Building permits down

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing Editor

Building permits and the value of construction projects in the city of Wayne during 1986 dipped below 1985 figures, according to statistics recently received from the city offices.

There were 23 total building permits issued in 1986. Looking at 1985 statistics from the city planner's office, there were 40 total building permits issued. Thirty building permits were issued in 1984.

However, the 1986 value of construction from the building permits is far more than 1984 figures. Still, the construction value was approximately $1.5 less than 1985 figures.

The total construction value tabulated for 1986 was $3,136,192. Figures in the previous year were $4,654,401 and $1,202,417 in 1984.

What contributed to the larger construction value figure in 1985 was the building permit issued to Timpfe, Inc., with the value of construction at $3.7 million.

In 1986, a major figure to the construction value total included a building permit with a value of $2,372,883 issued to Wayne State College for construction of the new recreational facility (Rice-Carlson Recreation and Convocation Center).

Value for construction of a multiple housing unit in 1986 — the elderly housing apartment building at Sunnyside — was $349,059.

In 1986, there were three building permits issued for single housing units and one for a multiple housing unit. Statistics in 1985 show there were building permits issued for six single housing units and one multiple housing unit. During 1984, building permits were issued for 10 single housing units and one multiple housing unit.

Five of the 1986 building permits were issued for remodeling; five for electrical work; four for additions; four for garages; four for houses/apartments; and one patio.

Social Service office closing plans on hold

Plans for closing the Wayne County, Dixon County Social Service offices have been placed on hold, according to Northeast Nebraska District Administrator Joan Albin.

Earlier it was reported in the Wayne Herald that the Department of Social Service was planning to close 46 social services offices statewide because of the budget cuts.

Among those offices planned for closing in the 18 county northeast Nebraska District were in Wayne and Dixon Counties. The target date for the closing was Feb. 1 of this year, according to Albin.

However, a directive was distributed last Monday from the Nebraska Department of Social Services to district administrators ordering them "not to implement the [closing] plans at the present time."

Albin said the department had decided to allow the newly appointed director of the Department of Social Services, recently appointed by Nebraska's new governor Kay Orr, to review the department's plans for closing the social services offices.

Kermit R. McMurry, currently serving as executive vice president at Grambling State University in Grambling, Louisiana, and formerly from Lincoln, was selected last week by Orr as the social services department head.

Siefken finds city planner job challenging

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing Editor

Don Siefken has been on the job for about the past 2 1/2 months as Wayne's city planner and building inspector.

And each day he is getting more and more acquainted with his position. "Seems that something different comes up every day," he said. "I haven't learned by doing. This is a good outfit to work for, this is a pleasant town," he added.

Siefken was hired by the city of Wayne to replace past city planner and building inspector Marci Pankaskie.

He was born in Wayne, graduated from Wayne High School and attended Wayne State College for two semesters. He was also a member of the Air National Guard out of Sioux City.

Siefken and his wife Bonnie have two children — Danica and Don (Clay).

Previously, he was employed by Consolidated Engineers (for a period of about seven years), a firm that once was the city engineering firm for Wayne.

After working with the Nebraska Department of Roads in Wayne for nearly a year, he farmed south of Wayne near the Altona area.

Winter returns

FOR THOSE THAT thought warm weather and no snow would be the trend to come this winter, Monday morning's area snowfall brought everyone back to reality. Above is a snow scene at Bressler Park in Wayne.

Bank fire, Timpfe move top 1986 news stories

In the late evening hours of the first day of the new year was when the top Wayne Herald news story of 1986 took place.

The State National Bank of Wayne and several other businesses and apartments burned completely to the ground the evening of Jan. 1.

One year later, the bank is operating at a different site, and in its previous location will be a parking lot and park. The site along Main Street will remain as a future place for the bank, according to the bank officials.

Other top stories during 1986 featured the Carroll Centennial celebration, the announcement by Timpfe, Inc. to move its corporate offices to Wayne combined with the grand opening of Timpfe, Inc., and numerous other events.

Below is a recap of some of the top stories in 1986:

□ A fire that occurred in the late hours of Jan. 1 destroyed the 94-year-old State National Bank building and several other businesses, including Century 21-State National, State National Insurance Company and Farmers Mutual offices and the offices of Jerry Malcom (certified public accountant) and Dr. George Goblrirsch (dentist).

An apartment was also destroyed. Former sports editor John Prather was able to escape from the fire, but lost nearly all of his personal belongings. Wayne fire fighters were summoned to the scene, with mutual aid provided by the fire departments from Wakefield, Winside and South Sioux City. Some 50 firemen were at the fire. The fire was believed to have started in the cleaning closet of the bank.

State National Bank moved into what was formerly the True Value building at the corner of 1st and Pearl Streets. Later, some 1,500 safety deposit boxes were pulled from the demolished bank and there was little damage suffered.

□ Lewis Ashker and Kurt Novoack, both of Wayne, were extradited from Wayne County to South Dakota to face charges of first degree murder/manslaughter in the 1985 death of Jerald Pithal of Delmont, South Dakota.

Initially, both fought extradition to South Dakota. But in the early months of 1986, Ashker was extradited and was the first to stand trial for murder/manslaughter. Novoack's extradition and trial followed.

Both were found guilty of first degree murder and were handed down a life sentence.

□ The selection by Nebraska voters of Republican Kay Orr as the next governor of Nebraska during the November general election will go down in the state's history books.

It was the first time ever that Nebraska had two women vying for state governor. Orr also became the first Republican woman governor in the history of the United States.

On the Democratic Party side was Helen Boosalis, who defeated candidates Dave Domina, Chris Beutler, Robert Prokop, Marge Higgins, Barton Chandler and Mina Dillingham in the primary election. Domina, however, had carried Wayne County voters by nearly a 2-1 margin.

Orr won in Wayne County and statewide over Nancy Hoch, Kermit Brashear, Paul Rosberg, Everett Silven, Monte Taylor and Chuck Loos to gain the Republican bid.

Locally, two of the five Wayne city council ward seats were contested, with Larry Johnson and Sheryl Lindau winning out in the general election. Others gaining ward positions who were unopposed were Carolyn Filter, Randy Pedersen and Darrel Heiler.

In Wayne County county office positions, the only contest in the general election was for county superintendent as Glenn Wiseman defeated incumbent Robert Sheckler.

In the primary elections, Russell Prince ran against incumbent Jerry Pospisil, with Pospisil winning.

The Winside School District board race had seven candidates running for three positions. Elected were Mike Melerhenry, Ken Koliath and Harlin Bruggen.

The races in Dixon County were more heated, with nearly every county position contested.

□ Timpfe, Inc. of Wayne announced in January that the company would be moving its corporate offices from Denver to its manufacturing plant in Wayne by the end of 1986.

The move involved the top management roles in addition to technical, administrative and production support functions. Approximately 80 employees were affected by the relocation.

Full production on the refrigerated semi trailer at the Wayne facility began in April, 1986. The "11 trailer rolled off the line in time for display at the Wayne Expo.

In September, Timpfe officials sponsored an open house and dedication at the Wayne facility, offering a reception and tours of the manufacturing plant.

The plant was dedicated to past and future employees of Timpfe.

□ Carroll celebrated its centennial in July, 1986 in grand fashion with numerous events that featured something of everything.

Some of the events included a Carroll Centennial Pageant, 4-H Steer and Market Heifer Show, barbecues, water fights among area fire departments, softball games, a fun run, omelet feed, displays of antiques and crafts at various shops in Carroll, entertainment in the village park, community church service, alumni activities, vault burial and tractor pull.

Lloyd Textley was crowned king, and Esther Hansen, queen, over centennial festivities. Selected as princess was Elizabeth Clausen and prince was Brandon Hall.

There were over 200 units in the grand centennial parade, which was preceded by a Kiddie Parade that drew many entries.

□ Among the many noteworthy community events that took place in 1986 was the annual Wayne Chicken Show in July. Some of the events were the balloon lift, writing contest, window display, fun run, rooster

Aging program considered a success

viewpoint

Nebraska's aging network reached more than 85,000 older Nebraskans this past year with services provided through the Nebraska Department on Aging (NDA) and the eight area agencies on aging located throughout the state, according to Patricia Kuehl, director of the Department on Aging.

More than 2.2 million home-delivered and congregate meals were served, Kuehl said. This is the second consecutive year that more than two million meals were served to older Nebraskans.

"We've seen a steady increase in the number of home-delivered meals in the past few years," Kuehl said. "We think this indicates that efforts to help people remain in their homes as long as possible are working. It also indicates that home-delivered meals are important as older individuals get dismissed from hospitals sooner than in the past because of the medicare prospective payment system."

The area agencies on aging also provided a variety of other services including information and referral services, legal assistance, transportation and escort service, homemaker assistance, visitor and telephone reassurance, and chore/handman services, she said.

"Nebraskans can take pride in the quality of aging programs in the state. The countless number of volunteers and professionals who provide the services make that quality what it is," Kuehl said.

