Priorities listed

Special committee makes budget recommendations

Wayne State College's Special Committee, appointed by President Dr. Thomas Coffey, provided, on April 10, its budget reduction recommendations which were distributed to the faculty senate, division heads, student senate and administration members.

The budget recommendations were to be kept internally, according to the president's office. However, the Norfolk Daily News had received a copy of the recommendations and published an article on the proposals Tuesday, and other Associated Press articles concerning the reductions appeared in Wednesday's Omaha World-Herald and Sioux City Journal.

The Wayne Herald was able to get a copy of the report on Wednesday morning.

This report contains a list of 10 budget reduction recommendations, by priority, with supporting rationale. Also included in the report are comments from the special committee on the list of constructs presented by Dr. Coffey at the Feb. 26 forum of faculty and students.

THE REPORT gained unanimous support of the specially appointed committee.

Among the special budget committee recommendations are:

First priority — Continuation of the 1986-87 interim LB-1 reductions into the 1987-1988 reductions, taking into consideration the cuts of the operating budget, loss of half-time research and data management officer (salary and benefits) and faculty vacancy savings — reduction of $56,658.

Second priority — To suspend all International Education programs: reduction of $30,435.

Third priority — To eliminate the office of assistant to the president: reduction of $39,457.

Fourth priority — Reduce general fund support for the Office of Institutional Advancement: reduction of $20,000.

Fifth priority — Eliminate the office of Dean of Administrative Services: reduction $59,189.

Sixth priority — Reduce Counselor/Testing Coordinator (contract to 9 month appointment): reduction $5,865.

Seventh priority — Suspend President's Special Request Fund: reduction $45,000.

Eighth priority — Suspend Public Affairs Institute: reduction of $1,650.

Ninth priority — Eliminate 3 full-time equivalency of Student Center Director's Position: reduction of $14,500.

Tenth priority — To increase facility rental rates (organizations not directly affiliated with the institution)

From Wayne city limits

Pit bull dogs banned

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing Editor

Wayne's city council unanimously decided Tuesday night to pass an ordinance banning pit bulldogs from within the city limits.

City Administrator Phil Kloster said, prior to Tuesday night's council meeting, that no actual complaints of pit bull dog attacks have been cited in Wayne. The ordinance, he said, was more for a prevention.

Action on drafting the ordinance was instigated following recent publication of articles concerning deaths caused by pit bull dog attacks. Kloster was not certain whether other communities in Nebraska have any type of ban on pit bull dogs.

He said he has concerns about pit bull dogs, speaking as a parent with small children. The ordinance would serve as a precaution and would keep pit bull dog attacks from occurring within the community.

The Wayne Herald reviewed the dog registrations which are filed from May 1, 1986 to April 30, 1987 at the Wayne Police Department. Only one pit bull dog was found registered among the 340 dogs that were filed by the police department.

The one pit bull dog was registered to Brian Loberg of Wayne.

Loberg, when contacted on Wednesday morning, said his pit bull dog is currently staying on a farm

From Milton G. Waldbaum Company

Easter rabbit gets a boost

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing Editor

If the Easter Rabbit ever gets discouraged and decides that distributing Easter eggs are "not what they are cracked up to be" — don't be discouraged. There are plenty of the colored eggs being processed at the Milton G. Waldbaum Company in Wakefield.

What if "boils down to" is that the Wakefield egg processing firm is steadily increasing its Easter egg processing and marketing to all parts of the United States.

According to Butch Utemark, sales coordinator of the food service division at the Milton G. Waldbaum Company, about 300,000 eggs (that figures to about 25,000 dozen) have been marketed this year throughout this area and across America, including the states of Texas, California, Chicago and even to Alaska.

"In most cases, the school districts obtain the eggs and hand them out for the kids at Easter," Utemark said.

COMMUNITY organizations from this area often receive their colored eggs from the Milton G. Waldbaum Company. Utemark said that about 75 percent of the colored eggs that Waldbaum markets go to school districts, organizations or other sponsors of Easter egg hunts and other fun-related activity.

The colored eggs from the Milton G. Waldbaum Company have even been distributed, in previous years, at the annual White House Easter Egg Roll in Washington, D.C.

The remaining 25 percent of the colored eggs are distributed to retail markets, Utemark mentioned.

Most of the colored eggs are packed in special open ended containers that are also filled with Easter egg grass and then wrapped with a clear plastic. Special containers, carrying two colored eggs or regular hard-boiled eggs, are also being promoted.

"We started promoting the colored Easter eggs [this year] around the end of February and the first week in March," Utemark said.

MOST OF THE processing of the colored eggs was completed during the first and second weeks of April.

This year, the pastel-colored eggs are yellow, blue, orange and green, according to Utemark.

The process, invented in Europe, involves taking graded fresh eggs, hard boiling them in specially designed cookers, and allowing the eggs to pass through several tubes where they are colored, sealed and then packaged.

Utemark said that nearly 100 total gallons of "coloring" have been used this year for egg coloring.

Even if the colored egg business is steadily increase, Utemark says the distribution serves even a greater purpose — It creates a public relation tool for the Milton G. Waldbaum Company.

"It opens the door for us as a company," said Utemark.

but has risen.

Buckley provides gift

Wayne State College, through the Wayne State Foundation, will receive one third of a remainder interest of an estate valued at nearly $1 million, Dr. Thomas A. Coffey, president of Wayne State, announced on Tuesday.

Barbara Buckley, the trustor of the estate and a 1920 graduate of Wayne State, died on March 10. She was a long-time resident of California and upon her death was a resident of Laguna Hills.

"I am pleased Mrs. Buckley placed a high priority on collegiate education and felt so strongly and positively about the education she received at Wayne State," Dr. Coffey said.

Barbara (Nelswanger) Buckley began school at Wayne State in the fall of 1918 and graduated in May, 1920 with a two-year teaching certificate and diploma. She is originally from Dakota City, Nebraska.

"I would anticipate," said Shane Giese, executive director of the Wayne State Foundation, "the Foundation Board will want to preserve the principal of this gift so that the proceeds will provide a lasting effect on the college."

Harvey makes the rounds promoting upcoming play

Harvey just couldn't resist going to the theatre, being the theatrical type he is.

He showed up at Wayne High School last Friday and Saturday to greet folks coming to the musical "Oklahoma."

There at the door was Harvey, accompanied by Gil Haase, who invited the playgoers to attend Community Theatre performances of "Harvey" May 1,2,3.

And that's the last anybody will see of Harvey, a six-foot rabbit that nobody in the cast or audience can see—nobody except Elwood P. Dowd.

Haase plays the part of lovable Elwood on this staging of the fine old comedy "Harvey."

He has done the play before in his long stage career. He thinks "Harvey" is good for at least two things.

First, you'll add to your vocabulary an obscure word derived from old Irish with which to astound friends and win Scrabble games. But you will need a full unabridged dictionary to prove that "pooka" is indeed a word.

Second, "Harvey" is 2½ hours of uninterrupted joy. The script has few belly laughs, but Elwood's gentle eccentricity and the effort of family and friends to understand him are a delight.

The set involves two scenes, one in the Dowd family mansion (this will be on the stage of Ley Theatre) and the second at Chumley's sanitarium (in front of the Ley stage).

The cast will interchange smoothly as the production unfolds for Wayne audiences at 8 p.m. on May 1 and 2, at 2 p.m. May 3.

As for the meaning of "pooka," the character Wilson, along with the encyclopedia, explains it this way: "From old Celtic mythology. A fairy spirit in animal form. Always very large. A wise but mischievous creature. The pooka appears here and there, now and then, to this one and that one at his own caprice."

Harvey is being directed by Maurice Anderson. Tickets will go on sale soon at Sav-Mor Pharmacy.

