Proposal

for motel announced

By Chuck Hackenmiller

A plan was announced Tuesday for a proposal to build a motel-restaurant-bar east of Wayne. The Wayne Herald contacted the would-be owner of the proposed motel Tuesday morning, confirming a report that was published in the Tuesday edition of the Omaha World-Herald and announced on KTCH

The owner has requested his name be withheld until all the ar-rangements concerning property ac-quisition and all proper zoning re-quirements have been finalized. That announcement could possibly come within two weeks, he mentioned.

If the motel is bullt, it will be located about a mile east of Wayne, south of Highway 35. The owner sald the motel, which would be affiliated with a widely known motel chain (which he could not reveal at the pre-sent time), would contain 40 rooms and would also have a bar and

"We're hoping to get started on it in 30 days," said the owner. Considerable community growth anticipation is one reason for building a proposed motel in Wayne, the owner mentioned, "It's surprising to see how a smaller town like Wayne has been growing and continuing to draw new business," he

The motel bar-restaurant combination, he said, would result in the hir-ing of up to 25 people. If will feature large screen television viewing and a sound system, plus it will be strucsound system, plus it will be struc-tured to allow in the future for live musical entertainment.

There have been no recommenda-tions that have come from the city's planning and zoning board which have been presented to the Wayne City Council as of Wednesday, according to city administration officials.

From the pumpkin patch

STRAIGHT FROM THE WAKEPATCH Pumpkin Patch are Vanessa Nelson and Joshua Soderberg. The two were among more than 50 entries in the Pumpkin Day parade last Saturday morning in Wakefield. Other activities during the daylong celebration, sponsored by the Wakefield Community Club, included games for all ages, a free omelet feed, a melodrama, entertainment by a group from the Emerson Senior Center, contests for pumpkin baking, pumpkin decorating, largest and smallest pumpkins, a cake decorating contest, fine arts display, yard decorating contest, automobile display of classics and collectibles, and a dance in the evening. More pictures of the Pumpkin Day event appear on page 1B.

City deals with water project

A water improvement assessment district, to correct leaking old water lines on a section of West 4th Street, reviewed Tuesday evening by the Wayne City Council.

The council will prepare an agreement with several property owners who requested the new water line. It will call for the installation of an extended water main starting near the intersection of Sherman and West Fourth Street, west on Fourth Street and down School View Drive to near Fifth Street.

Four property owners would be involved in the water line improvement area. Those who were mentioned during Tuesday's council meeting were Earl Echtenkamp, Rowe Wiltse, Robert Meyer and Earl Lar

According to City Administrator Phil Kloster, the property owners would be required to pay two-thirds of the cost for the project while-the city picks up the remaining third cost. The estimated cost for the project.

Not much has changed structure ise in the Ron and Jan Brown home at 210 Lincoln in Wayne.

Perhaps that it is why the house is so unique, and why the home was chosen as one of three sites for the Historical Tour slated for Oct. 18.

Ron owns Ron's Refinishing in

THE HOUSE continues to dispays its original appearance, although there has been a half-bath addition and repainting here and there.

Woodwork inside the home consists of white quarter sawed oak in the liv ing area downstairs, yellow pine in the kitchen area and select birch in the upstairs rooms.

There are four rooms downstairs. plus a pantry and a rear porch, and upstairs are four bedrooms and a bath. A full basement is below and there is also a walk-up full affic.

The goal which the Browns have been striving for is to create a house that markets the decrea and furtilize.

Living room furniture is also of the 1920's to 1930's era, except for the plano which is dated to the late 1940's or early 1950's.

Home

This is the first of three articles concerning each of the three Wayne homes that will be featured on Oct. 18 during the 1987 Historical Home Tour, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Three benches are tucked nicely inside the home's interior. To accomplish the task of gaining suitable furniture to reach their goal, he Browns attend a variety of auc tions and visit antique places or cond hand stores.

MUCH OF THE finishing work on the antiques have been furnished through the skillful hands of Ron. He has been a professional furniture stripper and refinisher of furniture for the past four years. Prior to that, while he was working with the state highway patrol, he considered furniture refinishing as a hobby.

But the house interior, with the split staircase that can lead to the upstairs from the kitchen or the entry area, can steal the show.

The Browns said they are not done with the restoration process of their home. "We go along as time and money permits," said Ron.

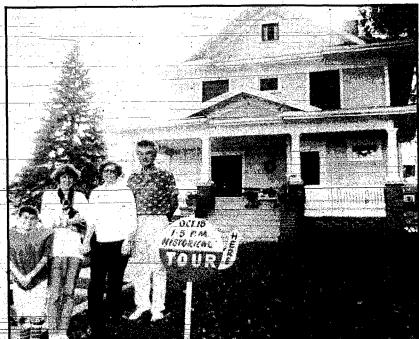

But bit by bit, the home of the early 1900's is becoming more and more like an original, as those participating in the historical home tour will be able to testify. will be able to testify

City files suit on street damage

By Chuck Hackenmiller

Managina Editor

The city of Wayne has filed a lawsuif in Wayne County District Courf against Midwest Bridge and Construction Company of Norfolk and United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company concerning the construction of a road project that took place several years ago in place several years ago in

On about Aug. 28, 1984 the city of Wayne had entered into a contract with Midwest Bridge and Construc-tion Company for the commence-ment and completion of the construction of several street improvement districts. Those primary projects in-cluded the road construction project near the Coan Subdivision (West 3rd Street) and the street project south of Villa Wayne leading to the drive of the city's waste water treatment plant, according to Wayne City At-

At the same time the contract was signed, a performance bond was executed, according to the filing in district court.

