Hospital offers Cardiology Clinic

Hospital survival may be based on a hospital's ability to provide or make available out patient clinics and/or Services, according to Marcille Thomas, administrator at Providence Medical Center.

And Providence Medical Center has added another clinic to those already being provided. The new clinic will be in Cardiology Services. Providence Medical Center currently has Urology, Orthopedic and ENT. Other out patient services include mammography, ultrasound, echocardiograms, dopplers and venograms, Thomas said.

The Cardiology Clinic will be held at least monthly and will be based on referral from the patient's own personal physician. Drs. Michael S. Chandra, John T. Baller, William R. Wanner and Stephen Zumbur, all cardiology specialists from Sioux City, will be at the clinics on an alternating basis.

They are all Diplomats of the American Board of Internal Medicine and Diplomats in the Subspecialty Board in Cardiovascular Disease.

"Most cardiac work-ups will now be done at the hospital, and there should be no need to plan a day in the City for a similar evaluation. We also plan to charge less than the same procedures would cost you in the City," Thomas said.

She said Providence Medical Center has a long history of being very caring and responsive to "not only our older patients, but to the entire community."

HOWEVER, THOMAS said there is always another side to the story which the public or media seems to favor at times.

This is the story which portrays hospitals as less sensitive, less concerned about quality and less concerned about their ability to give good patient care than is actually the case.

Thomas said giving good care does take money.

"At our hospital, 13 cents out of every dollar of charges are never collected because they are unreimbursed from the government, or they constitute bad debts, charity or Hill Burton free care."

"We have approximately 80 employees, with at least half of them professionals, which accounts for about 35 cents out of every dollar, and we are not on the high range of the pay scale for the state."

The balance, she said, is the 52 cents to pay for all overhead expenses including supplies, repairs, education, plant maintenance and building expenses. Service calls are sometimes $100 an hour on highly specialized equipment.

"We can not control their charges to us," she said.

On March 1, 1986, because of the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings Balanced Budget Law Medicare payments were reduced for all hospitals. In addition, there are no favorable prospects towards much increase in Medicare payments through the normal budget reconciliation legislation, according to Thomas.

"Medicare is asking us to take care of Medicare patients next year at a reduction in reimbursements," she said.

Thomas said the hospital has given many days of free care to Medicare patients during the past year because, in essence, Medicare did not pay for those days — even though the physician felt the patient was still medically in need of acute care.

"Every hospital throughout the country gives away far more free days of care than they are given credit for, because their mission is to take care of patients first, yet the mission is becoming more difficult to achieve as the Medicare budget continually tightens," Thomas said.

SHE SAID THE media often will highlight a case about a beneficiary who was discharged, according to her view, early. This is far more rare than patients being kept longer than the hospital receives payment for, she mentioned.

Thomas makes several points about the alleged "early discharge."

"Often it is stated that a medical record librarian or nurse decided that the patient should be dismissed, or how long the patient could stay," she mentioned.

"Days given for a length of stay are only guidelines — the physician decides when the patient is well enough to go home, go to Skilled Bed or be dismissed to an Intermediate Care or Nursing Home," she added.

Physicians decide if Home Health and other ancillary services are indicated.

"Every case is assigned an average length of stay, but this does not mean an administrative person is deciding how long a patient should stay. The physician always admits and always discharges. No one else is licensed or trained or has that authority," Thomas said.

A HOSPITAL, she said, could not discharge the patient when the physician feels there is a medical need for the patient to remain. It may result in no reimbursement to the hospital.

The ultimate danger is that Medicare will push its reimbursement policies to the limit, severely affecting patients and causing hospitals to go bankrupt.

Presently Providence Medical is managing quite well under the system, Thomas says.

"But only with careful balance between quality and cost can we continue to maintain our very excellent health care systems, not only for our elderly citizens, but for all of us," she said.

Wayne snow clearing policy set

By Chuck Hackemiller
Managing Editor

There might be one noticeable change in this year's Wayne city snow removal, but you probably won't see it on the streets.

The change from other years is that now the snow removal and ice control is written in policy form — a policy approved earlier this year by the Wayne city council.

