The Nativity — and a weary shepherd

AS PART OF ITS Christmas program, teachers and children from Carroll's St. Paul's Lutheran Church Sunday school decided to have a slide presentation depicting the story of the Birth of Jesus. So the children were outfitted in special costumes and on a nice day last fall, they performed live before a 35 mm camera. The photography sessions lasted many hours, and by the time the end was near, some of the children were fairly exhausted. Scenes were staged at various locations. This was taken at the Dean Junck farm. From left are Tommy Wittler and Chris Junck (shepherds); Carri Junck as Mary; Summer Bethune portraying the Baby Jesus; Dwaine Junck as Joseph and Lynn Junck as the tired shepherd. The cat in the background is portraying itself.

Beat of the drum

Oh for the beat of a drum.

We all know about the Christmas carol of the Little Drummer Boy. He had no gift to give the new born king because he was so poor. Just the beat of a drum was all he could offer.

It was the best gift, more so than gold, that anyone could give the Christ Child — a gift that had no monetary value, but it was priceless because it came directly from the heart.

There is a lesson learned here which has inspired countless people.

Among the people are the poor of this area who, like the Little Drummer Boy, have nothing to offer but their prayers and songs. And they find a peaceful inner satisfaction knowing that their efforts for devotion are truly blessed in the eyes of God. They give meaning to "a joyous celebration."

But those who can afford at least a few Christmas gifts and are meeting their daily financial demands, or even those who are considerably wealthy — they too are like the Little Drummer Boy.

How many among us purchase piles of gifts, yet often do not feel fulfilled because we haven't contributed and become a part of the true spirit or meaning of the holiday season?

How many of us, who are not considered among the financially poor, are also wondering what special gift we can give the Christ Child through our actions at Christmas?

Instead of beating a drum as the Little Drummer Boy did, some have given food to the food pantry so that the poor can eat. Or some have adopted an area child in the "Toys for Tots" program so that youngsters can continue their belief that there is truly a miracle upon miracle that happens at Christmas.

Some area children will have nice, new clothing to wear after the holidays because of personal generosity and good will. Less hands will be cold because of the mittens donated to the needy children.

All these gifts are from the heart of those who had nothing to lose, but everything to gain from their efforts.

To these people who have contributed to the spirit and the true meaning of the Christmas season, what resembles a drum beat is being heard by many.

The beat travels to a happy child who unwraps an unexpected Christmas present. It carries to a family who for the first time in many weeks has a good filling meal on the table.

But wait. Is it a drum beat?

Listen closely. It's more of a heart beat. It is amplified by the generosity and warmth of hundreds of caring individuals.

The Drummer Boy, and now you, know that from the heart comes the richest gifts of all.

Silent Night, Bing Crosby top holiday survey chart

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing Editor

Bing Crosby and White Christmas almost can be heard in the same breath this time of year.

And the answers to the first ever Wayne Herald Christmas Survey proved that the most noted crooner and his rendition of White Christmas remain the favorites among our subscribers who took the time to mail in their responses to the 15 holiday-oriented questions.

Many answers were submitted by our subscribers (and non-subscribers) from the Wayne area and out-of-state.

Some of the answers were humorous. Others proved sentimental and other responses were touching.

Many people who filled out the survey said they had fun. There were some who used the survey as part of club entertainment or a party activity. In one instance, 13 students from the Newcastle Public School mailed their responses to us.

"It was a pleasure to see a good response. People had to spend the 22 cents just to answer back through the mail, and we appreciate their efforts. We may try the same thing again for next Christmas," said Chuck Hackenmiller, managing editor.

Below are the Christmas Survey results.

Favorite Religious Carol

People can harmonize with this melody or sing it in German. The youngsters find it easy to learn. No Christmas Eve church service would probably be without it.

The song "Silent Night" was the number one choice by a large margin, gathering in 35 survey votes.

Next in line was the inspirational "O Holy Night" that is often sung as a solo or in parts by church choirs throughout the world.

This song, along with the traditional "Joy To The World", captured seven survey votes.

Other religious carols that received votes were "Drummer Boy", "O Come, O Come Emmanuel", "O Come All Ye Faithful", "What Child Is This?", "Do You Hear What I Hear", "The First Noel", and "It Came Upon A Midnight Clear."

"White Christmas" was an entry here, also.

Favorite Non-Religious Carol

There were a variety of responses to this question and the outcome was close to the end.

Winning out as the favorite was "White Christmas" with 19 votes. Closely behind in the survey voting was "Jingle Bells", which received five votes.

Sixteen other songs were nominated or got more than one vote.

The next most popular was "Silver Bells" with five votes. "Rudolph The Red Nose Reindeer" and "Here Comes Santa Claus" each received three votes.

"Winter Wonderland" and "Holly Jolly Christmas" both received a couple votes.

Other songs that received at least one vote were: "John Denver-Muppets Christmas Album", "Frosty The Snowman", "Twelve Days of Christmas", "The Christmas Song", "Jingle Bell Rock", "O Christmas Tree", "I'll Be Home For Christmas", "Drummer Boy", "All I Want For Christmas Is My Two Front Teeth", and "Santa Claus Is Coming To Town."

And yes, even "Grandma Got Run Over By A Reindeer" recorded a vote.

Favorite Singer of Carols

He no longer is alive. But his legendary voice lives on through records and tapes, reminding many of his smooth and mellow sounds which brought about the Christmas spirit to many.

Bing Crosby appeared to be the overwhelming favorite among our participants in the survey. We suspect it was his rendition of "White Christmas" that put him at the top of this survey.

Next most popular singer was Perry Como with six votes. Andy Williams recorded four survey votes, followed by Tennessee Ernie Ford with three; and Amy Grant, John Denver, Kenny Rogers and the Statler Brothers each with two votes.

Each with one vote were George Beverly Shea, Elvis Presley, Crystal Gayle, Jim Nabors, Mormon Tabernacle Choir, Julie Andrews, The Chipmunks, Ann Murray, The Oak Ridge Boys, Dean Martin, Dolly Parton and Barbara Mandrell.

Christmas Trees

Some enjoy the smell of the pine. One said "Real, what else is there?" Others say an artificial tree looks just as pretty and more economical. When it came down to the nitty-gritty, the votes were split (30 each) for both kinds of trees.

The Dream Gift

The question was, if the sky is the limit, what would be your request from Santa Claus.

Some answers were geared toward the welfare of others. "Peace for this old world," was one answer. "Wipe out cancer and arthritis" was another.

