Receives medal

Marine Lance Cpl. Richard Haase, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Haase of Wayne, recently received the Navy Achievement Medal. Haase received the decoration for professional achievement in the performance of his duties as a sentinel at Naval Station, Roosevelt Roads, Puerto Rico. During the early morning of March 17, Haase formed part of a human chain with three other Marines and waded into the current of a flash flood to free a victim who was trapped in his vehicle under the flood surge. After pulling the victim to safety, Haase and the other Marines searched for an hour downstream in the deluge, rescued a second victim and transported him to a waiting ambulance. His actions resulted in the saving of two lives. Haase is currently serving at Marine Barracks, Puerto Rico. A 1985 graduate of Wayne-Carroll High School, he joined the Marine Corps in January 1986.

THIS STREAM NORTHEAST OF WAYNE is evidence of the generous amount of rain which has fallen in the Wayne area during the past couple of weeks. Wayne County Extension Agent Don Spitze said the rain has been welcomed by both crop and livestock producers.

County crop report Above average yields predicted

By LaVon Anderson
Assistant Editor
Wayne County Extension Agent Don Spitze says there may not be a bumper crop this fall, however he is predicting at least an above-average yield.

Although farmers enjoyed an early planting season, record high temperatures and irregular rainfall early on caused many to become concerned.

Rainfall the past couple of weeks has eased conditions, however Spitze said corn yields in particular will reflect the neglect of early summer rains.

"THOSE EARS HAVE already been shortened down and the yield has already been reduced," said

Spitze. "Of course the recent rains have helped, but the long dry spell already did some damage that is irreversible."

Spitze added that beans are faring a little better than corn because of recent rains. "The beans will set new pods, continue to bloom and tend to compensate."

The extension agent said rain has helped pasture and hay fields considerably, and the cool weather combined with rain has eased at least one insect problem — spider mites — which were being reported in spotted areas across the county.

Bean leaf beetles, according to Spitze, aren't presenting any real threat.

ALTHOUGH SUB-SOIL moisture is probably short, Spitze said it should be alright if the county continues to receive normal rainfall.

He added that he has not received reports of any extensive hail damage to date. "Hail damage has been spotted throughout the county," said Spitze, "but not of any major consequence."

Storage conditions for this year's crop will again be tight, according to Spitze, adding that there is still a large amount of grain in storage from last year.

THE EXTENSION agent said the cool weather experienced lately has been extremely beneficial to area livestock producers.

"Hogs, along with both fat and dairy cattle, were under a lot of stress during the hot, humid weather," said Spitze.

For rural communities Main street business workshops set

Small business owners in rural communities who face the hardships of the farm crisis can fight back.

A management program offered by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Cooperative Extension Service and the University of Nebraska at Omaha's Nebraska Business Development Center (NBDC) helps people stabilize and expand their businesses, according to Gwen Melster, program coordinator.

Melster said instructional sessions focus on goal setting, market and trade analysis, financial analysis and financial planning.

THE PERSONALIZED program consists of a series of six weekly evening workshops.

At the completion of the program, participants can seek follow-up counseling services from NBDC's statewide network of eight centers at no extra charge.

Four pilot workshop series held in Aurora, Elwood, Hebron and Stromsburg ended in success last spring. People from 48 businesses, representing 16 Nebraska communities, attended.

Additional programs will run statewide through November 1987.

IN NORTHEAST Nebraska, workshops are slated Sept. 1, 8, 15, 22, 29 and Oct. 6 in the dining hall of the Stanton County Fairgrounds in Stanton (Stanton County); Oct. 13, 20, 27 and Nov. 10, 17 and 24 at the Senior Citizens Center in Hartington (Cedar County); and Oct. 14, 21, 28 and Nov. 4, 11 and 18 at the high school library in Schuyler (Colfax County).

Instructors for the three workshops in northeast Nebraska are Timothy Garvin of Wayne and Rosemary Jaspersen of Oakland.

