Bereuter, Burns give viewpoints

This second of a series of articles features the questionnaire answers submitted by Republican Doug Bereuter and Democrat Steve Burns, both opposing each other in the First District Congressional Race.

What areas would you like to see pursued in the areas of the future farm programs?

Bereuter: Federal farm programs should seek to boost prices by protecting and developing both domestic and foreign markets. They should insure that the food and fiber needs of the nation will be met by assuring farmers an adequate return for producing those necessary commodities. However, we must eliminate incentives to overproduce by limiting excessive payments to the very large corporate and non-corporate farms, and by targeting payments to "traditional" family owned and operated farms that constitute roughly 25 percent of the total farms and which contribute 49 percent of the total production. We must also implement effective and appropriate supply management programs in order to reduce grain surpluses and control production.

Since the farmer relies heavily on U.S. agriculture exports, farm programs should aggressively promote and stimulate our export markets. It is essential that farm programs permit the U.S. to be competitive in the world export market. While increasing U.S. agricultural exports alone will certainly not be the total solution to our current farm problems, it would be difficult to implement any effective farm programs unless we maintain a substantial agricultural export base.

Finally, farm programs should be designed to encourage rather than compete with soil and water conservation goals. We must continue adequate funding for new and existing conservation programs. We must also continue to pursue ways to ease the debt crisis facing farmers and small businesses, a crisis which in large part resulted from external factors over which farmers had no control. Also, our tax, trade, fiscal and monetary policies should complement farm program objectives.

Burns: I believe that the implementation of short term production controls are necessary to obtain a fair price for the farmer's product. The national debt is also an area that could be used to improve the farm program. The national debt contributes to interest rates and trade. Interest rates to farmers would be about a third less if the deficit was eliminated and our exports of commodities would be a third greater.

Clearly, the elimination of the deficit and the reduction of the national debt would help farmers reduce their costs through lower interest rates on loans. Our farmers should not be forced to participate in federal programs which do nothing to help them make more income.

The '85 farm bill mandated participation of all farmers. Even though a record number of farmers participated in the program, it failed to attain its goals. Any effective farm program should not force farmers to participate in it since I feel that the less-reliant farmers are on the government, the better.

Do you agree with the tax reform set-up? If yes, why or not, why not?
Burns: I agree with the spirit of the tax reform movement, but have trouble with the current tax bill before congress. The kind of tax reform that support is that which will restore the goal of the tax code to that of ensuring that every corporation and individual taxpayer pays their fair share of taxes.

I oppose the current tax bill because the theme of the bill is tax avoidance rather than tax collection. We ought to stop tinkering with the tax breakers.

Targeting tax reform at specific tax tools has problems. First, those who are utilizing those techniques will battle to retain them. Most of the current tax breaks have a reasonably good philosophical basis.

Second, by addressing specific tax practices, only a limited segment of society is affected. Sooner or later, taxpayers gravitate to those tax breaks which allow them to avoid taxes.

I would support establishing a minimum tax which applies to all taxpayers. The minimum tax technique would permit the utilization of the artificial tax incentives, but would maintain a tax obligation for all taxpayers.

This would insure that all businesses and persons would pay their fair share of taxes which would avoid the tax inequalities of the past. I also believe that the current tax bill before congress will cost the government money rather than being revenue neutral.

Since the new law is drastically different than the current laws, the cost of implementing it would run into the hundreds of millions. Clearly, the congress should have at least made provisions to cover the added costs of implementing the bill.

Bereuter: I voted for the recent tax reform bill that has been signed into law as did the overwhelming majority of my colleagues in the House and Senate. The new tax bill is, on balance, a set of sweeping changes that are, in general, in the best interest of the country and most Nebraskans. We've talked for many years of the need for tax reform. Now we have an opportunity to put the motion in process.

Despite some problems, the new tax bill should benefit family farmers

LARRY AND KAREN SHERER harvested close to 7,000 pumpkins this year.

On acreage near Wakefield

Sherer produces bumper crop of pumpkins

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing editor

Larry Sherer and his family have found a way to make some money farming their land this year.

One of this area's biggest pumpkin patches, so to speak, was on the Larry Sherer acreage northeast of the Wakefield ballparks.

On the 18 acres or so of farm ground, the Sherers planted an acre of pumpkins. On another acre, butternut squash. They added another acre of acorn squash. Some nine acres were planted with young trees (about 4,000, with 3,250 surviving, of Blue Spruce, Douglas, Austrian, White Pine, French Blue Scotch and Scotch 33 plants), to be later sold as potted trees or Christmas trees.

A small portion of the 18 acres (about an acre) was set aside as garden space and a small orchard. There were about three acres filled with sizeable evergreens.

Sherer had 12 acres of alfalfa on this same property last year. He didn't make any money with his alfalfa crop, and he feels the same about corn and beans.

"Corn and beans sure aren't going to do it for me. Neither is hay," he said.

At least this year, Sherer is looking at coming out ahead with his land that was converted to tree plants, squash and pumpkin crops.

HIS YIELD OF pumpkins is estimated at close to 7,000 collected from the vines. Squash, he said, filled about 250 large onion sacks that weighed an average of 60 to 70 pounds.

All of his produce has primarily gone to local markets. He had an opportunity to sell his entire crop of pumpkins, loaded up by the semi-load, to firms in Canada or Omaha. But he scoffed at that idea, indicating that his intentions were to "sell to the local people."

He said about a quarter or more of his pumpkin crop has been picked up, mostly during the past two weeks, by individuals who have jack-o-lanterns, other decorations or perhaps a pumpkin pie in mind.

Sherer said he is negotiating to sell those pumpkins (not sold during the next few days) for cow feed. He said pumpkins are sometimes fed to cows to help them calve easier.

Most of the pumpkins he sells currently to individuals are the smaller sizes — ones that are about five inches to eight inches in diameter. His crop didn't produce the "monster-size pumpkins" and that is fine with Sherer.

Most people want a pumpkin that they can carry, he said.

HE PAID about $60 for the seeds of the pumpkins and squash. Other investments consisted primarily of a Troybuilt hand tiller, which passed through the three acres of vine crops about twice, and lots of hard work.

"I lost 21 pounds working the ground and harvesting it," said Sherer.

"It's a lot of work. But what money goes in my pocket is way more than planting 1,000 acres of hay, beans or corn," he mentioned.

No spraying was done on the bountiful crop of pumpkins and squash and he used no fertilizer. He said the picking of the pumpkins and squash was done during his two week vacation. Sherer is employed

Other crops worth consideration

By Christine Anderson
UNL Journalism Student
Producing alternative crops would create new markets for Nebraska farmers and their communities, according to Charles Francis, professor of agronomy at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Developing new markets would boost the farm economy and make farm communities more efficient, he said.

There is an increasing concern about the narrow spectrum of crops produced and marketed in Nebraska, Francis said.

The surplus of corn, sorghum, and soybeans and a drop in exports have caused grain prices to fall and many farm communities to suffer, he said. Alternative crops such as sunflowers, dry-edible beans, onions and millet may be grown to partially replace some of the common crops grown in Nebraska.

Francis said that Nebraska currently imports 67 percent of all the food it consumes. By growing much of these imported crops ourselves, processing and packing plants could be developed, he said.

This would create more jobs in the community and open up more markets for the farmer, Francis said.

FOR EXAMPLE, some farmers are beginning to plant dry-edible beans instead of soybeans, said Warren Saha, assistant director of the Agricultural Experiment Station at UNL.

Still, Nebraska spends $2 million importing dry-edible beans annually, he said.

Saha said the "much of this (dry-edible beans) can be grown, processed, and sold here within the state."

Retail prices also would decrease for the consumer because of lower transportation costs, he said.

But alternative farming "is no easy approach," Saha said. Most Nebraska farmers are used to producing one major crop.

Farmers have to develop new farming systems, he said. A wider range of equipment is needed for the production of alternative crops.

Many farmers are in a "cash grain crop mentality," Francis said.

"For people to do something differently, it's a big step. He said most people are equipped to grow corn, sorghum and soybeans."

Francis said that "there is no quick fix for the economy."

Although alternative farming may help, he said, research still needs to be developed and markets need to be analyzed before producing different crops.

Parent-teacher conferences scheduled

Wayne Community Schools have scheduled Parent-Teacher Conference this year on November 6 and 7.

School will dismiss on Thursday, November 6 at 2:00 p.m. Buses will run at that time. Conferences will commence at 2:15 on Thursday and conclude at 4:45. To allow each parent ample time conferences will be scheduled according to parents last name.

Thursday evening, November 6, has been set aside for parents who cannot attend afternoon conferences.

On that evening, conferences will begin at 6:30 and continue until 9:00 p.m. There will be no school on Friday, November 7, as conferences will continue throughout the day.

The schedule is as follows:

*Session I-Thursday, November 6: 2:15-4:45 p.m. Parents whose last name begins A-I.

*Session II-Thursday, November 6: 6:30-9:00 p.m. Open conferences for parents who cannot attend afternoon conferences.

*Session III-Friday, November

7-8:30-12:00 a.m. Parents whose last name begins J-R.

*Session IV-Friday, November 7: 1:15-4:45 p.m. Parents whose last name begins S-Z.

Conferences should last no longer than 15 minutes each. Teachers will be located in classrooms and National Honor Society members will be present to assist parents in locating all staff at the high school. Refreshments will be served at all buildings.

Parents are requested to comment to teachers regarding the success of the conferences.

Wayne Carroll Middle School will follow the same format as the high school. Elementary school conferences for Wayne and Carroll will also begin at 2:15 p.m. and will be scheduled for parents as they have in the past. Kindergarten conferences will begin on Thursday morning. Parents will be notified of the scheduled time.

Buses for all students will run at 2:00 p.m. on Thursday, November 6. There will be no school on Friday, November 7.

and ranchers in the long run. When fully implemented, it will result in a more equitable tax system which will discourage the "farming" of the tax code by non-farmers who really are only seeking tax shelters. That's what farmers and agricultural organizations have been asking for now for many years!

For too long, our Federal tax code has encouraged over-production of surplus commodities and poor farming practices which have hurt traditional family farmers who depend on agriculture for a living. Eliminating these tax provisions which are detrimental to family farmers has long been a priority of nearly all farm and commodity groups. Accordingly, most of them expressed their general support for change.

The bill will encourage individuals and small and large businesses to make financial decisions on the basis of economics and good business practice, rather than giving the top priority to shielding income and assets from taxation. This should move a much larger share of the nation's private resources into productive endeavors — thus further stimulating economic growth and job creation.

I would have liked income-averaging provisions maintained for farmers, and I am concerned about a change in the capital gains tax rate at this time in Nebraska and the Grain Belt. It could cause even more agriculture land to be put on the market for sale before Jan. 1, 1987.

Some farmers will also miss the use of the investment tax credit although that is the item so effectively used competitively against them by non-farm competitors. Moving income from a profitable year to the next will also be difficult.

While some refinements will undoubtedly be necessary in the future, Congress should avoid drastic changes in the tax code for a reasonable period of time until the overall impact of the reform can be measured.

How much should the Administration be spending on our national defense?

Bereuter: The first priority of a national government is to protect the security of its citizens. U.S. policy, therefore, must be based on a realistic view of the world and the guarding of America's national interests. Harsh realities demand that we be militarily strong.

However, this does not mean that we can or should be locked into a steadily escalating arms race, for it is in the best interest of all nations to limit development of, and, if possible, reduce the number of nuclear weapons. We must, for example, move the U.S. away from a reliance on the most destabilizing nuclear weapons — the fixed-point, land-based, multiwarhead ballistic missiles such as the MX and encourage the USSR to do likewise.

While I am committed to a strong national defense, my voting record over the past years will show that I have consistently tried to balance my support for a strong military with the economic realities facing our country and that there is considerable waste in the Defense Department that can be eliminated. I have been an advocate for revamping our procurement policies and practices as an important step toward eliminating wasteful spending. I will not give the Defense Department a "blank check" to spend whatever they propose.

In terms of spending for defense, the recently passed DOD authorization bill includes budget outlays of $277 billion for this fiscal year. This represents about a 1 percent increase above last year and, thus, is consistent with the level of restraint imposed on balance for domestic spending.

Burns: Over the last five years the budget for the Defense Department has increased about $134 billion. Too many dollars have been spent to achieve mostly marginal gains in our military capacity. Improving our defense program is not simply a matter of spending more money, but of spending it more intelligently.

In a new era of fiscal austerity, we need to ensure that every dollar spent on defense goes to further a coherent strategy for maximizing our power. We must bolster our defenses at a measured pace, one that is politically and economically sustainable. We simply cannot afford the amount being spent on defense.

It is necessary that we start programs only when we can afford to buy them at efficient rates. The need for a strong military should not mean indiscriminate cuts in social programs.

In what ways can the federal government join forces with local and state governments in bringing on economic growth for survival?

Burns: I would support the Small Business Administration (SBA) adopting a two tier plan of refinancing for borrowers similar to that proposed by the Farm Bureau for agriculture. This program from the SBA would provide the mechanism of saving established businesses. The SBA should focus its attention on historically good and profitable businesses which are having economic difficulties resulting from the farm depression. It is easier to retain a business than it is to develop a new business, particularly in the small towns of Nebraska.

The tax reform proposals that were passed by Congress are aimed at eliminating some of the tax incentives which are available to small businesses and which allow them to exist in bad economic times. Such things as the elimination of investment tax credits, extension of depreciation schedules, loss of certain interest deductions, and elimination of deductions for state and local taxes.

I feel that right now is not the opportune time for the small businesses of Nebraska to eliminate those tax tools. Along with my plans to improve the farm economy, this plan for helping small businesses will insure the survival of Nebraska's rural communities.

Bereuter: The serious deficit problems that face the federal government have resulted in Federal support to local communities. As tough as those decisions have been, I think most Nebraskans accept the fact that the Federal Government simply does not have the funds to share with local communities that it once did. We are in a transitional phase as state and local governments decide how or whether to continue programs that were at least partially funded by federal expenditures.

But it will always be important for federal, state and local governments to work in a cooperative fashion on matters that affect our communities. As a Congressman, as a former state official, and State Senator, I have spent many hours meeting with county commissioners, supervisors and other local and state officials to see who we can work together on projects.

I point with pride to my enacted Groundwater Recharge and Demonstration bill which is a direct outgrowth of my visits with state and local water resource officials. In this case, federal funds will be used on research and development of various groundwater-recharge techniques in the Great Plains.

I have also been particularly effective in bringing discretionary federal funds back to the First Congressional District. Whether it be Federal assistance for the Norfolk senior citizens' center, watershed projects, or a $1 million grant to aid farmers-in-transition (to name just a few), I have seen to it that First District Nebraskans obtain their share of Federal grant funds even during a period when we've seen a decline in Federal support to local communities.

In fact, I have brought more discretionary funds to the First Congressional District than anyone in history.

As one of a relatively small number of representatives in Congress who represents rural states, I have also been working to adapt Federal programs in a way that benefits rural communities. A case in point is the Urban Homesteading Program — which is now benefiting several non-metropolitan First District communities, thanks to my efforts. That is a pilot project for the whole nation.

Sherer

at Waldbaum's as Transportation Manager. His wife Karen is employed in the payroll department at Waldbaum's and his son, Joedy, is an assistant to the dock foreman at the same place.

Sherer and his family were totally surprised at the number of pumpkins that came off the one acre of ground. "Who'd of thought we'd get this many!" he said.

But even if the entire crop of pumpkins doesn't sell, having one of the largest pumpkin patches in this area hasn't hurt his sales of squash and the potted tree plants.

He has gained publicity about his large harvest of pumpkins through local television and print media. People visit the pumpkin patch, make their pick of the pumpkin they want and meanwhile, can glimpse at the trees and the squash.

Some of the squash he has harvested has been placed in a storage cave on the acreage, where temperature and air movement allows the produce to last considerably longer. Previously, the storage cave had been an old cattle crossing underneath a railroad. Sherer just fixed it up to his specifications.

Sherer hears comments from some people who joke about the number of pumpkins remaining which are evenly laid in rows on his acreage. However, he dismisses the conversation as something said by "a lot of people who don't know enough about it."

"I didn't plan on selling them all," he said, adding that he could have sold his entire crop immediately to Canada and Omaha. "But I wanted to help out the local area," he mentioned.

