Coffey submits resignation

By Chuck Hackenmillar
Managing Editor

Dr. Thomas A. Coffey has resigned as president of Wayne State College. Coffey's resignation was accepted on Thursday by a unanimous vote of the Board of Trustees, who were meeting at the Cornhusker Hotel in Lincoln. The announcement of Coffey's resignation by the board of trustees was made following an executive session on Thursday that lasted close to four hours.

The board of trustees also met in executive session on Wednesday evening. At 11:02 the next morning, the board of trustees completed the regular business on the agenda and then voted to go into executive session.

Coffey, who earlier in Thursday's board of trustees meeting had provided the president's report of activities at Wayne State College, left the executive session before noon. The board of trustees continued meeting in executive session.

Coffey's letter of resignation, dated April 23, was penned on yellow legal paper, stating: "I herewith resign effective today as president of Wayne State College."

DURING THE past month, the Wayne State College Faculty Senate members voted by a 7-0 margin (with one abstaining vote) to issue a no confidence vote on the effectiveness of Coffey as president of Wayne State College. On Tuesday of last week, the general faculty recorded 88 of 108 votes, dictating a no confidence stance in the effectiveness of Coffey as president.

Seven of the general faculty members had voted confidence in Coffey's leadership.

Thursday afternoon at 3:30 p.m., after the board of trustees executive session had ended, Board Chairman Thomas Morrissey of Tecumseh issued a statement on behalf of the board which appeared critical of the Wayne State College faculty leadership.

MORRISSEY SAID that it was "with regret" that the board of trustees accepted the resignation of Dr. Coffey as Wayne State president.

"While recognizing that Dr. Coffey has had difficulties during his presidency, the Board also feels that he has made positive contributions at Wayne State College," Morrissey said.

The resignation "accepted with regret," he said, "is fostered by a Board feeling that the turmoil which presently exists on the Wayne campus is not solely the fault of Dr. Coffey."

"The Board has concluded that this turmoil could have been resolved, with Dr. Coffey remaining at Wayne State College," he added.

HE COMMENTED that the "healing process" attempted by the Board, with Dr. Coffey's cooperation, was frustrated by the determined effort of some of the leadership of the Wayne State Faculty.

"The circulation of unfounded rumor and innuendo, the resistance to change regardless of how positive, the unwillingness of the faculty leadership to negotiate differences, the intimidation and ostracism of those who have sought a fair and balanced approach, or had another viewpoint, does not speak well of the faculty leadership," Morrissey mentioned.

"The willingness of the majority of the faculty to end a presidency in order to buy supposed tranquility is a cause for deep regret," he said.

"Nevertheless, Dr. Coffey has concluded, and the Board agrees, that in this environment, for Dr. Coffey to continue as president of Wayne State College, would be counterproductive," he said.

THE BOARD OF trustees arrived at a severance agreement involving severance pay and insurance. A motion was approved to provide severance pay to Coffey at $56,128, divided in payments spread over an eight month period. Coffey's salary had been previously established by the board of trustees at $74,800, including a housing allowance.

"The statement we have given pretty much reflects what the board considered and the position of the board," Morrissey said.

He said the board had instituted numerous efforts to resolve the problems, and Dr. Coffey had been cooperative in those efforts.

"It's a matter of record up on the campus. We had tried to work with faculty on an arbitration arrangement and ultimately the faculty did not go along with it," Morrissey said.

On Thursday, April 16, board of trustee members of the Personnel and Policies Committee, and other board members, participated in a near 12 hour fact finding session with Wayne State College campus staff.

THIS PHOTO of Coffey was taken earlier this year at the legislative hearing as he spoke on behalf of Wayne State College on the topic of budget reductions.

Morrissey said some of the conclusions made in the statement provided on Thursday (April 23) to the media were derived from the visit to Wayne.

SOME POSITIVE comments were made by Morrissey concerning Coffey's leadership.

"We thought that Dr. Coffey's participation in the appearances before the [legislative] appropriations committee were positive. We have felt that his appointment of the advisory committee on the Wayne campus, with regard to the proposed budget reductions, was a very positive thing.

"Of late there were steps of greater communication with the faculty.

WSC total budget reduction gains approval

By Chuck Hackenmillar
Managing Editor

A $113,343 reduction in Wayne State College's budget for 1987-88 was approved Thursday by the Board of Trustees of the Nebraska State Colleges.

