Homestead

The 1987 Legislature has made changes in the 65 and older homestead exemption which also applies to veterans and disabled persons.

LB 376A passed with an emergency clause and is effective for 1987. There must be owner-occupancy from Jan. 1, 1987 through Aug. 15, 1987. If a person has applied and moves from the property or sells the property sometime before Aug. 15, the homestead will not be allowed for that property for 1987.

Prior to this, the homestead followed the property until Jan. 1 of the following year.

This bill also states there will be complete reapportionment for eligible persons in 1988. All owner-occupant persons must list name, birth date and social security number on these new applications. All owners' incomes will be considered, if they are residing at the residence.

Each year after 1988, a recertification on status of household must be filed by April 1. If a recertification is not filed by then, the homestead exemption will be voided.

Engineer confirmed for water project

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing Editor

Howard R. Green Company of Cedar Rapids, Iowa and Spirit Lake, Iowa has been confirmed by the Wayne City Council as special engineers in working with the preparation of the first well in the city's most recently acquired well field located approximately six miles north and a mile west of Wayne.

The engineering firm has been authorized to proceed to prepare the preliminary plans, specifications and cost estimates for the construction of a water well in the well field, and also the water mains from the water field to the city of Wayne.

By the time the Howard R. Green Company has completed its engineering work with the city of Wayne (after doing work on the water study, field study, rate study, water tower, wells and transmission line over a three year period) the city's cost for the engineering work will be approximately $150,000, according to City Administrator Phil Kloster.

THE LONE dissenting vote among the eight council members, to confirm the appointment of Howard R. Green Company, came from Councilman Freeman Decker, who said the engineering business should remain in the state of Nebraska.

"Why go out of the state to get engineers when we've got a lot of engineers here in Nebraska? Why spend money out of state when there are others in this state who can do the job just as well?" Decker asked before the final vote was taken.

There are three wells planned for the water field north of Wayne. One of the wells will be drilled sometime this fall, according to Kloster. The wells will produce more gallons per minute than the present city wells — from about 600 gallons per minute to approximately 1,000 gallons per minute.

Kloster said the well and transmission line to the Wayne project is targeted for completion by the spring of 1989. A second well is planned around 1989-90 and the third well is planned for construction by 1992.

ALSO DURING Tuesday's regular meeting, the city council discussed ways to repair the roof on the Wayne City Auditorium. Reports of leakage from the roof were made at the previous city council meeting earlier in June.

City Public Works Superintendent Vern Schulz said Tuesday evening that the auditorium roof hasn't had any major repair for at least 21 years or more, with the exception of flashing repair or patching.

Some of the figures tossed out to the council would be to spend $30,000 to install a rubber-like substance for roofing replacement.

Or the city could spend approximately $17,000 for a roof similar to what is on the auditorium at the present time. However, it was estimated with this alternative that it would cost in the neighborhood of another

Fire department honored

Wayne's Volunteer Fire Department is celebrating 75 years of fighting the fires and performing other services to the Wayne area.

In honor of this event, the fire department is planning two days of special activities to commemorate the anniversary.

Events planned for Friday, July 3 include hosting the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce "Chamber Coffee" at the Wayne Fire Station starting at 10 a.m.

That evening, a frog dance will take place at the National Guard Armory from 9 to 1, with a cash bar available.

The next day, July 4th, the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department will conduct an open house at the fire station from 5-7 p.m. During that time, rides will be given to kids on the 1936 Fire Truck. Firemen will also be serving free hot dogs, chips, pop or ice tea during the two-hour open house.

History shows that an ordinance was passed by the Wayne City Council in September, 1912 which stated the rules and regulations of the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department, which was reorganizing at the time.

HOWEVER, FIRE protection in Wayne has been available for more than 75 years.

R.B. Taylor, Charles Johnson and A.H. Ellis, in May of 1885, were named to prepare and report plans for a system of fire protection. What was decided then was to dig three wells

ESU administrator steps down

By LaVon Anderson
Assistant Editor

Harry Mills has had a long association with Educational Service Unit One.

That association began in May 1966 when Educational Service Units were first being established in the state and Mills was hired as part-time administrator for unit one, serving the counties of Cedar, Dakota, Dixon, Knox, Thurston and Wayne.

His job then, while still serving as superintendent of Wakefield Public Schools, was to conduct research, take surveys and visit with school superintendents as to what services they wanted the ESU to provide.

Mills was appointed full-time ESU 1 administrator in June 1967 — a position he held until his retirement this week.

ON TUESDAY, June 30, Mills stepped down as ESU 1's chief administrator. He will however, remain associated with the service unit as a consultant to the ESU 1 board and administration on a part-time basis.

Filling the administrator's position is Rodney Garwood, who has served as assistant administrator at ESU 1 since July 1983.

In his new advisory capacity, Mills' duties will include handling coop purchases, preparing reports and advising the board or administration upon request with respect to budget, personnel, programs, equipment needs and purchases.

"Whatever they want me to do, I'll do," said Mills.

ON HIS FINAL day as chief administrator, Mills took time out to remind on the function of Educational Service Unit One and the role it has played in helping to provide top quality services to school students in the six-county area it serves.

Mills points out that there were two reasons for which Educational Service Units were established in the state of Nebraska — to provide special education services to schools through contracts, and to take the place of county superintendents.

