR smaller beef production in the last half of 1986 compared with a year earlier reverses the situation that occurred during the first half of this year, Wellman pointed out.

Cattle slaughter was up about 4 percent during the first seven months of this year. Fed-cattle marketings were about the same as a year earlier during the April-June quarter, but cow slaughter increased by 23 percent. This resulted in an increase of 6 percent in total slaughter.

The substantial increase in cow slaughter during the second quarter was attributed to dairy cattle moving to slaughter under the dairy herd termination program, Wellman said.

Cattle producers have indicated plans to market 5 percent fewer fed cattle in the third quarter, ending in September, than a year earlier, he said.

Total third-quarter slaughter should be a little below last year, even though marketings of cows and other non-grainfed cattle likely will remain about 1985. Slaughter under the dairy herd termination program will taper off after August, Wellman predicted.

Expected lighter marketing weights of cattle on the average than in 1985 could result in third-quarter beef production being down about 3 percent. Fourth-quarter beef production also should be below that of a year earlier — possibly around 4 percent, Wellman said.

Pork supplies will be down 5 percent or more in both the third and fourth quarters compared to 1985. However, Wellman cautioned that reductions in both beef and pork supplies will be partly offset by larger supplies of turkey and broilers. Other factors influencing cattle prices will be retail pricing decisions and the amount of spread between retail and farm prices, the economist said.

Noting that prices on live cattle futures have risen strongly since mid-June, Wellman advised feeders to watch for opportunities to forward cattle prices. Pricing a portion of expected marketings is a way to deal with the price uncertainty in the market, when there is a chance to lock in some profit above costs, he concluded.

MYRTLE ANDERSON DISPLAYS the Nebraska Pioneer Farm Family Award she received during vesper services Aug. 10 at the Dixon County Fair grounds. The award is co-sponsored by Ak-Sar-Ben and the Nebraska Association of Fair Managers and recognizes farms which have been owned by the same family for 100 years or more. The Anderson homestead, located northeast of Wakefield, was purchased in 1886 by Peter Anderson. Myrtle Carlson and Velmer Anderson were married in 1925 and resided on the farm for 61 years before moving into Wakefield last fall. Velmer passed away this past April.

Large tomatoes

Melvin Russell of Wayne found a tomato in his garden that weighed 1 1/2 pounds and was 15" around. It was part of a cluster of tomatoes which had a total weight of 2 1/2 pounds.

Cattle on feed up

Nebraska cattle feeders had 4,370,000 cattle on feed on August 1, according to the Nebraska Agricultural Statistics Service. This inventory was up 10 percent from last year and up 18 percent from 1984. Fed cattle marketings for the month of July totaled 380,000, down 7 percent from the record high last year but 27 percent above July 1984. Placements of cattle into feedlots during July totaled 320,000 head. This was up 60 percent from last year, 52 percent above two years ago, and equal to the record high for the month set in 1980.

Feeder Association meeting

The annual fall Northeast Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association outlook meeting will be held Tuesday, August 26, 1986, at the Black Knight Steak House, Wayne, Nebraska. A social hour provided by Logan Ltd., Allen, Nebraska, will begin at 6:30 p.m. with dinner served at 7:30 p.m., followed by a program. All members, spouses and guests are invited to attend. Program speakers will include Jon Phillips, Financial Consultant, Shearson Lehman, Sioux City, Iowa and a representative from Monforts of Colorado. Speakers will outline marketing strategies for the upcoming year, and the current trends in developing brand name beef markets, respectively. For further information contact Roger Tremayne, Walthill, NE (846-5355).

the farmer's wife by pat meierhenry

Tonight (Saturday) I wish I were in Orlando for a wedding. The oldest daughter of my very best friend from Waco days is being married with her father officiating.

Marilyn lived 1/2 mile away and was six months younger. We started school together at Dist. 51 where Miss Ruth Winfield was in charge.

Miss Winfield had a thing about the use of the word "ain't." When anyone said it, they stood in a corner and repeated it over and over.

There was a pot belly stove, a crockery drinking fountain and outdoor bathrooms.

There was a very deep ditch which was good for snow forts. It was just a mile and a half away, so we often walked.

Marilyn and I shared everything. Complaints about brothers, dolls, bir thdays (we stayed overnight) and later, boy friends.

Sometimes, we had disagreements and yelled at each other and said we'll never ask her to stay over again. That usually lasted 24 hours. She had red hair and I have a temper, too.

We rode our bikes back and forth. We took piano lessons together. Marilyn is especially accomplished on the organ, which she studied in college. She used to be my accompanist, and we were a "dynamic duo" for weddings.