Along this line were answers such as: Good weather for the travelers; religious freedom in all parts of the world; $50,000 to give to her struggling daughter; to live closer to family; for all the world to know Christ; health and a kiss or a second wish; that nobody in this world goes hungry; or the release of all American hostages.

Solving money problems were also commonly referred to in the gift lists, such as: no money worries, a new home that is all paid for, payment of bank and Federal Land Bank loan, payment of farm debts, to have enough money to pay for a home, start an IRA and start a savings for the children, no taxes and good prices for farmers.

Cars were also on the list for dream gifts — such as a new Crown Victoria, 1987 Buick, 1987 Ford Taurus, Bronco II and a Relis Royce (to go into a new garage, of course).

One person would rather fly than drive, requesting airline tickets, perhaps to that all expense paid trip to California.

There were some practical requests — an upright deep freeze, VCR, new furniture, toys such as skateboards and remote control electronic devices, a church dress, make-up, a month's vacation with pay or even to move to town.

Then there are those seeking worldly possessions, such as asking for a million dollars. But then, there are some worldly possessions that just can't be obtained on this earth.

How do you tell that to someone on our survey who wants a trip to the moon?

See SURVEY, page 2a

Christmas candy

There were a lot of cavities mixed in with this question. And the answers that came back were of varied variety. The final tally was close. Gaining the first of all goodies was fudge with 14 votes. One vote came in with "homemade fudge with handcracked walnuts." Candy Canes took second place with 13 votes. Third place went to peanut brittle with 10 votes. Chocolate covered cherries received five votes, peanut clusters four votes, and peppermints recorded three votes. Turtles got a vote from two people. Single votes were recorded for plain chocolates, divinity, homemade caramels, pecan caramel rolls, buttermints, cookies, cinnamon Santas, and Red and Green M&M's.

Most unusual gift

The song goes "All I want for Christmas is..." What some people managed to get are not the ideal items one would expect to find under the tree or stocking. But it's what comes from the heart that counts, right? Here are what some people wrote down as "most unusual gifts." The flu; a baby girl; a microwave and a $2 bill. Barbecue sauce, jogging suit, a baby kitten and a radio toilet tissue holder. Quilting frame, large leather earrings, a broken doll, moon boot slippers and a framed photo of fiance. A hair permanent at a beauty shop for 50 cents as a child, a maternity sweater when not even pregnant, chamber pot and a giant-sized cookie. Train trip to California or a plane ticket, sled, flashlights, a massage gift certificate and toothpaste and toothbrush. Socks with divided toes, a hassock, empty box, centerpiece made of pine cones, television lamp, electric hot dogger and a real 22 rifle at the age of 13. Spatula, pair of shoe stretchers, a hippie necklace, received three cabbage patch kids at the age of 23. A pair of large ugly bloomers, socks, soap, clothes, dart game, farm, doll that walked, Barbie Picnic Set, a little sister. A flannel night gown and lindenberger, cheese. And pok-a-dot socks. I wonder how long the "return lines" were on these items.

Length Christmas trees stay up

Most people leave their artificial (or real) trees up for at least two weeks. Most of them are up for three weeks. Some a month. A great majority of those will put their tree up on Dec. 1. One mentioned right after Thanksgiving. Most leave their trees up till Jan. 1 or a little after that. Some leave their trees up until Jan. 15 or 20.

One survey response mentioned that the tree now only stays up a month. But at one time it stayed up until Easter.

Traditional Christmas Day meal

Yes, we've heard of chestnuts roasting on an open fire. But in getting to the meat of the topic, turkey and ham are the two favorite ingredients for the traditional Christmas meal. Many of those that responded to the survey said turkey or ham and they were counted as two votes. Chicken got five votes, as did roast beef. One added that the roast beef dinner wouldn't be right without pumpkin pie and whipped cream. Duck received four votes, as did potato sausage. With three votes was lutefisk. Oyster stew (with a large assortment of relishes and sweets) got two votes and chilli was added to the vote as a second choice. Other choices were pork (as the obvious pork producer said: "Is there any other?"); cooked rice; fruit soup; ham balls; chicken casserole; and goose (and cranberries).

Christmas shopping

The earliest response for shopping at Christmas is right after Christmas to take part in the "January sales." Some Christmas shop all year round. Wouldn't you just love to see their shopping bills? A few begin shopping in August, September and October. Most begin shopping the day after Thanksgiving or on Thanksgiving Day. Others wait until December. And of course, there are some that wait until the last minute — like a few days before Christmas Eve.

Christmas cookies

If we combined all the cookies that the responders of the survey would bake in this Christmas season, it would total nearly 11,200 cookies. That's a lot of dough! One answer said they do not make cookies, but manage to cook up 15 batches of candy. Some people make 700-800 Christmas cookies, some 40 dozen or so. But the largest amount of "cookies baked" submitted was 200 dozen.

Christmas pies

Baking was somewhat close on this one, but the top choice was pumpkin pie. There were two second top choices each with six votes — pecan and cherry. Next in line was mince meat, apple, lemon and raisin cream pies with four votes. Two votes each were recorded for cherry cheesecake pie, cherry wang bang pie and chocolate cream pie. Single votes were given to lemon meringue, raisin coconut, raspberry, ground cherry, sour cream-raisin, blackberry, blueberry and banana cream pies.

And last, but not least — grape pie.

Christmas specials

The ghostly experience of Mr. Scrooge was enough to stir our survey responders to vote the television special as the top choice in this category.

"The Christmas Carol (or Scrooge)" captured 14 votes. "The fabulous children's specials (and adults like them too, it seems) 'Frosty the Snowman' and 'Rudolph the Red Nose Reindeer' got eight and seven votes among them. 'Charlie Brown's Christmas' received five votes and 'How the Grinch Stole Christmas' took in four votes.

The Perry Como Show had three votes. With two votes were televised high school Christmas recitals, the "Andy Williams Christmas Show", and "Garfield".

Other television specials getting votes were "Fred Waring", "42nd Street", "It's A Good Life", "The Best Christmas Pageant Ever", "Mormon Tabernacle Choir", "The Gathering", "A Christmas Story", "White Christmas", "Bing Crosby Show", "The Chipmunks", "Bells of St. Mary's", "Miracle on 34th Street".

Oh, there was another choice, but the survey responder didn't know the title. All it said was: "the one with the Berger Meister Meister Berger in it."

State to celebrate

The warmer climates appear to have the corner on states where people would like to celebrate Christmas at, if they couldn't celebrate in their home state of Nebraska.

California recorded 12 votes and Colorado was close behind with 11 votes.

But the next most popular vote, with six, came from people who wouldn't want to spend Christmas anywhere except in Nebraska.

