Lowe disputes pit bull ordinance

Wayne city council's recent action to ban pit bull dogs from the city limits was contested by a Wayne woman during Tuesday's regular city council meeting.

Kimberlee Lowe said the council's decision to ban pit bull dogs "was not an educated decision."

"You have to know about the dog to make a decision about them. How can you start banning when people don't know anything about them," she told the city council members.

"How can you pick on one breed when you know nothing about them?" she asked the city council.

The ordinance, she said, has resulted in loopholes. Police would have difficulty identifying the pit bull dog.

"All this ordinance will do is provoke people in lying to you," she said.

She suggested that the council, instead, pass an ordinance banning all vicious dogs from the city limits.

Wayne Mayor Wayne Marsh said recent publicity about pit bull dogs shows that within a certain time frame, there were 13 people killed by dogs and that seven of them were killed by pit bull dogs.

The ordinance, he said, was not passed maliciously, he said.

"Maybe this is an ounce of prevention," said Councilman Freeman Decker.

Lowe, who said she had worked with dogs for 13 years in kennels, said Dobermanns were once as much feared as pit bull dogs. "German Shepherds had a bad reputation at one time," she said.

"Why would they not be banned, she asked.

OTHER DOGS OF different breeds can be more dangerous. "It's the individuals that own the dog that can make them good or bad," Lowe said.

"I know people who have pit bull dogs. Would you get rid of a family pet if it hadn't caused you any trouble?" she asked the council.

"I would like to know if this ordinance can be changed," she said.

Councilman Darrel Heler said he was aware of the danger of pit bull dogs after watching a television documentary on the animal and by also reading material about the dog.

"After I read what I could find, I felt the animal was a dangerous breed," Heler said.

Lowe said the ordinance could jeopardize in the recruitment of business or industry into the community — particularly if anyone in personnel of that business or industry has a pet pit bull dog.

"There are some people who won't give up their pet, even if it means giving up their jobs," said Lowe.

'Not a caretaker's position'

Fleck named interim president

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing Editor

Dr. Joseph W. Fleck has been named interim president of Wayne State College.

Thomas Morrissey, chairman of the Board of Trustees of Nebraska State Colleges, made the announcement before the administrative council and media Wednesday afternoon on the Wayne State College campus.

Fleck, age 52, has been head of the Division of Education and Psychology at Wayne State since coming to the college seven years ago. During the past four years, he has served as Dean of Graduate Studies at Wayne State.

Fleck, in addressing the audience, said Wayne State College will be moving in a positive direction. "We want to eliminate any perceptions of institutional drift."

MORRISSEY said Fleck's role would not be "a caretaker's position."

"We will rely on the creativity of the faculty members and mid-level managers to continue their outstanding programs, and we will be looking to them for recommendations for program enhancement," said Fleck.

Changes, improvements and enhancements will be made where needed on campus, Dr. Fleck said, including the support of the college's strong liberal arts programs.

"We will establish confidence in decisions that guide the college, and we will rely on the spirit of collegiality that's so strong on this campus," he mentioned.

Over the past seven years, Fleck said he has known the faculty to be outstanding and tolerant. The talent is there at Wayne State, he said, to "build on a legacy of excellence."

"I can't think of a better place to be than at Wayne State College," he mentioned.

Goals which Fleck has set during his interim presidency, he said, includes working together to assist Wayne State College in moving forward in positive ways; establish confidence in decisions that guide the college; and to pursue aggressive public relations on behalf of Wayne State.

"The campus is unified as never before, and we will build upon that," he added.

Morrissey said that the Board of Trustees perceives that through Dr. Fleck's administration, "Wayne State will continue to offer quality education programs and will continue with its reputation as an outstanding educational institution," Morrissey mentioned.

BEFORE COMING to Wayne State, Dr. Fleck was an associate professor in educational administration at George Washington University in Washington, D.C. from 1975-1980. Prior to that he served as an educator in Oklahoma and at the University of Oklahoma.

He earned his B.A. degree in political science in 1957 from Queens College, City University of New York and his M. Ed. in social studies in 1959 from Central State University in Edmond, Oklahoma. He received his Ph.D. in educational administration from the University of Oklahoma in 1975.

Dr. Fleck and his wife, Nancy, have four sons. He is a colonel in the U.S. Air Force Reserve.

Morrissey said the process to name a permanent president will be made in a "very thoughtful manner" and that the Board will not rush into the task.

Parking areas debated

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing Editor

An agreement with the Nebraska Department of Roads, involving certain restrictions and modifications concerning the South Main resurfacing project, was conditionally approved Tuesday evening by the Wayne City Council.

One of those restrictions, which drew debate from several people in the audience, will include the elimination of parking on the west side of Wayne's Main Street (Highway 15) from 4th Street to 5th Street.

The resurfacing work will be divided into two projects — Highway 15 south of Wayne, and from Clark Street north to 7th and Main.

"South Main Street has deteriorated very rapidly over the past three years," said City Administrator Phil Kloster. Resurfacing, he said, will be "buying some life [for South Main] so we can get the project in to do some major reconstruction later on."

Federal and state guidelines have to be met in the resurfacing of South Main, Kloster said, since federal funding is involved. One part of the contract would be that property owners must comply with the set-back requirements, and that includes business advertising signs.

THE OTHER part, he said, involves parking along Main between 4th and 5th Street, where currently cars are allowed to park on both sides. Resurfacing of South Main cannot be done with parking allowed on both sides of the street, according to Department of Roads District Engineer Tom McCarthy of Norfolk, who was present at Tuesday night's council meeting.

Kloster presented two alternatives to the city council Tuesday evening dealing with the parking requirements. The first proposal would eliminate all parking on the west side of Main Street (from 4th Street to 5th Street).

Some entities affected by the elimination of parking on the west side are the Wayne Public Library, First Baptist Church and the IDS business operated by George Phelps.

One option mentioned, to go with this alternative, would be to construct a parking lot behind the library.

The second alternative, which Kloster said might be considered less desirable, would be to eliminate parking on the east side from 4th to 5th Street. Some of the businesses on that side would be Rain Tree Liquor, Helkes Motor, Stark's Electric and Small Engine Repair and McBride-Wiltse Mortuary.

Parking would be allowed on the west side, although limited to allow motorists as a safety factor when arriving at the 4th and Main intersection.

"I think the best move would be to allow parking on the east and not the west," said McCarthy.

DOING SO, he said, would correct vision problems on the 4th and Main intersection. "I think the safety aspect has to be addressed. When we do the resurfacing, we want to do what is best for all the people," McCarthy said.

"Our occupation is to move cars and not park them," he added.

Kloster said that under both scenarios, the trees in front of the public library would be saved.

Pat Gross of Wayne, president of the Wayne Public Library Board, requested to the city council that parking on the west side (from 4th to 5th Street) be allowed to continue during the resurfacing, until major construction of South Main begins.

Gross said he understands the dilemma of the city council in fulfilling the requirements for the resurfacing project. But he asked the city council to provide, temporarily, parking on the west side of the city block.

'Economic development' bills cause floor debate

The past week was dominated by "economic development" bills. The major news accounts devoted most of their space to LB 775 because of the intensive procedural battle carried on during the floor debate. This served to stall the discussion of the bill for nearly two full days. LB 775 is one of the Governor's bills with which she hopes to encourage economic growth and further employment in the state by giving corporations and their executives major tax breaks.