However, the line items that total the budget reduction could be modified or are considered tentative, according to board of trustee member Peter Kotsiopoulos of Kearney.

The line items considered for reduction at Wayne State College include the following:

- To continue the LB-1 reductions.
- John Struve, vice president of finance at Wayne State College, said these reductions would include not allowing a previously budgeted increase to non-personal service (non-salary expenses for each of the activities across campus that are financed by the general fund) at a savings of $32,383.
- Another reduction in this area includes eliminating a half-time position in the Research and Management Office at a savings of $12,980.

Not filling two vacancies following the mid-year retirement of individuals in the Applied Science and Humanities division were also listed in the reductions, bringing on a savings of $11,295.

The total, under LB-1 reductions, is $56,658.

• To suspend all International Education Programs, which will result in a reduction of $30,435. The suspension will affect the summer program of 1988, Struve said.

STRUVE BROKE down the total amount, saying $3,474 had been earmarked for operating expenses; $17,511 for directors' salaries; and $9,450 toward tuition scholarships for participation in the program.

"The funding will not affect the 1987 tours," Struve said.

• Reduce the President's Special Projects Request fund from $45,000 to $30,000. Struve said this funding is used primarily for the Black and Gold Series programs.

"The Black and Gold Series would be retained but at a reduced level," said Struve.

• Reduce, by $6,500, the Student Worker funding for Institutional Advancement (promotion of Wayne State College). Struve said this reduction essentially means that the number of part-time employees in the alumni office will be reduced.

• And to reduce the general fund support for Institutional Advancement by $4,750. "Presumably in the area of the operating budget for alumni activities," Struve said.

In summarizing Wayne State College's budget reduction, Struve said "the budget was designed in such a way to protect the primary function of the institution."

"Therefore, the effects [of the budget reduction] in the academic support areas have been minimized," he mentioned. "We chose to go

Incidents of someone shooting and breaking windows of several houses and cars were reported Monday evening, April 20, to the Wayne Police Department.

Wayne Police Chief Vern Fairchild said the weapon used in breaking the glass was probably an air rifle or B.B. gun. He said at least three houses and a couple of vehicles were reported to have been damaged from the shootings.

Two of the houses, he said, were along Grainland Road in Wayne. Two vehicles suffering damages were parked along West 1st Street and the third house damaged was on the 800 block of Nebraska Street.

The incident is still under investigation.

A $100 reward has been offered by a Wayne resident for the information leading to the arrest of the person or persons who were involved in breaking the windows on Grainland Road and other places in town on Monday night.

'Hacken' Away

by Chuck
Hackenmiller

The time has come for people everywhere to look out into their yard and tackle the project of putting in a garden. Here's a little poem, to maybe inspire you for the work ahead.

You read about the perfect gardener who has that perfectly formed green thumb. Then there's some like me who can't tell the difference between a cherry tomato and a plum.

So, tell me why terrible gardeners, like me, always take the time to fill the soil and bend to our knees knowing our efforts will be fruitless and realizing filled freezer space is difficult to freeze.

Oh it looks so promising when those mail order seed catalog pictures make our mouths drool. But really! Believing your garden will look just as good can make anyone an ambitious gardening fool.

There's weeds to weed out and bugs to bug out in this square we call a garden.

And when the grasses and foxtails grow taller, for certain your gardening hatred instincts will harden.

The cabbages will turn to a rust-colored brown and the carrots will look like orange twigs.

The sweet corn will look spotty and toothless, but the stalk itself will grow so doggone big.

But be assured that one garden item will not fail no matter what the hybrid, the produce will grow. Of all the things you would certainly not miss are those plentiful cucumbers clogging the row.

And if you plan on reaping a big yield by leaps and bounds of old reliable peas.

You can count spending the day untangling the vines which never separate with ease.

The garden tools in possession, a broken hoe, a handleless digger.

will be used to cultivate the crops for only a few days, you can 'figger'.

The weather elements never cooperate. Seems like we always get hail, or early frost.

Forget it when the worms start munching and rabbits avoid the words "Get Lost!"

There are some who say it's none better than to admire the garden that they planted themselves.

But the only way I'll get a choice vegetable is if I buy them in cans on the grocery shelves.