One reason for the establishment of the written policy, according to Superintendent of Public Works Vern Schulz, is to provide the city of Wayne with some liability protection.

Some of the information from the 43-page policy was copied from several cities in Nebraska and surrounding states, according to Schulz.

The city of Wayne, which averages approximately 35 inches of snowfall, is responsible for snow removal and ice control on about 35 miles of streets and 12 miles of alleys, plus three cul-de-sac areas.

Snow removal personnel consists of nine people, with eight units of equipment used to move snow and ice.

INSIDE THE policy is an ordinance, passed in September, that deals in part with parking procedure on municipal streets.

If it becomes necessary, the city will declare a "snow emergency", based on either the current weather conditions (snow, sleet or freezing rain) or a forecast by the area weather bureau.

Five hours after the declaration of snow emergency has been made (either through KTCH Radio or The Wayne Herald), no car can be parked on any of the streets in Wayne to allow city crews to clean the streets the full width.

Parking prohibition will automatically go into effect on any municipal street when there has been an accumulation of snow and ice of five inches or more, for one hour or more, between 7 a.m. and 10 p.m. of any day.

Members of the police department and public works department have been authorized to remove vehicles from streets to the nearest garage or other places of safety when the vehicle violates the parking prohibition as stated in the written policy.

That policy also extends to a stalled vehicle. If the person who was operating the vehicle doesn't appear to be removing it from the snow, sleet or ice-covered street.

IT IS MENTIONED in the snow removal policy that the snow plow operators will not clear private driveways. The snow placed in driveways by snow plows is the responsibility of the property owner to remove and snow from a private driveway may not be placed on a city street.

The city's municipal code also states that it is unlawful for property owners to allow snow, sleet, mud or ice to accumulate on any sidewalk abutting their lot. The sidewalks should be cleared off within 24 hours after the storm.

Motorists may have noticed a black coal-like substance being used as an abrasive on Main Street between 7th and 14th Streets when Wayne had recently experienced icy conditions.

Schulz said the city cannot use its regular ice control chemicals (four parts sand gravel to one part rock salt) on the newly constructed concrete roadway for a period of one year.

So Wayne has received, as a "donation" from the state, some coal slag from an electrical generating plant at Sergeant Bluff, Iowa.

But to make it work properly on slippery surfaces, Schulz said "you really have to pour it on."

The coal slag could be reusable; Schulz said, after the street has been cleared of the substance.

$2,600 to be given away

Holiday promotion begins in Wayne

Holiday Magic is upon us.

This holiday season, like last year, will see many individuals win some extra money in their Christmas shopping — thanks in part to Wayne retailers' efforts to promote Christmas shopping at home.

Up to $2,600 will be given away. It works like this:

One slip is filled out each time a shopper makes a purchase at a participating business. The purchase amount is indicated on the registration blank near the bottom of the slip.

By Thursday at noon, registration slips from all participating businesses are turned in at the Wayne Chamber of Commerce office. The drawings will be announced at the Chamber of Commerce office and announced over KTCH Radio and also published in the Monday edition of The Wayne Herald.

Winners that are drawn will win a gift certificate for the amount of purchase indicated on the slip (with round figures being used).

For example, if a winner's slip shows that the consumer had spent $7 in a business, they would win $7. These gift certificates can only be spent at Chamber businesses.

For purchases of over $50, or $500 or $5,000, the winners will be limited to gift certificates of up to $50. Anyone can register, even if no purchase is made, because they are still eligible to receive a $1 gift certificate.

Each week during the upcoming four weeks, winners will be drawn until the combined gift certificates given away that week total $500.

The four weekly drawing dates are Friday, Nov. 28 and Thursday, Dec. 4, 11, and 18.

Participants include: Mines Jewelers, Kuhn's Department Store, Arnie's Ford-Mercury, The Lumber Company, Ben Franklin Store, Doeschler Appliance, Wayne Shoe Company, Swan's, Ellingson Motors, Ellis Barbers, Office Connection and The Country Nursery.

THE TRIBE of Yessir, a group of businessmen from Omaha, came last week to Wayne and took a tour of the industries and businesses throughout the city. They were welcomed by the Wayne Chamber of Commerce Ambassadors. The Yessirs promote business in general and a positive attitude. The group makes a minimum of four trips each season, traveling to various towns in Nebraska and Iowa.