ALL IN ALL, the aging network in Nebraska is a $17 million effort. The Department on Aging distributes $1.9 million in state funds and $7.4 million in federal funds, most of it to the area agencies on aging, which also use local public funds and private contributions to provide services to older Nebraskans.

"Each dollar of federal and state money generates another dollar in local public and private support for aging," Kuehl noted. In fact, older citizens provide $2.7 million through cash contributions to support aging programs. That is greater than the amount of state funds.

In addition to the services provided by the area agencies on aging, the Department on Aging offers numerous information and training opportunities to older Nebraskans and service providers.

The Governor's Conference on Aging provides the opportunity for older Nebraskans to come together and learn. Workshops are held on a wide variety of subjects, including employment, housing options health. The 1987 Governor's Conference on Aging will be in Kearney in May.

During fiscal year 1985-86, literacy conferences, long-term care symposiums, an alternative housing conference, job fairs, older women conferences, and legislative workshops were sponsored by the NDA across the state.

IN THE PAST YEAR, the Department on Aging distributed 112 video cassette recorders to the area agencies on aging for placement in senior centers which provided their own monitors. This was part of an effort to improve communication, share information and provide educational videotapes to older citizens.

The NDA has also expanded its audio/visuals library with the production and purchase of numerous videotapes. Some of the topics covered in the tapes include nutrition, older drivers and Medicare basics. Tapes are available on a loan basis, free of charge to groups or organizations.

A legal booklet entitled "Substitute Financial Management and Decision Making: Power of Attorney and Beyond" was published through funds made available from the Older Americans Act and the Nebraska Department of Social Services. Topics covered in the booklet include power of attorney, protective payee, representative payee, fiduciaries, conservatorship and guardianship.

A Benefits Guide for Older Nebraskans is also in the process of being published in cooperation with the American Association of Retired Persons.

According to Kuehl, "A great many things have been accomplished during the past year, and I am certain that with the continued combined efforts of the state and local levels aging services will continue to improve."

No frown on town

Small towns are not a dying breed. And they will never be such if the people there have the attitude of an 11th grader from Grace City, North Dakota, who wrote this about her little town.

"Grace City, North Dakota, population 105, is my hometown. (That is give or take one or two people, but two more are on the way). We have three churches, a cafe and a school. We have no stop signs — just one yield going out of town. We have three paved streets. For recreation, we have two ball diamonds and a tennis/basketball court. These are all the statistics of my town.

But in a more personal aspect, I'll look at each of these stats.

First, population 105 is more than a number statement that can be found in a book. It's an actual head count. It's a statement of the town's personality — friendly. Everyone is everyone else's friend, neighbor, and/or relative. Everyone over the age of six knows who lives in town, in which house they live, and who their parents/children are. We all know each other's relatives, and most of us are related in some way or another.

Next comes our churches. They show the ever-present role of God in rural lives. With three churches in a town this size, it's evident that God is important in the lives of Grace City people.

Our gas station, store and cafe are the town's gathering places. When they are open, they always have someone visiting them.

At the post office, our mail is sorted by hand according to the names on the envelopes, not the addresses. Most people don't even bother to use a street address or box number.

Next comes the school, which has an enrollment of 71 students in grades 1-12 with more than 75 percent of the high school students living in the country. We have a basketball team, a speech team and a track team. We put on plays and perform music concerts. I think we have a lot of togetherness and unity in our squads and groups because we are all friends and are in almost everything together.

Our elevator takes up much of the area of town. It is the main center of activity during harvest and is the backbone for industry in Grace City.

Our streets have names, but no one knows them. Our two ball diamonds and our basketball court are the main attractions during the summer, especially when our two softball teams are playing. Seventy percent or more of the town's people often show up to watch a game.

In short, I think my little hometown of Grace City is special to all who live in or visit it. It's much more than a town of 105 people. It's a typical, yet unique rural community. My dad calls Grace City a "blink" town. Blink once and you will miss it.

But then, that's your loss."

Mr. Orr ready for new role

Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association
Nebraska's first gentleman is already warming up to his role with great style and much humor.

William (Bill) Orr, a senior vice president for Woodmen Accident & Life Co. takes the good natured ribbing that comes with the territory in stride. And adds to it.

Even before his wife was elected the state's 36th governor, Orr was already making plans for his new role and his cookbook. It's a one-page volume that includes eggs, meat loaf and tuna among the nine recipes. Three of the nine recipes are for mixed drinks.

Orr learned to cook out of necessity when his wife set out on her 11-month campaign for governor. That's when he also decided it might be best to pray after he ate rather than before.

Orr is currently deciding which charity will get the proceeds from his cookbook.

His wife has already made the decision on his attire for the inaugural ball. Orr had considered a tuxedo-kilt combination in honor of his Scottish ancestry. At a recent speech Mrs. Orr announced that her husband will be wearing a traditional tuxedo.

Orr was raised in a traditional middle-class family—the middle of three children. His dad, a teacher and coach turned businessman, owned a hardware store and funeral home. His mother worked at home.

BUT ORR'S grandmother was not typical. A widow, she raised her children alone and was president of the school board at a time when few women were even members of a school board.

For most of their married life the Orr's have had a "very traditional 1957 marriage," Orr says. While he traveled in his job and spent long hours on his career, his wife raised their two children, mowed the lawn and called the plumber.

Orr rose in his career. As senior vice president and director of agencies for Woodmen Accident & Life Co., he now oversees a sales force of 750 full- and part-time employees in 38 agencies in 30 states.

Slowly their lifestyle changed as Mrs. Orr began to get more involved in political volunteerism and then took a full-time job as chief aide to former Gov. Charles Thone.

"I was really the male prototype," Orr says, "over time my outlook has changed. But it wasn't a one-step process from being a traditional husband to a person who understands what the term support is all about. It was an intellectual journey. "Over time I began to understand that women are equals," he says. "She (Kay) had always been liberated; it just took me time to figure it out."

AND NOW HE stands with pride and good humor beside his wife, the governor.

In early December a picture of Orr ran in newspapers across the country. It shows Orr holding his wife's purse behind his back while she is being interviewed by television reporters in Washington, D.C.

Orr left Washington a few hours before his wife, who had a meeting with the President. He first saw the picture while he was on the plane home. The man seated next to him was reading the Chicago Tribune. Orr glanced over and saw the picture. He didn't notice that he was in it.

"That's my wife," he told the man, proudly pointing out Mrs. Orr in the background.

The man looked at the picture, glanced over at Orr, smiled, and pointed at the picture of the man with the handbag.

"And that's you," the man said.

Medicare expected to be monitored by Congress

A marked increase in 1986 in the number of complaints from patients, doctors, hospital administrators, and other health care professionals regarding Medicare signaled the beginning of problems with Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Iowa, Nebraska's Part B Medicare carrier. Initial complaints centered around the inability of claimants and doctors to reach the Des Moines office of Blue Cross/Blue Shield on the toll-free lines, inaccurate information regarding the status of claims, errors in payments, and extensive delays in receiving reimbursement.

A "blocked-call study" ordered at my request in March was designed to determine the extent of the difficulty callers dialing the toll-free number were experiencing. It provided statistical evidence that only half of the calls were getting through. This evidence resulted in additional funding from the Health Care Financing Administration to add another line in May, 1986, keep the lines open an additional hour per day and provide full-time staffing during all hours the phones were operational. Continued pressure resulted in the addition of two more lines in October, bringing toll-free service up to a total of five lines.

HCFA is requiring all uncomplicated claims to be paid within 27 days. Those which require additional information from a doctor must be cleared in 60 days.

A SERIES of ten half-day workshops to provide training for physician office personnel who process Medicare part B claims were scheduled in October and November. Similar workshops presented a year ago had been free, but initial announcements about the 1986 workshops indicated that there would be a $15 per person fee charged. I quickly protested, and the fee was waived. Over 650 participants took advantage of this opportunity to update their knowledge of Medicare regulations and Blue Cross/Blue Shield processing requirements.

Hospital administrators continue to question and protest various HCFA directives affecting Medicare reimbursement for services provided in their facilities. For example, a new interpretation of a HCFA rule regarding the staffing of cardiac rehabilitation units nearly resulted in the closing of all such facilities in dividuals and small and large businesses to make financial decisions on the basis of economics and good business practice, rather than giving the top priority to shielding income and assets from taxation. This should move a much larger share of the nation's private resources into productive endeavors—thus further stimulating economic growth and job creation.

Despite some problems, the new tax bill should benefit family farmers and ranchers in the long run. When fully implemented, it will result in a more equitable tax system which will discourage the "farming" of the tax code by non-farmers who really are seeking tax shelters. For too long, the Federal tax code has encouraged over-production of surplus commodities and poor farming practices which have hurt traditional family farmers who depend on agriculture for a living. Eliminating these tax provisions which are detrimental to family farmers has long been a top priority of nearly all farm and commodity groups. Most expressed general support of these changes.

