Boomerang boom

SECOND GRADERS at Wayne Elementary School learned how to make and throw boomerangs as part of a study in aeronautics. Mike Larson, aerospace education specialist at the Nebraska Dept. of Aeronautics, flew in to Wayne and explained the airplane's functions while at the Wayne Municipal Airport, and then he and the students returned to the school where he showed the youngsters how to make boomerangs. He gave boomerang toss demonstrations to the students.

Volunteers sought as guardians

There are people in northeast Nebraska who need the services of a guardian or conservator.

Some need assistance in handling financial matters. Others need help in filing out proper legal forms when their future is dependent on a signature.

Would anyone be interested in working as a volunteer to provide this necessary assistance?

The Volunteers for Guardianship Issues Committee, made-up of members from various agencies in Madison and Wayne County, would certainly like to meet anyone expressing an interest in fulfilling the guardianship or conservator role. There is a need to help those who are elderly, chronically mentally ill or adults with mental retardation or physical limitations living in northeast Nebraska.

Committee members include Michael Puls, Community Resource Development Coordinator for the Department of Social Services; Andrea Lindner, director of Social Service at Region IV Office of Developmental Disabilities in Wayne; Roberta Behm from the Northeast Nebraska Area Agency on Aging; Ross Henke representing the Norfolk Regional Center; Laurie

Hultgren representing the Liberty Center; Glenn Lane representing the Social Security Administration; and Lori McClain as a representative of Legal Aid.

THE VOLUNTEERS for Guardianship Issues Committee (VFGI) was formed in March of 1986, according to Puls, who was with Lindner to promote the VFGI program in an interview with The Wayne Herald on Monday afternoon.

VFGI was formed to recruit and train volunteer guardians, conservators, payees and power of attorneys, to educate the public on the need for these volunteers and explain the legal options that are available to them.

Those who are eligible to receive a volunteer are those from northeast Nebraska, age 18 years of age or older, who need a guardian or conservator or other forms of assistance, and has no family member willing to serve in a guardian/conservator capacity, according to Lindner.

The recruitment for volunteers began just two months ago and is just in the opening stages, according to

From WHS Seniors receive diplomas

Eighty-three seniors were awarded diplomas during the afternoon graduation exercise.

The program began with the professional played by the Wayne-High Varsity Band and the invocation by Pastor Ted Youngerman of Grace Lutheran Church.

Following the Salutatorian Award to Green, graduating senior Jay Bruna performed a vocal solo "Up Where We Belong" and then the Wayne High School Varsity Choir sang "To Everything There is A Season."

The graduation address was provided by Dr. William R. Donohue, vice president for Student Life at the University of South Dakota.

Orr: Not a tax increase

New income tax law passed

Nebraska has a new income tax system.

The first major change in the state's income tax system in 20 years became law at 6:14 p.m. Thursday, May 7, when Governor Kay Orr signed LB 773. The bill had passed less than two hours earlier by a 30-11 legislative vote.

Twenty years ago when Nebraska established the state income and sales tax as a replacement to the state property tax, lawmakers created an easy-to-administer system. They made Nebraska's tax rate simply a percentage of the taxpayer's federal tax liability.

Consultants two decades ago recommended against that. They recommended the state tie its tax base to the federal adjusted gross income in order to avoid being subject to every change in the federal tax code.

That's what Nebraska's legislature did this year. The new system begins this calendar year — for the tax returns that will be filed next April 15.

Specifically it establishes a five-tiered tax system with rates ranging from 2 percent to 5.9 percent. It is more complex than the current system.

THE BASE IS the federal adjusted gross income, less the number of federal personal exemptions multiplied by $1,100 and less deductions. The state's standard deduction table will be $3,740 for married couples and $2,530 for single taxpayers.

The tax rates apply to graduated income amounts. For example a married couple will pay 2 percent of the first $3,000 in taxable income, 3.15 percent of the next $25,000, 5 percent of the next $17,000, and 5.9 percent of the excess. Only married couples with incomes above $45,000 will hit the 5.9 percent bracket.

In general the new tax system means that lower income taxpayers and high income taxpayers will pay less in state income taxes compared to this year. Middle income taxpayers will pay more.

The hike for the middle income produced much rhetoric on the legislative floor. But the rhetoric did not translate into enough votes to lower rates for the middle income.

Sen. Cap Dierks of Ewing talked about the new tax system in relation ship to tax breaks the Legislature may give to large businesses and the tax break for the troubled Ak-Sar-Ben race track.

"I find it extremely hypocritical to, from one side of our mouth, take taxes away from big business in Nebraska and, from the other side of our mouth, add to the tax burden of all Nebraskans," he said.

"From one side of our mouth we provide help for the sport of kings and from the other side of our mouth we burden already overburdened middle-income Nebraskans."

Reminder to wear seat belts

Bells toll Monday

Nebraska Governor Kay Orr tops the list of over 40 public service organizations and business that have endorsed the "Keep the Good Life" effort. Gov. Orr has signed a proclamation pledging all Nebraskans to strive toward a zero traffic death and zero serious injury holiday weekend.

A recent study completed for the Nebraska Office of Highway Safety showed that safety belt use in Nebraska has dropped to 29%—that's down 11% since October. The cost has been great—needless fatalities and serious injuries are paid for all persons, not simply the victim—in increased taxes, insurance premiums and health-care costs, the Nebraska Office of Highway Safety said. More important, if a person is killed or seriously injured, it affects many more people than the victim, the statewide agency added.

The National Safety Council estimates that on a typical holiday weekend, traffic accidents may kill between 350 and 450 people. An additional 15,000 to 20,000 individuals may suffer disabling injuries. "Bells for Life" will help make motorists more aware to drive carefully, to wear their safety belt over the Memorial Day weekend and, hopefully, even afterwards, the Safety Council pointed out.

Fred Zwonechek, Nebraska Office of Highway Safety administrator, said, "Survivor stories are good—but they're not enough to get people to buckle up, or drive sober. Unfortunately, those individuals who would be most convincing did not survive the collisions in which they were involved."

Doesn't like double-dip

Conway explains amendment

In a previous column, I wrote that I was dissatisfied with LB 775, the corporate tax incentive bill sponsored by Governor Orr and advocated by her as being necessary to encourage economic development in Nebraska. I voted against the bill on General File because of objections to an amendment that was attached relating to personal property tax exemptions for corporate jets and mainframe computers. With this amendment, corporations can receive both income tax credits and property tax exemptions on the same project.

This past week, an amendment was adopted to LB 775. This was the so-called "Taggares amendment" which is intended to encourage the P.J. Taggares Company to build a potato processing plant in north-central Nebraska. This amendment allows a qualifying business (minimum of a $10 million investment) to receive personal property tax exemptions on purchases of new equipment rather than claim the tax credits permitted by the bill. For each $1 of property tax exemption received, the business would have to give up $1.25 worth of the income and sales tax credits.

With this in mind, I offered language which requires that the jets and computers receive the same treatment as the new equipment and must either take the property tax exemption or the tax credits, but not both. This amendment has caused a great deal of controversy and will undoubtedly stir debate this week. Since the addition of my amendment, Con-Agra, the biggest intended user of these tax breaks, has launched an all-out campaign to have my amendment removed so that they can take advantage of the double dip provision that was allowed before my amendment was attached.