While ESU 1 provides a variety of contract services to the schools it serves, Mills said the unit has never pursued the area of county superintendent.

"I REMEMBER starting my first day as ESU administrator," said Mills. "I had an oak desk, one file cabinet, a one-line telephone — and no guidelines."

Back then, there were 12 employees, including five speech

Prior to their marriage in 1976, Gary performed various weekly newspaper duties for five years with the Casselton (N.D.) Reporter and the Lisbon (N.D.) Gazette.

During their 23 years of combined North Dakota newspaper experience, Wrights have earned 23 state-wide awards including professional recognition for editorial writing, special editing, reporting, typography and design, sports reporting, photography, advertising and photo layout.

In 1985 Wrights' Dunn County Herald was honored as North Dakota's top small weekly newspaper. Also in 1985 Wrights were named North Dakota Businesspersons of the Year by the Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA).

Besides local newspapering involvement, Gary was a director of the North Dakota Newspaper Association and was chairman of several of the group's work committees.

In addition to newspapering, Wrights have participated in many community organizations.

Gary, 36, is past president of Kiwanis, secretary and treasurer of the Chambers of Commerce in three communities, director of a clinic board and a local Sports Boosters, Jaycees, Toastmasters and Lions member. He is a former Eagle Scout, an associate Explorer Post advisor and former staff member at Philmont Scout Ranch in New Mexico for three summers. Wrights are members of the Catholic Church and are parents of two boys: Andrew, age seven; and and; Trevor, age four. They are residing at 420 W. 4th St. in Wayne.

EXCITING OPPORTUNITY

"To say we're excited about Wayne is a tremendous understatement," Wrights said. "The newspaper is a wonderful business opportunity and the community is a wonderful place to raise a family."

"Over the next several months we're going to make a concerted effort to find out what readers and advertisers like and don't like about the Herald, Marketer and Morning Shopper," Wrights said. "At the same time, we'll write some columns on our thoughts concerning the publications' responsibilities."

Wright said they'll combine as much of the public feedback comments as possible with some of their tried-and-true journalism experiences to continue producing a newspaper, printing facility and advertising guide responsive to the needs of the people they serve.

A story of the fish that 'didn't' get away

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing Editor

There is a great fishing hole near Wayne where a strong fishing pole equipped with a small hook and wrapped with worm bait can result in an enormous catch.

Just last Saturday at this lake, 2,560 fish were caught in a span of three hours.

All of this action took place during the annual Ike's Lake Fishing Derby, sponsored by the Wayne Izaak Walton League.

There were 78 kids who participated in the fishing spree on Saturday afternoon. The average catch per child was nearly 33 fish — not bad for three hours worth of casting, baiting and soaking in the hot sun.

Members of the Izaak Walton League contributed three cents for each fish that was caught, hoping to narrow the fish population at Ike's Lake. With the total amount of fish caught, the rewards handed out by Izaak Walton League members totaled over $77.

This year featured three divisions, with the most contestants (29) entered in the ages seven and under category. Justin Meyer won a trophy for first place in this division with 195 fish — the most that anyone had caught during this year's fishing derby.

Meyer averaged just over one fish per minute during the three hours. Second place in the age seven and under division went to Tony Mrsny with 163 fish, followed by Evan Smith with 78 fish. There were 848 fish caught in this division.

In the 8 to 11 year old division, with 27 participants, the winner was Sara Hall who caught 149 fish. Second place was won by Mark Lentz with 127 fish and Audra Stevers took third place with 65 fish.

A total of 702 fish were caught in this division. Twenty-two participated in the ages 12-15 year old division, with 1,010 fish caught. Brian Lentz led the way with 130 fish, followed by Andy Smith with 101 fish and Brent Doring with 95 fish.

In that division, the average catch was close to 46 fish per person.

This year's high rate in the amount of fish caught was attributed to the excellent fishing conditions and the number of participants in the contest, according to Izaak Walton officials.

Accident claims woman's life

Authorities in Dawes County said Joyce Jech, age 30, of Hay Springs, was killed when the car in which she was a passenger was struck by a semi-trailer truck on U.S. 20 about 11 miles east of Chadron.

Joyce is the wife of Kevin Jech, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Jech of Wayne. Kevin suffered chest and arm injuries.

Two children were also in the Jech vehicle — two and a half year old Timothy (who suffered cuts and bruises) and Benjamin (three months old), who was transferred the Children's Hospital in Denver with head injuries.

Authorities said the Jech car had apparently slowed down and was partially off the wet pavement at the time of the accident. The truck jackknifed and slid into the car, shearing off the front of the car with the rear wheels of the trailer.

therapists, three nurses, one psychologist, one reading consultant, one art consultant and one secretary.

In the beginning, the ESU was supported by a one-half mill levy which brought in approximately $250,000.

TODAY, THE ESU 1 staff numbers approximately 75, including 45 to 50 certified employees serving approximately 25 K-12 and 75 K-8 schools in a six-county area.

Those employees are governed by a 10-member board of directors, including one director from each county and four at-large members.

The budget is primarily supported from contracts with schools for special education, which range in the neighborhood of $1.2 million. The mill levy brings in about $500,000.