His plans next year for the acreage are indefinite. Already he has ordered 950 tree plants and Joedy has ordered 2,500 tree plants.

He feels confident that the alternative crop is the route to go at the present time. He is making some money with the venture, he continued to stress. And he encourages other farmers to try an alternative crop.

"It doesn't have to be squash. It could be asparagus or cucumbers," he said.

"Six years prior to this, this land was mostly alfalfa. And on a good crop of hay, I'd only break even," Sherer said.

This year, the tree plants, squash and pumpkins have turned that situation around for the better.

What effort would you make, and how would you prefer seeing it enforced in regard to cracking down on drug abuse?

Bereuter: Shortly before adjournment Congress passed sweeping drug abuse prevention legislation. The bill contains many provisions designed to assist officials in interdiction of international drug shipments, eradicate drug crops, and increase penalties for producers and distributors. The bill also contains grants to states for drug abuse treatment and rehabilitative services, and the development of community based substance abuse prevention programs.

Other provisions include: requiring bus and truck drivers to have national driver's licenses, allowing financial institutions to report certain types of suspected criminal activities by depositors to law enforcement personnel, and requiring the White House to convene a conference on drug abuse and drug trafficking within six months of the date of enactment.

While not perfect, and far too expensive and uncoordinated in approach, this bill should significantly strengthen the ability of our local and Federal law enforcement officials, schools, parents and communities to reduce the use of illegal substances and bring greater control over a situation that has grown into a national emergency.

The best efforts of Congress and the United States will not solve the drug problem, however. I believe the most important and effective weapons in the battle against alcohol and drugs are prevention through education and tougher punishment for drug pushers. The drug abuse bill contains both provisions that stress prevention and get tough provisions.

I am particularly pleased, for example, that my Indian Youth Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Prevention bill was incorporated into the omnibus drug legislation. My legislation, aimed at Indian youth, stresses the need for prevention education. If we provide our children with the information, tools and assistance to recognize their own worth, they can better fight their own battles on the drug and alcohol front.

Burns: The federal government must play an active role in stopping the flow of drugs across our borders. We must work with the governments of Central and South America in their efforts to control the drug trade.

The responsibility of the individual in resisting drugs must also be stressed. Our society can no longer be tolerant or have a permissive attitude toward drug use and trade. It is very important that we get the message to our young people, through the government and the entertainment industry, that drugs are very dangerous.

The nation's school systems and work places must be made free of drugs. Those individuals who have become addicted to drugs must be offered assistance in breaking their destructive habit.

I feel we can have a drug free society without limiting the freedoms we now enjoy.

Why do you consider yourself as the best candidate for this position?

Burns: The state of Nebraska is at a crossroads. Farming as our parents knew it will never return — farming as our children shall know it will be much different than it presently is. We have, therefore, a responsibility to ensure our children have the opportunities that our parents passed on to us.

The problem becomes how best can we guarantee that the future for our children is a good one. I do not pretend to have all of the answers to the farm crisis. Nevertheless, I am committed to finding a fair and equitable solution and will not give up, whatever the odds.

The people of this state can make those decision which will ensure a bright and better future for our children. The decision to be made this November 4 is whether or not to place someone in the Congress who is willing to listen to the people of Nebraska and will try to enact their wishes or have the same inaction that yields no results.

I am the best candidate for Nebraska's First Congressional District because I have faith in the people of Nebraska and will represent that faith by working hard to see that things in Nebraska get better.

Bereuter: I have represented Nebraska's First District for eight years. As a result, I am half way up the seniority ladder. That will continue to increase my effectiveness in Congress and on key committees important to Nebraskans on matters of exports, agriculture, credit, housing, water resources and community development. During my four terms in Congress, it has been my priority to work well with Republicans and Democrats and with the White House under Presidents of both parties. I have tried to place the best interests of America, Nebraska, and the First Congressional District before partisanship, and I believe that approach to problem solving has made me an effective legislator who can produce results for his constituents.

I am proud of my successes in Congress. More of my legislative language in bills and amendments have been made a part of law than any other member of the Nebraska Delegation in either House. I have also brought more discretionary Federal money back to my District than any First District congressman in history.

It was my 1986 amendment which limited the possibility of future grain embargoes and strengthened contract sanctity for agricultural export sales. President Reagan signed my bill to provide for a series of groundwater recharge demonstration projects in the Great Plains. And my Indian Youth Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Prevention Bill is now a part of the Omnibus Drug Bill which the President will sign into law.

Helping our troubled agricultural economy has been and will be, one of my top priorities. Because of my hard work on agriculture trade issues, on both the House Foreign Affairs Trade Subcommittee and the National Agricultural Trade and Export Policy Commission, I am proud to point out that a recent publication includes me among a list of 45 TRADE WARRIORS in the House — the only one said to emphasize the export of agriculture products. Apart from the legislative initiatives I have pursued, I can point to several other success achieved this year alone.

A. I worked with FMHA to encourage them to expand and modify their loan restructuring policies. Many of the provisions in the ag credit bill that was vetoed last year were later adopted by FMHA. I also assisted in getting additional staff and resources (i.e. local funds) allocated to Nebraska to cut the backlog and processing time for loans.

B. Because of my efforts, for the first time in the nation, a new pilot program to aid borrowers of a failed Nebraska bank was launched in October of 1986. The Farmers Home Administration has agreed to guarantee $9 million in loans which were left with the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation when a Nebraska bank failed this summer. I initiated meetings and discussions with the FMHA and FDIC officials that led to the decision to proceed with a pilot project. If it works in this instance, the program will be emulated elsewhere throughout the Great Plains. It should keep the rug from being pulled out from under those borrowers who have difficulty finding a credit home after the local bank was closed and reopened under new ownership.

C. I went to bat for state officials and helped secure a $1 million grant from the Department of Labor under the Federal Job Training Partnership Act. The grant will be used to provide job training, job seeking and relocation services to 600 Nebraskans who have experienced hardship due to the troubled agricultural economy.

I ask the voters' support in my reelection to the Congress in order to continue the work begun eight years ago. The people of the First District have an investment in me, and I am pleased to have the opportunity to carry their hopes, dreams, frustrations, and common sense to Washington, D. C. for action. Together we have helped shape and will continue to help shape the destiny of this great American republic.

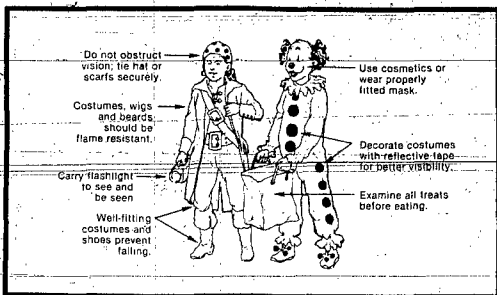

Recommended to dress light, bright Safety tips for Halloween

The U.S. Consumer Safety Product Commission has some Halloween safety tips for parents and guardians of children who plan to go trick-or-treating this Halloween:

- Warn children not to eat any of their treats before they get home. Examine all treats carefully for evidence of tampering before allowing children to eat them.
- Look for costumes, masks, beards and wigs labeled "Flame Resistant." Although this does not mean these items won't catch fire, such labeling indicates that they will resist burning and should extinguish quickly once removed from the ignition source. Flimsy materials and outfits with big, baggy sleeves or billowing skirts should be avoided to minimize the risk of contact with candles or other sources of ignition.
- Make or buy costumes light and bright enough to be clearly visible to motorists. For greater visibility in dusk or darkness, costumes can be decorated or trimmed with reflective tape which "glow" in the beam of a car's headlights. Bags or sacks should also be light colored or decorated with reflective tape. Reflective tape is usually available in hardware, bicycle, and sporting goods stores. Children should also carry flashlights to see — and be seen — more easily.

- Costumes should be short enough to prevent children from tripping and falling. Children should wear well-fitting, sturdy shoes. Mother's high heels are not a good idea for safe walking.
- Hats and scarfs should be tied securely to prevent them from slipping over children's eyes.
- Apply a natural mask of cosmetics rather than have a child wear a loose fitting mask which might restrict breathing or obscure vision. If a mask is used, however, make sure it fits securely and has eyeholes large enough to allow full vision.
- Swords, knives, and similar costume accessories should be of soft or flexible material.
- Smaller children should always be accompanied by an older responsible child or an adult. All children should use the sidewalk rather than walk in the street, and they should WALK not run from house to house. Children should be cautioned against running out from between parked cars, or across lawns and yards where ornaments, furniture, or clothes lines present dangers.

• Children should only go to homes where residents have outside lights on as a sign of welcome. Children should not enter homes or apartments unless they are accompanied by an adult.

• Those receiving trick-or-treaters should remove anything that could be an obstacle from steps, lawns and porches. Candelill jack-o'-lanterns should be kept away from landings and doorsteps where costumes could brush against the flame. Indoor jack-o'-lanterns should be kept away from curtains, decorations, or other furnishings that could be ignited.

A step ahead

Parent-Teacher Conferences are about to take place in the Wayne Schools. Conferences are just one of the steps we are taking to work with parents to build their child's educational program. They serve as an opportunity to get to know teachers, learn about the school and curriculum, and to discuss strengths and weaknesses in various areas.

Parents can prepare for the conferences by making a list of things that will help the teachers understand your child better. For example: any special health needs or problems, outside interests and hobbies, feelings about school relationships with brothers and sisters; etc. In addition make a list of things to find out from the teacher. For example: discipline policies, grading policy, daily schedule, homework policy, health and safety programs, etc.

Within the conference teachers will tell parents test results and what they mean, what subjects are being taken and how he/she is doing, strengths and weaknesses in school and any observations that can be helpful. The teachers may also have some suggestions or ideas to be used at home to help at school.

When the conference is over parents will have a better understanding of all aspects of the child's school experience. They will know more about strengths and weaknesses, special abilities, current performance, and should have a plan to help children do their best from then on. This could mean new rules on watching television, special time to do homework, contact with other agencies if necessary, or any other changes agreed upon by teachers and parents. Maybe even a special reward for a job well done!

Everyone benefits from a Parent-Teacher Conference! Parents learn new things about their children and get some ideas on how they can help their children do better in school, teachers understand each child better, and do a better job of meeting each one's educational needs, and most importantly the child receives a better and more personalized education.

We're working hard to make your conference a special one! See you then!

Seat Belt Choice

An important issue coming up on the Nov. 4th election is the Mandatory Seat Belt Law. I faithfully wear my seat belt and encourage others to use them too. I also do not believe government should tell us to wear seat belts or face a fine. There is a limit as to how far government should be involved in making daily decisions in our lives.

If we, the voters of Nebraska, do not repeal this law in November, my question is when and where will the government control stop?

It is our responsibility in November to repeal this law. So let's buckle up, but let's go it by choice. If Nebraska voters decide to repeal the state mandatory seat belt law, federal transportation dollars won't be in jeopardy. Secretary of Transportation Elizabeth Dole said, "That's a state matter," said Mrs. Dole. "We won't withhold funds" if the laws are repealed she added. The federal government has threatened to cut off funding to states that fail to enforce the 55 mph speed limit.

So let's get out and vote against the seat belt law and keep our freedom of choice.

Name withheld upon request

ELECTION PREVIEW

EDITOR'S NOTE

Nebraskans will be voting on four issues when they go to the General Election polls on Nov. 4. So that voters can better understand these important proposed changes to the state Constitution, the Nebraska Press Association in cooperation with this newspaper has prepared a series of reports on each of the issues. Each report deals with a single issue, briefly defining it, explaining its purpose and finally stating the arguments for and against. This is the third report in the series.

4-YEAR-OLD SEAT-BELT LAW GETS VOTER TEST

Referendum 401. Repeal of mandatory seat belt law.

"Shall section 1 of Legislative Bill 496, enacted by the Eighty-Ninth Legislature of the State of Nebraska in its first session, the purpose of which is to require any driver and front seat passenger of a motor vehicle operated on a street or highway in the state of Nebraska to wear a safety belt, be retained?"

PURPOSE: The measure is a voter test of the state's year-old mandatory seat belt law. The law, which requires the driver and front seat passenger to wear a safety belt or face a $25 fine, was passed by the Legislature during the 1985 session. It took effect in September, 1985. A vote "for" Referendum 401 will retain the mandatory seat belt law. A vote "against" Referendum 401 will repeal that law.

SUPPORT: Seat belt supporters believe the numbers speak clearly. Countless studies have proved that wearing a seat belt reduces the risk of death by 50 percent and the risk of injury by 60 percent. And government has had a stake in the health of its citizens. For it is tax money which provides rehabilitation services for the severely injured and often helps support the families of those killed.

During the first year of the state's mandatory buckle up law, the number of injury accidents declined by 6.5 percent and the number of people injured declined by 8 percent, according to Fred Zwonechek, administrator for the Nebraska Office of Highway Safety. "That's the lowest rate for passenger vehicles since 1972," he said.

Mandatory seat belt laws work, supporters to Referendum 401 say. Nebraska's law is fairly weak. The fine is only $25. The driver loses no points on his or her violation record, and a seat belt citation can be issued only if the car is stopped for suspected violation of some other offense. Yet seat belt usage in the state increased from 11 percent to between 37 to 46 percent after the law took effect.

OPPOSITION: Registered voters, upset by the passage of the mandatory seat belt law, gathered the 27,395 petition signatures necessary to get the issue of repealing of the law on the statewide ballot.

Freedom of choice is the heart of their opposition. Opponents do not quarrel with the safety statistics. But mandatory seat belt laws are an unjustified intrusion of government into personal lives they contend. "I just wonder when Big Brother is going to come into our bathrooms to see if we have brushed our teeth," said Sen. Richard Peterson of Norfolk, during debate on the bill.

Opponents also believe that mandatory seat belt laws have been pushed through 25 state legislatures by new car dealers and manufacturers who do not want to install air bags on future cars. The Department of Transportation has said it will lift its requirement that future cars be equipped with air bags if two-thirds of the states adopt mandatory seat belt laws by 1989.

For four state offices

Name recognition a factor in races

Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association
Nebraska voters will elect more than a woman governor in early November. They will also select a state treasurer, auditor, attorney general and secretary of state.

But these races are about as dry as range land in a normal Nebraska August.

The four offices, established by the Constitution, seldom attract much attention. The issues are few, and campaign donations scarce and the general interest minimal.

Thus the key to victory in any of these statewide offices is named recognition. Newcomers to politics, unless they have money for television advertising, seldom have a chance.

In two of the races — auditor and secretary of state — the Republican incumbents, who have both served 16 years, are shoe-ins. Their opponents hardly have the cash to buy space on one billboard.

The treasurer's race has no incumbent. Current treasurer Kay Orr has her eye on the governor's mansion. However, name recognition is still the major factor and the Republican candidate has a surname that has been associated with Nebraska politics for six decades.

Even in the Attorney General's race, where both candidates are fairly new to politics, the name is still a major factor. August polls showed that the man who has held the job for 16 months has the edge.

Here's a capsule description of each race.

• SECRETARY OF STATE — Harold Stein, an Omaha substitute teacher, is trying to unseat veteran Allen Beermann, an attorney by education who has spent 22 years working in the Secretary of State's office. For the past 16 years he has been Secretary of State. Stein, 27, expects to spend less than $1,000. Though Stein is optimistic, most campaign watchers expect an easy victory for Beermann.

• AUDITOR — David A. Wilken, 38, wants to be the state's last auditor. Wilken, executive director of the South Omaha Neighborhood Assn. and a member of the Omaha Board of Education, believes the auditor should be appointed by the Legislature, not elected. Though he expects to spend about $10,000 on the campaign, Wilken will need a miracle to unseat Republican Ray A. C. Johnson, 63. The Johnson name has been winning auditor races for 48 years. Johnson has been auditor for 16 years. His predecessor, who held the post for 32 years, was Republican Ray C. Johnson (no relation).

• TREASURER — Democrat DiAnna Schimek has shaken hands across the state and expects to raise and spend $50,000, an enormous sum for a treasurer's race. And she has pointed out that an official state audit showed that her opponent maintained higher than necessary balances in some state accounts and thus lost the state about $500,000 in interest earnings.