Persons interested in registering for the workshops are asked to contact the extension agent in each county or call 1-800-742-7511 and ask for "Managing Main Street Business."

In Stanton County, the extension agent is Larry Howard, 439-2231. The extension agent in Cedar County is Lyle Vawser, 254-6821, and the extension agent in Colfax County is Dennis Kahl, 352-3821.

Fundraisers continue

Winside museum committee plans for Apple Festival

The Winside Museum Committee has announced plans to sponsor an Apple Festival on Saturday, Sept. 12 from 9 a.m. to noon in the city auditorium.

The festival will feature baked apple goods, apple juice, apple crafts, and a variety of other apple products. Coffee and other craft items also will be sold.

A door prize will be awarded and there will be a drawing for a 13-inch handcrafted colonial doll donated by Grandma's Attic of Winside.

Persons interested in donating baked goods, other food or craft items for the fundraiser are asked to contact Mrs. Veryl Jackson, fundraising chairman, at 286-4544.

PROCEEDS FROM the event will go towards establishing the former Theophilus Church as a museum in Winside.

The museum will be a branch of the Wayne County Historical Society.

Members of the Theophilus Church and the landowner offered the 90-year-old building and its entire contents to the Wayne County Historical Society last year when it was decided to disband the congregation.

IN JUNE, THE church was moved from its location four miles west and three south of Wayne to its new home in the southwest section of the Winside city park.

Money for the project is being raised by the Winside Museum Committee, which has collected pledges and conducted various fundraising activities during the past several months.

Work is continuing on the church museum basement, however Chairman Bill Burris said funds are depleting fast.

Burris said he will be contacting the construction class at Winside High School for possible help in finishing off the basement.

Volunteers also are needed to assist with painting and landscaping. Interested persons are asked to contact Burris at 286-4839.

THE NEXT MEETING of the Winside Museum Committee will be Monday, Sept. 21 at 8 p.m. in the home of Irene Dittman.

All persons interested in assisting with the museum project are invited to attend.

Dues to join the committee are $5 a year, or $100 for a lifetime membership, also enabling the individual to become a member of the Wayne County Historical Society as well as the Winside Museum Committee.

Fall fashion forecast — back to school

With the busy lifestyles of moms and dads, easy care garments will rank high this fall for back to school fashions.

Fleece will continue to be popular because of its splashes of color. Look for textural fabric mixtures, sparkling appliques and other eye catching decorative treatments.

Sweatsuits aren't just for athletes any more. Sweat tops may feature dropped shoulders or pushup sleeves and have three hemline options — hip length, thigh high or above the knee dress length. Other tops show raglan or cut-on sleeves.

Sweats are easy to sew and can be personalized with trims. Several patterns give suggestions for adding sequined appliques, jeweled rhinestones, nailheads, soutache braids and synthetic suede appliques.

DENIM, THAT EVER popular fabric, appears on the scene with a new look. New treatments are applied such as bleaching, stone washing, chemical washing or over-dyeing. Black and gray denim will be popular with white top stitching for an updated look.

Just about everything will be made in denim or denim-look: Pants, jackets, western style skirts, shirts and dresses will be popular patterns to use.

Chambray is now trimmed with lace and teamed with denim as a fashion front runner. Chambray's distinctive look is a result of using colored lengthwise yarns and white crosswise yarns.

Chambray can be fine, medium or heavy weight. Plain unpatterned cloth is the most common, but chambrays may be striped, checked or covered with dobby-woven designs. Novelty yarns create textural interest. Fine chambrays may be printed.

Chambray has always been valued for work clothes, but this fall it makes a fashion statement. Its current popularity depends on its traditional characteristics of comfort, durability, easy laundering and clean good look.

Shoulder pads provide slim appearance

If you want to look slim, consider wearing shoulder pads. They create the illusion of a small waist and hips by giving width to the shoulders.