Highway crews prepare for changes

The energy crisis of the 1970's is only a memory. And the 55 mph speed limit inspired will soon be history. When Congress passed the federal highway bill over President Ronald Reagan's veto in early April, the state Legislature was prepared. The federal law allows states to raise the interstate speed limit from 55 to 65 mph. Waiting in the Unicameral wings was LB 430, a bill that will increase the speed limit on the interstate 80 across Nebraska.

One day after Congress gave its green light to faster speeds, the Legislature's Transportation Committee moved LB 430 out of committee to the full Legislature and Speaker William Barret agreed to accelerate the speed limit bill by giving it special priority.

"If we accelerate and don't get picked up in the process, it could become law within ten days," said Barret last week.

The State Department of Roads is prepared for the change. It will take road crews about two days to overlay a big "65" over the "55" on the speed limit signs once the bill becomes law, according to Kenny Gotual, traffic engineer.

The bill is sponsored by Sens. Tim Hall and Ernie Chambers, two Omaha senators who drive the Interstate daily from their homes to the Lincoln Capitol. And neither senator expects much controversy.

THE ONLY THING which has stopped the state Legislature from raising the speed limit in past years was the threatened loss of federal highway funds for rebelling against the federal 55 mph mandate.

The new speed limit applies to rural areas of the nation's Interstate. That includes all but 35 miles of Nebraska's 447 miles of interstate. All interstate highways in Douglas and Dakota Counties and six miles of I-80 and I-180 in Lincoln will remain at a 55 mph speed limit.

The bill would eliminate the current grace period — lighter punishment for driving 10 mph or less above the interstate speed limit. Currently that violation carries a $10 fine, no court costs and no points.

Under LB 430 interstate speeders will face the same fines and court costs as they would get if they violated state speed laws on other roads. And they will be assessed 1 point for a speeding violation of 10 mph or less, 2 points for 10 to 15 mph and 3 points above 15 mph. Nebraska drivers lose their license if they accumulate 12 points in a two-year period. The governor has threatened a veto if the current interstate grace period is not eliminated.

Though passage of LB 430 is certain, not everyone is happy with higher speed limits.

Highway deaths and energy conservation are the man arguments of opponents. Lincoln Sen. Donald Wesley cast a lonely and symbolic

"No" vote against the bill in committee and on first-round approval by the full Legislature.

In addition to the serious traditional arguments, Wesley contends there is an economic development issue lurking in the speed limit bill. Wesley wants travelers through Nebraska to slow down and enjoy, even spend some money in the state.

AND SEN. GEORGE Coordsen of Hebron wants to make certain the minimum interstate speed of 40 mph is not increased as an "economic development" incentive. Because of rough economic times, many rural families have not been able to afford new cars and can barely keep up with the minimum speed, said Coordsen, a master of the tongue-in-cheek debate.

Coordsen said he remembers the story about the day Grandma and Grandpa encountered the first speed limit sign in Gilead. Grandma and Grandpa were coming into town with the horse and wagon when they saw the 10 mph sign. Grandpa turned to Grandma, handed her the reins and said, "Here you drive, I'll take the whip, and we'll try and make it."

Attack made to balance the budget

U.S. Senator Jim Exon (D-Neb.) introduced legislation to attack the $2 trillion national debt and force the federal government on a glidepath toward a balanced budget by reforming the budget process.

The Gramm-Rudman law is not meeting its attractive, but unrealistic goal," Exon said in a major address to the Senate. Exon is a senior member of the Senate Budget committee.

Unlike the Gramm-Rudman law, the Exon proposal would focus on controlling and then reducing the accumulated national debt. The Gramm-Rudman law focuses on a projected deficit target one year at a time and measures success by economic forecast, not deficit reduction. The Gramm-Rudman process ignores the total accumulated national debt, according to Exon.

The Exon legislation would essentially cap the federal government's statutory debt limit at the deficit targets set in the budget and include debt ceiling legislation in the budget cycle. It would require that if the federal government borrows more funds than expected in the annual budget, the Congress would need a three-fifths vote to increase the debt ceiling. Other measures to deal with a budget shortfall, such as reducing spending and/or adjusting revenues would only require a simple majority.

"No longer would increasing the national debt be the easiest way for the government to satisfy its spending appetite," Exon said. "This procedure would also make it much more difficult for the Congress or the President to use smoke and mirrors instead of real deficit reduction action because progress would be measured against the national debt in addition to projected annual deficit targets," he added.

"Accounting gimmicks, such as shifting spending from one fiscal year to the next to meet an arbitrarily set annual budget deficit number, as occurs under the Gramm-Rudman law, would be discouraged," Exon said.

"The amateurish and temporary shifting of spending from one fiscal year into another, may appear to reduce the deficit in a given year, but it has no beneficial effect on total government spending or the accumulated national debt," Exon said.

"I am proposing a very tough, but workable solution to the faulty Gramm-Rudman enforcement mechanism," Exon said. The Nebraska said the Gramm-Rudman law is flawed because it underestimated the deficit by approximately 150 billion when enacted.

"This legislation would require continuous Congressional attention to the actual levels of spending rather than annual projected levels. The threat of a temporary or full government closure and the resulting financial chaos would pressure the President and Congress to be honest with economic and deficit projections; keep spending within the level planned by the congressional budget and to fine tune the nation's economic plan throughout the year," Exon said.

"The budget reform act would force Congress and the President to make the cuts or raise the revenue or a combination of both, rather than the original Gramm-Rudman process of delegating the process to some faceless bureaucrat," Exon said.

'Time had run out' Veto override explained

Those of us who voted to override the President's veto of the highway bill did so because of our concern that an entire construction season would be lost in northern states if the bill failed. That fact would have translated into more delays on major road construction projects and a potential loss of thousands of jobs.

Time had run out. Congress came down to the wire last October on basically the same legislation, but a compromise between the two houses could not be found. Given the last date that House and Senate conferees finally were able to report back a compromise bill this year, there was no practical choice but to expedite its passage. We could not delay beyond April 1 without construction delays.

The President's major objection to the highway bill focused on the 152 demonstration projects that added approximately 15 billion to the bill. His concerns were valid; they really aren't legitimate demonstration projects. Such pork-barrel projects should never make their way into massive spending bills. But, that happens in the legislative process when a handful of committee and party leaders sit down and add their pet projects to the final bill. The President's stripped down version of the legislation would have resulted in some additional Federal dollars for Nebraska. Each state's share of Federal highway trust funds was reduced by the money for demonstration projects in the bill. With the exception of about ten states, most would have been better off under the President's version.

But, the President's bill or any "pork-less" bill was not going to pass, and certainly not in time to affect this year's construction season.

NEBRASKA NEEDED Its highway funds now. This meant that we had to accept the compromise package presented to us on the House Floor. The costs of not passing the bill were far greater than funds foregone by even a theoretically possible pork-less bill.

The only way to avoid the power plays and pork barrel projects that characterized the highway bill is to impose control on the congressional spending process by giving the President a line item veto. The Governor of Nebraska has such authority, so Nebraskans are not unfamiliar with this tool to control spending. So do the governors in forty-three states. I have long proposed that Congress grant the President a statutory line item veto for a demonstration period like ten years. If it works, as I believe it would, then we can make it permanent by making a necessary change to our Constitution.

Vote no

If we had to pay the sales tax, the so-called "painless" tax, that we do pay in a year's time, in one lump sum, I think we'd have a lot less sales tax advocates.

I have said before and will say again, the farther we deviate from a simple net income tax without loopholes, the more we contribute to a "have" and "have-not" society. Property taxes certainly deviate but not as much as a sales tax.