The theory is that such tax breaks will provide a favorable business climate that will (1) encourage businesses to settle in Nebraska, and (2) encourage businesses already here to stay. The addition of new businesses would enhance employment opportunities, but the question is really reduced to whether such incentives truly influence a corporation's decision making. The Orr administration has argued strenuously that Nebraska's economy will receive an infusion of new growth and will move forward despite the loss of tax revenues the state will suffer as a result of these tax breaks. I am very attentive to the redistribution of tax burden required if this bill passes and anticipate amendments that will move toward greater equity.

Partly in response to LB 775, the Legislature advanced LB 270 which is intended to enhance employment opportunities in the small business sector by granting a $2,000 tax credit to employers who expand their operations. Presently, employers receive a $500 tax credit for each new employee (minimum of two) and each $100,000 of new investment. The credit may not exceed 50% of their income tax liability. This is the result of last year's LB 1124 which I cosponsored.

BECAUSE OF amendments offered to the bill which expanded the use of the tax credit to obtain a refund on sales taxes as well as income taxes, I offered an amendment, which was adopted, to set the amount of the credit to $1,000. This is still a 100% increase over the present law and should be sufficient. In my view, to encourage further employment growth without reducing state revenues with the severity that the original bill would have caused. Of course, when one area of revenue is decreased, that loss has to be recovered somewhere else and the tax burden ends up being redistributed. I think my amendment was a reasonable striking of a balance between the projected loss of state revenue and the potential for increased employment.

The Legislature has also been debating Senator Landis' bill, LB 335, which would close a loophole in the state's bankruptcy laws. Under the current law, an individual may convert his assets into an annuity and shelter them from his creditors during bankruptcy. LB 335 originally tried to close this avenue by placing a dollar limitation on the amount of the annuity which could be exempted. During debate it became obvious the measure was beginning to stall since there was not a consensus on what the limited amount should be.

Therefore, I am offering an amendment which would eliminate the dollar limitation in the bill and instead remove the exception on the annuity principal and any interest derived from that principal which is placed in the annuity during a two year period preceding the filing for bankruptcy. The annuity principal and interest earned prior to that two year period would still be exempt.

This is similar to the bankruptcy law concerning fraudulent conveyances and should solve the problem of people diverting money just before filing for bankruptcy.

State employees to get 3 percent pay hike

It's appropriation time at the Capitol, time to decide how state tax dollars should be spent.

The Legislature this week will begin debate on the state budget that funds all state agencies and pays for the aid which goes to governmental subdivisions and to lower income Nebraskans for social services.

After three months of pouring over numbers, the nine-member Appropriations Committee has proposed that the state spend about $881 million in general tax revenues during the 1987-88 fiscal year.

It is a conservative budget, a 3 percent increase over current-year spending. It provides few new services but funding for the University of Nebraska and the state colleges is more generous than in the past few years, according to Sen. Jerry Warner, chairman of the Appropriations Committee.

"People are not going to be satisfied with this budget," said Sen. Sandra Scofield of Chadron. "There's nothing for salary improvements in higher education. There's no increase for general state aid (to political subdivisions like counties, cities and school districts). There are many, many needs this budget doesn't meet."

"We're past the issue of fat," Warner said. "We're down to very lean meat."

State employees will receive an average 3 percent pay hike under the budget proposal. That raise will cost $11.4 million.

AND THE BUDGET will require no major tax increases. The current 4-cent sales tax and the proposed income tax plan will raise the necessary money.

The differences between Gov. Kay Orr's budget proposal and the Appropriations Committee plan are minimal, according to Warner. The Appropriations Committee recommends spending more, about $3 million more, on higher education. The committee budget also includes an additional $450,000 to help pay for larger water projects across the state.

The Governor and the Committee are both recommending that the state put an additional $500,000 in the Department of Economic Development. The bulk of that money will be used to beef up industrial recruiting activities, including national advertising used to entice new industry to the state.

The Committee has also developed a bond plan that would finance major renovation projects at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and Kearney and Peru State Colleges.

Morrill Hall (often referred to as Elephant Hall), the UNL museum that houses a major fossil collection, would get a $3.9 million face lift and much needed climate control system. About $8.6 million would go to remodeling and an addition at the Kearney State Cushing Coliseum. Peru State College would use $2 million to remodel the campus' main classroom building, the T.J. Major Education Building.

Cigarette tax money, the revenue from 2-cents per pack of the state's cigarette tax, would be used to pay off the bonds over a ten-year period.

LISTED BELOW are the Committee recommendations by general service area, compared to current spending levels. The figures do not include the 3 percent salary increase.

Tax is untimely

From my perspective as a Wayne merchant, the proposed city sales tax is most untimely. When the rest of America is going out of it's way to show it's support for the embattled farmer, Wayne appears to be turning it's back on them. Even worse, the tax would be a double-edged sword which would also handicap many Wayne businesses who are also struggling for survival. Now I'm all for new industry in Wayne but I don't believe we should try to get it at the expense of those who can least afford it - nor should we risk sacrificing existing businesses to try to get new ones. One in the hand is still worth two in the bush. Not only that, but I really don't believe that we can tax ourselves prosperous any more than we can spend ourselves rich!

I would also ask you to consider that Wayne businesses spend a substantial amount of money on advertising to encourage area people to shop here. And even with their city sales taxes, Norfolk, St. Louis City and Omaha are already siphoning off a frightening amount of business from Wayne. Think of how much more would be lost to those other cities if Wayne imposed a city sales tax! Also, most Wayne businesses are in a survival mode - just like most farmers. We can't afford the luxury of sacrificing our tenuous present for an uncertain "pie in the sky" future - we might not be around to enjoy it if it ever became a reality!

Finally, I believe that Wayne exists to serve the farm community - not the reverse. It has been so ever since this area was first settled and, notwithstanding the persistent predictions to the contrary, that order of importance hasn't changed yet - at least not in Wayne, America. I would further remind those who seem to have given up on the ag economy that this farm country has experienced many ups and downs over the past century plus. And when times get better - as surely they will - I hope we will be able to look back with pride on the fact that Wayne and the farm community once again stuck together when the going was tough. You can hitch your wagon to a star if you want to. As for me, I'm going to hitch mine to the first tractor that comes down main street!

To those who will undoubtedly say that I am not "progressive", I say, "Sorry, I not only know which way my bread is buttered on - I know where the bread and butter come from". C'mon Wayne - wake up and smell the burning bacon - don't bite the hands that feed you! I don't too late. We can still pull the "fat out of the fire" by voting overwhelmingly against the city sales tax.

Sincerely,
Chuck Carhart

Club defederation

The Wayne Woman's Club has withdrawn from state and national federation. Many women of Wayne note that change with regret.

They remember the club's splendid record of service to the Wayne area and to District 3 (NFWC) since it was organized and federated in 1919. There have been many good years of activity and accomplishment; there have also been times when it was difficult to meet the requirements of

Successful example

Your city is placing the question of a city sales tax on the ballot next month and I would like to take this opportunity before you go to the polls to express to you the experience of North Platte, Nebraska on this issue.