I would have preferred to see income-averaging maintained for farmers and remain concerned about a change in the capital gains tax rate at this time in Nebraska and the Grain Belt. It may cause even more agricultural land to be put on the market for sale before January 1, 1987. Some farmers will also miss the use of the investment tax credit although that is the item so effectively used competitively against them by nonfarm competitors. Moving income from a profitable year to the next will also be difficult.

While not a perfect bill and certainly one that falls short of the goal of simplification, the new bill is a solid achievement. Some refinements will undoubtedly be necessary in the future, but Congress should avoid drastic changes for a reasonable period of time to permit the overall impact of the new reforms to be measured.

Nebraska earlier this year. Through my intervention and cooperation on the part of Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Iowa, Medicare coverage will be continued for patients using these facilities pending further review of this regulation.

Nebraska beneficiaries must receive the service and benefits to which they are entitled, and we must continue to evaluate and monitor Medicare during the 100th Congress.

Tax Reform: Historical Achievement for the 99th Congress

The new tax bill will go down as the most striking achievement of the 99th Congress. It represents a set of sweeping changes in the tax code that are, in general, in the best interests of the country and most Nebraskans.

Simplicity is not one of its virtues, but the bill will encourage in-

Close call
Someone rushed the other day. They were in a hurry on the highway. Right by the kids in front of a school bus. We have to think of the kids not us. The lights on the bus were flashing. The stop arm was out as they were passing. The bus horn blasted and the kids stopped flat. They could have been killed. Could you live with that? So watch for these flashing lights on a bus. Make sure you stop for all of us. Winter is the worst time of year. So keep your mind on the road and full of Christmas cheer.

DAN AND SALLY MADSEN of Laurel are the parents of the first child born at Providence Medical Center in 1987 — Justin David Madsen. crowding contest, parade, chicken flying meet, Bon Ami Pane-Ting and the popular egg drop/catch.

The National Cluck-off Champion was a repeat, John Agler (who was also the winner of the rooster crowing event). Judith Kluge of Fairbury won the clucking contest.

In August, both Agler and Kluge appeared on the Johnny Carson Show and performed their acts before a national audience.

The 86th annual Wayne County Old Settler's Celebration at Winside was also a success, with activities such as a road race, kid's parade, musical entertainment at the city park, puppet show, craft show, kids games, tennis tournament, water fights, barbecue, an antique car show, rides and game booths.

There was also a grand parade with many units participating.

Wayne County's annual county fair increased in attendance over the previous year. Both the Wayne County and Dixon County fairs featured musical and comedy entertainment in front of the grandstand, tractor pull, demolition derby and the free barbecue, plus numerous 4-H exhibits and grandstand shows.

Dr. Thomas A. Coffey was inaugurated in August as the eighth president of Wayne State College during summer commencement ceremonies at the Willow Bowl. Investiture of Coffey as president was conducted by J. Alan Cramer of Wayne, a member of the Board of Trustees of the Nebraska State Colleges.

Dr. Coffey received a medallion designed and struck by Ray Replege, associate professor of art at Wayne State.

Also during the summer commencement, Dr. Ed Elliott (who was president prior to Dr. Coffey at Wayne State from 1982-85) received the Distinguished Service Award.

A cornerstone dedication of the new Rice-Carlson Recreation and Convocation Center, currently under construction on the campus of Wayne State College, took place in August.

Participating in the cornerstone dedication were Dr. Thomas Coffey, president of Wayne State College; J. Alan Cramer and Thomas Morrissey, Board of Trustees of Nebraska State College members; and Dr. Ed Elliott, past president of Wayne State.

The new facility, when completed as planned in September 1987, will house an indoor track, basketball courts, tennis courts, racquetball courts and areas for other sports. It will nearly double the college's indoor recreation space. The building will be open to the public at specified times, according to college officials.

Bidding for the new building project came in at over $430,000 less than the estimated budget cost, allowing the college to fund other priority projects.

A blinding, dangerous blizzard arrived in April, bringing the northeast Nebraska area to a complete standstill as battering 68 mile per hour winds and up to four inches of snowfall stymied travel and brought on incidents of destruction.

The savage conditions made any type of traveling, even in the city, treacherous.

Three people gathered into a packing company truck during the day and night hours and waited out the storm after their vehicles went off the road on Highway 35 north of Winside.

There were snowdrifts up to five feet high in the county. Rural students in schools did not go home but stayed the night at friends' houses in town.

Wayne's Pizza Hut was robbed in June by a man carrying a small revolver, taking an undetermined amount of cash.

The vehicle used in the getaway was stolen from Main Street in Winside. The pickup was later found in a corn field located on the Dennis Luff property approximately 3½ miles southeast of Wayne.

The robbery suspects were arrested several months later in a Norfolk shopping center. They were arrested for the robbery of the Wayne Pizza Hut and two others — the Neigh Pizza Hut and another Pizza Hut in Wahoo.

An armed robbery attempt in July on a rural gravel road south of Wayne was foiled as the victim was able to flee the scene. A gunman and another individual had blocked the road, not allowing the victim to pass. When the gunman was distracted, the victim was able to get away.

The Wayne Community Theatre group staged a spring production at an unusual place — The Wayne County Courthouse.

The courtroom in the courthouse was used for the staging of "The Night of Jan. 16" — a drama that involved a jury that was selected from the audience to decide the fate of guilty or not guilty for the defendant.

Some of the other community events, along with other theatre productions by the community and Wayne State students, included events such as an Expo Products and Service Show during the spring at the Wayne City Auditorium; Country Store Days during the summer which featured a variety of entertainment and a free bratwurst feed; the ping pong ball drop in the autumn that featured bargains on the special colored ping pong balls; and the grand $2,600 Christmas giveaway promotion.

And finally, a note about two people who were among the many who were mentioned on our news pages that were honored this year for their accomplishments.

In February, Melvin (Bud) Froehlich was announced as Wayne's Citizen of the Year during the annual membership meeting of the Wayne Chamber of Commerce. He is a manager of the Wayne office for Farm Bureau Insurance and he also shares the ownership with his wife, Marian, of the Wayne Shoe Company.

And in October, Walter Benthack announced his official retirement as a practicing physician. He had been practicing for 62 years — nearly 56 of those years in Wayne.

Predictions on target! Try again

I guess it's safe to say that the holiday season is over with the completion of the college football bowl games.

I can show my face after hitting four of the six major bowl games correctly. Two of my better selections were Nebraska by 14 points and Penn State by three points, one point off on each of the actual scores.

I was glad to see that Miami's Rambo tactics didn't pay off in the Fiesta Bowl. The loss makes ex-Oklahoma State mentor Jimmy Johnson 0-4 in bowl games while coaching the Hurricanes. He did that well in Stillwater.

Coach Joe Paterno showed a lot of class in winning his second national championship. There were no crass predictions from him or his players. They just went out and did what they had to do.

I hope the Huskers' win over LSU will also silence some of the Osborne critics. I don't know if the Sugar Bowl is considered a "big game" but I certainly would think so.

Many sports writers are already tabbing the 1987 Cornhuskers as national championship hopefuls. We'll have to wait and see.

Well since I fared so well in the college ranks I think I'll give it a shot at the pro level.

The matchups for the AFC and NFC championship games are good ones.

In the NFC title tilt the New York Giants host their conference rivals and neighbors the Washington Redskins. The Giants, favored by seven, have beaten the Skins in two earlier contests this year. I think they will make it three in a row on Sunday. The Giants are on a roll. They crushed the 49ers Sunday 49-3. Who else in the NFL could have pulled that off?

Coach Bill Parcells will get his 16th Gatorade shower of the season and advance to the Super Bowl in Pasadena, N.Y. Giants 27, Redskins 17.

The AFC game should be a thriller. The championship Cleveland fans sold out Cleveland Municipal Stadium for Sunday's game in two hours Monday.

Denver comes into Cleveland a little battered up. Offensive lineman Paul Howard is out and several other Broncos are hobbled by injuries. Dave Studdard (leg), John Elway (ankle) and Gerald Wilhite (shoulder) are a few among the walking wounded.

On the other hand the Browns are coming off a superb performance by Bernie Kosar. The Ohio native tortured the porous Jet defensive backfield for about 450 yards. It won't be that easy against a fine Bronco secondary.

This game is almost a toss up. The early line says the Browns are a three-point favorite. The outcome depends on who's hot. But I'm staying with the home team. Cleveland 24, Denver 21.

Attitude change brings Wayne a championship

By Gregg Dahlheim
Sports Editor

A pair of wins and the championship of the Wayne State College Holiday Tournament has the Wayne Blue Devils on a roll.

Coach Bob Uhing's crew dumped Atkinson-West Holt and Elkhorn Mount Michael in the holiday tourney to boost their record to 3-5. The Blue Devils have won their last three games.

In the team's opening-round match they downed West Holt 60-50. The Huskies were rated fifth in the latest Class C-1 ratings.

Good defense was the key to the win. Senior Ted Lueders got the assignment to guard the Huskies' team leader and scorer Chris Peacock. The sophomore came into the game averaging about 20 points a game. Lueders limited Peacock to five points.