If I understand the proposed sales tax ordinance correctly, it does not state whether the one cent property tax relief, that we and the surrounding trade territory are asked to pay one and one-half cents to get, will all be used to relieve existing property taxes, or all to be used to pay for new taxes, or somewhere between the two extremes. If will not now be able to be used for existing property taxes only, on account of the city council-initiated sales tax special election. I inquired at the county treasurer's office and the county clerk's office for an estimate of the cost of such a special election, neither could give me a figure. This is definitely "new" taxes.

If you are an average citizen of Wayne, paying the bills, I believe you should vote "no" to a city sales tax. Regardless of how you vote, let's all vote.

Recommendations in

The President's Special Committee budget reduction report which we had obtained and the reduction proposals presented by WSC President Dr. Coffey in February carry a wide array of differences.

But that is the purpose of the special committee — to study the alternatives every way possible and make their recommendations. It appears that few of the recommendations agree with what was presented as constructs at the February forum of faculty and students.

Certainly, both what the committee reported for recommendations and what Dr. Coffey's presentation of proposed constructs, need to be analyzed even more.

There are some harsh cuts involved in both proposals. What now takes place, according to previous conversations and interviews with Dr. Coffey, will be that the recommendations made to him have now gone on to the faculty senate, to the student senate and to the division heads for further comments and analysis.

Perhaps this is why Dr. Coffey had limited the release of the special committee report to those internally — because more changes could be made on the report.

It was not intended for release to the press. However, when other publications came out with the news story about the recommended budget cuts, our newspaper could not ignore the issue and wait further.

Only after that total process is completed, Coffey had said, and when everyone who chooses has participated in determining what the state college budget reduction should be, will the president then make recommendations to the Board of Trustees of the Nebraska State Colleges.

By no means is this the end of deciding what budget reductions are to be made.

Interstates can safely handle

Speed limit bill advances

In light of the override of President Reagan's veto of an $80 billion highway bill, states are allowed to increase their state highway speed limits and many are proceeding to do so. Nebraska is no exception; the Legislature is responding to the elimination of the national 55 mile per hour highway speed limit through the provisions found in LB 430.

As amended, LB 430 would raise the limit on rural sections of the interstate to 65 mph. For sections of the interstate passing through urban areas, the interstate speed would remain at 55 mph. This means that 55 mph would be retained on all interstate highways in Douglas and Dakota Counties as well as portions of the interstate system in Lancaster County.

After a lengthy floor debate, an amendment offered by Senator Ernie Chambers of Omaha was attached to LB 430 which would provide a 5 mph cushion on all parts of the interstate. This amendment would eliminate the cushion in the present law that allows people exceeding the interstate speed limit by up to 10 mph to be fined $10 but not to have points assessed against their driving record. LB 430 in its original form did not allow for any cushion.

GOVERNOR ORR HAS said she would be inclined to veto the bill if the 10 mph cushion were retained. Whether she will veto the bill with this amendment attached is still an open question. I supported the advancement of LB 430 in its amended form. I believed that the interstate system can safely handle this increase in driving speed, primarily since the majority of accidents that occur on the interstate highways are documented as not being speed related.

Last Friday ended the 60th day of this Legislative session. With only 30 days remaining, the Legislature is faced with the difficult task of arriving at a budget along with the myriad of other issues still confronting the body. In all likelihood, consideration of a number of important issues will be delayed until next year to make way for these top priority bills.

Taxes, of course, will be at the forefront of these last few weeks. Many of the spending bills are in conflict with one another and with the difficult economic conditions of the state. Attempting to address these matters during the remainder of the session will test the leadership and endurance of the entire Legislature. I hope to be able to eventually report to you that a successful program which will benefit the citizens and the state of Nebraska has been adopted.

Anniversary 60 for Pearsons

Back on April 14, 1927, Clarence and Helen Pearson said their wedding vows at the Swedish Mission parsonage in Wakefield.

On April 12, 1987, their five children and about 220 other kinfolk and friends gathered at Concordia Lutheran Church in Concord to honor Clarence and Helen Pearson on their 60th anniversary.

Well, no matter that it was two days short of 60 years. The day was Sunday, a fine day for folks to come from afar, including one of their sons, Dean, who lives in Phoenix, Ariz., and their other son, Jim, who lives closer, Lincoln.

IN THOSE SIX decades, Clarence and Helen have lived in the Wakefield-Allen-Concord area.

And all three daughters live in Concord: Margie (Mrs. Clarence) Rastede, Alyce (Mrs. Verdel) Erwin, and Suzie (Mrs. Marlen) Johnson.

Furthermore, Mrs. Pearson's sister, Doris Johnson, who was her attendant in the wedding, attended the 60th anniversary. She lives in Martinsburg.

After Loree Rastede finished recording the guest list, she found people had come from Allen, Wakefield, Laurel, Emerson, Dixon, Omaha, Lincoln, Wayne, Orchard, Wisner, Harlington, Pilger, South Sioux City, Sioux City, Phoenix, Ariz., and Casper, Wyo.—and Concord, of course.

THE ANNIVERSARY program included son Jim's reading a 60-year-old newspaper clipping recounting the wedding; the three daughters' vocal trio, "In the Garden"; piano solos by Tara and Trevor Pearson; Layne Johnson's vocal solo, "The Lord's Prayer"; and Pastor Duane Marburger's tribute to the honored couple.

Others who helped in the celebration: Doris Nelson, Laurel, baked the anniversary cake; Maureen Pearson, Lincoln, and Neva Pearson of Phoenix cut and served the cake; Suzie Johnson served the coffee; Lesa Vander Veen, Wayne, and Cyndi Pearson, Phoenix, served the punch.

Waitresses were the grandchildren. Assisting in the kitchen were Betty Anderson, Arlyce Carlson, Naomi Peterson, Lyla Swanson, and Evelina Johnson.

Friends of reading mark 20th year, honor Schulz

More than 100 teachers and school administrators with a special common interest met in Wayne Thursday, April 9, to honor that interest: they all are friends of reading.

Specifically, they met to observe the 20th anniversary of the Northeast Nebraska Council, International Reading Association.

Nine founding members were among those attending a banquet at the Wayne State Student Center. Joining the nine in a pre-banquet reunion were two first-year members, Mrs. Walter Peterson of Wayne and Harry Mills, retired administrator of ESU 1, Wakefield.

Also attending were 14 former presidents of the council.

Miss Diane Borgum, librarian and teacher from Sioux Falls, was the speaker. Her topic, "Tell Me a Story," amplified the banquet theme of "Soaring With Storytelling," which was carried out in the table decorations and name tags.

The council honored Dr. Mary Arlene Schulz, Wayne State education professor, with two citations: its Friend of Reading and Council Literacy Awards.

Mrs. Arcille McClaren Heflin, former supervising teacher in the Wayne Prep campus school, traveled the farthest to attend, from Burlington Junction, Mo. She was accompanied by her daughter, Patricia Babb of Chicago.

The evening closed with a drawing for door prizes, provided by publishing companies, Wayne-Carroll Schools, with the most teachers and administrators attending, received a special prize, a Wayne High School students from the cast of "Oklahoma" sang music from the show, accompanied by their choral director, Kathryn Ley. Students participating were Ted Lohrberg, Deana Nichols, Melissa Johnson, Brett Faelberth, and Jay Bruna.

Eleanor Manning discussed the club's condition. The question was raised whether the club should remain affiliated. A motion was made and seconded that the club vote on this question. The result: 22 voted no and three voted yes. So the club will not be affiliated with the General Federation of Women's Clubs after this club year.

The club received a letter of resignation from Eida Jones as housekeeper in charge of renting the club's rooms to civic organizations for social activities. Her resignation is effective June 1, and the club is seeking a replacement.

Eleanor Manning, president, received a letter that dues would increase to $6 for the coming club year. Creighton is hosting an inter-county convention Saturday, May 2. Registrations for this event should be made soon.

There also is a convention at Kearney April 27-28.

Thank-yous were read from the Wayne Food Pantry, Wayne State Foundation, and Arthritis Foundation.

