From more than one 'Wayne County' Pen pal project gets results

By Diane Jaeger
Winside Correspondent

Students in Nancy Powers' seventh grade English class at Winside are getting a lesson in the proper methods of correspondence — and geography as well.

On Feb. 25, each of her 12 students wrote a letter to a seventh grade class in 12 other Wayne County communities across America. Instructor Powers also wrote to a seventh grade teacher of a 13th state.

The class project developed after the class had discussed writing to pen pals. They took a world atlas and checked each state in America to see if it had a Wayne County. They found 14 states. Including Nebraska, had one Wayne County.

Then, the class looked for a community in that county with a population close to Winside's 450 population.

In each letter, the students wrote a paragraph about Winside, about the school, and a personal paragraph about themselves. Each letter, before the send-off, was shared with the class members.

TO DATE, Powers said she has received a reply from the letter she wrote to the seventh grade teacher, and four of her students have also received replies.

Jason Paulson received the first reply, so he was provided a box of Garfield stationery from Powers. Craig Brugger received 33 letters from Piedmont, Missouri in reply to the one he wrote. Also receiving letters were Jenni Puls and Marc Janssen.

All letters received were shared with the class.

The Winside students who have not received a reply from the first letter they wrote will be writing another seventh grade class in a different Wayne County community, in the same state they originally wrote.

Powers hopes that her students will continue corresponding with their new friends.

Family business for many years Merchant sells station

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing Editor

Bob Merchant has decided it's time for a change.

He recently sold his Merchant Oil Co. service station at the corner of First Street and Pearl Street in Wayne.

The service station has been purchased by Ellingson Motors. Bob's petroleum bulk delivery business has been sold to Wayne Skelgas.

"I've been running the show here for nearly 41 years," Bob said. "There has been a Merchant business on this corner [currently 121 West First Street] for 84 years."

It was in 1919, after nearly 13 years of blacksmithing on the corner of First and Pearl, that Bob's father, E. H. Merchant, decided to change from horse shoeing to providing gasoline for the horseless carriage. In 1920, E. H. Merchant and B.F. Strahan formed a partnership and entered the oil business.

E. H. Merchant later bought Strahan's interest in the business (in 1938) and the business became known as the "E.H. Merchant Oil Co."

BOB SAID HE worked for his father during his high school years at the Merchant service station. During the fall of 1937-38, while he was a college student at Wayne State, he sold tractor tires for his father. "One year I sold 42 sets of tractor tires, the next year 40 sets," he said.

His father's service station, he said, sold the first set of tractor tires in Wayne. A popular selling item was the set of "cut down wheels", manufactured at a time when the industry was making the conversion from steel to rubber wheels.

He also had worked for a couple of years at International Harvester and had entered into military service before returning in the fall of 1945 to work in the service station.

"Over the years we've had many college boys working for us, allowing them to work their way through college. My father also hired many college students," mentioned Bob.

One of the primary reasons why the Merchant business was successful, particularly during the earlier years of its existence, was because of its location. The location of the business was ideal, as it was on the highly traveled "highway" from Wayne to points west, known as the Grainland Road.

BEFORE 1926, the supplier of lubricating oil, kerosene, axle grease and gasoline was Skelly. Then for 47 years the service station's supplier was DX. Currently, the supplier of petroleum products is Kerr McGee.

Bob said the "jobber" business started in 1920, with deliveries of gasoline and kerosene made to the outlying areas. "Later, the tractor fuel became a big item," he said.

"Kerosene was primarily for the lights. The people didn't have REA at that time," he said.

"The first truck could hold about 300 gallons. The fuel was pumped into the truck, and buckets were used to get the fuel off the truck."

Bob currently displays, with modest pride, his plaque which acknowledges him as a member of the "Old Timers Association" — an association which honors those that unloaded their trucks bucket by bucket, five gallons at a time.

Today, the bulk delivery trucks can hold up to 2,000 gallons of petroleum supplies.

Bob can tell you about the manual fuel pumps in the service station bays. Then came the electrical pumps. Now there are computerized pumps, where digits can be read right at the service station cash register.

"I've seen gas priced from 16.9 cents a gallon to over $1.26 a gallon during the energy crunch," he said.

HE RECALLS gas tax at 2 cents a gallon. "Now the gasoline tax is over 25 percent of the purchase price of gasoline," he added.

