THE WAYNE HERALD

City receives Diplomat award

by Chuck Hackenmiller

The City of Wayne received a special honor Friday evening as community representatives accepted the "Outstanding Community Award" during the annual Nebraska Diplomats Banquet in Lincoln.

Governor Robert Kerrey presented the awards to representatives of Wayne and to several other Diplomats during the annual banquet.

The Outstanding Community Award, which was presented to both Wayne and Columbus, goes to communities that "have done an outstanding job in the areas of industrial and economic development."

Rich Stites of the Nebraska Department of Economic Development said the cities receive awards through nominations from the "Diplomats themselves."

Stites said the Diplomats consists of about 250 Nebraska volunteer businessmen and industrialists. "They are considered the volunteer extension of the Department of Economic Development," said Stites. He said the primary function of the Diplomats is recruiting new industry.

According to Stites, the Outstanding Community Award is given each year. This year, both Columbus and Wayne each received an award "because of the competitiveness."

In presenting the award, it was mentioned that Wayne, a 102-year-old community and a community of about 5,300 people, is off to a great start in its second century.

During the presentation, it was also mentioned that on Sept. 23, Timpte, manufacturer of truck trailers, dedicated its new manufacturing facility and corporate headquarters. Restful Knights, manufacturers of mattress pad covers, showed a significant increase in employees. It was brought out that Wayne State College of Nebraska had an increased enrollment and is currently working toward completion of the Rice-Carlson Addition.

Also highlighted in the presentation was the news that a new doctor had located to Wayne and that retail sales are up.

"In spite of a down farm economy, Wayne is adding cafes, body shop, office supply stores and insurance companies. There is new momentum in Wayne for the second century," it was mentioned.

ESU approves master contract ending lengthy period of impasse

By LaVon Anderson

Following months of negotiations, members of the board of directors of Educational Service Unit One and the ESU 1 Education Association have reached agreement on a master contract for the 1985-86 school year.

Representatives for both sides signed the agreement during a meeting of the board Tuesday night at ESU 1 headquarters in Wakefield.

Negotiators for the board and ESU Education Association had been at an impasse for several months regarding the contract, with ESU certified staffers working the 1985-86 year without a contract.

With ratification of the new contract, employees of the unit will receive retroactive pay for 1985-86 totaling $2,883.96.

THE CONTRACT as approved by the board and ESU Education Association sets the 1985-86 base salary at $13,600 — up from the 1984-85 base salary of $13,300.

In addition, the new contract also includes some expansion of the salary schedule, with one year experience additional step accepted from bachelor's degrees on up.

ESU 1 board members serving on negotiating team were Leo Krampfer of Dakota City, Claire Hansen of Coleridge and Randy Shaw of Wayne. Negotiating on behalf of the ESU Education Association were Kim Calvillo, Cathy Schroeder, Maria Grier and Tom Ketterling.

Board members Tuesday night also voted to recognize the ESU 1 Education Association as the official bargaining agent for ESU certified employees and to begin contract negotiations for the 1986-87 and possibly the 1987-88 school years.

A new negotiating team for the board of directors will be appointed by Chairman Marvin Borg of Concord.

IN OTHER BUSINESS Tuesday night, second reading of a proposal to place the job descriptions of the ESU 1 administrator, assistant administrator and special education director into the board policy failed because of a lack of majority vote from the board.

Voting in favor of the motion were Paul Steffen, Ervin DeBoer, Jim Martindale, Marvin Borg and Ken Lahrs, with Randy Shaw abstaining. Absent from Tuesday night's meeting were Deryl Lawrence, Leo Krampfer, John Post and Claire Hansen.

Another reading of the proposal will take place at next month's board meeting.

Elevators prepare for harvest

by Chuck Hackenmiller

Look for the harvesting rush to begin this weekend or sooner if sunny weather continues to prevail over the area.

Corn and soybean crops, drying in area fields during recent days of sub-freezing temperatures and steady sunshine, will be harvested with some high expectations of near record yields.

But along with the eager anticipation of good yields are the facts that this year the market price for the grain commodities are predicted to continue at a depressed rate.

Which could mean that more grain will be put up for storage. Just how much storage is available, both on the farm and at grain holding facilities at area elevators, is another story.

Feeders Elevator of Wayne has anticipated another banner harvest year and demand for storage space. Over the past few months, workmen have built five new 55,000 bushel capacity grain bins on the Feeders Elevator site in the southeast part of Wayne.

Dale Preston, manager of Feeders Elevator, said the construction of the new bins was necessary to meet the storage demands of this fall's harvest.

BEFORE the new bin construction, 75 percent of the elevator's total storage capacity had been filled. So the options in handling the new fall crop were to rent and build more storage space.

"We still have stored here some grain forfeitures from 1985 and the 1986 crops," said Preston.

With the recent renting of storage facilities to handle approximately 500,000 bushels of grain, and with the construction of the five new grain bins to handle another 225,000 grain bushels, Feeders Elevator has substantially increased its storage capacity.

"We've almost doubled our storage capacity from 700,000 bushels to 1.2 million bushels," said Preston.

Preston said the added storage capacity will allow the elevator to reserve approximately 350,000

FirsTier wants to be city underwriter

by Chuck Hackenmiller

Wayne's city council received a sales pitch Tuesday evening from a company who would like to be a part of the city's future fiscal financing planning.

James Van Horn, vice president and manager of the Public Finance Department Municipal and Government Bond Division of FirsTier Bank of Lincoln, presented the company's proposal to the city council.

Van Horn said FirsTier, in submitting its proposal to be a managing underwriter for the city of Wayne's upcoming utility system financing (primarily the upcoming water distribution project), proposes to work jointly with Phil Lorenzen of PaineWebber on the structuring and underwriting of the bond issue.

In presenting his proposal, Van Horn said his company offers the best technical and financial expertise available in Nebraska; has extensive experience; is willing to commit time and personnel to do the job right; has the necessary capital strength; has knowledge of the city of Wayne and has worked with City Clerk Carol Brummond on financing procedures.

Van Horn said his company has been in the municipal financing business for approximately 25 years and is active as investment bankers for the city of Lincoln, Columbus, Scottsbluff and for the Board of Regents at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Being the largest of commercial bankers and also the state's largest in investment firms, the city of Wayne "will get the best of both worlds," Van Horn said.

THE FEES assessed to the city of Wayne by FirsTier depends entirely on the bond issue. "Until the bond issue is completed, there really is no fee. If the bonds are never issued, then we never get paid," Van Horn mentioned.

Van Horn said the city of Wayne currently has $705,000 of bonds currently outstanding. Through restructuring of finances, FirsTier could save the city of Wayne up to $68,000, he said.

SHERIFF LeROY JANSSEN shows the marijuana which was confiscated early Monday morning.

Drug arrest made

A North Dakota man was arrested early Monday morning for harvesting marijuana along Highway 35 west of Wayne.

The Wayne County Sheriff's Department arrested Michael Kotaska, age 26, of Fargo, North Dakota for harvesting marijuana along the highway about five miles west of Wayne.

The arrest occurred at approximately 2 a.m. A Wayne County Sheriff's Department officer had noticed a car along the highway early Monday morning and had originally intended to offer some motorist assistance. Kotaska was in the ditch and was walking up to the car when the deputy arrived.

Seized at the scene were two trash bags of unprocessed marijuana. With the assistance of the Nebraska State Patrol, an inventory of the subjects' vehicle revealed an undisclosed amount of other suspected illicit drugs and paraphanelia.

Kotaska is being held in custody at the Wayne County Jail. A bond has been set by Judge Riley at $10,000 cash. Charges have been filed by the Wayne County Attorney's Office for felony possession of marijuana. No hearing date has been set.

Occidental bank involved in lawsuit

Occidental Nebraska Federal Savings Bank today announced that the bank and other parties are defendants in a lawsuit filed in connection with a commercial real estate loan agreement by a borrower of the bank and its affiliated parties. The lawsuit alleges that the bank misrepresented the condition of certain property sold to the borrowers and that the bank required the borrowers to purchase such project as a condition to refinancing an existing loan with the bank.

The borrowers also allege, among other complaints, violations of the Bank Tying Act. The plaintiffs are seeking damages in excess of $10 million and treble damages and, in August 1986, filed motions for sanctions against the bank for alleged violations of court orders.

On Sept. 2, 1986, the judge entered an order granting the motions, and granting judgement against the bank by default. Trial as to the amount of damages, if any, has not been scheduled. The bank vigorously disputes the validity of this order and is presently seeking to have it set aside. If not set aside before trial, the judgement will be appealed.

Due in part to this development, the bank's independent auditors have issued a qualified opinion on the bank's financial statements for the year ended June 30, 1986.

In addition, the bank's auditors have qualified their opinion due to the high level of the bank's scheduled items at June 30, 1986. The poor economic conditions in the geographic areas in which the parties securing the loans are located makes full collectibility of these assets uncertain. The bank continues to closely monitor these loans and has provided allowances for potential losses of $9,250,000 during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1986.

Finally, the auditor's report contains a qualification resulting from the bank's failure to meet its minimum regulatory net worth requirement imposed by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. As a result of not meeting this requirement, the bank is subject to certain regulatory actions. No such actions have been taken to date. The bank had a net worth of $19,507,222 as of June 30, 1986. This represented 2.00 percent of total assets.

Additionally, all deposit accounts of the bank are insured up to $100,000 by the Federal Saving and Loan Corporation, Occidental Nebraska, is an Omaha-based financial services organization with 30 locations throughout Nebraska.

Is there a solution to farm crises?

By John M. Dittich
Farmers, ranchers and the American public have been exposed to considerable media coverage the past three years on our agricultural crisis. Numerous reasons are given as to why the crisis is with us. However, the stories usually end with the thought, there is no solution. Farmers and ranchers don't know what they want and this decline is inevitable. Nothing could be further from the truth.

A historic gathering, which has not been since 1929, was held in St. Louis, Missouri, Sept. 11 through 13. This gathering was called the United Farmer and Rancher Congress. The Congress was the brain child of numerous farm group leaders and the Farm Aid effort led by Willie Nelson.

The purpose of the Congress was to gather the ideas of farmers, ranchers and rural businesspeople on solutions to our rural crisis. These ideas were obtained in the form of resolutions passed in our 450 local town meetings held in July and August across the United States. Over 2000 resolutions resulted and were sent to the Congress. The actual Congress itself consisted of 1400 delegates representing 38 states. These delegates were elected at the local meetings. Delegates represented everything from rice farmers in Louisiana to cattle ranchers in Montana and members of virtually every farm group.

The purpose of the delegates was to develop a summarized set of resolutions on solutions that could be lifted by the full body. It was selected by the Nebraska delegation at the Congress to be the representative of Nebraska on the resolution committee.

OUR JOB WAS MUCH easier than expected. The 2000 resolutions that came to St. Louis were quite varied in wording. However, they were remarkably similar in concept. In final form they were summarized into 10 major areas and were overwhelmingly ratified by the full Congress.

I am unable to relay verbatim on all the resolutions. However, the major ideas to come from the Congress could be summarized by resolutions in the farm price section. Many simply stated that the cause of the rural crisis are low crop and livestock prices, prices below the cost of production. The resolutions stated that crop and dairy prices could be raised immediately by raising U.S.D.A.'s Commodity Credit Corporation's "loan rate", which determine market prices to levels above the average cost of production and by instituting a supply management system based on a farmer referendum on production controls.

For livestock, where interestingly we do not produce enough meat in the United States to meet domestic demand, it was resolved that import restrictions and/or duties be placed on meat imports until domestic livestock prices to the producer rose to a balance with grains.

In summary, it was overwhelmingly recognized that the rural crisis could be ended immediately if the Congress of the United States properly implemented legislation to raise farm prices and control supply. It was overwhelmingly recognized that this legislation has always been available to Congress through existing laws dating back to the 1930's. And it was overwhelmingly recognized that this legislation could be implemented at a tiny fraction of the cost of our new 1985 "farm bill".

To some at the Congress this appeared to be drastic action. However, all there recognized that we are in a drastic situation rapidly growing worse. During the Congress prices for corn in Missouri were 80 cents per bushel, or approximately 25% of the cost of production as determined by the U.S.D.A.

THE QUESTION will be asked, if solutions are so simple, why haven't they been implemented? It is critical that the American public understand that the farm legislation we now have has been written by and for a handful of multinational grain trading and food processing corporations. The legislation has been designed to lower farm prices world-wide for the simple reason that these entities make huge profits by buying low from the farmer and selling high to the consumer. Statements by Cargill and Conagra, that their profits hinge on the health and the breath of the farm economy are ludicrous. Conagra has averaged over 20% return to stockholders equity the past 5 years. According to the Federal Reserve Bulletin, return on equity to farmers from 1980 to 1983 averaged 1.6 percent.