Grandstand Gab

Two Wayne-Carroll High School standout athletes will be leaving the area to compete at the collegiate level.

Shelly Pick and Kecia Corbit will travel to Omaha next fall to begin their collegiate careers, each in a different sport.

Corbit will enroll at the College of Saint Mary to play basketball while classmate Pick will head to the University of Nebraska-Omaha to further her career in volleyball.

Both St. Mary Coach Dee Romine and UNO Coach Janice Kruger are quite pleased to have the two Lady Blue Devil athletes.

"We're real pleased Kecia made the choice to come to St. Mary," Romine said. "She's the type of player who can step right in as a freshman and be an instant contributor."

Romine said she will look to Corbit, who owns virtually all the girls' scoring records at Wayne high, to be one of the top two or three scorers and rebounders on the squad.

Kecia Corbit

Romine said one of the Flames top priorities in this year's recruiting class was getting quality post players. The coach said they have signed four girls so far and are still in the running for two or three others. The Flames finished last season with a 9-15 mark.

"She's (Corbit) a quality kid," Romine said. "We're looking forward to having her."

Kruger and the Lady Mavs are also pleased to be getting Pick.

"We're excited to have Shelly. She will really help our program," Kruger said.

That is quite a statement considering that UNO has been to the Final Four in NCAA Division II volleyball three of the past four years. The Lady Mavs finished third in the country last year. The women finished the year with a 45-4 mark.

Shelly Pick

Pick may have to be a little patient before she sees notable playing time. Kruger said she has a large group of senior returning from last year. The coach said she has discussed the option of redshirting a year with Pick. Kruger said she feels that will be the best for the Wayne halfie.

"We feel she could be a very good volleyball player if given that extra year," Kruger said. "She is a good aggressive athlete with good size. A year off could also help build her strength."

Pick will be among five newcomers reporting to camp in the fall. Kruger said this year's class will be very important to the continued success of the Lady Mav because of the large number of women they will lose next year. She said she would compare this year's recruits to the class she signed four years ago.

Although the girls did it on the court while at Wayne, special attention should also go to Marlene Uhing.

Uhing is the girls' coach in both volleyball and basketball. The Lady Blue Devils turned in successful seasons in each sport.

The Wayne volleyball team finished the year 16-5 after bowing to Columbus Scotics in the district semifinals. The Lady Blue Devil capers completed the campaign with a 15-5 mark.

I'm sure Wayne will miss these two fine athletes but we wish them the best as they enter the next step of competition.

John Pehrson, Kyle Nixon, Freeman and Marquardt placed second in the 3,200-meter relay in a time of 9:12.6. Prescott finished second in the open 400 as he broke the tape in 55.8. VanCleve finished fourth in the race in 58.6. The last second-place finish came from Jonas in the pole vault. He cleared 10 feet. Schmitt finished third also with a jump of 10 feet while Cornett placed fourth with a vault of 9-6.

Curt Curry, Mark Bathke, Sherry and Martinson placed third in the 800-meter relay with a 1:43.9. The 800-meter medley also finished third. Halsch, Jones, Bathke and Prescott recorded a time of 1:55. Troy Twohig, Halsch and Schmitt all earned third in the high jump by clearing 5-4.

Laurel picked up fourth and fifth-place points in the shot put from Sherry and Rick Kruid respectively. Kruid also placed fourth in the discus. Marquardt completed the scoring with a sixth-place finish in the triple jump.

Coleridge edged Hartington Public in the girls' division to take first place. Hartington Cedar Catholic placed third while Osmond earned fourth and Laurel finished fifth.

The Lady Bears best finishes of the day were a pair of seconds in the 1,600-meter medley and the 800-meter medley. Dawn Addison, Amy Adkins, Heather Thomas and Becky Stanley ran a 5:14.4 in the 1,600 while Michelle Lindsay, Sherri McCorkindale Adkins and Addison were timed at 2:04.3 in the 800.

The 1,600-meter relay team of Adkins, McCorkindale, Addison and Stanley finished third in a time of 4:35.2. Jessie Monson, Jessie Jacobsen, Emily McBride and Thomas placed third in the 3,200-meter relay with a time of 11:32.9. Thomas also finished third in the high jump by clearing 4-4. Monson was fourth with a best of 4-2.

The 400-meter relay team of Adkins, McCorkindale, McBride and Lindsay placed fifth as did the 800-meter relay team of Julie Dickey, Lindsay, Monson and McBride. Jacobsen placed fifth in the 400 while Stanley and Christi Taylor earned fifth-place in the long jump and shot put respectively.

Seventh-inning homer aids Cats

An 8-7 win over Kearney State Saturday allowed the Wayne State baseball team to qualify for the Central States Intercollegiate Conference playoffs.

Thanks to a seventh-inning home run by Monty Shultz the Wildcats will advance from Nebraska to play in the three team, double-elimination tournament held April 24-25. The scores representative either Fort Hays, Emporia State or Washburn, will host the tournament. Missouri Southern or Missouri Western will be the Missouri representative.

Wayne State earned the berth by downing the Antelopes in two of the teams' three meetings. The fourth game of the series was cancelled Saturday because of rain.

The Cats never gave up as they battled back from an early deficit. Coach Len Klaver said he thought his team could win. He said the Cats were hitting the ball well despite the miserable weather conditions.

Wayne State went on top in the first inning by a 2-0 score. Dale Clayton opened the game with a single. He stole second and came around to score on a hit by third baseman Craig Koehler, the game's second hitter. Koehler scored when first baseman Mike Hoffer stroked a single. In all, the Cats tallied four hits in the first.

Neither team scored in the second inning and Wayne State failed in the third after having Gale Bretschneider get as far as second base.

In the home-half of the third inning the Lopers took the lead with three runs. That spelled the end for Wayne State pitcher Jose Ruiz. The San Diego pitcher allowed three runs on two hits.

"Jose didn't have his best stuff," Klaver said. "He basically took himself out because he thought someone else could do better."

Wayne State's stopper, Randy Raabe came on in relief. The senior leads the team in saves with three. But in this game he wouldn't get the save — he got the win, his second of the year against one loss. In his fourth-inning stint Raabe allowed four runs on five hits. Only one of the runs were earned.

The Cats came back with three runs of their own in the fifth inning to regain the lead at 5-3. Hoffer started the frame with a double. He and Bretschneider came around to score on a two-run double by Desry Jaeger. Jaeger came home on the first of Shultz's three RBI's when he lofted a sacrifice fly to right field.

After Kearney State made the score 5-4 in the bottom of the fifth Wayne struck back for a run in the top of the sixth inning.

Salerno started the sixth inning with a hit. He advanced to second on a past ball and scored on a fielder's choice off the bat of Bretschneider.

The Lopers came right back and tied the score at 6-6 heading into the final inning.

Dale Irving began the seventh with his third hit of the game. With Irving on first Klaver decided to play for one run. Shultz's job was to sacrifice Irving to second. The catcher fouled off the next two pitches and Klaver let him hit away with two strikes.

Luckily for the Wildcats he did. The Kearney native then popped the next pitch out of the park against a strong wind to give the visitors an 8-6 lead.

It was Shultz's first game back after sitting out three games because of pulled thigh muscle. The sophomore was also credited with three putouts in the field.

Raabe held on to gain the win when the Lopers managed only one run in the bottom of the seventh.

For the game the Cats scratched out 16 hits. Clayton led the attack with four singles. Irving had three hits and Hoffer and Randy Yarke each collected a pair of hits.

Wayne State, 20-3, will travel to Seward today (Thursday) for a pair of seven-inning games against Concordia College.

Hansen and Erxleben won in a time of 56.4. Hansen, Koenig, Ellis and Erxleben won the 4x400-meter relay as they crossed the finish line in 4:40.