Bob recalls the troublesome months of the gas shortage era when petroleum had to be allocated. The price per gallon was based on the allocation.

The problem was, he said, the

For radioactive dump site proposals Public hearing dates approaching

The next step in the meeting and hearing schedule regarding the Low Level Radioactive Waste Dump Site selection will concern proposals submitted by interested radioactive waste site developers.

Last week a meeting was conducted in Columbus to receive public input on the Phase II study (the document that tentatively identified the various proposed sites in northeast and northwest Nebraska). Several Wayne County areas were included in these identified sites.

Jim Neal of the Nebraska Department of Environmental Control said on Friday that there were approximately 65 people at the Columbus meeting. Several individuals, he said, had presented information at the hearings that were not documented in the initial study, requesting there be modification in the study before it is completed.

THEY PRESENTED presented documentation of environmental factors such as the presence of underground springs — or other areas that would result in potential problems if a radioactive waste site were located near their property.

Neal said Thursday that six developers have submitted letters of intent to send a proposal to the Department of Environmental Control for the type of radioactive waste site facility that would be constructed.

However as of Thursday, no actual proposals have been submitted.

The proposals will be available for inspection, along with the Phase II Study, at the Natural Resource Districts in Norfolk, O'Neill and Hartington.

It is anticipated that the hearings on the proposals will be sometime in early April.

"There is talk about choosing the developer for the project by April or June of this year," Neal said.

BY THE END of 1987, the developer will utilize all existing studies and information available to determine a suitable site for the facility.

The host site must be selected by Jan. 1, 1988 and a site plan must be approved.

By Jan. 1, 1993, the disposal facility must be operational at the site that is selected.

Candida performance slated for Monday

Guthrie Theater's version of George Bernard Shaw's masterful "Candida" will be performed today (March 23) in Ramsey Theatre at Wayne State College.

The Black & Gold Series performance begins at 8 p.m.

George Bernard Shaw's "Candida" is a variation of the timeless themes of a lover's triangle — a woman must choose between a socialist minister and a young, strong-willed man.

The touring production of Guthrie's "Candida" is in the midst of a four-month, 29-state tour that stretches from New Hampshire to San Diego. Since 1971, the Guthrie Theater has toured with 23 productions to more than 1,100 communities.

For more information on remaining tickets, contact the Black & Gold Series ticket window at the Hahn Building business office, or call 375-2200 extension 517.

hacken away

I did something Friday that I hadn't done for many years. I sat in on a spelling bee.

The contestants in the spelling bee contest, which took place in the North Dining Room at Wayne State College, were seventh and eighth graders from Wayne County schools. The event is sponsored by the Omaha World-Herald, The Omaha World-Herald Midwest Spelling Bee winner goes on to state competition in Omaha on April 4, and their advance to the nationals if they win.

Easy words, since they are only seventh and eighth grade spellers, you say? Don't count on it.

I forgot all about the excitement and then the tension fell as the pronouncer echoed the words to be spelled. Or that broken spirit when a wrong letter (was that "i" before "e" except after "c") forces the contestant to be removed from the field.

The students from the county schools were first given a written test, each receiving seven sets of words — 10 words in each set — for a total of 70 words.

"Make sure you dot your 'i's and cross your 's,'" said one of the organizers of the contest.

Out of the 70 words, Angela Robinson of School District No. 57 came away with 67 right, making her the number one seed. The 10 top scorers went into the second phase of the contest, which called for each contestant to stand before an audience, speak into a microphone and correctly spell out the word.

Three people went out the first round on words such as 'gratic', 'hieroglyphic' and 'lenient'.

In the next round, two contestants fell out of line with the words 'variegate' and 'suede'. Five left.

Everyone spelled their word right the next round. But on the following round, three more spellers had to be corrected on the words 'valet', 'mohair' and 'transient'.

Robinson spelled the word 'refere' correctly. Reikofski followed with the correct spelling of 'siege'.

Robinson spelled 'promissory', Reikofski got 'gruesome' right.

'Platoon' was Robinson's next word she spelled correctly.

Reikofski, however, when asked to spell 'alumni', inadvertently with a slip of the tongue led off with an 'l'. Once a letter is said, then the letter cannot be erased. He knew right away his mistake and sat down in mild disgust.

Robinson spelled 'alumni' correctly and then won the event by correctly spelling 'sequel'.