The economic and political power of these companies is huge and extends to influencing news media and farm trade journal articles on the farm problem. The unwitting allies of these interests are those who believe the "free market" cures all ills: Six grain trading firms control over 90% of the grain movement in the United States. Internationally, nearly all grain is bought and sold by governments. The list goes on and on. Most probably there was not a delegate at the United Farmer and Rancher Congress that did not wish the "free market" existed in agriculture. The reality recognized that it does not.

The question that we must all ask is this. Do we intervene in agriculture's decline; using our government which was designed to be "by and for the people"?

Or, do we allow power, ignorance and bull-headedness to prevail? Do we watch the slow death of our state's economy while listening to some of our so-called leaders mumble "there's nothing we can do"? Dittich of Meadow Grove, Nebraska was a delegate to the United Farmer and Rancher Congress and is the Nebraska State Coordinator of the Farm Crisis Committee based in Emerson, Nebraska

Looking up

Sometimes individuals have to look beyond the empty buildings on Main Street in Wayne to realize that there is economic growth going on in the community.

We can certainly agree with that. Apparently, so do some other people (or diplomats) who feel that the city of Wayne's industrial recruitment and upbeat economic news deserves attention.

This past Friday the City of Wayne was presented an award during the annual Nebraska Diplomats' annual banquet at Lincoln.

The award tied Wayne with Columbus for Outstanding Community Awards honors — an award that is presented to communities that have done an outstanding job of industrial and economic development.

Mentioned as what captured the nominating committee's attention was the drawing of Timpte to Wayne; the success of Restful Knights in Wayne; the enrollment increase at Wayne State College and the construction of the Rice-Carlson addition there; restaurants that have changed hands or opened up; new insurance agents locating to Wayne; a body shop starting business in Wayne, another body shop remodeling its business in Wayne; and other significant economic boosters of a larger or smaller stature.

Some things not mentioned are the recent increasing of facilities at Feeder's Elevator in Wayne for more grain storage space; opening of another hair styling, hair cutting business; the completion recently of asphaltting the heavily traveled 7th Street through Wayne and the cementing of Main Street north of 7th Street.

The inscription on the plaque says the following: "The City of Wayne is recognized statewide for having a most outstanding and highly successful economic development program during the past year. This honor is a tribute to the effectiveness of the economic development program in Wayne and the support and civic-mindedness shown by its citizens.

"Wayne's enlightened leadership and the cooperative spirit of its people have ensured a solid and healthy economic base that will endure in that city for many years to come.

"The visible results of an aggressive economic development program in Wayne serve as landmarks for other Nebraska communities to follow in their drives for economic security."

So in looking at the total picture of economic development in Wayne, there is reason to be optimistic. And with the dedicated drive by our city representatives to continue in their efforts to bring on more economic development — things can only be looking up.

IRRIGATING THE "GREAT AMERICAN DESERT"

From the air, the beautiful green circles marking the irrigated fields of Nebraska look as though they had been drawn by a compass held in a giant's hand.

The land denounced by early explorers as barren desert "almost wholly unfit for cultivation" has been transformed. In the transformation, irrigation has played no small part.

The Cornhusker state produced 50 percent of the nation's irrigated corn and 32 percent of the nation's irrigated soy beans in 1984.

Nebraska now ranks second, or third, in the nation in irrigation. There is some dissension as to whether Nebraska or Texas is in second place, but California is first without dispute.

In July of this year, the Conservation and Survey Division of the University of Nebraska released their publication titled "The Groundwater Atlas of Nebraska." The 32-page atlas should be of interest to any Nebraskan who is interested in or concerned about the state's water resources. The $2 publication contains maps and charts showing current groundwater conditions.

"Irrigation," according to the atlas, "has had a fundamental role in making Nebraska a leading state in agricultural productivity. Surface water met most demands for irrigation supplies until about the mid-1930's. Since then, especially after the mid-1950's, the use of groundwater for irrigation has increased rapidly. By 1980 groundwater supplied an estimated 72 percent of all water withdrawn or diverted for irrigation in the state.

"Compared to other uses of groundwater in Nebraska, irrigation is by far the largest, accounting for 94 percent of the estimated 7,160 million gallons per day of total groundwater withdrawn in Nebraska during 1980."

THE NUMBER OF registered irrigation wells in the state grew from a total of 1,200 in 1936 to 70,701 by the end of 1984.

"Center-pivot irrigation systems have played an important role," continued the atlas, "in expanding irrigation from level land to hilly topography and sandy soils. The first inventory, conducted in 1972, counted 2,757 systems. By 1985 the number of systems had increased to 27,271. The average system irrigates about 133 acres, and some single systems irrigate fields of more than 500 acres."

At the present time, satellites orbit the earth at an altitude of 450 miles and resurvey Nebraska every 18 days. Satellite imagery is used in computing the numbers of center-pivot irrigation systems.

In the 1890's, the following account of an irrigation attempt was considered newsworthy and, in fact, was printed in several newspapers:

"The editor of the Gandy Pioneer (in Logan County), C.G. Clouse, has invented an irrigation tank which has proved very successful, and the idea might be profitably followed out by others. The tank is mounted on a wagon and holds 228 gallons of water, which is distributed over the ground by a hose, the wagon being hauled to a point near the crop to be irrigated. By this means quite an area of ground can be irrigated, the tank being quickly and automatically filled from a reservoir. From five to ten acres of land can thus be irrigated at little expense other than an outlay of labor.

Ten acres of irrigated ground intensively farmed will raise sufficient produce to keep a farmer's family in abundance for a year."

And, last but not least, we thank the Lions and their ladies who helped sack the candy and who went out and sold the candy this past Sunday and Monday evenings.

Dog woes

This is in answer to the letter complaining about the dogs, running around early on mornings and doing their thing. Well, my back yard is their place to drop. I know that dog.

He lives just across the street from us. He comes over every day, just before daybreak. We step in it and bring it in the house. People get them cute puppies because they are cute.

When they grow up they let them run. They don't want them anymore. So they turn them out. I love dogs and I wish I could take them all in and love them.

ELECTION PREVIEW

EDITOR'S NOTE

Nebraskans will be voting on four issues when they go to the General Election polls on Nov. 4. So that voters can better understand these important proposed changes to the state Constitution, the Nebraska Press Association in cooperation with this newspaper has prepared a series of reports on each of the issues. Each report deals with a single issue, briefly defining it, explaining its purpose and finally stating the arguments for and against. This is the second report in the series.

2. VOTERS MIGHT CHANGE IMPEACHMENT PROCEDURES.

Constitutional Amendment 2. "A Constitutional amendment to provide changes in the impeachment procedure."

PURPOSE: The proposed amendment, placed on the ballot by the 1986 Legislature, would make seven changes in the Legislature's seldom used impeachment procedure. The changes, most technical, are intended to correct problems that arose during the impeachment process of former Attorney General Paul Douglas during the 1984 legislative session.

The proposed amendment allows the legislature to initiate an impeachment procedure during a regular or a special session and requires that impeachment resolutions give "reasonable notice of acts or omissions alleged to constitute impeachable offenses. It changes the time period within which the Chief Justice must convene the Supreme Court to try the case after the Legislature adopts an impeachment resolution from ten days to "in an expeditious fashion."

The amendment also provides a procedure for selecting district judges to sit on an impeachment trial of any member of the Supreme Court.

The amendment provides that an impeachment case brought by the Legislature will be managed by two senators and will be tried as a civil rather than a criminal proceeding. The conviction must be based on "clear and convincing evidence indicating guilt of an impeachable offense."

In addition, the amendment repeals the current provision stating that drunkenness shall be a cause of impeachment and removal from office.

SUPPORT: During the impeachment trial of former Attorney General Paul Douglas, the Supreme Court and senators found there were few guidelines in the constitution or state law governing an impeachment trial. The Supreme Court studied the only other impeachment trial of a state official for historic guidelines. The resulting frustration and confusion led senators to fashion these constitutional changes.

The amendments would give both the Legislature and the public official charged with an impeachable offense more time to prepare for the impeachment trial.

But the biggest change relates to the standards used to operate the trial and determine guilt or innocence. The Supreme Court operated the Douglas trial as a criminal trial, where a conviction must be based on a preponderance of evidence. The criminal standard requires the most strict burden of proof.

The amendment makes the trial a civil proceeding and requires a less rigorous standard for a conviction — "clear and convincing evidence indicating guilt of an impeachable offense." Supporters contend that an impeachable offense is not necessarily a criminal matter and the less rigorous standards should apply. Since the penalty is merely removal from office, not a prison sentence, the civil standards are sufficient. Most other states try impeachment cases as civil proceedings.

OPPOSITION: The proposed constitutional changes are simply a reaction by senators to defeat, opponents contend. The Supreme Court did not uphold the Douglas impeachment resolutions so senators want to change the rules to their benefit.

Opposition centers around the standards used in the impeachment trial — civil or criminal. Opponents contend that impeachment is a serious enough charge that the defendant should have the extra protection of the criminal proceedings. Under the criminal standards the defendant can refuse to testify and a higher standard of proof is required for conviction.

Opponents also believe there is no need to provide extra time between the time the Legislature votes an impeachment resolution and the beginning of the trial before the Supreme Court. If senators are not ready to prove their charges they should not adopt the impeachment resolution, opponents say.

'Let's Talk About It' Series

'The Home Place' is topic for book discussion at library

Leading the evening's program for the fourth "Let's Talk About It" book discussion at Wayne Public Library will be Dr. Frances Kaye of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. The program will be held Tuesday, Oct. 21 from 7 to 9:30 p.m.

Kaye will discuss "The Home Place," written by Wright Morris, a native of Central City, Neb. Assisting her will be Mary Jo Grzes and Linda Anderson of Wayne, who will lead small discussion groups. "The Home Place" is an amusing book featuring pictures of rural Nebraska places, with no people in them.

"THE PURPOSE OF the discussion is to interest people in reading and in having a good time discussing books," said Kathy Tooker, library director.

"The discussions are informal—a sharing of feelings and ideas—and don't necessarily come under the heading of scholarly," she added. Participants are encouraged to have read the book before the discussion, however it is not a requirement in order to attend.

DR. KAYE WAS a reader for the Nebraska Committee for the Humanities (NCH) project on Women's Diaries, and was a humanist for NCH's Federalist Papers Project.

In 1985, Dr. Kaye was one of the scholars for the first Nebraska "Let's Talk About It" series sponsored by the Nebraska Library Association and the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Her major works have been published in The North Dakota Quarterly, The Southern Review, CLA Journal, Prairie Schooner, Canadian Review of American Studies, Women and Writing, American Literature, and NebraskaLand.

THE FINAL "Let's Talk About It" program at Wayne Public Library will be held Nov. 4. Barbara Schmitt of Northeast Community College will lead the discussion on "Black Elk Speaks" by John Neihardt.

"Let's Talk About It" was started nearly 15 years ago in Vermont and is in its second year in Nebraska. Other 1986 sites include David City, Columbus, Central City, Schuyler, Norfolk, Pender, Brunswick and Neligh.

Guest speaker at services

Redeemer Lutheran Church plans for Mission Sunday

Hafeni Hatutale, a native of Namibia, will be guest speaker at Redeemer Lutheran Church of Wayne for its second annual Mission Sunday on Oct. 19.

Hatutale will speak at both the 8:30 and 11 a.m. worship services. Special activities will also center around the guest speaker and his family during the Sunday school hour at 9:45 a.m., and at a potluck dinner at 12:30 p.m.

NAMIBIA IS UNDER the rule of the government of South Africa, although promises were made a generation ago that Namibia would be self-governing.

Because of the activities of missionaries from Europe, much of Namibia is Christian, with Lutherans making up more than half of the sparse population.

Hafeni Hatutale was active in the Lutheran church in Namibia, and because of his involvement with its program, became a political refugee. At the present time, Hatutale lives in Omaha and is employed there. He and his family, who were prevented from joining him for several years, are members of Trinity Lutheran Church.

MISSION SUNDAY at Redeemer Church, according to the Rev. Daniel Monson, is an attempt to revise the spirit of the old-fashioned Mission Fest. It is a time for learning and for a special gift for Missions.

Monson said everyone is invited to share in the special day.

Safer Capsules

Washington State recently banned the sale of over-the-counter medicine products in capsule form. This action followed two June deaths in Auburn, Washington — deaths due to consumption of over-the-counter medicines that were laced with cyanide.

According to a survey reported in Drug Store News, 38 percent of consumers favored the banning of nonprescription drug products in capsule form. And 44 percent indicated that they favored the sale of nonprescription drug products in capsule form through a pharmacist.