The Blue Devils played a box-and-one defense with Lueders shadowing Peacock all over the floor. The locals weren't quite as successful against the Huskies' other offensive threat.

Sophomore Bruce Chubick scored a game-high 25 points. Everytime the 6-foot man got the ball two or three Blue Devil defenders would collapse on him. Chubick hit most of his points on offensive rebounds.

Uhing said team rebounding really hurt his team. Atkinson-West Holt outboarded the Blue Devils 47-30. Corey Dahl led Wayne with eight rebounds.

The game was fought throughout the first half. The teams were tied at 12 after the first quarter and Wayne led by five at the intermission. In the third quarter the locals began to stretch the lead. The Huskies lack of outside shooting was a key in the outcome.

Wayne posted its biggest lead, 42-33, with 1:20 left in the third quarter. They led by seven going into the final period. Although the Blue Devils seemed in control throughout the entire game they were never able to put West Holt away.

Jason Jorgensen led the winners with 14 points. The senior scored most of his points in the first half. Three other starters finished the game in double figures. Nick Engelson and Dahl each tallied 12 points and Lueders added 10 points.

Fouls and defensive pressure was the key in the championship game Uhing said. The Blue Devils committed only 12 team fouls compared to 23 fouls against Atkinson-West Holt.

Once again, Lueders led the defensive charge. This time the senior was assigned to the Knights' leading scorer Rob Noble. Lueders limited Noble to half of his 20-point average.

Uhing said Dahl and Bill Liska controlled the boards as Wayne outboarded Mt. Michael 29-21. Liska pulled down 10 boards while Dahl added nine carroms.

The Blue Devil mentor was also pleased with Wayne's offensive execution. He said his team played well together on the offensive end.

The locals never trailed in the contest. They led by a hoop after the first quarter and went into the locker room leading 28-21 at halftime. The Blue Devils built the lead to 10 points as they headed into the final period.

That's when the Blue Devils went into a semi-stall game. The Knights outscored Wayne 14-11 in the quarter but it wasn't enough.

Engelson led Wayne with 19 points. The junior hit five field goals while connecting on 9-12 from the free-throw line. Overall the Blue Devils made 15-21 free throws while Mt. Michael hit only 6-11 attempts.

Lueders turned in another fine offensive performance with 12 points. He was the only Blue Devil to be named to the all-tourney team. He finished the three-day tournament with 22 points but Uhing said he thought he got selected because of his defensive play.

Uhing said the balanced play of the rest of his team probably kept another Blue Devil off the all-tourney team. Usually two players are selected from the tournament champion. Engelson scored 31 points in the tournament but was left off the list.

Uhing said he can see a change in his team's attitude.

"Now the kids realize they can play well," the coach said. "They beat the fifth-rated team in Class C and Mt. Michael was rated third in preseason and we beat them."

Uhing said his team has a long way to go but if they keep improving they will have a solid team.

The Blue Devils will next be in action Friday when they travel to Madison to lock horns with the Dragons.

Defense propels Lady Devils

The mood in the Wayne locker room was serious prior to the Lady Blue Devils' 47-44 win over South Sioux City in the championship game of the Wayne State College Holiday Tournament Wednesday night.

Coach Marlene Uhing said she could see a difference in the girls' attitude from the opening-round game against Omaha Mercy.

"Before the Mercy game everybody was giving each other a hard time but before the South Sioux City game the girls were serious," she said.

The coach said she thought the mood change was due to their opponent.

"Last year they crushed us twice with the same girls," she said. "It was a big win for our program."

In last year's holiday tournament the Lady Cardinals dumped the locals by 20 points. Later in the season it was worse as South Sioux City handed Wayne a 31-point loss.

The championship bout started out a little ragged as each team turned the ball over numerous times. But the girls started to settle down in the second quarter.

Uhing said her team played its best defensive game of the year. The coach said she planned to keep the Lady Cardinals off balance by switching defenses regularly. Uhing said she abandoned that plan when the Lady Blue Devils' 2-3 zone worked so well. Wayne stayed in that defense until the end of the third quarter.

That's when Uhing ordered her team to apply pressure defense to South Sioux.

Wayne led almost the entire game after the Lady Cardinals got on the scoreboard first. The girls led 9-8 after the first quarter, 19-15 at halftime and 31-26 going into the final period. The visitors outscored Wayne in the final period but it wasn't enough as the Lady Blue Devils ran their record to 5-1.

Before the game Uhing said in order for her team to win she felt they had to play hard for four quarters, play good defense and control the boards. She said she felt they did all three even though the Lady Cardinals outboarded Wayne 31-29. Seniors Shelly Plick and Kecia Corbit led Wayne in rebounds with 10 and eight respectively.

Uhing was also pleased with the rest of her team's play. She said Dana Nelson did a good job of being the team's floor leader. The sophomore also tied her season-high point production with 11 markers. The bench also played well, according to Uhing.

Corbit again led Wayne in scoring. The senior scored 15 points and finished the tournament with 41 points. For her efforts she was nam-

Lueders, Corbit named to WSC tourney team

Kecia Corbit and Ted Lueders, both of Wayne, were selected to the Wayne State College Holiday Tournament All-Tournament Team.

Both seniors led their respective squads to the championship in the Class B division.

Corbit was selected as the honorary captain of the girls' Class B team. She scored 41 points in the Lady Blue Devils two wins. In the opening round against Omaha Mercy she hit a school-record 13 field goals.

Lueders was named to the all-tourney team at the guard spot. He hit for 22 points in Wayne's win over Atkinson-West Holt and Elkhorn Mt. Michael. According to his Coach Bob Uhing, Lueders was probably named to the team for his defensive efforts. He was assigned to defend the leading scorers from Mt. Michael and West Holt.

In the Class B championship games the Wayne Blue Devils downed Elkhorn Mt. Michael 51-44 and the Lady Blue Devils edged South Sioux City 47-44. In Class C the Pierce girls defeated Stanton 50-31. In the final game and Wisner-Pilger downed the Pierce Bluejays 59-52 to claim the boys title.

Blue Devil layup

WAYNE'S TED LUEDERS (12) goes in for a layup against Atkinson-West Holt in the opening round of the holiday tournament.

First-half fouls lead to Winside loss at Walthill

Foul trouble was the determining factor in Winside's 73-58 loss to Walthill Tuesday night.

The Wildcats sent Walthill to the free-throw line 24 times in the first half which resulted in 15 Bluejays points.

Kevin Jaeger and Daryl Mundt each fouled out of the contest and had four fouls by halftime. The foul problem forced Coach Mark Frebreg to play several junior varsity players. He said the reserves played well but they made the sophomore mistakes a coach would expect.

Frebreg said the game was lost in the second and third quarter when the Wildcats were outscored 46-26. Winside outpointed the Bluejays in the first and last periods 32-27. The Winside skipper said his top-line defensive play was poor.

The Bluejays got on a roll late in the second quarter when they scored 10 points in one minute. They scored on three layups and four free throws during that stretch.

Frebreg said that Walthill's quickness hurt his team. He said the Bluejays guards got several steals which resulted in easy layups for the winners.

Senior Mike Thies turned in his second strong performance in a row. Thies led the team in scoring and rebounding. He finished with 24 points and 14 boards. In Winside's last game against Wynot, Thies hit for 13 points. Tim Jacobsen also finished in double figures with 18 points from the perimeter.

Walthill was led by a pair of players: Brook Darnell and David Wingett each tallied 15 points.

Freshmen girls win second

The Wayne 9th grade girls ran their record to 2-0 with a 39-11 thrashing of Wakefield Tuesday at home.

The girls led from the start enroute to the win.

Wayne was led by the 16-point performance of Teresa Ellis. Teammate Holly Nichols added nine points.

The girls will next be in action Monday when the travel to Wisner.

Trojan boys nip Wayne

The Wakefield freshmen boys pulled one out in overtime against Wayne Tuesday on a shot by Andy McQuistan with about 10 seconds left in the overtime period.

Wayne led for most of the ballgame but the Trojans came back to tie the score 44-44 at the end of regulation. Wayne Coach Duane Blomenkamp said he was discouraged with his team's defensive effort.

If looked as if the junior Blue Devils would still win the game in overtime. Wayne led 46-45 before McQuistan hit the winning shot. With time running out Wayne got the ball down court and got two shots off but neither one fell and the Trojans took home the win.

Wakefield was led by Tony Krusemark's 17 points and Doug Roberts' 16 markers. Neil Carnes of Wayne led all scorers with 29 points.

It Takes Time

"Why does it take so long to have a prescription filled?" Although patrons don't always ask this question, they must frequently have it in their minds. Even waiting a few minutes for prescriptions may seem like an eternity when you don't feel well.

Dispensing medication is not as simple a task as merely taking medicine from one container and placing it into another. A series of important steps help safeguard the patron's health. These steps include checking to determine that the dose and frequency of administration is appropriate for the patron's age and health condition. Prescription directions are sometimes unclear or information is missing, thereby necessitating contacting the prescriber. When two or more medicines are dispensed, the possibility of significant drug-drug interactions must be determined.