There were individuals in the audience who also were busy spelling out the words in their own minds or on a piece of paper.

Dads, moms and grandmothers came to see how their child would do against the other spellers. Younger children tried their luck at the words.

I had thought maybe sitting in on a spelling bee would be wasted time. But it wasn't. For one thing, I've learned that my spelling certainly needs some polishing.

Some editors, such as myself, are notorious for making up new words, or having a dictionary close at hand near the scene of the typewriter for quick references.

Now, some printing machines have built-in sensing devices that are programmed to make a noise when a word is misspelled.

That certainly goes against the theory of my third grade instructor who drilled into us the importance of reading books and writing letters to increase our vocabulary, spelling and writing skills.

"Read books that will keep you spellbound," she said.

Certainly, a printer's machine, don't you think.

Sound economic policy?

Gephardt-Harkin bill

by Richard L. Leshar, President
Chamber of Commerce of the United States

"The farmer," President John F. Kennedy said, "is the only man in our economy who buys everything he sells at wholesale, and pays the freight both ways."

If life was tough for farmers in Kennedy's day, it is surely much worse now. Tens of thousands have gone bankrupt in recent years and many more are on the verge. Their anguish and despair are real and command our attention.

But as I have often noted, there has never been a social or economic problem in our country so severe or tragic that liberals in Congress couldn't make it worse. And I can think of no better example of that phenomenon than the so-called "Save the Family Farm Act" introduced by Rep. Richard Gephardt (D-Mo.) and Sen. Tom Harkin (D-Ia).

Prudence defers me from speculating about the motives of the authors of this legislation, but it is clear they were not driven by an urge to foster sound economic policy.

IT IS NO great secret why farmers are in trouble. There are simply too many farmers producing too much food for which there is no market either in this country or abroad. Last year, our government spent about $26 billion buying up surplus farm produce and still thousands of farmers went under. It is clear to everyone, including farmers, that our government's hand-timed efforts to relieve the plight is serving only to deepen and prolong the agony while simultaneously bankrupting the nation's treasury.

As you might guess, the "solution" proposed by Gephardt and Harkin is to vastly expand the government's role in agriculture. They envision a "supply management" system. Farmers would vote whether to join the program. If a majority in any particular commodity voted yes, every farmer producing that commodity would have to join. Then the government would step in, proclaim a national marketing quota and divvy up acreage among farmers, telling each one how much he could produce.

THE GOAL, of course, is to drive up farm incomes by raising food prices. They don't call it a national food tax, but that is what it would be. According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, by 1991 this program would raise the price of dairy products by 30 percent and red meat by 25 percent. From 1987 through 1991, consumers would be socked with a $50 billion increase in food prices.

To rub salt in the wound, the USDA says also that this program would instantly double existing crop support levels, which are already in the stratosphere, and hike them 10 percent more by 1990.

Government management of agriculture is not a new concept. The Soviet Union has been doing it for years, which is why the Soviets experience regular shortages of food. Both shortages and surpluses present problems, but given a choice I will take the latter any day.

There is only one rational way out of our predicament. We must ease government out of the subsidy business and assist our farmers through the transition. One thing we clearly do not need is a national food tax!

viewpoint

Road projects

Several road projects in this area are destined for delay if President Reagan does not sign the Surface Transportation Act.

Among the 29 projects in Nebraska that this Act would finance is a $1.5 million project north and south of Allen and a $5.4 million project at Norfolk.

U.S. Congressman Doug Bereuter said that if this bill is not signed into law by April 1, road projects all over the country may be delayed for another year.

With the highway construction season almost here, many states are running out of Federal Highway funds and are delaying or cancelling safety and construction improvement projects, Bereuter mentioned.

Since 1983, Congress has been unable to pass a five-year authorization bill. Nearly all of the major highway programs financed by gasoline tax revenues had expired last fall, according to Bereuter.

Meanwhile, the gasoline tax revenues have been pouring into the highway trust fund, only to remain unused and not spent.

Once the bill is signed, the money can be used and construction can continue.

The Surface Transportation Act provides a five-year authorization of over $86 billion for highways and mass transit programs in fiscal years of 1987-1992. The measure would allow for the funding of major highway programs such as the interstate program and also for rehabilitation and replacement of unsafe bridges throughout the country.