Out Of Old Nebraska

Arbor Day, perhaps more than any other single occasion, symbolizes the spirit of pioneer Nebraska—a people who: lacking wood for fuel, burned buffalo chips. When the first settlers entered this area west of the Missouri, they were moving into a land vastly different from that known by earlier generations of American pioneers. Where the earlier areas of pioneering had been heavily forested, this land was treeless or virtually so. There was considerable doubt that it would ever sustain an agriculture population. Indeed, official opinion held that it very definitely would not, and for a generation Nebraska had simply been part of the "Great American Desert."

The early pioneer farmers soon proved that a land where tall grasses grew in great profusion would produce crops in almost equal profusion. Moreover, the land lay ready for the plow—no laborious clearing was required here before farming could begin. This much was good, but trees were sorely missed by those pioneer

Nebraskans who had come from the wooded regions of the East, and almost from the beginning Nebraska's agricultural leaders worked energetically to encourage the planting of trees on Nebraska's farmsteads and in her villages.

NO ONE WORKED more energetically than the author of Arbor Day himself. One of the first improvements on the claim near Nebraska City that was to develop into Arbor Lodge was the planting of trees. In addition to planting trees on his own place, J. Sterling Morton worked tirelessly to encourage others to follow his example.

The columns of the Nebraska City News, which he edited, were filled with advice and encouragement. In 1865, he wrote that the groves and orchards in Otoe County conclusively demonstrated, "the fact that sufficient timber can be grown upon a quarter section of Prairie Land in the course of six years, to furnish the dweller thereupon a bountiful supply of firewood, and yet leave him One hundred and Twenty Acres of prairie to cultivate."

The Nebraska State Horticultural Society, organized in 1869, reflected the growing interest in fruit trees among the pioneer farmers. The Society's meeting provided an opportunity for the fruit growers of the state to get together to share experience and exchange views. This was important because practical experience was their only reliable guide. They had little scientific information.

Hence, when Arbor Day was established in 1872, Nebraskans had been working for almost two decades to improve tree culture in the territory and state, and Arbor Day, in the beginning, was simply one of a number of efforts to encourage the planting of trees in Nebraska. So expressive was it of the hope of the pioneers, however, that it soon became a legal holiday, and spread far beyond the borders of Nebraska.

As its founder was fond of saying: "Other holidays repose upon the past; Arbor Day proposes for the future."

Viewpoint

Looking ahead

After a lengthy deliberation Thursday in closed session, the Board of Trustees of the Nebraska State Colleges have accepted the resignation of Dr. Thomas Coffey of Wayne State College.

In some respects, this is an indication that now the college must move on and put the past behind it. But we don't anticipate the scars of the incidents which have occurred during the past few months to be so easy to forget.

In his inauguration address (August, 1986), Dr. Coffey set some tough goals.

He encouraged members of the college community to actively participate in partnerships with business and government for the advancement of Nebraska. He helped to launch the Business Partners Drive.

Dr. Coffey also fought with vigor for higher education. Several times in his speeches to Wayne organizations he mentioned the lack of funding that is currently being afforded to the collegiate institutions.

As a goal, he also challenged the administration and staff to provide an environment of service, friendliness and support to the faculty and students, to ensure the finest learning process.

It appears he didn't fare well in his latter goal, if one considers the recent reaction of the general faculty in recent no confidence voting.

Board of Trustee Chairman Thomas Morrissey said, Dr. Coffey did make some positive contributions. We will not dispute that statement.

Not consulting with the experienced faculty before making critical decisions — or lack of communication, we believe — was one of the grievances acknowledged by faculty representatives.

His personality also became an issue to some of the faculty.

Perhaps the issue could have been settled much earlier, at the root of the problem, in such a way to avoid the wide array of media coverage and the emergence of rumors and innuendos.

For now, it is definitely a time to move forward, and look ahead to what is best for the institution and the community where it lies.

More to spend?

Here we go again with a need for property tax relief. Do you remember when state government told us the same story? Does anyone remember property tax relief since the state started collecting sales and income taxes?

Someone wrote in The Wayne Herald and said to get the facts before you vote. In my opinion there is only one fact to be considered, that being, the city wants more tax dollars to spend. If they wanted less tax they could cut spending and give property tax relief.

If more tax dollars are wanted the question is, "where are the extra tax dollars going to come from?" I doubt if Wayne has a loyal clientele coming regularly from Sioux City, Yankton or Norfolk to shop. If this is the case then that leaves Wayne residents or the surrounding rural area to support the sales tax increase. If residents of Wayne are to pay the bill they will simply take money from the pocket that paid property tax and put it in the pocket to pay sales tax and add a little money while transferring from one pocket to the other.