ALTHOUGH, I am a firm supporter of economic development, I believe Con-Agra is asking for too much. During difficult economic times, a big business that is earning a 20% return on investment, should not be allowed to shift so much of the tax burden to the individual taxpayers. Between LB 772, 773, and now 775 there are millions of dollars in tax breaks for Con-Agra and its executives; now they say they will leave the state unless the bills pass with only their amendments.

LB 185, the proposal that would exempt farm equipment and repair parts from sales tax, was brought back to Select File for additional amendments this past week. The bill was amended from its original form after Senator Rex Haberman of Imperial, the bill's sponsor, became aware that the Governor said he would be forced to veto the measure because it would be too costly during this budget period.

In response to the Governor's statements, Senator Haberman offered an amendment version that would reduce the scope of the bill to apply to the tax exemption to only certain repair parts which would save the ag community approximately $4.5 million in sales taxes over the next two years. The bill has a very good chance of passing once the language is ironed out so that only those parts that are used on farm equipment will be exempt.

I would like to offer my congratulations to Gretchen Hirschbach of South Sioux City for being appointed by Governor Orr to the State College Board of Trustees. Gretchen has a long history of public service to northeast Nebraska and will represent us well as a Trustee governing our State College System.

Good meet

Members of the Wayne Lions Club have received a number of compliments pertaining to the Wayne County track meet for first through sixth grade students which was held on Saturday, May 16. Approximately 350 children participated in the meet, and many of their parents, relatives and friends came to watch the competition. We are proud to have sponsored such a successful event.

It is important, however, to recognize the efforts of those individuals who were most instrumental in the meet's success. Doug Dotson and Ron Carnes deserve a special thank you for the many hours they spent in organizing and coordinating the meet. Also, members of the Wayne Public School faculty, Wayne High track team members, and other Wayne residents who volunteered their time to help as timers, measurers, starters, pickers, announcers, etc. are to be commended.

Once again, thanks to all who contributed to the success of the meet. We look forward to sponsoring this event next year.

Another 'gripe'

All the letters published recently regarding taxes have compelled me to write yet another "gripe" letter. In December of 1984, a house we had in Wayne County burned down. When we received the tax notice in 1985, we were still being taxed on that house.

I contacted someone at the assessor's office regarding this error and was told it was too late to change the rate on that statement. But I was "assured" it would be corrected on the next year's taxes. I accepted that explanation and paid those taxes.

Then, when I received the notice in 1986, I was still being taxed for a house that burned down two years prior.

Once again, not nearly so calm as the first time, I called Doris Stipp at the assessor's office and was told they had no record of a formal complaint from the previous year, so I would have to pay again, on a house that doesn't exist. When I explained that I had contacted them by phone the year before and had been assured the taxes would be corrected on this statement, I was, in so many words, called a liar.

Needless to say, I was quite upset and let them know my feelings. After being "ripped off" two years in a row, who wouldn't? It sure didn't take the assessor's office two years to raise those taxes when extensive remodeling was done!!

By definition in "Webster's New World Dictionary", an assessor is "a person who sets an estimated value on (property, etc.) for taxation."

If those of us in other careers ignored our duties, as the assessor has in this case, we'd most likely be forced to seek other employment.

Karnes introduces resolution

POW/MIA answers sought

Senator David Karnes announced that he is co-sponsoring a resolution designed to attack many of the problems that have plagued American efforts to resolve the POW/MIA situation in Southeast Asia.

"The needless ongoing suffering by the loved ones of these missing soldiers deserves any and all efforts we can offer," Karnes said. "This problem has been drawn out much too long."

The resolution co-sponsored by Karnes asks the President to send a personal envoy to Vietnam to negotiate a solution to the remaining humanitarian issues with the Vietnam government. Gen. John Vessey was recently appointed as the administration's special representative to Vietnam, and it is hoped that he will go to Vietnam immediately and start negotiations.

The resolution calls for establishing permanent offices in the capitals of both countries with their primary purpose being to process requests for information. "One of the most vexing problems we have had is that there is no reliable system for communicating back and forth between our two countries," Karnes said.

"The most serious problem, of course, is the accounting of American POWs and MIAs," Karnes said. "However, the action request also calls for negotiating quick and fair solutions to other humanitarian issues in Southeast Asia."

The resolution was introduced by Senator Mark Hatfield (R-Ore.) and has been referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Compromise legislation

Farmer Mac refined

I am an original cosponsor of a new bill just introduced in the House of Representatives that will create a secondary market for agricultural real-estate loans. This bill is a compromise piece of legislation put together by the American Bankers Association, the Independent Bankers Association of America and the American Council of Life Insurance. It has the support of all major farm groups.

The bill is a refinement of the Farmer Mac legislation introduced in the 99th Congress and again this year by Congressman Richard Lehman of California and me. When we reintroduced our bill in January, we asked these trade associations to work out a compromise that would be acceptable to all parties involved.

Under the proposed legislation the secondary-market entity would be governed by a small board composed of equal representation from the Farm Credit System and non-Farm Credit System institutions, as well as representatives from the farming community and the general public.

This newly introduced bill strikes a careful balance between the Farm Credit System, the bankers and the life insurance companies, so that all can participate and none will unfairly dominate the structure and control of the secondary market entity.

BOTH THE HOUSE Agriculture Committee and the House Banking Committee, on which I serve, will have jurisdiction over the legislation. Because of my insistence that there will be no bailout of the Farm Credit System unless legislation creating a secondary market entity is included or has been passed previously, the bill will go first to the Agriculture Committee, giving that committee an opportunity to attach it to any future bailout proposals.

This secondary market bill proposed by the American Bankers Association tion, the Independent Bankers and the Council of Life Insurance has also been introduced in the Senate. The Nebraska Bankers Association and the Nebraska Independent Bankers Association have all worked hard on this bill, and their efforts have been important to the progress of this legislation.

A Skilled Workforce Is Essential

If the United States is to be competitive in international markets, we must have a skilled workforce. I am cosponsoring a bill which responds to the inconsistency between our efforts to increase competitiveness and our neglect of human capital development. The National Training Incentives Act attempts to better balance our investment incentives and encourages both workers and employers to prepare for inevitable changes in job requirements, technological demands, economic developments, and skills.

Training and education traditionally contribute 50% to the growth in productivity, but our tax code, even after tax reform, discriminates substantially against investment in retraining and in favor of investment in plant and equipment and research and development. Worker retraining provisions will cost $25 million in fiscal year 1988, while tax incentives for R&D and plant and equipment will total $0 billion. This represents a ratio of over 2000 to 1.

THE NATIONAL Training Incentives Act will:

- permit employers to take a 20% tax credit for training expenses over a five-year historical average;
- allow individuals who have individual retirement plans to withdraw savings (up to $5,000 over five years) without penalty or taxation to pay for employment retraining, thereby drawing on an already established network of retirement financing which currently reaches over 15 million largely working class households;

This legislation does not require large Federal outlays—a complex government delivery system. Instead, it is demand driven, generating $5 in private-sector financed training for Federal dollar.