In 1978, North Platte implemented a city sales tax in an effort to provide property tax relief to the citizens of the community and to more equitably distribute the tax burden among those using our services. It didn't seem fair to us that those who lived in the city should bear the full burden of paying for our parks, libraries, swimming pools, police and fire services when non-resident tourists and other visitors utilized them as well without paying anything towards their maintenance.

The net effect of the city sales tax in 1979 was to reduce a property taxpayer's overall contribution by 74%, from 24.38 mills to 6.26 mills. North Platte's successful example is just one of many throughout the state and I urge you to consider very strongly this alternative for the benefit of all who live in your community.

Rural friction?

Wayne is a rural community dependent upon agricultural trade, not a city in a vacation land relying on tourists and passersby. It is very obvious that our Main Street businesses are struggling and even drowning right along with our farmer neighbors. Yes, the strong will survive, but only if we work together.

A city sales tax will cause friction and not only between farmers and businesses, but between businesses within the city and businesses selling the same items just outside the city limits. Believe me, this will not help the view of our Main Street.

We value our farmer customers and want them to feel good about coming to Wayne and increase their business with us as economic times improve. That alone will bring back Main Street and in truth help attract industry. All the money in the world won't attract industry to a town with a dead Main Street. Let's remember our largest industry is "Agriculture."

Apology asked

How about the W.S.C. Faculty apologizing to Dr. Coffey? He was commended for his work by the Board of Trustees. The faculty was reprimanded - so it sounds to me. Which one needs to apologize?

Hang your head in shame Wayne! All your wagging tongues have lost us a president who was not afraid to lead. You just didn't know how to follow.

If you can't say it - I can - I'm sorry Dr. Coffey. You did as you saw fit for the situation you were in. The best to you Dr. Coffey and your family.

Lastly, Mr. Luhr, I applaud your straightforward letter of April 23. You said it like it truly is.

Response to "Fact #1"

There is currently being distributed in Wayne, a leaflet, that supposedly reveals to its readers some "facts" concerning the proposed city sales tax. This leaflet is apparently ghost-written as no one has seen fit to sign their name to it.

"Fact" number one on the leaflet states that "in 1967 a new Nebraska state sales and income tax was enacted to reduce property taxes." It then informs us that "since 1967, property taxes have increased well over 100 percent, while state sales and income taxes have both had major increases."

I suggest that the authors of the revelation of "facts" check their history books. The 1967 state sales and income tax was enacted to replace, not reduce, the state property tax that we, the voters, abolished by referendum in 1966. The ghost writers seem to be confusing, either intentionally or unintentionally, the property tax, by which we used to fund STATE government, with CITY property taxes which are currently the only form of taxation the city uses to fund its services.

Am I to be shocked by a 100 percent increase in property taxes since 1967? Hardly! In 1967 the average Nebraska per capita income was about $3,000; the state had just passed a $1.00 per hour minimum wage; a first class postage stamp was 5 cents; I was buying bread for under 25 cents a loaf and new houses were selling in Wayne for well under $20,000. Compared to what's happened with other things, a 100 percent increase in property taxes doesn't look that bad.

Please! Whoever is responsible for this attempt at helping us know the "facts," sign your name next time so I can ask where you find such information.

Response to "Fact #2"

I recently had the opportunity to read a document that is being passed around in the city that claims that a city sales tax would send a message that "Wayne is ready to unload a share of its self-inflicted tax burden on others rather than being responsible." The document goes on to infer, in its "fact" #2, that the 1/2 percent portion of the proposed tax is being represented by proponents as a "broadening of the tax base." This is an unfair distortion of the truth. I have not heard nor read of anyone suggesting that the 1/2 percent portion of the sales tax is anything but an additional tax.

But I resent the inference that we are "unloading" a city responsibility on others. Economic development, the stated purpose for the 1/2 percent portion of the proposed sales tax, will benefit everyone in this area, both within and beyond the City of Wayne. The future of the entire community is at stake and the entire community should share the responsibility.

I welcome the opportunity to share in an investment in the community's future by paying the city sales tax, as I think we all should.

Ag subcommittee

OK's Bereuter bill

A House Agriculture subcommittee has approved a bill to step up the schedule for delivery of final-installment income deficiency payments to producers of 1986-crop corn and other feed grains.

The bill, which I cosponsored, was approved by the Subcommittee on Wheat, Soybeans, and Feed Grains, and will be sent next to the full Agriculture Committee for its consideration.

This bill simply brings the schedule for delivering income deficiency payments to growers of 1986 corn and other feed grains into line with the system adopted earlier by Congress for the 1986 wheat crop.

UNDER EXISTING law, producers of corn and other feed grains who enroll in the government's surplus control and income protection program get part of their support payments soon after enrolling in the program, and a second portion can be delivered after the first five months of the marketing year for each crop.

The final part of the feed grain payment - compensating farmers for cuts in price support loan rates made under a special provision of law to make market prices more competitive - is delayed until after the end of the full 12-month marketing year. This means that under existing law, final payments due on the 1986 crop will not be made until some time after the marketing year for that crop ends on August 31, 1987.

Under the bill that I am cosponsoring, H. R. 625, the Agriculture Department would make final payments for 1986 feed grain crops after the first five months of the marketing season instead of waiting until after the full marketing year.

Since the first five months of the 1986 marketing year for corn ended in February, 1987, final payments on the 1986 crop could be made this spring if the bill became law. The bill would not affect payment schedules set by existing law for the 1987-1990 crops.

Scholarship is habit-forming

Wayne's top-rank students honored

Forty-three Wayne students enjoyed the academic spotlight Sunday evening.

They were honored as top-ranking scholars in Wayne-Carroll Public Schools, from seventh through twelfth grades.

Wayne's Kiwanis Club presented citations to the students at its 24th annual Scholastic Awards banquet in the Wayne State Student Center, attended by nearly 200 of the honorees and their parents, Kiwanians and their wives.

Kiwanis President Phil Kloster said the club considers this event, the most significant of numerous youth projects that Kiwanis sponsors each year.

For many of the scholars, this honor has become habit. Seven of the 10 seniors made their fourth appearance in four high school years. Six of the 10 juniors returned for their third award, and nine sophomores are off to a perfect start on the honor roll, with second awards.

Probably most of them—started the honors trek as seventh or eighth graders. However, this statistic has not been recorded.

Guest speaker Richard Kimbrough, public relations director at Doane College, complimented the scholars for their achievement and reminded them of the people who had influenced their lives, helped them to achieve.

He cited parents, teachers, fellow students especially—and the honorees themselves—for creating the habit of excellence and achievement.

Among the honorees there are five sets of siblings: one brother pair, two sister pairs, and two sister-brother pairs.

Terry Munson, high school guidance counselor, announced the honorees, and Kim-brough presented the citations and medals to each.

TAX FACTS

QUESTION: WHAT GUARANTEES DO THE WAYNE TAXPAYERS HAVE THAT FUTURE CITY COUNCILS WILL CONTINUE TO REDUCE PROPERTY TAX BY THE SAME DOLLARS RECEIVED FROM THE 1% SALES TAX?