She couldn't be at our wedding, but I was one of her bridesmaids. Now her daughter is married and the miles keep us from attendance.

I'VE BEEN thinking of those days at Waco all evening, probably because I've been reading Lake Wobegone Days, by Garrison Keillor.

I've never heard this story teller on Prairie Home Companion, but I've read so much about him, I feel I should know him. Everyone who grew up in a small town knows him. We have the same memories — he's just made a living talking about them.

Lake Wobegone is a Norwegian community in Minnesota, just as Waco is a German community in Nebraska.

I've also been reading a biography about a famous citizen from Superior, Nebraska. The name of the book is "Evelene, the Troubleshooter was a Lady," and it's all about Evelene Brodstone, who was a highly paid director of Vestey Cold Storage of London in the early 1900's, when women didn't hold corporate positions.

THE BOOK belongs to a patient who is from Superior, also. Her father had a greenhouse there and she remembers serving tea to Evelene and her friend, Willa Cather, from Red Cloud.

I find it fascinating to listen to these reminiscences. Her husband was the son of Gov. Aldrich, one of Nebraska's early governors.

I read the other day that Kent Pavelka's grandmother was the inspiration for one of Cather's characters. He's from Wilbur, a Czech community that just celebrated its 25th Czech Days celebration.

I guess it just points out that we in Nebraska are just a couple of generations removed from our history. And once in a while, it's fun to stop and remember it. And perhaps tell them to our children while we have the opportunity.

on Nov. 5, 1985, it will mature on Aug. 31, or actually after 9 months, and 26 days. Because of difficulties with last year's harvest, a large volume of feed grain was put into the program during the first 30 days of November.

Following meetings with a number of elevators and grain dealers last week, Lutgen said, information has been provided to Nebraska Congressional delegation offices regarding the need for quick action by USDA's ASCS (Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service), which administers the farm program, the grain marketing specialist said.

"Denial of early movement of grain will create a massive and crippling bottleneck at harvest," he emphasized.

There is some space available in terminal elevators for transfer of old crop grain, he said, but these "safety valve" facilities are on a first-come first-served basis. "In all likelihood, these storage facilities will be filled before 'normal' maturity of 9-month loans on grain."

Many Nebraska elevators with no usable capacity to accommodate new crop grain, have requested shipping orders from CCC, Lutgen said.

However, issuance of CCC shipping orders "is running far behind," and many grain dealers are becoming discouraged regarding the possibility of getting any grain moved out before the first part of September.

WIDELY PUBLICIZED efforts by country elevators to increase capacity through construction of new storage will fall far short of providing required space for new grain, Lutgen said. Grain farmers also have feverishly been working on constructing new storage or renovating existing structures, Lutgen said, but also are expected to be short of space, especially in major grain producing counties.

While statistics are available for on-farm storage, the amount of grain in "private" stocks — grain not involved in reserve or loan program, is unknown, adding another troublesome ingredient to the mix, Lutgen said.

Nebraska is one of five states that account for 52 percent of U.S. off-farm grain storage capacity, Lutgen said. The state is fourth with 1.9 billion bushels capacity in both on- and off-farm locations.

Projected yields for all 1986 crops in the state run from a low figure of 1.15 billion bushels to a high of 1.25 billion bushels, Nebraska Statistical Reporting Service estimates are for total space needed, including the indicated Sept. 1 supply of 859 million bushels, to be from 2 billion-plus bushels on the low side, and as high as 2.1 billion bushels at the high projected yield.

Estimated total capacity — 3.2 billion farm and 702 million off-farm — must be discounted by a total of 10 percent of the off-farm figure or 70.2 million bushels, because elevators need 10 percent working room during the year, Lutgen pointed out.

"This would make total available storage space in the state 1.84 billion bushels, or a shortfall ranging from 169 million bushels to as much as 272 million bushels, depending on which 1986 grain yield scenario becomes a reality," he said.

ASSUMING IT COULD be transported and a home found for it, as an example, more than 150 million bushels of corn under loan/reserve that matures on, or before Sept. 1, could be moved to another location and would greatly alleviate the problem, Lutgen said.

"Every bushel that can be moved out and not put on the ground would mean money in the pocket for individual producers," Lutgen said.

The potential cost to producers who are forced to "dump" grain — having it piled on the ground, could reach as high as 63 cents a bushel — the difference between what an elevator could see its way clear to pay versus an average government loan price of $1.84 per bushel. He cited a risk discount of 23 cents a bushel if grain is dumped early in the fall, when temperatures are still high, versus an 8-cent discount if dumped in November. In either case, another 8 cents would be charged by the elevator for extra handling of grain on the ground.