Pads come in a variety of thicknesses and shapes. Choose one that will give you a pleasing height and proportion without causing the fabric to strain over the shoulders.

The fashion scene today calls for slimmer, rounded, body contoured shoulder pads. Try using raglan-style pads even with set-in sleeves.

Blouse, dress and unlined jacket pads should be covered with a scrap of material or a lining fabric to blend in with the garment.

Attach a pad by tacking it along the shoulder seam only and not to the armhole. If you attach pads with a hook and loop tape, they can be removed before cleaning. These also can be used in more than one garment.

Aggers named Hjort new Wildcat aide

Eric Hjort has joined the coaching staff of the Wayne State men's basketball program, according to Head Coach Steve Aggers.

Hjort comes to Wayne State from Seattle where he spent four years coaching in the high school ranks. Last year Hjort was the head coach at Seattle Academy. Prior to that he spent a season as head coach and assistant athletic director at Mt. Lake Christian High School. He also taught a year at Odeia High School in Seattle.

This summer Hjort was on the staff at the University of Washington basketball camp under the direction of Huskie Head Coach Andy Russo.

He is a 1986 graduate of Seattle Pacific University with a bachelor's degree in education. Hjort plans to pursue a master's degree in physical education and administration while at Wayne State.

This year's event will be held in conjunction with a scrimmage against Westmar College. The two-hour scrimmage will begin at approximately 11 a.m.

The Wayne State Second Guessers will begin its 1987-88 meeting schedule Thursday, Sept. 3 at The Varsity. The luncheon meeting will begin at noon. The group will meet each Thursday through the 87-88 athletic season.

New to the meetings this year are game film highlights with footage from Wayne State football, basketball and volleyball games as well as comments from coaches.

For more information on Second Guessers contact Jean Berger at 375-2200 ext. 326.

Wayne State season ticket holders can pick up their football tickets Aug. 29 beginning at 10 a.m. at Memorial Stadium.

Season ticket holders will be able to designate which seats they wish to purchase on the 29th. All tickets not picked up will be mailed to the ticket holders.

Heat injury can be prevented this summer

With summer football practice underway players must suffer the heat and humidity of August in order to be ready for the big games played on cool fall days. High temperatures and humidity can be responsible for heat injury if some simple rules for prevention are overlooked.

Heat injury is an important consideration in summer football training. According to one study between 1961-1972, 60 deaths from heat injury were reported. In recent years this number has been reduced due to a better understanding of the body's temperature at 98.6 degrees F. Exercise, however, causes a buildup of heat. There may be a normal increase of 4-6 degrees F. with exercise. To prevent a continuous rise in temperature, the body must give off excess heat. This may be accomplished by one of several methods.

Radiation occurs when heat rays are given off by the body when in a cooler environment. Cooling by convection occurs as air currents move over the body. Conduction occurs when objects that our body touches (ex: a chair) accept body heat. Respiration by the lungs also has a cooling effect. Lastly, but most importantly, sweat evaporation occurs when energy (heat) is taken from the skin as the liquid (sweat) forms a vapor. When sweat is evaporated, fluids must be replaced in the body to prevent dehydration. High humidity and hot temperature call for fluid replacement as well.

Heat injury is generally associated with increased temperature and relative humidity. Humidity is especially critical, as some deaths have occurred at seemingly comfortable temperatures (60 degrees) when humidity was high (60%). Why does this occur? When relative humidity is high, the air is saturated with moisture and cannot take up any more water. At this point, sweat cannot be evaporated from the skin. Sweating itself does not cool the body. Sweat must evaporate for cooling to take place. Wiping sweat off does not have the same cooling effect.