Label preparation involves not only placing clear and concise directions on the container, but also determining which auxiliary labels are appropriate (eg, Shake Well, Keep in Refrigerator). And if insurance papers are involved, it may take as long to complete these papers as it does to check and fill the prescription.

Winside girls win 5th straight game

The Winside girls made it five in a row Tuesday night as they nipped Walthill on the Lady Bluejays' court 55-54.

The win boosted the Wildcats record to 5-2. Coach Jill Stenwall said she thought her team might be a little ragged after the Christmas break. She said it showed with the large number of turnovers the Wildcats committed in the first three quarters. Winside's last game was Dec. 22 when they downed Wynot.

Balance was the name of the game of the game for the Wildcats. Kristi Miller and Carmen Reeg each scored 12 points to lead Winside. Christi Thies was next in line with nine points. Tracy Topp added eight points and Ann Meierhenry and Lana Prince rounded out the scoring with seven points apiece.

Stenwall said it was the most balanced attack her team has had all year. She added that is what her team needs to win ballgames.

Another key area of the game was the number of fouls called. The home team was whistled for 33 fouls while Winside got caught only 12 times. As a result the Wildcats outscored Walthill by 15 points at the free-throw line.

Winside could have put the game away if they would have hit a better percentage from the line. The Wildcats shot only 40 percent from the charity line, connecting on 17-42. On the other hand the Lady Bluejays made just 2-11 free-throw opportunities.

Winside trailed after the first quarter by a point. Both teams went to the locker room tied at halftime, 26-26. Walthill came out in the third quarter and outpointed the visitors 15-13 to take a two-point lead into the final stanza.

But the Wildcats came through in the fourth quarter and outscored Walthill 16-13 for the one-point margin. Stenwall said her team turned the ball over only three times in the fourth period.

Winside yanked down 62 rebounds compared to Walthill's 50 boards.

Topp, Reeg and Meierhenry did a yeoman's job on the glass as they contributed 19, 14 and 11 rebounds respectively. Gretchen Kruse led Walthill with nine points.

Rallied from deficit

Wakefield earns first win

By Gregg Dahlheim
Sports Editor

1987 couldn't have come at a better time for the Wakefield Trojans.

A fresh start is what Coach Paul Eaton's team needed after losing its first five games of the season.

A fresh start is what they got Saturday when they handed Allen a 49-40 defeat on the Trojans' home court. The loss dropped the Eagles' record to 1-6.

Allen led for three quarters. They led by one point after the first period and upped it to 25-20 at halftime.

Eaton said his team shot poorly in the opening half. He added his team didn't get as many shots as he hoped because of the large number of turnovers committed by the Trojans.

Another key to the first half was the Allen full-court press. The pressure caused Wakefield trouble which resulted in turnovers.

Wakefield started to chisel away at the Eagle lead in the third quarter. Kevin Greve got a couple of baskets underneath which got Wakefield to within a basket after three quarters, 33-31.

Mike Nelson's shot with seven minutes left tied the game at 33. Each team exchanged baskets until Scott Lund gave the Trojans their first lead with a baseline jumper with 2:20 left in the contest.

Craig Hoffman got the lead back for Allen after he converted a three-point play with a minute left in the game. After stealing an inbound pass Greve made a basket from inside the lane to give Wakefield the lead for good. Down the stretch the Trojans hit seven free throws in the last five seconds to seal the win. Allen was whistled for three intentional fouls which resulted in six free throws and possession of the ball after the charity tosses.

In protesting an intentional foul call Allen Coach Dave Uldrich was charged with a technical foul which closed out the scoring for both teams.

Eaton said he thought the key to the game was the Trojans' positive attitude.

"We got behind but we kept working," Eaton said. "There were a lot of opportunities to give up but we didn't."

Eaton said Brad Lund also played a big part in the win. The senior played in his first game of the season after recovering from a foot injury. Eaton said he brings a lot of leadership to the team.

Uldrich said he thought his team had control of the game through the first three quarters. He said Wakefield hit a couple of outside shots in the fourth quarter which stretched out the Allen zone defense. That allowed the Trojans to work the ball inside to Greve.

The 6-3 senior led Wakefield with 18 points. Nelson added 15 markers. The pair added 14 and eight rebounds respectively. The Trojans badly outrebounded Allen 41-27.

For the Eagles Max Oswald and Craig Hoffman combined for 32 of Allen's 40 points. Oswald finished with 20 points and nine rebounds while Hoffman added 12 points.

LOOKING AT MARKETING STRATEGIES

Agricultural producers today have the opportunity to use a variety of different marketing strategies. Determining which alternatives will generate the highest economic returns may seem difficult, but some help is available.

A series of six NebGuides written by University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension marketing specialist Lynn Lutgen may provide some of the answers to producers in coping with the marketing dilemma.

The first in the series, Basic Terminology for Understanding Grain Options, defines many of the terms commonly used in futures trading.

Next is Options Contract Specifications on Grain Futures Contracts, which explains specifications and uses of futures contracts for corn and soybean trading. The third NebGuide in the series is an Introduction to Grain Options on Futures Contracts. It is followed by Evaluating Options versus Futures Contracts, Using Options to Follow a Rising Market and How to Evaluate Grain Pricing Opportunities.

The first three in the series were issued in December, 1985; the last three in November, 1986.

As Lutgen says in the last of the series, "The market is an ever-changing dynamic force. While we recognize this, we also realize that to do a good job of marketing, we must be able to evaluate our pricing opportunities." To that end, the NebGuide includes a sample marketing alternatives worksheet that can be used to determine, or at least estimate, net returns for each alternative.

"After going through this worksheet, producers generally will find they have mentally and physically developed a marketing plan," Lutgen said.

Can wear 'donut transmitters'

Meet the hi-tech cow

NEBRASKA FARM BUREAU

FEDERATION
by Cheryl Stubbendieck, vice president/information

Dairy cows have gotten the lion's share of the cow media coverage lately, with Bovine Growth Hormone promising to increase milk output 'per cow and the dairy herd built up trying to decrease the number of cows. But there's news in the beef cow sector, too. Changes are coming "home, home on the range."

U.S. Department of Agriculture scientists say it's just a matter of time before we'll have bionic bovines grazing pastures. In their research, they're equipping cows and other beef animals with electronic sensors to measure weight, body temperature, fertility, presence of diseased tissue, and carcass composition—while still on the hoof.

For consumers, this application of high tech will mean greater quality and safety of meat products. For cattle producers, it will mean a lower-cost way to deliver those high quality products.

For example, rapid weight gain is about the most important economic indicator for cattle production. If a farmer or rancher knows which animals aren't gaining well, he can treat them if they're sick or cull them from herd. But weighing livestock, especially on the open range, is no Sunday Picnic. The cattle don't like it, either. They have to be herded into pens and driven onto scales. It's time-consuming and expensive.

IN MAY '86 scientists in USDA's Ag Research Service, began testing an automatic weighing system at Miles City, Montana. When a thirsty cow comes to drink, she breaks a light beam and the electronics go to work. She's "tucked" in the drinking stall, and when she lowers her head to drink, a small donut-shaped tag on her ear comes close to a box that emits low-level microwaves. The waves activate a transmitter in the donut which broadcasts her I.D. number. This is verified by a microcomputer which also records date and time.

The bottom of the drinking stall is a scale, which records the cow's weight 30,000 times a second. Her weight doesn't change all that much during that time, but the frequent measurements account for her moving around—similar to what happens when a dieter lifts one foot off the bathroom scale.

Other devices measure the volume and weight of the water she drinks. When she's done, the electronics let her out of the drinking stall and then reset the scale for the next visitor.

Five miles away, researchers get the cows data by radio, where it's stored in a computer for later analysis on how, individuals and the herd are faring in terms of performance.

The whole system has sort of a Rube Goldberg feeling to it, but it is actually the combining of many technologies to solve an old problem. How long 'til Nebraska cows are wearing donut transmitters in their ears? Probably not during the next year, but definitely in the foreseeable future. The USDA researchers liken the system to pocket calculators, which used to cost hundreds of dollars and now are incredibly cheap. There's every possibility, they say, that ear donut transmitters could become as common on cattle as wristwatches are on people.

cut is $25 for bed and breakfast, $15 for the use of the land.

Admittedly, that's not a lot of money. But it's a whole lot better than nothing. And for some farm families, it was a big help at Christmas time. Certainly it compares favorably to the situation where the hunter from outside the area or out of state leaves only the price of his hunting license and maybe lunch in the local community.

The key to this new pay-to-hunt business was not so much the farmer's concern with hunters' use of his land or fear about insurance liability, as it was a change in Iowa's bed and breakfast law. Farms now are exempt from the rigors of restaurant inspections, so it's now legal to rent a room and provide a meal to a paying customer.