Special education services provided by ESU 1 include psychological services, speech therapy, hearing services, resource teachers, pre-school instruction for the handicapped, physical therapy, occupational therapy and a TMM (Trainable Mentally Handicapped) program.

Schools also receive nursing services, which are basically supported by the mill levy, with schools being charged approximately 10 percent of the cost.

There also is a film library provided free to schools within ESU 1's boundaries.

"I LOOK AT ALL the services ESU 1 provides today," said Mills, "and I'm very proud of the ESU 1 staff and the jobs they perform."

"I'm also proud of the fact that ESU 1 has maintained a progressive attitude when it comes to providing the best possible services to the youngsters in schools within the unit."

As an example, Mills said studies conducted within ESU 1 showed a higher percentage of hearing impaired youngsters than in other units across the state.

As a result of that study, ESU 1 is the only unit within the state to have a sound proof booth to test youngsters' hearing.

Although the booth was an expensive purchase, Mills said it has more than paid for itself in terms of early recognition of hearing loss in children.

Mills tells about the time a sixth grade boy was brought into the ESU 1 office to have his hearing tested.

"Our audiologist knew there was a problem," said Mills, "and she made an appointment with the parents and youngster to see a specialist in Omaha."

"It turned out that the boy had a tumor and very possibly would have died within six months."

"Today," added Mills, "that same boy is in broadcasting in Minneapolis."

MILLS ALSO IS proud of the fact that ESU 1 has never borrowed a dime.

"We've always operated in the black and always attempted to provide as many services as possible to schools at a reasonable cost."

In 1974, the financial structure of ESU 1 was changed dramatically when the unit was provided a grant to write a special education project for all schools within the unit.

Before that time, money from the state for special education came directly to the service unit. Since then, state monies go directly to the schools who then contract for services with ESU 1.

"Now," said Mills, "the obligation to provide special education services rests with the schools rather than ESU 1."

"They simply contract with us to provide the necessary services they require."

"We have no regulatory authority over the schools," pointed out Mills, "but we'll offer advice if they ask."

WHILE ESU 1 has always been headquartered in Wakefield, Mills said at one time there was a satellite office on the Wayne State College campus.

When that building was renovated, the ESU 1 board voted to move all offices to Wakefield.

When determining where the main office should be located, Mills said the board looked at various sites in Coleridge, Laurel, Wayne, Randolph and Wakefield.

Mills said residents of Wakefield were instrumental in determining where ESU 1 would be headquartered after they raised $15,000 to help purchase a building in their town.

ESU 1 offices have been headquartered at various locations in Wakefield, however a permanent site at 301 Main St. was purchased in the late 1970s.

ALTHOUGH THE main office is in Wakefield, Mills spends much of his time traveling to various schools within the ESU 1 boundaries.

"I have always tried to visit with all of the superintendents on a personal level at least three or four times each year," said Mills.

"But if there's one thing we're lousy at," added Mills, "it would be that we have failed to keep the public informed. The only people who know what the Educational Service Unit is are the people who have handicapped youngsters in need of our services."

MILLS, WHO WILL be 64 in October, was born and raised on a farm in Custer County and was graduated from Westerville High School, which has long since closed.

Following high school, he traveled to California where he worked in the ship yards approximately six months before joining the Merchant Marines.

It was during his three years in the Merchant Marines that Mills developed an interest in history and geography, his two major fields in college.

After receiving his BA degree from Kearney State College in 1950, Mills spent two years at Newcastle Public School, where he coached all five sports, taught five subjects and served as principal. He then went to Bradshaw where he coached and taught shop for three years.

After receiving his certification as an administrator from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, Mills served as superintendent at Hampton for four years before completing his master's work.

He then served as superintendent at Calloway for five years before accepting the superintendency at Wakefield Community School in July 1964.

He remained in that position until 1967 when he became full-time administrator of Educational Service Unit One.

"During my years as superintendent," said Mills, "I went through three building programs and three reorganization programs."

"That's when I lost all of my hair," he chuckles.

MILLS AND HIS wife Ardyth plan to remain in Wakefield, however they will be doing more camping and traveling now that he's retired.

They are the parents of three daughters and one son.

Marlene, 34, has served as a counselor at Eastern Nebraska Mental Health Clinic and just recently left that job for a similar position in California.

Carol, 32, is a nurse in Denver, and Scott, 29, is employed at a bank in Borger, Texas. He is married and has one daughter.

Robin, 28, also is married and resides with her husband and daughter in Lincoln, where she operates her own pre-school and day care center.

"THERE'S A LITTLE sadness in leaving my position as ESU 1 administrator," admits Mills, "but it's time I gave it up. I've been in the school business for 37 years."

"When I think back, it's gone awfully fast. I made some mistakes, I'm sure, but I hope I did some good things too."

Mills said if he were to describe his career as a professional educator, it would be to focus your eyes on the child first.

"Do that," said Mills, "and all other things will come."

Pair of discoverers interest Bereuter

As a Nebraskan, I have long been interested in the Lewis and Clark Trail -- the path for the journey of William Clark and Meriwether Lewis to explore the newly acquired Louisiana Purchase. Their journey began in May of 1804 and concluded in September of 1806. I have spent a number of hours reading the journals that these two explorers wrote during their journey through Nebraska.