Five votes went to Florida, four votes to Arizona and three votes each were marked to Hawaii and Missouri.

Getting a couple of votes were Washington, Idaho, Ohio, Iowa and Texas. Single votes were given for New Jersey, Vermont, Pennsylvania, Oklahoma, Nevada, Montana, Alaska, Utah and Connecticut.

Christmas toys

No matter how popular the electronic toys are these days, the Wayne Herald survey revealed that the most popular gifts years ago are about the same today. They just take different forms.

Teddy Bears got eight votes, followed by the Cabbage Patch dolls with seven votes and the plain dolls with six votes. He-Man got six votes, as did the pound puppies. Multiple votes were also recorded for talking bears, G.I. Joe, popples, trucks and laser tag.

Other toys which received votes were Barbie Dolls, Transformers, computer-related toys, skateboard, My Little Pony, RoboTech, video equipment, Thundercats and Tyco Turbo Hooper.

'hacken' away

by chuck hachemiller

It doesn't seem that it should be so near — Christmas that is. The weather, as nice as it is, certainly seems deceptive, even though the Yuletide holiday is soon approaching.

Did you get your list mailed out to Santa? I certainly did.

Here are some of the things that I asked for.

•A calendar that has no deadlines circled on specific dates.

•Someone to tell me that I have just won $500,000 in the Iowa lottery.

•A summer softball season where I won't look like a walking case for Blue Cross and Blue Shield medical insurance.

•That all people who steal Christmas lights from other household displays get what they deserve — a lump of coal or a stick for the holidays. Perhaps a stiff fine would help, too.

•A book on a way to diet without suffering the urge to eat the front cover.

•Advice on how to keep a clean work desk at the office, so that I can find the list that I wrote out for you last year.

•Forgiveness from my wife and son whenever my Iowa Hawkeye basketball team pre-empt the Thursday night prime time TV shows. Could you maybe change the Cosby Show to a different network?

•Let Nebraska beat Oklahoma in 1987 and make sure that Tom Osborne stays around for a good long time because he is a good coach.

•Forget about all the neckties. They simply do not get enough wear — and I never did learn how to tie the blasted things.

•Guarantee that the family's 125,000 mile car will decide not to die in the middle of a blizzard on a county dirt road.

•That you give me foresight to let me predict the next time a water main will break on Wayne's Main Street so that I can charge admission to see the phenomenon.

•Can you give the Minnesota Twins a pennant and a shot at the World Series?

•Can you convince high school coaches to call their scores in as soon as the game is over?

•How about a checkbook that beeps automatically when you overdraw? Cameras that never need repair? A warning system for cars that buzz whenever an object like a rock or nail is ahead on the highway, to prevent flat tires?

•I would settle for something that comes unassembled, just so I know that I don't have to be a structural engineer with a master's degree in physics to put the dang thing together.

I know this list might be impossible to completely fulfill. But I'd settle for just one of them to come true.

How about if Santa?

The reason for the season

At last! Christmas is almost here! Most of the hectic holiday rush is past — time to enjoy, relax, soak in the happiness of the season!

"Oh, there's no place like home for the holidays! And no matter how far away you roam, if you want to be happy in a million ways, for the holidays you can't beat 'Home, Sweet Home!'"

This Thursday, as you open a present and pop another piece of candy in your mouth, someone will die a very lonely, forgotten death in a hospital room. As you greet family with a hug and smile, someone will cry.

Does Christmas do that?

In the lines of another song —

"... Have yourself a merry little Christmas. Let your heart be light. From now on our troubles will be out of sight."

But they aren't.

Now wait! No one has ever accused me of not enjoying the funny, playful, frivolous side of life! Yet can Christmas coexist with killing? It is difficult to whistle the songs of "peace on earth" when there is war. Sometimes it seems hypocritical to pray of love and goodwill when the world, both near and far, is filled with hatred. Lies. Suspicion. Fear. Pain.

We seek an answer; no one wants to be abandoned to despair!

"Seek, and you shall find."

Do you see it? The word "Christmas" gives us the answer! It spells his name! CHRISTMAS!

We sing and celebrate because the answer was born in the form of a child named Jesus.

He is the only answer.

Without him Christmas is a mockery, a self-condemning denial of your own hurts. No — his birth doesn't take away all pain. Rather, he gives purpose, — hope in spite of pain. No one else can do that. No one else can grant forgiveness in exchange for your heart. And as for the wounds of life — well, what does the Bible say except that he too was quite well acquainted with them? Take a closer look and you'll discover that no other human ever carried the weight he shouldered.

Hurt? Yes.

Despair? No.

For there is an answer, an answer spoken once again in song —

"I heard the bells on Christmas day Their old familiar carols play, And wild and sweet the words repeat Of peace on earth, goodwill to men."

Then pealed the bells more loud and deep:

"God is not dead, nor doth He sleep;

The wrong shall fail, the right prevail,

With peace on earth, goodwill to men."

Seek, and you shall find . . . a Merry Christmas!

When lives at stake

Leaks to media a concern

by Doug Bereuter

As we review the development of the Iranian crisis, a key element was the President's decision to defer informing Congressional leaders on the intelligence oversight committees. That decision may have been legal, but surely it was unwise. Interestingly, President Jimmy Carter also postponed reporting to Congress in instances related to hostage rescues, according to former CIA Director Stansfield Turner. He believed that prior notification to Congress risked revelations that would have jeopardized the lives of those involved in these operations.

From my position on the House Foreign Affairs Committee, I can understand concern about leaks. Time after time we have seen the details of extremely sensitive covert operations disclosed in the media. A well-timed leak is too frequently a Washington art form used to torpedo an initiative that some "informed source" doesn't agree with. And, these leaks come both from the executive branch and from Capitol Hill.

We need to have an overhaul in the legislative branch that will restore confidence that Congress can keep a secret. During the 99th Congress I sponsored legislation that would merge the House and Senate Intelligence Committees into a Joint Committee composed equally of Republicans and Democrats who, in addition to the qualities of trustworthiness, competence and responsibility, also would possess the restraint to make the national interest more important than any political considerations. That bill had 147 co-sponsors from both political parties.

I intend to sponsor similar legislation in the 100th Congress. Such a joint oversight panel would reduce the possibilities of political posturing and would significantly reduce the number of people with access to sensitive information. It would also increase our ability to identify the sources of leaks — something that rarely occurs now because the large number of individuals in the "intelligence information loop."