What could be blamed for the delay in the signing is Reagan's objection to the number of pork barrel projects attached to the Act. Pork barrel is slang for "a government appropriation that supplies funds for local improvements, requested by the legislator so that he or she can be in good good graces with the constituents."

Delaying the road construction projects will only make the construction projects, in the future, more costly to perform.

ask a lawyer
a public service of the nebraska state bar association

Q. My parents have a CD with their name and my name on it, in our local bank. I have an outstanding loan with the same bank for approximately the same amount of money. If I should default on this loan, would the bank have any claim on this CD? If I keep up the interest payments, would they have any claim?

A. The answer to your question depends upon whose funds were used to purchase the CD, and what agreement was signed with the bank when the CD was purchased.

A joint account belongs, during the lifetime of all joint owners, to the parties in proportion to the net contribution each makes to the amount on deposit. If one party owes money to the financial institution in which the account is held, the financial institution can set off this debt against the account in which the party has a present interest. This right of set off could arise, as in your example, if one party defaulted on a bank loan.

However, unless you have an agreement with the bank stating otherwise, the amount of the account that the bank can set off is only that proportion that the debtor contributed. If there is no proof of each party's contribution, it is assumed that all parties share equally in the account.

In your situation, if you default on your loan, the set off could not exceed one-third of the amount of the CD unless you have an agreement with the bank providing otherwise, or unless the bank could establish that you contributed more than one-third. If you could prove that you didn't contribute anything, and had no other agreement with the bank, there would be no right of set off.

You state that your parents have a CD with your name on it. If they provided all of the funds for the purchase of the CD, the bank could not set off the assets of this account to set off your loan unless the terms of the CD allow the bank to do so.

Whether you can avoid defaulting on your loan simply by "keeping up the interest payments" depends upon the terms of the loan agreement you signed with the bank. You must repay your loan on the terms you agreed to. Just keeping up the interest payment would not necessarily mean that you are not in default.

Q. Is it illegal to falsely accuse a person of stealing something?

A. Generally, a statement that falsely accuses another of committing a crime may create a right to legal action for defamation (slander or libel) if the statement is made to someone other than the one falsely accused. It is generally not a criminal offense to make such a statement, however, and only gives rise to a civil claim for damages.

There is a wide range of opinion among the courts as to what kinds of false accusations are actionable. Some courts say that a cause of action arises when a person is falsely accused of a crime that is indictable; others have held that the crime wrongly charged must carry the consequences of an "infamous punishment" or a punishment that would bring disgrace to or injure the social standing of the person wrongly accused.

The content of the statement itself, and the manner in which the statement was made, is also relevant. The false charge does not have to be made in as clear and explicit a manner as an indictment; it is enough that the statement would be understood by those who hear or read it as accusing the person of a crime.

If you have a legal question, write "Ask a Lawyer," P.O. Box 2529, Lincoln 68502. This column is intended to provide general legal information, not specific legal advice. "Ask a Lawyer" is a public service of the Nebraska State Bar Association.

With Heart Association Beef Board forms partnership

Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation
by Cheryl Stubbendieck
Vice president/information
Much popular opinion holds that "red meat" and "heart health" are worlds apart and never can the twain meet. Happily, such popular opinion is wrong for most folks.

The concern with red meat is that it and other foods of animal origin contain cholesterol, a fatty substance which can adhere to the lining of arteries. High blood cholesterol has been implicated in risk of heart disease.

Popular wisdom has held that to reduce your risk of heart disease, reduce your cholesterol level by reducing your consumption of red meat.

There are people who do need to greatly reduce their cholesterol level to reduce their risk of heart disease. But a lot more people do not, and for these folks — most of us — it's okay to enjoy red meat.

And, surprisingly, we can enjoy more red meat than we may have thought — five to seven ounces of lean red meat a day, properly prepared and as part of a varied diet.

TWO UNLIKELY partners are working together now to spread this message, the Nebraska Beef Board and the Nebraska Affiliate of the American Heart Association. The two organizations signed an agreement in early March to cooperate in telling consumers how red meat can be a part of a heart-healthy diet.

The two groups agree that it's important for individuals to know what their cholesterol level is. If you have a problem, there are dietary and medical means to reduce your risk of heart attack. If you don't have a problem, you can drop cholesterol from your list of things to worry about and stop feeling guilty about eating red meat.