Most popular-Scotch pine

Self-cut trees are fresh

The best way to ensure freshness in a Christmas tree is to cut it locally, according to Dennis Adams, University of Nebraska-Lincoln district and extension forester.

Trees cut and shipped from western and northern states are often cut months in advance of Christmas, he said.

Originally, family Christmas trees came from natural forest, but today most are grown in plantations. It takes six to 15 years for a Christmas tree to grow, with pruning every year to achieve the symmetrical appearance people prefer.

Nebraska has about 50 Christmas tree plantations, Adams said. Most are "choose and cut" operations where the customer can select and cut the tree he wants.

According to a Nebraska Forest Service survey, about 50,000

Nebraska-grown Christmas trees are available for the 1986 season. The most popular species is Scotch pine, but other common Nebraska-grown trees include Austrian pine, white pine, Colorado blue spruce, pondera pine and Norway spruce.

Information about plantation locations and opening times is available from Cooperative Extension Service offices, NRD or district forestry offices. Many plantations open the weekend after Thanksgiving.

Using your dehumidifier

Dampness or other moisture problems in your home may require that you operate a dehumidifier into the fall and winter.

In cooler weather, icing of a dehumidifier can be a problem. Room temperature is usually responsible for icing.

A dehumidifier operates on a refrigeration cycle, similar to your refrigerator. Air is drawn across evaporator coils, cooling it and causing moisture to condense out. When the room air temperature drops below about 65 degrees Fahrenheit, the evaporator coils get cold enough that the condensation from the moisture in the air will freeze. Frost build-up interferes with performance of the dehumidifier and can damage the unit.

If icing is a problem for your dehumidifier, check the temperature in the room where the dehumidifier is in use. If warming the air is not an alternative, other methods of moisture control should be investigated.

Acid cleaners can damage automatic washers
Acid cleaners are often recommended for removal of hard water deposits. However, according to the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers, acid cleaners should not be used to remove hard water deposits from automatic washers. Here's why:

Heavy duty laundry detergents are alkaline, so the washer's porcelain basket and most metal components are formulated for resistance to alkaline wash water. Consequently, they cannot resist acids very well.

Acids can damage the porcelain basket and some metal parts, resulting in very high service costs and/or reduced life for the washer.

With long acid soaks, the porcelain finish becomes etched, even rough and abrasive, and can snag or damage fabrics easily. Also, metal parts that aren't acid-resistant may rust, creating rusty water that can permanently stain fabrics.

The deposits caused by hard water minerals and some high carbonate, non-phosphate detergents can cause problems with both clothing and washer parts. Here are several ways to prevent these problems:

— Soften the water mechanically or with a phosphate-built water conditioner.

— Use a liquid detergent since it doesn't contribute to the hard water mineral build up.

— Consider using a phosphate detergent if it's available in your area.

Dohrman of Emerson gets government contract

Congressman Doug Bereuter was notified Thursday afternoon by the Department of Navy that Dohrman Machine Production, Inc. of Emerson would receive a $4,392,931 firm, fixed price contract for modular cargo delivery stations for various ships of the military sealift command.

Today's announcement represents the first year commitment of what could turn out to be a five-year contract with the Navy. According to other reports, an option for another four years would bring the total contract to about $30.2 million.

The company's 40 employees will start soon on the contract that calls for producing two large machines which transfer cargo from supply ships to other naval vessels as they sail.

As full production begins, the contract would employ 200 people in Emerson and West Point, according to Bereuter's office.

'hacken' away

by Chuck Hackenmiller

People who attended a performance of the Mimosas at Grace Lutheran Church found out quite a bit about the Samoan people, according to an article written by Mona Meyer.

The evangelistic team mimed parables from the Bible. The performers each had stayed in Samoa for six months. They categorized the Samoans as beautiful people with beautiful singing voices.

The Samoans have their own language. English is second tongue to them.

Yes the cities have modern houses with plumbing and electricity.

Guests receive the first (and best) of the food, while the children eat what is left. Punishment for the children, if they disobey, could mean a beating with a stick or having a rock thrown at them.