Many individuals prefer capsules to tablets, possibly because they may be easier to swallow when moistened. Yet the public is concerned about capsules and potential tampering. The producers of nonprescription medicines may be even more concerned and are doing something about it. A recent issue of American Medical News describes the efforts of manufacturers to make capsules safer. One technique involves the congealing of capsule edges following filling, thereby sealing the capsule. And some companies are now sealing capsules with a double-band at the point where the two halves meet, a procedure followed by one maker of prescription medicines for several decades.

I'll tell ya what I think

I think Gene Mauch's decision to replace Mike Witt with reliever Gary Lucas in Sunday's playoff game is a perfect example why Mauch has never managed in a World Series.

I think professional athletes make way too much money, and I think sports writers and other journalists don't make enough.

I think Lonnie Ehrhardt and the Blue Devil football players deserve a lot of credit for turning what many thought would be a disappointing '86 season into a pleasant surprise.

I think Don Mattingly is the best player in baseball, and even though Jim Rice's and Roger Clemens' Red Sox won the American League East, Mattingly should be named MVP.

I think it's an awful shame Wakefield's Susie McQuistan — one of the area's best all-around athletes — can't be able to compete in athletics this year because of knee surgery.

I think that if the NFL football season ended today, John Elway of the Denver Broncos should win the MVP award.

I think Marlene Uhing is one of the best four coaches I've covered during my four years as a sports writer.

I think the Oklahoma Sooners are the best team in college football and will down Nebraska again this year.

I think major college football teams that play weak opponents are smart because the pollsters are too dumb to take schedules into consideration.

I think in a few years Allen will have the last laugh against the same schools that are pounding them this year.

I think six or eight teams should qualify for post season play in major league baseball, instead of four.

I think only six or eight hockey teams should qualify for post season play, instead of almost all the teams.

I think the New York Mets should be limited to a couple hundred high-fives during games.

I think volleyball setters and passers deserve more credit and recognition.

I think linemen deserve more credit, too.

I think that since Wade Boggs got two infield hits during the first two games of the playoffs, he could've played during the final Yankee/Red Sox series, during which Don Mattingly was trying to catch him for the batting title.

I think the Indianapolis Colts should become a minor league football team.

I think Walter Payton is the greatest football player that ever lived.

I think Larry Bird is the greatest basketball player that ever lived.

I think when a team loses 19 of 22 games it's losing consistently, regardless of what others think.

I think running pictures of softball teams from out of the area is wasting space for area athletics, regardless of what others think.

I think it's a coach's responsibility to call in results after games — not a journalist's to hunt them down with telephone calls to find information out.

I think too many people take sports too seriously — especially parents.

I think that since I'm running out of space and starting to offend people, I'd better quit this column.

Wayne's golfers head to Lincoln

Five Wayne girls will join 110 others at the Class A&B State Golf Tournament at Mahoney Park in Lincoln on Thursday.

Ann Perry, Missy Jones, Jill Jordan, Holly Paige and Andrea Marsh qualified for state by placing third at districts in Blair last week.

The Lady Blue Devils closed with a 394-at-districts, four strokes behind second place Stanton and 11 behind front-runner Blair.

The top three teams and top eight individuals from districts qualify for state.

At the state tourney, girls will play in threesomes. Girls competing in Class A will begin at 9 a.m. on the front nine, while girls in Class B will start at 9:07 a.m. on the back nine.

Perry will be the first girl from Wayne to begin when she tees off at 9:22 a.m. The other times Wayne's girls begin are: Missy Jones, 9:30 a.m.; Jill Jordan, 10:15 a.m.; Holly Paige, 10:20 a.m.; and Andrea Marsh, 11:07 a.m.

All No. 1 players were grouped according to district scores and were placed in groups of three from different districts. No. 2, No. 3, No. 4, and No. 5 golfers were sat similarly. The No. 2 golfers go first, then No. 1, No. 3, No. 4 and No. 5.

All USGA rules are in effect and are not affected by necessary special rules and instructions.

Wayne's golf team has been in existence for only two years now, but it's been a very productive couple of years.

In addition to the team qualification this year, Jones qualified last year for state.

And it was Jones who led Wayne at districts this year when she fired a 94 for sixth place. Perry followed with 95 and an eighth place finish.

Rounding out Wayne's district scores were Paige with a 102, Jill Jordan with a 103, and Marsh with a 127. Dick Metteer, Wayne's coach, said the key to the third place finish at districts was his club's ability to bounce back from bad shots and not letting one bad stroke ruin their game.

"We've been talking about putting bad shots out of our mind all season, and we finally did it at districts. For example, Missy had an out-of-bounds shot on the first hole, but instead of letting it bother her, she just kept playing her game and came in with a 49 on the front nine," he said.

"Another example is Ann. She had two out-of-bounds shots on the first two holes, but she didn't let it bother her either and she finished with a 49, too."

Mahoney Park is a long course, and to prepare for it the Lady Blue Devils have been practicing on the back nine at the Wayne Country Club.

"Mahoney is a long, open course, much like Blair's," Metteer said. "We practiced on the back nine to get ready for it."

Mahoney also offers a water hazard on hole No. 8 and a lateral hazard on hole No. 7.

Qualifying for the state tournament was the Lady Blue Devils' goal since last fall, according to Metteer, and he said he hopes their fine play carries over into the state tourney.

"Qualifying for state was our goal all along. Since last fall we've set our goals on going to state, and our summer program was all directed in terms of reaching the state tournament," he said. "I hope our team concept and the ability to not let one poor shot ruin your entire round carries over into the state tournament."

Metteer added that he hopes his girls are relaxed at the tourney and said he plans on the Lady Blue Devils turning in competitive scores.

"The girls usually play better when they're not so serious and in playful moods. So hopefully they'll be loose during their rounds," he said. "We think we're going to go down there and be competitive because we think our placing third at districts was no fluke — we think we deserve to be there."

The Lady Blue Devils departed at 8 a.m. on Wednesday from Wayne in order to play a practice round at Mahoney.

The tournament will begin with a short meeting at 8:30 a.m. in front of the clubhouse before play begins at 9 a.m.

An awards ceremony will conclude the tourney. Trophies, individual medals and medals to each member of the championship team will be presented during that time. The post tournament ceremony will take place immediately after the tourney at the front of the clubhouse.

If the tournament is postponed, it will be played Friday, Oct. 17, beginning at 9 a.m.

Wildcats fall to 2-4

Two fourth quarter TDs lift Fort Hays over Wayne State

HAYS, KAN. — For the first time in three weeks, Wayne State consistently moved the ball. But the Wildcats couldn't quite punch it in the end zone and as a result, dropped a 14-0 loss to Fort Hays State here Saturday afternoon.

Wayne head coach Pete Chapman was pleased with his club's ability to move the ball, but was concerned about being shutout.

"We moved the ball up-and-down the field with confidence most of the game — it was our best offensive effort in three weeks," he said. "But we still didn't score. We (the coaching staff) made a promise to the guys to show them how to move the ball — and they did move it — they just didn't score."

The Wildcats almost scored late in the third period after Eric Anderson tackled Fort Hays' punter for a nine-yard loss after a bad snap.

Todd Buchanan then gained 10 yards on two carries for a first-and-goal at the one, but the Wildcats were penalized five yards.

However, quarterback John Lawrence moved the ball down to the one-foot line. But he was then stopped on the next two plays and Wayne was forced to give the ball up.

Whether or not the Wildcats actually penetrated the end zone or not is questionable as the Wildcats appeared to score twice during that series, according to Chapman.

"It looked like we had two plays in the end zone," Chapman said. "But the referee's decision is the final one and he said we didn't — so we didn't."

But the Wildcats had another opportunity to score just seconds later when Anderson came up with a Tiger fumble on the three yard line to usher in the fourth stanza.

But Wayne gained only a few yards on three running plays and Tony Wiese's 19-yard field goal attempt was partially blocked and satted wide to the left.

The near-scores apparently woke Fort Hays' offense up as the Tigers drove 80 yards in just four plays for the game-winning touchdown.

The big play of the drive was a 63-yard Jeff Miller pass to Frankie Knox. Two plays later, Sylvester Butler reached the end zone from two yards and David Odle added a PAT boot for a 7-0 lead at the 11:15 mark.

Fort Hays added an insurance touchdown when Miller hit Kip Stewart from 31 yards and Odle added a PAT kick with 4:29 remaining.

In addition to the two scoring opportunities in the second half, the Wildcats also failed to score when Wiese missed a 29-yarder earlier in the game.

But in fairness to Wiese, the game was played on a muddy field during snow flurries and rain. And both his misses were into a steady wind.

It was unfortunate the Wildcats were unable to score because Wayne's exceptional defense played, perhaps, its best game of the season.

"The defense played one of its better games," Chapman said. "And they did it with four freshmen starting."

The Wildcat defense allowed just six rushing yards, but Fort Hays did total 290 yards in the air, completing 19-of-51 passes.

Because of the adverse weather, the Wildcats ran the football more often than usual and finished with 250 yards in total offense, gaining 105 rushing yards on 60 carries and totaling 745 through the air.

Buchanan was Wayne's leading ground-gainer, finishing with 64 yards on 15 carries. Darin Blackburn led the Wildcats in receiving with four catches for 45 yards.

Wayne has scored only 16 points in its last five games. And Chapman said the key to the Washburn game this Saturday will be his club's ability to score.

"Washburn's a physical team, and we'll have to play with a lot of enthusiasm and without many errors," he said. "And if we can get something in the end zone quickly I think that'll take a lot of pressure off the kids."

The Wildcats will face a stiff Washburn defense, however, as the IChabods lead the conference in total defense.

Washburn was ranked ninth in the NAIA top 20 going into Saturday's game with Pittsburg State, but dropped a 21-7 loss and slipped to 4-2 on the year.

Last year's Washburn game was one of Wayne's highlights as the Wildcats used an Ed Jochum to Sonny Jones 43-yard touchdown pass and a two-point conversion by Matt Hoffmann with six seconds remaining to claim an 18-17 victory.

Wayne will enter Saturday's bout, which will be held at Memorial Stadium beginning at 1:30 p.m., with a 0-3 record in the Central States Intercollegiate Conference and 2-4 overall.

Fort Hays improved to 2-1 in the conference and 5-2 overall.

Hillier does better than only finishing marathon

By John Prather
Sports Editor

Sid Hillier's main objective prior to competing in the fifth annual Twin Cities Marathon last Sunday was to finish. And considering marathons are 26 miles and 385 yards long, finishing is quite an accomplishment.

But Hillier not only finished Sunday's race, he crossed the finish line in three hours and 28 minutes for a 106th place finish out of 355 competitors in his age group.

Not bad. And considering it was Hillier's first-ever marathon, the 106th place finish is impressive. But the ever-striving Hillier knows he could've done better.

"I was very happy to finish, and I was shooting to break the 3:30 mark, so in that aspect I'm pleased," he said. "But I really didn't run so good — I know I can do better."

Hillier was disappointed with unexpected blisters and cramps that hobbled him during the race.

"I had very sore feet and blisters for probably 15 miles of the race, and that took its toll on my time," he said. "And my calves kept cramping through the race."

The cramping, it seems, hindered Hillier the most, and he said that if he hadn't had those problems, he might've been able to knock another 30 seconds off each mile.

"My time averages out to eight minute miles, but I'm sure I could've averaged 7:30 miles without the complications," he said.

"After a while, I had to stop about every third-of-a-mile to stretch and massage my calves. I'd do that for about 30 seconds and would feel fine, then about every third-of-a-mile I'd have to do it again."

"If I wouldn't have had the cramps, I think I could've knocked off another 10 minutes. But a couple of times I cramped-up so bad I almost stumbled, so I had to stop."

Of the 6,000 that started the race, 1,433 didn't finish. And if it weren't for a different pair of shoes and socks Hillier's family gave him at the 18-mile mark, the number of non-finishers might've increased by one.

After 18 miles, my family, God bless 'em, were there with a different pair of shoes and fresh socks and Vaseline. I don't think I could've finished without that," he said.

The aid stations located every two and a-half miles and support from spectators also played an important role in Hillier's ability to finish.

"There were aid stations every couple of miles and they were superb. The people watching the race also clapped, offered support and had orange slices and things like that, and that helped considerably," he said.

Weather over the weekend was hardly ideal, and although some expert runners complained about the conditions, Hillier said he didn't think mother nature affected his performance.

"It was very cold out and overcast. Kjell-Erik Stahl of Sweden won the race, and he said that of the 63 marathons he's competed in, Sunday was the worst as far as weather is concerned," Hillier said. "And it was miserable waiting for the race to begin, but I don't think the weather really came into play as far as my time is concerned."