A consolidated, secure oversight committee would provide one point of contact for consultations and briefings in instances when time is of the essence. It would greatly simplify the problem of handling and storing classified data that the two intelligence committees now regularly receive from the intelligence community. A Joint Intelligence Committee would provide a much more efficient, secure, reliable and bipartisan oversight environment.

Other big contributions

Gubernatorial race sets money record in campaign expenses

Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association Nebraska's historic gubernatorial race between two women set some money records.

It was the most expensive governor's race ever. The candidates, all 17 of them in the primary and general election, spent $4.8 million trying to convince Nebraskans to vote for them. That's double the total spent by the five candidates who wanted to be Nebraska's governor four years ago. And it exceeds the total $4.3 million campaign expenses for all local and state offices in 1982.

Both Governor-elect Kay Orr and the defeated Helen Bosalis collected and spent more than the $1,125,838 raised by former Gov. Charles Thone in his unsuccessful bid for a second term. Gov. Bob Kerrey beat Thone with a meager $867,428.

Mrs. Orr raised and spent about $1.5 million in her successful race. Her largest contributor was the state and national Republican Party which kicked in about $78,000. Other major contributors were ConAgra, $25,200; Hawkins Construction Co., $25,150; and Union Pacific Railroad, $23,500.

Mrs. Bosalis raised about $1.2 million. She received $54,047 from the Democratic Party. Her biggest contribution, $75,910, came from the Nebraska State Education Association. Other major contributors were the Kane Ranch of Harrison and the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees which each gave $20,000.

BUT THE biggest single contribution ever made since the state began keeping track of such things came in the seat belt campaign not the governor's race.

The Detroit-based Traffic Safety Now organization contributed $405,871 to the unsuccessful campaign to retain the state's mandatory seat belt law. That group is funded primarily by car dealers and manufacturers. That contribution represented all but $20 donated to the committee working to retain the seat belt law. Despite the expensive advertising campaign, Nebraskans voted to repeal the law.

The second largest previous contribution also came from an industry attempting to sway Nebraska voters on a statewide ballot issue. Prudential Insurance Co. gave $307,299 to a committee opposing the Initiative 300 drive in the 1982 election. Prudential's viewpoint lost. Nebraska voters approved the Constitutional Amendment which limits corporate farm ownership in the state.

REPORTERS RECENTLY asked the governor-elect and the current governor about the escalating expense of running for the state's top elected official. The two provided differing philosophies.

Mrs. Orr told reporters that financing a campaign should not be considered a problem. The ability to raise money indicates leadership ability. Someone who is going to lead a state should inspire enough confidence that people will donate money to the campaign, she said.

"I don't find myself in sharp disagreement with that," Kerrey said about Orr's comments.

"But I would say the circles don't coincide precisely. I would say that a person who has the ability to raise money should be categorized as a leader in a certain respect. At least they can lead people to contribute.

"In my limited experience I've met some wonderful leaders who have extraordinary leadership capacity but have no ability at all to raise money."

"I think we should be somewhat concerned about the cost of running a campaign. There's an awful lot of citizens who couldn't possibly raise a million four or a million five to run for governor," Kerrey said.

Area Social Services offices to close

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing Editor

Wayne County and several surrounding counties will be without a social services office early next year.

The Nebraska Department of Social Services has decided to close 46 social services offices out of 89 offices which are currently operating in 93 counties. Severe budget cuts made in the recent special legislative session figured into the reasons for closing the offices.

When combining the loss of federal funds because of the $210,361 axed in state funding during the special session, the Department of Social Services stands to lose up to $530,000 this current fiscal year and $1.2 million the next fiscal year.

STATEWIDE, there could be an elimination of 59 staff positions. Those eliminated positions will include about 38 from the closed offices and approximately 13 positions in the Department of Social Services state office.

Joan Albin, administrator of the northeast district of the Department of Social Services in Norfolk, said at least nine of the county offices in her 18-county district will be closed in the upcoming months.

"The target date is February 1 when we'll start closing some of the offices [in the district]," she said. It is unlikely, however, that all of the offices will be closed by that deadline.

She said more information will be available sometime in January on the closing of the offices.

"The legislators were aware of the fact that there would be laying off of employees when the decision was made to cut the budget," Albin pointed out.

She said that with the reduced staff numbers, even more will be expected of the employees on hand than before. Presently, caseloads have been increasing, she said, including the number of cases that are being handled in Wayne County.

Wayne County is part of a five-county region within the northeast Nebraska district that is headquartered in Pierce. Three of the social services offices — in Wayne, Neligh and Hartington — will be closed.

There are nine employees in this five-county region. Just how many will be laid off has not yet been determined.

The Dixon County and Cuming

County social services offices are also in the plans to be closed earlier next year.

What will this do for those people who participate in social service programs?

"Our goal someday is to have the clients go to social services offices that are most convenient to them," said Albin.

SOME PEOPLE may be inconvenienced because of the amount of traveling they must do to reach a social services office for personal interview purposes. However, in some instances the distance could be shorter for the client to reach the social services office destination, Albin said.

"I do think there will be problems with it at first. But I think that we'll be able to cope later on," she said.

Albin said there is hope that perhaps volunteers and other agencies would offer their services to assist people who have traveling problems in reaching the social services offices.

Holiday shopping sales figures equal, better last year's totals

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing Editor

For the most part, businesses in Wayne have kept even or gone beyond sales figures of a year ago during this holiday shopping season.

A random poll of area businesses showed an average of slight increases at this time over the previous year and revealed what some of the more popular items were that had been selling this Christmas.

Rich Zrust of Kuhn's said that sales figures this holiday season are about what they were last year and picking up as Christmas draws near. November proved to draw good sales totals, he said.

"We've been selling a lot more things from the domestic department, like blankets, sheets or tablecloths," said Zrust. "More practical gifts for the home."

"I'd say our clothing sales are on par with last year's figures," he added.

A representative of Surber's in Wayne reported suspenders is one item that has been selling well as a gift this holiday season, in addition to dress shirts and tie combinations, plus lots of socks and underwear. "Sales have been slightly increased over last year," the representative said.

Roger Nelson of The Rusty Nail said the first three days after Thanksgiving, sales figures were the best they had been for the past three to four years. "Right now, we're about par with last year to maybe a little bit above," he said.

"It's been a very good year for cotton sweaters, sports shirts and the new 'oversized' look," mentioned Nelson.

"Argyle socks have also been very good items," Nelson said.

In the women's department, denim shirts and overalls have been selling well, as have the fashion jeans. The sweater and turtle neck combinations have also been popular, according to Nelson.

SLEEPWEAR, sweaters and gloves have been the top-selling items at Swan's Woman Apparel, said one representative there. "This Christmas season sales have been very good — about the same as last year but not any less," she said.