If the rural area is to help pay the increase, that sounds like, "Taxation Without Representation" to me. I thought we fought against this at the time of the Revolutionary War. Further, I doubt if many farmers in the area have the financial ability to help bail out the city of Wayne. Granted that city government is not the only taxing authority affecting property taxes within the city of Wayne.

As for the 1/2 cent increase in sales tax for industrial development, it would be interesting to know how many new businesses have come to Wayne because of Timpte and how many have closed or are considering closing. Inspite of Timpte coming to Wayne, I thought new industry coming to the city was supposed to lower property taxes. If sure didn't lower mine, because we all had to pay for a new paved road plus bridges and drainage ditches. So please keep in mind a sales tax of 1 1/2% is only a tax increase. Every dollar of tax increase leaves a dollar less for someone to spend at a local business.

Positive effect

I am writing in reference to Wayne's effort to adopt a local sales tax. Although each city must analyze the merits of a sales tax based upon the needs of the particular city, I have, for your information, briefly summarized below our experience with the local sales tax.

LaVista adopted a local (1%) sales tax on Nov. 6, 1984. This current budget year will be our second full year with the sales tax. Our receipts to date are noted below:

Fiscal Year 84-85 $51,374.10 (partial year)

Fiscal Year 85-86 $383,006.52

Fiscal Year 86-87 $437,276 (estimated)

For Fiscal Year 86-87, our tax rate is $4924 (with a valuation of 143,756,000). Without the sales tax, in order to maintain the same level of expenditures we would have required a tax rate of approximately .7478 which is an increase of approximately 36 percent.

With the sales tax this year, a property owner of a $60,000 home would pay a tax (City's portion) of approximately $330. Without the sales tax a property owner of a $60,000 home would have to pay approximately $449, a 36 percent increase.

The sales tax has not been detrimental to commercial development. We are, in fact, experiencing an exceptional growth in commercial establishments which have the sales tax imposed upon their products.

Our experience with the sales tax thus far has been very positive and I look forward to continued success.

Harold Anderson, LaVista Mayor

Tax facts?

By now, most everyone has had time to read the newspaper supplement, "The Tax Facts". Are these the figures we are now suppose to believe?"

I would like to point out that at the time of tax proposal, estimated 1% collections were printed in The Wayne Herald to be $270,000. After my wife's letter raised a few questions, the city administrator corrected that figure to $275,000. After this new figure was announced at the Chamber Breakfast and city limit lines were defined, I decided to call the state sales tax revenue office in Lincoln and ask, which businesses were included in the estimated tax figures. My reply was "all sales tax returns with a Wayne zip code." I questioned a chamber member and the new revised figure is $214,000. A lot of businesses with a Wayne zip code lie outside of the city limits.

My guess is that this figure is still quite high. Has there been a deduction for livestock equipment sold at feed stores and elevators and lumberyard products and carpet and draperies delivered out of town? To go from $275,000 to $214,000 in taxes is $61 million in sales (1% of 27.5 million to 1% of 21.4 million dollars in sales). That's a large error in any estimate. How many more errors have gone and will go unquestioned?

Back to our savings! Let's use the latest figures given to us in the supplement. Charts can read whatever we like. Courthouse figures say there are approximately 1500 individual tax properties in Wayne plus about 300 commercial properties. That makes the average property closer to $40,000, than $65,000 in value (as was the supplement example) with a city tax portion of $282 and an estimated tax of $168, saving $114. Using the same income as the supplement example of $20,000-25,000 and a family of 4, their sales tax share becomes $98. Their added federal and state income tax for not being able to deduct sales tax is approximately $35. Now it has cost this family $133 to save $114.

Beware, when taxes start paying taxes, it will cost us more! Let's each one think this through completely and then vote "NO" to a city sales tax.

Very Concerned,
Mark Griesch

Visiting poet awarded Pulitzer Prize Coffey

by Kim Schluster
Wayne State Staff

Rita Dove, who recently won the 1987 Pulitzer Prize for her book of poetry entitled Thomas and Beulah, presented a reading of her poems on the campus of Wayne State College on Thursday, April 23, 1987.

Dove was the last of the poets featured in the Tenth Annual Plains Writers' Series. She was in residence at WSC April 22-24.

Besides the Pulitzer Prize, Dove has received several other awards. She is the recipient of a Fulbright scholarship, and her poetry has earned her fellowships from the National Endowment for the Arts and the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation, as well as a Portia Pittman Fellowship as writer-in-residence at Tuskegee Institute. She also received the Peter I. B. Lavan Younger Poet Award in 1986.