Despite all the physical hardships and inclement weather, Hillier said he enjoyed competing and said finishing was quite fulfilling.

"I enjoyed it. And even though I had more trouble with blisters and cramps than I expected, it went about as I imagined it would," he said. "When I finished, I didn't go crazy or anything like that, but it was an emotional time for me. I just remembered all the preparation I put into the race, and I couldn't imagine that I had run as far as I did — but I did."

Cedar Catholic steals momentum in 15-7, 15-2 victory over Wayne

HARTINGTON — Hartington's gym, frequently referred to as the "snake pit," is considered one of the toughest places to play in northeast Nebraska. And Wayne's volleyball team found out just how tough it is to play there in a 7-15, 2-15 loss to the Lady Trojans Tuesday night.

Wayne ushered in the first set emotionally high and after a set-opening ace serve, built a quick 4-1 lead. But then the Lady Blue Devils' serving and passing game went haywire, and Hartington started building momentum.

"The girls thought they were ready to play, and I did, too. And we started off really well," Wayne head coach Marlene Uhing said. "But once you lose your momentum up there, it's tough to come back." And indeed, the Lady Blue Devils never did come back.

Hartington, which is now perfect in 16 matches this year, feasted on Wayne's over-sets and poor serving to build commanding leads in both sets and cruised to the sweep.

"Our poor passing, setting and serving was the whole game," Uhing said. "We just helped them run their offense."

As a team, Wayne served 79 percent. Shelly Pick and Amy Schluns led Wayne in scoring with two points apiece on 6-of-6 and 4-of-5 serving, respectively.

Uhing said that her club's hitting attack and defense were sound, but that couldn't overcome the other problems.

"When we did spike we hit the ball well and when we played good defense," she said. "But we had too many other problems."

Kecia Corbit and Pick finished 13-for-17 and 9-for-12 in spiking with seven and four kills, respectively. Marni Bruggeman added two kills on 4-of-4 spiking and went 22-for-27 in setting with nine assists. Cedar made it a perfect night by also winning the 'B' match 15-12, 15-5 and the 'C' match 13-15, 11-3, 11-5.

Karmyn Koehn led Wayne's 'B' team in scoring with seven points, while Julie Wessel tallied a team-high seven markers for the Lady Blue Devils in the 'C' match.

Uhing said the varsity team didn't practice as much over the past week as they normally do, but added that that isn't an excuse for their poor showing.

"We only practiced about 20 minutes on Friday and had another short one on Monday. And that might've been a reason for the way we played," she said. "But I don't want to take anything away from Cedar. They have a very good team, and they'll be tough to beat."

Cedar and Wayne could face each other again in districts.

The Lady Blue Devils are now 12-4 on the year and play again Thursday when Pierce invades the Wayne gymnasium.

Winside trims Laurel in two sets

LAUREL — Momentum played a big part in Tuesday's Winside/Laurel volleyball match, and fortunately for the Lady Wildcats, Laurel forgot to enter the second set with any enthusiasm.

"We didn't carry any fire or enthusiasm from the first set into the second set," Lady Bear head coach Carroll Manganaro said after her club dropped a 15-17, 9-15 loss.

The first set did, indeed, see plenty of enthusiasm as both squads built momentum only to later see it disappear.

Winside jumped out to an 8-3 lead in the opener only to see the advantage evaporate into an 8-11 deficit.

Laurel's Sara Adkins keyed the Lady Bear comeback by rifling numerous "knuckle ball-like" serves at Winside.

But the Lady Wildcats finally figured Adkins' serve out, and after tying the score at 11 and 14, claimed a three point victory.

Winside opened a seemingly commanding 12-3 lead in the second set, but Laurel outscored the Lady Wildcats 5-1 to pull within five, 13-8.

But Winside finally got on track and tallied two of the final three points for the victory.

In addition to the lacadaistical attitude, Manganaro said poor serving cost her club the loss.

"We did a better job of passing, but we only served 75 percent as a team and I think that played a major role in our losing," she said.

Adkins finished with a team-high 13 points on 18-of-19 serving.

Dawn Addison led the Lady Bears in spiking going 10-for-11, while teammates Tami Schmitt and Becky Christensen both added 7-for-7 performances.

Winside's statistics were not available.

Laurel won both the 'B' and 'C' matches. The Lady Bear 'B' team claimed a 15-9, 15-11 victory, while Laurel's 'C' team won 11-7, 11-9.

Shelly Watter led Laurel's 'B' team in scoring with 11 points on 15-for-15 serving. Manganaro said the Lady Bears' 'C' team had equal scoring.

Laurel's varsity slipped to 3-8 on the year. The Lady Bears play again Thursday when Randolph invades the Laurel gymnasium. Thursday night is also Parent's Night at Laurel.

Winside also plays again Thursday when 9-4 Allen travels to the Lady Wildcat gym.

Gary Troth, head coach at Allen, expects a close game Thursday.

"Winside always plays well at home," he said. "We've had trouble down there in the past, and I expect another close one on Thursday."

Wakefield keeps rolling along, improve to 10-1

WALTHILL — Wakefield just keeps rolling along and Tuesday night ran its record to 10-1 by pounding Walthill 15-6, 15-2.

Paul Eaton, Wakefield's head coach, said his club played well and experienced little trouble in the match.

"We played very well in the first set, and in the second set we set and passed well, but missed a few serves," he said. "But we still served 85 percent as a team, so overall we played good."

Steph Torczon and Desiree Salmon led Wakefield in setting going 18-for-18 and 24-for-25, respectively.

Marci Greve led the Lady Trojans in scoring with eight points on 8-of-9 serving, while Torczon and Stacey Kuhl both finished 7-for-7 with seven and five points, respectively.

Greve led the club in hitting going 14-for-16 with seven kills.

Salmon also turned in a fine passing performance going 18-for-18, while Kay Hansen went 8-for-8.

Wakefield also won the 'B' match 15-10, 15-15, 15-12 and the 'C' match 11-8, 11-9.

Brenda Boechenhauer led the Lady Trojans in the 'B' match with 12 points on 15-of-15 serving. She also totaled nine aces serves.

Melaney Kuhl tallied a team-high eight points for Wakefield in the 'C' match, going 10-for-10 with three aces.

Wakefield, now 10-1, plays again Thursday night when Coteridge invades the Lady Trojan gymnasium. Thursday's match is Parent's Night at Wakefield.

Allen's Lady Eagles improve to 9-4 with Newcastle sweep

NEWCASTLE — They've gone about it very quietly, but Allen's Lady Eagles have gradually turned into one of the area's better volleyball teams and after trimming Newcastle 17-15, 16-14 here Tuesday night, have improved their season record to 9-4.

Gary Troth, Allen's head coach, said his club is playing up to its potential, but said they do have a few problems to work out.

"This is about where I expected us to be at this time of the season," he said, referring to the 9-4 mark. "We're playing better, but we're still a little inconsistent at times."

It wasn't their inconsistent play that almost cost the Lady Eagles Tuesday night, however, but rather their poor hitting.

"We didn't have a very good night hitting," Troth said. "But we didn't lose our cool and just hung tough and eventually pulled it out."

Allen trailed 7-1 and 9-3 in the first frame, but just as Troth said, the Lady Eagles didn't lose their composure, and gradually worked their way back into the game and eventually won.

Allen led most of the second set by three-to-four points. But although the Lady Eagles held a 14-10 lead, Newcastle tallied the next four points to tie.

But Allen scored the final two markers to claim the victory.

"I did a lot of substituting in the second set, and although it was close most of the way and tied at 14, I felt confident we'd win," Troth said.

Nikki Olesen turned in a fine all-around performance for Allen, finishing with a team-high seven points on 10-for-12 serving and going 5-4 for 5-4 in setting.

Tiffany Harder and Barb Hansen added five and four points on 5-of-6 and 6-of-6 serving, respectively, and Lana Erwin went 6-for-7.

Kristi Chase finished 15-for-16 with six kills to lead the Lady Eagles' hitters, while Hansen went 7-for-9 with two kills and Harder finished 9-for-11 with one kill.

Allen made it a clean sweep by winning the 'B' match 15-5, 15-0 and the 'C' match 10-12, 11-7, 11-2.

Candace Jones led Allen's 'B' team with eight points, while teammates Liz Hansen and Leslie Isom added six markers apiece.

Allen will attempt to reach the double figure mark in victories when the Lady Eagles travel to Winside for a Thursday night match.

"Winside is tough in their own gym. We've had trouble over there in the past so I think it should be a good game," Troth said.

Wayne wins first conference game against O'Neill

O'NEILL — Wayne's spikers won their first Northern Activities Conference (NAC) volleyball game by pounding O'Neill 15-6, 15-2 here Thursday night.

The victory also pushed the Lady Blue Devils into second place in league play. Hartington Cedar Catholic heads the list with a 2-0 mark, while South Sioux City is in third place with a 1-1 record and O'Neill is 0-3.

Wayne had little trouble with the Lady Eagles, and Marlene Uhing, Wayne's head coach, was pleased with her club's "killer instinct" once O'Neill fell behind.

"We didn't have too much trouble.

I think O'Neill is in a rebuilding year," she said. "I was most happy with the way the (Wayne) girls never let-up. It's the first game we didn't let-up when we had a commanding lead, and that's the way you have to play."

Kristi Hansen turned in a fine serving effort for the Lady Blue Devils, finishing 15-for-16 with 13 points and five aces.

Wayne's "twin towers" — Shelly Pick and Kecia Corbit — continued to display one of northeast Nebraska's most powerful hitting attacks as they finished with 10 and seven kills, respectively. Pick finished 10-for-12 in spiking, while Corbit went 11-for-12.

Marni Bruggeman, who has missed just a handful of sets during the '86 campaign, once again played near-flawless ball and finished 23-for-24 with 17 assists.

Wayne made it a clean sweep by winning the 'B' match 12-15, 15-5, 15-4 and the 'C' match 15-3, 15-5.

Hansen also led Wayne in scoring the 'B' match with 15 points, while Heidi Reeg's nine markers in the 'C' match claimed team honors for the Lady Blue Devils.

The victory improved Wayne's record to 12-3. Wayne is not ranked in the top 10 despite its impressive record, but that doesn't bother Uhing.

"A lot of people probably care, but I honestly don't," she said, referring to whether or not the Lady Blue Devils are ranked. "I rarely even look at the top 10 — ratings only count at the end of the season."

Uhing and her Lady Blue Devils will face fifth-ranked and undefeated Cedar Catholic Tuesday night in another NAC battle.

Uhing used to coach at Cedar, and Tuesday night will be the first time she has faced her former school as an opposing volleyball coach.

Wayne's junior high spikers defeat Hartington Holy Trinity

HARTINGTON — Wayne junior high volleyball team won three matches here last week against Hartington Holy Trinity.

Wayne's seventh graders won 11-1, 11-7, while the eighth grade 'B' team won 11-7, 11-2 and the 'A' team won 16-14, 16-14.

Trisha Lutt and Stephanie Kloster led the seventh graders in scoring with 14 points apiece.

As a team, Wayne served 89 percent, which drew praise from coach Sue Koch.

"Our serving was outstanding for seventh graders," she said. "We played with more confidence and communicated better on the court than in previous games."

Tara Erxleben led Wayne's eighth grade 'B' team in scoring with 11 points, while Kelli Davis tallied a team-high 11 markers in the 'A' game on 13-for-14 serving.

As a team, Wayne finished 89 percent in serving and 97 percent in setting. Rachel Haase finished 20-for-21 in setting.

"This was the first team to spike the ball at us," she said. "We see this team in the tournament at the end of the season so we'll need to work on picking up spikes more consistently."

The seventh graders improved to 1-2 on the year, while the eighth graders climbed to 2-1.

Wildcats shoot for third victory this Saturday against Washburn

By Jean Berger
WSC Sports Information Director

The Game
Wayne State vs. Washburn, Saturday, Oct. 18, 1:30 p.m. at Memorial Stadium in Wayne. The game is homecoming for Wayne State.

The Coaches
Wayne State — Pete Chapman, 4th year — 15-22; Washburn — Larry Elliott, 7th year, 39-33-1.

The Series
Washburn leads the series, 6-5. The two teams first met in 1970 with Washburn winning 21-14. Washburn also won in 1971, 14-7; in 1977, 24-17; in 1981, 26-0; in 1982, 19-13 and in 1983, 13-6. Wayne State won in 1978, 7-6; 1979, 7-6; 1980, 34-18; and in 1984, 27-7. Coach Chapman is 2-1 against Washburn.