From July 11, 1804, to September 8, 1804, Lewis and Clark followed the Missouri River on the eastern edge of our State and then made the return trip beginning on August 31, 1806. Their diaries provide the earliest glimpse of what later became the State of Nebraska and other States of the Great Plains. It is a story that should be shared with all Americans who care to know about our past.

That is why, in 1979, I began the effort to provide more recognition to the Lewis and Clark Trail. As a member of the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee, I successfully amended the National Trails Act to authorize the Secretary -- Interior or Agriculture -- to "provide for trail interpretation sites, which shall be located at historic sites along the route of any national scenic or national historic trail, in order to present information to the public about the trail, at the federal ownership or maintenance would be required.

Wheat Program Action Urged
I have joined several of my colleagues in the House of Representatives in sponsoring a resolution which urges the Reagan Administration to announce a 1988 wheat acreage reduction program of no more than 27.5 percent. This percentage is the same amount required in the 1987 wheat program. Some disagreement about whether the wheat set-aside level should be at the current 27.5 percent or should be increased to 30 percent prevented an lowest possible cost, with emphasis on the portion of the trail passing through the State in which the site is located."

MY IDEA IS to put in place a system of historical interpretation signs at a limited number of sites along nationally designated trails. My colleagues on the Interior Appropriations Subcommittee have now generously prepared, at my request, to begin that effort with a small demonstration project in Nebraska. The funds involved are an earmark of available funds to the National Park Service and do not represent additional money.

This is not an elaborate or complicated proposal. My hope is to see a system of historical markers placed along the route of the Lewis and Clark Trail that passes through key campsites in Nebraska. On each of these signs my intent is to inscribe all or portions of the actual Lewis and Clark journals that document events and sightings that occurred at the location of the campsite marked by the historical marker.

All campsites signs and locations, when eventually established, would be owned and operated by the State of Nebraska and the appropriate agency within State government or a political subdivision of the State. No announcement of the program on June 1, 1987, as required by law.

It is important for the United States to send a strong signal to our grain export competitors that we will not continue to unilaterally increase our set-asides while they increase their production. If we increase our set-asides, we simply encourage our competitors to produce more crops, which they dump on the world market at the expense of U.S. farmers. Higher set-asides reduce U.S. farm income and hurt small businesses in rural communities.

I have been working on the Missouri River Bank Stabilization Project since I came to Congress in 1979. So I was especially pleased that the House recently approved an Energy and Water Appropriation Bill which earmarked $200,000 for operation and maintenance of existing bank stabilization structures and $100,000 for new construction on the project. The money is already in the budget -- now it is earmarked for this project.

I was also pleased to see the Reata River and Elkhorn River Reconnaissance measure included in that bill. This must be completed before the Army Corps of Engineers does any bank stabilization work on these rivers.

Publishers' Perspective

To reiterate our comments in a front page news story...WE'RE GLAD TO BE HERE as new owners and publishers of your Wayne Herald and Marketer.

Although it's 619 miles from our former Killdeer, N.D. residence to our new home here, we already feel very comfortable in Wayne since becoming official residents June 17.

To be sure, there're new names and places to learn but we've been in the "people-business" all our adult lives and Midwesterners since birth so numerous similarities in way-of-life standards between southwestern North Dakota and northeastern Nebraska are making our transition quite easy.

Our boys, ages four and seven, have adjusted quickly to their neighborhood and regularly come in the house happily exhausted from varied non-stop activity at the city's swimming pool and many well-maintained parks.

In addition to the strength and reputation of the newspaper operation, it was the progressive mood and manicured appearance of the community that convinced us this is a good place to earn a living and raise a family.

Wayne unmistakably is considered a prime property in newspaper circles throughout Nebraska and the entire Midwest. It's envied journalistic status is due not only to the outstanding track record of Alan Cramer, Jim Marsh and staff members but also because of its location in a top notch community.

Obviously a tremendous pride exists here. Not only is there a college with its many economic, educational and cultural assets but the local retail, industrial and agricultural sectors are aggressive and growth-oriented. Success breeds success...or at least nurtures positive thinking and encourages further attempts of improvement.

And let's not forget the residential areas. It is only slight exaggeration to say it's rare to find a blade of grass out of place in anyone's yard. Something very positive is going on here in Wayne -- and it's contagious.

As newspaper owners in this vibrant area, it is our foremost intention to keep up with the "movers and shakers" of the community. It's been our professional style to strive to produce a dynamic, interesting, informative and respected newspaper for our circulation area. We will work long and hard to insure the newspaper reaches the highest level expected of it.

In our judgement, Wayne County and the surrounding area should not only DEMAND that their newspaper be strong and viable...but they DESERVE that it to be nothing less.

We have no doubt this extensive newspaper (shopper, jobwork and web press facility) operation and expanding community will test our journalism, public relations, business and organizational skills to the fullest...But that's the kind of situation we wanted when we first discussed relocating several months ago.

We made this career move based on a lot more than the past three years' business figures. It was a decision prompted by the area's obviously upbeat diversified potential during the rest of this decade as well as the 1990s and beyond.

In subsequent editorials over the next two months, we will outline some of our thoughts on what we believe are necessary ingredients for a high quality, broad-based public forum newspaper and shopping guide responsive to local conditions. We encourage public feedback when any of these subtle and not-so-subtle changes are introduced.