ANSWER: The Mayor and City Council have submitted two local sales tax questions to the Wayne voters for their decision at the May 12th special election:

- The first is the precise authorization language required by State statute.
- Ordinance No. 87-2 will also be submitted to the voters on May 12th. Ordinance No. 87-2 amends the Wayne City Code to require the following municipal policies:
 - All revenues collected from the imposition of the sales and use tax of 1% on transactions within the City of Wayne and any interest accruing on the same, shall be used only for property tax relief purposes and for no other purposes.

NFL draft not in line for Emmy

Was anyone surprised with the way the first day of the NFL draft went?

How many of you called in sick or took a day of vacation to sit glued in front of your television to watch ESPN's coverage of the draft?

Boringgggg!
It is a good idea in principle but there is just too much dead space in between picks for my liking.

I tuned in while I got ready for work Tuesday morning. From the time I popped down my two pieces of toast until I brushed and flossed I got to see two selections.

All the experts speculate who the next draft choice will be then when their picks go astray they start all over again on the next selection.

Oh yeah, how many of you ordered your own pro football helmet telephone? "You can own a helmet phone just like the ones used on draft day," says the commentator. What is the price of this little gem you ask? Just a mere $249. What a steal!

Well back to the draft. It was a pretty good day for Cornhuskers. Nebraska had its first first-round draft pick since 1984 when the trio of Mike Rozier, Dean Steinkuhler and Irving Fryar all went in the opening round. This year Danny Noonan was the 12th pick when the Dallas Cowboys selected him. Too bad for Danny. But on the bright side he should be able to provide instant relief to the aging Cowboy defensive front.

Washington made defensive back Brian Davis its first pick in the second round. Davis was the 30th player picked overall. I'm sure Davis was as surprised as many other NU fans were. Marc Munford, NU linebacker, will be going home to play professionally for the Denver Broncos. Denver made Munford its fourth-round pick. The other Husker to go in the first day of action was offensive lineman Stan Parker. Parker was selected by the New York Giants in the ninth round.

DAMON ROSS breaks into the open field during the alumni game at Memorial Stadium Saturday. The Wildcats won the game 20-8. Ross gained 95 yards rushing.

Wildcats down alums 20-8 in spring game

Chalk up another one for the Wayne State football team. Saturday the Wildcats downed the Wayne State Alumni 20-8. The win marked the eighth-straight win for the Cats over past Wayne State performers.

Coach Pete Chapman said the game plan entering the contest was to work on the newly inserted offense which features Damon Ross at one of the two running back positions.

Ross pleased the crowd with an explosive exhibition. The Omaha Burke sophomore carried the ball 12 times and gained 95 yards. His longest run of the day, 29 yards, resulted in the Wildcats' first touchdown of the game.

Chapman said Ross' success didn't surprise him. He said the sophomore had been doing it all spring in practice. Chapman hopes the new offensive scheme can improve on the running game of one year ago. Last year the Cats averaged 33.8 yards a game on the ground.

After a scoreless first quarter the Wildcats got on the board on Ross' touchdown. Less than four minutes later they scored again. This time it was through the air. Quarterback Jeff Mathers teamed up with Bill Minarik for a 48-yard scoring strike.

Terry Reeg converted on both of the extra points to give the Cats a 14-0 lead at halftime.

The offensive statistics were close at halftime. The Cats gained 60 yards on the ground and 104 passing yards for 144 total yards. The Alumni picked up 92 rushing yards and 52 passing yards for 144 yards.

The Wildcats scored their last touchdown with 4:58 left in the third quarter. Ross ran under an 18-yard pass from quarterback Scott Raue and went into the end zone. The PAT was wide but the Cats led 20-0.

The Alumni averted a shutout with a nine-yard touchdown strike from Mike Warren to Chuck McGinnis with 8:52 left in the game. Ken Kohloff was successful on the two-point conversion to cut the lead to 20-8. Either team was able to score the rest of the game.

Chapman said he was pleased with his team's effort. "I thought it was pretty decent as far as the things we wanted to get out of it," he said. "We didn't make many mistakes and we showed some maturity."

Chapman said the most pleasant surprise of the afternoon was the play of his younger players. He said the first team didn't play much as a unit. The coaching staff was watching several younger players to see how they performed.

Chapman said the ineffectiveness of the passing game didn't bother him. The Wildcats finished the game 11-26 for 139 yards and one interception. The coach said the ineffectiveness was caused from spending most of the spring working on the rushing game.

The Cats finished the day gaining 220 yards. They got 81 of those on the ground while gaining 139 in the air. Mathers was the leading passer. He completed 6-13 for 84 yards and a touchdown. Raue was 4-9 in the passing department for 42 yards and a score.

John Pedritz was the Cats' leading receiver. The sophomore caught four passes for 46 yards. Ross added three receptions for 24 yards.

The Alumni gained 194 total yards. Tony Shaw led the way on the ground with 65 yards on seven carries. Warren and Ed Jochum were the top quarterbacks for the alums. Warren completed 4-6 for 46 yards and a touchdown while Jochum was 3-6 for 44 yards.

On the defensive side of the ball Greg Gerkenmeyer led the way with seven tackles. Greg Cavill was next in line with six followed by Paul Parker and Feuerbacher with five stops and Craig Anderson and Doug Blair with four tackles apiece.

Wayne State didn't escape injury-free. Three Cats went down with injuries, all three may require surgery. Brad Feuerbacher and Mike Anderson each injured a knee and will undergo minor surgery to repair cartilage damage. Mark Priegnitz separated his shoulder and may have to have surgery to correct the problem.

The annual alumni game completed the spring football season for the Cats. Wayne State will open its regular season Sept. 5 on the road against UNO.

Wakefield runner wins four events

The wind was more suited for kite flying rather than running but 11 schools showed up at Memorial Stadium at Wayne State College to compete in the Winside Invitational.

Lyons-Decatur Northeast took home both the boys' and girls' first-place trophies.

The boys ran away with the top prize by scoring 156 points. Coeledge finished a distant second with 90 points. Homer was third with 86 points followed by Wakefield with 45, Allen with 41 and Laurel with 39 points. Winside finished in the 11 spot with three points.

The Lyons-Decatur girls had a tougher struggle. They claimed first place with 94 points. Hartington was runner up with 71 points. Wakefield placed third with 69 points, followed by Osmond in fourth with 55 points and Allen rounded out the top five with 46 points. Locals eliminated from CSIC tourney

The Wildcats were eliminated from the CSIC Conference Tournament Friday when Missouri Southern handed the locals a 12-2 setback.

Earlier in the day Emporia State downed the Cats 7-4. Wayne State used four pitchers in the ballgame. Kevin Hoffart started the game and was strapped with the loss. The junior dropped to 5-2 by allowing seven runs on seven hits in three innings of work. Jose Ruiz came on and pitched two-thirds of an innings giving up four runs on four hits. Omar Serghini was the next pitcher called to put out the fire. Serghini worked two and a third innings of hitless ball. Corey Weinmaster finished the game allowing one run.

Trailing 3-0 in the second inning the Cats put together their only offense of the day. Randy Yarke and Randy Raabe reached base on an error and a walk and scored on a two-run single off the bat of Monty Shultz.

The deciding blow to Wayne State was a seven-run fourth inning. In the inning the Lions had a pair of home runs which accounted for five runs. The winners tallied the last run in the seventh inning.