But Schimek, 46, a former school teacher and former state chairman of her party, still has an uphill battle. Her opponent, Republican Frank Marsh, 62, has been the state's lieutenant governor, secretary of state and treasurer. And his father, Frank Sr.

was secretary of state for 16 years. Marsh, who has traveled far less than Schimek and who expects to spend only about $12,000, admits that name recognition is part of the process. "The people must think there is integrity associated with me."

• ATTORNEY GENERAL — This race between two competent attorneys with differing styles will be the most costly. Both candidates need to increase their name recognition. Democrat Bernie Blaser, 37, has been working full time on his campaign. A former prosecuting attorney with the Lancaster County Attorney's Office and the U.S. Attorney's Office, Glaser hopes to raise about $45,000 for his campaign and set foot in every county.

Robert Spire, 63, an Omaha attorney who was appointed to the post in 1985, has waged a low-key but active campaign stressing his civic and work record. But his campaign has not been cheap. He spent over $100,000 in a very close campaign and will likely add another $20,000 in general election campaign expenses.

For Army, Navy, Air Force, Merchant Marines

Bereuter seeks names for academies

Each year I recommend a select group of high school graduates for admission to the U.S. service academies for the Army, Navy, Air Force and Merchant Marine. The nominations are made strictly on a competitive non-partisan basis by a committee of community leaders from around the district. Applicants must be residents of the First Congressional District between the ages of 17 and 21. If you are interested, call or write my District office for more information. Complete applications must be in by November 15.

included a provision that I have fought long and hard for which will provide full funding for the universal immunization campaign and other activities carried out through the Agency for International Development's Child Survival Fund. That fund helps hundreds of thousands of children in developing nations to survive disease, infection and malnutrition who otherwise would not survive. The direct beneficiaries of the legislations will be some of the nearly 40,000 children who currently die each day from the complications of malnutrition and hunger.

It describes signs of drug abuse and suggests what parents can do; lists topics and learning activities to be presented in schools; describes the legal ramifications of the schools' taking an active role; lists many of the drugs that are available, how they are used, their street names, and their effects; and provides a variety of sources for additional help and information.

Dracula
There once lived a dracula in a spooky castle. Every night he turns into a bat and on a full moon he turns into a wolf.
On a dark rainy night he went down to his laboratory. He was in a bad mood.
Then he said to himself I am going to make the scariest monster in the whole world.

Then at night he turned into the bat and went to dig some dead bears, he took the bones of the bears. Then he went to kill a lion and took its heart. Then he went to kill a rhino and took its brain.

He took them all back to his castle and put them back together. He needed some flares from the sun. So he went to get the flares. He got some and he brought it back.

He put them together again and put them on a table. He picked up a sharp wooden stick and stabbed himself in the heart. He walked to the body he made and layed himself on it and died.

Progress on Halloween

One week before Halloween we decided to build a big clubhouse for Jack and me. Dad, Jack and I were going to paint it.

The color of the clubhouse was going to be black and white like a ghost.

Two days before Halloween we only had the frame up. I asked Dad why couldn't we finish the clubhouse today? He said he didn't have time.

The night of Halloween we only had the frame up. Jack and I went to go trick-or-treating. When we left, the scariest ghost, dracula and the wolfman came to the house and they finished the clubhouse.

When Jack and I got home, we went to the backyard. We saw the scariest ghost in the world: Jack was scared, so was I, Jack and I ran to the house.

We told Dad and we ran outside to the backyard. The ghost, dracula and the wolfman were gone. The frame was only up. Dad said we were imagining, but I don't think so.

Halloween Night

It was Halloween night and my friends and I had decided to have a party. It was going to be at my house and we were inviting all of our friends.

When everyone arrived, we went to see a movie called The Night the Witches Came Out. It was about some witches that lived in an old haunted house. When trick or treaters knocked on the door, they went inside and were never seen again.

That night when we were walking home, we saw this old house that looked just like the one in the movie. We decided to go inside to see what it was like.

When we got up to the steps, a shutter slammed shut. We all jumped off the porch and screamed. I said it was probably just the wind. But there wasn't any wind.

Everybody dared me to go inside by myself. I was afraid but then I told myself there wasn't such a thing as a witch or ghost. That didn't help much, but I went in anyway.

When I went in the floor dropped from beneath my feet. It was just like the trap door in the movie. I tried to scream, but I couldn't. I was so afraid that I couldn't yell for help.

Like the kids in the movie, I was never seen or heard from again, until the day they tore the old house down. They found me buried beneath the house.

My Sister and My brother

It was a late night. I was coming home from working. When I got home, I went to sleep. "Knock Knock". It was the door and it was a lady with a black hat, and a broom. I was scared and she took me. It was a mystery.

She took me to a black room. Then a man came in and it was a ghost.

They were going to kill me. I found a phone and I called the police. They caught me and the ghost saw the police. They started to chase the police. I found the police and they were scared.

We all ran to a safe room and made a plan. We caught the lady and the ghost.

It was my brother and my sister. It was a joke. Ketta Lubbersfeldt

HALLOWEEN

Haunt-a-thon

Halloween

It was the night before Halloween. I was looking for a costume. The store was closing. I had to hurry, but it was too late. I was locked in. I was very scared. I heard strange noises, like bats, owls, mummies and vampires.

So I decided to take a look around. I followed the sound of the mummies. There it was a huge mummy.

I was so scared I ran into an owl. I stopped and studied the owl. It was only a robot. Then I followed the sound of the bats. There were dozens of bats. I was scared to death. I stood still but it didn't help. They were attacking. But I managed to escape.

I fell asleep for two hours. When I woke up, I saw a vampire. He was running to the doors. He set off the alarm and I heard it. So I got up and started running for him.

I finally caught him. When the morning came the store manager came and saw who I had caught. He said he was wanted for murder. So we called the police. They gave us a reward.

The Eerie Sight at District #51

On Halloween night everybody had costumes. So with a sack in each hand, Krista and I set out. We had to cross a little part of #51 playground to get to the 20 houses with all the candy.

So while we were crossing the playground something white ran from one tree to another. Then the school got an eerie, green, spooky kind of foggy glow. Then the ground shook. There was a loud rumble. Krista and I didn't know what to do so we just sat down to watch. The green glow turned to red, then purple, then blue, and to green again and so on. With our mouths wide open Krista and I watched in horror.

Then all of a sudden a car ran off the road and nearly hit us. When the driver stepped out, one of his eyeballs was hanging out. We looked at the school. That's where the one eyed creep was going. A vampire crept around the corner. A witch flew over head. Krista and I were so scared we ran home as fast as we could.

When we got home we were glowing too. Then when it was after mid night on Halloween, everything disappeared.

The Real Nightmare

"Little girl, what exactly happened?" Asked Mr. Crebs from the local police department.

I was still in shock and sweat was still pouring down my forehead so I didn't reply right away. Then I managed to say, "It all happened so fast."

"Yes, but please tell me what happened," asked Mr. Crebs.

I didn't feel like talking at that moment because the scratches on my back stung and I was still shivering rapidly in the blanket that was around me.

"If you are not going to answer I'll just have you come back tomorrow," said Mr. Crebs as he turned away.

"No wait," I yelled, "I'll tell you." "If you are sure you are O.K.," he replied.

"Yes," I said. Then I began to tell him my story:

It happened on October 31, Halloween. It was a dark and spooky night. My friend, Jackie and I were going to trick-or-treat. We hit every house in the town except one. It was the oldest house in town. I didn't want to go there because it looked just like the houses in Halloween stories that vampires and ghosts lived in.

But Jackie made me come so we rang the doorbell on the door.

The door swung open with a creak. We both decided to go home. As we turned around we heard a voice that said: "If you come in we'll have a big surprise for you!" Jackie loved surprises so she yanked me by the arm and pulled me in. But there was nobody to be found. We walked through a long corridor filled with cobwebs.

Then Jackie grabbed my arm and she screamed "RUN!" So I ran after her up some stairs. We ran into a room and shut the door. I asked her what she saw. She told me she saw a vampire, witch, and a mummy. I didn't believe her. We turned around and there they were!

I opened the door and I ran as fast as I could but the witch caught up to me and tried to grab me. She missed but her fingernails pierced into my back. I screamed.

The witch turned back and I heard Jackie yell, "HELP ME!" I paused but kept going. I tried the door but it was locked. So I hid behind the old sofa. Sweat was pouring down my forehead and neck. I heard Jackie scream. I thought to myself, this isn't happening.

I dozed off. I woke up later and it was morning. I ran upstairs and found Jackie lying on the floor. I thought she was dead. I dropped to my knees and yelled "This has to be a dream!"

Then the police came, the neighbors heard screams, and called them. And it ended up that Jackie was just unconscious and she's in the hospital.

Mr. Crebs said thank-you and left. That was the end of my real nightmare. We never found out who did it and its been a mystery ever since.

Fun to Fatality

Hi! My name is Andrea Nelson. My friends call me Andie. My friends' names are Nickey, Mandy, and Joe. You could say we are the most popular seniors of our school.

For Halloween this year we are going to have a little fun by trick or treating. In our own way that is.

October 31st, it was the time to put our plan to work. Nickey would pick us up at 8:30 sharp. We put fake blood all over us to make us look as though we were badly beaten. But what started as a joke became a fatality.

We were driving around, going up and down the streets. We turned off the main road onto a country road. We drove about a mile.

Then, before our own eyes was a man. I slammed on the brakes, but it was too late. We stepped out of the car, but there was no one.

We got into the car and drove off. To the left was another figure. I stopped again, I hit him, this time there was someone. We all got out to see if he was all right. He was not hurt. He stood up, grabbed Nickey by the neck and began to strangle her. Nickey pulled her hand up to his face. Put her nails into his skin. Blood running down his face he dropped her to the ground. Then he just seemed to fade away.

Joe, Mandy and I just watched. Nickey's eyes were filled with terror, tears were running down the side of her face.

We got back into the car. There wasn't enough gas to get us home. We stopped at the gas station. There he was, the man we had seen before. We drove off as quickly as we could.

The Haunted Night

James Halloween was in the navy. He was in the war. James hated children. He also lived by a school. The children would walk around his house because they were afraid of him.

One day two big boys dared a little girl and boy to spend the night in the house or they would hurt them. So the little boy and girl went into the house so they wouldn't get hurt. John was the little boy and Sally was the little girl.

There were snakes and mice and skeletons all over the place. Sally saw a man hanging by a rope. His eye balls were on the floor beneath him.

So they went upstairs and they saw a big hole in the floor. In the hole was a swamp of snakes and lizards. All of a sudden a skeleton was walking up the steps and was saying "Go now or die." They got scared and ran away. When the got home they heard a kind of a laugh. It was like this: "Ha! Ha! Ha! Ha! Ha! Ha!"

There was a mean witch. She had the itch for three years. It made her very mad. She didn't want to go outside because she didn't want anybody to see her with her itch during the day. At night the witch will come outside. She will fly around on her broomstick then. I will be watching her during the night in the sky, but she will not see me. On Halloween she will not have the itch. Also on Halloween the witch will come outside and she will tell us her name, the Itch Witch.

Horrors of the Haunted Museum

On one foggy dawn, a guard at the Williamsberg Museum saw a big hole in the museum wall. He went outside and didn't see the hole. But it was still inside!

The guard sounded the alarm and called an inspector. He was busy but came that night. By that time the hole was gone.

After about an hour he said he would stay over night. That night when the inspector was asleep the guards heard eerie noises. They ran through the whole museum and didn't find a thing. So they went to wake up the inspector but he wasn't there. In fact, the room wasn't there, just a big hole!

Years have past and still nobody knows what happened. Some people think that the room was built on a graveyard. Others think martians destroyed it. I guess we will never know.

We went into the haunted house. It was cold and dark inside. We went upstairs. I saw the windows shaking and a dog was howling. We were scared. We ran downstairs. There was a ghost and goblin following us. We ran outside and down the street as fast as we could. We hid behind a tree. The ghost and goblin went running past us. The sheet caught on a free branch. The ghost was Tim and the goblin was Tom. We all started laughing.

Mandatory checkoff set for nation's pork industry

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing editor

On Nov. 1, the new national legislative checkoff for pork producers begins.

And there may be some pork producers who will be dissatisfied with the new national check-off program, according to two Wayne County pork producers.

Dale Harrison of rural Wakefield, who is president of the Wayne County Pork Producers, said there may be a lot of pork producers not happy about the program. "They feel that they are being forced into the program and that it should be voluntary," Hanson said.

Effective on Nov. 1, all the nation's pork producers will be required to check off all classes of swine at a rate of .25 of 1 percent of gross value. And for the first time, importers of hogs and pork products will also participate in the program.

Hanson, in giving his personal feelings about the checkoff, says the new checkoff requirement was needed.

The current program has been voluntary in most states. Some hog producers have taken the attitude of "leaving it up to someone else to promote the pork product," according to Hanson.

And Canadian people selling pork products in the United States were not volunteering for the checkoff program.

UNDER THE new program, all U.S. pork producers, as well as importers, are required to invest their fair share in industry programs and projects through the checkoff. "After all, we all share the profits [for the pork promotions]. We should all share the expenses," Hanson mentioned.

The new checkoff is expected to generate approximately $18 million annually, compared to the $10 million that has been collected under the largely voluntary program.

Under the new checkoff, hogs are assessed only once in each class (feeder pig, market hog or seedstock). Generally, markets (including packers and dealers) are responsible for collecting the checkoff, except in the case of seedstock and farm-to-farm sales.

In the case of seedstock, the seller or breeder is required to remit the checkoff. The new law requires the buyer to remit funds in farm-to-farm sales.

Individuals can still get a refund on their checkoff dollars. And a referendum of all-pork producers (to decide whether or not to continue with the mandatory checkoff) will take place 24 to 30 months after the new checkoff goes into effect.

Those who seek refunds from their checkoffs can also vote on the referendum.

The new 15-member National Pork Board, appointed earlier this month, will have the responsibility of collecting the checkoff and deciding how the funds will be dispersed. It is expected that the board will contract out specific projects and programs to existing industry organizations, including the National Pork Producers Council.

Hanson believes in advertising the pork industry. "I feel there is never too much advertising. And now we are going to have a lot more money to use in promoting our product," he said.

"I'm optimistic about it. It will be interesting to see if it works and if it does really help us," he added.

Dick Sorensen, a representative of the Nebraska Pork Industry Group Directors, National Livestock Meat Board, said the mandatory checkoff is "a move to get 100 percent participation."

The mandatory checkoff will provide more dollars to promotion and research. "It should do us a lot of good," Sorensen said.

He said nationwide polls have shown about 80 to 85 percent of the pork producers favoring the mandatory checkoff. "It is one of the better investments as pork producers that we can make," he said.

The National Pork Board has the primary responsibility of enforcing the new checkoff. Failure to comply with the collection requirements could result in fines of up to $1,000 for each unreported sale, and the payment of 1.5 percent interest per month on late payments.

THOSE WANTING their checkoff dollars returned can gain refund forms from the National Pork Board and from state pork producer association offices. Requests for refunds will be honored until 30 days after the month of sale. If the referendum is approved, no refund will be offered from that point on.

Council hears proposal to become city's fiscal agent

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing editor

Wayne's city council continued their research on who would best represent the city as fiscal agent for upcoming projects — this time listening to a presentation made by a representative from Shearson Lehman Brothers, Inc., Charles Heider Division.

Bill Beavers, representing the public financing and investment banking firm, presented a proposal to the city council.

"Out of the 29 first class cities in Nebraska, we represent 12. That's more than any investment banking firm in the state," Beavers told the council members.

He added that the company has worked with about 70 percent of the financing of Nebraska public school districts. "Practically every public power entity in the state we are currently working with or had worked with in the past," he said.

Some of the scope of services which Beavers said his company will provide includes financial consulting; development of financial plans; preparation of documents and supporting financial papers; and the marketing of securities.

"During the past 15 years, he said the company has represented the State College of Nebraska system.

Recently, Beavers said the company worked with the state college board of trustees and Wayne State College officials in obtaining interim financing to provide for the construction of the Rice-Carlson expansion project on the Wayne State College campus.

Shearson-Lehman Brothers, Inc., Charles Heider Division has also worked with hospitals in Norfolk for remodeling and equipment purchasing. He also mentioned numerous other cities, public power entities and school districts that the company has worked with in the past.

"We are very interested in your business. Otherwise we would not be here," said Beavers.