The big colors have been black and white, she added.

This has also been the year for diamonds, according to two Wayne jewelers.

"This is the biggest diamond year that we have ever had," said Gary Van Meter of Mines Jewelers.

Van Meter said the one-carat diamond piece has been a favorite gift selection among holiday shoppers, as have diamond earrings. "More so than any other Christmas," he mentioned.

Emphasis this year, it seems, has been on handmade pieces, he said. Black Hills Gold and Kremenetz have been selling at a good pace.

Also, the Tri-Color Sterling display at Van Meter's store has been sold out twice, and the sale of clocks have been good, he said.

One reason for the good sales, he said, is that shipments of items to his business were staggered to assure continuous good selection.

AT THE Diamond Center in Wayne, diamonds have also been selling at a good rate. "We've been selling a lot of ladies diamond rings and Black Hills Gold," said owner Randy Pedersen.

"Our watch sales have also been excellent," he added.

Pamida Manager Dave Loose said sales have been brisk and steady over the past few weeks. "At this rate, we won't have very much Christmas carry-over," he said, adding that sales are up approximately 7 to 10 percent at this time over last year.

The holiday shopping has been even or steady each day of the week. "Our sales on Monday have been no bigger or smaller than Friday," Loose said. Last year's sales were inconsistent with bigger crowds one day and less in days to follow.

Popular toy items there have been the new Pound Puppies, Popples and Teddy Ruxpin. Also, sales of Master of the Universe figures have been good.

"A lot of the old standbys are selling too, like puzzles," he said.

But when comparing dollar for dollar, the clothes department is outselling the toy department. Baggy, oversized shirts are popular there, as are shaker sweaters.

One appliance that is selling well is the hot butter topper.

At Coast to Coast in Wayne, sales have been up over last year during this holiday season. "A lot of the more smaller items have been purchased here," said Jack Hausmann.

ONE OF the most popular items this season, Hausmann said, is the cordless screwdriver. Among the toys, it has been the G.I. Joes and Master of the Universe figures.

Among the popular gifts for women have been the Thermos Coffee Butler.

Hausmann credits the Holiday Magic promotion as helpful in creating the sales for the local businesses. "It certainly has brought the people in."

At Diers in Wayne, it has been the necessities and clothing that have been selling pretty good the past few weeks. Smaller toys are selling out — toys that will be future antiques, said a spokesman from Diers.

Cagers bury O'Neill for first win

The Wayne Blue Devils halted their losing streak in a big way Saturday night when they bombed O'Neill 61-32.

The win gave the Blue Devils their first win of the season against five losses. The win also gave Wayne a 1-0 record in the Northern Activities Conference.

Coach Bob Uhing said he thought the key to the game was how his team took control in the first quarter. The locals jumped to a 17-9 lead after the first eight minutes. They increased the lead to 39-20 at halftime.

"The kids ran the offense well and got good shots," he said. "On defense we shut off their good shooter. That was something we haven't done in the past several games."

Four of Wayne's five losses have been by teams rated in the top 10 in Class B. Uhing said he thinks the win will give the Blue Devils a much needed shot in the arm.

For the second game in a row Nick Engelson played a solid game. Engelson scored 14 points and was among the top rebounders for the locals. Uhing also was happy with the play of Corey Dahl, Jason Jorgensen and Bill Luaders. Dahl finished with 11 points and Jorgensen added 10 markers. For the first time this season Luaders was held under 10 points. Uhing said the senior more than made up for it with his intelligent floor game.

The Blue Devils also improved a bit from the free-throw line. In Friday night's loss to Omaha Roncaili the locals made just 5-14 free throws. Against the Eagles Wayne hit 15-23 free throws.

Pat Blum led the way for the losers with 10 points.

The Wayne junior varsity dumped the O'Neill JV's earlier in the night 67-42. The win improved their record to 3-3.

Doug Larsen led the way with 15 points. He was followed by Jarod Wood and Jed Reeg with 10 and nine points respectively.

The junior Blue Devils broke open a relatively close game in the fourth quarter as they outscored O'Neill 29-10.

Fouls lead to Wakefield's loss

Fouls trouble had a hand in dealing Wakefield its fifth loss of the season as they were nipped in overtime by Osmond 56-54.

The Trojans were whittled for 28 fouls compared to 16 for Osmond. Wakefield lost three starters and four of its top six players to fouls. Kevin Greve, Mike Nelson, Randy Kinney and Todd Kraike all fouled out. Starters Scott Lund and Stuart Clark finished the game with four fouls apiece.

The Tigers outscored Osmond by eight points from the field but the Tigers converted on 20-31 free throws while Wakefield hit 10-15.

"Things were going the Trojans way in the first half as they lead by 12 points at halftime."

Then the fouls came into play. Osmond was in the bonus with six minutes left in the third quarter. The Tigers scored 14 of their 19 points from the free-throw line in the third period.

Coach Paul Eaton said he was especially pleased with his team's defense in the first half but he wasn't too happy with the defensive performance in the second half. He said his team got overly aggressive on defense and committed some foolish fouls. They need to get better defensive position, Eaton said.

The Trojans let Osmond back into the game in the fourth quarter. Wakefield led by seven points going into the final period but could muster only four points in the final stanza.

The foul problem forced Eaton to put a lineup consisting mostly of junior varsity players on the floor in the fourth quarter.

"We had no continuity in the last quarter," he said. "We were forced to play a lot of different combinations."

At the end of regulation the teams were tied at 48. Osmond outscored the visitors in the overtime period 8-6 for the two-point win.

Wakefield held a 46-24 edge in rebounding. Greve pulled down 18 rebounds to go along with his team-high 15 points. Lund shared scoring honors with Greve with 15 points. Kinney tallied 10 points before exiting early.

Darin Gansbom of Osmond led all scorers with 32 points. Eaton said Gansbom hurt Wakefield from inside and outside.

The Wakefield junior varsity also got beat at the wire by a 46-45 count. The loss drops the JV's record to 3-2. Freshman Andy McQuistan led the way with 13 points.

Allen will be the next opponent for Wakefield. The Trojans will host Allen in the Jan. 3 contest.

Winside girls record fourth straight

The Winside girls are currently riding a four game winning streak and things are going good for the Wildcats.

Monday night they traveled to Wynot and downed the Lady Blue Devils 37-26. The win upped the girls record to 4-2.

Winside jumped to a 10-4 lead in the first quarter but they couldn't hold on to it as Wynot scored 13 second-quarter points to take a 17-16 lead at halftime.