Seldom, fathers pick up their child to show affection because this is a sign of weakness.

How sad!

Churches on the island are Catholics, Methodists and Congregationalists and are mainly legalistic. People contribute up to 50 percent of their income to the churches and pastors.

After each collection, each family name is read with the amount they have contributed. You won't see many churches here do that, although I'm sure some pastors have been tempted when the collection plate has been low.

And if the people do wear white in church, or forget their hymals, or skip a service they could be fined.

Samoans don't dare fall asleep in church. They could expect to be awakened by the minister's wife hitting them.

STAPLE OF their diet is the taro root and other foods that include fish, bread, fruit, coconuts, bananas, cucumbers and other vegetables. For special occasions, pork and chicken were served. Cooking is done in an underground oven.

And if you are the honored guest — lucky you will get the most special part of the pig, which is the head. They even eat the eyes.

Samoan clothes can consist of cloth wrapped around the body and tucked in or tied. These clothes are called lava lavas. Life in Samoa is so public, including the "rain barrel showers and the fresh water lagoons" that the Americans did a lot of soaping in, around and under their lava lavas.

Big business in Samoa is videos. And what they see of Americans is how they picture us to be. Samoans believe that Americans live and act as the videos portray life in the United States.

Trouble is, only a handful of people are like what you ever see in the movies.

But the young Samoans admire Americans greatly and model themselves after these videos, often bringing disgrace to the family.

And in Samoa, death is preferred over disgrace and scandal. Samoa has the highest suicide rate in the world for men ages 18 through 25 years.

Each of the evangelistic team members stayed with a village family in the families' fale — a one room house with a grass roof and no sides. One of the members in the family would speak English, if lucky. But the family preferred on speaking their own language.

I imagine it was difficult to make conversation around the supper table with this arrangement. But it was probably hard to talk with a pig's head staring you right in the face.

Thanks to Mona Meyer for this information which I'm sure our readers will find interesting and informative.

Today's edition of the Wayne Herald will be followed up by a Wednesday edition (instead of the normal Thursday edition). So our pages go to the presses on Tuesday of this week, just one day after Monday's publication. Monday's paper is printed on Saturday.

All you have to remember is to get your material in for Wednesday's paper (printed Tuesday) by Monday.

How's that for confusion?

Line item veto power needed

Richard L. Leshner, President Chamber of Commerce of the United States

Perhaps the most famous nag in history was the ancient Roman orator Marcus Cato who insistently demanded over and over that the rival city of Carthage be destroyed (Delenda est Carthago!). By Cato's time, Carthage posed no threat to Rome, but Cato demanded its destruction anyway.

Eventually, Rome did destroy Carthage, razing its buildings to the ground and sowing the earth with salt so nothing would grow. Some historians say Rome acted, not out of military or economic necessity, but just so Cato would shut up.

We need someone of Cato's eloquence and determination to champion the line-item veto. The bloated federal budget poses more danger to our country than Carthage did to Rome, and the line item veto in the hands of the president would be an effective remedy.

The need for the line-item veto was underscored dramatically in October when Congress, for the first time, failed to complete action on any of the 13 major appropriations bills that fund federal programs. Not until 18 days into the next fiscal year, and after a temporary shutdown of government, did Congress finally act, dumping a huge $576 billion omnibus spending bill on the president's desk.

THE OMNIBUS bill can only be described as a monstrosity. It is so big that no one knows for certain what is in it. But one item conspicuously missing is a $90 billion allotment for highways and mass transit. It was omitted to convey the illusion of fiscal restraint, but you can be sure it will be restored, bloating the deficit even further.

This all is not only a formula for economic disaster, but also it is a repudiation of the Constitutional system of checks and balances. The president is supposed to have veto power over all bills enacted by Congress, including budget appropriations. But the president cannot veto the omnibus measure without bringing all spending to a sudden halt, and throwing the government into chaos. In effect, Congress has repudiated his veto power.

Clearly, this cannot go on. The president simply must be able to veto specific budget items of which he disapproves. If Congress disagrees with his decision, it retains the power to override his veto, as it did with the sanctions bill against South Africa. That is the way our system is supposed to work.