Theft noted

Dear Whoever you may be: When you removed the flag holder from the grave of Cpl. Enoch Hunter who served with Co. I, Illinois Cavalry and is buried at LaPorte Cemetery near Wayne, for what ever reason you may have had, you added another expense to follow Wayne County Taxpayers. You are asked to return it before Memorial Day. Another thing that is not appreciated is the busting of glass containers over the grave stones in the LaPorte Cemetery.

Close Up encounter

Recently, 616 Nebraska high school students visited Washington, D.C. to participate in the week-long government studies program conducted by the Close Up Foundation.

Students and their teachers followed a fast-paced schedule as they discussed current issues with members of their Congressional delegation, questioned Washington experts on domestic and foreign policy, and experienced the pulse of the nation's capital.

The students had an opportunity to learn more about our democratic system of government and about themselves as they worked along side their peers from around the country. Participation was open to any student regardless of grade point average, extracurricular activities, or physical handicap. As the Close Up Foundation's coordinator for Nebraska schools, I was impressed with the energy, enthusiasm and curiosity demonstrated by each of the participants.

To assure a mix of students from all income levels, fellowships for local schools were made possible through a grant from Burlington Northern Foundation, Commonwealth Companies, Inc., The ConAgra Charitable Foundation, Inc., Control Data Corporation, The Cooper Foundation, Enron Foundation, Peter Klewitt Foundation, Omaha World-Herald Foundation, RJR Nabisco, Inc., and the Union Pacific Foundation.

On behalf of the Close Up Foundation, I want to congratulate all of the Nebraska participants, schools, and sponsors who helped make the week a rewarding and enriching experience.

Saturday more than 352 Wayne County grade school kids turned out to compete in the first-ever Wayne County Track meet.

The event had to be termed a large success. The meet was put on by Wayne school staff members and the Wayne Lions Club. The Lions Club picked up the entry fee for all the young athletes.

The meet started at 8:45 a.m. and lasted until about 4 that afternoon. The spirit was high for all the participants and the large gallery of onlookers.

All the entrants were winners at the meet. Even the kids who didn't finish in the top five places received a ribbon for participating.

Congratulations should be given to all who helped make the meet run smoothly.

The only hitch came after the meet. The results of all the events were misplaced so they won't appear in The Wayne Herald.

Kids make sure you take your parents out fishing the week of June 1-7.

President Reagan has proclaimed that week National Fishing Week. In an article appearing in the Future Fisherman Foundation May issue, Reagan said the week is to recognize the 60 million residents of the United States who participate in the sport of fishing. The theme for the week is "Hooked on Fishing — Not on Drugs."

Beginning with this issue a new sports column will appear in this section.

The column will be titled "Sports Med Line." It is written by a physician and physical therapist from Saint Anthony Medical Center in Louisville, Kentucky.

The column by Dr. Stephen Henry and physical therapist Regina Durbin will appear once a week. The columnists encourage the readers to send any questions they may have to the sports department at The Wayne Herald. I will then forward them on to Saint Anthony's.

Henry is an instructor in the department of orthopedic surgery at the University of Louisville. He is also a physician consultant at Saint Anthony Sports Medicine and Rehabilitation Center.

Durbin is presently the director of the sports medicine and rehabilitation center and associate director of the rehabilitation medicines services at Saint Anthony Medical Center.

Hopefully this column will help the recreational athlete as well as the serious competitor remain healthy.

Guest speaker Terry Pettit told an amusing but true story at the Wayne-Carroll High School Sports Banquet Tuesday evening.

Pettit, coach of the University of Nebraska women's volleyball team, came to the banquet dressed casual in a pair of dress slacks, sports coat and tie and a pair of tennis shoes.

Pettit said there was an embarrassing reason for the tennis shoes. The coach said he has recently moved into a new house, along with his pet cat. Since the move, the cat has lost at least one of every pair of dress shoes that Pettit owns. Thus, he wears tennis shoes everywhere he goes. That must be one large feline.

The Wayne high golf team will have an advantage over many of the other teams participating at the Class B State Golf Meet in McCook on Thursday because of several caring parents.

The parents of the golfers paid for the boys and Coach Terry Munson to fly to McCook last weekend and practice at the Heritage Country Club, the site of the tournament.

That's dedication! Wouldn't it be nice if the Blue Devils could thank their parents with Wayne's second state championship in three years.

Pettit speaks at banquet

Terry Pettit highlighted the evening at the Wayne-Carroll High School Sports Banquet Tuesday night at the Wayne State College Student Activities Center.

Pettit, coach of the nationally acclaimed Nebraska women's volleyball team, was the guest speaker for the event. Pettit spoke to the audience for about 40 minutes following a dinner of roast beef or ham, baked potato, vegetable, salad and a roll sponsored by the Wayne Booster Club.

The CVCA National Coach of the Year spoke on the advancement of the woman's role in sports and in everyday life. Pettit also delivered an important message to the student athletes. He stressed that hard work on the practice field as well as the playing field is what will help achieve success. He said that applies to athletes as well as non-athletes.

Following Pettit's address, coaches Doug Donnelson, girls track; Al Hansen, boys track; and Terry Munson, boys golf, presented athlete letters to recipients in their respective sports. Several of the athletes were given special recognition for their performance on the field, court, track and course.

The evening came to a close with the presentation of several special awards. Dr. Donald Zels, principal of Wayne-Carroll High School, presented the Moller Memorial Award to Marc Rahn and Jodi Dittman. The award goes to the students who best symbolize sportsmanship, citizenship and scholarship.

The winner of this year's Terry Johnson Award, presented by Athletic Director Ron Carnes, was Robin Luft. The award is presented to the freshman or sophomore basketball player who is most coachable and hard working.

Missy Jones and Troy Wood were the recipients of the Wayne County Law Enforcement Award presented by Dave Nicholson and LeRoy Janssen. The last award of the evening was the Outstanding Boy and Girl Athlete. Bill Liska received the award in the boys' division while there was a tie for the girls' award. Rather than select one Kecla Corbit and Shelly Pick were chosen as co-winners of the award.

Wakefield drops game to North Bend

Wakefield let one slip away in the team's Dodge County opener on Sunday.

Wakefield dropped a 12-11 decision to North Bend at the Benders home park. Trailing 11-6 the hosts erupted for six runs in the bottom of the eighth inning to saddle Joel Ankeny with the loss.

Ankeny was Wakefield's third pitcher. Bob Utemark started and went the first four innings. Mark Starzl tossed three frames before giving way to Ankeny. Bruce Busse earned the win for North Bend in a relief appearance.

Wakefield out hit the winners 17-16. The visitors were powered by four home runs. Neil Blohm led the attack with two home runs. Blohm finished 3-5 at the plate with three RBI's. Wayne Guy went 2-4, which included a roundtripper. Utemark added the other home run. Jeff Coble finished the game with three hits.

Wakefield, 0-1, will travel to West Point tonight (Thursday) for an 8:15 p.m. contest. Its home opener is Sunday when they host Fremont at 7:30 p.m.

Taste depends on proper care

With the onset of summer, good fishermen and good cooks may be sharing the same dream: finding the freshest and most flavorful catch of the day.

Whether it's a white bass or a bluegill, proper care of the fish from reel to table will help ensure good taste and texture.