I recently had my cholesterol level checked. I was curious to know what it was because I eat and enjoy a lot of beef and pork. It meant getting my finger pricked and waiting three minutes for results, but I was pleased to learn that my cholesterol level was well within the acceptable range for a woman of my age and characteristics. The test can be performed at most doctor's offices for around $15.

The agreement between the beef board and the heart association emphasizes lean red meat properly prepared. That means well-trimmed beef that's baked, broiled, roasted or sautéed, rather than fried. The heart association also recommends avoiding casserole recipes, and cooling pan juices to skim off excess fat before serving. And when using ground beef, the association recommends buying extra lean, with a fat content of not more than 15 percent.

The agreement between the beef board and the heart association will help both organizations reach their respective goals. While the support of the heart association will help the beef board in promoting lean meat as a healthy, nutritious food, it shouldn't be forgotten that the heart association has a particular message for consumers' as well: get your cholesterol level checked.

Pledges to support Haven House

Cooperative Campus Ministry plans day of fasting, prayer

The Cooperative Campus Ministry of Wayne, is sponsoring a day of prayer and fasting on Thursday, March 26.

A simple meal of soup and bread will be served at St. Anselm's Episcopal Church, 1006 Main St., between 6 and 7 p.m. to break the fast.

Father James Barnett, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church in Norfolk and vicar of St. Anselm's, will accept and bless the free-will offering of the participants in the fast.

Participants are asked to donate the money they would have spent on food that day.

Cedar, Dakota, Dixon, Thurston and Wayne Counties.

Michelle Meyer, director of Haven House, will be present at the meal and will speak briefly.

Diana Doncaster, assistant professor of speech at Wayne State College and member of St. Anselm's Church, said persons who cannot afford to give money, or who wish to do more than merely give money, are asked to commit themselves to prayer for the work of Haven House and/or to give the gift of their time.

Meyer will have further information about the kind of help which is needed.

annual event, with donations each year going to various groups which work locally with justice and peace issues.

The fast for justice and peace was originally inspired by Oxfam, an international organization which works to fight world hunger.

The intent of Oxfam is not only to raise money, but to raise awareness of the needs of the hungry majority in the world.

Doncaster added that each hunger pang during the day of fasting on March 26 can serve as a reminder to pray for the work of Haven House.

FASTING HAS been a traditional, if somewhat unpopular form of intercessory or penitential prayer since Old Testament times, pointed out Doncaster, adding that a fast can take a variety of forms, depending on the person who fasts.

A fast, said Doncaster, can range from a total fast to detesting a favorite food (meat, sweets, butter, etc.), eating half of a normal day's food, skipping one or more meals, cutting out snacks, or drinking only water and eating no solids.

"Each person must make his or her own decision about the kind of fast which is appropriate to them," said Doncaster.

"The value of the fast is in the willing sacrifice, the prayer which it engenders, and the uniting of oneself with the suffering of others."

THE OFFERING will be given to Haven House of Wayne, a place of refuge for battered women serving

DONCASTER SAID the day of prayer and fasting will become an

news and notes

Your child's creativity potential

There are glorious moments when a new twist in our thinking suddenly lets us see things in a fresh and unique way.

You consider yourself a creator or inventor? Creativity is not limited only to artists. Everyone has the potential.

Creativity is the ability to think in imaginative and unique ways, look beyond ready-made solutions, experiment and gain insight, and express ideas in new and unusual ways.

Whether we work with words, wood, song and dance, or steel and concrete, we can all be creative. We were born that way.

THE CHILD'S WORLD is fresh and new. Faces, hands and bottles miraculously appear above the baby's crib, then go away. While being carried around the house, the infant discovers chairs, pictures and window panes. What are these things? Their names and purposes are a mystery.

It is easy to understand why children like to touch every object they see. Children become increasingly creative in the ways they explore the world around them.

From the start, they stare, taste and listen with all their might, but they cannot get to the things they see and hear.

Gradually, they become more coordinated. They squeeze, shake and bang things. They try to make things happen. As they experiment, they try out every action they have learned on a new object.

YOUNG CHILDREN find problems to solve. We forget that simple things, such as getting to a rattle that is out of reach, are tough problems for babies. Pre-schoolers tackle harder tasks, such as how to fit clothes on a doll, paint stripes or make a road.