Dove received word of her most recent award, the Pulitzer, on Thursday, April 16. "It still hasn't sunk in," she said. "There has been such a whirlwind of flowers, calls, and interviews."

She had no idea that she was even in contention for the prize. "It was completely out of the blue, but it was a wonderful surprise." She added that she won the prize on her husband's birthday, so that made it even more special.

Dove said the book that won her the prize is special to her because "it's not just a collection of poems." The poems in Thomas and Beulah tell the story of a couple growing up in Ohio in the beginning of the century. The first half of the poems are from the male's point of view and the second half from the female's.

Dove said that each poem is individual but they join together in a certain way, "like beads strung together," as the couple struggles through life together.

For this prestigious award, Dove will be awarded a medalion and $1,000 on May 18, 1987, in New York at Columbia University.

"In the actual writing of the poems I didn't think about winning any awards," said Dove. "But every writer dreams of the Pulitzer. I didn't dwell on receiving one someday because I didn't want to get my hopes up."

Dove was born in Akron, Ohio in 1952. She said when she was a child, she and her brother would write comic books together during the summer months. "But I didn't think of that as writing, then. It was just our way of recreating reality."

In college Dove did her undergraduate work at Miami University in Oxford, OH. "This is when I seriously considered writing poetry. I didn't know how I was going to do it, but I knew I wanted to do something dealing with poetry in my life," she said.

She then attended Universitaet Tuebingen in West Germany on the full-ride Fulbright scholarship and finished at the University of Iowa. She is presently associate professor of English and teacher of creative writing at Arizona State University. She lives in Tempe, AZ, with her husband and her daughter, Aviva, age 4.

Dove's books include three poetry collections, The Yellow House on the Corner, Museum, and Thomas and Beulah, and a volume of short stories entitled Fifth Sunday.

"For me, poetry is all of life," said Dove. "I don't look for inspiration, but for curious things in life. That's the impulse that drives me."

notes on anything and everything that she hears.

Because of these notes, Dove feels that she is able to write about many different things. "There's no main theme that runs through my poems. I've tried to hit as many different areas as possible with my writing. I'm too young yet to lock myself into one theme."

When asked to give a description of her style of writing, Dove said

"Dove carries a notebook with her everywhere she goes so she can take that her poetry tends to be spare, with a concentration on details and musically. 'I believe that poetry is the closest of any literature to approaching music' through language." She said that in her life as a poet, she strives for the lucky moments when her poems flow like music.

"Language can open up new worlds for everyone and when a poem comes together and comes to life, that's what intrigues me and keeps me going."

There were a number of things," Morrissey said.

The board of trustees has directed Morrissey, as chairman, to select an interim administrator of Wayne State College.

"We'll be moving immediately to set up the apparatus to select the new president," said Morrissey.

"We've got to look at the process, and then having decided on the process we'll go from there," Morrissey said.

"I guess we're to the point where we aren't most interesting in talking about the past now. We're looking to the future and want to do what is best for Wayne State College," he remarked.

"And we want to get on with the process of selecting a new president," he added.

CHAIRMAN OF THE Faculty Senate, J.S. Johar, who earlier had said the major grievances against Dr. Coffey, had involved fiscal priorities and personality, expressed more of a mixture of a "sigh of relief" and a feeling of unhappiness when asked about his reaction to Coffey's resignation.

"I'm not really happy. I wish we knew how to handle this before it got out of hand," Johar said.

He said that if the board of trustees did not feel the situation was handled right — that is the board's privilege to say so.

"I have no intentions of criticizing their judgment," he said.

He said he would recommend to the board of trustees to appoint a committee to study "what had led to the problem and how the problem can be prevented from happening again."

Johar said Wayne State College has excellent faculty that is "not out for blood."

Instead, he said the faculty members are "docile people."

Coffey came to Wayne State College in February, 1986. Prior to arriving at Wayne State, he served as president of Thomas More College in Kentucky.

DR. DONALD Whisenhunt, provost and vice president for academic affairs at Wayne State College who attended the meeting Thursday of the board of trustees, said on Friday he was unaware Dr. Coffey would be resigning his post on Thursday.

Until an interim president has been announced by Morrissey, Whisenhunt said he will be filling out Coffey's duties only on the assumption that he is the number two person on the currently established organizational structure.