Keep the fish alive as long as possible to preserve freshness, said Edward Peters, professor of forestry, fisheries and wildlife at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. Once the fish is killed, clean it quickly because flavor deteriorates rapidly.

Remove the gills and the entrails from the body cavity and rinse with fresh water. Also remove the darker fatty deposits right below the skin because they will cause a stronger fishy flavor and may carry concentrated levels of pesticides or chemicals, Peters said.

Keep the catch cool after cleaning by storing it in a plastic bag on ice. It's best to cool the catch down to a point just above freezing, he said. For longer term storage, cleaned fish should be tightly wrapped to exclude oxygen and then rapidly frozen.

If ice isn't readily available, the cleaned catch should be kept out of the sun or water in a cool place where air will circulate.

Summer also provides the perfect opportunity to enjoy fish on the grill, a low-fat alternative to more traditional grilled meats, said Scottie Misner, UNL extension foods and nutrition specialist.

Fish are good sources of protein, minerals and vitamins and are usually low in calories. Most fish contain low amounts of fat as compared to other meats, Misner said. However, the amount can vary from 1 percent for cod to about 20 percent for salmon.

For fresh water fish, Misner said, bluegill and striped bass are considered high in fat while catfish, crappie, perch, pike, trout and walleye are considered lean.

Most kinds of fish are good broiled or fried, and many are good baked, boiled, steamed or poached, depending on the cook's preferences.

One quick cooking method is to add a little butter, salt, pepper and dill weed and then broil 10-15 minutes, turning once. Actual cooking time will depend on the size and thickness of the fish.

Fish is completely cooked when the flesh at the thickest part is opaque and the juices are milky colored, Misner said. The flesh will easily flake at the bone when done.

Sports Med Line

By Stephen Henry, M.D. and Regina Durbin, P.T.

Ankle sprains are perhaps the most common injuries experienced by athletes. Usually found in basketball, volleyball, football and soccer, sprains can occur in most any athletic event. For the most part, ankle sprains are not serious injuries, however, if improperly treated can result in prolonged recovery and delayed return to the sport.

WHAT IS AN ANKLE SPRAIN?

It is a tearing of small fibrous bands (ligaments) attaching the many bones of the foot and ankle. In mild sprains only these ligaments are injured. In severe sprains the ankle bones displace tearing muscles and other ankle tissues. It is this injury to the muscles and soft tissue that produces the swelling and pain. One important fact to remember is that the stability of the ankle depends upon the ligament bands. Even in the presence of minimal swelling, the injury can result in an unstable ankle. The coach, trainer and athlete should be cautious when assessing this injury. Eight out of 10 times the ankle sprain is found on the outer aspect of the ankle. Injuries to the inner aspect are more serious and require a longer healing time before the athlete returns to action.

HOW SHOULD THE SPRAIN BE TREATED?

Ice, ice, ice! Initially, swelling in the muscles, ligaments and soft tissues occurs as a response to injury. This swelling is a significant problem which increases pain and delays return to walking and running. Ice application causes a constriction of the blood vessels and thus less swelling. Also important is elevation of the foot. Avoid standing with crutches or sitting in a chair with the foot hanging down towards the floor.

Examination by your physician is best within the first three to four hours (golden period) before swelling pain and muscle spasm increase. It is an important time for your physician to make an accurate diagnosis and recommend appropriate treatment (Ace wrap, splint or cast). X-rays may be necessary to rule out a fracture or a dislocation of the bones of the ankle. It is best to keep the athlete on crutches bearing no weight on the foot. After 48 hours, toe touching on crutches is started, however, stopped if painful. As a general rule, if pain is experienced with weight bearing, then crutches should be continued.

If the ankle has a mild to moderate sprain and is stable, early treatments with hot and cold contrast baths, ultrasound and other modalities increase healing. If the ankle is unstable, casting is sometimes recommended to allow proper healing. In severe ankle injuries, surgical repair may be the best choice. This is especially true for athletes who will participate on a college level and who will require good ankle function.

PREPARING THE ATHLETE TO RETURN

Once the pain and soreness has resolved, strengthening and stretching exercises are started. Slow jogging is started with taping or bracing of the ankle. Conditioning is progressed according to the amount of pain experienced during exercise. Once the athlete has returned to normal training, supportive taping is then suggested to prevent re-injury. Complete ligament healing takes approximately 20 weeks. If the athlete is participating in a high risk sport, high top shoes are also recommended.

Ankle injuries are often complex and prompt treatment may allow an earlier return to the sport and delayed onset of arthritis. If you have a serious ankle injury, please consult your physician for proper treatment.

CITY MAYOR Wayne Marsh signed a proclamation earlier in May announcing Business and Industries Recognition Month.

The proclamation states that Wayne's existing businesses and industries are a very important segment of economic development; and that the city's potential for economic growth comes in part from within, through the expansion of existing businesses and industries and the establishment of new, home-grown companies.

The proclamation further states that the many various businesses and industries now existing in Wayne have an influence, either directly or indirectly, upon the lives of every one of the community's citizens.

It adds that public awareness and understanding of the importance of business and industry to the local economy is vital to the maintenance of a "favorable business climate" and that a "favorable business climate" is a major factor in the decision of officials of existing plants to expand their operations and in the attraction of new industry.

Marsh urged all Wayne citizens to "take this opportunity to salute the businesses and industries located in our community, and to pay tribute to the employees of that company for their role in building Wayne."

Guardians

Puls. "What the requirements are for volunteers, Linder and Puls said, include:

- That the individual who volunteers be 21 years of age or older.
- The volunteer must be committed to serving as a volunteer for a minimum of 12 months.
- The volunteers must complete six hours of training, have a phone and money management skills.
- Puls said it is better for the volunteer to have some sort of income. "We [the committee] feel better about this if we know the volunteer is not getting into this just to take someone else's money."
- "We would like to recruit volunteers who have stability and in their residence or in their jobs so they won't be jumping around and leaving town in six months."
- "Having a car and a phone is very important," Puls said.
- "This is not a 'do whenever I want to job," Puls mentioned. "Working with other peoples' lives can be a full-time job."

MOST OF THE people who need a guardian or conservator to assist in financial matters will not be dealing with large sums of money," Puls said. "We're not talking major dollars here," he added. "Most of the wards of the guardian or conservator are receiving some form of federal or state financial assistance."

Linder said those who usually need the volunteers' assistance, as guardians or conservators, are those who are mentally retarded, or those suffering from a mental illness or those who are elderly.

But the volunteer may not be working solely with the finances of the person they represent. There may be times when the guardian or conservator must sign on the dotted line for the individual which they represent because of health emergencies or in some instances, releases from regional centers.

In some instances, there are people who need assistance who must stay at the regional center for unnecessary lengths of time because there have been no guardians assigned to him or her.

Volunteers are not reimbursed for their services, according to Lindner.

THE AGENCIES represented in VFGI will always continue providing the regular services to whom the volunteer represents. "We'll still be providing those services. But we can't always serve as the best advocate," Lindner said.

All the applicants for becoming a volunteer as a guardian or conservator are interviewed by committee members of VFGI. Currently, there are three volunteers who have committed themselves as guardians to people in Madison and Wayne Counties. But judging by the amount of applications of people seeking volunteer assistance, more volunteers are definitely needed.