Wayne State was matched against two very tough pitchers in the tournament. Coach Lenny Klaver said both Steve Michaels of Emporia State and Tim Williams of Missouri Southern have been drafted by Major League teams.

Wayne State ends home schedule

The Wayne State baseball team pounded Concordia College in a pair of games Monday 12-1 and 12-2 to end a four-game losing streak.

The Cats, 26-11, got their bats back in action to go along with two strong pitching performances.

In the first game Jeff Sharp went the distance to even his record at 1-1. The freshman allowed one run on four singles and a double in the five-inning contest.

The Cats struck early and often. Wayne State scored in every inning. They came up with three runs on one hit in the first inning. Pat Salerno collected a two-run single to start things off. Salerno stole second, went to third on an error and scored on a wild pitch.

The locals came back with five runs in the second frame on as many hits. Salerno slapped another two-run single. Mike Hoffart followed up with a RBI single. Before the inning was over Dale Irving, Dean Hoying, running for Monty Shultz, Dale Clayton, Paul Calvert and Salerno scored.

Craig Koehler and Irving started the third by reaching base safely. The two advanced on a past ball and Clayton's sacrifice fly chased Koehler home. Irving scored on another past ball.

The Cats ended their scoring with two more runs in the bottom of the fourth. Randy Raabe reached on an error and scored on Randy Yarke's triple. Yarke scored on a groundball to second base.

Sharp's bid for a shutout ended in the top of the fifth when Concordia came up with its only run.

The second game at Hank Overin Field was similar to the first contest. The Cats took a 4-0 lead in the first inning. Calvert led off the inning with a single. Calvert went to third on a hit by shortstop Jeff Pasold. Pasold then stole second base. Tim Wobken

Lady Cats bury Wesleyan

The Wayne State softball team rebounded from a pair of losses over the weekend to outscore Nebraska Wesleyan 24-5 in a doubleheader sweep at home on Monday.

Cochin Marilyn Strate said she expected a tougher contest from the Lady Plainsman. Wesleyan had to leave its top shortstop, pitcher and catcher at home because of previous commitments.

The Lady Cats took the first game 12-2 behind the three-hit pitching of Ron Johnson. The Wayne freshman threw just 37 pitches in the five-inning contest. Johnson upped her record to 7-5.

The Lady Wildcat offense accounted for 16 hits. Mary Lingelbach led the way going 4-4 with a pair of triples. The senior also drove in two runs and scored a pair. Kathy Didier was 3-3 with three runs scored.

Wayne State struck for five runs in the first inning. The first five hitters, Kristi Govig, Michelle Blomberg, Mary Jean Guenther, Didier and Lingelbach, all scored. The big blow was Lingelbach's two-run triple. The Lady Cats sent 11 batters to the plate in the inning.

The locals scored another run in the second when Lingelbach tripled in Didier. They also got a run in the third. Paula Dolech started the frame with a triple and scored on a sacrifice by Natalie Highman.

Wesleyan averted the shutout by scoring its only two runs in the top of the fourth inning to cut the lead to 7-2.

Wayne State ended the game on the 10-run rule in the bottom of the fifth by scoring five runs. Highman, Guenther, Didier, Lingelbach and Ann Bauer all scored in the inning which featured five hits. Bauer came through with a three-run triple in the frame.

The line score was almost identical in the second game. The women came up with 12 runs on 16 hits. The difference was Wayne State committed two errors instead of the three miscues in the first game. But the end result was a 12-3 win.

The visitors put a small scare into the Lady Cats by posting three first-inning runs. A three-run homer to center field accounted for the offense.

Wayne State cut the lead to 3-1 in the bottom of the inning and took the lead for good with four runs in the bottom of the second. Angee Wilbur and Blomberg scored on Shelle Tomaszewicz home run. Lisa Jacobsen scored earlier in the frame. The Lady Cats accounted for six more runs in the fifth inning. Lingelbach smashed a two-run homer and pitcher Rhonda Peck ripped a solo shot to increase the lead to 11-3. Wayne State tallied its last run in the sixth when Peck doubled and scored on Didier's double.

Peck pitched the first five innings to run her record to 9-0. The Beemer sophomore allowed three runs on five hits. Lingelbach came on in relief and threw two scoreless innings to record her second save.

Peck and Govig led the hit parade with three apiece. Peck scored twice and knocked in one run with a single, triple and home run. Tomaszewicz and Jacobsen each collected two hits.

The Wesleyan sweep completed the regular season for the women. Friday and Saturday they will be in Omaha to play in the District 11 Tournament at Dill Field. Wayne State is the third-seeded team. Kearney State and the College of Saint Mary, the top two seeds, will receive first-round byes.

The last thing you need now is a problem with your homeowners insurance.

Home, sweet home. Sometimes it's difficult to keep it that way. And the problem with homeowner's insurance is you never know how good it is until the roof caves in. Then it can be too late. A Homeowners policy from Auto-Owners offers you replacement cost coverage on your home and personal property. Some homes qualify for optional Guaranteed Home Replacement cost coverage. And the great news is...this one encompassing policy may cost you less than the coverage you have now because Auto-Owners offers several discounts and rating advantages. There's no place like Auto-Owners when it comes to Homeowner's protection. Just ask your "no problem" agent!

In individual pitching stats the Cats own the top three spots. Jose Ruiz is the top pitcher with a 2.31 ERA and a 3-1 record. Kevin Hoffart is second posting a 2.45 ERA and a 4-1 mark and Raabe is next in line with a 2.76 earn-run average and a 3-1 record.

For the women Mary Jean Guenther, Mary Lingelbach and Michelle Blomberg all sit atop of statistical categories.

Guenther is first in hitting with a .371 average and first in doubles with five. The West Point senior is fifth in RBI's with 14; and fourth in runs scored with 17.

Lingelbach leads the district in home runs with three in 20 games. She has also driven in the most runs with 20 in as many games. The Elkhorn senior is second in doubles with four; and fourth in triples with two. Blomberg is first in stolen bases with 13 steals in 13 attempts. She is fifth in runs scored crossing home plate 10 times.

The Lady Cats lead the district in hitting with a .355 average, 110 points higher than second-place College of Saint Mary.

In team pitching Wayne State ranks second with a team earn-run average of .58. Lingelbach and Roni Johnson are among the pitching leaders. Lingelbach is second with .32 ERA and a 6-4 record. Johnson's fourth with an ERA of .58 and a record of 5-4.

Spawning season is less productive for Walleye

Most Nebraska fishermen go after walleye only during the spawn when the fish are easily seen near the surface along the face of the dam. But, though there are a few fish taken during that period, the spawn is actually the least productive time to take walleye.

Walleye can be taken most any time there is open water. Expert walleye fishermen disagree about when the very best fishing occurs, but they do agree it happens either just before the spawn in the spring, or when really cold weather sets in late in the fall.

Most everyone agrees that the first few days following the spawn provide the slowest fishing of the year, both because the fish are less aggressive at that time, and because most fishermen don't know where to look for them when they scatter throughout the lake after spawning.

Biologists say the spawn is pretty strenuous on fish. Both males and females are very active during that time, they don't eat much, and they are under a great deal of stress. And, because females lose a large amount of body weight by releasing their eggs they take longer to recover than males.