"For the next few days it will be business as usual," Whisenhunt said.

Several members of the board of trustees will be visiting Wayne State College this week to consider the substantial completion of the new Rice/Carlson recreational facility. An announcement of who will become the "interim president" of Wayne State could possibly be made at that time, according to Whisenhunt.

Attempts were made by telephone to contact Dr. Coffey in Wayne on Friday and Saturday, but he could not be reached for comment prior to The Wayne Herald Monday news publication deadline.

WAYNE STATE college officials are seeking some rooms for athletes to stay in on Friday, May 1, the weekend of the CSIC track meet in Wayne. Currently there is a lack of lodging space.

If anyone has rooms for no more than two athletes to stay in, contact Rowan Wilfse at 375-2596 or LeRoy Simpson at 375-3560. The athletes will be transported to the homes.

more toward the administrative side."

STURVE SAID that clearly, this budget reduction has been "the most difficult reduction faced by the institution since the reductions started for Wayne State in 1982."

"Any cuts in the future will have an increasingly devastating effect on the college," he added.

Kotsiopoulos cautioned The Wayne Herald that although the $113,343 in reductions have been approved, the line item amounts could still be modified.

Kearney State's total reduction was established at $209,446. Major line item reductions included elimination of four FTE staff positions and reduction of selected staff positions to seven months ($48,750 savings) and the elimination of several credit courses ($54,000 savings).

Chadron State College's total reduction was accepted at $107,626, with the major line item of savings ($59,473) attributed to administrative restructuring and savings. Peru State's reduction total added up to $59,742 and included elimination of two instructional divisions and consolidating them into the remaining country; and elimination of track, cross country, golf and reductions in other sports.

In other action, the board of trustees honored the student representatives on their board, including Rod Blunck, Wayne State College's representative. He received a plaque and was recognized for his efforts.

Board Chairman Thomas Morrissey of Tecumseh also named George D. Watson, Jr., professor of criminal justice at Chadron State College as the recipient of the FirstTier Teaching Excellence Award, given in memory of George Rebensdorf, a FirstTier of Nebraska officer and long-time member of the State College Board of Trustees. The board of trustees have scheduled a regular business meeting for sometime in June.

ABOUT ARBOR LODGE

"Arbor Day...which has already transplanted itself to nearly every state in the American Union and even been adopted in foreign lands, is not like other holidays. Each of these regions on the past, while Arbor Day proposes for the future..." Sterling Morton.

That statement is as true today as when J. Sterling Morton stated it in an address in 1887. With the growing ecological concern in America, we will continue to see a reawakening of interest in this Conservationist's Holiday, which is celebrating its 115th Anniversary.

It took a man of special vision to conceive and bring to fruition the concept of an "Arbor Day." On January 4, 1872, Morton presented his idea to the Nebraska Horticulture Society. In 1885, the state legislature designated that Arbor Day be celebrated on April 22 of each year...Morton's birthday.

J. Sterling Morton is gone now, but his uncommon dream lives on. His estate at Nebraska City, with its magnificent arboretum, is a State Historical Park. It is adjoined on the west by the National Arbor Day Foundation's J. Sterling Morton Orchard and Tree Farm.

Begun as a four-room, L-shaped, frame structure, Arbor Lodge was expanded from time to time, with four major additions. The first house was built in 1885. As the arbor grew, it was renovated and expanded. After J. Sterling Morton's death in 1902, Joy Morton inherited the home and made the last alterations. He enlarged it to its present 52 rooms, added the neoclassical facade, and succeeded the entire structure. Joy also built the Carriage House west of the mansion and the Italian terraced garden to the south.

The Lodge is furnished largely in Victorian and Empire styles, and much of what is displayed was actually owned by the Mortons. Included are many fine examples of Tiffany glassware, the most impressive being the ornate skylight in the sun parlor.

New to visitors this year is the Gazebo located northwest of the Carriage House on the Arbor Lodge Grounds. It is a replica of the original Gazebo built in 1902-1903.

Arbor Lodge State Historical Park hours: 1-5 p.m., April 20 thru May 23; 9 a.m.-5 p.m., May 24 thru September 1; and 1-5 p.m., September 1 thru October 31.