Often, children solve problems in unusual ways because they have few preconceived ideas about how things are supposed to be done. Thus, they will try anything. A three-year-old may shake, bang and turn a jar upside down rather than use a spoon to get some cocoa.

GRADUALLY, CHILDREN learn to pause and plan ahead before plunging into action. They start to consider alternatives. Then make replicas of things they are familiar with and pretend to be people they know. They will use any means—words, paint, blocks or clay—to express things that are important to them.

In the process of recreating their experiences and ideas, children can discover something new, unique and special.

At some point, most children lose faith in their unique view of the world. They stop exploring and experimenting. They tear up their pictures. They do not dare paint trees purple or sing their own songs.

Somehow, they learn that there is only one "right" answer, one way to do things.

SOMETIMES, PARENTS and teachers are responsible, often unintentionally, for stifling the children's creativity.

To help a child keep his or her creative spirit, help them to be observant and curious, encourage them to explore and experiment, provide opportunities to solve problems and plan ahead, and encourage them to recreate their experiences and ideas.

Who knows? Helping your children think in imaginative and unique ways may awaken you to your own creativity.

Allen returns two qualifiers

By Gregg Dahlheim
Sports Editor

A pair of state qualifiers return for another season of track at Allen High School.

State champion Jyoti Kwankin is back for another go-round in the 300-meter intermediate hurdles and 110-meter high hurdles. Kwankin won the 300-meter race at the state meet and was leading in the high hurdles until late in the race.

Allen Coach Dave Uldrich said he expects the senior to be the favorite in both events again this year.

Ten boys make up the squad. Four seniors give Allen the experience needed while four freshmen could provide some surprises.

Uldrich said he thinks the team's strength will be in the hurdles, the 400-meter dash and the 1,600 and 3,200-meter runs. The coach said with the right attitude and hard work senior Jeff Gotch could succeed in the 400. Senior Max Oswald will provide the stability in the distance races.

Uldrich said he feels with a little luck his team could finish in the top three in Class D at the state meet in May.

"Our goal is to get better each week," he said. "By district week if we can qualify either Gotch or Oswald besides Kwankin we could finish in the top three."

The coach said he thinks 25 points could win state. If Kwankin runs to his potential he could score 20 points at the state meet.

Uldrich said Beemer, Coleridge and Ponca will be the teams to watch in the Lewis and Clark Conference.

Both the boys and the girls will open the season April 4 at the Coleridge Invitational at Wayne State College. The campus track will be no strange place for the Allen runners. Allen will run five of its eight meets at Wayne State.

State qualifier Debi Uehling is among the top girls for Coach Gary Troth. Fourteen coeds make up the Lady Eagles squad. Seven of the 14 are freshmen, three seniors are scattered throughout the roster.

Uehling is back to try to better her fifth-place finish in the state meet in the 3,200-meter run. She will also compete in the 1,600-meter run. Troth said the senior is running well in the early part of the season.

Troth said the Lady Eagles should also be strong in the sprints and several relays. The Allen coach is expecting good things from sophomores Amy Noe and Missy Martinson in the sprints. Sophomore Candace Jones returns after missing last season to run in the 200 and 400-meter dashes.

Senior Kristi Chase will add depth in the high jump and middle distance races. Senior teammate Sherri Moore will handle the hurdling chores for Allen.

The Lady Eagles will pin their hopes on a pair of freshmen in the field events: Leslie Isom and Tabitha Moore could score in several meets for Allen.

Troth said if the Lady Eagles can replace the loss of Denise and Diane Magnuson they will be comparable to last year's squad.

Corbit unanimous conference pick

Kecia Corbit was one of four unanimous selections to the Northern Activities Conference All-Conference Team for the 1986-87 season.

Corbit, a senior, was the only Lady Blue Devil named to the first team. Teammates Shelly Pick and Dana Nelson were chosen to the honorable mention team.

In all, eight girls were named to the NAC first team. All were senior performers. There was a three-way tie for the sixth and final spot between Shauna Sanders and Amy Brady of South Sioux City and Colette Miller of Hartington Cedar Catholic. Rather than selecting one, the conference coaches decided to name all three.

Besides Corbit, Diane Becker and Linda Larsen of Cedar Catholic and Sandra Beaver of South Sioux City were the other unanimous picks. South Sioux's Linda Larsen was the remaining first team member.