The founders of Pheasants Galore think they're on to something. They chalk their first year up to experience, though they scheduled about 100 hunting parties. But, they think there's potential for farmers to host more people other than pheasant hunters. Deer hunters, fishermen, amateur photographers, cross country skiers—in short, anybody who doesn't have access to farms and would like to. They hope to eventually set up a statewide association of farm hosts in Iowa.

No reason Nebraska farmers couldn't do something similar. Hunters get bed, breakfast and birds. And farmers—for once—get a piece of the action.

Hunting season

A few months ago, about the time hunting season began, I suggested in an article about hunting etiquette that perhaps the time would come when farmers would get some compensation for allowing their land to be hunted—either a cut of licensing fees or direct payments from hunters. That time has come in Iowa.

Darwin Linn and Bob Manke, farmers from Corning, Iowa, formed a company called Pheasants Galore which went into action this hunting season. For a daily fee, they can arrange for hunters to have access to one of 150 farms in a 10-county area.

For $90 a day, you get a night's lodging, a day's hunting and a farmhouse breakfast—and a guarantee that the land hasn't been hunted for at least three days. Stay four or more days and the fee drops to $75 per person per day. Pheasants Galore makes the arrangements and collects the fee; the individual farmer's

Crop focus 1987

Profitable Production Practices is the theme for the 1987 Crop Focus meetings sponsored by the Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service.

The day-long meetings, scheduled for 15 locations across the state, will consist of 10 presentations by University of Nebraska-Lincoln specialists on reducing grain drying costs, nitrogen use, alternative crops, mining the soil, making farm programs work and biotechnology and the farm. Each presentation will be 15-minutes in length and will be followed by a question and answer period.

Programs for each location have been designed to meet the needs of producers in each area, according to Don C. Spite, Extension Agent.

Further details are available from area extension offices. The Crop Focus meeting in this area is scheduled for 9:30 a.m. on Thursday, Jan. 22 at the Northeast Research and Extension Center east of Concord. The only cost will be a Dutch treat lunch.

A special feature at this meeting will be several commercial exhibits representing machinery, pesticides, insecticides, fertilizer and seed.

Farmers and agri-business people in the Cedar, Dixon, Wayne, Dakota and Thurston Counties along with other neighboring counties are invited to attend.

Enter yield in contest

A yield of 136.2 bushels, No. 2 corn per acre from Crow's 212, an early season hybrid with a relative maturity of 103 days, has been submitted by Neyron Woodward, Wayne.

Neyron said in his report to Crow's that his entry was harvested on Nov. 3 from a final stand of 15,000 plants per acre, adding the crop was planted May 15 and that the harvest moisture was 20.3 percent.

Attention to Chapter 12

Rebuilding operations focus of workshops

During January, the Center for Rural Affairs will sponsor free educational workshops in several Nebraska communities to inform both farmers and ranchers about what options are available for "rebuilding" their troubled farming and ranching operations.

The workshops are designed to give financially distressed operators enough information to help them decide how to rebuild their farm or ranch. The workshops will give special attention to the new Chapter 12 bankruptcy option which in some cases allows family farmers and ranchers to reorganize their operations by writing down their debts to current market value.

The workshops were organized out of a recognition that given current farm income there is simply more farm debt than can ever be paid back. "There is nothing on the horizon to change that situation in the near future," said Gene Severens, an attorney with the Center for Rural Affairs. "The question becomes—how will that excess debt be absorbed and how can distressed operations be rebuilt?"

The family farm reorganization workshops will be open to the general public and are also designed to provide farm lenders and dealers with information on their options. During the sessions, different types of bankruptcy will be compared, bankruptcy will be compared with other methods for resolving debts, and bankruptcy as a tool for rebuilding farms will be examined, with particular focus on Chapter 12.

Also available at the workshops will be Chapter 12 guidebook published by the Center for Rural Affairs. Severens emphasized that the workshops are not designed to deal with individual cases. "We can help farmer-borrowers determine what their rebuilding options are. Farmers can then pursue these options with the advice of their attorneys."

The workshops will be most useful to those who want to survive the current debt crisis and rebuild their operations. It will also be useful to farm lenders who want to see their family-farm based communities rebuilt.

Those seeking more information about the workshops should contact the Center for Rural Affairs, Box 405, Walthill, NE, 68067. (402) 846-5428.

Disclosure reports required

Raymond Butts, Executive Director of the Wayne County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, says the Foreign Disclosure report is still required by law and reminds foreigners who have bought or sold agricultural land in the county to file the report within 90 days.

He says the reporting requirement stems from the Agricultural Foreign Investment Disclosure Act and gives USDA a survey of the amount of agricultural land owned by foreign persons. Those who fail to report, or who are late in reporting, face possible penalties.

For reporting purposes, agricultural land is defined as any tract of more than 10 acres now in agricultural, forestry, or timber production. This includes land in agricultural use when purchased, as well as land later converted to agricultural use. "Foreigners who own or have an interest in 10 acres or less do not need to report unless annual proceeds from the sale of agricultural products grown on those acres exceed $1000," Mr. Butts said.

Foreign disclosure reports contain the date the land was acquired or transferred, the value of the purchase price yet to be paid, and the estimated value of the land.

According to Mr. Butts, foreign investors had reported owning about 12.1 million acres of agricultural land in the United States as of December 31, 1985.

"Individuals or companies that specialize in landholdings, land transfers, or management services should contact our office for details on reporting in behalf of foreign clients," the ASCS official said.

the farmer's wife

by pat meierhenry

It's Saturday and the pace is kind of slow around here. It's a sort of last-minute rest before we plunge headlong into January's activities. The new calendar is already full.

We didn't even see the new year in, a sure sign of old age, and this year's new puzzle is still in its box.

Whether we want to believe it or not, Penn State is #1. I found myself feeling sorry for Miami, even though two years ago, I was saying nasty things about them.

Nebraska had a much easier afternoon than I expected, and poor Arkansas never knew what hit them. The Big Farmer confesses he fell asleep on the couch during Iowa's game, and missed the winning field goal. But it seems to be true that Nebraska wins when Iowa does.

Did you miss this piece of drivel last week? I did. But there comes a time when even this old body runs out of steam. By Sunday evening, all I wanted to do was watch "Sound of Music" and sit in my old rocking chair.

Did we have a nice Christmas? Except for my sister's stomach flu, it was great. I can't remember ever having such weather. We even went for a two mile walk on Christmas Day.

We had our traditional oyster stew on Christmas Eve and then opened presents before candlelight services. We do this by sitting in a circle and opening one at a time, so everyone can enjoy the contents. Believe me, if you haven't already figured it out; Big Tops are in. I have a Nebraska Westeyan sweat shirt and a lovely wool sweater that are huge. I also have a new pair of slippers that look like Pound Puppies.

The church had a giant Christmas tree and poinsettias on the altar. We sang Stille Nacht, Heilige Nacht, and one dear 83 year old German voice could be heard clearly.

Sue and Jon brought a friend named Monte who cooks! He brought pies and made the dressing and did the turkey, including the carving, thus endeavoring himself to me forever.

The Beattie cousins and Grandma Slach were here on Thursday; four Schmidt cousins and Grandma Meierhenry and Aunt Dora came for ham and sweet potatoes on Friday. On Saturday, the Bainter's joined us for steak on the way back to Texas.

In between, I saw patients. Several old friends took advantage of the good roads to stop by.

I've made two new year's Resolutions: 1) to lose ten pounds, and 2) to be more organized. Both will probably be lost by the end of the month.

We're going to miss the Inaugural Ball on Friday in favor of a Winside girls' basketball game. In spite of the state of the economy, they've sold 3000 dinner tickets at $25, and more dance tickets at $12.50.

We had free tickets to Charley Thone's. Guess times were better then. It was interesting, especially the Grand March, and a fun show, but I doubt if we'll ever go again.

Good Luck, Mrs. Orr. Our prayers are with you. You have a tough job.

Cost-share program has changes in store

The Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District made several changes in their cost-share program for 1987.

The changes are a result of heavy demand on funds allocated for terrace and sediment basin construction in 1986; and because of a large anticipated signup in 1987 as farmers start implementing conservation plans to meet the objectives of the 1985 farm bill.

The changes include the following:
•No Lands for Conservation program - this program paid landowners $40-$60 per acre to plant alternate crops which would prevent terrace construction during the summer. This thing would ordinarily be planted to row crops and be unavailable for construction until after harvest. The board of directors are encouraging landowners to use their set-aside acres for this purpose.

•Reduce cost-share rate to 65% for all practices. The cost-share level has been 75% in past years. This will require participants to fund a greater share of the construction cost than they have in the past.

•Adopt a tentative budget for cost-share of $300,000 for spring and summer construction. This money will be allocated after a one month signup period—in January. An additional $100,000 may be allotted for fall construction when the final budget is approved.

These actions will make cost-share money available to more producers than in the past.

Producers who wish to do terrace work in 1987 are urged to contact the Soil Conservation Service in Wayne as soon as possible so your application can be submitted by the January 30th deadline.