In the 200-meter dash Hansen finished second in 29.3 while Erxleben was third with a time of 29.4. Julie Wessel took second in the 300-meter intermediate hurdles as she was clocked at 58 seconds.

In the shot put Koenig took third with a put of 30-11 1/2. Wessel received third in the 100-meter hurdles as she hurdled her way to a 19.6. Ellis was third in the 400-meter dash in a time of 69 seconds. The freshman also placed fourth in the high jump. Nelson closed out the scoring for the locals as she posted a sixth-place finish in the 100-meter dash.

Council tables agreement with state

Highway work regulations in Wayne draw concern

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing Editor

A decision on approval of agreement with the city of Wayne and the Nebraska Department of Roads was tabled Tuesday night after some of the council members learned of the regulations tied into the agreement. The agreement involves a highway project involving the resurfacing of Highway 15 south within the Wayne city limits. A second project involves resurfacing from the city limits south to the edge of the Wayne County line. City Administrator Phil Kloster said regulations of the department of transportation would require that parking be eliminated from the west side of Main Street from Fourth Street to Seventh Street, and would also call for the elimination of parking on the east side of Main from Fifth Street to Seventh Street.

Regulations also require signs and marquees be removed from the highway right-of-way.

Kloster said the highway department "is anxious to bid the highway resurfacing projects in June."

Among those signs included in the highway right-of-way are the McNatt sign, Conoco sign, Apco sign and the Gay Theatre marquee. "The theatre would be about 18" too far into the highway right-of-way," mentioned Kloster.

COUNCILMAN Larry Johnson's motion to delay a decision on the agreement with the department of roads was approved unanimously by the other council members. Johnson said he desired more information on the department of roads regulations and when the laws "came into being."

"I'm not going to give up parking that easy without checking things all the way," said council member Carolyn Filter.

Councilman Darrel Heier said the agreement "was pushed on us [the city council] awfully fast."

The city council also tabled a decision on the approval of the minority business enterprise program with the Department of Roads.

In other action, the city council approved a bid from Ellingson Motors of Wayne for a two wheel drive pickup (without trade) for the electric department at $9,675; and a four wheel drive for the water department at $12,475.

Recommendations to buy the vehicles locally, rather than from an auto dealer in Lincoln, were made by Mayor Marsh. Ellingson's bid was approximately $495 higher on the two wheel drive pickup and $490 higher on the four wheel drive pickup, but were still under the estimates, according to a summary sheet of the pickup bids.

"It's good to do business locally. But why advertise for bids if we're not going to stick with the low bids," mentioned Councilman Decker.

Carolyn Filter and Darrel Heier voted against motion to accept the bid of Ellingson.

THE CITY COUNCIL also:

*Approved the final plat of the Gerhold Second Subdivision.

*Approved the plans and specifications for a sewer relief line in the city limits of Wayne.

The new sewer line would replace the existing 8" line in the alley between Walnut and Window, from Seventh Street to Fifth Street, would require manhole covers and a 12" main would be constructed beginning at the alley near Overin Field, along the ballfield to the city's existing lift station.

*And approved the plans and specifications, presented by a representative of the Howard R. Green Company, for a water transmission line between the water tower and Sunnyview Subdivision.

The line would be 2,200 feet of 8" water main from Hillside Drive, generally north to near the water tower. The estimated cost is $47,000.

The representative said the new water tower along East 14th Street is expected to be delivered to Wayne around May 18. Construction could begin then, with the completion date scheduled for September 26.

Motel announced

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing Editor

Casey & Company, a public relations firm in Omaha, has confirmed that plans are moving forward for a motel/conference center to be built in Wayne.

According to Sandie Casey, president of the firm, final data is now being assembled for a market analysis to determine the number of units to be built.

"We currently anticipate building a facility of approximately 36 to 50 units with accommodations for conferences of up to 200 to 250 people," Casey said.

At least three sites are currently being considered. Further information regarding specific locations cannot be released, Casey mentioned. "Current plans call for construction to begin sometime this summer," she said.

Details were not released as to who is investing in the motel project.

Pit Bull

near Carroll. "I had no place to keep it in town. Now I can't move it back to town, I guess," Loberg said.

"She's not mean. She is a nice dog and really nice to people," he added.

LOBERG SAID so much depends on how people raise the animal. "Some can teach them [the pit bull] to be mean. I think it depends on how the owners deal with them or how they train them," he mentioned.

"We won't be the first city to pass this type of ordinance," said Mayor Wayne Marsh during Tuesday's council meeting.

Councilman Freeman Decker, who has a fondness for dogs, conveyed Loberg's same feelings that sometimes the animals are taught to be mean.

The Wayne Herald contacted the University of Nebraska Veterinary Division to gain some background on pit bull dogs, and was referred to Dr. Marvin Samuelson of Kansas State University, a professor of veterinary medicine who has specialized for the past 30 years in general medicine for small animals.

Samuelson said the pit bull dog and its owners are "getting a bum rap."

HE SAID THE pit bull dog is recognized by the American Kennel Club as the Staffordshire Terrier, and the American Pit Bull Terrier by the United Kennel Club.

During the Queen Victoria days when there was a whole lot of bloody sports, Samuelson said, there was pit bull fighting. That was later outlawed, and is currently against the law in all 50 U.S. states, he said.

"These are dogs that have ancestors bred for fighting in the pits," he said.

"Today they have been adapted so that most are very satisfactory family pets."

The pit bull dogs, he said, are heavily muscled, powerful dogs with the genetic potential to inflict serious bites. However, chances of getting bit by other dogs is equally as great as with a pit bull dog.

"The difference is in the intensity of the bite," Samuelson said.

HE SAID THE pit bull dogs are very popular pets across America and are exhibited at top dog shows.

However, he said the pit bull dogs (not to be confused with the English bulldog or the Bull Terrier) make probably the worst watchdogs.

"They don't bark and the growl is much less than a normal watchdog. They don't waste any energy for that type of activity," Samuelson said.

Samuelson said that when he is contacted by community representatives, he tries to talk them out of banning the pit bull dog. Instead, he asks that strong support be shown for an ordinance that would ban all vicious dogs from the community, not just the pit bull dog.

Reductions

should bear a greater share of the cost of using college facilities).

THE TOTAL cumulative amount of budget reduction recommended by the President's Special Committee totaled $277,754.

The committee's proposal for the reduction in the special projects fund would also bring a one-year suspension to the college's Black and Gold Series. Committee members feel that the suspension of the Black and Gold Series would be "highly visible and would impress upon the community the seriousness of the present cuts."

Special Committee members also commented on Dr. Coffey's February presentation on proposed budget cuts (reductions).

In Coffey's presentation, athletics would be reduced $25,000 and the special projects request would be reduced $20,000. The committee commented that the possible elimination of one men's and one women's sport would "have adverse effects on enrollment and the quality of student life."

The previous construct list also proposed suspension of the May session and July session. The committee commented that the elimination of 22 course in the May session to save only $9,173 would be fiscally unsound. The July session has 45 courses scheduled, and to eliminate the June or July sessions would seriously damage the nine graduate degree programs, the special committee report mentioned.

A CREATION of office of enrollment management was also proposed in February, and eliminate the position of director of admissions and director of Extended Campus.

However, the special committee found it "difficult to see how one person could simultaneously superintend the activities of three existing directorship offices while carrying out the personal responsibilities and activities of the Director of Extended Campus."

A proposal in the list of constructs to consolidate eight academic divisions into four schools also drew comments from the committee. Problems were experienced in the early 1970's with the four school structure, the committee reported.

The committee also commented on continuing to maintain the Dean of Student Life position "to integrate all services for students and to enhance the quality of life on the campus."

THEY ALSO recommended that general fund support for the organized activities be maintained—such as the Wayne Stater, theatre, music trips and forensics, since they are all related to the academic program. "Support for all these activities must continue in order to maintain the current level of quality of student life," the committee report said.