We're not a syndicated conglomerate whose distant corporate headquarters merely would put "another notch on its belt" and move on to other business after acquisition of The Wayne Herald and Marketer. We're a husband-wife "hands-on" team committed to this challenging life-time opportunity.

We're glad to be here.

Medicaid growth causes delay in payments

About $8 million in Medicaid payments due to Nebraska doctors, nursing homes, dentists and pharmacists was delayed three weeks this summer.

The state did not have the money to pay those bills until the start of the new fiscal year, July 1.

The reason -- unexpected growth in the Medicaid program during the year. And much of that growth was in rural areas. "The only thing we can attribute this growth to is the situation in the rural areas," said Robert Swifert, medical services administrator for the Nebraska Department of Social Services. "As people lose income, they drop their private insurance and rely more on the state."

The Social Services Department has no statistics for urban versus rural growth in the Medicaid program but the growth of rural poverty is reflected in other benefit programs. And many of the people who qualify for other programs -- food stamps and ADC -- also qualify for medical help.

Between 1980 and 1986 the number of people using food stamps in Omaha and Lincoln grew by 32.7 percent. In rural areas food stamp use grew 97.7 percent, according to Department of Social Service statistics. Many of these people also qualify for medical help through Medicaid.

THE AID TO Families of Dependent Children (ADC) program grew by 20.6 percent in the two urban areas during that six year period. It grew by 63.2 percent in rural Nebraska. All ADC families qualify for the Medicaid program.

Medicaid is the most expensive of the federally-controlled, state operated programs and greater usage means higher costs.

During the 1986-87 fiscal year, an average of 50,032 people per month used the Medicaid program to pay for their medical needs. That's enough people to populate Columbus, Lexington, McCook and North Platte and a 10.4 percent increase over the previous year.

At the same time the cost of the program rose 15 percent to $200 million. State tax dollars paid 40 percent of that medical bill; federal funds provided the rest.

About half of the Medicaid dollars go to nursing homes to pay for the care of elderly or mentally retarded Nebraskans. But this population has been stable for about 12 years, averaging only a 2 percent increase every year, Seiffert said.

THE GROWTH in Medicaid numbers has come from the children and family side, Seiffert said. The program pays for basic medical needs, hospitalization, dental care, eye care and prescription drugs.

Only the poorest of Nebraskans qualify for Medicaid. For example, a parent and child with a monthly income of $375 would qualify for the Medicaid program.

And it is available only to people who qualify for another welfare program -- ADC, aged, blind or disabled. Healthy people with no children, no job and no income cannot participate.

There is some evidence that the phenomenal growth the Medicaid program saw this year will not continue. "We have seen a very recent trend, just in the last couple of months, that suggests it is beginning to level and next year is going to be considerably brighter," Seiffert said.

Letters

Help appreciated

Even though we are exposed to emergencies and injuries on a daily basis, it is still very comforting to see so much good care of medical emergencies in our community especially when it involves one's own family.

When our daughter was injured in a bicycle accident June 24, we were proud of our son Erik for having realized that his sister was seriously injured and needed help and managed to stay with her and alert John Dorcey and other passerby who were kind enough to stop and quick to give aid and summon police. Wayne Police Department and Wayne County Sheriff Department were also quick to respond and summon the ambulance which arrived promptly. Our personal thank you's go to those persons above and to Myron and Louise Jenness and Alan Niemann whose generous use of their time in transporting Anne to the hospital and round trip to Sioux City, as well as to all the staff of Providence Medical Center where we once again experienced very competent as well as friendly care and genuine concern for the welfare of our daughter.

The support of family and friends during all this was also greatly appreciated.

This community can be proud of the people who provide these services to the citizens of the area. We are all happier and safer because of it.

Again our personal thank you and congratulations for the jobs well done.

Women contribute to nation's growth

When the U.S. Constitution was being written 200 years ago in Philadelphia, what were American women doing?

Ninety percent of American's citizens in 1787 were farmers, so the vast majority of American women lived and worked on farms.

Farm women usually married young, had large families, and worked hard, according to Vivian Wiser, U.S. Department of Agriculture historian. It was up to women to teach the children, prepare meals, make clothing and blankets. Their household tasks included long hours on such tedious jobs as making soap and candles.

Cooking was still done in fireplaces, with iron kettles and long-handled frying pans; bread was baked there, too. Women produced homemade clothing--spinning, weaving and sewing it from scratch out of flax and wool. They made household furnishings and utensils. The more proficient a homemaker was, the more attractive her family's home life would be.

In the more settled areas, women worked for other families and girls served for wages.

Women in America had few written guides to help them in their work.

They learned from other women and their own experience.

The lives of American farm women 200 years ago, and the work they did, varied widely, depending on whether they lived in older, settled areas or newer frontier lands, whether they were in the North or South, and whether they were Black and white, rich or poor.

In developing areas in the infant states of New England, New York, and Pennsylvania, men did the planting, cared for livestock and harvested crops. The women helped in the fields only occasionally at harvest time. They looked after the dairy (milked cows and making butter), fed the poultry, and tended kitchen gardens.

IN NEWER AREAS, the wife and older daughters frequently helped plant and hoe corn, and rake grain and hay into sheaves at harvest time. If the family consisted mostly of girls, they would help their fathers with lighter work.