To make sure the volunteer is not taking any advantage of the person they represent, there are checks and balances to see things are financially accountable.

But Puls doesn't want people to worry lawsuits. "Unless the guardian or conservator is being grossly negligent or being deliberately dishonest, the liability issue never arises," he said.

"We have an attorney from legal aid who can answer any questions for potential volunteers," he mentioned.

LINDNER SAID the volunteers are "not responsible for the actions of the ward."

"We just ask that they [the volunteers] treat who they represent with decency and with equity," Puls said.

Becoming a volunteer guardian or conservator is a meaningful way to give to other people, Lindner mentioned.

"You can help yourself by helping others," said Puls.

Said one member of the VFGI committee:

"You guys may wonder what type of qualifications one has to have to volunteer to do this."

"The only qualification you need is to have a big heart and a concern about what happens to others."

"Volunteering will also provide an opportunity for individuals to become more aware of social service agencies and the laws surrounding this area," said Puls.

"It could be a real learning experience."

For more information about becoming a volunteer, or obtaining a volunteer for yourself or a client, call the Region IV Office of Developmental Disabilities in Wayne (375-2880), Department of Social Services (644-3180) or the Legal Aid Society (644-3171).

Water needs considered legitimate

By Chuck Hackenmilller
Managing Editor

Ken Salmon of Salmon Well Company in Wakefield has been drilling wells for many years around the Wayne area.

He knows about aquifers and the quality of water that exists in the Wayne water supply. And he knows there are people who are not convinced that Wayne would be experiencing a water shortage in the near future if the city continues using the present water source; or that the best source of water supply is on property located approximately six miles north of Wayne.

But he will explain to those people, as he has to others, that the city's decision to seek another aquifer and to drill wells about six miles north of Wayne is not without reason.

"It amounts to going to a matter of going where the water is," Salmon said.

THERE DEFINITELY is a need to search for another source, he said. Since the city had installed the water system in the 1920's, the water level "has been going down pretty fast" in the tapped aquifer, to about a foot a year, according to Salmon.

Salmon Well Company does business within a 70 mile radius around Wakefield. Salmon said he can look at maps and the log books showing wells the company has drilled which eventually can identify the water sources in the area.

There is some water sources closer to Wayne, but not tremendous amounts, he mentioned. "And it's not good water," he said.

Other areas have impurities in the water which have to be removed, and that would cost the city more money in the long run, he mentioned.

The new aquifer is much larger than the present one and would contain less impurities. The aquifer which will be tapped is part of the Ogallala formation, he said, that expands to cover an area of from 25 to 30 miles.

"The area goes into Belden and Carroll. There are a lot of good irrigation wells in that country," Salmon said.

He believes the city council was right in going with something more definite. "They are not spending money just to spend money," he added.

When a death occurs - what do I do first?

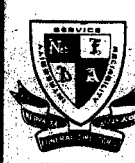

How do I tell the children? What information will I be needing? What about cemetery spaces? What about social security or veterans benefits?

These questions and many others confront people when there is a death in the family. Yet at times like these it can be difficult to handle these questions or make decisions. By planning for the future, we can be prepared by making some of these decisions now.

Part of the planning for the future, is the realization that death will come to each of us someday, and planning for that day.

Your local Funeral Director is a trained professional who is dedicated in providing such counseling and services, and would be happy to help.

• The volunteer must be committed to serving as a volunteer for a minimum of 12 months.
• The volunteers must complete six hours of training, have a phone and money management skills.
— Puls said it is better for the volunteer to have some sort of income. "We (the committee) feel better about this if we know the volunteer is not getting into this just to take someone else's money."
— "We would like to recruit volunteers who have stability and in their residence or in their jobs so they won't be jumping around and leaving town in six months."
— "Having a car and a phone is very important," Puls said.
— "This is not a 'do whenever I want to job," Puls mentioned. "Working with other peoples' lives can be a full-time job."

MOST OF THE people who need a guardian or conservator to assist in financial matters will not be dealing with large sums of money," Puls said. "We're not talking major dollars here," he added. "Most of the wards of the guardian or conservator are receiving some form of federal or state financial assistance."
Linder said those who usually need the volunteers' assistance, as guardians or conservators, are those who are mentally retarded, or those suffering from a mental illness or those who are elderly.
But the volunteer may not be working solely with the finances of the person they represent. There may be times when the guardian or conservator must sign on the dotted line for the individual which they represent because of health emergencies or in some instances, releases from regional centers.
In some instances, there are people who need assistance who must stay at the regional center for unnecessary lengths of time because there have been no guardians assigned to him or her.

Volunteers are not reimbursed for their services, according to Linder.
THE AGENCIES represented in VFGI will always continue providing the regular services to whom the volunteer represents. "We'll still be providing those services. But we can't always serve as the best advocate," Linder said.
All the applicants for becoming a volunteer as a guardian or conservator are interviewed by committee members of VFGI. Currently there are three volunteers who have committed themselves as guardians to people in Madison and Wayne Counties. But judging by the amount of applications of people seeking volunteer assistance, more volunteers are definitely needed.
To make sure the volunteer is not taking any advantage of the person they represent, there are checks and balances to see things are financially accountable.

But Puls doesn't want people to worry lawsuits. "Unless the guardian or conservator is being grossly negligent or being deliberately dishonest, the liability issue never arises," he said.
"We have an attorney from legal aid who can answer any questions for potential volunteers," he mentioned.
LINDNER SAID the volunteers are "not responsible for the actions of the ward."
"We just ask that they [the volunteers] treat who they represent with decency and with equity," Puls said.
Becoming a volunteer guardian or conservator is a meaningful way to give to other people, Linder mentioned.
"You can help yourself by helping others," said Puls.
Said one member of the VFGI committee:
"You guys may wonder what type of qualifications one has to have to volunteer to do this."
"The only qualification you need is to have a big heart and a concern about what happens to others."

"Volunteering will also provide an opportunity for individuals to become more aware of social service agencies and the laws surrounding this area," said Puls.
"It could be a real learning experience."

Water needs considered legitimate

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing Editor
Ken Salmon of Salmon Well Company in Wakefield has been drilling wells for many years around the Wayne area.
He knows about aquifers and the quality of water that exists in the Wayne water supply. And he knows there are people who are not convinced that Wayne would be experiencing a water shortage in the near future if the city continues using the present water source; or that the best source of water supply is on property located approximately six miles north of Wayne.

But he will explain to those people, as he has to others, that the city's decision to seek another aquifer and to drill wells about six miles north of Wayne is not without reason.
"It amounts to going to a matter of going where the water is," Salmon said.
THERE DEFINITELY is a need to search for another source, he said. Since the city had installed the water system in the 1920's, the water level "has been going down pretty fast" in the tapped aquifer, to about a foot a year, according to Salmon.

Salmon Well Company does business within a 70 mile radius around Wakefield. Salmon said he can look at maps and the log books showing wells the company has drilled which eventually can identify the water sources in the area.
There is some water sources closer to Wayne, but not tremendous amounts, he mentioned. "And it's not good water," he said.
Other areas have impurities in the water which have to be removed, and that would cost the city more money in the long run, he mentioned.