Last Year
Wayne State needed some last-second heroics to defeat Washburn last year in Topeka. Wayne State jumped out to a 10-0 lead at the half behind a 22-yard field goal from Herve Roussel and a 47-yard pass from Ed Jochum to Matt Hoffmann. But Washburn took a 17-10 lead on two touchdowns and a field goal. Wayne State scored with six second on a 43-yard pass from Jochum to Sonny Jones. Hoffmann's two-point conversion gave the Wildcats the 18-17 win.

Last Week
The Fort Hays State defense held twice on the goal line, defeating Wayne State 14-0 in Hays, Kan. The score was tied 0-0 at halftime as both teams missed field goals. Wayne State got its first break when Eric Anderson tackled the Hays punter for a nine-yard loss after a bad snap. The Wildcats drove to the one-foot line, but Fort Hays held on fourth down. On the next play, Hays fumbled on the three-yard line, but the Wildcats could not get into the end zone and a 19-yard field goal by Tony Wiese was partially blocked. Hays scored after a 63-yard pass completion and after a Wayne State pass was intercepted.

The Wildcats
Wayne State managed 250 yards in total offense against Fort Hays, running 60 times for 105 yards and gaining another 145 through the air. Field conditions and the cold, wet weather forced the Wildcats into a running game. Senior running back Todd Buchanan gained 64 yards on 15 carries. The leading receiver was senior Darin Blackburn with four catches for 45 yards.

The Defense
Defensively, the Wildcats held Fort Hays to just six yards rushing, but gave up 290 through the air. Hays quarterback Jeff Miller was forced to throw 51 times and completed 19.

The Ichabods
Washburn is now 4-2 on the year after losing to Pittsburg State 21-7 in Topeka in a homecoming contest. The Ichabods have lost two in a row after winning their first four and gaining a fifth place national ranking. Washburn's first victories: 16-6 over South Dakota; 38-24 over Northwest Missouri State and 25-7 over Missouri Southern. The Ichabods then lost 22-16 to Emporia State, leaving Washburn 1-2 in the CSIC. Against Pittsburg last Saturday, the Ichabods fumbled twice in the second half inside their own 20-yard line. Both led to Pittsburg touchdowns. In all, Washburn fumbled eight times, losing five while Pittsburg fumbled four times, losing three. The Ichabods averaged 351.2 yards in total offense; 194.7 rushing and 156.6 passing. The leading rusher is Lorenza Rayford who's gained 344 yards on 68 carries. Two quarterbacks split playing time for Washburn. Jim Bernard is the leading rusher, gaining 208 yards on 49 carries while Kyle Kingston is the better passer, completing 34 of 82 with two touchdowns and 557 yards. Aaron Walker is the team's leading receiver with eight catches for 215 yards, 35.8 yards per catch. Defensively, the Ichabods averaged 221.3 yards in total defense, 113.7 against the rush and 107.7 through the air. Woodcocks don't get much hunting attention LINCOLN — Say "woodcock" to many Nebraska hunters and they'll act like they don't know what you're talking about. And you know what, they won't be acting.

The woodcock is a little bit of a gamebird that doesn't get much attention in Nebraska, though it is a very important and popular game bird in the eastern and southern parts of the United States. Nebraska is on the extreme western edge of their range and few venture further than Highway 281.

The woodcock is a short, stocky brown bird with mottled back and sides and black bars on the top of its head. It has short rounded wings that lets it fly well in very dense cover, short legs, and a long narrow bill designed for poking into wet ground and coming out with a worm or nightcrawler. They measure about 10 inches long and weigh 6-8 ounces.

Woodcocks feed on earthworms, beetles, fly larvae and some types of plants. They are found primarily in areas of alder, aspen or birch trees, along moist streambanks and in damp bottomlands.

They are migratory birds that nest in the northeastern United States and southern Canada. They migrate south each autumn as cold weather drives them from their northern regions.

Their popularity is due to the difficulty of collecting them with a shotgun in tight cover, the fact that they are best hunted with a good dog, and their fine flavor at the table.

Flushing dogs are very beneficial when hunting woodcock because they will put up many more birds than a hunter could find looking in the same area. Also, once a bird is down it is very difficult to find among leaves and grasses, so a dog can save a lot of time and lost birds.

Nebraska's 1986 woodcock hunting season is Sept. 15 through Nov. 18. The daily bag limit is five, the possession limit is 10.

Peoples Natural Gas announces $60 annual savings to customers

Peoples Natural Gas customers in Wayne are receiving another decrease in natural gas rates this month.

According to Tim Connealy, district manager for Peoples, the decrease is due to a reduction in the price of the gas that Peoples buys from Northern Natural Gas to serve Wayne.

Connealy said the decrease, effective Oct. 1, will mean an annual savings of about $60 for the typical residential heating customer.

"This is the eighth decrease since December, 1983 for our Nebraska customers," Connealy noted. "Natural gas rates are now nearly 23 percent lower than at that time."

In addition to the rate decrease, Northern has also opened its pipeline system. This means Peoples will now be able to purchase natural gas directly from other suppliers and have that gas transported by the pipeline.

"Peoples was prepared for this system opening," Connealy explained, "and we are already transporting some lower-cost alternate supplies for the benefit of all system customers."

"We will have the freedom to purchase gas where we can find the best value. In fact, during a four-day trial opening earlier this year, Peoples successfully demonstrated the ability to transport lower-priced gas. We feel our success had a substantial effect in the marketplace, driving down Northern's price."

"The new federal regulations are changing the natural gas industry dramatically," Connealy added. "Peoples continues to aggressively take proactive steps to be prepared to take full advantage of the opportunities to continue to reduce the cost of natural gas to our customers."

Peoples provides retail natural gas service to over 6,400 residential, commercial and industrial customers in the Wayne area.

Annual Wayne State College Parent's Day will be held Oct. 25

Students at Wayne State College of Nebraska will have to behave on Saturday, Oct. 25 because that's the annual Parents Day on campus.

Parents of all Wayne State students have been invited to the day-long event that includes open houses of many campus buildings, planetarium shows and a Wildcat football game.

"Parents Day is a special time for families to be together and learn a little more about life at Wayne State," said Frank Teach, director of activities. "We hope that many parents and families take advantage of the activities we have planned."

The first event actually begins Friday evening (Oct. 24) when the hit movie "Cocoon" will be shown at 8 o'clock in Ramsey Theatre in the Val Peterson Fine Arts Center. The movie is free to all Wayne State students and their families.

On Saturday morning, the KWSC-FM and KWSC-TV studios, the U.S. Conn Library, the Val Peterson Fine Arts Center and all seven residence halls will be open for tours. At 10:30 and 11:45 a.m., the skies come alive during planetarium shows in the Fred G. Dale Planetarium in the Garhart Math-Science Building.

The Parents Day Brunch is available anytime from 10:30 a.m.-1 p.m. in the South Dining Room of the Student Center. Wayne State's new president, Dr. Thomas A. Coffey, will address the parents, and the Aristocats pom-pom squad will perform. The cost of the brunch is $3.05.

The Wayne State-Pittsburg State football game kicks off at 1:30 p.m. in Memorial Stadium. Pre-game and halftime shows will be performed by the Wayne State marching band. Parents and families of Wayne State students are admitted free into the game with a Parents Day 1986 ticket.

WSC dance this Friday

For the third consecutive year, the free Alumni-Homecoming Friday (Oct. 17) dance is expected to draw a "good crowd," said Dean Jacobs, director of Alumni Affairs at Wayne State College of Nebraska.

The dance, sponsored by the Alumni Association, features the Sonny Firmature Sextet. The six musicians and a female vocalist will play in Rice Auditorium from 9 p.m. to midnight.

"The Sonny Firmature Sextet plays music people will want to dance to," Jacobs said. "They're also very enjoyable to just listen to as well."

Jacobs said the dance is for people of all ages, and that the band plays a variety of music. He said the crowds have been good in the past, but that there is plenty of room in Rice Auditorium so no one is crowded.

"I encourage everyone — alumni, faculty, students, area residents — to come out to Rice Friday night," he said.

Wayne State College concludes its Homecoming-Wildcat Days Friday and Saturday.

The Alumni-Foundation Trustees Homecoming Banquet precedes the dance Friday evening.

The homecoming parade and football game are Saturday.

The parade begins downtown in Wayne at 10 a.m. and the football game against Washburn University kicks off at 1:30 p.m.

It is a vehicle for mobilizing people to accomplish agreed upon goals for the betterment of the community, area, and state to meet those needs — "Volunteers working together to make the Wayne area a better place to live and to make a living."

It is truly an organization dedicated to improving the "quality of life" for all the citizens of the area.

From these volunteers come an elected board of directors and officers, plus the action groups, the council-known as the backbone of the Chamber. In the Wayne Chamber, these councils consist of Agribusiness Council, Legislative Affairs Council, Retail Council, Small Business Development Council, and Visitors and Residents Services Council. In addition to these councils, we have many committees. These units formulate and accomplish the Chamber's goals and objectives. The volunteers band together to advance the interests of the community. Housed within the Chamber of Commerce office is the staff, which in Wayne consists of an executive vice president and executive assistant.

Storage

bushels of grain from this fall's new crop.

In 1968, the total grain storage capacity at Feeder's Elevator, Preston said, was 40,000 bushels. Storage bin additions in 1977, 1978, 1981 and 1982 (near the Feeder's Elevator site in the southwest part of Wayne along Grainland Road) and this year have significantly increased the total storage capacity.

Another grain storage facility in Wayne, Wayne Grain and Feed, did not add any new grain storage facilities and anticipates the storage capacity to be "as usual," according to a spokesman from that business.

Will future storage space be needed?

"With the government program continuing, I don't know what we'll do. You just don't know what the next year will bring," Preston answered.

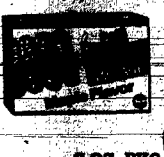

"But you can bet that it will be a long time before one of these sit empty," he added, pointing to the recently constructed grain bins.

RECENT FIGURES show Nebraska corn production, as of Oct. 1, forecasted to be the second highest on record.

Although production is expected to be 7 percent smaller than last year's record crop, the average yield is anticipated to reach a record high 130 bushels to the acre — with irrigated corn predicted at 143 bushels to the acre and dryland corn forecasted at a record 102.5 bushels to the acre.

Soybean production is heading for a record pace, 7 percent above the previous record of 85 million bushels harvested last year. The state-wide average yield is anticipated to be around 37 bushels to the acre.

SPRAY MUSK THISTLE NOW

This is an excellent time to spray musk thistle, which is one of the worst weed pests in Nebraska.

Recent rains have helped sprout a new generation of musk thistle. But favorable moisture conditions have made the weed more susceptible to herbicides.

Research and field trials have shown that 2,4-D works well against musk thistle, from now until freeze-up. The new plants — growing in "roseette" form close to the ground — will absorb the chemical, which will be translocated into the root system during the winter and result in an effective kill.

The danger of 2,4-D damage to desirable plants nearby is reduced at this time of year. Unlike musk thistle, many of them have dropped their leaves after the first frost and they absorb little, if any, spray that accidentally drifts onto them.

GLEANNING CORN WITH PIGS

The gleaning of dropped corn with pigs is a good method if there is a number of dropped ears. With the proper attention to details, this is an effective means of recovering those dropped ears of corn. It is important to remember that the gleaned corn is only a part of a balanced ration for either the growing pig or gestating female.

Producers considering gleaning fields with swine are reminded that pregnant females on a limited diet have a requirement for a daily intake of vitamins, minerals and protein. Therefore, even when in the fields, these animals should be limit-fed a daily supplement designed to meet these needs. This supplement should provide 16 grams of calcium, 14.5 grams of phosphorus and .5 pounds of protein per female per day, in addition to adequate vitamins and trace minerals.

For the first few days or even weeks, producers may want to limit the amount of time females are allowed to glean the fields. This will aid in preventing the animals from overeating and gaining too much weight. In addition, it will encourage consumption of the protein, vitamin and mineral supplement.

Growing-finishing swine allowed to glean fields should also be offered a protein, vitamin and mineral supplement to insure rapid gains. Even with adequate nutrition, finishing swine probably will not gain as rapidly as those in confinement due to the large amounts of energy expended in roaming the fields.

Regardless of the size or age of pigs in the field, adequate water is a must. Growing pigs can be expected to drink at least 1/4 gallon of water for each pound of feed consumed. For female swine, this figure is probably higher.

Hog numbers remain lower, prices to stay above costs

With pork supplies expected to continue below those of a year earlier for at least another nine months, there's a good chance hog prices will stay above the cost of production during this period, according to a University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension livestock marketing specialist.

Al Wellman based this projection on the USDA's September report of hogs and pigs, which, he said, contained some mild surprises.

Indications are that hog slaughter this fall will be larger than expected, while there is a sizable cutback in the breeding stock estimate.