In all, South Sioux had four first-team selections. The Lady Cardinals were followed by Cedar Catholic with three picks and Wayne with one selection. O'Neill failed to have an athlete named to the first squad.

Corbit completed her career at Wayne by setting several records. Among the records she broke this year were points in a single season, 323; career points, 730; most field goals in a single game, 13; most offensive rebounds in a single season, 100; most offensive rebounds in a game, 13; and career rebounds, 617. The senior averaged 16 points and 10 rebounds a contest.

Besides Pick and Nelson, O'Neill also had two honorable mention selections in Candy Larson and Lisa Poese. Rounding out the second team was Brenda Becker of Cedar Catholic.

Pick earned consideration by averaging 10 points and 11 boards a game. Nelson broke the record for most assists in a season, 88; and most assists in a single game with eight dishes to her credit.

Lady Blue Devils

The Wayne Lady Blue Devils shut the doors on one of their most productive basketball seasons in the girls' history. Several team and individual records fell.

The Lady Blue Devils finished the year 15-5. The 15 wins set a record for the most wins in a season.

Seniors Kecia Corbit and Shelly Pick and sophomore Dana Nelson also set new marks.

In the past season Corbit set new records in most career points, 730; points in a single season, 323; most field goals in a game, 13; career rebounds, 617; offensive rebounds in a season, 100; and most offensive rebounds in a game, 13. Pick set a new mark in most defensive rebounds in a game with 11 boards. Nelson broke the record for most assists in a season, 88; and assists in a single game with eight. As a team, Wayne shot 42 percent from the field, the best since 1978.

Coach Marlene Uhing will lose the services of three seniors, Corbit, Pick and Jodi Diltman, from this year's team.

Laurel track teams build on youth

By Gregg Dahlheim
Sports Editor

Youth is what the Laurel boys' and girls' track teams will have to depend on for the upcoming season.

Girls' Coach Pam Thies, in her first year as coach, doesn't have a senior on her squad. Seven of the 14 girls running this spring are freshmen. It isn't much better for John Jonas, coach of the boys' squad. His 28-member squad is dominated by freshmen and juniors. Neither the Bears or the Lady Bears return any state qualifiers from last year's team.

How the girls will fare in the upcoming season remains a question mark for Thies. She said she hasn't gotten an accurate assessment of her team's talent because wet weather has kept the girls inside. The Lady Bears are continuing with conditioning drills until they can get outside and run for time.

From what Thies has seen so far she said the Lady Bears' strength will come from the relay teams, sprints and the long jump.

The coach has three steady long jumpers in juniors Dawn Addison and Michelle Lindsay and sophomore Becky Stanley. Addison and Lindsay are also expected to do well in the sprints.

Freshman Amy Adkins will also be a strong sprinter and relay member. Fellow freshman Sherri McCorkindale will solidify the 400-meter dash and relay teams for Thies.

The girls and boys will open their season April 4 at the Plainview Invitational. They will host the Laurel-Concord Invitational April 14 at Wayne State College.

Jonas is beginning his 16th campaign as the Bears' coach. Ed Brogie will assist both Jonas and Thies. Nine lettermen return to action from last year.

From Jonas' early observations the coach said the distance relays, pole vault and the 400-meter dash will be where the Bears score most of their points this season.

Jonas is looking for solid performances from juniors Brad Prescott in the 400-meter dash, Steve Schmitt in the pole vault, Randy Sherry in several relays, Scott Marguard and Kyle Nixon in the middle distances.

Jonas said he expects the competition to be brutal this season. Beemer, Homer and Wakefield will pose problems in the Lewis and Clark Conference and Crofton, Bloomfield, Creighton and Plainview will battle Laurel at district.

"Our team goal this year is to finish in the upper half of every meet we run in," Jonas said.

Spring happenings reported

Students at Wayne State College of Nebraska, enjoyed a week away from the classrooms in early March when the college observed its annual spring break.

Many students traditionally migrate toward the beaches and the ski slopes during this time of the year. Wayne State students Jim McCarthy, Spalding, Jim Ulrich, Platt, Smith, and Todd Posselt, Norfolk, chose the beaches and traveled to sunny California. While there, the three toured Universal Studios, visited Disneyland, got into the audience of The Price Is Right game show (none was called to "come on down," however) and watched the Los Angeles Lakers beat the Seattle SuperSonics.