Board of Trustees of Nebraska State Colleges member J. Alan Cramer of Wayne gave Shearson Lehman Brothers, Inc., Charles Heider Division high marks when speaking to the city council (following Beaver's presentation) in regard to the work the company has done for the state college system.

Cramer expressed satisfaction with the attention, representation and the counseling given by Beavers' firm.

The city council took no action on the selection of a fiscal agent. City Administrator Phil Kloster, when asked if there was an immediate decision needed on who would be the city's fiscal agent, replied that there was no time frame.

In other action, the Wayne city council took steps to retain the financing it receives from the Nebraska Department of Economic Development Self-Funding Program.

DURING 1984, the Department of Economic Development began providing low interest loan money that was made available to businesses for the primary purposes of creating more jobs. Repayments of the loan would be made to the city, to be distributed toward financing more economic development within the city of Wayne.

Now, the state of Nebraska is considering recapturing the loan repayments (instead of the payments going to the cities) and the state, not the local government unit, would decide how the repayments were to be again distributed.

Kloster said that if this happens, the city of Wayne will be standing in line for this type of funding, with everyone else.

Linda Brown, executive vice president of the Wayne Chamber of Commerce and of Wayne Industries, Inc., also discussed the revolving loan program with the city council. She cited several examples of how the revolving loan funding has helped businesses in Wayne (listing the Dairy Queen, Restful Knights and Timpfe).

She added that the city should continue retaining the repayment money from previous revolving fund loans and asked that the council take steps to assure that the future repayments would stay in the local community.

Attention all voters:

Remember when the Nebraska Supreme Court reversed the death penalty for Robert Hunt, Jr. of Norfolk?

He stalked Beverly Ramsport, broke into her home, stuffed clothing in her mouth, strangled her, raped her and drowned her in the bathtub. He was to receive the death penalty for this crime.

But the Supreme Court decided this crime was not "heinous" or "atrocious" or "cruel", and reversed the death penalty.

Voters in Dixon, Dakota and Thurston counties now have the chance to show our displeasure with one of these Judges, Judge C. Thomas White.

Please join me in marking your ballot "NO" for his retention.

Farm Crisis stand

For the past two years I have worked with farmers and business leaders from our community and many others to develop and promote solutions to the farm crisis. While working and before the crisis roots organization called the Farm Crisis Committee, and became aware of which elected officials supported legislation to improve rural prosperity, and which would not. To not share the political lessons and the candidates records with the people who support us would be a disservice.

It does matter which candidates we elect. Many of you may remember being asked to write Congressman Bereuter and urge him to change his position on agriculture. For a period of time we managed to capture his attention, however, he soon began to sing the same old tune "lower prices and more exports." By now most of us realize low farm prices have resulted in a world wide farm depression and have instead substantially reduced our food exports. A change is clearly needed, but who will commit to one?

First district candidate Steve Burns has pledged to support supply management and parity pricing for agriculture. Mr. Burns frequently contacts Farm Crisis state coordinator John Dittich regarding farm issues. On the other hand Congressman Bereuter maintains a close relationship to the Farm Bureau Insurance Company, for guidance on farm legislation. During farm lobbying efforts for a better farm bill, Mr. Bereuter practiced censorship, deflecting our very efforts. It's clear that leadership for agriculture is badly needed. It's clear it's time for Steve Burns or Congress.

The office of governor can be very helpful in resolving the farm crisis. But the candidates differ sharply on farm issues. Early in the campaign Kay Orr announced she would support the strong farm policy initiated by the Reagan administration. She also vowed to help repeal Initiative 300. Later, when George Bush visited the state, she said reducing the deficits is the only way to restore prosperity to farmers. Now, in the last debate Mrs. Orr says she supports higher prices for farmers. This should come as a surprise since she will not endorse any proposal that increases farm commodity prices. Throughout the campaign Mrs. Orr lacks self confidence and displays a general disorientation on farm issues.

On the other hand, Helen Boosalis supports a change in farm policy and has proposed a regional force of farm state governors to take the leadership role on solving this tragedy. Mrs. Boosalis displays her support for farm communities convincingly. Early in the campaign she pledged to support supply management and improved prices for agriculture. Her vision for the future is evident in her concern for education. In rural areas, a large portion of education is funded by real estate taxes. With educational costs climbing, despite cost control measures, we must find alternatives for funding education. Farmers cannot be expected to shoulder a bigger burden at this time. In my personal visits with Helen, I'm convinced she possesses the leadership abilities Nebraska needs for our next governor.

Final 'Let's Talk About It' program to focus on book 'Black Elk Speaks'

"Black Elk Speaks" by John G. Neihardt will be the topic of discussion during the final "Let's Talk About It" program slated Tuesday, Nov. 4 from 7 to 9:30 p.m. at Wayne Public Library.

Guest lecturer for the program will be Barbara Schmitz from the English department at Northeast Technical Community College, Norfolk.

Following her presentation, participants will divide into small groups. Discussion leaders will be Sayre and Bonnie Andersen of Wayne.

The program is open to the public free of charge, and those attending are encouraged to read the book which is available at the library.

"BLACK ELK SPEAKS" is considered the clearest statement of a native psychology and religion. Readers of the book can feel what it was like to be an Indian on the plains and can begin to understand the kind of psychological and religious assumptions that the dominant modern culture does not necessarily share.

"Black Elk Speaks," which has been translated into eight foreign languages, is a record of a pre-literate society in the words of the people living it.

SCHMITZ, WHO WILL lead Tuesday night's book discussion, received her bachelor's degree from Wayne State College and her master's degree from the University of Nebraska-Omaha.

During the summer of 1965 she took a creative writing class under John Neihardt.

Schmitz has taught "Black Elk Speaks" at Northeast Technical Community College since 1972. Through a special grant, she also taught a class on Neihardt and "Black Elk Speaks" to senior citizens at the Norfolk Art Center.

Barbara Schmitz

IN ADDITION, Schmitz has been the guest editor of the literary magazine RiverSlyz, and is presently co-editor of The Elkhorn Review, a literary magazine from Northeast Technical Community College. She has arranged visiting writer programs and served on the selection board for the Poet-In-Schools program. She also has worked with writers of the Omaha Magic Theater.

She has had individual poems published in "All My Grandmother's Could Sing: Poems by Nebraska Women," Plainsongs, Poetry Motel, River Slyz, Chapbook of Poetry and numerous other publications.

In 1978 she edited "Visions and Other Stuff," original writings of Indian students of Winnebago.

"LET'S TALK ABOUT IT" is a nationwide program of the American Library Association and the National Endowment for the Humanities.

The theme used in this year's 10-week series, "A Sense of Place: The American Plains," was developed by the English department at the University of Nebraska.

The program is sponsored by the Wayne Public Library and the Northeast Library System. Major funding is provided by the Nebraska Committee for the Humanities, a state program for the National Endowment for the Humanities.

One big game on Friday

Many coaches like to play down the importance of key games so their players don't get overly nervous.

But there isn't any way Wayne head coach Lonnie Ehrhardt can hide the importance of Friday's game against O'Neill. So he doesn't.

"It's an enormously important game. The kids will be playing for a lot," Ehrhardt flatly points out.

Friday's game will, perhaps, be the most important grid contest for every single member on the Blue Devil roster.

In addition to Friday being Parent's Night, Wayne will be playing for the Northern Activities Conference title and most importantly, a shot at the Class B State Playoffs.

Sixteen teams qualify for postseason play in Class B, including seven conference champions and nine wild card teams. Wayne is gunning for a wild card berth.

Wayne made important progress towards the playoffs last week by defeating Cedar 14-0 and by benefiting from two other teams' losses.

"The way I see it right now, I'd have to say we're in eighth or ninth place out of the nine wild card spots," Ehrhardt said. "Our win, along with Ord's loss to Broken Bow and Elkhorn's loss to Blair opened things up for us."

Lincoln Plus and Fifth North were the last week with Wayne with 38.571 playoff points. But both teams lost; which also helped the Blue Devils' playoff hopes.

A couple of games played this week could also assist the Blue Devils in their quest for the playoffs, according to Ehrhardt.

"Elkhorn Mt. Michael and Elkhorn play each other. It would help us if Mt. Michael would win that one and if Alliance beats Chadron and if Red Oak (Iowa) beats Omaha Roncalli," the Wayne skipper said.

But Ehrhardt and the rest of the Blue Devils, know they aren't going anywhere unless they defeat the Eagles.

"We have to beat O'Neill though, or we aren't in the playoffs," he said. "If we don't win, our season is done." There are two key factors the Blue Devils must accomplish to defeat O'Neill, according to their boss.

"If we have the senior leadership against O'Neill like we had against Hartington, and if we control the line of scrimmage like we did last week, we should be in good shape," he said. "We can't take O'Neill lightly. They're 2-5, but they've had a tough schedule and they'll be looking to knock us off, you can bet on that."

Most teams in northeast Nebraska, including O'Neill, have rough schedules. But nobody plays a rougher one than Wayne. But that could help the Blue Devils in the long run.

Should Wayne tie for a playoff spot with another team, officials will resort to a system called the Power Percentage Rating in which a team's opponents' win-loss record is tabulated.

Wayne leads the state with a .673 percentage rating, while the second-closest club has a rating somewhere in the .500s.

Ehrhardt is confident about Friday's game for various reasons, but most importantly because of his club's character.

"The guys shouldn't have any trouble getting motivated for the game, considering what they're playing for," he said. "I'm proud of what they've done this year. There weren't too many people who thought they'd be very good, so in a sense they've come from nowhere. But we're in the playoff hunt and considering the schedule we have, you're talking success."

Hopefully, we're talking conference champs and playoff qualifier, too.

Wakefield trims Allen for the Lewis and Clark Tournament championship

LAUREL — Wakefield defended its Lewis and Clark Volleyball Tournament championship by downing a scrappy Allen squad 15-6, 15-11 here Tuesday night.

Wakefield had little trouble in the first set and after enduring Allen's powerful hitting attack in the early going, cruised to the nine point victory.

But things changed in the second frame as Allen built a 4-0 lead and later opened an 8-3 advantage.

But Wakefield isn't 16-1 and ranked fifth in the state for nothing, and once the Lady Trojans got their problems figured out, they outscored Allen 12-3 down the stretch to claim the victory.

Paul Eaton, Wakefield's head coach, said the key to the championship and the entire successful season is a lesson the Lady Trojans learned when they lost to Lyons-Decatur earlier in the year.

"We learned from the Lyons loss that just because you fall behind you can't give up. You have to relax and keep playing your game even if you're way behind," he said. "There have been a number of times this year since the Lyons match when we've been behind five or six points. But instead of worrying, we just stick to our game plan and play our game."

Both coaches praised the other team's play and both added that their respective teams made too many mistakes.

"We made too many mistakes and Allen did a good job of capitalizing on them," Eaton said. "Allen has a good team. They're a young bunch of good athletes and have a good coach in Gary (Troth) and they did a good job in the tournament."

"I thought we made too many mistakes and you just can't do that against a team like Wakefield,"

Photography: John Frather
Wakefield's Steph Torczon.

Troth said. "We managed to generate some offense, but we made too many mistakes. A lot of times you can get away with mistakes, but not against a team like Wakefield."

Eaton has said a number of times that the key to Wakefield's success is getting good passes to his setters, and Troth praised the Lady Trojans' passing and setting.

"The key to their success is their passing. They have the ability to make quick passes to their setters and to get into their offense quickly," he said. "And they have two very good setters. They set it so soft and right on the money."

Troth is referring to Steph Torczon and Desiree Salmon who finished 32-for-32 and 20-for-20 in setting, respectively.

Allen's setter, Nikki Olesen, didn't do too bad either as she finished 33-for-33 and did a nice job of getting the Lady Eagles into their offensive flow.

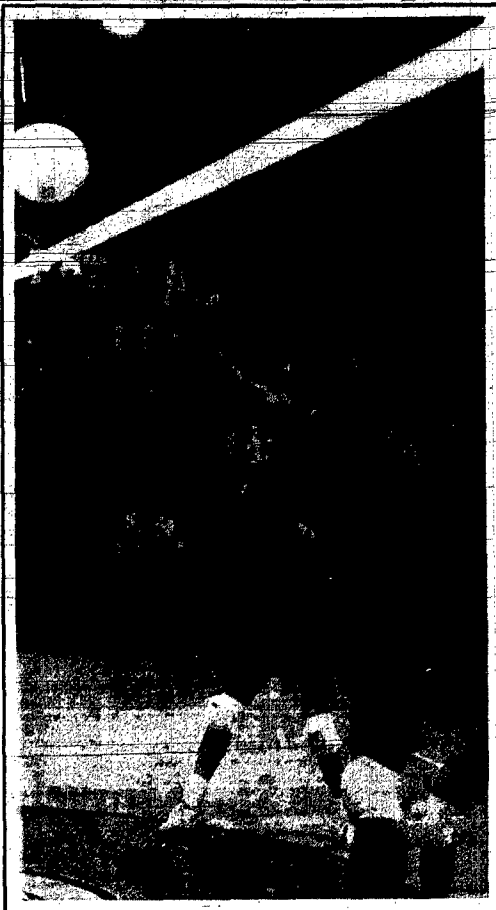

Both clubs had a diverse hitting attack. Wakefield's Marci Greve, Kudi Nelson, Karen Hallstrom and Stacey Kuhl all totaled four kills, while Missy Martinsen and Kristi Chase led Allen with four kills and Barb Hansen and Kristin Hansen both added two kills to the Lady Eagle cause.

Salmon claimed the game's scoring honors with 12 points, while Kuhl and Torczon both added seven markers.

Lana Erwin led Allen in serving going 12-for-13 with two aces, while Olesen went 4-for-5 and Amy Noe finished 4-for-4.

In addition to an effective passing game, Eaton said another key to his club's success is teamwork. And he praised the Lady Trojans' cooperation during the tourney.

Wayne peaks against Lady Cards

Like most other coaches, Wayne skipper Marlene Uhing has tried to get her Lady Blue Devils to peak this week so they enter next week's districts on top of their game.

And after Tuesday night's 15-2, 15-8 victory over South Sioux City, it appears Uhing and the rest of the Lady Blue Devils are right on schedule.

"We've worked really hard the past couple of weeks to get the girls to be playing the best they possibly can, and I think we're there," she said. "We've had some good practices lately and the girls played with a positive attitude and confidence."

Wayne gradually built a comfortable lead in the first set until Kristi Hansen rifled five straight aces to open the match open, 11-2.

South Sioux opened a 5-3 lead in the second frame before building a 7-4 advantage.

But Wayne battled back and tied the set at eight before Shelly Pick served the final seven markers for the victory.

Hansen finished 14-for-15 with 12 points and two aces to lead the Lady Blue Devils, while Pick finished 12-for-12 with 10 points and one ace.

Pick and Kecia Corbit once again led Wayne in hitting with eight and three kills, respectively. Pick finished 13-for-15 while Corbit went 7-for-8.

Marni Bruggeman finished 27-for-27 in setting for Wayne, including 14 assists.

Uhing was most impressed with her club's defensive efforts, calling it one of the best defensive displays the Lady Blue Devils have turned in this year.

"This was one of our best defensive matches we've played this year," she said. "There were a lot of one-handed saves and diving saves by all the girls."

Uhing was especially pleased with two Lady Blue Devil defensive efforts.

"Jennifer Wessel and Amy Schliuns really played well on defense," Uhing said. "Defense is kind of Amy's thing and when she starts making great defensive plays like she did against South Sioux, it gets the other girls going."

Wayne's 'B' team and 'C' team both finished the year with 9-2 records by winning 14-16, 15-11, 15-8 and 15-9, 8-15, 15-10, respectively.

Karmyn Koenig led Wayne's 'B' team with seven points, while Shelley Gilliland led the 'C' squad with seven markers.

Uhing said she was impressed with Robin Lull's and Sarah Peterson's effort in the 'B' match.

Wayne's varsity is now 15-4 on the year. The Lady Blue Devils face Columbus Lakeview in the opening round of districts at 7:30 p.m. Monday night at West Point.

Stoltenberg all-CSIC

Missy Stoltenberg became the first Wayne State volleyball player to make first team all-conference in the Central States Intercollegiate Conference (CSIC) earlier this week.