Women along the frontier of the new nation lived lonely lives as they struggled for subsistence in their one-room cabins, with sometimes a loft or lean-to. They lived without the early conveniences that their eastern countryparts enjoyed. Frequently, they did the gardening while their husbands hunted for food.

They made soap, candles, clothing, bed coverings and rugs, and gathered herbs and roots for medicine. Even their mugs and bowls were frequently homemade.

In the South, women of planters' families assumed heavy responsibilities for entertaining travelers as well as household chores. The wife might provide clothing, nurse the sick, and care for children and the aged. They often looked after the needs of their slaves, sometimes making their clothes. When the slaves were sick, they visited their cabins to administer medicine.

Wealthy Colonial ladies--who represented less than one percent of plantation families--had the necessary equipment to serve meals in the best English manner.

Black women labored in the fields producing tobacco, sugarcane, cotton, rice and hemp, and served as nurses, cooks, maids, gardeners and seamstresses in homes of plantation owners. Some soon worked in the few textile and cotton mills.

Though they labored from sunup to sundown, Black mothers developed strong family ties in conditions that millitated against them. Laws of several states prohibited separating children under 5 or 10 years old from their mothers when estates were settled. Slave children from an early age worked in the fields worming and suckering tobacco and picking cotton.

IN HIGHLAND areas of Virginia and North Carolina, women worked in fields with men, and also worked on the spinning wheel and loom to provide clothing for their families.

Women frequently smoked small clay pipes and dipped snuff. At 30, women were aged. Childbearing was hard anywhere at the time, but especially for the less fortunate.

During the Revolutionary War, women in many areas had to do much of the farm work, taking over tasks previously done by men.

These experiences during the Revolution influenced the outlooks of many women. They got used to taking the reins and making decisions, and they were hesitant about retreating to "their old subservient status."

The first generation of American feminists, who called for women's suffrage in the 1850's were the daughters of Revolutionary mothers and fathers.

Midgets rip Ponca; Lutt cruises to win

By Gregg Dahlheim
Sports Editor

The Wayne Midgets ran their winning streak to three games as they pounded Ponca Monday night at Hank Overin Field 15-1 in five innings.

Wayne overpowered its Ralph Bishop League opponents from the start. The locals collected 11 hits to only three for Ponca. Two of the three Ponca hits came in the first inning off of pitcher Jeff Lutt.

Lutt threw the first four innings and gained the win. He allowed one run, on three hits. Matt Peterson came in and retired Ponca in order in the fifth.

Wayne struck for nine runs in the first inning. Thirteen hitters came to the plate and seven collected hits in the inning. Lutt had a pair of RBI doubles in the inning. Jess Zeiss also added a run-scoring double and Jarrod Wood, Cory Frye and Jason Msrny were credited with RBI singles.

Wayne made it 13-0 in its next at bat. Wood, Frye, Peterson and Msrny all scored in the inning with Wood, Frye and Greg Schmidt collecting hits in the frame.

The guests got their only run in the top of the third on a RBI double by the Ponca third baseman. Wayne completed the scoring in the bottom of the third with a pair of runs. Kevin Hausmann led off with a single, went to second on a pass ball and scored on two consecutive errors. Frye also reached in the inning on an error by the shortstop. He advanced to third on a pair of errors and scored on a pass ball.

A trio of Wayne hitters paced the offensive onslaught. Wood, Lutt and Frye all picked up a pair of hits and only one Wayne starter failed to hit safely.

The win improved the team's record, in which Midgets only played, to 6-2. In several games this year the Midgets have combined with several Junior Legion players to form a Junior Legion B team.

Next up for Wayne is a doubleheader at Wakefield on Saturday. The Midgets will play at 3 p.m. with the Junior Legion to follow at 5 p.m. In another schedule change the Midgets and Junior Legion will travel to Pender for a July 8 contest. The game was originally set for July 10. The Midgets will start at 6:30 p.m. with the Junior Legion game to follow.

Wakefield climbs to 6-4 in DCBL race

The Wakefield Town Team continued its ascension to the top of the pack in the Dodge County Baseball League with a 15-2 pasting of Scribner Tuesday night.

The win moved Wakefield to 6-4, one-half game out of a third-place tie with Blair and Columbus. The victory was also Wakefield's sixth in seven games.

Wakefield scored in sixth of the seven innings. Mark Starzl pitched a complete game to earn the win. He allowed two runs on six hits while walking two and striking out four.

Offensively Wakefield was led by many. Starzl led the way with four RBIs while going 2-5. Mike Meyer, Jeff Coble and Paul Calvert all added three ribbies. Mark Kubik and Bob Utermark collected three hits apiece. Wakefield's only home run came off the bat of Scott Miller in the sixth inning.

A message from the Nebraska Bankers in your hometown.

UNFORTUNATELY, SOME INVESTMENTS THAT SOUND INSURED REALLY AREN'T.

In today's marketplace, some of the advertising you see for investment opportunities is confusing to say the least. Sometimes an investment that first appeared rock solid has later, begun to erode.

While we feel it is important to keep a diversified investment portfolio, we'd like you to understand the possible risk involved with investments like mutual funds. If you choose to put money into uninsured instruments, we advise that you also keep some money safely tucked away in an insured savings plan at your local full-service bank.