Coach Jill Stenwall said the girls got careless passing the ball in the second quarter and committed some turnovers.

The Wildcats came out in the third quarter and reestablished themselves. They outscored the Lady Blue Devils 10-5 and led going into the final period 26-22.

Stenwall said she was happy with the defensive effort of her team in the second half. The Wildcats limited Wynot to nine points in the half.

Winside's offense got going in the second half partly because Wynot switched defenses in the third quarter. The Lady Blue Devils started playing man-to-man. Stenwall said her guards, Christi Thies and Krisli Miller are quick enough that the Wynot guards fouled them trying to defend the pair.

The Wildcats held a big edge in rebounding as they collected 62 rebounds compared to 47 for Wynot. Tracy Topp led the way with 16 rebounds. Lana Prince added with 11 boards. Thies and Melehenry followed with 10 and eight rebounds apiece.

Thies led the team's scoring attack with 16 points. The senior has exploded for 48 points in the last three games. Stenwall said Thies got her shooting confidence back after struggling for the first three games of the season.

Loip Klug led the way for Wynot with 14 points.

Winside will next be in action Jan. 6 when they travel to Walthill to play the Lady Bluejays.

Lutt places in tough SSC tournament

The competition was fierce when Wayne took the mat in the South Sioux City Invitational last weekend. Class A and B schools from Nebraska, Iowa and South Dakota converged in South Sioux City for the meet.

Wayne finished last with 18 points in the 12-team meet that was won by Norfolk with 203 points. Millard North finished second with a distant 145 points. Sioux City North placed third followed by Omaha Burke, Elkhorn, Creighton Prep, Vermillion, Cherokee, Omaha Roncaili and Wayne.

Coach John Murtaugh said he thinks it's good for his team to wrestle tough competition.

"If you look across the state comparing Class A to Class B there is not that much difference in talent," he said. "You tend to be only as good as your competition."

Murtaugh said he had hoped his team would have wrestled better. He said the squad needs to work on consistency.

The Blue Devils had one wrestler that placed in the meet. Sophomore Chris Lutt earned fifth place in the 167-pound weight class.

Mistakes blamed for loss in Wynot contest

Defensive mistakes had a hand in costing the Winside Wildcats a game against Wynot Monday night.

The hosts knocked off Winside 56-47. The loss drops the Wildcats to 1-5.

Coach Mark Freburg said his team didn't get back on defense in the first quarter and as a result they found themselves down 20-8 after the first eight minutes.

In the opening period Wynot made 10-12 shots. From that point on Winside outpointed the hosts 39-36.

Freburg said his team staged several small comebacks but they were unable to get any closer than seven points in the final quarter. He said the Wildcats were on the verge of getting back in the game several times but they couldn't get the job done.

Freburg said he couldn't fault his team's effort. He said the effort was there. Freburg is also happy with the progress of the team's bench. He said the sophomores that come in to spell the starters are improving every game.

Wildcats with 15 points. Close behind was Mike Thies. The senior added 13 points and six rebounds.

Freburg said Jacobsen, Thies and Kevin Jaeger all played solid games. He said although Jaeger only scored six points he led the team in rebounds with nine and also added five steals before fouling out. Mike Eskens tallied 18 points for the victors.

In the preliminary bout the Winside junior varsity upped its record to 2-2 with a 41-25 win over Wynot. Chris Nau and Randy Prince led Winside with 14 and 10 points respectively.

Laurel hits 28 percent during nine-point loss to Bloomfield

The temperature inside the Laurel gym was colder than it was outside last weekend or so it seemed to Laurel Coach Mark Hrabik.

His team entered the weekend with a 2-0 record and a pair of home games on tap. Friday night they shot 20 percent from the field in the four-point loss to Osmond and Saturday night the Bears were even colder from the field as they connected on 28 percent of their shots as Bloomfield dumped the hosts 48-39.

Hrabik said his team had plenty of shots, more than 60 attempts, but nothing would fall. On the other hand Bloomfield didn't get off as many shots but they hit close to 50 percent of what they threw up.

The coach said as the game wore on Saturday he could tell that his players were becoming frustrated and beginning to lose their confidence.

The Bears were outscored in the second period 18-8 and they went to halftime trailing 25-16. Laurel cut the lead to 35-31 at the end of the third quarter.

The locals edged even closer as they got within a basket at 35-33. But at that point the Bears ran out of gas and Bloomfield began to pull away for the final nine-point margin.

The Bees outrebounded Laurel 35-28. Hrabik said the visitors had good size and they didn't give the Bears any second-chance opportunities. Brent Halsch was the team's top rebounder with six boards.

Halsch was also the scoring leader for Laurel. The senior pumped in 11 points. Doug Manz and Scott Marquardt each added eight points in a losing cause. Rick Eisenauer was Bloomfield's top scorer with 14 points. David Leader added 11 for the Bees.

Hrabik said the Christmas break couldn't have come at a better time. "I think we needed a break," he said. "It will give us a chance to regroup and start again after Christmas."

The Bears will next be in action at the Ponca Invitational Tournament Jan. 8-10.

Fouls and turnovers cause trouble for Lady Trojans in loss

The shooting woes continued for the Wakefield Lady Trojans.

Wakefield made just 24 percent of its field goals, 13-53, on its way to 58-34 loss to Osmond Monday night. The Lady Trojans record now stands at 0-6.

Wakefield started the game well as they scored 11 points in the opening quarter to lead the Lady Trojans 11-10 after the first eight minutes. The Lady Trojans scored only five points in the second quarter and trailed at halftime 21-16.

Coach Ellie Studer said fouls and turnovers hurt her club. The girls were whistled for 26 fouls while Osmond committed 15 fouls. Lady Trojan Stacey Kuhl fouled out after scoring four points. The visitors were called for 18 fouls in the second half.

Wakefield committed 32 turnovers. They forced Osmond into 37 miscues. Marci Greve led the team in scoring. The senior hit for nine points while pulling down eight rebounds. Karen Hallstrom added eight points. Kadi Nelson was the top rebounder with 11 boards. Michelle Koehler led Osmond with 14 points.

Wakefield will take 15 days off before they play again. The Lady Trojans will play Emerson-Hubbard in the opening round of the Post-Holiday Tournament in Wakefield on Jan. 8.

Christmas will be a little merrier for the Allen Eagles and Coach Dave Ulrich after they got an early present from Santa in the form of a 47-45 win over Hartington Saturday night.

The win was the first for the Eagles against five losses.

The game was a contest of halves. In the opening half the teams lit up the nets and combined for 60 points. The second half was a different story. The defense was the key in the last 16 minutes as the two teams combined for only 32 points.