More students went to Florida and other points south. Most Wayne Staters, however, don't take trips to far-away venues, preferring to save money and spend their breaks closer to home. McCarthy's younger brother Mike decided to earn money rather than spend it. He spent the break in Spalding and worked at a local pharmacy.

Clark Cull, Santonn, found that he didn't have to go to California to find sunny weather during spring break, deciding that Nebraska could be a vacation spot in early March as well. Cull spent the time relaxing at home, golfing and enjoying the 70-degree weather.

TWO OTHER students, Gary Hilbers, Uehling, and Corey Wedergren, Hooper, also chose to earn money rather than spend it. Hilbers managed the Hillside Dairy plant in Uehling where he helped process milk. Because of Hilbers' availability, the regular plant manager took advantage of the situation and took to the ski slopes of Colorado.

Wedergren worked on the family farm, cutting down trees and taking down fences during the break.

Todd Hilder, Central City, was another student who chose to stay home and work. Hilder, who worked at his father's implement dealership, said, "It's not much fun to be put to work on your week off, but at least this way you get paid for your work unlike doing school work for no pay. It's good for a change of pace, also."

While some students worked, many others said they were looking for work. Now is the time, they said, to find jobs for the summer.

Between 60-75 student spent the day of their break at the State Capitol in Lincoln. They were among a group of Wayne State people trying to convince state lawmakers to increase funding while the legislators were looking at reductions. These students also had a special meeting with Gov. Orr.

Wayne State's student teachers may get to enjoy a spring break—if the schools they're at have their own breaks. Student teachers follow the schedules of the schools they are teaching at. Terry Graver, Arlington, experienced this. Graver recently began student teaching at Howells Public High School, and since the high school students didn't get a week off, neither did Graver.

The Board of Trustees of the Nebraska State Colleges have awarded Board of Trustee Scholarships to 140 Nebraska high school seniors.

The awards, which provide for full tuition for up to four years at Wayne State College, Chadron State College, Peru State College and Kearney State College, recognize the scholarship and potential for future contributions of outstanding high school seniors throughout Nebraska.

And Bob isn't counting out another gas shortage in the future. "The market has gone up the last few weeks. It can go up just as fast as it can come down," he said.

"The business has been good to us. It's had its ups and downs. Some of our farm customers are third generations. Their grandfathers were customers of my father," he mentioned.

business in Wakefield called the Korner Mart. "We'll be keeping that business open in Wakefield," Bob said.

Grant Ellingson of Ellingson Motors said on Friday that the service station will operate as it has in the past, continuing to offer quality service and products to its customers.

Nine-year old Wakefield youth killed while riding bicycle

Adam Keim, 9-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Keim of Wakefield, was killed when the bicycle he was riding was struck by a car about 4:30 p.m. Friday in Wakefield.

It was reported that he was taken by ambulance to Wakefield Health Care Center after the accident, and died at the hospital before arrangements could be completed to transfer him to Sioux City by Life Flight helicopter.

Adam was riding his bicycle when he reversed direction and turned into the path of an oncoming vehicle driven by Margaret Fischer of Wakefield.

No charges were expected to be filed as a result of the accident.

Rotary Club meets

Rotarians are to meet one more time under the sponsorship of the Norfolk Rotary Club, Wednesday, March 25, 7:00 a.m., at the Sportsman's Cafe.

"After that, they will still be with us," according to Gil Haase, "but we will be in what is called a provisional status until such time as our charter is received."

"Under Rotary guidelines, the Norfolk Club must continue to look after us," said Haase. "They are even required to submit quarterly reports to Rotary International, Evanston, Illinois, during the first year regarding our progress."

District 565 Past District Governor Roland Tilson and Club President, Wes Sohl of Norfolk spoke last Wednesday on various aspects of Rotary and Gil Haase gave a resume of the various offices, committees and programs that are available through Rotary membership.

Haase once again pointed out that a man joins Rotary and holds the membership classification pertaining to his business and/or position within the organization. At the present time only "one" person can hold that classification as a member of Rotary.

"We sure could use a physician, dentist, optometrist, lawyer, accountant, grocer, tax service, barber, service station, etc.," said Haase. "The list is endless and we encourage all prospects to contact me at the Care Centre, 375-1922."

Other past Rotarians also accepting inquiries are Dr. Tom Coffey of Wayne State College and Jim Remick of Timple, Inc.