We'd like to explain the basic differences between investments such as mutual funds and bank C.D.s (certificates of deposit).

Mutual Funds That Advertise High Rates of Return and "Sound" Insured

There's a lot of talk today about mutual funds, probably because of the high returns they've paid in the past. Did you know that mutual funds may advertise rates based on past averages? Past performance is no guarantee of future return. Unlike a bank C.D., a mutual fund does not guarantee a specific rate of return. They cannot guarantee future yields at the time you invest. Advertised rates do not always take into account upfront mutual fund fees and commissions which affect your overall return.

It is important to realize that most mutual fund investments are just like any other purchases on the stock or bond market. Neither your return nor your original investment (the principal) is guaranteed or insured.

Mutual Funds That Invest in "Government Guaranteed Securities"

Many mutual funds give the impression that they are backed by the government or even insured. That's not necessarily the case. Many are speculative investments on the government bond market that can fluctuate widely.

and how long it will take to earn it. You receive a contractual guarantee from the bank to pay you both the principal you've invested plus the interest you've earned on a specified date of maturity.

Here's another important advantage of a bank C.D. Unlike stocks and most mutual funds, you pay no fee or brokerage commission when you invest in a bank C.D.

The Insured Safety of a Bank C.D.

There's another important safety factor that bank C.D.s offer that no mutual fund or stock market investment can match. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) insures your money in a bank deposit up to $100,000. The FDIC, with a safety trust fund of 18 billion dollars, is an independent agency of the federal government. Every Nebraska bank is a member of the FDIC and pays premiums to the FDIC to assure your deposits are safe... and insured.

The safety of your money is one of several topics we'll be discussing in this series on banking in Nebraska. Nebraskans have relied on banks as their primary sources for over 100 years.

Now we want you to know us even better.

How a Bank C.D. Differs From a Mutual Fund or Stock Market Investment and to secure pumps, hooks, ladders and two dozen buckets as fire fighting apparatus.

When you purchase an insured C.D. from your bank, all the conditions are stated up front. You know exactly how much your money will earn.

A more organized fire department was established in 1891 by Mayor James Britton. J.G. Mines was marshal and A.J. Tracy was assistant fire marshal of the company.

Officers of that department were T.W. Moran, president; C.M. Craven, vice president; C.B. Tower, secretary; Nelson Grimsley, treasurer; and S.B. Russell, R.C. Osborn and E. Cunningham as trustees. F. L. Neely was chosen foreman of the hose company and Will Rickabaugh was appointed as foreman of the hook and ladder company.

According to information published in the Centennial Edition of The Wayne Herald, fire limits of the city were fixed in July, 1891, from 4th Street to the railroad and the first alley east and west of Main Street. A hose cart and 500 feet of hose were bought to use in fighting the fires.

At first, fire fighting equipment was kept in a small shack near the city power plant. Later, a frame building was constructed east of the Main and 3rd Street intersection.

THE COMPANY built a bell tower near the frame building. It was customary to place the bell on a tower and use the lower part of the tower for the hose, hanging it there to drain.

The bronze bell bought when this first group organized was placed in back of the former city hall which is now the fire station.

In 1929 a sterling siren was installed near the fire station. An electronic system soon took over with five sirens which could run in unison or individually.

The new fire hall highlighted the reorganization of the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department in 1912.

The reorganization is what the current fire department is celebrating.

The present fire hall was built by A.M. Helf for $7,500 at the time of the reorganization, with the west addition that currently holds the department's fire trucks built in 1972.

The final addition on the north side of the station was completed in 1977.

AFTER THE reorganization in 1912, the first fire chief was C.H. Fisher; with H.B. Craven as assistant fire chief; Leroy Ley as secretary; and G.W. Forner as treasurer.

Equipment used after the reorganization included:

— The first "fire engine" which was a soda and acid cart which created its own pressure when the chemicals were mixed.

— A Rio truck purchased in 1916 that was used until 1925.

— A 1925 Lafrance, which carried three chemicals, was purchased after the Rio truck, for approximately $3,600. The Lafrance was sold to the Nemaha Fire Department in 1942 for $600.

The first pumper purchased by the department, which is still on display and operational at the present fire station, was a 1936 Ford. A 1941 International was also added to the equipment.

The company currently possesses the following equipment: a command vehicle, city pumper, two rural tankers, aerial pumper, rescue and equipment truck, and a rural pumper.

The first rural district fire board was organized in 1950 to meet the needs of the rural community. Members of the board included Mayor G. Houdersheldt, Chief Martin Ringer, Norm Brugger, Les Ellis, Gereon Allvin, Paul Rogge, Ralph Beckenhauer, Edwin Lauwe, Joe Beckenhauer, John Mohr, Ed Glassmeyer and Ed Seyler.

Fourteen men have served as chiefs for the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department. They included: C.H. Fisher (1912); Geo. Lamberson (1913-1916); H.B. Craven (1917); Martin Ringer (1918-1945); L.B. McClure (1946); Paul Rogge (1947-1952); Bill Mellor (1953-1957); Lee Swinney (1958-1962); Ivan Beeks (1963-1967); Ivan Creighton (1968-1969); Cliff Pinkelman (1970-1975); Dick Korn (1976-1982); Kenneth "Dutch" Sitzman (1983); and Dale Preston (1984 to present).