The new aquifer is much larger than the present one and would contain less impurities. The aquifer which will be tapped is part of the Ogallala formation, he said, that expands to cover an area of from 25 to 30 miles.
"The area goes into Belden and Carroll. There are a lot of good irrigation wells in that country," Salmon said.
He believes the city council was right in going with something more definite. "They are not spending money just to spend money," he added.

When a death occurs - what do I do first?

How do I tell the children? What information will I be needing? What about cemetery spaces? What about social security or veterans benefits? These questions and many others confront people when there is a death in the family. Yet at times like these it can be difficult to handle these questions or make decisions. By planning for the future, we can be prepared by making some of these decisions now.

Part of the planning for the future, is the realization that death will come to each of us someday, and planning for that day.

PINK EYE IN CATTLE IS COSTLY

Pink eye in cattle is a costly disease as it is associated with weight loss and poor gains. The disease causes a great deal of discomfort and pain and sometimes causes complete loss of sight in one or both eyes.

The term "pink eye" is misleading.

When a beef producer observes an inflamed eye, it is usually called pink eye, regardless of cause. Inflamed eyes can be caused by entry of living agents such as bacteria or viruses, frequently transmitted by flies or simply by foreign objects such as grass awns or soil particles. The bacterial organism Moraxella bovis is generally considered to be a major cause of eye infection ("Pink eye").

Effectiveness of treatments vary considerably, depending upon the causative agent.

If a foreign body such as a grass awn is the cause of the inflamed eye and it is removed, the recovery is usually rapid and favorable. However, it may not be easy to determine exact causes.

Treatment generally includes systemic or local use of antibiotics or antibacterial powders. Sometimes these are effective if the infection is susceptible to the drugs used.

Other supportive treatments sometimes include using cover patches to prevent light from entering the eye which probably offers some comfort to the animal.

Prevention is by far the best option in reducing loss from pink eye. Most preventive efforts are centered around control of fly carriers or the use of Moraxella bovis vaccine that is manufactured by at least two licensed companies. The vaccine requires two injections several weeks apart with one yearly booster.

Consult your veterinarian about treatment or further details concerning the use of these vaccines as a "pink eye" preventive measure.

EAR RINGING MAY BE WARNING OF TRACTOR DRIVERS

The noise or decibel level of farm tractors will vary from 80 to as high as 115. Research indicates that noise can damage the hearing of the farm operator. Ordinary conversation is rated at 60 decibels, an open car window near the ear rates a 95, a shotgun blast measures 130 and a jet with afterburner is 160 decibels.

Hearing loss caused by noise does not respond well to hearing aid treatment and is usually not improved by surgery. Various types of ear plugs and ear muffs are available.

While it is difficult to measure sound levels the operators might experience hearing deterioration through the following danger signals:

If ears ring or you experience head noises for a few hours after you get off the tractor after a day's work.

Or if after a day's work on the tractor, speech seems to be muffled when others try to communicate with you.

Though Nebraska corn producers are now in the fields or have finished planting, they should not look past their estimated cost of production, according to agricultural economist Doug Duey, of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Duey, an extension farm management economist at the Southeast Research and Extension Center, Lincoln, said cost projections were made to facilitate cash-flow planning, identify expenses which may be trimmed and set targets for marketing.

"Now is the time to monitor those projections with good records," Duey said. "With estimated costs, producers could have compared net returns on crops and determined, in particular, the amounts they could pay for rent or land."

Past records are most important to producers in calculating their own costs-per-acre or costs-per-bushel. Typically, these costs are divided into "cash" or "variable" costs and "fixed" costs.

"Farmers can quote 'cash' prices for seed, fertilizer, chemicals, fuel and custom hire quickly and easily," Duey said. "Land owners also know their taxes only too well."

Fixed costs are more difficult to identify. Such costs include the value of the operator's labor and management, machinery use, a charge for the use of land and the allocation of overhead expenses. "These costs are more elusive and some consider them as 'sunk' before production activity gets underway," Duey said.

DUEY PREPARED A sample cost-per-acre for dryland corn in east central Nebraska. Cash costs included $15 for seed, $12 for insecticide, $7 for herbicide, $6.40 for fertilizer, $5.43 for operating interest, $11.33 for custom hire, $11.73 for repairs and $4.45 for fuel and lubrication. Out-of-pocket cash costs totaled $73.31.

Fixed costs included a $48 land charge based on 6 percent of the $800 per acre land value. Other fixed costs were: land taxes, $12; operator's labor, $8.91; operator's management efforts, $8.50; overhead, $3.67; and machinery, $40.37. These fixed costs totaled $121.45, and fixed plus cash costs equaled $194.76.

Given an average yield of 85 bushels, the producer's total cost per bushel was $2.29.

Duey noted that loan payments could be much higher than land rent charges. Principle and interest on a 30-year loan at 10 percent would equal about $85 per acre, rather than the $48 land charge. In that situation, costs per bushel would rise substantially. Current input costs show some change from last year. "Fertilizer is a real bargain," Duey said. Interest rates and prices for seed and chemicals have fallen slightly, while costs for fuel, repairs and service may have increased.

AVERAGE COSTS per bushel vary throughout the state depending on land values, type of field preparation, and the use or non-use of irrigation. Corn planted in conservation tilled soybean residue in east central Nebraska costs the least: $2.03 per bushel. Center pivot irrigated corn in southeast Nebraska costs the most: $2.57 per bushel. The higher cost may be the result of higher land values used rather than the irrigation itself.

All the cost estimates exceed today's cash market price of about $1.50 per bushel. Most farmers, however, participate in government programs which may bring the income closer to $1.80 per bushel with a CCC loan.

Wildlife plots needed

Wildlife in Nebraska probably aren't experiencing the winter and early spring "pinch period" as much as in some years, but spring is coming and now's the time to think about planting something for wildlife to feed on next winter, which may not be as mild as '86-'87.

Planting a wildlife food plot near shelter is a good way to help. A food plot cover can help wildlife survive winter periods when other foods may be in short supply.

Considerations when planning a food plot include:

—Plant in a long, narrow shape, 10 to 30 feet in length, along the edge of a field.

—About 1/8 to 1/4 acre is a good size.

—Ideal planting would be at least one acre per 40 acres of crop land.

—Several food patches distributed over an area are better than one large patch.

—Plants that stand up well should be included so there will be food above the snow.

—Plots should be planted near cover. The plot will receive more use if cover for shelter from weather and escape from predators is nearby. A plot in the middle of a large, bare field would be used very little. A shelterbelt is a good planting site, particularly if it has good cover near the ground. Another good site is along a fence row, ravine, stream or odd area—especially those with grass and shrub cover to provide protection.

A mix of food varieties will dependably serve more wildlife needs. Grains to consider are millet, milo and a cultivated variety of sunflower. Millet is excellent for quail, pheasants, mourning doves and many kinds of songbirds. Milo is also used by quail, pheasants, songbirds and wild turkeys. Sunflowers are especially attractive to songbirds and a cultivated variety won't spread and take over the farm.

Seeds for wildlife food plantings will be available free of charge this spring from the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission. The seeds will be distributed through the Cooperative Extension Service and the SCS in Dixon and Wayne counties.