Assuming little or no early movement, under the worst possible scenario — the high state yield figure and a loss of 63 cents a bushel through early dumping — the loss to farmers could be as high as $171,360,000. Under the lower yield figure and early dumping, it would be $106,470,000. Under the less severe scenario of dumping in November and being discounted 48 cents a bushel, statewide losses would be from $81 million plus under the low yield estimate to $130.5 million under the high yield estimate.

LOWER ELKHORN NATURAL RESOURCES DISTRICT

THREE LEGISLATIVE BILLS AND HOW THEY AFFECT NRD'S

Three bills passed by the 89th Unicameral have a major impact on the environment — LB 284, The Nebraska Chemigation Act; LB 474, The Erosion and Sediment Control Act; and LB 894, Special Groundwater Protection Areas. Here's a brief explanation of the bills and how they affect NRD's:

Chemigation is the application of pesticides and fertilizers directly through irrigation systems. After January 1, 1987, no person may apply chemicals through chemigation unless first obtaining an annual permit from the NRD where the well or diversion is located. The permit holder must be the owner or operator of the land. Permits are required for each injection location and the District will conduct periodic inspection to insure compliance.

Applications for permits will be reviewed by the NRD. An inspection conducted and permit approved or rejected within 45 days of receipt. Before approval, the chemigation system must have a check and vacuum relief valve in the irrigation pipe, an inspection port for the check valve in the irrigation pipe, an automatic low pressure drain between the check valve and irrigation pump, check valve in the chemical injection line and a simultaneous interlock device between the power system for the injection unit and irrigation pumping plant.

In addition, the person operating the equipment must be certified by the Department of Environmental Control.

The initial permit fee is $30.00. An annual renewal fee of $10.00 will also be charged.

Provisional permits may be issued from January 1, 1987, through September 30, 1987, if there isn't time to conduct an inspection before the 45 day deadline or if the applicant hasn't had time to meet the certification requirements. All inspections must be completed by January 1, 1988, and provisional permits can be revoked if the system does not have proper mechanical devices.

Emergency permits may be obtained by paying a $100 fee. All required mechanical devices must be in place and the applicator must be certified. An emergency permit is good for only 45 days and is revoked without a hearing in the event of a violation.

Signs providing notice that a field has been treated with chemicals in the irrigation water must be posted if the chemical labels require posting or the chemical is on the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide and Rodenticide Act restricted use list.

Fines will be levied for violations.

LB 474
This bill recognized that wind and water erosion and sediment deposits are serious state-wide problems resulting in water pollution and damage to domestic, agricultural, recreation, fish and wildlife resources.

The Director of Natural Resources in cooperation with the Natural Resources Commission, Department of Environmental Control, NRD's and other state and federal agencies, is responsible for developing and coordinating the state erosion and sediment control program. This program is subject to approval of the commission and has to be submitted to the Governor and Legislature. At least four public hearings are required prior to final approval of the program. Deadline for submission to the Governor and Legislature is January 1, 1987.

The program must include soil loss limits for the different types of soils in the state, state goals and a state strategy for reducing soil losses to acceptable levels, guidelines for establishing state and local priorities and identification of types of assistance provided by the state to the NRD's.

NRD's will have until July 1, 1987, to adopt a district program which must include soil loss limits, recommended erosion control and soil and water conservation. In addition, any county or municipality can adopt regulations governing erosion and sediment control within its boundaries.

Erosion in excess of a district's soil loss limits will be dealt with through a complaint system. Written and signed complaints can be filed with the NRD by any landowner being damaged by sediment, by any state agency or political subdivision whose roads or public facilities are damaged, by any state agency or political subdivision responsible for water quality maintenance or by the NRD.

The NRD and the owner/operator may enter a voluntary agreement to eliminate the erosion problem. In the absence of an agreement, after notice, inspection and hearing, if the NRD finds damage and excessive erosion, the Board must issue an order to the landowner requiring compliance.

If the problem is due to non-agricultural activities, the owner can either comply with soil loss limits or prevent sediment from leaving the property. Construction of houses, commercial and industrial developments are exempt.

On non-agricultural land, the offender has 3-15 days to begin work to remedy the situation and 45 days to complete it.

In agricultural cases, the owner/operator has six months to begin work and one year to complete it. Unless 90 percent cost share assistance for installation of permanent soil and water conservation practices is available, the offender cannot be required to implement permanent practices.

LB 894
This bill's purpose is to provide a means for stabilizing and reducing nitrate and other groundwater contamination through the designation of special groundwater quality protection areas. It authorizes the Director of Department of Environmental Control (DEC) to designate an area of the state as a special groundwater quality protection area if found that groundwater contamination is occurring or likely to occur. Contaminants are nitrates and/or other materials which enter the groundwater and causes degradation to the quality.