The committee also addressed concerns in the areas proposed in the constructs of reallocation of vacant faculty positions, suspensions of academic programs, and the annual fee for community library patrons.

Members of the special committee also recommended the retention of all three commencements. It previously was proposed to eliminate one of three commencements at a savings of $1,000.

Members of the special committee included six faculty members, two students and one staff member. The committee examined budgetary data and solicited opinions, proposals, additional constructs or modifications of the proposed constructs from individuals, groups and organizations within the Wayne State College Campus.

Advance placement class begins in fall

High school students with high talent and interest for mathematics will get extra opportunity at Wayne-Carroll High School next year.

They will be able to take a course known as Advanced Placement with an eventual goal of earning college credits while still in high school. Of course, they would get high school credits for the course too.

The School Board last month approved the idea of Advanced Placement, and Tuesday night at its April meeting, the board learned that the idea probably will take root in fall 1987. It will, that is, if enough qualified students enroll.

The board's agenda materials included a memo from Principal Don Zeiss announcing that, "Beginning in August, 1977, we will be teaching a fifth-year math course which will allow students, if they so choose, to be administered an AP Calculus exam scheduled in May, 1988."

Supt. Francis Haun told the board that students had been asked to indicate interest in such a mathematics course, which he said would include some calculus. (Calculus is an advanced level of math requiring considerable previous study.)

Haun said eight students have expressed interest so far—two short of the school's minimum of 10 for a class. However, he said, more might decide to try the class.

Zeiss told the Herald in a phone conversation Wednesday that Wayne-Carroll is a member of the Advanced Placement Program of College Board. The AP organization provides special examinations for various subjects, and schools administer the exams to students who choose to take them.

Zeiss said he understands that the exams are at least partly subjective and require students to analyze, not just remember information.

Students will pay something like $55 to $60 to take an exam. Passing entitles a student to credit at colleges that participate in advanced placement. Currently, there is a limit of eight credits.

Zeiss said he is investigating what colleges participate in AP. He knows that Wayne State and the University of Nebraska do.

A student does not have to take the test after going through an AP course.

The Zeiss memo to board members noted that "We wish to add a course in Advanced Placement History for the 1988-89 school year and in English Literature/Composition during the 1989-90 school year."

He said, "All AP courses will have developed a course syllabus and curriculum guide for use by parents and students prior to their inclusion in the curriculum."

In other action Tuesday, the board handled routine business:

*Approved the list of 63 seniors who are recommended candidates for graduation in May (subject to their completing requirements).

*Accepted the resignation of Douglas Donnelson, mathematics teacher.

—Heard reports from Supt. Haun that, after a long delay in delivery, two new school bus bodies are expected to arrive with a few days; and that a proposed energy development loan offered by the state required so much paper work that the school district can more easily handle the project locally, at a cost of about $11,000.

—Inspected a newly installed auto hoist in the school's mechanics shop. The board bought the hoist from Roy Coryell for $2,000 and paid $740.02 for installation. The hoist came from Coryell's former auto dealership.

Ethanol fuel supply prospects become big factor

by Cheryl Stubbendieck
The prospect that Nebraskans will soon be driving 65 on rural stretches of the Interstate prompts a look backward to 1973, when the Arab oil embargo caused the lowering of the speed limit from 75 to 55. For those of us who remember driving 75 legally, it's a little amazing to consider that there's a generation of young teenagers who've never seen anything but "double nickel" signs on I-80.

The oil embargo was disruptive and not only because it lengthened travel time. There were long lines at the gas station, no sales on Sundays in some places, and the constant urge to top off your tank, just in case you couldn't tomorrow. Though this was a great inconvenience for the average consumer, it was "a real threat to fuel-dependent industries, such as trucking. And in the agriculture sector, farmers weren't sure they'd be able to plant their crops."

That was 14 years ago, but we could see those days again. Right now, oil prices are rising again, oil tankers in the Midwest are endangered, and the U.S. is more dependent on foreign oil now than in the past. By the early part of the next decade, more than half of the oil used in the U.S. will be imported. Once again, we are very vulnerable to an oil cut-off.

WHAT'S DIFFERENT this time around? Well, for one thing, making alcohol fuel from farm products was not a big deal in 1973. It's probably accurate to say it's still not a very big deal, but the potential is definitely there. We know a lot more now about ethanol production than in the mid-'70s.

Nowadays alcohol-blended fuels account for nearly 8 percent of all gas sold in the U.S. Ethanol production has leaped from 25 million gallons in 1980 to 625 million in '85. For farmers, this has meant a rise in corn prices estimated to be 15 cents a bushel or $1 billion more in farm income in 1986.

But it's not necessarily smooth driving for the ethanol industry. Currently ethanol production is subsidized through a six cents a gallon exemption from the federal excise tax, but a recent USDA study holds that the practice is economically inefficient. If the goal is to boost farm income, USDA says it would be more economical to burn straight gasoline in our cars and pay a direct subsidy to corn growers.

AT THE SAME time, some oil companies are boasting with misplaced pride that there's "no alcohol in our gas." And last year, the U.S. was flooded with ethanol from Brazil which sneaked through a Customs Service loophole. And also, despite lower tailpipe emissions, the Environmental Protection Agency has gotten itself concerned that ethanol causes air pollution by increasing the evaporative rate of gasoline.

On the plus side, a bushel of corn now yields 2.63 gallons of ethanol but that figure could be upped through advances in biotechnology. If scientists can increase the starch content of corn and its subsequent ethanol yield by 25 percent — a realistic idea — we'd be looking at 3.28 gallons per bushel and a more economical product.

And despite EPA's new "concerns" ethanol burns more cleanly than straight gasoline, thus reducing air pollution. Cities such as Denver who are in danger of losing federal dollars because they don't meet EPA standards for vehicle emissions are looking at such measures as mandating 10 percent ethanol blends. Other cities such as

Los Angeles, Phoenix, Cincinnati and Cleveland are watching Denver closely. Taken together, they represent a tremendous market for ethanol fuels.

So while the ethanol industry faces any number of challenges right now, it would be short-sighted to write it off. Although the economics of production may not be right right now, American Farm Bureau President Dean Kelckner says it will when he points out, "Economics can change. The day may well come when ethanol production from grain is the one good answer to our energy needs."

We need to continue research to make ethanol a better product. The U.S. could be very glad very soon that it did.

PRUNE AWAY YOUR TREE TROUBLES

Most people know that pruning can add a more pleasing shape to their trees and shrubs, but it needs to be done with care. Here are the three areas that pruners need to know before they attack their green growing things with shears.

What To Look For In Pruning:

1. Prune dead, dying or unsightly parts of a tree.
2. Prune sprouts at, or near, the base of a tree trunk.
3. Prune overlapping branches.
4. Prune off the branches forming a weak crotch. Weak crotches cause splitting.
5. When multiple leaders develop on a tree, cut out the rest and leave one stem.
6. Prune nuisance growth — those that will interfere with electric or telephone wires, etc.

When To Prune:

1. Dormant pruning — fall to early spring. For shrubs that bloom during middle and late summer. Examples of these are hydrangea, rose of Sharon, summer blooming spirea and elderberry.
2. Spring pruning — as soon as the flowers fade. Examples of these are forsythia, flowering quince, flowering almond, crabapple, redbud, etc.
3. Summer pruning — limited to trimming hedges, shaping evergreen ornaments or removing disease, injured and dead branches.

How To Prune:

1. Trim a tree or shrub by shaping its natural growth.
2. Control direction of new growth by cutting back to a bud or stem that points to the direction where you want it to grow.
3. Undercut any branch that is more than one inch in diameter to prevent splitting.
4. Do not prune when plant is bleeding. Birch, maple, elms, etc. are bleeders.