With Chapter 12 filings

Hotline network assists farmers

HOTLINE ASSISTS WORK—OUTS In the past three months the Nebraska Farm Crisis Hotline Network has helped more than 45 farmers and ranchers avoid potential bankruptcies through thoughtful, informed, financial workouts with their lender.

Since December, when President Reagan signed the new Chapter 12 provision of the Federal Bankruptcy Code which was created specifically for farmers and ranchers, the highest percentage of Hotline callers have been asking for bankruptcy information.

For those who have then contacted one of the Hotline Field Staff workers for further assistance, and after a complete financial assessment of the operation was made, the vast majority have resulted in settlements with lenders rather than bankruptcy filings.

The Farm Crisis Hotline Network, sponsored by Interchurch Ministries of Nebraska, has served over 2500 rural families in the past two and a half years. The Hotline's fifteen Field Staff serve 93 counties by responding to the Hotline callers personally and tapping the strong network of public and private services. One Field Staff worker in north central Nebraska called upon 59 different resources in the last six months alone.

Farm caller questions involve legal questions approximately 75% of the time. The need for legal assistance is great but the ability for farmers to pay for it is low. The Hotline has developed a list, which is in its second printing, of approximately 80 private attorneys willing to handle farm cases. Those who are income eligible are referred to Legal Services.

Field Staff workers can also assist farmers and ranchers and their attorneys. The legal consequences of default is generally complex and often intimidating. Field Staff help by supplying information and furthering communication between the parties.

For growing season ahead

Irrigation plans timely

Recent plentiful rains around Nebraska may cause some farmers to "space out" thinking about irrigation. But a good operator will have already begun to make plans for the upcoming irrigation season, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension irrigation specialist said.

"Some decisions need to be made now, prior to planting a crop," emphasized William Kranz. While actual watering may not occur for more than two months, plans need to be firmed up on the crop to plant, the planting rate, fertilizer and herbicide programs, he said.

"With today's low commodity prices and increasing input costs, economics should play a pivotal role in a crop-production enterprise," Kranz said.

After a farm decides which crop to plant on each parcel of land, he should develop a realistic yield goal.

Typically, Kranz said, this should be a 4-5 year average, plus five percent to 10 percent. However, the impact of the Farm Program also should be considered, he added. "In some cases, maximum profits result from reduced yields," the specialist noted.

Once an irrigator establishes a yield goal, the tillage-planting, fertilizer and irrigation requirements should be determined. These inputs should consider crop, soil type, field terrain and previous field history. "The key is to meet crop needs without over-applying materials such as seed, fertilizer and herbicides," Kranz said.

AN IMPORTANT decision for some irrigators involves deciding the level of participation in a load control program offered by the local power district. This decision must consider system capacity, soil water availability, and the crop to be irrigated. "If possible, try to maintain flexibility in operating schedule, as a one- to two-inch water application at a critical time may well offset the increased cost associated with the application."

Kranz also advised irrigators to check the entire distribution system.

An important consideration is electrical wiring. Check motors and electrical boxes for rodent damage or debris before power is turned on.

"A pumping plant evaluation could result in annual fuel cost savings of up to 30 percent and is strongly recommended for every four years to five years of operation."

Perform system maintenance on chain drives, gear boxes, drive belts, tires and nozzles.

"The important thing is to take care of these jobs prior to the start of the irrigation season," Kranz concluded.

Chemigation retesting offered

A retest for farmers who failed the Chemigation Test in March will be held at the Wayne County Extension Office, Thursday, May 21, 1 to 4 p.m. or at the Northeast Research & Extension Center, Concord, Friday, May 29, 1 to 4 p.m.

Field scout training

Personnel from the University of Nebraska will conduct an Integrated Pest Management Scout Training program at the Neligh Courthouse in Neligh, on Wednesday, May 27. The program will begin at 8:30 a.m. with registration and conclude at about 3 p.m.

This program is geared toward helping farmers, field scouts, consultants, and others interested in agriculture to recognize pest problems and fertility problems in the field. Irrigation scheduling techniques will also be presented.

The training will concentrate on problems in corn, soybeans, and alfalfa. There is no charge to attend the session, but a newly revised scout manual will be available for purchase at a cost of $22.

by Pat McElhenry

This was a very hot Graduation Day. There's a storm brewing tonight, all the poppies and peonies are blooming, and Memorial Day is a week away. There is a lot of corn already up; and lots of center pivots sending showers of water into the air, sometimes creating rainbows, if the sun is just right.

I've had a fun Mother's Day and birthday, with presents and dinners and cards. Even the Big Farmer, broke down and took us out for supper. We were driving off the place when Mike noticed that the 15 month old heifer had given birth to twins.

They are tiny, but up and sucking. Almost exactly identical and so cute. It keeps Dick busy bringing extra bottles to this pair and the ones on the north place. Guess it makes him a surrogate mother.

One dinner was at a local nursing home. They had invited people in the community with whom they have contact to come and "discover life's treasures."

Louis Broer from Randolph was there. He plays the concertina regularly for them. Norm Moritz entertained at the organ while we ate.

A coach from a local high school came, as did the president of a local small college. A speech therapist sat with Jo, who lost her speech after a stroke. Jo speaks with gestures and her eyes now.

I WAS AT a table with Laura, Hildred and Erna. Laura was a little hard of hearing. She has lived all her life in Battle Creek. In fact, her daughter-in-law is a nurse friend of mine.

Hildred had a home at Clay Center. But her daughter lives in Norfolk, and she wanted to be close to her. They had had a family picnic for Mom's Day, and she was able to go. Erna worked for 20 years at the Lutheran Home in Omaha. In fact, she knew my Great-Aunt Susie, who also worked there. Erna is from Pierce originally, and has a nephew at Carroll named Don Liedman.

All in all, we had a good visit. And I went away again appreciating the care and management that makes a good nursing home. They are not the dreary dungeons they once were. I've already instructed my family not to hesitate to take me to one, should the need arise.

I plan to participate in all the sing-alongs, bingo games, and exercise classes; have my food brought to me, take a nap every day after lunch, and go down town in the van occasionally.

THE SOFTBALL schedule is hanging on the calendar, a sure sign of summer; and the search for gloves has begun.

District track meets have decided who goes to the state meet. We'll be watching for Bill Liska and Christie Thies in high jump, Theresa Stelling and Mace Kant in distance runs.

Nebraska's track teams both won the Big 8, indoors as well as out. That has to be rewarding for Coach Pepin. Karlene Erickson is still running for them.

Maybe if I did a little more exercise, I could postpone that move to a nursing home, or, failing that, maybe I could stay active enough for chasing the good-looking men up and down the halls. It's something to think about!

Twenty-five Winside seniors receive diplomas Sunday

RON WORTHINGTON was the Winside commencement speaker.

A "close knit" class of 25 seniors, as emphasized by commencement guest speaker Ron Worthington, graduated Sunday afternoon from Winside High School in ceremonies at the high school auditorium.

Worthington, during his commencement address, continually tried to find methods to dispell the theory that the class of 1987 was "close knit." But he could not, he said.