The estimated 39.6 million hogs on farms Sept. 1 in 10 major hog-producing states was down 5 percent from a year earlier. Market hogs also were down an estimated 5 percent from a year ago, but breeding stock numbers were down an estimated 10 percent from 1985.

The weight distribution of the market hog inventory indicated more hogs for marketing this fall than expected from earlier reports, Wellman said. The USDA June 1 estimate for the 10 states had shown a 9 percent drop in hogs weighing less than 60 pounds. But the Sept. 1 estimates showed declines of only 2 percent or 3 percent on all weight groupings of more than 60 pounds. Most of these hogs are from the March-May pig crop, that was estimated to be 10 percent below the previous year.

"This creates some uncertainty about likely slaughter levels during the balance of the year," Wellman said.

HOG SLAUGHTER HAS shown some seasonal increase in recent weeks and will continue to increase during October, he said. However, volume should continue well below last year. Hog inventory estimates indicate fourth-quarter slaughter should be 4 percent to 6 percent below 1985, while the March-May pig crop estimate suggests the potential for a somewhat larger decline.

Slaughter also could be reduced by an increase in the holdback of gilts for the breeding herd, Wellman said. Hog slaughter should remain below a year earlier in the first quarter of 1987, based on the Sept. estimate of hogs on hand that weighed less than 60 pounds. A decrease of 7 percent to 9 percent is indicated, with volume also down seasonally from the previous quarter.

Wellman said that pork supplies in the second and third quarters of 1987 will be determined largely by the size of the pig crop during the September-February period. Sow farrowing intentions in the 10 major hog states are estimated by USDA at 9 percent under a year earlier for September-November and down 6 percent for December-February. Actual farrowings could vary from these intentions, particularly for the December-February period.

Prospects that hog slaughter and pork production will continue below year-earlier levels from now until mid-1987 are encouraging for hog prices, the extension economist said.

In looking at pork's competition, beef supplies for most of this period are also expected to be down moderately from the previous year. But supplies of broilers and turkey are likely to continue above year-earlier levels, he said.

HOG PRICES ALREADY have declined several dollars per hundredweight (cwt.), from late summer highs, Wellman said, reflecting a seasonal increase in slaughter and slower pork movement as retail prices — adjusted upward — Omaha market prices for barrows and gilts on Oct. 1 were in a $52 to $54 cwt. range, down from $63.50 to $65.50 a month earlier but still around $15 cwt. higher than a year earlier. Some further seasonal decline in prices is likely during the next few weeks.

Assuming fourth-quarter slaughter will be 6 percent to 8 percent under a year ago, prices may drop to around $50 by late October, with a fourth-quarter average in the low-$50 range, Wellman predicted. Some price strength is likely into winter, he said, with the first quarter average expected to be in the low to mid-$50 range. If September-November farrowings show the decline indicated by farrowing intentions, second-quarter prices should continue in the $50 range, he said.

With large feed supplies and low feed costs, prices at the levels forecast would indicate positive returns to hog producers over the next three quarters, Wellman analyzed. However, he cautioned that there's considerable uncertainty as to how quickly and how strongly the hog industry will return to the favorable returns since mid-1986 and expected into next year.

Moderate profits and large feed supplies will be strong inducements for expansion, Wellman pointed out. The main constraints on expansion appear to be the weak overall financial condition of many farmers and continued difficulty in obtaining adequate financing for livestock operations.

Despite these constraints, Wellman said he expects a modest turnaround in the farrowings to develop by this winter, with larger farrowing increases in the spring and summer of 1987. If this happens, larger pork supplies could put considerable downward pressure on hog prices by the last three or four months of 1987, Wellman concluded.

New crops added to conservation reserve

Senator Edward Zorinsky (D-Neb.) has won approval from a House-Senate conference committee of legislation adding alfalfa and other forage crops to the list of crops eligible for the Agriculture Department's Conservation Reserve Program.

The legislation, which makes a change in the 1985 farm bill, was included October 9 in a bill reauthorizing the Commodity Futures Trading Commission.

A compromise version of the CFTC bill — including the alfalfa amendment — is expected to be sent to the White House before Congress adjourns later this month.

Under the conservation reserve program, farmers are paid for retiring erosion-prone land from crop production.

Alfalfa and the other crops covered by the Zorinsky amendment are often planted in rotation with field crops and left in production for five years or more.

Yet the erosion-prone land on which these crops often are grown is not eligible for the conservation reserve because the crops are not classified as field crops.

At the same time, Zorinsky noted, farmers are discouraged from growing other crops by the 1985 farm bill's sodbuster provision, which denies federal subsidies to those who cultivate erodible land.

"Farmers are left with no crop to grow and a piece of ground that is highly erodible yet ineligible for the program created to remove such land from production," Zorinsky said. "It's a classic 'Catch-22'."

Zorinsky's amendment solves the problem by allowing farmers to bid land planted in alfalfa and the other crops into the conservation reserve.

The Zorinsky amendment also has been included in a massive catchall spending resolution that must pass before Congress adjourns.

the farmer's wife by pat meierhenry

It seems like only yesterday someone was waking me out of a sound sleep, with, "Sue, can I sleep with you?" That someone was my little sister, whose nightly ritual was to go from bed to bed, trying to get someone to let her in, sort of like musical beds. And always her teddy bear came with.

Ann was a bit of a surprise to our family, and we all spoiled her. Poor kid could never figure out who to side with when the rest of her siblings were engaging in warfare. She usually stuck with the underdog and if the fight suddenly went the other way, she did, too. She shed many a tear with the loser even though she usually wasn't an active participant.

Remember the "Weebles"? They wobbled, but they didn't fall down. They were once her favorite past time. She had an entire family (dog included) with a house, a car, everything the suburban family could want. She'd disappear for hours to play with them. Sometimes she even talked us "big kids" into joining in.

Over the years we've had many animals take up residence at the Big Farm. From dogs and cats to chickens and rabbits, Ann felt it was her duty to name them all, and what an imagination she had. I still remember two Easter rabbits by the names of "Popcorn" and "Sneaker". How about those for original?

As she became older, Ann graduated to larger animals. She decided she wanted to show a 4-H calf at the county fair, just like her older brother and sisters. So, we made what we thought was the tamesst choice, but that calf materialized into the orneriest one of the bunch. This was a sign of things to come and the wild disposition of Ann's calves became a long standing tradition. Every year we'd convince her to try one more time and every year she'd end up being led by the calf.

SHE HASN'T always been afraid of animals. Several years ago we raised and butchered our own chickens. While Kay and I were burying our heads in pillows, Ann and her young cousin Rebecca were dragging the beheaded chickens all around the yard. No respect for the dead!!

Annie used to be so cuddly. That was the one good thing about having to sleep with her, she always snuggled up. Now you have to catch her in the right mood and not everyone has figured this out. Mom tries to invent reasons like, "I read somewhere that when teenagers smart off to their parents, all they really want is a hug!!" Then she tackles Ann and wrestles her to the floor amidst protests of "Mom, you are so weird!!"

If you don't think television influences your children, let me relate how Sesame Street has affected my sister. A neighbor was babysitting for Layne Maas and Ann and they discovered a full cookie jar. She found them standing at the counter, on chairs, taking the cookies out one at a time, taking one bite out of each, and repeating, "Me Cookie Monster, Me Cookie Monster."

Now a young lady, Ann has made herself indispensable at the Farm. She is laundress, cleaner, car washer, lawn mower, and fashion consultant. No one sets foot out the door if they're not coordinated. That's the thing about Ann, you can always count on an honest opinion about your attire, good or bad. Dad says Ann's Utopian city would have a huge clothing store, a McDonald's, and a car wash.

Ann has waited impatiently for this birthday because one of the house rules is no dating until age 16. It's a well-known regulation to everyone at Winside High and we've all taken much glibbing about it. This past weekend Dad said, "Well, Ann, isn't it great to go out without worrying about whether or not your parents will find out!!" Happy Sixteenth Birthday, Ann. We love you.

Note: This column was again written by Sue Meierhenry. I think she's after my job! Our youngest now has a driver's license. And we have only two years left on the gymnasium bleachers. Amazing!

Put on hold

THE SOYBEAN HARVEST has stalled temporarily because of Saturday's rain mixed with snow, but look for field action to begin full force by the end of this week.

Anaplasmosis threatens cattle industry

Anaplasmosis, an infection that destroys red blood cells in cattle, sheep and goats, has been reoccurring in local areas throughout Nebraska for many years. The river bottoms and wet, lowland and wooded areas are ideal environments for the tick and horse fly, typical carriers of the disease, said Dr. Don Hudson, extension veterinarian, University of Nebraska West Central Research and Extension Center at North Platte.

Anaplasmosis is a constant threat in shipped-in cattle, and breeding cattle should be blood tested to eliminate carriers prior to purchase. Anaplasmosis must be considered in feeder cattle with severe anemia and jaundice, he said.

"Cattle that have had anaplasmosis and survived will remain carriers unless treated," he warned. "Cattle of all ages are considered susceptible, but animals less than 12 months of age are prone to have sub-clinical symptoms. Cattle one to two years of age will become acutely sick, but respond well to treatment, and mature animals two years of age and older will get the acute type. Some will die without responding to treatment."

Insects transmit anaplasmosis from one animal to another. The horse fly and ticks are the primary vectors, but mosquitoes and other blood sucking insects also transmit anaplasmosis. Veterinarians also have implicated contaminated needles, dehorning equipment and surgical instruments.

ANAPLASMOSIS interferes with the oxygen carrying capabilities of the blood, explained Hudson. Early symptoms are difficult to detect. One of the first clues is an animal that hangs back or is slow to move. Some cows will be found down following cold rain or snow storms. That would be the best time to have your veterinarian look at suspected animals. Later symptoms include a jaundiced condition (mucous membrane around eyes and muzzle turn white or yellow). Another advanced symptom may be a sudden change in an animal's behavior (a cow that has been gentle, for example, may suddenly charge people or other cattle).

"Aggressiveness often compounds the problem," said Hudson, "because an attempt to restrain a highly stressed renegade by roping may be at that time needed to finish him off."

Early detection and treatment are essential to minimize losses. A veterinarian experienced in handling anaplasmosis usually can diagnose from clinical signs but will recommend taking blood samples for laboratory analysis.

A vaccination program often will be recommended to protect the rest of the herd when cases are confirmed. Hudson suggested following the advice of the attending veterinarian, because each case is handled differently.

A vaccination program has been available for many years, but produced side effects to calves from vaccinated cows. Management improvements in recent years, however, has overcome most of the early objections.

VETERINARIANS will treat carrier animals, those that have been diagnosed as having had the disease and recovered, with antibiotics (through injection or in the feed).

"Each outbreak, however, will require choices to be made, based on effectiveness of the control program and the cost, so if you find anaplasmosis in your herd, work closely with your veterinarian," said Hudson.

Prevention and control measures usually include: control of insect vectors, strict sanitation procedures during vaccination, blood testing most or all of the herd, and withholding animals from sale until after recovery.

LOWER ELKHORN NATURAL RESOURCES DISTRICT

WHAT DO YOU THINK OF THE SEDIMENT AND EROSION CONTROL LAW?

Citizens of Nebraska now have an opportunity to comment on a proposed State Sediment and Erosion Control Program. The program, mandated by the state legislature, was developed by the Nebraska Natural Resources Commission to address our serious soil erosion problems. A public meeting Oct. 9 at Wayne State College was one of a series of meetings in which the Commission's personnel explained the plan and asked for public comment.

According to Tony Vrana, Chief of Planning for the Commission, the people of northeast Nebraska should be concerned with this plan, since this area has the highest soil erosion rates in the state. The erosion not only robs long range productivity of the land, but also costs taxpayers dollars by clogging road ditches, lakes and streams with sediment.

The state program defines acceptable soil loss limits, sets goals for completing necessary conservation practices and assists Natural Resources Districts in preparing their local programs by July 1, 1987.

An important part of the local NRD plans is to establish a complaint process to deal with land users who habitually abuse the land by causing erosion. In the complaint process, landowners can file written complaints with the NRD against a neighbor who is damaging them with sediments from excessive erosion. If the complaint is substantiated, the person complained against can be forced to do the necessary conservation work to control soil erosion.

For more information, or to comment on the program, contact the Nebraska Natural Resources Commission or your local Natural Resources District.

DO YOU WANT TO CUT YOUR TAX BILL?

.....PLANT TREES

The new Nebraska Agricultural Land Valuation Manual, amended and approved by the State Tax Commissioner this spring, contains a new method of assessing land value for property tax purposes that could provide the most significant incentive yet to plant and manage trees in Nebraska.