FERTILIZERS

Fertilizers that can be used in improving garden soil can range from barnyard manure to commercial fertilizers. Barnyard manure gives excellent results and improves soil tilth.

Annual applications of barnyard manure at the rate of 400 to 600 pounds per 1000 square feet would be recommended. Use half of this amount if chicken or sheep manure is used.

The use of manure will supply essential nutrients and increase the waterholding capacity and improve the physical condition of the soil itself.

Approximately the same results may be obtained by applying compost to the soil. Anyone can build a compost pile and develop this soil additive which may be used in the garden.

League of Rural Voters organize

The Nebraska League of Rural Voters organizational meeting was held April 6 at the Cummings County Courthouse in West Point. The Nebraska League is a chapter of the National League of Rural Voters, whose national office is located in Minneapolis, Minnesota, with an office also in Washington, D.C.

The Nebraska League is an outgrowth of the Farmer and Rancher Congress, which was held in St. Louis in September, 1986. The Nebraska delegates to the Congress voted to initiate a chapter of the League of Rural Voters, and are the contact people at this time.

The League has been formed in order to aid and educate the rural residents of Nebraska as to the issues and candidates that best represent their economic and social well-being. This information and education will be on the National level as well as state and county. The ultimate goal of the members is to have a better informed and more involved voting populace.

The Board of Directors and officers were elected from various areas of the state. As the league grows, directors from other regions will be elected. Elected to offices were: President Linda Kleinschmidt, Hartington; Vice-President Anthony Aschoff, West Point; Secretary, Rita Lipps, Tekamah; Treasurer, Virgil Twork-Rostetter, Columbus. Members to the Board of Directors are: Bob Kelm, Alinsworth; John Dittich, Meadow Grove; Betty Fuchser, Emerson; Kathy Chatt, Tekamah; and Gilbert Fuchs, Pierce.

Meetings will be held throughout the state this summer to establish direction and build support.

Bereuter aims to correct problems with sodbuster

Representative Doug Bereuter went to a House Agriculture Subcommittee on April 9 with a solution to the problems of sodbuster restrictions on alfalfa rotation.

Bereuter told the Subcommittee on Conservation, Credit, and Rural Development that a bill he introduced would correct a provision in the 1985 Farm Bill that discourages farmers from properly rotating their alfalfa fields and punishes farmers who have used good conservation practices.

Bereuter's bill defines alfalfa and other legumes as an agricultural commodity if the farmer can prove that the field has been in rotation with other agricultural commodities during the past twelve years. When defined as an agricultural commodity, alfalfa can be rotated. The bill would not allow that classification for alfalfa that has been planted on land that has always been classified as too fragile for farming.

"The current law is flawed because it discourages farmers from rotating their alfalfa fields in order to maintain soil productivity and decrease soil erosion," Bereuter said. "If alfalfa fields are not properly rotated, soil erosion will actually increase as the alfalfa stand thins."

Bereuter is unhappy with the one-year exemption for alfalfa fields adopted by the Senate recently.

"The Senate adopted a temporary solution which gives alfalfa producers an extra year to implement a conservation plan. This is not a permanent solution. The problem will still be with us," he said.

"To eliminate the confusion and permanently solve the problem, we must reclassify alfalfa as an agricultural commodity with certain restrictions."

"IN ADDITION, the Senate amendment adopted earlier this year failed to include any conservation restrictions. It includes an exemption for both alfalfa and grasses grown for seed. Grasses grown for seed do not require crop rotation. My bill

Egg hints provided

They come in brown or standard white. They are decorated, hidden — and sought after. And in spring, eggs play an important role in family holiday traditions.

This also is the season when unusual uses may lead to food poisoning problems, said Scottie Misner, University of Nebraska-Lincoln food and nutrition specialist.

"Decorating Easter eggs can be fun, but if you plan to eat them afterward, take special care," Misner said. "Hard-boiled decorated eggs should be kept refrigerated. They can be used in a centerpiece or for a hunt just once for no more than two hours, otherwise they should always be kept refrigerated."

Misner also warned cooks to be careful of recipes calling for raw eggs because of the higher potential for food poisoning than when using cooked eggs.

Eggs play a special role in a variety of ethnic traditions ranging from egg drop soup to eggnog cake, from blintzes to baked Alaska and from soufles to huevos rancheros.

"Eggs are used everyday in so many ways that sometimes their value is overlooked," Misner said. "Although they are high in cholesterol and saturated fat, they are excellent sources of protein, iron, and vitamins."

The Farmer's Wife

by Pat McHenry

Another beautiful Sunday, though it is threatening rain. It's Palm Sunday, and the Sunday school choir carried palm branches and sang "A King Comes Riding By" for us today. They all looked so scrubbed and beautiful, they brought tears to my eyes.

After the song, the kids all sat down on the steps in the front of the church and listened to the children's sermon. Pastor began by cautioning them to be careful with the palm branches "so someone doesn't get stuck in the eye." A small voice caused us to giggle by reporting, "I already got stuck in the eye!"

We made a quick trip to Omaha on Friday afternoon, as Sue was to receive a citation for Academic Achievement at a banquet on the Creighton University campus.

We stayed all night with the Beatle's, and watched "Pillow Talk" on the VCR. We thoroughly enjoyed this old Doris Day-Rock Hudson comedy. It reminded me of an article I read that stated that sociologists are pointing to a new trend in this country: it's been called "cocooning." This is the practice of families of spending weekends "holed up" with the VCR and movies.

I gathered there is one concern that they aren't out shopping then. But I see it as another threat to reading.

SPENDING free time with a book is becoming more and more rare.

This has been National Library Week, and I've been reflecting on its meaning.

Libraries are very special places full of information and wisdom. I don't get there very much anymore. I tend to wait until a book I want comes in on paper back, and then purchase it.

Actually, I run sort of a lending library myself, not intentionally, I'm always passing on good books and not always getting them back. This happens with music and tapes, too, and can get expensive.

The questionnaire printed in the paper by the library had me thinking. What was the best book I've ever read? I couldn't name just one. Which one had had the greatest impact on your life? Here I answered the Bible, but there have been many that touched me deeply.

FOR ME, it has always been true that the book is better than the movie. Characters and plots can be developed so much more completely in books.

The list did not include which books we would most want on a desert island, another interesting quandry.

It would not be possible for me to make a short list of favorite books and authors.

As a child, I devoured Little Women and Little Men and all of Louisa May Alcott's books. I also loved the "Hildit" series, set in

Following are some hints for storing and using eggs.

—Store eggs in their original carton with the bigger end up to maintain freshness. If stored uncovered in the refrigerator, eggs are more apt to absorb odors from other foods.

—Fresh eggs can be refrigerated for up to five weeks without a significant loss of quality.

—Hard-boiled eggs, if properly cooked and refrigerated, can be stored for seven to 10 days.

—Brown-shelled eggs have the same nutritional value as white-shelled eggs.

—Picked eggs can be stored for about one month.

—The fresher the egg, the more the yolk stands up from the egg white when broken on a flat surface.

—Each egg has 275 mg of cholesterol; generally nutritionists recommend limiting cholesterol consumption to 300 mg a day. Food scientists now are experimenting with ways to remove the cholesterol from eggs while leaving the nutrient content intact.

—One medium egg is about 75 percent water. It has 90 calories, 6 mg protein, 1.7 grams saturated fat, 28 mg calcium, 90 mg phosphorus and 1.0 mg iron.

—When counting calories, try substituting two eggs whites for one whole egg in a cake recipe. About 75 percent of an egg's calories are in the yolk.

Wayne-Carroll School

The Principals Office By Donald Zeiss
EASTER "PETS" ARE CRUEL GIFTS

If you want to give your child an Easter present, stick to fancy baskets or stuffed toys. If you want to give him or her a pet, get a cat, dog, or other suitable companion animal.