After they spawn, the large females drift away from the spawning areas into deeper water, sometimes the same areas where they congregated prior to the beginning of the spawn. These fish are very difficult to catch while they are recuperating, though they do feed occasionally if they have the opportunity to grab a bite without expending much energy in the process. In other words, to catch one of these big females you have to put the lure directly in front of her nose to get her to bite.

At the same time the large females are leaving the spawning areas, most of the males and some of the smaller females stay in the shallows where anglers can catch them by casting diving plugs parallel to the dam, swimming minnow-tipped jigs at various depths along the damline or by fishing live bait in shallow water adjacent to the dam. Within a few days the fish have started to recover and fishing begins to pick up again. The large females will still be hard to find until water near the surface starts to warm and they move into the shallows to feed on minnows and insects.

When the water is warming walleyes can be found along the edges of developing underwater weedbeds in water from about five to 15 feet deep. During the day many of the fish will be hiding among the weeds, but a few may be cruising back and forth in spots where the bottom drops sharply into deeper water near the edge of the bed.

Days that are heavily overcast, maybe a little foggy, or with mist or light rain, are often very productive. The fish congregate in very shallow water and can be taken on jugs, minnows, and floating/diving minnow-imitating plugs. An important rule of thumb in walleye fishing is that walleye will be found in much shallower water when the weather is dreary overcast, or in other lowlight situations, than they will on bright, sunny days. The same is true at night, or when the water is murky—the better fishing will be in shallow water.

Nighttime offers the best walleye fishing of all. Some of the fish will be drawn to areas where creeks empty into the lake, others will move to shallow rocky areas and can be found in water only two to eight feet deep.

Many fishermen refuse to use a boat for nighttime fishing, preferring to cast from the dam or wade in shallow water along the shoreline. Floating/diving plugs can be very effective at night, as can live bait fished with a slip bobber and light split shot.

Fishermen who choose to use boats anchor off of shallow water points, sunken islands, or rocky points and cast diving lures and live bait rigs into the shallow areas. Leeches, minnows and nightcrawlers and nighttime baits.

WSC women lose two in conference tournament

The Wayne State women's softball team completed CSIC play by dropping two games in the conference tournament Friday in St. Joseph, Missouri.

The Lady Cats lost a tough one in the opener to Missouri Western. Western squeezed out the 4-3 win in 11 innings.

According to the tiebreaker rule, if the score is tied after eight innings each team starts its half of the inning with a girl at second base until the tie is broken. Both teams scored their lead-off runner in the ninth. Neither could push across a run in the 10 but Western got the win when it scored one in the bottom of the 11th inning.

The Lady Cats took a 1-0 lead in the game with a Kristi Govig led off the game with a single and scored on a hit by Michelle Blomberg. The Lady Griffons tied it up in the bottom of the second. At that point the pitching took over and held each team scoreless until the eighth inning.

The locals went on top 2-1 when Blomberg singled and scored on an error by the third baseman on a hit by Shelle Tomaszkiwicz. Western got the run it needed in the bottom of the eighth to push the game into the ninth inning where once again both teams scored. The game ended in the bottom of the 11th when the hosts scored with one out on a flyball to center field.

Mary Lingelbach pitched the distance and was strapped with the loss. The defeat drops the senior to 6-6. Only one of the four runs she allowed was earned.

In the second game Wayne State again lost a one-run decision. This time Pittsburg State handed the Lady Cats a 6-5 setback-eliminating them from the tournament.

Roni Johnson started the game and got the loss. The Wayne freshman pitched the first three innings allowing one run on two hits. Rhonda Peck came on in relief and pitched two innings giving up five runs on four hits. Lingelbach completed the game by throwing two scoreless innings.

Trailing 3-0 Wayne State closed the gap to one run with a pair of runs in the fourth inning. Kathy Didier and Tomaszkiwicz both scored in the inning which featured three hits. The Gussies tallied three runs in the top of the fifth to make the score 6-2.

The Lady Cats clawed their way back with three runs in the bottom of the fifth. Blomberg and Mary Jean Guenther scored on a two-run triple by Lingelbach. Lingelbach came around to score on a single by Tomaszkiwicz.

The women had one last chance to win the game in the bottom of the seventh.

With one out and Guenther at second Lingelbach singled to center. Guenther got the green light to try to score but she was cut down at the plate. With the throw going home Lingelbach took off for second where the catcher threw to the shortstop covering for the final out.

Special Olympics bring out the best

WAYNE'S SPECIAL OLYMPICS took place Friday and Saturday at Wayne State College. Special Olympics, Inc. Director Jim Santos was in Wayne as part of the special event. Swimming events took place on Friday, starting at 6 p.m. Track and field events occurred Saturday morning. Over 300 people participated in the event with assistance from Kiwanis volunteers, faculty and students from Wayne State College. Clockwise from top left, a contestant unleashes a softball throw; clowns help with the occasions; Mike Larson of Wakefield legs out a relay race; a volunteer (Lori Sager) befriends an Olympics participant; and the exchange of the baton is made between two runners from Fremont.

Volunteers gain recognition

One of the most rewarding things you can do for tomorrow's leaders is to serve as a 4-H adult volunteer.

"Volunteers not only give leadership to 4-H experiences for youth, they keep the program relevant to local community needs and interest," according to Maureen Bruening Jensen, area extension assistant.

Today, 364 4-H adult volunteers in Wayne County and Dixon County work with over 500 members from nine to 19 years old. These volunteers share their skills and experience by assisting young people in a variety of 4-H projects and activities.

Volunteers do not have to be experts in specialized subject matter areas, according to Jensen. They can rely on the Cooperative Extension Service at the University of Nebraska and the U.S. Department of Agriculture to provide them with training, educational materials and resources to use in the 4-H program. "The land-grant system makes 4-H uniquely qualified to meet both the constant and ever-changing need of young and older people alike," said Jensen.

The 4-H volunteer corps is 600,000 strong nationwide. Volunteers are the backbone of a basic and cost-effective system which delivers practical educational experiences to some 4.3 million 4-H members in the United States, according to Jensen. The time, travel and support volunteers contribute is valued at billions of dollars.

In Wayne County and Dixon County, the estimated value of volunteer services over a year's time is $634,000. (If one takes 364 volunteers, multiply that figure by 10 hours per week and then multiply that total by the minimum wage of $3.35 an hour, the figure would be a weekly payroll of $12,194).

"The 4-H program provides many opportunities for growth and stimulation for adults and helps them attain enjoyment and self-fulfillment," said Jensen.

For more information as to how anyone can join the ranks of 4-H volunteers, contact Maureen Bruening Jensen at the Wayne County Extension Office at 375-3310.

by Pat Meierhenry

Today's column was written by Sue Meierhenry.

This month is Occupational Therapy month, and one of my assignments was to promote OT. I've already done a display at a Health Fair. Now I'm using my Mom's space to get a few lines in a newspaper. Besides, she gets tired of trying to explain what it is exactly that I'm studying.

I didn't even know what Occupational Therapy was until a couple of years ago. I planned for a career in Physical Therapy.

When I worked as a candy stripper at a local hospital, I helped in PT. Mostly, I just escorted patients and cleaned whirl pools, but I got interested in it.