PRESENTS FLAG
The Allen Keagle VFW Auxiliary recently presented the Wakefield Health Care Center with a United States flag that was flown over the United States Capitol. John Vilken accepted the flag presented to him by Anne Kline, secretary; Alice Johnson, president; and Margaret Turner, treasurer of the VFW Auxiliary.

The flag was flown over the Capitol on Nov. 26 marking the 40th anniversary of the VFW Auxiliary.

The flag was accompanied by a certificate which reads "This is to certify that the accompanying flag was flown over the United States Capitol on November 26, 1986, at the request of the Honorable Doug Bereuter, member of Congress. This flag was flown for the Wakefield Community Hospital and Health Care Center of Wakefield, Nebraska by VFW Auxiliary No. 5765."

The flag will be flown 24 hours a day because it is now illuminated.

CHRISTMAS PROJECT
Fifteen families in the Wakefield community and rural area benefited from this year's Lions Club Christmas project. For the past three years, the Lions have collected clothing, toys and money for groceries to assist those who are less fortunate.

The organization is now discussing collecting throughout the year if a suitable place to store the donated items can be found.

The Lions have discovered an agency which repairs and revitalizes used toys to be given to needy children. Therefore, the group is hoping to collect items throughout the year so when people have a garage sale or clean their closets they might donate the good usable items to the Lions Christmas project.

A Lions Club spokesman said the major demand by families is for children's clothing.

NEW BOOKS
There are two new mystery books at the Graves Public Library, "Postmark Murder" by A. Christie and "Life's Work" by J. Valin. The library also has two new paperbacks for wedding showers, "Wedding Shower Fun" and "Games for Wedding Shower Fun." Other new books at the library included "Shattered Silk" by B. Michaels, "Complete Home Medical Guide" and "Colonial Williamsburg."

RECORD 534 BLUE LIGHTS
A record 534 blue lights were purchased this year at Wakefield Health Care Center in memory or in honor of people. Money raised by the project of the Wakefield-Hospital and Care Center Auxiliary is used to buy hospital equipment and furnishings.

This past year, a laboratory refrigerator costing $524 and two book cases to start a library for the care center residents, costing $319.50, were purchased with money raised by the blue light project.

The Golden Years by Gil Haase

According to the Census Bureau, citizens over age 85 had the second largest increase in size for any age group in the United States between 1980 and 1985, up 21 percent. Of 255 million Americans, 2.7 million are over 85. In addition, there are 9 million citizens who are 75 to 84 and 17 million Americans between 65 and 74.

A new impressionist artist entered the professional scene last spring with her first showing to an appreciative crowd at a major Greenwich Village gallery. What makes the new artist, Ethel Arons, a bit unusual is that she is 91 years old. Ethel started taking art lessons at a senior center in 1966. She extols the therapeutic value of art for older people. "I know that many senior citizens have hidden artistic talent," she told the press. "More of them should take up art to keep themselves occupied."

Remember When? June 15, 1916 — The Boy Scouts of America started officially when President Woodrow Wilson signed a law incorporating the organization.

Ramona Kolbaum of Omaha was a Dec. 30 and 31 guest in the home of Mrs. Muriel Stapelman.

Friday evening callers in the Joe Pflanz home were Mrs. Milo Hansen of Winner, S.D. and Mrs. Louise Pflanz.

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Fish and Angie of Kearney spent from Dec. 30 to Thursday in the Earl Fish home.

PRIME TIME

The newly organized Prime Time 4-H Club of Dixon went Christmas caroling on Dec. 23 and returned to the Gary Erwin home for homemade pizza, cake and ice cream.

Lisa Erwin entertained the group with her dog, Kathy, who did tricks.

A brief business meeting was conducted and those attending decided on Prime Time as a name for the club. Members will promote and learn about beef projects.

Officers will be elected at the club's January meeting, with the date to be announced.

To create public awareness

Goldenrod establishes area Child Abuse Council

The Nebraska Child Abuse Prevention Fund Board, created by statute in July, has awarded approximately $100,000 to community child abuse prevention councils and programs statewide. These first prevention awards were presented by Governor Kerrey at a ceremony at the State Capitol on Dec. 9. Representatives of the councils and programs were honored for their dedication and interest in Nebraska's children and families.

The Nebraska Child Abuse Prevention Fund has an annual appropriation of $250,000; 75 percent of which may be distributed for prevention programs and activities. The Board also plans to disburse grants for other prevention activities which will be announced the first part of 1987.

The 12 counties of extreme northeast Nebraska have experienced difficult times during the past years. A suffering economy and high unemployment in this rural area has caused stress on the residents. Many times this pressure causes parents to release their anger towards their children.

These parents often don't realize the damage they are doing, or even that they are abusing and/or neglecting their children. Family and friends fail to see the dangerous situation that exists, and most of these people do not understand or identify the warning signs of child abuse and neglect.

In these counties there were 372 substantiated cases of child abuse and neglect during 1985. There were over 489 cases reported, a rate of 76.1% substantiated. These statistics show only the number of cases actually reported and does not indicate the greater number of cases that go unreported.

Goldenrod Hills Community Action Agency along with the Reverend Ted Youngerman and Renee ThyNeil, CPS, is establishing the Northeast Nebraska Child Abuse Council to promote public awareness and prevention of child abuse and neglect in their county area, including Wayne and Dixon counties.

Goldenrod Hills has been actively engaged in the improvement of the quality of life for the residents of its area for over 20 years. It has a successful record of effectively operating social service programs including Women Infant Children (WIC) food program, Headstart, and specialized counseling through the Outreach program.

As the Goldenrod Hills region is a rural area and the majority of its citizens are low-income, the clients of Goldenrod Hills are persons with a high potential to be abusers and abused.

The Council will initially consist of 12 members chosen from the area communities. The members will have shown previous interest in the prevention of child abuse and neglect. They will be respected citizens of their communities and dedicated to the group's objectives. Members will represent the churches, schools, extension services, parent's groups, case workers, Headstart, WIC, and Outreach.

It is hoped that the relationships between these groups will be strengthened through this Council. A public meeting of the Council will be held to explain the organization to the communities and stress the need for volunteers.

The main objective of this group will be to create and promote public awareness and education on the prevention of child abuse and neglect. The group will design and distribute a one page, two-fold brochure to help meet their goal. Regular meetings will be held at which time the material for the brochure will be developed. The information contained within will deal with the reasons why child abuse and neglect occurs, statistics stating the true number of cases reported each year in this area, community resources available to those needing help, including the Hot Line phone number for the abused and the abuser, and other data collected by the Council members determined to be pertinent to the objective of public awareness.

The brochure will let parents know that help is available and if it is okay to reach out for assistance. Information may be suggested or solicited from other community groups not represented on the Council that deal with child abuse and neglect and its prevention on a lesser basis. It is desired that the brochure be presented in a relaxed, simple, and non-threatening manner to those persons who will benefit the most from its information.

The brochure will be distributed by community volunteers to area offices that commonly serve the abusing adult or battered child. It is estimated that 30,000 people can be reached through this distribution process. Doctors' offices, supplemental food program distribution centers, schools, and others will be asked to make brochures available to their customers, as will social/civic groups be asked to distribute them to members. A wide range of people will receive the information, expanding the awareness of the problems and effects of child abuse and neglect.

It is anticipated that thousands of people will identify the warning signs of the start of child abuse and neglect and seek help or to help before a child is injured. Membership in the Council will be opened to the public during the second year, and several community organizations will be asked to have a representative on the Council.

By working with these other groups, including the Boys and Girls Scouts of America, Big Brother/Big Sister Program, YMCA's, extension clubs and agents, 4-H groups, PTA's, school faculties, Headstart, preschools, commodities food programs, and Monroe Mental Health, the Council will be able to reach more people and attain their goal of creating public awareness.

Many of these other organizations will be volunteers to the Council and its programs during the first year. This Council would also like to design a complete presentation on child abuse and neglect prevention social/civic groups in the 12 county area. Eventually, this Council would like to separate into county-oriented Councils, as membership increases and it proves feasible.

Holidays are over, stress still remains

by Jeff Berger
Welcome back! And I do mean that seriously. Everyone, all-together now — one, two, three, BLAH! Yes, it's time for those Christmas-is-over, back-to-work, don't-get-another-vacation-until-Easter blues. Do you ever get that run down feeling after the holidays? Believe it or not, that feeling is stress. I know, you thought stress was that feeling of too much to do or too much going on. It is. Let me explain.

Stress occurs anytime your normal routine is disrupted. Your routine can be disrupted by too many things going on, which is called overstress, or your routine can be disrupted by too little going on, which is understress. Neither of these cases is either bad or good necessarily, but both have the same effect on your body. No matter if it is over or understress, it feels the same to your body. So take it easy. That let-down feeling that you have? It's OK to feel it. It is normal to have periods of let-down after the large anticipated events like Christmas.