Prior to 1986, agricultural land that contained trees was not recognized as a distinct land use. Natural woodlands were classified as a subcategory of "Pasture" or "Shelterbelts" and taxed accordingly. Windbreaks and shelterbelts were taxed at the same rate as adjacent agricultural land. Now, many owners of lands containing trees may benefit from the new assessment method.

Under the new formulas, qualifying land containing trees is included under the "Wasteland" land-use category. Wasteland is valued at 5% of the average agricultural land value in a "Land Manual Area" (LMA). Wasteland values vary from $5 to $25 per acre, depending on LMA location. For many landowners the new method of assessing value for land containing forestland or shelterbelts could mean a substantial reduction in their property tax.

The following example illustrates how the new "forestland and shelterbelt" classification can affect property taxes:

Planted shelterbelt protecting irrigated corn field in north-central Nebraska. Assume cropland has an assessed value of $9.50 per acre and the local property tax levy is 2 percent.

Assessed value (old system) = $9.50 per acre
 Property tax (old system) = $9.50 x .02 = $0.19 per acre
 Assessed Value (new system) = $5 per acre
 Property Tax (new system) = $5 x .02 = $0.10 per acre

Not all land containing trees will qualify for the new "forestland and shelterbelt" classification, and land in this class has restrictions on uses. The change in classification for qualifying "forestland and shelterbelts" is not automatic. The old method of assessment for land containing trees will continue until the landowner applies and certifies compliance with the local county assessor's office.

Gary Hergenroder, Nebraska State Forester, is delighted with the new method of assessing value for tree covered land. "It provides a realistic approach to property taxation," Hergenroder said, "that should encourage better forest management and more tree planting in the future." "One of the major reasons given by landowners for removing woodlands and shelterbelts is high property taxes," Hergenroder adds, "Nebraska's woodlands and shelterbelts provide valuable benefits to the state including erosion control, water quality improvement, wildlife habitat, recreation, wood products, and beauty." The new system removes the "tax obstacle" and should encourage conservation of our tree resources for the multiple benefits they provide.

For more information, contact State Forester, Rasmussen, District/Extension Forester, Northeast Ag. Experiment Station, Concord, Nebraska 68728.

TREES FOR WILDLIFE — WILDLIFE PACKETS AVAILABLE

People who like to dabble in tree planting or devote small areas to wildlife should consider ordering a Wildlife Habitat Packet from the Lower Elkhorn NRD. The packets consist of ten trees of each of six species (60 total) and sells for $33. The special features of the packet are: 1. Variety with little expense; 2. You get two or three species that you can't get except in the packet. This year the Wildlife Packet includes: 10 Thornless Honeylocust, 10 Rocky Mountain Juniper, 10 Osage Orange, 10 Buckhorn, 10 Red Stem Dogwood, 10 Cotoneaster; 60 Total.

For people interested in windbreaks, and other larger plantings, Lower Elkhorn NRD maintains an inventory of 26 species of evergreens, hardwoods, and shrubs. The price of these trees is $8.25 per 25 ($33 per 100) until November 1. Planting service is available from Lower Elkhorn NRD.

Relaxation response method helpful in relieving stress

by Jeff Berger

Is that stress that you've been battling all week still causing you problems? If so, there are several things you can do about it: 1. Visit us at the Wayne Stress Prevention Center, 7 p.m. Thursday nights in Room 202 of the Wayne-Carroll High School; 2. Have us visit you and your group by contacting either Doug (375-2420) or Jeff (375-5289) at your convenience; or 3. Read this article and practice the technique that follows.
During the last two weeks, I have described two separate techniques that are used by many people under stress to relax. Creative visualization and progressive relaxation, fancy titles for two simple techniques, are exercises that can help you to reduce your anxious feelings if done regularly and faithfully for a period of time. If you would like a refresher on these two techniques, you can buy reprints of our last two articles in the Wayne Herald, you can contact us for copies, or better yet come in for a demonstration Thursday night.
This week, I would like to present an exercise that has really gotten a "bum rap" by many people who don't know what the technique is about. The Relaxation Response, a technique developed by Dr. Herbert Benson, is a form of what is commonly called meditation.

Now, before you giggle, grunt or turn the page let me explain what this technique is not. It is not an exercise which forces you to wear a white sheet, or even shave your head. No fresh fruit or flowers need be involved and you will not float off of the floor while doing it.
WHAT THIS technique does is to stimulate some deep relaxation, just as our previous two techniques did. The Relaxation Response has four basic elements to it. First, a quiet environment is needed. This can be any calm, quiet place that you won't be disturbed. Sound, even background noise, may prevent a proper relaxation response.
Second, a mental device is needed. This is a word or sound that is spoken repeatedly in a low, quiet voice. "One." Is suggested for simplicity. This is done to block all other sounds and to focus your concentration of basically the sound itself and nothing else.
Third, a passive attitude towards the exercise is needed. Don't force it and don't worry about if you are relaxed or not. If distracting thoughts occur, let them pass on.
Fourth, a comfortable position is needed. Reduce your muscular effort to a minimum, but try not to lie down. Sleep is not the objective here. Sit in a chair, prop your feet up a bit, loosen tight clothing and support your head, if you like.

Now you are ready to relax. Close your eyes. Relax your muscles by using the technique we discussed last week. This was to tighten and loosen muscles starting from your feet to your head. Make sure all muscles are deeply relaxed.
Breathe through the nose and become aware of your breathing. As you breathe out, say the word "one" silently to yourself. Thus, breathe in, breathe out with "one," over and over again.
Continue this for 20 minutes. You may open your eyes to check the time, but no alarms. When you've finished, come back slowly, sitting quietly for several minutes.
Are you relaxed now? If not, don't fret. These techniques need to be practiced regularly to work their best. HOW IMPORTANT ARE SCHOOL ACTIVITIES
The emphasis on improving student academic achievement has raised some questions about the value of extracurricular activities. Many people insist that these activities take valuable time away from academic learning and have no place in the school. Other people claim that students who participate in activities have good achievement and attendance records.
There is more rhetoric than reason in some arguments about traditional extracurricular activities. However, the place that these activities should have in the school has not yet been settled. Let's look at the question "Are school activities important?"
•Activities provide motivation for students who participate as well as for students who do not participate by addressing the human needs to belong, to be recognized, and to associate with others.
•Activities enable parents to see their children in performance situations.
•Activities give students an opportunity to express themselves and to develop certain talents, abilities, and skills.
•Activities add variety, interest, and even excitement to a school program.
•Activities bring a dimension of play to study and learning.
The reasons usually given for eliminating student activities include the following:
•Activities cause students and teachers to miss academic class time.
•Activities sometimes become more important to the student and his or her parents than the need to study.
•Activities are an expense that should not be levied on those who pay for the schools.
•Some activities are too competitive, and only a small percentage of students actually participate.
•Professional educators should not be required to use their valuable time sponsoring and supervising school activities.
A DECISION EACH PARENT MUST MAKE INDIVIDUALLY
It's obvious that these arguments do not make a clear-cut case for either keeping or elimination of student activities. Thus, each parent will have to arrive at his or her own decision about them.
However, student activities can be worthwhile in bringing a degree of variety and interest to the school day. And they do provide motivation for students to attend school. But these activities should not interfere with the reason we have schools in the first place for the academic program.
The philosopher Terence once wrote, "The golden rule in life is moderation in all things." And that is perhaps the best advice we could receive about school activities.

Jets will appear at Wayne State

The pop musical group The Jets will bring its Top 10 hit "Crush on You" to Wayne State College of Nebraska on Thursday, Oct. 23, in the college's Fall Concert.
The 8 p.m. concert, sponsored by the Student Activities Board (SAB), will be held in Rice Auditorium. Persons will be admitted beginning at 7 p.m. Limited Warrantry, a band from Minneapolis, will open for The Jets.
Robin-Yong, SAB programmer, said tickets would go on sale Oct. 13 in the lower level of the Wayne State Student Center. Tickets for the general public are $10 in advance and $11 the day of the concert.
Wayne State students will be admitted free with a valid identification card.
The Jets is composed of eight children from the Mike and Vake Wolfgramm family. Their ages range from 11 to 19. They originate from the islands of Tonga, a nation in the South Pacific 2,000 miles southwest of Hawaii. They emigrated to Salt Lake City where they began their musical careers.
The band members—Roy, 19; Eddie, 18; Gene, 17; Haini, 16; Rudy, 15; Kathy, 13; Elizabeth, 11, and Moana, 11—performed in Polynesian shows with their parents and other relatives from 1973 to 1983. It was then that the group phased out the Polynesian show in favor of their current pop and rock style.

NEOPA to conduct fall state conference

Keys to professional success is the theme of the fall state NEOPA (Nebraska Educational Office Personnel Association) conference at Wayne State College of Nebraska Saturday, Oct. 25.

The meeting begins at 8:30 a.m. in the Brandenburg Education Building and adjourns at 3:15 p.m. The conference is open to all office personnel of any Nebraska school or college, according to Jeanne Ann Kardell, spokesperson for the conference's organizing committee at Wayne State.

The keynote speaker is Carol M. Spencer, 1986-87 president of the National Association of Educational Office Personnel, whose address is "Keys to a Successful Organization." Spencer, secretary at Madison Elementary School in Davenport, Iowa, is past president of the Iowa Association of Educational Office Personnel. She has given workshops and seminars for local, state and national associations and businesses.

Three workshops will be presented at the conference. Spencer will talk about successful staff relations; Dr. Jack Imdieke, associate professor of business at Wayne State, will speak about trends for the future; and representatives of the Nancy Bouds Modeling Agency will talk about self-improvement.

The cost for the conference including lunch is $15. Persons may pre-register by calling Sharon Fleece at Wayne State at 402-375-2200 during office hours. NEOPA was organized in 1964 to help promote education by improving the quality of office personnel service to the schools, Kardell said.

faculty accomplishments

Listed below are some of the recent professional accomplishments of the faculty and staff of Wayne State College of Nebraska.

Dr. Irvin Brandt, professor of chemistry, conducted science in-service sessions for teachers of ESU 1 in Wakefield on Sept. 30 and Oct. 10. Dorothy Weber, Teaching Learning Center, gave a presentation on Sept. 26 to the Wisner-Pilger vocational English class entitled "The Structure of Writing."

Kent Blaser, division head of social sciences, served as chairman and commentator for a session on "The History of Urban Nebraska" at the annual Northern Great Plains History Conference in Eau Claire, Wis.

A one-person exhibition of sculpture by Ray Replogle, associate professor of art, opened Sept. 28 in the Art Department gallery at Kansas State University in Manhattan.

Dr. Catherine Rudin, interim associate professor of humanities, attended the University of Minnesota's conference on Linguistic Accommodation and Style Shifting in Minneapolis Sept. 12-13.

Marge Holland, Teaching Learning Center, was a presenter at the ESU 2 in service meeting held at Fremont High School on Aug. 23. Holland's topic was the "6 W's and the How of Teaching Study Skills."

Dr. Jon Putnam, associate professor of education, was recently elected to the state board for Nebraska Special Olympics. The board governs all Special Olympics activities in the state.

Marlene Mueller, assistant professor of art, had a one-person show of her paintings at the Witter Gallery in Storm Lake, Iowa. Mueller presented a gallery talk at the opening reception on Sept. 11. The show ended Oct. 3.

Area members listed

The 113-member marching band at Wayne State College of Nebraska is the largest it has ever been, according to Gary Davis, band director.

The band is the second-largest marching band in the state, behind only the University of Nebraska-Lincoln marching band in the number of members.

"What's surprising is that only about 30 percent of the band are music members," Davis said. "The remainder of it is made up of all other academic majors who just enjoy participating in band."

The Wildcat band marches in several parades and at all Wayne State home football games and at least one road game each season.

The band's big activity this fall is performing at halftime of the Nov. 16 Minnesota Vikings-New York Giants NFL football game in the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome in Minneapolis.

The day before (Nov. 15), the band will play at Wayne State's football game against the University of Minnesota-Morris in the day-long Metrodome Classic.

Area Wayne State band members include:

Flutes — Michelle Sherlock and Lori Anderson of Wayne. Clarinets — Kerri Leighton of Winside, Julie Met-teer of Wayne. Saxophones — John Pflanz of Belden. Tenor Saxophones — Dan Chase of Wakefield. Horns — Darla Hartman of Wakefield. Trumpets — R. J. Metteer of Wayne, Susan Coulter of Winside. Trombones — Susan Boeshart of Emerson, Cara Dahlquist of Laurel. Tubas — Phil Monson of Wayne. Percussion — Dean Fuelberth of Wayne. Flags — Sonja Skokan of Wayne.