Stoltenberg, who is also a standout in track, has been a consistent performer during the '86 campaign, according to her head coach Marilyn Strate, and she finished the recent CSIC tournament with 34 kill spikes.

Surprisingly, Stoltenberg was the only Lady Wildcat to receive enough votes to make any of the all-conference teams or even honorable mention.

Meg Hurley, who leads the CSIC in blocks and finished Friday's and Saturday's tournament with seven solo and 22 assisted blocks, joined teammates Diana Asay and Shelle Tomaszkiwicz as other Lady Wildcats who received votes for the all-conference team.

Lady Wildcats finish 5-2 at CSIC Tournament

"This is the best any Wayne State team has played that I've coached," Lady Wildcat head coach Marilyn Strate said after Wayne finished the Central States Intercollegiate Conference (CSIC) Tournament with a 5-2 mark. "And I've been here four years now."

Wayne State finished 5-2 in the CSIC tourney on Friday and Saturday, losing only to Missouri Western and Fort Hays State.

After going 3-1 on Friday by beating Pittsburg State, Kearney State and Missouri Southern and losing only to Westport, the Lady Wildcats went 2-1 on Saturday by downing Washburn and Emporia State and losing to Fort Hays.

The Lady Wildcats' two biggest victories of the tourney came when they defeated No. 9 Missouri Southern and eventual conference champion Kearney State.

Wayne was the only team in the CSIC to defeat Kearney twice in tournament play.

Perhaps Wayne's most exciting match of the tourney, however, came in its finale against Washburn in which the Lady Wildcats tied the final set at 13 before claiming a 17-15 victory.

Wayne came from behind in a number of matches for its victories. The Lady Wildcats trailed Kearney 0-8 in the second set before winning, trailed Southern in all three sets before winning and trailed Emporia 8-13 before winning.

Strate credited the victory to consistent play on offense and defense and a well-rounded hitting attack.

"We had good blocking and we played consistently on both sides for the first time this season," she said. "We played good defense and our hitters were all on."

Diana Asay and Shelle Tomaszkiwicz led Wayne's hitting attack with 39 kills apiece, while Missy Stoltenberg added 34.

Meg Hurley, who leads the CSIC in blocking, finished with seven solo and 22 assisted blocks and Tomaszkiwicz also totaled seven solo blocks.

Jeanelle Moine led Wayne in scoring with 52 points, while Diane Hanus added 40 markers.

Strate added that her bench played an important role in the Lady Wildcats' fine performance.

Tanya Gappa, Kristi Bateman, Koloette Frevert, and a number of others came off the bench and did a great job, too," Strate said.

The second half finish leaves the Lady Wildcats with an 8-6 record in the CSIC, good for fourth place.

It's the first time Wayne has finished in the upper division of the conference and the first time the Lady Wildcats have finished with a winning record in the CSIC.

The Lady Wildcats, now 26-19 on the year, play again Friday and Saturday when they host the Nebraska Athletic Conference Tournament.

Teams participating in the NAC tournament are: Wayne State, Peru State, Chadron State, Bellevue College, Kearney State and the College of St. Mary.

The winner of the NAC will play the winner of the NAIC tourney in the district finals. Teams advancing must have a winning record in order to advance beyond district level.

The tourney begins at 5 p.m. on Friday when the Lady Wildcats play Bellevue. Wayne's other match on Friday is a 6:30 p.m. contest against St. Mary.

The Lady Wildcats begin play Saturday morning with a 9 a.m. match against Chadron State. They then play at 10:30 a.m. against Kearney State and at 1:30 p.m. against Peru State.

Sixteen teams qualify for the Class B playoffs, including seven conference champions and nine wild card teams. Wayne is trying for a wild card berth.

The Blue Devils enter this week with a 5-3 record and a 39.3 point average. Elkhorn and Aurora also have a 39.3 average, while Grand Island Central Catholic and Schuyler, both 8-0, head the list with a 44.3 average.

In addition to Wayne's victory over Cedar, Ord's loss to Broken Bow and Elkhorn's loss to Blair assisted Wayne's advancement in the point average system.

Should Wayne tie with another team for a playoff berth, the Blue Devils would get the nod based on the Power Percentage System in which a team's opponents' record is reviewed. Wayne owns the highest power percentage in Class B with a .673 mark.

According to an article in Tuesday's Omaha World-Herald Schuyler, York, Blair, St. Paul, Bennington, Gering and Gothenburg clinched Class B playoff spots by winning conference championships, while Grand Island Central Catholic clinched a wild card berth.

Pittsburg State uses strong second half to down the Wildcats, 38-7

Wayne State battled one of the best teams in the NAIA for a half at Memorial Stadium Saturday afternoon. But when the dust cleared, Pittsburg State walked away with a 38-7 victory.

The Wildcats opened the game with an impressive drive that looked like it would open the game's scoring, but a field goal attempt failed.

Pittsburg's Bruce Stancell scored on the second Pittsburg scoring drive with a five yard run for a 6-0 lead. The Gorillas scored once more in the first quarter on a 47-yard pass from running back Monte Weathers to Blaise Bauer and added a two-point PAT.

The Wildcats made things interesting, however, when they closed the first half by scoring on a 15-yard pass from John Lawrence to Bill Minarik which capped a 70-yard drive.

The second half was all Pittsburg, however, as the Gorillas totaled 259 yards in total offense and limited Wayne to negative 59 yards.

Pittsburg head coach Dennis Franchione said the difference in the game was his club's ability to take control in the third period.

"I think it was a game without a lot of emotion. We took a business-like approach and played well enough on both sides of the ball to win," he said. "I have to attribute Wayne in the first half as we weren't able to take control until the third quarter."

Weathers scored twice for Pittsburg in the third quarter from 10 and eight yards. Gene Stegeman hit Kenny Allen with a two-point PAT after Weathers' first second half TD. Brett Potts tackled Lawrence for a safety, Mike Bowman added an 18-yard field goal and Vern Moore scored a 15-yard touchdown to round out Pittsburg's scoring.

Pittsburg entered the game averaging over 40 points an outing, and although the Gorillas fell a little short of its average, they finished with a season high 615 yards in total offense.

Most impressively though, Pittsburg limited Wayne to negative 66 yards rushing to set a new school record.

Weathers finished with 178 rushing yards in 24 carries, while Stancell totaled 66 yards on the ground and Stegeman finished with 73 yards on eight carries.

Wayne completed 22-of-33 passes for 172 yards.

Wildcat head coach Pete Chapman said the game turned around in the third quarter because of injuries to his offensive linemen which hindered his club's offensive production.

"We were able to move the ball consistently in the first half, and although we only scored seven points, it kept their offense off the field," he said. "But we lost two offensive linemen during halftime and another at the start of the third quarter. We were starting three freshmen on offense in the second half and that, along with some other factors, limited our offense in the last half."

Both teams became engaged in a bench-clearing brawl during the fourth quarter, something Chapman frowns upon.

"One of our guys thought one of their guys took a cheap shot, and he retaliated," Chapman said. "I think it was a frustration thing — you never like to see that kind of thing happen."

The victory improved Pittsburg to 7-0. The Gorillas and Elon College of North Carolina are the only undefeated teams in the NAIA Division II.

Wayne slipped to 2-6 overall and 0-5 in the CSIC. The Wildcats play at Emporia State on Saturday and WAKEFIELD'S MARCI GREVE hammers a spike at Wausa as Desiree Salmon (No. 7) looks on. Wakefield smashed Wausa 15-2, 15-2.

Wakefield hammers No. 10 Wausa

LAUREL — Many considered the championship of the Clark Division would represent the championship of the entire Lewis and Clark Conference.

After all, Wakefield entered the Clark Division title round with a 14-1 mark and a fifth place rating in Class C-1, and the Lady Trojans' opponent was 11-4 Wausa which was ranked 10th in Class C-2.

But Wakefield played, perhaps, its best match in nearly three years and absolutely destroyed the Lady Vikings 15-2, 15-2 here Tuesday night for the right to enter the conference championship against Allen.

Paul Eaton, Wakefield's head coach, said he knew his Lady Trojans were capable of playing like they did against Wausa, but added that Wakefield's near-perfect performance might have surprised Lady Viking head coach Greg Conn.

"He (Conn) told me after the match that he never saw a team make so few mistakes," Eaton proudly said. "We're capable of playing like that, but that was the best we've played this year."

Wakefield served 100 percent as a team. Karen Hallstrom led the Lady Trojans with an 11-for-11 performance and nine points, while teammate Stacey Kuhl added eight markers.

Steph Torczon led Wakefield's setters with a 20-for-21 performance and nine assists, while Desiree Salmon went 13-for-13 with six assists.

Kodi Nelson and Marci Greve led Wakefield's hitters with five and four kills, respectively, while Kuhl and Hallstrom added three and two kills.

Eaton was naturally pleased with his club's impressive performance against Wausa, and added that he only wished they played like that more often.

"We did a nice job, and like I said, we've played like that more often."

points, while teammate Steph Torczon added 10 markers.

Marci Greve, one of the area's most powerful hitters, led Wakefield in spiking going 6-for-7 with four kills.

Torczon finished as the victors' leading setter going 11-for-14, while Salmon added a 4-for-4 performance.

Wakefield vs. Hartington
Wakefield used a diverse hitting attack to capture a 15-4, 15-9 victory in the tourney's second round.

The Lady Trojans totaled 20 kills in the Hartington match, including six by Greve, five by both Stacey Kuhl and Kodi Nelson and four by Karen Hallstrom.

Wakefield opened a quick lead in the first set and cruised to the easy victory, but the second set was a little different.

Both teams played evenly in the second frame as Wakefield trailed 2-1 after five service rotations. The even play continued as both teams were later deadlocked at nine.

But the Lady Trojans shifted into high gear at that point and tallied the final six points to claim the 15-9 win.

Hartington trimmed Winside in other opening round action, much to the delight of Eaton.

"Winside looked very quick against Hartington, and to be honest with you, I was glad they lost because their quickness worried me," he said.

Eaton added, however, that Hartington also played well against his club.

"I thought Hartington did a nice job of bouncing back in the second set against us. They played us tough," he said.

Wakefield's impressive serving carried over into the second round as the Lady Trojans missed only four serves in 53 attempts for 92 percent.

Greve led the Lady Trojans in scoring with eight points on 12-for-12 serving, while Torczon was perfect in 10 serve attempts and scored seven points.

Salmon was perfect in 18 serve attempts, while Torczon followed with a 35-for-37 performance.

Greve finished 12-for-14 in spiking, while Nelson went 10-for-14, Kuhl finished 9-for-13 and Hallstrom added a 7-for-8 effort.

One area that bothered Eaton was his club's passing.

"We had a couple of girls that had trouble passing the ball," he said. "But Val (Krusemark) did a good job and went 33-for-35."

Early in the season, Eaton frequently compared this year's club to last year's squad which won the Lewis and Clark Conference Tournament and qualified for the Class C-1 State Playoffs. And he said Tuesday

Allen forgets the past, knocks off Beemer in the semifinals

LAUREL — To call Allen underdogs in the championship of the Lewis Division would have been an understatement.

After all, the Lady Eagles were facing Beemer — the same Lady Bobcats that pounded Allen 15-3, 15-0 just a few weeks earlier.

And although it appeared as though Allen would fall once again to Beemer, the Lady Eagles rebounded to claim a 12-15, 15-11, 15-5 victory here Tuesday night for the right to advance to the Lewis and Clark Conference championship against Wakefield.

After trailing 10-6 in the first set, Allen closed the gap to 14-12 before dropping the three point decision.

And things looked bleak for the Lady Eagles in the second frame as they did little right in the early going and as a result, trailed 8-0.

But then Allen head coach Gary

Troth called timeout, and his advice apparently hit home as Allen outscored Beemer 30-8 the rest of the way for the Lewis Division championship.

"I just told the girls to keep their composure and there wasn't much more time for any more mistakes," Troth explained.

And Allen followed up on their skipper's advice and used Lana Erwin's serving to fight back into contention, 8-6.

"We needed something like that to get us going," Troth said, referring to Erwin's serving. "She wasn't ripping them or anything, but at least they were in and that got us going."

Nikki Olesen got the Lady Eagles going in the final frame as she drilled six ace serves for a 6-0 lead and Allen never looked back.

Olesen finished 14-for-15 with six aces, while Erwin went 14-for-16 with six aces.

Olesen led the Lady Eagles in scoring with 11 points, while Erwin tallied 10 markers. Tiffany Harder scored eight and Kristi Chase added five.

Olesen finished 52-for-52 in setting Troth said he told Olesen to challenge Wausa more with her sets as the match progressed.

"At first, she was setting the ball too far back because I think she feared Beemer's size," he said. "I told her to get the ball closer to the net and go ahead and challenge them."

Chase led Allen's hitters with five kills on 20-of-22 hitting, while Harder went 15-for-18 with two kills and Kristin Hansen went 12-for-14.

The victory improved Allen to 13-5 in the year.

Lady Eagles advance by beating Walthill, Newcastle

ALLEN — Allen's volleyball team is a difficult one to figure out. One week the Lady Eagles appear invincible, then the next they're easily conquered.

But the Lady Eagles do possess one enviable characteristic — they win a lot of close matches. And after dropping a 10-15 loss to Walthill in the opening set of the Lewis and Clark Conference quarterfinals, Allen bounced back for a 15-7 triumph and a thrilling 15-11 victory.

The Lady Eagles were in complete control of the third frame and held a 12-3 lead. But Allen head coach Gary Troth said his instincts told him that Walthill would stage a comeback.

"We were up 9-2 and 12-3, but I could feel our girls start to worry about what could happen and I just knew Walthill would get back into it," he said.

Troth's prediction materialized as the Lady Bluejays reeled off seven unanswered points to pull within two, 12-10.

But Allen has played in a lot of close matches this year, and has won every one of them with the exception of a loss to Winside. And that experience paid off against Walthill, according to Troth.

"We've played in so many close matches this year, and we always seem to do well in close situations — we always seem to pull it out."

And that's exactly what the Lady Eagles did Monday as they hung on for a 15-11 victory and the right to advance to the semifinals of the tourney.

Allen spluttered in the first set, but Troth expected his club to play poorly.

"We didn't have a very good warm-up match against Newcastle. We stood around too much on offense," he said. "Volleyball is a game of rhythm, and we didn't establish any against Newcastle and I thought that might carry over into the second match."

It did, and Allen dropped a 10-15 decision. The Lady Eagles bounced back, however, by claiming a 15-7 triumph in the second set to force a rubber frame.

"We generated a more consistent offense in the second set," Troth said about his club's turn around. "I think that if we get the ball to our hitters consistently, we can play with anybody because we have good hitters. And that's what we did in the second set."

Tiffany Harder led Allen in spiking going 11-for-14 with two kills, while Kristi Chase went 10-for-11 with two kills and Kristin Hansen added a 9-for-10 effort.

Nikki Olesen finished 12-for-14 in serving and 42-for-44 in setting with 17 assists.

Troth demands excellent setting, and he was pleased with Olesen's effort.

"Nikki kind of started slow because she received a lot of poor passes and she turned her ankle," he said. "But she was very good with her hands and did a good job of getting the ball to our hitters in good shape."

Lana Erwin went 11-for-11 in serving and scored a team-high 11 points for Allen, while Harder and Hansen added 10 and seven markers, respectively.

Deb Uehling added a 7-for-7 serving performance for the Lady Eagles.

Allen vs. Newcastle

Prior to the Lady Eagles' victory over Walthill, they easily defeated Newcastle 15-1, 15-8 in the tourney's opening round.

Allen had little difficulty with Walthill, but Troth said he was hoping for a tougher opening round match. "They had a difficult time returning our serves, so it turned into a serving match for us," he said. "It really was a poor warm-up because there was too much standing around and we didn't create any rhythm and that carried over into the second round."

To emphasize his point, Troth added that Allen has played matches before in which the Lady Eagles have passed over 200 times, but they only totaled 50 passes against Newcastle.

Olesen led the club in scoring with 13 points, went 15-for-18 in serving with seven aces and added a 21-for-22 setting effort.

Harder added six markers, went 7-for-11 in serving with one ace and added a 4-for-6 spiking performance.

Chase went 5-for-6 in spiking, while Hansen went 3-for-4.

Troth said he was hoping Walthill and Bancroft-Rosalie would play a close emotional opening round match, and his wish was granted.