If point sources are causing the contamination, the DEC will exercise its authority to control the problem. If non-point sources are involved, the DEC will conduct a quality protection area if found that groundwater contamination is occurring or likely to occur. Contaminants are nitrates and/or other materials which enter the groundwater and causes degradation to the quality.

If point sources are causing the contamination, the DEC will exercise its authority to control the problem. If non-point sources are involved, the DEC will conduct a quality protection area if found that groundwater contamination is occurring or likely to occur. Contaminants are nitrates and/or other materials which enter the groundwater and causes degradation to the quality.

Further information on these new laws is available from the Lower Elkhorn NRD.

LOWER ELKHORN NRD DIRECTOR ELECTION
Petitions for the selection of Director from nine Lower Elkhorn NRD Districts and one Director-At-Large have been received by the Nebraska Natural Resources Commission. The Commission will certify the slate of candidates to the Secretary of State by August 25, 1986. These candidate names will appear on the Nov. 4, 1986 election ballot. The following are the list of candidates. Only one position, Director-At-Large, is contested.

Subdistrict I - William Meyer, Pierce; Subdistrict II - Ray Vogel, Glen Creek; Subdistrict III - Wendell Newcomb, Norfolk; Subdistrict IV - Glenn Olson, Wayne; Subdistrict V - Richard Alexander, Pilger; Subdistrict VI - David Fendley, Clark; Subdistrict VII - Alvin Suddell, Wakefield; Subdistrict VIII - Lloyd Hedges, Besemer; Subdistrict IX - Eldon Waddy, Oakdale; Director-At-Large - Fredrick Mann, Wayne and Gordon Soback, Madison.

Stress awareness topics discussed

It is back to school time and with everyone's changing schedules in mind, the Wayne Stress Prevention Center will also be making a change. Beginning the week of Aug. 25, we will no longer be holding our weekly sessions on Saturday mornings.

Instead, we will be offering you the same type of weekly meeting on Thursday nights at 7 p.m. in Room 202 at Wayne-Carroll High School. The first Thursday night sessions will be held on Aug. 28, one week from today. We hope this change fits more easily into many of your busy schedules.

This is the second installment of a three-part series dealing with the symptoms of stress. Last week, behavioral signs of stress were discussed. Included were use of alcohol and drugs, low energy, missing work and forgetfulness.

THIS WEEK, PHYSICAL symptoms of stress will be described. A physical sign of stress is any change that occurs in your body in reaction to pressure you feel. These bodily reactions are usually started from some internal change in one of your body's systems, but often end up as some external change that can be seen by others.

A physical change that many have experienced is high blood pressure. Stress often leads to what is called a "fight or flight" reaction. This is where your body produces a substance called adrenalin in an effort to prepare your body to face the stress-causing event.

Studies show that adrenalin works directly on your heart, causing it to speed up, which can increase your blood pressure. Many people suffering from an extended period of stress will also experience high blood pressure over the same stressful period. This has no positive benefits in the long run and does lead to heart disease and stroke.

THERE ARE OTHER bodily reactions that have been linked by research to high blood pressure. Headaches will often indicate stress is present. Sweating occurs all over the body, mostly under the arms, on the palms of the hands, and on the face of the stressed person.

A person's breathing will become shallow and fast. The person will put out more body oil, often in the form of a glow on the nose, cheek and forehead in the presence of a stressor.

Neck and shoulder pains often accompany an increase or decrease in stress. Increased urination will often be a sign that a stressful event is present. A person will become visibly restless and nervous sometimes to the point of pacing the room or shaking. A person will also experience sleeping difficulties under stress.

PERHAPS THE TWO most denied physical symptoms of stress are an upset stomach and sexual dysfunction. Ulcers develop due to an extended stressful period. These ulcers often cause stomach pains, gas and bad breath. Many stomach pains are not ulcer-related, but are caused by stress. Any stomach pain is a sign that your system is not working normally.

Sexual problems are normally a temporary physical reaction to a stressful event. Unfortunately, they also increase the level of stress you feel. Often times a person will not look for the stress-causing event that creates the sexual problem and will dismiss the problem as something that "just happened."

If you are interested in more information, would like us to address your group, or would just like to talk to someone, come to see us at our weekly sessions or contact either of us at 375-5289 or 375-2420. We will meet this Saturday at 10 a.m. at Wayne-Carroll High School and then again next Thursday night, Aug. 28 at 7 p.m.

The Wayne Stress Prevention Center is sponsored by the Providence Medical Center Foundation.

Dixon County Fair highlights