The system is not working with regard to the budget. In its zeal to squander the nation's resources, Congress has trampled upon one of the most fundamental principles of our form of government. We have entered the age of the "imperial" Congress, and the situation is becoming increasingly desperate.

The case for the line-item veto has never been so starkly drawn, or so compelling.

Farm City Week scheduled

NEBRASKA FARM BUREAU FEDERATION by Cheryl Stubbendieck Vice president/information

Thanksgiving, that annual day set aside for the counting of blessings (as well as for the eating of turkey and the watching of football), tends to focus on personal homes: healthy children, generally happy adults, the freedoms we enjoy in the U.S., enough of the basics of life.

But there are corporate blessings, too. In particular, the gift of the harvest, so bountiful this year. Thanksgiving started out as a feast of giving thanks for surviving a hard winter and having enough food from the land. For more than 30 years, this national holiday has been selected as the end date for a week-long observance that seeks to remind rural and urban people alike of this blessing and their interdependence.

NOV. 21 to 27 will again be observed as National Farm City Week.

Although it's certainly appropriate for city folk and country folk to try to better understand each other throughout the year, this week provides a focus for those efforts and an occasion for reflection.

Consider that in colonial times, 98 percent of Americans were farmers and 2 percent lived in villages. Now in a complete reversal, just over 2 percent farm and nearly 98 percent rely on farmers as the source of their food and fiber.

Since the turn of this century, farm employment has declined from 13.6 million persons to 3.6 million today. But at the same time, the number of people who make up the farm-to-dinner-table network has grown to 22 million people. About 20 million people are involved in agriculture through storage, transportation, processing and merchandising the output of American farms.

And all Americans have benefited from the technological advances made in farming, food and fiber processing and distribution. Family income buys considerably more food today than it did 30 years ago. An hour's pay would have bought about 27 eggs in 1951, but 108 in 1981, a four-fold increase.

A healthy agriculture is critical to the well-being of local communities, as well as Nebraska and the nation. Twenty percent of our country's Gross National Product is tied to agriculture and food industries. Farmers spend about $135 billion for goods and services, most of it at the local level. Nationwide, the dairy industry creates 167,000 jobs while the baking industry is responsible for 241,000. And each $1 billion in ag exports generates 33,000 full-time jobs.

Even with the problems in agriculture — not enough of those exports, a large oversupply of many ag commodities — Farm City Week seeks to remind us that much is good in agriculture and it has benefits for all of us.

Revealing scores

All along, people who have been supporting the repeal of LB 662 and saw their goal come true in the November election have gone on record saying that the quality of education is not lacking in this state's Class I schools.

It appears that they now have the evidence to back their findings, particularly in Wayne County.

The Wayne County Superintendent's office has obtained figures that detail the performances of 174 students who took the SRA Achievement Test in October of this year.

Of eighth grade students, 25 had taken the test and 12 finished in the upper percentiles of from 71 to 99. Eleven of 14 seventh grade students finished in the same category.

And 11 of 23 sixth grade students had high marks in the upper percentiles. While the high percentile numbers slipped to 9 of 21 students in grade five and 7 of 24 students in grade three, the marks pick up ground in grade seven where the figures show 12 of 24 students in grade four and 13 of 19 students in grade two within the upper national percentile.

Subjects covered in the SRA tests included reading, language arts, math, social studies and science. The younger students in the lower graders were tested on fewer subjects, according to figures from the county superintendent's office.

So in the defense of Class I county schools, there is evidence that the educational quality students receive is sound.

The SRA scores reflect the county school strengths in contributing to this state's education system.

a public service of the nebraska state bar association

Q. My husband plans to retire from farming in the next few years. Can we legally make a gift of the land to our children? We wonder if this will avert inheritance tax and other taxes.

A. You and your husband can make a gift of the land to your children, but gift taxes may be due as a result of the transfer. The requirements for making a transfer by gift are that the donor must be competent (i.e., able to make the gift) and must have the intent that the transfer be a gift, coupled with actual conveyance or delivery of the property so that the recipients have legal title to the property. The donor must have no power to revoke the gift once the recipient accepts it. If all these requirements are met, the transfer is said to be an "inter vivos" gift, and may be subject to gift taxes.