Even after talking to some of the seniors personally and getting reactions from them on various subjects, he found a closeness in the class and he found out that many of them would be willing to return to Winside and attend their 25th class reunion. He also noted that many were willing to continue keeping the lines of communication open between them.

Worthington is from Omaha and is currently associated with the Hugh O'Brien Youth Foundation.

Graduating seniors honored for the highest grade point average over four years were Kim Damme, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Damme with a 95.66 percentage; Tracy Topp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Topp with a 93.47 percentage; and Lana Prince, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Prince with a 93.19 percentage.

Scholarship award announcements were made by Julie Freburg, high school guidance counselor. Recognition was given to the following:

— Kim Damme, Aid Association for Lutherans Vocational Technical Scholarship; Deans Scholarship from Nebraska Christian College of Norfolk; Evangel Valedictorian Scholarship from Springfield, Mo.; Music Performance Scholarship from Springfield, Mo.; and Miss Norfolk Area Scholarship from the Norfolk Jaycees.

— Tracy Topp, President's Scholarship to Nebraska Wesleyan University; President's Scholarship to Wayne State College; and the Truifman Memorial Scholarship.

— Lana Prince, Board of Governors Scholarship from Northeast Technical Community College; President's Scholarship from Midland College, Fremont.

— Brent Nau, Honor Scholarship from Midland College; Athletic Scholarship from Midland.

— Cindy Berg — Journalism Scholarship and Drama Scholarship, McPherson College; ZZ White Leadership Scholarship and Drama Scholarship, Buena Vista College in Storm Lake, Iowa.

— Melinda Jansen Nuss, NUCOR Steel Corporation Scholarship.

— Rod Diedrichsen, Nebraska American Legion Auxiliary Vocational Technical Scholarship.

— Connie Smith, Winside American Legion Auxiliary Scholarship.

— Darin Greunke, Winside Junior Wrestling Association Scholarship and Music Performance Scholarship at Northeast Technical Community College.

— Randy Leapley, Winside Junior Wrestling Association Scholarship.

— Christi Thies, Winside State Bank Scholarship.

Winside's High School Band opened the commencement program with the processional. Invocation, benediction and the baccalaureate sermon was provided by Rev. Sandy Carpenter.

During the graduation exercise, the senior music students sang two songs entitled "Friends" and "Walk a Little Slower."

Members of the class of 1987 include: Cindy Berg, Jeff Bolich, Kim Damme, Rodney Diedrichsen, Tammy Falk, Pam Greene, Darin Greunke, Kevin Jaeger, Peg Landanger, Randy Leapley, Daryl Mundil, Brent Nau, Mari Neuvonen, Mandy Nuss, Lana Prince, Janee Riis, Darrin Schellenberg, Brian Suehl, Connie Smith, Christi Thies, Mike Thies, Tract Thomas, Tracy Topp, Tim Voss and Mary Woerdemann.

Parents of the graduating seniors were also given a loud round of applause, as initiated by speaker Worthington.

IBP's DAKOTA CITY PLANT

THINK AGAIN!

The company may talk about big money and a good job, but if you think you can beat the IBP odds, you're obviously missing the facts.

*You'll be paid the starting rate of $6 an hour (with no pension or guarantee of decent hours) for one of the HARDEST, MOST HAZARDOUS JOBS IN AMERICA.

*The BRUTALLY FAST LINE SPEEDS--over 7,500 cattle are processed each day--make the work harder than you can imagine. It also increases the probability that you'll be INJURED AT IBP. Maybe even crippled or permanently disabled.

*And chances are you'll be gone before you ever qualify for the company's so-called "base labor rate." Many workers don't make it past the first 30 days. IN FACT, THE TURNOVER RATE AT THE BEEF IS ALMOST 100%.

FACE IT, 2,800 WORKERS AREN'T ON STRIKE FOR THE FUN OF IT! They're struggling for a decent standard of living. Working as a strikebreaker--a scab--for IBP won't help you gain a better future but it may hurt.

The Golden Years by Gil Haase

Memory loss in older people is not nearly as great as has been widely assumed by psychologists, according to a new report from the American Psychological Association. One reason that older people were thought to suffer memory loss, say the researchers, was that tests were poorly designed, dealing with trivial questions. When the tests were redesigned to deal with real-life situations, older people did much better. According to psychologists at the University of New Orleans, a type of "selective forgetfulness" is used by seniors to deal with the vast amount of information to which they're exposed. Older people, said the report, may be better at deciding what is not worth remembering and discarding it. According to the research, one type of memory that seems to increase rather than decrease as we get older is that for general information, such as vocabulary.

Chamber Insights

by Linda M. Brown E.V.P.
Executive Vice President
Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce and Wayne Industries, Inc.

The Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce and Wayne Industries, Inc. office, located at 108 West Third Street has been very busy remodeling the facility. We cordially invite you to attend the open house Thursday, May 21 from 3:00-6:00 p.m. The Chamber office is a representative of the community and its members. Many times the Chamber office is the only place that people visit when they go through a community. We are very pleased that your Chamber of Commerce office is remodeled, and is now an excellent representative of how you want people to perceive the community.

Fortunately, we have very dedicated members and volunteers who have helped in many ways with the remodeling efforts. The countless hours of labor, plus the donated items have been numerous. These volunteers take pride in their community and their Chamber, and the effort for this remodeling project has proven it. The quality of life and the sense of pride in the Wayne area is truly one to talk about.

The variety of the Chamber's activities is virtually unlimited depending on community needs, and the Chamber's overall mission of community development is determined by its Program of Work. The Program of Work is developed by a special committee appointed by the President and explains the accomplishments of the previous year as well as the goals and objectives of each division within the Chamber for the coming year.

Through our Program of Work we try to create specific goals and objectives designed to accomplish the purpose of the organization to meet the needs and desires of business and the community. Through our Board of Directors, elected by the membership, we have involved and committed leadership well briefed in their responsibilities who use their time and talent to accomplish meaningful goals. We have a membership who are informed, interested, and willing persons to man committees, carry out action projects, and provide the necessary administrative expenses. We also are dedicated to sound operation, flexible to innovative change and capable of motivating voluntary personnel.

The most important part of our Chamber is people! Without concerned, dedicated people we would suffer and thus the community would suffer. Fortunately, in Wayne we have those very concerned, dedicated people who will continue to make our Chamber thrive and prosper and thus our community will thrive and prosper.

Drugs and Dizziness

Dizziness is a common symptom and, according to some physicians, is very difficult to evaluate. Complaints include the feeling of light headedness, being woozy, feeling giddy, being in a swirl of objects, hearing loud noises, being pushed or pulled, and sensing that a black-out might occur. Some drugs are on the list of the many causes of dizziness and include:

- antihypertensives
- muscle relaxants
- digitalis medicines
- pain relievers
- antidepressants
- seizure medicines
- diuretics

Dizziness that continues for any appreciable time should be evaluated by a physician. If a medicine is the cause or contributes to a dizziness, a dosage adjustment may be necessary. In many instances, an alternative medicine may be used — one that does not tend to cause dizziness.

Medicines are also of value in treating some types of dizziness. Antihistamine type medicines, for example, are used to help control a type of dizziness (actually vertigo) that is associated with disturbances of the vestibular system.