"I was hoping Walthill and Bancroft-Rosalie would battle each other so they'd have an emotional let down when they met us in the second round," he said. "And although Walthill won in two sets, it took over an hour for them to win so that might've helped us in the second round."

Allen improved to 12-5 in the year with the two victories and advanced to the semifinals against Beemer. The Lady Bobcats pounded Allen 15-5, 15-0 earlier in the year.

Lady Trojans cruise in opening rounds by downing Coleridge and Hartington WAKEFIELD — Wakefield opened defense of its Lewis and Clark Volleyball Tournament championship with impressive victories over Coleridge and Hartington here Monday night.

In the opening round, the Lady Trojans smashed Coleridge 15-1, 15-0. In two matches this year, Wakefield has now outscored the Chargers 60-4.

Wakefield head coach Paul Eaton said the Lady Trojans' lopsided victory earlier in the year played a role in Monday's easy win.

"It looked like Coleridge was kind of scared during the match. We beat them easily earlier this year, and I think that hurt their confidence for this match," he said.

Most of Wakefield's scoring came off of serves as the Chargers had a tough time fielding the Lady Trojans' serves.

Wakefield finished 100 percent in serving, and Desiree Salmon led the Lady Trojans in scoring with 13

Wakefield

"We play well together, and if you don't have that you're in serious trouble," he said. "I know we have a lot of talented girls, but you won't be successful on talent alone and fortunately, we do a nice job of playing together."

Wakefield enters sub-districts with 16 wins in 17 outings. The Lady Trojans play the winner of the Homer/Macy match Tuesday night beginning at 6:30 p.m. Ponca and Emerson-Hubbard are also in Wakefield's sub-district.

Many considered Allen the surprise team of the tourney, and although Troth said his club had to play well to reach the championship round, he thinks the Lady Eagles can play with anybody when they pass well.

"Our sub-district was tough enough, and then to beat Beemer, which beat us 15-5, 15-0 earlier in the year, was quite an accomplishment, too," he said. "But we played well. We have nice team this year. We're a little too inconsistent with our passing, but when we pass well we can play with anybody."

Allen, now 13-6, plays again Monday night against Bancroft-Rosalie in the opening round of districts at Lyons beginning at 7 p.m. Winnebago and Walthill are also in the Lady Eagles' district.

Poor passing costs Laurel loss to Wynot

WAUSA — Ineffective passing cost Laurel a 9-15, 9-15 loss to Wynot here Monday night in the opening round of the Lewis and Clark Conference Volleyball Tournament.

Carroll Manganaro, Laurel's head coach, said her Lady Bears had trouble generating any offense because of poor passing.

"We couldn't get the pass to our setter in good shape, and because of that we didn't get our offense going," she said.

Due to Laurel's ineffective passing, the Lady Bears totaled only 11 team spikes and 17 team sets.

But despite the lacking offense, Laurel stayed fairly close in both sets because of its steady serving.

The Lady Bears trailed 5-0 and 9-2 in the opening frame, but Becky Christensen came to the rescue by scoring seven quick points to tie the set at nine.

However, Wynot proved to be too much down the stretch and took advantage of Laurel's staggering offense to tally the final six points.

Wynot held a 5-1 advantage in the second stanza before Laurel bounced back by outscoring the Lady Blue Devils 6-2 to pull within one, 7-6.

But Wynot answered Laurel's rally with one of its own to open a 13-7 lead. Laurel scored the next two points, but Wynot went on to claim the final two points and the victory.

Christensen led Laurel in scoring with eight points. The Lady Bears served 88 percent as a team, but Manganaro said her club missed a couple serves at key points in the match.

"We missed a couple of serves in a row when we needed to score some points. It wasn't a major turning point in the match or anything, our passing was our biggest problem, but missing those serves didn't help," she said.

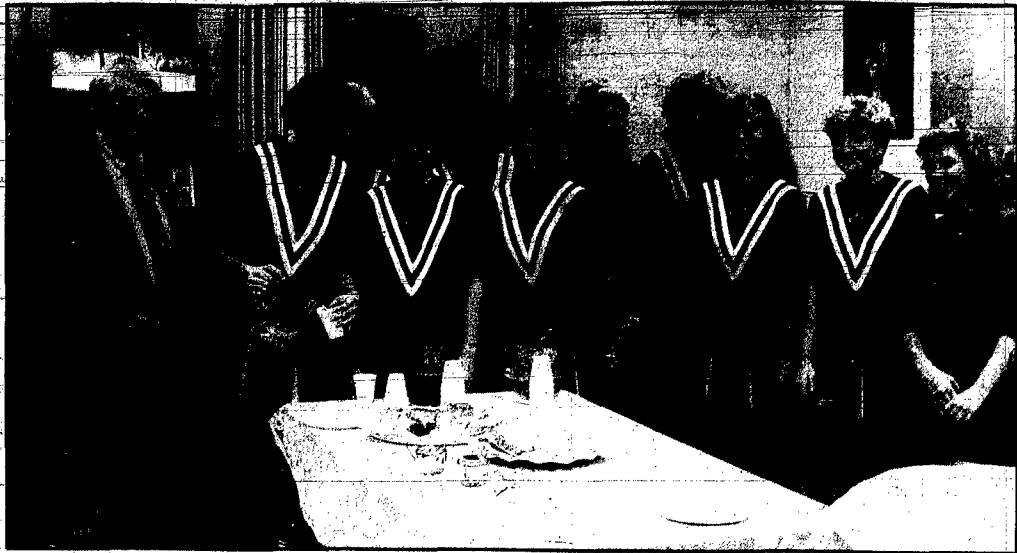

The Lady Bear skipper added that her club suffered mentally from its poor passing display.

"We couldn't get into our offense, and when you can't do that it starts affecting your confidence level and after a while, we didn't play with much confidence," she said.

Wausa went on to defeat Wynot in the next round and ended up playing Wakefield for the championship of the Clark Division. Allen battled Beemer for the Lewis Division title.

Laurel, now 5-10 on the year, plays again Monday at Norfolk Tech against Norfolk Catholic in the opening round of sub-districts.

The Lady Bear match begins at 6:30 p.m. Pierce and Stanton are also in the same tourney.

Up-and-down Winside loses to Hartington

WAKEFIELD — Dr. Jeykelt and Mr. Hyde.

That's the best way to describe Winside's performance in its 15-9, 9-15, 5-15 loss to Hartington here Monday night in the opening round of the Lewis and Clark Conference Volleyball Tournament.

"We played good volleyball for a set and a-half, and then we played poorly the rest of the way," Lady Wildcat head coach Jill Stenwall said.

Winside maintained a four to five point lead in the early going of the first set, and although Hartington made a run at the Lady Wildcats, Winside claimed the victory.

Wakefield head coach Paul Eaton scouted the first set because his Lady Trojans were heavy favorites to defeat Coleridge and face the winner of the Winside/Hartington match in the second round.

Eaton said he was impressed with Winside's quickness in the opening set, and added that he was glad Hartington won because of the potential problems Winside could have presented Wakefield.

"Winside looked really quick in that first set, Jill does a good job over there and they have the potential to have a very good team in the future," he said. "In that first set, Winside was the better team and I'm kind of glad Hartington knocked them off because Winside looked like the best team in the first set."

Winside continued to play well through the middle of the second set, but then Hartington took complete control and claimed the final two frames for the victory.

Stenwall couldn't explain her club's complete turn around, but offered a few theories.

"I really don't know exactly what happened, we played good for half the match and then played bad the rest of the way," she said. "We didn't communicate very well and our serve receive was poor, too. And we sent over too many free balls. We have to spike the ball more."

Tracy Topp led the Lady Wildcats in kills with seven on 20-for-28 hitting, while Tricia Hartman went 13-for-15 with four kills and Ann Melerhenry finished 9-for-11 with four kills.

Cher Olson finished 51-for-56 in setting and scored a team-high seven points for Winside.

Winside, which has lost three matches in a row, dropped to 9-7 with the loss. The Lady Wildcats play again Monday in districts at Wausa against Wynot beginning at 6:45 p.m.

that this year's squad is gradually becoming comparable to last year's.

"The hitters are coming along better, and I think our net play and serving is as good as last year's," he said.

"The girls are a good group of kids that play well together like last year's did, too, so I think we're comparable to last year's team."

Wakefield, now 14-1, faced Wausa in the semifinals of the tourney Tuesday night at Laurel.

Wausa was 12-4 going into the match and ranked 10th in the Omaha World-Herald's top 10 in Class C1, while Wakefield was ranked fifth.

Allen and Beemer also reached the semifinals of the tourney.

Chapman said he hopes his offense offers more production.

"I think our defense is doing a good enough job," he said. "But we're going to have to move the ball against Emporia."

Pittsburg plays at Kearney State this Saturday for what could be the CSIC championship. Kearney and Pittsburg are both 5-0 in league play.

"I'm sick of her ruining our lives."

When confronted with a mental illness, families experience a wide range of emotional responses. From outrage to shame and denial. They often blame victims for causing worry, embarrassment, family strife. And they often blame themselves.

But mental illness is no one's fault. Least of all those afflicted. It's a serious medical illness. Recognizing the warning signs and seeking treatment for your loved one can be the first steps to reducing family fears and confusion. And to actually healing the sickness. Today, mental illness need not be hopeless.

Recent wet weather affects more than crops

Nebraska's recent bout of wet weather, followed by a hard freeze in many areas, may indirectly have a greater adverse effect on soil conditions than on current crop quality.

That's the informal consensus of a group of University of Nebraska-Lincoln agricultural specialists, contacted through separate interviews.

An overall evaluation by Nebraska Crop Improvement Association fieldmen showed little significant crop damage and minimal losses in hybrid corn, grain sorghum, soybeans, dry edible beans and wheat from the recent wet spell, except where fields were flooded and water stood for a period of time.

Roger Hammons, associate manager of the Nebraska Crop Improvement Association, said "the grain has only delayed farmers from harvesting for awhile."

Farmers naturally are concerned about getting their crops out early, but mid-October is still relatively early in the harvest season, year-in and year-out, said Richard Pierce, UNL agricultural engineer specializing in grain handling and storage.

The drying process in the fields is progressing normally for this time of year, Pierce said, especially as temperatures moved toward seasonal norms late in the week of Oct. 13.

Rains did not have as significant an effect because humidity is not as important a factor as temperature in the drying process, Pierce explained.

A potential problem, persisting green plants in fields which can cause combine troubles, has been alleviated by the hard freeze in most crop-producing areas, he said. Weeds and other plants had thrived because of abundant moisture, he added.

Anxiety to harvest corn, sorghum and soybeans may be pushing farmers into less efficient practices in combine operations as they try to make up for the week to 10 days they could not harvest, Hammons said. He urged farmers to be deliberate and follow sound management practices when harvesting.

THE OLD ADAGE—"haste makes waste," is literally true, Pierce said, noting that more grain already is on the ground this fall than last year. If possible, it might be good strategy in the long run for farmers without enough satisfactory storage to hold off awhile before harvesting, he said. This would allow excess moisture to disappear and decrease chances of grain deteriorating.

A slight delay in harvesting hybrid corn might not be such a bad idea, Hammons said, since the difference would mean only a bushel or two an acre.

Conceding that only individual farmers can decide when they must go into the field to harvest based on their own circumstances, UNL extension ag engineer Elbert Dickey said "there will be a price to pay next year" in instances where heavy harvest and grain-hauling equipment has operated in soggy fields.

Dickey, a specialist in conservation tillage, said damage through soil compaction cannot be rectified under Nebraska conditions until the fall of 1987. Next spring, he said, producers who harvested in the mud should scout fields planted to new crops for evidence of delayed plant growth, caused by little or no root development. This will occur where implement wheel tracks have compacted the soil, Dickey explained.

Deeper tillage should be considered when the affected field is relatively dry to correct the soil compaction problems, he said. Normally, this is not possible in the spring, making the first chance for remedial tillage the fall of 1987.

"You'll need to let the 1987 crops help you make decisions on the type and depth of tillage in the fall of next year," he observed.

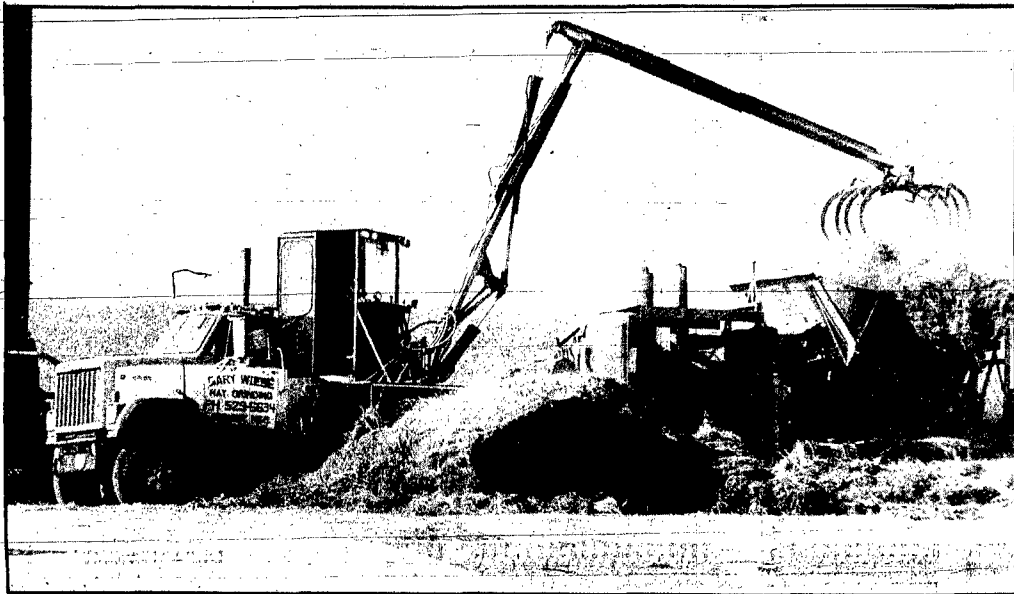

David Keith, UNL extension entomologist, said corn in some areas of northeast and eastern Nebraska has had high infestations of second generation corn borers. This may have been due to the wet and warm summer, he said. The wetness may have affected herbicide effectiveness, Keith theorized.

Terry Gompert, extension agent-chair, Knox County, said rootworms were severe in some Knox County fields. Corn borer damage could cause heavier-than-normal ear drop and rootworm damage could cause corn to fall over in fields harvested late.

In observations made just prior to the heavy frost and freezing, Hammons said little shattering was seen in soybean fields, but could increase as pods dry out. Soybean yields, where lower than anticipated, are likely to be, due to cool, wet weather in August and not because of recent rainstorms, he said.

As a food product, dry edible beans raised in western Nebraska have generated more concern than other crops because of good appearance is needed to sell them, Hammons said. The problem stems from beans having lain in the windrow for seven to 10 days, making necessary a greater amount of cleaning at the processors.

SAMPLE SOIL NOW

By sampling your fields now for phosphorus, potassium, pH and residual nitrogen, you will have your results in plenty of time to make fertilizer decisions this winter.

To make the most profitable use of your fertilizer dollars, you need to know what soil levels are for each potentially limiting nutrient. Soil testing helps you determine which nutrients may be deficient, as well as which are already in good supply.

Testing in the fall can avoid delays in the spring due to peak loads on soil testing laboratories and the difficulties involved in finding time and the proper soil conditions to take soil samples.

Many farm operations hire extra harvest help. Sometimes these helpers may sit in a truck waiting for the next load of grain to haul. Having hired hands take a soil sample will increase efficiency by getting a jump on next year's work and by making better use of personnel.

Taking the sample is easy if you follow a few simple rules. First, have a sturdy plastic pail and a sampling instrument. You can use a soil probe, but a file spade or garden trowel will do. Split each field into areas of about 20-30 acres. Take 15-20 samples 0-8 inches deep and put them into the pail. Deeper samples will be needed for residual nitrogen.

After the 15-20 samples are in the pail, mix the sample thoroughly, and put about a pint of soil in a small paper bag or soil sample box. If wet samples are going to be saved, air dry them in a protected, dust free area of the garage or shop. For them to dry properly, keep the bag or box open or spread each sample on a flat grocery store bag.

Remember to draw a map of the field, and mark the map and bag with the same code.