I was rudely awakened to the fact that it is as tough to get into PT school as it is to get into med school, so I widened my horizons, and included OT.

My class is only the second one at Creighton, so we're kind of pioneers.

I'm almost finished with class room and theory. Field experience begins next month.

AT ONE TIME, OT was "busy work," or handicrafts, anything to fill time for someone recuperating very slowly or disabled severely enough that there was little hope for achieving independence.

Today, the key feature of OT is "purposeful activity." The therapist is trained to evaluate the individual's abilities and needs and determine where help is needed.

This help may be in self-maintenance (dressing, bathing, eating), productive living or in leisure time. It's rewarding to help a handicapped individual accomplish what are described as "activities of daily living" by himself. Sometimes, all that is needed are some clever devices. Other times, modifications in the home need to be made.

Crafts and games can be utilized to achieve a treatment goal. This might be in gaining muscle strength, learning to follow directions, using judgment, channeling aggression, or learning to cooperate.

OT'S WORK with all ages, and may include: individuals limited by illness or injury, emotional disorder, congenital or learning disability, poverty and cultural differences, or the aging process. It's even been found to be useful in Hospice care, to find ways to meaningfully use time when waiting to die.

It isn't a new field, but it has been a rare one. There seem to be a lot of job opportunities.

It's a two-year professional program, following undergraduate work. I should graduate on the same day as my cousin in med school. There is a lot of anatomy and physiology involved, including cadaver lab.

I'm finding it a real challenge, a very creative field and an exciting career.

Sustainable agriculture promoted, helps respond to farmers' needs

A system of agriculture that conserves and makes efficient use of resources, protects the environment, and ensures a healthy and nourishing food supply for the future is a system that is strong, resilient, and long-lasting. The Nebraska Sustainable Agriculture Society (NSAS), organized to promote this type of agriculture, is a non-profit organization working to revitalize and sustain the agriculture of Nebraska, according to NSAS Director Steve Ela.

NSAS is working to organize local chapters that encourage and support the development of practices that are appropriate for individual farms. Chapters will provide a format for workshops, speakers, and the discussion of ideas. Workshops will include ways to analyze a farm operation to identify unused resources, ideas for on-farm experimentation, and ideas for alternative cropping practices. Examples of ideas that have been successful for some farmers are the increased use of pastures, overseeding of legumes into corn to provide ground cover and nitrogen, weed and pest control without the use of chemicals, and the use of green manures for soil fertility and tillth.

NSAS USES the experience of farmers who have survived and profited from agriculture during a period when agriculture has faced many problems. These farmers are aggressive in reducing input costs, using resources that originate on the farm and maintaining soil tillth. Many of these farmers have developed through experience and experimentation, ideas and practices that are unique to their farm and management style.

"There is no single technology or answer that will solve the problems of Nebraska agriculture," said Ela. "Instead, NSAS advocates an approach that gives the farmer the ability to develop a system appropriate to their particular farm and management style."

Nebraska is located in a region where groundwater contamination from agriculture chemicals is a growing concern, where soil erosion is a continual problem, and where many farmers are looking for ways to restore the viability of their farms. "Through local chapters of NSAS, farmers and others can cooperate to develop new ideas, encourage University research which responds to farmers' needs, and ultimately work to restore the strength and long-term viability of Nebraska agriculture," Ela concluded.

For further information concerning the activities of NSAS, contact Steve Ela, NSAS Executive Director, PO Box 736, Hartington, NE 68739, (402) 254-6893.

Cattle on feed up 6%

Nebraska cattle feeders had a record high 1.86 million cattle on feed on April 1, according to the Nebraska Agricultural Statistics Service. This inventory was up 6 percent from both last year and two years ago.

Fed cattle marketings for the month of March totaled 400,000, a decrease of 11 percent from the record high last year and 2 percent below March 1985. Placements of cattle into feedlots during March totaled a record high 450,000 head. This was up 5 percent from both last year and two years ago. Placements were a record high for the third consecutive month.

During the January-March quarter, Nebraska feeders marketed 1.25 million fed cattle, down 3 percent from the corresponding period last year. Placements during the quarter totaled 1.33 million head, up 10 percent from 1986. Nebraska feeders intend to market 1.2 million head of cattle for slaughter during the April-June 1987 quarter, 2 percent below a year ago.

SWITCHGRASS SPURS BEEF GAIN

A small improvement in digestibility of a forage grass is more profitable to beef producers than an increase in yield.

Kenneth P. Vogel, a USDA-Agricultural Research scientist, says that a 6 percent increase in digestibility bred into Trailblazer, a new switchgrass variety, accounted for a 23 percent gain in beef production per acre.

Vogel, a plant geneticist stationed at the University of Nebraska said that increase in gain was worth about $35 per acre to beef producers at 1986 prices. "Just a slight change in digestibility can greatly improve animal performance," Vogel says. It's been proven that it's possible to gain digestibility without decreasing forage yield.

Switchgrass, a native of the American tall grass prairie, thrives during the hot summer months when other grasses tend to slow growth. If not grazed it grows to five or six feet tall.

In three years of grazing trials in Mead, yearling cattle on Trailblazer for 60 days had an average gain per acre of 306 pounds compared with 227 for cattle grazing Pathfinder, a commonly grown switchgrass.

Trailblazer was released as a new variety in 1984 and certified seed was available for commercial plantings in 1986.

CURRENT STATUS OF CHLORDANE

There has been some confusion on the use of chlordane. Frequently asked questions are:

1. Is it legal to use chlordane? and
2. Are applicators required to be certified to buy and use chlordane?

The answers are:

1. Chlordane is still legally registered in Nebraska only for termite control; and
2. It is available to anyone through local stores such as nursery and garden centers and some discount/hardware stores.

Chlordane has been proposed to be a "Restricted Use Pesticide." However, this must be approved by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and manufacturers must have revised labels on chlordane containers offered for sale. This process will take some time. The specific timetable is unknown, but it is estimated to take at least one to 1½ years.

Until further notice, there are no changes in status of chlordane.

LEADERSHIP SEMINARS

Sharon Wensstrand has been selected to represent Wakefield High School at one of two 1987 Nebraska High School Leadership Seminars to be held this summer. The seminars are scheduled to be held June 4-7 at the University of Nebraska and at Creighton University.

Students chosen are outstanding sophomores at their respective schools. The yearly conference is designed to promote leadership and American's incentive system through exposure to various speakers from government, business and community leaders.

Actor Hugh O'Brian established the youth foundation in the late 1950's. Since then the foundation has spread to all fifty states and into seventy-four total programs. This year 340 of the 259 Nebraska High Schools will be represented and over 10,100 high schools will participate in the program nationwide. This is the first year Wakefield high school has had a representative.

The students will be divided into two groups, one in Omaha and one in Lincoln. One boy and one girl from each seminar will be selected to attend the International which this year will be held in August in Denver, Colo.

Last year an alumni organization was formed for past participants in the program and Nebraska was named the number one program out of all of the 74 programs in all 50 states.

Sharon is the daughter of Ronnie and Rose Wensstrand.