A gift tax is imposed on the donor of money or property, with some exceptions. All taxpayers are permitted to make gifts, up to a certain amount, without paying gift taxes, and certain kinds of gifts are excluded from the taxes. For example, there is an exclusion of $10,000 for each gift to a donee; there is also a deduction for gifts made to third parties in which the donor's spouse joins ("gift splitting"). If a gift tax is levied on the property, the donor has primary responsibility for it. However, since the gift may represent income to the recipients, they are liable for any income taxes that may be assessed on the gift.

You should also be aware that if you give the farm to your children as a gift, they will assume your cost basis for tax purposes, whereas if there is no gift, they will inherit it at its value on the date of your death. For example, if you paid $100 per acre for the land and it is now worth $200 per acre, if you give it to them and they later sell it, they will have to pay a tax on the amount over $100 per acre. If they inherit it, however, and it is worth $200 per acre on the date of death, they would only pay taxes on the amount over $100 per acre should they later sell the land.

Please see a lawyer who handles tax and estate planning to help you in the disposition of your property. Your lawyer can help you to accomplish the transfer of your land to your children with the lowest possible tax consequences to both parties.

Q. If an out-state organization issues notes with the written promise to make payments of interest semi-annually, is it legally required to abide by that promise or may it make a change of time for paying interest to pay annually instead of semi-annually in spite of a written promise on the certificate to pay interest at certain intervals?

A. The body of law that deals with transactions involving commercial paper, such as your note, is called the Uniform Commercial Code. The Code specifies the duties of both the maker of a negotiable instrument and the holder of such an instrument, and one of the maker's duties is to pay the instrument according to its tenor or terms. Thus, the out-state organization, as maker of the note, is bound by the promise it made in the note. You, as holder, are entitled to performance of the promise on the face of the note (i.e., semi-annual interest payments).

Ron Jones looks to the future

By Gregg Dahlheim
Sports Editor

A 25-year relationship with Wayne State College is coming to a close for Wildcat Athletic Director Ron Jones. Jones announced his resignation from the post on Oct. 24. It will become effective July 1, the beginning of the next fiscal year.

"I got that feeling that it was time to move on," he said. "It was a move of faith. My family and I have strong faith in the Lord."

Jones said he had been thinking about resigning for some time.

"I got that feeling that it was time to move on," he said. "It was a move of faith. My family and I have strong faith in the Lord."

Jones said he announced his resignation early to allow the college ample time to find a replacement. He said the hiring process is a lengthy one. Jones said he hoped that the college will have a replacement for him by the time he leaves the post.

Jones came to Wayne State as a transfer student. He earned his bachelor's degree from WSC in 1963. In 1964 he served as a graduate assistant for the baseball and basketball programs. In 1965 he completed his master's degree at Wayne State.

Jones was hired as the college's head basketball coach in 1970. He held that position until 1975. At that time he took a year off and began work on his doctorate degree at the University of Kansas.

He came back to his alma mater the following year and taught two years in the education department, dealing with learning disabilities.

In 1978 he was tabbed as the head men's baseball coach, a position he held for four years. Then in 1982 he took the final step in his climb up the ladder and accepted the athletic director post.

Jones list many highlights in his years as the school's AD. Among them he enjoys working on a daily basis with the students, coaches, teachers and administrators. He said the caliber of student athletes at Wayne State is very high. That has to do with the Midwest rural setting of Nebraska, Jones said.

One of his most satisfying accomplishments, Jones said, is the new $3.4-million multi-purpose facility being constructed at Rice Auditorium. He said the new building, which is expected to be completed by July 1, was a dream of his for the last several years.

The facility will house a six-lane indoor track, three tennis courts, three basketball courts, five volleyball courts, nine badminton courts, four racketball courts and a weight-lifting area.

Renovation of the auxiliary gym is scheduled to begin shortly, Jones said. When completed, it will be equipped with dance, aerobics, wrestling and gymnastics areas.

The athletic director said one of the reasons for leaving is the financial situations of Nebraska's state colleges. Nebraska ranks 49th out of 50 states in higher educational funding.