Instructions on soil sampling, interpreting and boxes for sending samples are available from the Extension offices. Commercial soil testing laboratories also will supply information and bags for sending a sample.

Footnote to the Nebraska-South Carolina game: Boystown grads had an alumni reunion in Columbia that weekend and Cmdr. Butcher of the Pueblo sat in front of a friend who attended on a tour.

The Heartland Wellness Conference alluded to last week, was a three-day event at the Kellogg Center for Conf. Ed. at UNL, East Campus.

Because of the cost, and because of all the other things going on that week, I couldn't go for all three days. A Wellness Conference is devoted to all kinds of speeches and presentations for fitness and life-style improvement. It features relaxation exercises, aerobics, speakers who tell about their community programs, and nothing but nutritious meals and snacks.

I once attended a Wellness Conference at Lake Geneva, Wis. I sneaked into the hotel coffee shop before the first session, and someone said, "She's had coffee! I can smell it on her breath!" Obviously, cigarettes are banned, and you have the option of rising at 6 a.m. for runs and hikes each day.

I'd had a note from Keith Sehnerf in late summer, saying he would be at the Kellogg Center on Oct. 13, so I put that on my calendar.

Haven't heard of Keith Sehnerf? Well, he's the guru of the wellness movement, which means he's been at it a very long time.

But back in the 40's, when I was living in York county, he was our family doctor. He was part of the Bell Clinic, begun by two brothers, Hubert and Stuart Bell.

In those days, many illnesses were treated at home. My dad had an appendicitis attack, and Dr. Hubert Bell came to our farm to check him out. I thought he was wonderful.

Dr. Sehnerf did my exam for nurses training. Soon after that, he moved to Lincoln to work for Norden Labs. After that, I lost track of him.

LONG AFTER we were married, we were watching a late night talk show, and the host introduced Keith

During past year

Chemical curtailments listed

This year has been an active year for the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. It has curtailed or cancelled (restricted) the use of several pesticides recently, said Emery Nelson, University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension pesticide specialist.

A summary of the list of rulings follows:

Kelthane dicofol (Miticide, Rohm & Haas)—Halt of sales and distribution due to manufacturer failing to reduce DDT levels. Application with leftover stock can continue use until it is depleted. Common trade names are Acarin, kelthane and Mitigan.

Dinoseb—Immediate halt of all uses, sales and distribution of this herbicide. Concern arose over studies indicating dinoseb tended to cause malformations in laboratory animals and may pose a risk of birth defects in pregnant women. Common trade names are "dinitro," Basanite, Chemox General, Dinitrix, Dinitro-3, Dinitro General, Dynamite, Kiloseb, Vertac Dinitro Weed Killer 5, Dynanap, Premerge Plus with Dinitro and Klene Krop.

CARBON DISULFIDE, Carbon tetrachloride, Ethylene dichloride—Immediate halt of all uses of these liquid fumigants.

Diazinon—Cancels use of this pesticide on golf courses and sod farms. Data showed that exposure to diazinon applied on these sites posed unreasonable risks to birds. EPA received reports on 60 bird kills in 18 states in which diazinon was confirmed or implicated as the cause of death.

Bladex—Some products are labeled restrictive, requiring certified pesticide training before being used by an applicator. Products shipped after Jan. 1, 1987 will be restricted.

Lasso—Use will be restricted in the future. It will not affect the 1987 planting season, but persons desiring to use Lasso in 1988 will have to be certified.

Wood Preservatives—Use will be restricted as of Nov. 11, 1986. A training-testing session was taught in September by the Cooperative Extension Service and 213 Nebraskans attended.

Toxaphene—Cancels use and sale after Jan. 1, 1987. Persons with toxaphene should use it now, if possible. For more information on these cancellations, contact your local extension agent or Nelson at (402) 472-1632.

Sehnerf, author of a book called "How to be your own Doctor (Sometimes)!"

"I couldn't believe it! The book came about as the result of the Activated Patient classes Keith had been teaching at Georgetown University. An activated patient is one who has a basic understanding of the way his body works and participated in caring for it.

An activated patient is one who believes his health is his responsibility, not the doctor's. And he tries to preserve his health, using wellness techniques which are just basically what our grandmothers always told us.

As we have come to an understanding about the way we respond to stress that can affect our health, Dr. Sehnerf has authored two more books.

The first, Stress/Unstress, is the best paperback you can find on the subject. Part I deals with understanding stress and Part 2, with managing stress. This goes into changing work and social environment, understanding emotions, learning unstress remedies, taking care of our bodies and providing for spiritual needs.

The second, Selfcare/Wellcare, describes the teachings of these techniques to businesses and corporations. Healthy employees save money.

DR. SEHNERF told us in Lincoln about his present position, which is director of Trinity Health Care. Trinity is a cooperative effort between a hospital, two colleges, and some churches to provide health care to the community. The churches, utilize parish nurses. This sounds good to me. I'll tell you more about parish nurses another time.

Dr. Sehnerf quoted Dr. Stuart Bell as telling him once, "God heals, the doctor sends the pill." Interesting thought. Get the book. It's well worth the $3.50 it costs. Augsburg is the publisher.

Beware of rat damage

Pork producers using insulated buildings should take special precautions to prevent damage by rats and mice, according to Bob Timm, extension vertebrate specialist and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

"These rodents can invade structures and cause thousands of dollars in damage to insulation in a matter of months," Timm said, adding that preventing damage is cheaper than having to replace insulation later.

Timm and Daryl Fisher, extension assistant at the Panhandle Research and Extension Center in Scottsbluff, conducted trials to determine the rate at which ordinary house mice will destroy insulation. They tested several types including rigid foam, fiberglass batt, and shredded cellulose insulation.

In laboratory tests, five mice were able to virtually destroy all insulation within some 4-by-4 foot insulated wall sections within 6 months.

"The rigid foam resembled swiss cheese, the fiberglass batt was badly riddled, and the mice entirely emptied some panels of shredded cellulose in as little as 4 1/2 months," Fisher said.

FURTHER TESTS on other insulation types are pending, but he said there is little doubt that most common types of building insulation are susceptible to heavy rodent damage.

The economic aspects of rodent damage and control are an important aspect of Timm and Fisher's work. From the laboratory trials, they have calculated that mouse damage (including extra heating expense in winter, as well as replacement of insulation) can run as high as 50 cents per square foot of structure annually.

Since insulated perimeter walls usually suffer the worst damage, damage estimates per square foot of interior space decline as building size increases.

A 1,400-square-foot building can incur rodent damage equal to approximately 20 cents a square foot. For the same building, rodent control using bait and bait stations and the producer's labor would cost approximately 8 cents per square foot annually. Bait and bait stations are commercially available and can be purchased by pork producers. Recommendations on their use are available from Extension offices.

RODENT CONTROL is cost-effective for nearly all building sizes with the savings increasing as building size increases. Timm recommended that any insulated structure having a perimeter greater than 36 feet should receive protection from rats and mice.

Persons remodeling older swine facilities or planning to build new ones should make every effort to design them to be rodent-proof, Timm said. "Keeping rodents out of insulated walls and attics is the best preventive action," he stressed.

Specific recommendations on rodent control and on rodent-proof construction are available at Cooperative Extension Service offices throughout Nebraska.

LEGION AUXILIARY
The regular meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary, Anton Boekemper Unit #81, was held Oct. 21 at the Legion Hall with six officers and 11 members present.
The Chaplain opened the meeting with a prayer. President Carol Ulrich led in the Pledge of Allegiance and the Auxiliary Preamble. Music Chairman Fanny Johnson led the group in singing "The Star Spangled Banner" and "He's Got the Whole World in His Hands."
Correspondence read included a "Thank You" from Scott Salmon for the Scholarship Award he had received. An announcement was made on the American Youth Conference to be held April 9-12, 1987 at Freedom Foundation Valley Forge, Penn. The Child-Youth Department urged members to promote a "safe and fun Halloween night" for youngsters.

County Government Day will be Tuesday, November 25 at Ponca for the Juniors of Dixon County Schools. The Auxiliary hopes to have volunteers go to help for the day and will send their monetary obligation.
It was announced that Unit #81 will sponsor a Girl Scout Troop this year. The leader is Bev Dalley.

The music committee held a sing-along at the Wakefield Care Center on Oct. 16. Past presidents will play bingo with the veterans at the Norfolk Veterans Home on Wednesday, Nov. 5. Members are urged to bake extra cookies to send with them.

President Carol Ulrich thanked all who helped clean the hall on Sept. 13. She said the new grave markers have been ordered.

Americanism Chairman Emily Gustafson presented interesting facts on Columbus day.
Child and Youth Committees, Sharon Boatman and Kathy Looft, are making plans for sponsoring the annual Halloween party for grades four, five and six on Friday.
Lois Schilnes and Carol Ulrich volunteered to help Sharon and Kathy. A number of auxiliary ladies will bake cookies.
The secretary reported 100 members as of Sept. 30.

Education chairman Alice Johnson stated that National Education Week is coming up in November. The Legion and Auxiliary county meeting will be held on November 11 at Ponca. Further information will be announced. Tickets for the meeting will be $6.50 and are available now. Call Legion Commander Mike Looft at 287-2844 or Auxiliary President Carol Ulrich at 198-2926 to buy tickets or for more information.

The Auxiliary ladies voted to help the Legion pay some bills.
At the end of the evening Alice Johnson, Percy Eaton and Sheri Eaton served lunch.

Their next meeting will be Monday, Nov. 8 at 8 p.m. at the Legion Hall.

SOUP SUPPER
Fund raising continues to be the main topic of discussion during Wakefield's Band Boosters meetings. At a meeting Nov. 20, the group discussed the current sales of the cutlery and ways to increase them.

The group also talked briefly about the upcoming bake sale by the band which will be held in conjunction with the Christmas Fair at the school on Saturday, Nov. 8.

The committee assigned to organize a soup supper gave a report. Mr. and Mrs. Dwayne Erickson have stated they will donate chickens for the homemade chicken and noodle soup. Contributions of pies and chili by the band parents and advance ticket sales was also discussed.
The soup supper will be held sometime in January after the holiday break.
Next meeting of Band Boosters will be Dec. 1.

HALLOWEEN PARADE
Wakefield elementary students in kindergarten through third grade are planning a Halloween parade through downtown Friday. In addition to haunting main street the youngsters will visit the residents at the Wakefield Health Care Center dressed in their Halloween costumes.

The parade on main street is scheduled to begin at 2 p.m. The students will be at the care center at 1:40 p.m. Following the parade downtown the students will return to the school for classroom parties.
The elementary students in grades four, five and six will go roller skating at the Wakefield Ring. After skating the students will be served refreshments at the Legion Hall compliments of the American Legion Auxiliary.

SEEKING DONATIONS
American Legion Post #81 in Wakefield recently mailed a letter to all members asking them to contribute to their debt retirement fund. The post is trying to generate a total contribution of approximately $6,000. The local legion post went into debt in making building improvements and in supporting community activities. Current fund-raising efforts are helping to keep up with fixed operating costs but it is necessary to pay off a loan and several large bills that have accumulated.

Persons wishing to contribute are asked to send a check payable to American Legion Post #81. The check may be given to any post member or mailed to Dennis Meyer, Treasurer, RR 2, Wakefield, Nebr. 68784.

BAKE SALE
The Trojan Band will hold its annual bake sale on Saturday, Nov. 8. The bake sale is held at the school mini-gym in connection with the Christmas Craft Fair.
Homemade pie, rolls, candies and other goodies will be on sale from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Proceeds from the bake sale will be used towards the next band trip.

Stress problems? Write!

by Jeff Berger
You've had a lousy day. Your boss chewed you out for no reason. The people you work with are suffering from the B.A.'s (bad attitudes) and it is rubbing off. You get home and your spouse, it turns out, had also had a lousy day and is ready to vent it out on you! Naturally, on top of that, the kids are wound up. Oh, I didn't even mention the money problems that you have and did you forget about that car with the mysterious sound that the mechanics can't solve but are working on? Stress? You've got to be kidding! It's not stress, it's just that sometimes those little things that happen every day get on your nerves, right?
If you've ever had a day like the one just described, you are officially a stress expert. And if you are a normal type of person, there are probably some things that you do to typically "wind down" or reduce that stress when you have it. Some people are yellers and can vent all that stress on others and not feel bad about it. Or maybe you sit and have a drink or two or nine. Cigarettes? Maybe a couple extra but they calm you down, right? Or are you a spender, a person who can shop their troubles away. Of course, let's not forget the boob tube, which can put you to sleep in five minutes after a long day.
All of these methods of coping can be effective, but at the same time, they also have something else in common. All of these ways of stress relief take your mind off of the stress you are feeling with negative effects on you! Cigarettes and booze are not good for you, so researchers say. Shopping definitely causes more money problems, which adds, not reduces stress. And the T.V. forces you into a passive observers role vs. an active doers role in dealing with stress.

The Wayne Stress Prevention Center offers a wide range of techniques and ideas on how to reduce your stress level and at the same time, have a positive influence on your body and soul. Of course, you have the right to deal with stress in any way that works best for you. The ways of coping mentioned before are O.K. if kept in perspective. The techniques that we use do work well if practiced. Wouldn't it be nice to reduce your stress level, without after-effects, and at the same time, find new energy with which to enjoy the rest of the day? That is what we are offering you.
The Wayne Stress Prevention Center meets every Thursday night at 7 p.m. at Wayne-Carroll High School in Room 202. These sessions are free and are not counseling. The topic for each session can be decided by you and the stress you are feeling. We are able to provide information on job stress, parenting stress, crisis stress, economic stress, stress in relationships and any other specific stress that you are feeling.

We are also available for groups to give presentations on any stress-related topic you desire to learn more about. Call Jeff Berger at 375-5289 or Doug Porlier at 375-2420 or 375-2200 ext. 304 to set up a date for your group. To date, the Wayne Stress Prevention Center has talked to over 1,000 people in group situations, with more to come. Is your group missing out? Why not give us a call?
If you are under stress and you don't feel comfortable coming to us on Thursday nights and you don't belong to a group, why not drop us a letter? We would like to offer you another opportunity to get answers to your stress-related problems. Write us a letter with your problem or questions and we will print our answers in this column. No names will be used and your confidentiality is guaranteed.
Write to either Doug or Jeff at 510 E. 7th, Wayne, NE 68787 and the Wayne Stress Prevention Center will make every effort to help you with your stress-related problems.
So now you can write us, call us or drop by on Thursday nights for relief from the little things that are part of living. After all, isn't that what you need? This is what we are here for.
The Wayne Stress Prevention Center is funded by the Providence Medical Center Foundation.

A MESSAGE FROM United States Senator Ed Zorinsky

"When it comes to straightening out the agricultural economy, Helen's right on target. I know what this administration's farm policy is doing to Nebraska's farms and communities because I've been fighting against it.

"What we Nebraskans need is more support in Washington, not another voice of agreement. Helen's by far the best person for the job."

...AND Governor Bob Kerrey

"It doesn't matter whether you live in Norfolk or Newcastle, Helen cares about every Nebraskan. Her reputation for listening to the people and acting in their best interest is known across the nation.

"When she talks about people working together to accomplish things, she really means it. The proof is in her record.

The play by Arthur Schnitzler will be performed by a cast made up of 11 Wayne State students. It will be presented at 8 p.m. Nov. 14 (Friday) and Nov. 15 (Saturday) and at 2 p.m. Nov. 16 (Sunday).

German meal served at Winside

Winside's Federated Woman's Club hosted its fourth annual German dinner on Oct. 25 in the Winside city auditorium with approximately 200 persons attending.

The German dinners began in 1983 in an effort by the Woman's Club to get residents of Winside involved in a community project.

"German food was chosen because the majority of residents are of German heritage," said Barb Leapley, chairman of the group.

Leapley added that the majority of food is prepared and donated by residents of the community, and that the dinner is not intended to be a money making project for the Woman's Club.

ENTERTAINMENT THIS year was provided by Harlan Brugger of Winside at the organ.

Fifth and sixth grade Girl Scouts and leader Peg Eckert assisted in carrying trays of food to the tables, cleaning tables, and pouring refills of beverages.

Servers included Laurel DuBoise, Christi Mundil, Tawnya Krueger, Jenny Hancock, Holly Holdorf, Tammy Sievers and Yolanda Sievers.