CURRENT MEMBERS of the 1987 Wayne Volunteer Fire Department include: Art Barker, Ivan Beeks, Kevin Brockmoller, Sandy Bull, Norb Brugger, Harold Fleer, David Foote, Brian Frevert, Jim Granquist, Todd Hoeman, Dana Johnson, Rod Jorgensen, Dick Korn, Bill Kugler, Harry Leseberg, Chris Lueders, Rod Luft, Verdel Luft, John Melena, Roger Niemann, Dale Preston, Bryan Reinhardt, Rick Robins, Paul Rogge, Tom Schmitz, Dennis Spangler, Ken "Dutch" Sitzman, Bob Stanley, Joe Teeter, Marty Thomas, Jeff Triggs, Lynn Upton, Brooks Widner, Bob Woehler, Ron Wriedl, Dave Zach, Annette Leapley, Jeff Loberg, Chuck Thiel and Randy Davie.

$17,000 during the life of the replaced roof for maintenance.

The decision before the council would be to approve the rubber-like roof replacement which would last approximately 15-25 years with little maintenance, or spend money for the same type of roof as it is now, with a lower initial capital investment that would last from 10 to 15 years.

The city council approved a motion by Councilman Decker to have City Administrator Phil Kloster and City Attorney Ken Swarts prepare something for the council to consider regarding cost estimates and whether or not specifications would be required on both types of roof repair at the auditorium.

Decker also said the auditorium "needs to have a sandblast."

"We need to clean it up. It looks kind of forlorn," he said.

Kloster reminded the city council members about a recent retreat where a program of action for the future of the city of Wayne was formulated. Among the goals listed from 1987 to 1992 was "to pursue an evaluation of the existing municipal auditorium."

He said the city council, at the retreat, had considered trying to minimize the investment in that facility (the auditorium), primarily because it was inefficient in energy conservation and how the building was laid out.

There was discussion at the retreat, Kloster said, of winding down the use of the facility and eventually replacing it.

ALSO ON Tuesday, the city council, by an 7-1 margin, voted to become a part of a proposed study on liability and comprehensive inurance sponsored by the League of Municipalities.

The study will center around "insurance pooling" according to Kloster. The cost of the study is $524, or approximately 10 cents per population of the city of Wayne.

"Cities, school boards and counties across the state are looking at this. The city can look at the study to see if it is feasible [for insurance pooling] or if there is cost savings associated with it," Kloster said.

"This by no means is assurance that we will be in an insurance pool, if there is one. There is no assurance that the insurance pool will be the right thing for Wayne, or the school district or the county," he added.

"Once the study is done, it will determine what is best for the communities involved," Kloster said.

Kloster said the city has "saved a considerable amount of money upon converting to the self-insurance plan." The city currently has partial self-insurance plans in health and liability.

Councilman Larry Johnson said he was disappointed that the legislature did not pass some sort of tort reform legislation rather than the bill that allows for pooling, saying the legislation creates "a bureaucratic insurance company."

What was provided to the council members, Johnson said, was all positive information about the proposed study, with nothing as to the contrary.

Johnson said that if the $524 had been used to lobby legislators to do their duty in limiting liability and passing tort reform legislation "we would be better off."

Randy Pedersen placed the only no vote in approving Wayne's participation in the proposed study.

Clothing store opening

A new retail clothing store will be opening in mid-August in Wayne.

Sheryl Lindau will be opening up The Four In Hand, a retail clothing store for men and women. It will be located in the former building that housed The Shepherdess on Main Street in Wayne.

"We're in the process of remodeling the building right now," said Lindau.

The Four In Hand business will be carrying, for men, a lot of the same line of clothing as Roger Nelson had at The Rusty Nail, according to Lindau.

"But there will be no suits or sport coats," Lindau mentioned.

Women's clothing will feature junior and missy sizes in dresses and sports wear.

This is Lindau's first business venture. However, it is not her first experience in the retail clothing sales business.

"I had prior work experience with Goldstein-Chapman of Omaha in sales and customer service management," Lindau said.

She anticipates that up to five people will be working in the new clothing store, including herself.

Sheryl Summerfield, who has been employed at The Rusty Nail, will be working full-time at The Four In Hand, according to Lindau.

The Golden Years
by Gil Haase

Older Americans are good workers — and American business, short on help — is happy to hire them. Companies have learned to value highly the maturity, experience, knowledge and work habits of these un-retired retirees.

McDonald's is hiring oldersters now and has started a special "McMasters" training program for new over-55 employees in selected cities around the country. The company promises that "you're going to see a lot of gray hair in our stores and commercials... we think it's good business to hire older people."

Instead of calling in temps for short-term projects, the Corning Glass Works in Corning, New York, has hired retirees and found the experiment so successful that it has been intensified in recent years.

There are now more people over 65 in the United States than there are teenagers, according to The Congressional Office of Technology Assessment. By 2010, the elderly are expected to constitute 14 percent of the population.

Remember When? June 15, 1924 — Ford Motor Company announced that its 10-millionth automobile had come off the assembly line. It had taken seven years for Ford to make its first million cars; just 132 working days to make 9 million more.

Presented as a public service to our senior citizens, and the people who care about them by the Wayne Care Centre, 818 Main Street, Wayne, Nebraska 68787, 375-1922.