Ulrich said in the first half his team got up and down the court like he wanted. He said they also got the ball inside as they had planned. As a result Allen center Max Oswald scored 20 of his game-high 25 points in the first half.

After leading 32-28 at halftime Allen came out in the second half and put full-court pressure on the Hartington ball handlers. The pressure resulted in several Wildcat turnovers that transformed into easy baskets for Allen.

The Eagles held a 40-35 edge going into the fourth quarter and built the lead to eight points midway through the final period. Hartington got back into the game when Allen couldn't hit its free throws in the last several minutes.

Ulrich said the final outcome wouldn't have been as close as it was if his team could have shot as well in the second half at the free-throw line as they did in the first half.

The Eagles were 10-13 at the line in the opening half and only 7-18 in the final half. Hartington outscored Allen from the field by a 20-15 margin. The Eagles outboarded Hartington 35-29. Oswald led the way with 14 rebounds. Jyoti Kwankin was next in line with seven boards.

But in the end Ulrich was happy with the results. He said it was the best game his team has put together all season.

"The kids were happy and I am happy for them," the coach said. "It would have been hard to go into Christmas with no wins. The kids found out that they can win."

PARTICIPANTS IN THE Wayne-Carroll School's big brother-sister type program lined up for a photo before departing to Lincoln where they watched the Cornhusker men and women basketball teams record victories over Detroit and Drake Monday night. The program was initiated this school year and involves the Wayne 'W' Club and Middle School students.

business notes

Elsie Rhode

Elsie Rhode, an employee of Restful Knights, Inc., has won the first segment of the Name that Mattress Pad contest. She won $50.00 in "Chamber Bucks" for submitting the name Felt Rite (TM) for use on new packaging for mattress pads. The Felt Rite (TM) mattress pad is made from 100% polyester felt.

The contest started with employees submitting names for use on the new packaging. The owners of the company are choosing which names should be used and are submitting the chosen names to their trademark attorney for approval. Each time a name is used in the new packaging, the employee who first submitted the name will win $50.00 in "Chamber Bucks".

New names will be chosen from the list until the whole line of new packaging for use in department stores is finished.

Sales

Microwaves and dishwashers have been top selling items at Charlie's Refrigeration and Appliance this Christmas.

Ranges, laundry equipment and dishwashers are the main items being sold right now at Doescher's Appliance.

Holiday sales have been "real good" on computers, according to Jane O'Leary of The Office Connection in Wayne. Popular selling computers are the 2GS and the 2C models. "We've sold as many out of town as in town," said O'Leary.

SOME OF THE popular items at Sav-Mor Pharmacy that have helped increase sales slightly over last year's holiday season have been the Precious Moments figurines, crystal and floral rings. "More of the general smaller gift items that are less expensive and are keepsakes have been sold," said a spokesman for the business.

"Good weather may have been a factor in creating the increased sales," she said.

Colognes and perfumes and some small appliances have been top sellers this holiday shopping season at Griss Rexall, according to owner Phil Griss. "And candy always sells good for us," he added.

Joe Nuss from the Ben Franklin Store said Monday that sales are running ahead of last year, more so during the day hours than at night.

His top selling items have been empty gift boxes and the large type Christmas tree lights.

Most other items are running about the same as the previous holiday season, he mentioned.

Big selling items at Wayne Sporting Goods are not footballs, basketballs and baseball gloves this year — but sweats, according to Pat Garvin. "It's been mostly apparel out here that is selling — like sweats and printed goods," Garvin said.

PIK certificate alternatives offered

Call them PIK's, certs, scrip or what you will. An estimated $8 billion of generic PIK certificates are expected to be issued during the year ending Oct. 1, 1987, including about $6.6 billion on mostly feed grains.

"PIK's are going to be around for awhile," said Lynn Lutgen, University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension grain marketing specialist, and farmers must learn all they can about the outlook-market situation on PIK certificates in the same way that they now study commodity price-supply-demand outlook.

Grain commodities are expected to move in such a narrow trading in the next few months that PIK's are likely to be the most volatile and significant factor related to marketing, storage and federal income tax management by grain producers, Lutgen said.

Some decisions need to be made immediately on acquiring, managing, holding or disposing of PIK's, Lutgen said, while other decisions are dependent on long range outlook and projections.

An immediate concern to some producers is whether to delay signing up for the 1987 farm program until after Jan. 1, 1987, to avoid taking more income in the current calendar year. At sign-up, producers are eligible to receive deficiency payments and mandatory acreage diversion payments, partly in cash and partly in PIK's. The Internal Revenue Service has ruled that a producer must claim income from PIK's at the time they are issued. Farmers who are in a position cash flow-wise to wait until January to sign up may avoid paying additional taxes.

WHILE REGULATIONS have been changed to prevent some of the more exotic transactions involving PIK's, a number of options are available to producers, Lutgen said, including "PIK and Roll" of grain in a producer's own bin, selling PIK's and using the proceeds to augment cash flow, or "PIK market drops" buying PIK's.

For a tight on storage, buying PIK's for the sole purpose of redeeming grain to avoid storage costs and to clear space may be the best move, he said.

PIK values are expected to continue to fluctuate, Lutgen said, although it is doubtful they will reach the high values they did in late summer and early fall. He predicted that values will range between 104 percent and 120 percent of face value in the coming months. Values may be driven down when huge volumes of PIK certificates are issued over the coming months.

He urged producers to watch the local loan rate and county posted price on feed grains and pick the right moment to step in and redeem stored grains. For instance, if the local loan rate is $1.85 and the county posted price, which is subject to change daily, is $1.35, a PIK with a 100 percent face value would result in a net gain of 50 cents per bushel on grain on which a loan is paid off. If the PIK value is 110 percent under the same loan rate and posted price, the producer would reap a 36-cent-a-bushel gain and if the PIK is at 120 percent, 23-cent-a-bushel gain.

SINCE PIK'S can be used to purchase grain held by the Commodity Credit Corporation, livestock feeders might be interested in this possibility, Lutgen said. One more option, not likely to be one of choice by producers, would be to hold PIK's until their expiration date and sell them back to the government at face value, minus 4.3 percent courtesy Gramm-Rudman.

Because PIK's are going to be a pretty substantial part of the grain marketing, producers must get into a system of learning how PIK's work in a break-even situation and how to relate PIK management to the futures market.

In general, the issuance of new PIK's is price-depressing on the futures market, Lutgen said. Astute producers should watch for the issuance of PIK's and be poised to redeem more bushels of grain as futures prices go down.