Other volunteers from the community who helped serve were Greta Grubbs, Darlene Eckert, Wilva Jenkins, Janice Jaeger, Lorraine Prince, Barb Leapley, Christi Brugger, Bonnie Van Houten, Lila

Hansen, Jane Rademacher, Barb Hawkins, Dawn Peter and Marysa Bleich.

Greeters were Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Ditman, and ticket taker was Gloria Lessmann.

SIX DATED Budweiser collector beer steins were given away during the evening. Winners were Paul Oberle, Trent Sueli, Robert Jansen, Marian Iversen, Pat Meierhenry and Lorraine Prince.

Current members of the Winside Federated Woman's Club are Jane Rademacher, Lorraine Prince, Barb Leapley, Mary Lou George, Robyn Ashmore and Kathy Hladky.

"I'm Donna Jensen, one of 42 Nebraskans still alive because Nebraska has a safety belt law."*

I'm a substitute teacher in Blair, and while I've always tried to teach my students about safety, I had a lesson in safety I hope my students never have to experience.

I was returning to Blair from a shopping trip in Omaha about a year ago with two of my friends when we were hit on the curve of Highway 91 just west of town.

We were all injured badly... and if we had not been wearing our safety belts, I know we would have been killed.

So when you hear that safety belts save lives... believe it. They saved mine, and my friends.

NRD to close Clarkson office

The Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District Personnel and Equipment Subcommittee is recommending to the full NRD Board at their October 23rd meeting that the Clarkson Field Office be closed on April 1st, 1987.

This NRD Field Office actually opened in 1969 under the supervision of the Maple Creek Watershed Advisory Board. Former Lower Elkhorn NRD Manager Steve Oltmans was manager of the Maple Creek Watershed Board at that time. When the NRD's became operational in July 1972, Oltmans became General Manager of the lower Elkhorn NRD and the headquarters office was located at Norfolk. The Watershed Boards were among more than 150 special use districts in Nebraska that became part of the Statewide NRD system.

Present Lower Elkhorn NRD Assistant Manager Richard Seymour began his duties directing the Maple Creek Watershed activities in July 1973.

Today, the Lower Elkhorn NRD is facing dramatic changes. The emphasis and priority is changing from constructing dam and reservoirs (both large and small) to mandatory regulation of our soil and water resources. The 1986 Nebraska Legislature passed three major conservation bills including LB 474 The Sediment and Erosion Control Act, LB 284 Chemigation and LB 894 Special Groundwater Quality Protection Areas.

"This Legislation will have far reaching impact, both socially and economically for farmers and landowners. The NRD will be spending more time and budget dollars in the future for these regulatory programs. As economics dictate what happens to government programs at the local level, political subdivisions such as NRD's must adjust accordingly." It said in a news release from Stan Staab, general manager of the Lower Elkhorn NRD.

NRD management will be focused on regulatory programs for soil erosion and water quality. Assistant Manager Richard Seymour will be assigned Administrator of the new Sediment and Erosion Control Program as well as his present duties with Special Projects. For this reason, it will be necessary for Mr. Seymour to report to the NRD office in Norfolk on a daily basis after April 1, 1987.

Major Health Hazard

Many people find it difficult to believe that an estimated 100,000 Americans die each year due to incorrect use of prescribed medicines. According to individuals who have investigated the problem, drug misuse occurs with about 50 percent of all prescription drug use. The primary reason for misuse may be lack of consumer information.

In a 1982 study conducted by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, it was determined that only 4 of every 100 consumers surveyed asked their physicians, or pharmacists questions about their prescription medicines. Failure to ask questions may, therefore, be the chief factor in the needless deaths that occur due to drug misuse — a major health hazard.

We have the answers to questions on prescription medicine use. What is the medicine for? Should it be taken before or after meals? How long should I take the medicine? Can I take it with other prescription and nonprescription medicines? What side effects are likely to occur? Do you have the answers to these questions about the medicines you are taking? If not, ask us for the answers.

TEXT OF PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT

Now, therefore, be it resolved by the members of the Eighty-Ninth Legislature of Nebraska, first session:

Section 1. That at the general election in November 1986 there shall be submitted to the electors of the State of Nebraska for approval the following amendment to Article III, section 17, and the repeal of Article III, section 3, of the Constitution of Nebraska, which is hereby proposed by the Legislature:

CH-17 "The Legislature shall have the sole power of impeachment, but a majority of the members elected must concur therein. Proceedings may be initiated in either a regular session or a special session of the Legislature. Upon the adoption of a resolution of impeachment, which resolution shall give reasonable notice of the acts or omissions alleged to constitute impeachable offenses but need not conform to any particular style, a notice of an impeachment of any officer, other than a Judge of the Supreme Court, shall be forthwith served upon the Chief Justice, by the Clerk of the Legislature, who shall thereupon call a session of the Supreme Court to meet at the Capitol in an expeditious fashion within ten days after such notice to try the impeachment. A notice of an impeachment of the Chief Justice or any Judge of the Supreme Court shall be served by the Clerk of the Legislature, upon the clerk any Judge of the judicial district within which the Capitol is located, and he or she thereupon shall notify all the judges, at random, seven Judges of the District Court in the State to meet with him within thirty days at the Capitol, to sit as a Court to try such impeachment, which Court shall organize by electing one of its number to preside. The case against the impeached officer shall be brought in the name of the Legislature and shall be managed by two senators, appointed by the Legislature, who may make technical or procedural amendments to the articles of impeachment as they deem necessary. No person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members of the Court of impeachment that clear and convincing evidence exists indicating that such person is guilty of one or more impeachable offenses, but judgment in cases of impeachment shall not extend further than removal from office and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honor, profit, or trust, in this State, but the party impeached, whether convicted or acquitted, shall nevertheless be liable to prosecution and punishment according to law. No officer shall exercise his or her official duties after he or she shall have been impeached and notified thereof, until he or she shall have been acquitted.

A vote AGAINST this proposal will mean that the above described changes in and additions to the Legislature's impeachment power and procedure will not be made and they will remain as presently written.

Sec. 6. Any Class I school district which is within a Class VI school district after September 1, 1989, which withdraws from the Class VI school district pursuant to section 79-1107 or which was part of a Class VI district discontinued pursuant to section 79-1106 shall be merged with an existing Class II, III, IV, or V school district. Merger of such district shall be within one year of the withdrawal or discontinuance and accomplished pursuant to sections 1 to 5 of this act.

Sec. 7. Reorganization plans and petitions established pursuant to sections 79-402, 79-402.01, 79-402.02, and 79-426.01 to 79-426.22 may include a proposal to submit the question of electing members of the school board or board of education of the reorganized school district by district or ward. Upon the final approval of such reorganization plan or petition, the county clerk or election commissioner of the county which has the largest number of pupils residing in the reorganized district shall place the question on a separate ballot at the next general election according to the procedures established in Chapter 32.

If such reorganized school district will be a Class III school district, such reorganization plans and petitions may include a proposal that such reorganized school district will have a board of education of at least nine members as a Class III school district pursuant to sections 79-107 and that such reorganized school district will embrace a territory having a population of more than five thousand inhabitants.

Sections 5-108, 79-464, and 79-803.11 shall govern for purposes of determining temporary membership to any board of education increased to nine members and for purposes of creating any new districts or wards necessary to implement this section.

Sec. 8. Any Class I school district which is not part of a Class VI school district on the operative date of this section may, prior to March 1, 1989, become affiliated with an adjoining Class II, III, IV, or V school district as prescribed in sections 8 to 11 of this act. The voters in the Class I school district shall by a majority vote decide whether to be an affiliated school district or to remain a Class I school district. If the voters of the Class I school district shall be affiliated, school district with an adjoining Class II, III, IV, or V school district, the plan of affiliation shall first be approved by the school board of the Class II, III, IV, or V school district to which an affiliation plan has been proposed. Following the approval by such school board, the plan of affiliation shall be submitted at a special election to all the electors of the school district involved. Notice of the election shall be given by the county clerk or election commissioner and shall be published in a legal newspaper of general circulation in the county or counties involved at least ten days prior to the election. The notice shall state that the election has been called for the purpose of affording the electors an opportunity to approve or reject the plan of affiliation.

Prior to the affiliation of a Class I

All ballots shall be prepared and the special election shall be held and conducted by the county clerk or election commissioner, and the expense of such election shall be paid by the Class I school district. The county clerk or election commissioner shall use the duly appointed election board or appoint two judges and two clerks who shall be qualified electors of the territory of the proposed school district. The election shall be held at a place or places within the proposed district which shall have been determined by the county clerk or election commissioner to be convenient for the voters.

When the proposed plan of affiliation involves school districts under the jurisdiction of more than one county, the county clerk or election commissioner of the county which has the largest number of residents shall give the notice and prepare the ballots. The election shall be held and conducted by the county clerk or election commissioner of each county involved in the affiliation. The approval of the plan of affiliation shall require a majority of all electors voting.

A Class I school district which is affiliated with another school district shall support the high school in such district by a tax levy as prescribed in sections 8 to 11 of this act. Transportation shall be provided for high school students attending school from an affiliated Class I school district.

Sec. 9. A proposal to affiliate a Class I school district with a Class II, III, IV, or V school district may be initiated by filing a petition or petitions signed by at least twenty-five per cent of the legal voters of the district with the county superintendent of the county in which the greater part of the Class I school district is located. The county superintendent shall give notice to all legal voters of the school district. Upon determination by him or her that the signatures are sufficient, the county superintendent shall transmit the petition to the school board of the Class I school district which may have the issue placed on the ballot at the next primary or general election or may call a special election to vote on the issue. The petition shall specify the school district to which the Class I school district is to be affiliated.

Sec. 10. Any Class II, III, IV, or V school district to which a Class I school district elects to become affiliated pursuant to sections 8 to 11 of this act shall annually separate the budget of the school district into two portions. One portion shall be the high school portion and shall include the costs attributable to providing an education for children in grades nine through twelve, including student transportation costs, and the other portion shall include the balance of the budget. The separation of the high school portion of the budget shall be done by the manager and published in the annual report of the State Department of Education, shall, by rules and regulations, establish.

Following any affiliation pursuant to sections 8 to 11 of this act, bonds may be issued pursuant to sections 10-701 to 10-716, for purposes of capital additions or improvements to facilities used for the instructional program for grades nine through twelve or grades seven through twelve, upon the approval of a majority of all the qualified electors voting on the issue in the Class II, III, IV, or V school district and all affiliated Class I school districts.

Sec. 11. (1) The county clerk of any county in which all or part of an affiliated Class I school district is located shall, on or before July 15 of each year, certify the actual valuation of all taxable property of such Class I school district within the county to the county clerk of the county in which the high school of the school district with which the Class I school district is affiliated is located.

(2) The county board of the county in which the high school is located shall make a separate levy for the high school portion of the school district's budget. Such levy shall be upon the taxable property in both the Class II, III, IV, or V school district and the affiliated Class I school district. The county clerk of the levying county shall certify the levy on or before September 1 in each year to the county clerk of the county in which a portion of the affiliated Class I school district is located. Such levy shall be collected in the same manner as other property taxes and shall be remitted by the collecting county to the county in which the high school is located.

Sec. 12. Notwithstanding any other provision of sections 1 to 6 of this act or Chapter 79, after the operative date of this section, whenever the question of closing an elementary school attendance site is raised for a reorganization governed by section 79-402, the Reorganization of School Districts Act, or sections 79-426.23 to 79-426.26 in which a school district has attached itself as a whole to a Class II, III, IV, or V school district or has become part of a Class VI school district, such elementary school attendance site shall not be closed unless a majority of the qualified electors who, on the date of the election provided for in this section, reside within the county in which the school district, as it existed prior to reorganization, vote pursuant to section 13 of this act to close such site. Approval of a proposition to close an elementary school attendance site shall require a majority of all qualified electors voting at a special election called for such purpose.

If such school district divides and the various portions join more than one county school district pursuant to this act, such elementary school attendance site shall not be closed unless a majority of the voters who, on the date of the election provided for in this section, reside in the portion of such school district, as the boundaries of such district existed prior to the reorganization, which contains such elementary school attendance site vote to close such site.

For purposes of this section, elementary school attendance sites which include an elementary school site in the school district which has been required to merge with or become a part of another school district pursuant to section 1 of this act or section 79-701.

Sec. 13. (1) The election prescribed in section 12 of this act shall be called by the school board of the reorganized school district by resolution or upon a petition by twenty per cent of the voters residing in the school district as the school district existed prior to reorganization and shall be conducted in accordance with subsections (2) to (4) of this section.

(2) Notice of the election shall be given by the county clerk or election commissioner and shall be published in a legal newspaper or newspapers of general circulation in the county at least ten days prior to the election. The election notice shall (a) state that the election has been called for the purpose of affording the electors an opportunity to approve or reject the resolution or petition to close an elementary school attendance site and (b) contain the legal description of the attendance site.

(3) All ballots shall be prepared and the election shall be held and conducted by the county clerk or election commissioner and the expense of such election shall be paid by the county board. The county clerk or election commissioner shall use the duly appointed election board or appoint two judges and two clerks who shall be qualified electors of the territory of the school district as the school district existed prior to reorganization. The election shall be held at a place or places within such school district which shall have been determined by the county clerk or election commissioner to be convenient for the voters.

(4) When the elementary school attendance site which is proposed to be closed is located in a school district under the jurisdiction of more than one county, the county clerk or election commissioner of the county which has the largest number of pupils residing in such district shall give the notice required by subsection (2) of this section in a newspaper of general circulation in the territory of such district and prepare the ballots, and such election shall be held and conducted by the county clerk or election commissioner of each county in such district in accordance with Chapter 32. Each county board shall bear a share of the total election expense in the same proportion that the number of electors residing in such district in one county stands to the whole number of electors in such district.

Sec. 14. The Attorney General shall file a petition under section 25-2119 seeking a declaratory judgment from the Nebraska Supreme Court on the constitutionality of the election provisions in section 12 of this act.

Sec. 15. Following a reorganization governed by section 79-402, the Reorganization of School Districts Act, or sections 79-426.23 to 79-426.26 in which a school district has attached itself as a whole to a Class II, III, IV, or V school district or has become part of a Class VI school district, a class action may be filed against the school board of such Class II, III, IV, or V school district in district court if an elector in the school district of an elementary school attendance site, as such district existed prior to reorganization, has reason to believe that the school board in charge of such site is neglecting to provide reasonable educational opportunities or is neglecting to maintain the building site properly if neglect is found, the court shall determine how such conditions at such site shall be improved.

Sec. 16. A family whose children attend a Class I school district which has merged, affiliated, or approved a plan for merging or affiliating with an existing Class II, III, IV, or V school district may submit a request in writing to the county committee for the reorganization of school districts for hardship status. The county committee shall consider such request and may recommend the approval or disapproval of such request and submit the request and its recommendation to the State Committee for the Reorganization of School Districts for final approval. The county committee shall include in its recommendation the school district to which it believes such children should be assigned. When considering whether to recommend the approval or grant final approval of hardship status, the county and state committees shall consider the following factors:

- (1) The age of the students of the family seeking hardship status;
- (2) The distance from the family's residence to the school attendance site which the students will attend after the merger or affiliation, and the average estimated travel time to and from such attendance site;
- (3) The road conditions over which the students will be required to travel to and from school;
- (4) The availability and proximity of an alternate school district to which such students may be assigned; and
- (5) Any other factors the county or state committee deems necessary.

CONGRESSMAN DOUG BEREUTER IS NEBRASKA'S MOST EFFECTIVE AND RESPECTED NATIONAL LEADER.

Doug Bereuter was born and raised in Nebraska. He's lived in a small town that depends on agriculture. To Doug, working effectively for Nebraska's First District means knowing the people and understanding the problems first-hand. That's why Doug spends an average of every second weekend here in the district. Yet he is an active legislator and maintains one of the highest voting records in Congress, over 98%.

He's brought more federal money back to Nebraska than any First-District congressman in history. Today, he's one of the leaders for fair trade, increased exports, more jobs for Americans, and addressing the problems facing agriculture.

Doug Bereuter is our experienced and effective voice in the U.S. House of Representatives. Let's keep his seniority working for all of us.

Please vote on Nov. 4.

Re-elect Doug Bereuter CONGRESS