Beginning December 1, 1986, ninety-day sessions shall commence at 10 a.m. on the fifth Wednesday after the general election in each even-numbered year and sixty-day sessions shall commence annually commencing at 10 a.m. on the first Wednesday after the first Monday in January of each even-numbered year. Commencing in 1986, the terms of members of the Legislature shall commence on the first day of the regular ninety-day legislative session and the preceding terms shall terminate on such date. LEGAL NOTICE OF MEASURE TO BE VOTED UPON NOVEMBER 4, 1988

BALLOT TITLE AND TEXT OF A REFERENDUM PETITION

Proposed Amendment No. 2

A vote FOR this proposal will make several changes in and additions to the Legislature's impeachment procedure as follows: (1) add a provision that such proceedings may be initiated in either a regular or special session; (2) add a requirement that impeachment resolutions give reasonable notice of acts or omissions alleged to constitute impeachable offenses; (3) change from 30 days to 15 an expeditious fashion the time within which the Chief Justice is to convene the Supreme Court to try the case after receiving notice of the adoption of an impeachment resolution (for other than a judge of said court); (4) notice of impeachment of Chief Justice or member of Supreme Court issued on clerk (instead of any judge) of Lancaster County district court, who will choose at random 7 district judges from the state to meet in Lincoln, within 30 days to sit as court to try the impeachment (rather than having 1 judge of the Lancaster county district court notify all district judges in the state to convene for this purpose); (5) add a provision that an impeachment case is to be brought in the name of the Legislature, be managed by 2 senators, be tried as a civil proceeding, and generally disallowing invocation of the privilege against self-incrimination; (6) adding a provision that an impeachment conviction must be based only on direct and convincing evidence indicating guilt of an impeachable offense; and (7) repealing the current provision stating that drunkenness shall be a cause of impeachment and removal from office.

A vote AGAINST this proposal will mean that the above described changes in and additions to the present provisions relating to the Legislature's impeachment power and procedure will not be made and they will remain as presently written.

"A constitutional amendment to provide changes in the impeachment procedure.

Upon determination by him or her that the signatures are sufficient, the county superintendent shall transmit the petition to the Board of Education of the Class I school district which may have the issue placed on the ballot at the next primary or general election. The petition shall specify the school district to which the Class I school district is to be affiliated.

Approval

of a proposition to close an elementary school attendance site shall require a majority of all qualified electors voting at a special election called for such purpose.

If such school district divides and the various portions join more than one elementary school district pursuant to this act, such elementary school attendance site shall not be closed unless a majority of the voters who, on the date of the election provided for in this section, reside in the portion of such school district, as the boundaries of such district existed prior to the reorganization, which contains such elementary school attendance site vote to close such site.

For purposes of this section, elementary school attendance site shall mean an elementary school site in a school district which has been required to merge with or become a part of another school district pursuant to section 1 of this act or section 79-701.

(3) All ballots shall be prepared and the election shall be held and conducted by the county clerk or election commissioner and the expense of such election shall be paid by the county board. The county clerk or election commissioner shall use the duly appointed election board or appoint two judges and two clerks who shall be qualified electors of the territory of the school district as the school districts existed prior to reorganization. The election shall be held at a place or places within such school district which shall have been determined by the county clerk or election commissioner to be convenient for the voters.

(4) When the elementary school attendance site which is proposed to be closed involves a school district under the jurisdiction of more than one county, the county clerk or election commissioner of the county which has the largest number of pupils residing in such district shall give the notice required by subsection (2) of this section in a newspaper of general circulation in the territory of such district, and prepare the ballots, and such election shall be held and conducted by the county clerk or election commissioner of each county in such district in accordance with Chapter 32. Each county board shall bear a share of the total election expense in the same proportion that the number of electors residing in such district in one county stands to the whole number of electors in such district.

Sec. 14. The Attorney General shall file a petition under section 25-21.149 seeking a declaratory judgment from the Nebraska Supreme Court on the constitutionality of the election provisions in section 12 of this act.

Sec. 15. Following a reorganization governed by section 79-402, the Reorganization of School Districts Act, or sections 79-426.23 to 79-426.26 in which a school district has attached itself as a whole to a Class II, III, IV, or V school district or has become a part of a Class VI school district, a class action may be filed against the school board of such Class II, III, IV, or V school district in district court if an elector in the school district of an elementary school attendance site, as such district existed prior to reorganization, has reason to believe that the school board in charge of such site is neglecting to provide reasonable educational opportunities or is neglecting to maintain the building site properly. If neglect is found, the court shall determine how such conditions at such site shall be improved.

Sec. 16. A family whose children attend a Class I school district, which has merged, affiliated, or approved a plan for merging or affiliating with an existing Class II, III, IV, or V school district, may submit a request in writing to the county committee for the reorganization of school districts for hardship status. The county committee shall, upon such request, and may recommend the approval or disapproval of such request and submit the request and its recommendation to the State Committee for the Reorganization of School Districts for final approval. The county committee shall include in its recommendation the school district to which it believes such children should be assigned. In considering whether to recommend the approval or grant final approval of hardship status, the county and state committees shall consider the following factors:

- (2) The distance from the family's residence to the school attendance site which the students will attend after the merger or affiliation and the estimated travel time to and from such attendance site;

79-498. To be entitled under section 79-494 to nonresident public school education in the tenth, eleventh, or twelfth grade of any public school district maintaining such grade, a pupil must have a certificate signed by the county superintendent of the proper county that he or she has completed the course of study for the preceding grade, and that he is unable to secure instruction in the next advanced grade in the public school district of his or her residence, except; PROVIDED, that when a school district is annexed to or merged with another district, the board of education of the annexing district may pay the tuition in the amount provided for by section 79-4102 of students who at the time of such annexation are attending high school in a district other than such annexing district, for such time as may be necessary to complete the prescribed high school course for graduation in such other district. When a school district is merged with another district pursuant to section 79-4102 of this act or section 79-701, the county superintendent of the school district receiving the highest number of students who at the time of such merger are enrolled in high school grades as defined in section 79-101 and are attending high school in another district for such time as may be necessary to complete the prescribed high school course for graduation in such other school district.

Sec. 34. That section 79-701, Revised Statutes Supplement, 1984, be amended to read as follows:

79-701. (1) A Class II school district shall be created whenever a Class I school district determines by a majority vote of the electors to establish a high school.

(2) The members of the school board serving when it is decided to establish a high school shall continue in office until the first Tuesday in June following the next statewide primary election at which election a six-member board shall be elected. The three receiving the highest number of votes shall be elected for a term of four years and the three receiving the next highest number of votes shall be elected for a term of two years.

(3) If a Class II district, by a vote of fifty-five per cent of the legal voters voting at an annual or special meeting, decides to discontinue the high school and close the same, the district shall thereupon become a Class I district on the date designated by such voters. At such meeting a decision shall be made as to when the new board of education shall be elected and whether the board shall consist of three members or six members. No new Class I district shall establish a six-member board unless the district contains a minimum of one hundred fifty students. The board of education shall vote to change from a Class II district to a Class I district or to remain in office until the effective date for the formation of the new Class I district.

If the new board of education is to consist of three members, such members shall be elected at the time the members vote to change from a Class II district to a Class I district or at any annual or special meeting held not less than thirty days prior to the effective date of the change from a Class II district to a Class I district. At the annual or special meeting, a treasurer shall be elected for a term of one year, a secretary for a term of one year, and a president for a term of three years and a majority of their successors shall be elected for the term of three years and all officers so elected shall hold their offices until their successors are elected and qualified. After such change becomes effective, the district and its officers shall have the power and be governed by the provisions of law applicable to the Class I school district.

If the new board of education is to consist of six members, such members shall be elected after school district electors have voted to change from Class II district to a Class I district. The procedure for electing board members shall be as prescribed in subsection (2) of section 79-601, except that such elections may be held at any annual meeting or at a special meeting called for the purpose of electing school district officers.

(3) (4) No school district may change from Class I to Class II unless that district has an enrollment of not less than one hundred pupils in grades nine to twelve. This subsection shall not apply to any district located on an Indian reservation and substantially or totally financed by the federal government.

(5) If for three consecutive years the average daily membership of an existing Class II district is less than twenty-five pupils in grades nine through twelve or after July 10, 1984, if for one year an existing Class II district contracts with a neighboring district or districts to provide educational services for all of its pupils in grades nine through twelve, such district shall, except as provided in subsection (4) of this section, become a Class I district. The vote of the county superintendent if the high school is within fifteen miles on a reasonably improved highway of another high school. This subsection shall not apply to any district located on an Indian reservation and substantially or totally financed by the federal government.

(4) Any Class II school district maintaining a four-year high school which has an average daily membership of less than twenty-five students in grades nine through twelve for three consecutive years and which is within fifteen miles, on a reasonably improved highway, of another high school, except a school district located on an Indian reservation and substantially or totally financed by the federal government, shall be dissolved and attached to an existing Class II, III, IV, or V school district to be made a part of an existing Class VI school district within one year of such three-year period pursuant to sections 1 to 5 of this act or may contract with another district to provide educational services for its pupils in grades nine through twelve. Such contract may continue for a period not to exceed three years. At the end of such three-year period the district may resume educational services for grades nine through twelve if the projected enrollment average daily membership in grades nine through twelve for such district has reached at least fifty students, except that after July 10, 1984, a Class II district may contract pursuant to this subsection for a period of only one year and at the end of such one-year period the district may resume educational services for grades nine through twelve if the average daily membership in grades nine through twelve for such district has reached at least fifty students. If the district has not achieved such average daily membership, it shall become a Class I district as prescribed in subsection (4) of this section and be dissolved by the county superintendent.

Sec. 35. That section 79-1107, Reissue Revised Statutes of Nebraska, 1943, be amended to read as follows:

79-1107. If subject to section 6 of this act, if the high school in a rural-high school Class VI school district is disapproved by the State Board of Education and the legal voters fail to vote to discontinue the high school in that district, the legal voters of any Class I school district in the rural-high school Class VI school district may vote at an annual or special meeting to withdraw from the rural-high school Class VI school district and if fifty-five per cent of the legal voters of said such Class I school district shall mean an expanded or altered school district, organized or altered by any of the means provided by Nebraska law, including, but not limited to, the methods provided by section 79-402, 79-403, 79-407, 79-426.02, or 79-801.

AN IMPORTANT NOTICE TO OUR AGRICULTURAL BORROWERS:

Most Nebraska farmers already have some concerns over the 1985 Farm Bill. What most Nebraska farmers don't know is that buried deep in the 1985 Farm Bill is language that does nothing but pile on miles of red tape, not only for farmers and ranchers who rely on operating loans from Nebraska lenders, but for the lenders themselves. What's more, the new law may even restrict the flow of agricultural credit to those who need it most.

Section 1324 of the new law is very technical and complex. But in effect, it preempts an important provision of state law which enables lenders to rely on crops and livestock as collateral. The new law will require direct "prenotification" to buyers of farm products that a security agreement exists between the farmer and the lender and that a farm product lien is in effect.

Under the new law, if you have an agricultural loan secured by your crops or livestock, you will very likely be asked by your lender to provide a list of the potential buyers of your product (collateral). Your bank, in accordance with the new law, will notify potential buyers that a lien may exist.

It is important for you to know the law also states that if you sell your farm products to someone not named on your list, you may be subject to a $5,000 fine or a fine equal to 15% of the value of the farm products, whichever is greater, unless you account for the proceeds within 10 days after the sale.

WE WANT YOU TO KNOW THAT THE BANKING INDUSTRY STRONGLY OPPOSED THIS CHANGE IN THE LAW FOR MANY REASONS:

INCREASED COSTS:
Because most notices will have to be sent by registered mail, the new law drastically increases the cost of servicing your loan. In most cases, these costs will be passed on to you, the borrower.

NEGATIVE IMPACT ON AG CREDIT:
It does nothing whatsoever for the farmer or rancher, and in some cases, may result in the denial of credit to some borrowers.

PAPER WORK BARRAGE:
It will result in a tremendous "paper blizzard" of notices sent to grain elevators and livestock dealers who will be responsible for keeping track of literally thousands of lien notices.

UNNECESSARY DISCLOSURE:
Farmers and ranchers who have agricultural loans will have their names and other loan information circulated to buyers of farm products who may or may not have a business relationship with the farmer or rancher.

We are working hard to supply the agricultural credit that our farm customers need. But new laws such as this one undermine a bank's ability to meet this need. We wanted you to know about this new law before it takes effect December 24, 1986.

This problem can be solved in a special session of the Nebraska legislature. We urgently ask everyone involved in agricultural production to visit with your banker about this issue and to contact your state senator and ask them to support Central Indexing legislation that will enable Nebraska to solve this problem. Remember, the new law affects everyone involved in agricultural production—the borrower, the lender, and the buyer—and something needs to be done soon!