Heat stroke can kill. Therefore, heat injury should not be taken lightly. This sometimes fatal injury can be prevented by following a few simple rules. It is important to know the environment. If temperatures or relative humidity is high, schedule practices for early morning or early evening. Have scheduled water breaks. Every 30 minutes, players should drink 13-17 oz. of plain cool water. Two hours before practice, have them consume 32 oz. of water. Plain cool water is the best replacement fluid. Solutions with added sugar can cause nausea or a sense of fullness that prevents the athlete from consuming an adequate amount of fluid. Sugar also slows the body's ability to empty the stomach and allow absorption.

Wear clothing that exposes as much skin as possible to the air. This helps with sweat evaporation. White net jerseys and shorts are ideal for summer football practice. Players should remove their helmets periodically during practice.

Know your athletes. Those who are big or those with large amounts of fat are more susceptible to heat injury. Make sure they follow the rules of prevention. Off the field athletes should replace fluids so that weight does not vary more than one pound between each practice. One pint of water should be ingested for each pound lost. Thirst is quenched before fluid needs are met. Athletes should weigh in each day before practice to ensure that fluid replacement is adequate. Football players who fail to replace fluid losses may lose 15-20 pounds daily.

Diets should be rich in fresh fruits and vegetables. These help replace lost electrolytes. Salt tablets are not necessary as sodium is easily replaced in the diet from foods we normally eat. Food may be lightly salted if sweating has been profuse. What about salt tablets? One negative side effect is that sodium holds water in the body and, on a hot day, this can prevent the athlete from sweating and evaporating heat.

The need for adequate fluid replacement before, during, and after practice cannot be over-emphasized. Adequate fluid replacement will prevent heat injury and keep players more alert. In turn, the players are more skillful and effective in their performance.

BUSINESS FOCUS

north of Wayne, is a Nebraska Certified Nurseryman and has designed landscapes for many Wayne and area homes and businesses. Pictured in the bottom photo is a landscape designed by Pedersen for the Bob Lohrbergs of Wayne.

Wayne Country Nursery — a blossoming business

In addition to selling a large variety of trees and shrubs, annual and perennial flowers, roses, spring and fall bulbs, garden seeds and vegetables, The Country Nursery of Wayne is in the business of landscaping, both homes and businesses, and features the Henri Studio line of bird baths and fountains. They also offer for sale Christmas trees and wreaths.

Brent Pedersen, who has operated The Country Nursery since 1980 at a location three miles east and one-half mile north of Wayne, says his business has expanded considerably during the past several years.

"I feel we have a very good selection of annual and perennial flowers, as well as trees and shrubs, that you can't find in this immediate area," said Pedersen, adding that many people don't realize that fall is as good a time as spring to plant many bulbs, including tulips, daffodils, crocus, hyacinths and peonies, as well as any variety of tree or shrub.

The Country Nursery sells the ferti-lome line of fertilizers and chemicals for trees, shrubs, gardens, flowers, etc. "I feel the ferti-lome line is a very good product at a reasonable cost," said Pedersen. "Just as good as the more expensive name brands."

Pedersen's knowledge of the nursery industry is evident in the fact that he is a Nebraska Certified Nurseryman and a member of the Nebraska Association of Nurserymen. To become a certified nurseryman, he was required to pass a three part test involving plant identification and general horticulture knowledge, as well as complete a landscape.

His landscaping designs can be seen throughout Wayne as well as in many area communities. "We'll either give the customer ideas or help them with ideas they've already formulated," said Pedersen, adding that he can draw up plans and the customer can proceed with them as they wish and according to what he or she can afford.

Pedersen stressed that he is happy not only to assist customers with new homes but also those who are planning renovation of their lawns. Landscaping projects which he has done recently involve Wayne Public Library and the Wayne Country Club.

The Country Nursery owner said he would be more than happy to take customers around and show them what he has done.

Working with Pedersen at The Country Nursery are five part-time employees — Dee Rebensdorf, Barb Pedersen, Scott Brown, Eric Liska and Joel Pedersen.

Any business — small or large — may participate in this weekly Business Focus feature. For more details contact Patti Zrust, Herald advertising representative, 375-2600.