APRIL — "ARBOR MONTH" CELEBRATION

Spring officially arrived March 21st and with it comes the beginning of tree planting season in Nebraska. April 22nd is officially Arbor Day in Nebraska — a day observed to remind us of the beauty and usefulness of trees. The word "Arbor," is defined in Webster's as a place shaded by trees, shrubs, or vines. April 22nd is a good average tree planting date for Nebraska. However, planting earlier can be desirable. In fact, "the earlier the better" might be the best advice for planting trees and shrubs in this state. Trees can be planted as soon as the frost is out of the ground or soil is tillable. Because of our extremely mild weather this winter, trees could probably have been planted in February or March.

Early planting has several advantages:

1. Reduces storage and handling thus minimizing the chance of drying injury.
2. Allows the roots to settle in the soil before the plant breaks dormancy.
3. Allows for more time to correct problems in the season.

For tree planting in Nebraska — think Arbor Month rather than Arbor Day!

"If the Oak is out before the Ash, 'twill be a summer of weel and splash. If the Ash is out before the Oak, 'twill be a summer of fire and smoke."

— Old Country Proverb

FLOOD TOLERANCE IN TREES

Some tree species are able to withstand flooding, recover and resume normal functioning. Many trees on river flood plains grow their adaptation. When selecting trees to plant on areas that may suffer from high water, flood tolerance should be considered.

A number of variables affect the flood tolerance of a particular tree species. These characteristics such as height, vigor, adaptability of the root system, and rate of recovery affect the ability of a tree to withstand flooding. Also, the reason, duration, water level, water temperature, and oxygen content of the flood water affects flood tolerance.

Tolerant species withstand at least 90 days of saturated soil during the growing season without injury. Intolerant species will suffer considerable injury when the soil is saturated for longer than 30 days during the growing season.

Tolerant: Silver Maple, Eastern Cottonwood, Green Ash, Pin Oak, Intermediate Tolerant: Boxelder, Hackberry, Orange Orange, American Elm, Pecan, Eastern Redbud, Bur Oak, Intolerant: Black Walnut, Northern Red Oak, Eastern Red Cedar, Black Locust.

Source: Condensed from "Flood Tolerant Trees," Journal of Forestry, March 1987.

BE ON THE WATCH FOR DISEASE PROBLEMS

With 1987 starting out as another wet year, this probably means a continuation of the disease problems we've experienced the past 4-5 years. More detailed descriptions and control measures are available from Handbooks and other reference sheets at your local Extension Office. Also, all Extension, SCS and NRD Offices should have the new publication, "Diseases of Trees in the Great Plains," which is an excellent reference for a number of the most common diseases in this area. The most common species and hosts: Cedar — Carcophora (older growth), Phomopsis (new growth); Pine — Diplolepis Tip Nigh (new growth), Daktarian (older needles); Bradford Pear — Anthracnose (leaf, maple); Norway Spruce — Cedar-Apple Rust and Apple Sock (fruit trees), Witch's Broom (deciduous); Spruce — Blizzaphy's needlecast.

Area athletes among state track leaders

Theresa Stelling of Wakefield tops the group of area athletes who are among the state leaders in high school track and field.

Stelling, a freshman, owns Nebraska's second fastest time in the girls' 3,200-meter run. Stelling tops Class C in the 3,200. Her best this year, in the race equivalent to two miles, is 11:34.1. Kelly Loos of Lincoln High School has the state's top time of 11:29.4.

Stelling is in the top three statewide in the 1,600-meter run. Her time of 5:30 is 10.5 seconds off the state leader, Dodie Kocsis of Omaha Roncalli. Stelling does have the fastest time among the Class C girls.

Deb Uehling of Allen is the fastest competitor in Class D in both the 1,600- and 3,200-meter runs. The senior has been clocked in 5:53.2 in the 1,600, .5 of a second ahead of her next closest competitor. Uehling has a 9.9 second lead in the 3,200 with a best time of 12:48.3.

Wayne's Bill Liska is tied for fourth place in the high jump in all classes. Currently only three jumpers in the state have cleared a higher height than Liska. The Blue Devil senior and six other athletes have cleared the height of 6-6.

Joyll Kwankin of Allen is listed as the fastest 110-meter high hurdler in Class D. Kwankin, a senior, has been clocked at 15.4 seconds. Kwankin has the third fastest time in the class in the 300-meter intermediate hurdles with a clocking of 41.8, just .8 of a second off the Class D leader.

Wayne's Jon Stoltenberg ranks fourth in Class B in the 110-meter high hurdles. Stoltenberg and a hurdler from McCook both have been timed at 15.1.