Lutgen said he is open to requests to conduct workshops for producers on the whole range of economics and management involving PIK's. Interested farmers are urged to contact their local extension agent who will work with the specialist in making arrangements for an area workshop.

This weather has been a special blessing for the season. There have been no cancellations or postponements for weather yet. We did miss a band concert in Lincoln because of ice a couple weeks ago, but it didn't last. If this just continues until after everyone has been home and back again, we'll be better able to tolerate the rest of the winter.

I was in a large grocery store at 4 p.m. today, along with hundreds of other people. I usually try to avoid shopping on the weekends. I find it hard on my Christmas spirit.

There were still poinsettias all over the shops and lots of Christmas trees in leaning stacks. What happens to the ones that don't get sold? They certainly don't keep until next year.

Each day the mall brings a bunch of cards. I spent two hours on cards tonight and I'm not half done. I may have to get the rest out for Valentines.

We send too many Christmas cards. We spend too much money on stamps and too much time writing them. And we wouldn't have it any other way.

THIS IS THE time of year when we hear from Uncle Louie in Cheyenne, cousin Trisha in Idaho and old roommate Carlos in California. Each has been an important part of our lives sometime in the past.

We've come to appreciate the importance of a "support system" in the past few years. It's composed of neighbors, family and friends who are available in good times and bad. It's important to keep "plugging in" to these people, so we can call on them when necessary. Christmas correspondence helps do that.

Pictures are an added bonus and are on the refrigerator "bulletin board."

The house is getting crowded with the tree, packages, the creche and a very special gingerbread house. That scent is joined by pine, cinnamon and candles. Surprises have been showing up: homemade rolls, candy, flowers.

The Christmas specials on TV are a source of enjoyment: Bob Hope never seems to grow old and there is a whole new batch of Osmond Brothers.

College students and military personnel on leave show up at games. The phones are busy. Parties fill up the calendar.

OUTSIDE THE social worker's office at the hospital, there is a big white posterboard and a pen hanging beside it. It says, "Dear Santa, all I want for Christmas is _____." There are lots of requests, for children, a husband, a home, new cars, FHA loans paid and nursing home beds!

As I ponder on the requests, I realize I have what I want. Anything I receive is strictly bonus. I'm reminded of Rae Turnbull's poem: Blessings are the good things that I have that I didn't earn.

Gifts that I've been given for no reason. Not good things like a place to live, or clothes to wear. They're things I bought with what I earned.

Blessings are another story. They're things like the faith my parents had in me, even when I doubted. Things like the heart that I was handed by the man I love. Things like the children, who when if really matters, never fail me.

Somehow it was known, I'd be forever grateful for my blessings.

Merry Christmas. "God bless us, everyone."

LOWER ELKHORN NRD CONSERVATION PICTURE AWARD WINNERS

The practices vary from conservation tillage and contour farming to tile outlet terraces and sediment control basins. The award winners are (winner and sponsor): Mr. and Mrs. Glen Peterson of Lyons, First National Bank of Lyons; Mr. and Mrs. William Harris of Leigh, Doernemann Construction of Clarkson; Mr. and Mrs. Ken Porter of Norfolk, Cones State Bank of Pierce; Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Mathies of Clarkson, Clarkson Bank of Clarkson; Mr. and Mrs. Layne Meyer of Hooper, First National Bank of Hooper and Farmers Co-op of Hooper.

THE FISH NEED YOUR CHRISTMAS TREE

Don Sutherland, Superintendent of the Willow Creek State Recreation Area near Pierce, would like to have your Christmas tree for fish habitat after the Christmas season.

Fish are a little bit like wildlife species. In that the smaller fish need hiding places to get away from predators. Trees and other irregular features on lake bottoms provide these hiding places. They also provide good fishing spots since the fish tend to hang around these areas.

Nebraska Game and Parks Commission personnel can create artificial fish habitat by using weights on Christmas trees and placing them out on the lake ice. When the ice melts in the spring, the trees sink to the bottom and become habitat.

If you would like to provide some fish habitat with your trees, take it to the east entrance of the Willow Creek State Recreation Area and follow the signs from there.

Improved Absorption
One of the most interesting ways of delivering drugs to the body is through a technique referred to as "transdermal" administration. Medicine-filled patches which look like small bandages are affixed to the skin. Medicine is smoothly and reliably released from the patch for several hours and sometimes for days.
The first medicine marketed in a transdermal patch was scopolamine, an atropine-like medicine used to prevent motion sickness. Later, nitroglycerin became available in the patch form. Scientists now believe that a number of medicines are suited for transdermal administration, including many used in treatment of hypertension, diabetes, depression, inflammation, angina, and pain.
Transdermal drug administration is exciting for a number of reasons. First, release of medicine is slow. One scopolamine patch, for example, works for three days. Second, the transdermal route avoids painful or inconvenient injections and bypasses the oral route, thus avoiding possible erratic drug absorption. And third, medicine is continuously released into the bloodstream rather than in "batches" as occurs when medicines are taken by mouth.

cards of thanks

FRIENDSHIP AND love are gifts — they cannot be earned or deserved — they are a gift. It has been a very rough road but with the love, friendship and understanding from my family and friends, I have been able to travel the road. I want to express my thanks to my husband, Curt; boys, Ryan and Cory; to my parents, Darrell and Jane; my sister, Betty and my dear friend Max for convincing me to enter the hospital — you helped save my life and I love you for it. Also, thanks to all my dear family and friends for the beautiful cards, flowers, calls and support during my hospitalization and since returning home — you are the greatest. A special thanks to Joe Tedrow, June Baier and Gil Haase for covering my position and doing a great job of it — also to the residents and staff at WCC for the love and concern you have shown, you're my second family and I love you dearly. God bless you. Remember love and friendship is a gift and I give it to you. Peg Wheeler. D25

The Golden Years by Gil Haase

The U.S. Census Bureau has been looking into its crystal ball and making projections into the next century. If the bureau is right, growing older is the trendiest thing we can be doing. Among the bureau's prognostications are: by 2025 older Americans will represent one-third of the voting population, compared with one-fifth today; the 85-plus age group will more than double in number between 1980 and 2000; the 60-plus population, now about 39 million, will reach 60 million by 2025; and by 2015, Americans over 65 will be equal in number to children under 18.

While comedians often joke about prunes being strictly a diet item for doddering old folks, it turns out that prunes are among the most nutritious and healthy of foods for people of all ages. If your doctor advises a high-fiber diet, prunes are one of the richest sources of fiber; they have no cholesterol and are rich in potassium, iron and Vitamin A.