"It is difficult to ask your staff for more and more and pay them less and less," Jones said. "We're operating on less funds now than we did in '81-82."

Jones said he was under no pressure to resign from his post. He said he felt confident that he accomplished what he was hired to do. He feels the athletic program is in better shape than it was when he was hired as the athletic director.

Jones said he has no future plans at this time. He said he is working on several opportunities. He doesn't know if his next pursuit will be in athletics but he said he can't rule that out.

"Some people probably look at the resignation as foolish, to resign after 20 years," Jones said. "But once again, I say it is a move of faith."

Jones said he doesn't want to burn the bridges leading to Wayne State. He said he will still follow the college closely. But, he added, he is looking forward with excitement to the future.

Balance is key to Lady Cats' success

By Gregg Dahlheim
Sports Editor

The Lady Wildcats tied their total win mark last year and ran their record to 3-1 with a 86-75 win over Doarie College at Battle Creek High School Thursday night.

The Lady Cats beat Doane for the second time in less than a week. Going into the game Coach Lenny Klaver voiced concern about playing a team twice in the same week, especially after winning the first game.

By halftime of the rematch his worries must have escalated as the Lady Cats trailed at the half 49-46. Klaver said neither team played much defense in the opening half.

"At halftime we told the girls we were going to have to start playing some defense," Klaver said. "We made a goal to hold them to 25 points in the second half."

When it was all over Doane scored 26 in the final half. Wayne State switched defenses at halftime and came out playing man-to-man defense. They extended the pressure full court which resulted in several Doane turnovers. With about five minutes left

In the game the Lady Wildcats had extended their lead to 20 points.

Once again, the key to the Lady Cats success was team balance. WSC had four girls in double figures.

For the fourth game in a row sophomore Linda Schnitzler led the team in scoring with 23 points. The 5-6 guard also led Wayne State in rebounding with nine boards. After the first four games Schnitzler is averaging more than 22 points per contest.

Michelle Blomberg tossed in 16 points and dished out nine assists. Center Dawn Berni and reserve Tonya Kelley also scored in double figures with 14 and 10 points respectively. The pair also had six rebounds apiece. Mary Beth Ehrhorn also turned in a balanced performance. The sophomore scored eight points while hauling in seven rebounds and giving out five assists.

Wayne State had a productive night shooting the ball, hitting 54 percent of their shots. In WSC's three wins, they have shot 56, 47 and 54 percent. In the lone loss, the girls shot 32 percent. The Lady Wildcats out-rebounded the Lady Tigers 42-36.

Tuesday the Lady Cats will entertain Peru State at 5:30 p.m. at Rice Auditorium. The game will be the first Nebraska Athletic Conference match-up of the year for Wayne

Rupp, Anderson make District 11 team

Two Wayne State Wildcat football players have been named to the 1986 All-District 11 first team by district coaches at their year-end meeting. Defensive linebacker Randy Hupp and offensive lineman Mike Anderson were named to the first team while seniors Darin Blackburn, Lamont Lewis and Sonny Jones and junior Greg Cavill were tabbed as honorable mention selections.

Hupp, a 6-2, 245-pound senior from Norfolk, was second on the team in tackles this season with 105 stops.

Anderson is a two-year starter for the Cats. The 6-4, 265-pound junior is a native of Tekamah.

Wayne juniors split a pair with Pender

The Wayne 7th and 8th grade boys' basketball team traveled to Thurston Thursday to battle with Pender.

The junior Blue Devils came away with a split decision. The 7th grade team was dumped 20-4 while the 8th graders handled Pender 44-16.

Coach Doug Donnellson said he was pleased with the play of the 8th grade boys. Craig Sharpe and Brian Lantz led the team with 15 and 14 points respectively. Other Wayne scorers were Jeff Griessch with 10 points, Cory Wieseler, three points and Aaron-Wilson tallied two points.

Donnellson said his guards did a good job of getting the ball inside to Sharpe and Lantz. He said when the ball went inside the pair complemented each other.

Donnellson said there are some fundamentals the 7th grade still needs to work on. He said David Ostercamp played a solid game. Ostercamp scored all four of the junior Blue Devils points.

Wrestling club to hold open house