But whatever you do—don't get live chicks, ducks, or rabbits as Easter presents. In almost every case, such animals end up dying, being dumped in forests or ponds in the mistaken belief that they can take care of themselves, or unloaded onto animal shelters where they will be destroyed. They don't make good pets and they need special care.

Fortunately, during the past few years, sales of baby chicks and ducks have declined, according to the Humane Society of the United States. But the giving of live Easter bunnies is still far too common. It is possible to keep a rabbit as a house pet, says Phyllis Wright of the Humane Society, but they have special needs and cause special problems. For example, they can be litter trained, but they can't be trained not to chew on things. They are also susceptible to a variety of illnesses and can transmit infectious salmonella to humans.

Giving of Easter animals, says Wright, "becomes a very negative learning experience for children and takes a terrible toll in animal lives. We hope parents will stick to stuffed animals as gifts this year."

INCREASED COCAINE USE IS BAD NEWS

Cocaine seems to be the "in" drug of the day. It is more easily available than it used to be, and the price is dropping. The result: its use has spread beyond the rich and sophisticated, who gave it its romantic reputation, to a much wider population—including high school students and even younger children.

That's bad news indeed. Cocaine is an addictive and extremely dangerous drug—a fact that hasn't been recognized either by the general public or by most doctors, according to the head of the National Institute on Drug Abuse. Quoted in The University of California Wellness Letter, Dr. William Pollin says no dose of cocaine can be considered safe.

For example, in a recent study, rats were allowed free access to either heroin or cocaine. Cocaine proved three times as lethal as heroin. Among other bad effects, cocaine can cause cardiac arrest.

Social program established to help pregnant teens plan

The Northeast District of the Nebraska Department of Social Services has designed a program to educate teen parents on issues related to child care and other areas of interest.

The Teen Parent Program which is called "On Our Own" is designed especially for pregnant teens planning to keep their babies, teenage mothers, and teenage fathers. It involves regular meetings over a period of several weeks and is designed to improve parenting skills, increase the self esteem of the youth involved, and encourage education and eventual economic self sufficiency.

Northeast District Administrator Joan Albin said that the program was designed by Lucy Douthitt, Income Maintenance Supervisor in the Fremont Office, as part of her work on a graduate degree in social work. The program is being used in other areas of the state as well as in the Northeast District.

Mrs. Albin went on to say, "We would like to offer this opportunity to every teenaged parent in the district. In the past we have focused primarily on the mother who is normally the custodial parent, but recent research indicates that young fathers have many of the same needs and concerns as the young mothers.

It shows that premature parenthood affects teen fathers as adversely as it does teen mothers in many important areas, such as the likelihood of completing a high school education. Consequently, we are very interested in reaching these young men with our message."

The District Coordinator of this project is Mike Puls, Resource Development Specialist. He said that this program is very much a community effort since most of the teaching is done by volunteers from the community who have expertise in specific areas. He said that some of the areas that will be covered in a relaxed educational setting are various health issues, legal rights, child care techniques, educational issues, and career planning.

He added that the Department of Social Services would provide supportive services such as day care and transportation for participants needing this.

The Department has arranged for Career Design, Inc. to run the program in Fremont, Columbus, Norfolk, South Sioux City, Macy and Winnebago.

The program will be run by Goldenrod Hills Community Action Agency in Pierce and Crofton. Anyone who is interested in obtaining more information about the Teen Parent Program should contact any one of the following people: Marilyn Wright, Norfolk Office - 644-3135; Kathy Eckland, Columbus Office - 564-1113; Charlene Weber, Dakota City Office - 987-3445; Cindy Williams, Pierce Office - 329-4927; and Carol Richard or Connie DeBord, Fremont Office - 721-7010.

Fish Oil Capsules

Nonprescription fish oil capsules are being manufactured and promoted for the prevention of heart disease. The fat in natural fish oils contains two different omega-3 fatty acids, commonly referred to as EPA and DHA. According to a recent study reported in the Journal of Clinical Nutrition, omega-3 fatty acid enriched diets are effective in lowering blood cholesterol levels, even when the intake of dietary cholesterol is high.

The link between omega-3 fatty acids and reduced heart disease was first observed in Greenland Eskimos. The Eskimo diet is high in fat, but the fat is of the polyunsaturated type and consists of walrus, seal, and oily cold-water fish. The protective effect of this type of diet appears to come directly from the effects of the unsaturated fatty acids on blood platelets.

We do not yet have enough information to determine if fish oil capsule supplements will provide the same protective effect that is obtained by eating fish with high EPA and DHA concentrations. Also, potential adverse effects of using fish oil supplements for long periods have not been determined.

Trysla gains title of Master Editor

The title of Master Editor-Publisher was conferred to Henry Trysla of South Sioux City, during a Saturday night (April 4) ceremony which closed the 113th Annual Convention of the Nebraska Press Association at the Red Lion Inn in Omaha.

Born at Huron, South Dakota, Henry Trysla was the sixth of seven children in the household of Polish immigrant parents. He was transplanted with the family to Nebraska when he was only a year old and his roots soon became deeply set in a community and state he has served for a lifetime.

He is a graduate of South Sioux City High School, where he lettered in football, basketball and track for three years. He attended Wayne State College, left to join the armed forces but was rejected for health reasons.

Trysla's interest in sports has been secondary only to newspapering, said the citation read by Nuckolls. Trysla refereed football and basketball in a three state region for fifteen years, coached Little League baseball and played on a championship softball team. An avid Cornhusker football and basketball fan, he plays tennis, swims and walks. His three daughters and two sons have collectively earned letters in football, volleyball, track, basketball, swimming, softball, baseball and cheerleading. One daughter now teaches in Lincoln and the other four offspring are students at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Their mother, Margaret, was described in the citation, as "equally outstanding," a person "whose courtship with the young journalist-sports enthusiast followed his nominating her as an Ak-Sar-Ben courtesan." She teaches English at West High School in Sioux City, Iowa.

Trysla has received numerous awards for his community involvements, which include presidency of the South Soc Development Corporation, director of the Dakota County State Bank, past president of the Roafry Club and of the South Sioux City Area Chamber of Commerce, and membership in a group that founded and operated Soo Electronics, a cable television company that was later sold. He is also an Ak-Sar-Ben ambassador. His newspaper strongly supported formation of the Atokad Agriculture and Racing Association which operated Atokad Park.

This print journalist also has had a Monday through Friday radio news broadcast for many years. He is a Eucharistic minister at St. Michael's Catholic Church.

THE SOUTH SIOUX City Star has received Ak-Sar-Ben Community Service Awards for such varied news and editorial efforts as promoting better agriculture, school improvements, youth activities, a campaign denouncing South Sioux City's image as having the highest crime rate in Nebraska and for coverage of the impact of closing the Stouland Veterans Memorial Bridge when defects were discovered in that Missouri River span only months after it opened.

His newspaper supported successful bond issues for new junior and senior high schools. The Star won third place in national competition for community service as a result of a $2.5 million junior high bond campaign.

Trysla has successfully blended religious devotion, family life, professional excellence and community concern in a long and distinguished career, Nuckolls concluded.

Henry Trysla is the sixteenth Nebraskan to receive the NPA's Master Editor-Publisher Award.

So little is known about Alzheimer's disease that physicians rely principally on psychological testing to diagnose it in patients. However, scientists at the Albert Einstein College of Medicine recently discovered a protein which seems to be unique to the brains of people afflicted with Alzheimer's. This has raised the hope that a chemical test for the disease may be available in the near future. Researchers don't know yet whether the protein is a result or cause of the disease or only a coincidence, but further testing should give a clue. That's hopeful news for the more than 2 million Americans suffering from Alzheimer's, an incurable condition which causes victims to lose their memories and other mental functions.