What can you do about it? One of the best things you can do is to get back into your routine. Believe it or not, it sounds funny to say, "go back to your routine," but the let-down you feel, which is understress, is most easily combated by an increase in activity which often means work. If that doesn't help, there are other things you can do to combat stress. Let me fill you in on the service provided at the Wayne Stress Prevention Center so that you know what you can do about your extra stress in the new year.

We meet every Thursday night at the Wayne-Carroll High School in Room 202 at 7 p.m. These sessions are not formal, anyone can come in and there is no charge for any of the services provided. The topic for the evening is your topic. We are prepared to discuss any form of stress you might be dealing with. Just come in for a chat, it might do you some good.

We are also available to give group presentations. We are prepared to discuss a variety of stress-related topics to any group that is interested. Call either Doug Porter at 375-2420 or 375-2200, or myself at 375-5289 to arrange a time when we can see your group. Again, there is no charge for our services, so what do you have to lose? Try us, over 1,100 people have already heard us in group discussion. It's possible you don't really want to come in Thursdays nights and don't belong to a group. What then?

You can call us or write us at 510 East 7th, Wayne, NE 68787. We can send you information on our center, we can call you back or if you like, we can print your letter without your name and give you a response in our weekly column. This is just one more way you can get some ideas on how to reduce the stress in your life by using our services.

Starting next week, we will be re-running a series of techniques you can use to reduce your stress. Between now and next week, call us, write us or stop in on Thursday night. The Wayne Stress Prevention Center is funded by the Providence Medical Center Foundation.

HEALTHY DIETS MAKE HEALTHY CHILDREN

"You are what you eat" is an old saying, but it's still true. And for children, you will be what you eat is even truer. Following are a few facts about children and food:

*That cute "baby fat" may be an early warning sign of arteriosclerosis, the clogging of the arteries that some authorities say causes as many as one out of every two deaths in this country. The groundwork for the disease is often laid in childhood, sometimes even in infancy.

*Children, like adults, can be of normal weight or even overweight, and still be malnourished. And malnourished children don't grow properly, are more likely to catch any disease that's going around, and don't learn as well as they could.

*Three-fourths of overweight adolescents become overweight adults. Contrary to folklore, most children don't "outgrow" their baby fat.

The evidence is clear that children's eating habits play a large part in determining how healthy they will be as adults, and also a large role in how well they do at school. (For example, studies show that children who eat a solid breakfast, including protein, are more alert and attentive in class and tend to achieve more in school than those who don't.)

There's no mystery about what constitutes a good diet. Emphasize the "basic four" food groups—meat and other protein, milk and dairy products, fruits and vegetables, whole-grain bread and other whole grains—with a minimum of animal fat (use vegetable oils instead) and refined sugar.

HOW TO deal with a child who already has bad eating habits, and/or is overweight, is a little trickier. A few guidelines for helping overweight children:

*Consult with the child's doctor. If a young child is only moderately overweight, it may be best to try to maintain weight, not reduce it, until the child's height catches up. If the child is severely overweight, tougher measures may be needed.

*Catch a tendency toward overweight as young as possible. As noted, children often don't outgrow their chubbiness—they just become chubby adults. Even babies should be monitored (by a pediatrician) for a tendency toward overweight.

*Be sure your child isn't trying to diet stringently, even if she is overweight (over-dieting is far more prevalent among girls than boys). Growing children need plenty of nourishment, even if they are overweight. A child who needs to lose weight should cut back on sweets and fats, but should never skip on lean protein, fruits, vegetables, and grains.

*Help your child develop a healthy attitude toward food. Teach children to view food as a source of nourishment and pleasure, but not as consolation for disappointment, reward for good behavior, or an outlet for boredom or anxiety. Never offer your child food as a reward, a treat, or a solace. Find other pick-me-ups to use for those purposes.

*Serve meals restaurant-style (that is, plates already filled with reasonable portions) rather than family-style (big bowls and platters of food on the table). And encourage the whole family to eat only at the table—not while watching television, or standing at the counter.

*Encourage an overweight child to take care of his or her appearance. Neat clothing and hair can help increase a child's self-esteem—and lack of self-esteem is one reason many children (and adults) become overweight.

*Ask your child's doctor about vitamin and mineral supplements (but don't give them on your own, and don't give supplements formulated for adults).

*If your child often has a fast-food lunch, keep the fat content of breakfast and dinner to an absolute minimum. Fast foods such as hamburgers, fries, pizzas, and tacos are loaded with animal fats.

*Physical activity is even more important than diet in maintaining a healthy weight. Encourage the whole family to become involved in active pursuits. There's a long list to choose from—consider walking, bicycling, swimming, hiking. Emphasize fun and variety. Children and adults alike need at least three to four 30-minute sessions of fairly vigorous exercise a week—and it's amazing how many don't get it. Competitive sports and school physical education classes teach skills, but usually can't provide enough sustained activity for maximum health benefits.

*A book for overweight children: The You Can Do It! Kids Diet by Dee Matthews (Holt, Rinehart, and Winston, 1985. $14.95).

I WOULD LIKE to take this opportunity to thank everyone for making my Christmas vacation a super one. Thanks to all of my friends and family for inviting my mom and I to the delicious lunches and dinners and for all of the nice Christmas presents we received. Friends and family and love is what Christmas is all about. So I know I'm pretty lucky, because my friends and family are pretty great. Lorraine Danberg. J8

WE WOULD LIKE to thank all the Christmas carolers who came to our house. It certainly helped make our Christmas. We wish them all a happy and prosperous '87. Mr. & Mrs. Art Hagemann. J8

WE WISH to express our deepest gratitude to all our relatives, friends, and neighbors for flowers, food, cards of sympathy and memorials sent at the time of the loss of our husband, father, and grandfather, Ervin Hagemann Sr. A special thank you to Providence Medical staff, Dr. Bob Bonthack, the Wayne Police Dept., Pastor Daniel and Mary Monson, Redeemer Ladies for serving lunch and the Schumacher Funeral Home. It is such a comforter to know so many share our loss. The Family of Ervin Hagemann Sr. J8

WE WISH to thank our friends and relatives for all the expressions of sympathy after the loss of our father and grandfather, Henry Paulsen. Sincere thanks to Sister Gertrude and Pastor Koshel for their prayers, to Dr. Benfack and Gary West and nurses at Providence Medical Center for their care. Thanks, too, to the Sacred Heart parish ladies for serving the funeral dinner. Your kindness will long be remembered. MANY THANKS to all our relatives and friends, to Pastor Vogel and Pennington for all their visits. Thanks to the hospital staff, Dr. Bromfield, Dr. Bob, Gary West, Sister Gertrude for their excellent care while Lou was in the hospital. Thanks for the many get well cards and Christmas cards we received, food brought to our home, for Tillie's transportation to and from the hospital and special thanks to our sister, Dora, for staying with me. We shall never forget your kindness. God bless each and every one of you. Lou & Tillie Baier. J8

I WISH TO THANK all my relatives and friends for the cards, gifts, phone calls, and visits while I was in the hospital and since my return home. Thanks to nurses and doctors at St. Lukes. Shirley Baird. J8

WE WISH to thank all our relatives and friends who helped us celebrate our 50th anniversary at the open house, for all the nice cards and gifts and to our children and grand children who hosted the party. We enjoyed it very much. Mr. & Mrs. Leonard Pritchard. J8

I WOULD LIKE to thank The Wayne Herald and all the participating businesses for the money I won in the "Santa's Helper" Contest. We sure had a good time with the promotion. Thanks again. Joane Thomsen. J8

WORDS ARE definitely not enough to express our thanks for everything everyone has done for us since the fire. Your concern, cards, gifts and prayers were very much appreciated. A special thank you to the Pleasant Hour Club for the bake sale/shower that they held for us. One really finds out how caring people can be in times of trouble. Thanks and God bless you. Shelly and Bruce Malcom. J8

MY 90th BIRTHDAY was a joyous occasion. Indeed, thank you girls on my bowling team as well as all the Go-Go Ladies bowling gang for the surprise party and the gifts. Also, thank you to my children and their families for planning and preparing the open house on Jan. 3. I cherish the attendance of everyone of you who were at the open house as well as the numerous cards, the flowers and the gifts. Both occasions have given me many moments of memories and love I shall always cherish. A sincere thank you to everyone. Laurine Beckman. J8

We finally slowed down to look back and see how wonderful and precious life has been to my husband and me. We have been through a lot with shock — sorrow and pain. Sure made it easier with those who cared in Wayne. Each phone call and card meant so much when you're down and heart so sad. From all the relatives and friends so many we had.

The beautiful flowers that brightened up the hospital room. This showing each one memories and love. "Get Well Soon." To the P.F.M.'s and all the Waldbaum personnel. Thanks for the time you took to wish us well. Then there was the Grandparents who were so wonderful to us. Taking such good care of Jason with no complaints or fuss. Life is made sweet because of the friends and relatives we share. We realized this from all the people who care. It's giving and doing that makes our life depend and in summing it up, it's found in our wonderful relatives and friends.