FHA REPRESENTATIVES TO CONFERENCE

Representatives of the Wakefield Future Homemakers of America Chapter joined over 1200 home economics students and advisors statewide at the FHA annual leadership conference. Those attending from Wakefield were Lynn Anderson, Linda Greve, Mollie Greve and Kadi Nelson. Chapter advisor is Kathy Mitchell.

The conference was held in Lincoln April 13-15. The three-day meeting theme was FHA: Key to a Lifetime Celebration. The conference included general sessions, hands-on workshops, peer education training, discussion sessions, occupational exploration, leadership and recognition events.

Kadi Nelson is the local chapter's state voting delegate and next year's president. Linda Greve will serve as secretary for the Wakefield High School chapter next year; Lynn Anderson is the Pep Squad applicant and Historian for the chapter next school term; and Mollie Greve has been selected as the District 5 vice president for 87-88 and is also the chapter parliamentarian.

HONORS CONVOCATION

Jonathan Stelling was among the more than 2,600 students who were honored for scholarship during the 59th all-university Honors Convocation at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln on April 10. Jonathan is a senior at the school in the College of Arts and Sciences.

In previous stories two other Wakefield youth were acknowledged as also being among those to be honored. They were junior Troy Greve and senior Karen Sandahl. Karen was tapped as a superior scholar.

Other area students also honored during the convocation included Monica Hanson of Concord, a junior in the College of Business Administration; Allen George of Dixon, a sophomore in the College of Arts and Sciences; and Jodi L. Beacom of Waterbury, a freshman in the College of Home Economics.

ON STATE FHA TEAM

Lynn Anderson was one of the nine FHA members from the State of Nebraska chosen to serve on the Family and Futures Pep Squad during the 1987-88 school year.

The Families and Futures peer education team project focuses on helping teenagers to understand how choices they make today can affect the health of their future children and to develop a sensitivity to the responsibilities of parenthood. The six areas of special concern with this project are family, special needs, people/birth defects, drug abuse, infectious diseases, nutrition, and teenage pregnancy. Lynn will be preparing presentations to take to interested peer groups on the above topics.

High Blood Pressure Month

May is designated as National High Blood Pressure Month, a good time for all adults to have their blood pressure evaluated. If the measurements are considered in the "border-line" or "high" categories, evaluation by a physician is in order.

Many hypertensive individuals benefit from medicines which lower blood pressure. A mild diuretic medicine (water pill) is often the first medicine prescribed. Other medicines may be added to the diuretic if an appropriate response is not obtained.

High blood pressure of the mild to moderate type can sometimes be controlled without medicines. Nondrug approaches include:

- obtaining regular exercise and losing excess weight in order to place less strain on the heart and blood vessels,
- relaxing on a regular basis,
- restricting salt intake in the diet (salt holds water in the body and can increase blood pressure), and
- smoking cessation (for many persons, the chemicals in cigarette smoke will increase the blood pressure).

ACCEPTING THE flag from Darin Greunke are, from left, 4-H Council members Stuart Rethwisch, Chris Luff, Rosemary Severson, Marta Sandahl, Carmen Reeg and Sherrill Svoboda. Missing was Dwight Anderson.

Flag presented

Darin Greunke, a 1986 delegate to the national 4-H Congress in Chicago, presented the Wayne County 4-H Council with a 4-H flag Monday evening, April 27. Darin received a scholarship from Amoco Foundation, Inc., to attend the national event as a result of his accomplishments in the area of petroleum power.

During National 4-H Congress, Amoco files 50 4-H flags at its corporate headquarters — one for the delegate from each state. On a local basis, Amoco supports the 4-H program by providing medals of honor for petroleum program members. It provides one scholarship for each state to send a delegate to the National 4-H Congress, and awards $1,000 scholarships to six of those delegates.

The objectives of the petroleum power program include the safe operation, troubleshooting and maintenance of engines and related equipment, understanding the production, selection, use, conservation and handling of fuels and lubricants, develop buying habits based on cost benefit analysis, and to practice and promote wise use of energy.

Greunke has excelled in the Small Engines project series and the district and state small engines contests. He was a state fair winner in 1986 and in national competition (Western Engineers Contest in Omaha) he finished fifth.

Assistance needed

Farm Credit ideas highlighted

The viewpoint that the Farm Credit System will need some substantial amount of federal money to return to good working order is gaining support from all quarters.

Where formerly there was some hope that the system's own resources could be used to get the FCS back on its feet, now even the Government Accounting Office is acknowledging, "There ain't no way."

Nebraska Farm Bureau has been deeply involved in finding solutions for the Farm Credit System's problems. State President Bryce Neidig, a cash grain farmer from Madison, has been chairing the Farm Credit Study Committee for the American Farm Bureau. On the national level, Farm Bureau has been more involved in the farm credit issue than any other organization outside of the federal government.

Farm Bureau agrees that the FCS needs some federal money, in order to return to being a viable supplier of ag credit at competitive rates. But that money should come with some strings attached.

How much the system needs isn't known exactly — the system itself has been a little cozy with that information. Farm Bureau estimates between $4 billion and $10 billion during a three-year period, in the form of a long-term loan.

THAT ASSISTANCE should be targeted to where it's most needed within the system. Those of us in Nebraska know of the Omaha District's problems, but there are other FCS districts that are doing okay. It's those healthier districts that have been called upon to use their surplus funds to help other parts of the system. Those inter-district transfers should be stopped, to prevent erosion of confidence in the member banks of the healthier districts. And to restore confidence in the Omaha and Spokane, Wash., districts, farmer-borrowers who lost stock when local Production Credit

Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation
by Cheryl Stubbendieck, Vice President/Information

Associations were liquidated should be reimbursed from the federal infusion.

The federal government should create a new entity to administer the money lent to the FCS. Although the farm credit system in the U.S. has many parts, a new outside body is needed. But it should exist only as long as necessary, until the money is repaid, or somewhere between 10 and 15 years. With this authority given to a new entity, the sun should set immediately on the Farm Credit Capital Corporation.

To avoid annual political battles to get the money, the FCS should have a line of credit with the U.S. Treasury, up to a certain amount.

In distributing the federal money, the new entity should encourage local associations and the 12 FCS districts to work out problem loans, to return as many as possible to an accrual basis, where they are earning something. Debt restructuring, interest rate reductions, shared pre-emption mortgages and partial liquidation are some of the means available; they have been used very successfully in the FCS' St. Paul, Minn., district. Whenever it's cheaper for the system to work with a farmer to keep him operating in one form or another, as opposed to foreclosing, the loan should be worked out.

THE FCS can also do a better job of managing its interest rate risk, through such readily available means as interest rate swaps and callable bonds; it needs to call upon expertise not available within the system for some of this.

Many of these ideas are expected to be introduced in a U.S. Senate bill in early May. When it debates this legislation, Congress can do its part by keeping the Farm Credit System separate from the farm program issue — aid to the FCS should not come at the expense of current farm programs. Congress can also help the FCS by creating a secondary mortgage market for first mortgage ag real estate loans. This will make credit more readily available at the local level by letting local lenders of all kinds spread the risk.

These are the highlights of Farm Bureau's plan. Because of the exhaustive study that has gone into developing them, they deserve serious consideration. They deal with the Farm Credit System's problems in a constructive way and should lead to lower interest rates for the system's borrowers — which is the whole reason for the system in the first place.