The suit filing states that the city engineers on the project, for the city of Wayne, informed Midwest Bridge and Construction Company of the problems developed with the project regarding the cracking, separating and settling in the concrete streets constructed by the defendant-contractor.

Talk about biased reporting. The way Howard Cosell talks it sounds ke he should be a member of the NEL Players Association bargaining committee.

Cosell starts off with his anti-owners spiel every morning on his sports cast. Cosell preaches that the owners are out to break every union in America. I myself, am getting lired of the whole sorted affair.

I just have a couple of thoughts about the strike...

* The NFLPA says it wants free agency because everyone else in the American work force has the chance to work where they want fo, why shouldn't the football players? That is a bunch of bunk! I know for a fact it! I walked into the sports editors office at the New York Times and said I want your job he would tell me to get jost among other various unmentionables. People can not work where ever they want to, it's just a fact of life.

*If the players are so serious about the strike why are they going about it-like its a joke. I mean, if they are going to picket, welf-then picket. You don't get people's attention by picketing from one in the afternoon until six in the evening, Monday through Friday like the Green People has the property of the prop

*Another gripe of the NFLPA is that the average career of a player is less than four years. But you take that by the average salary, $230,000 annually, and you've got a pretty nice hest egg. And who's to say that after their career is over they can't get a real job, heaven forbid!

I was right on the nose for the Huskers but I was 11 points shy on the Arizona State score. I guess the end result is all that matters. This week NU-can't afford to lets its guard down. If they don't they can win finandity, if they do it could be a long afternoon at the friendly continue.

I'm banking on the "Shuckers" remembering what almost happened last year in Columbia, S.C. The Cornhuskers barely got out of Williams-Brice Stadium alive winning 27-24 thanks to a last-minute interception by Bryan Siebler.

Bryan Siebler. This year the Huskers should get their running game back into high gear and win 41-24.

My upset special didn't come through for me so I finished the week 4-1. The last two weeks I stand at 7-3.

The Wayne Blue Devils will get that first win by nipping North Bend in a homecoming battle; Laurel's playoff hopes will be dealt a blow when Plerce edges the Bears in an important NENAC game; Winside will drop below .500 with a loss to Wausa; and Wakefield will lick its wounds with a homecoming win over Allen

Wayne State Coach Pete Chapman

Wayne State Coach Pete Chapman after looking back at the game it is a little disappointing not to come away with a win. But the tie was better than a loss.

"It would have been great to win but we needed something good to happen," Chapman said. "Being the conference opener also adds to it."

The Griffons jumped in front 10-0 after the first period. Western got the ball on the opening kickoff at Wayne State's Kevin Hagedorn Tumbled at his own 30-yard line. The guests his own 30-yard line. The guests drove down to the 11-yard line where the Cat defense stopped tailback Pat Eckhardt for no gain on fourth and

Wayne girls lack offense in loss

It is tough to play the game of volleyball without any offense but according to Wayne Coach Marlene Uhing that's what file Lady Blue Devils tried to do Tuesday night in the loss to West Point.

The locals dropped to 4-6 with a 7-15, 13-15 loss to the Lady Cadets.
Wayne scrambled all evening to get into its offense but by the time the locals started playing up to their potential it was too late. West Point rain away with a close game in the first set. The visitors scored the last sky points in the opening game. points in the opening game.

"We don't have any big hitters but the lob of our spikers is to keep the ball in play," Uhing said.

They did not do that while West Point kept the ball in play-waiting for Wayne to make a mistake.

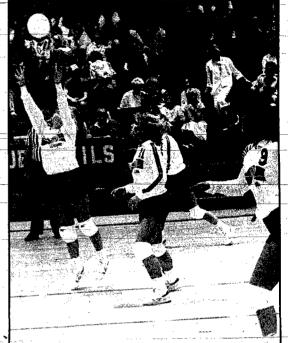

For the third match Wayne was without senior Amy Schluns. Schluns injured her knee at the Wisner-Pilger tournament. She had it examined Wednesday and will be out of action indefinately. Uhing said dhe locals missed Schluns on the court.

The Wayne coach said the three seniors, Sarah Peterson, Marrile Bruggeman and Schluns lead in their own way.

"Sarah leads by example, she always play hard. Marnie runs the offense and reads what the other team is doing and Amy makes very few mistakes and keeps everyone in gear," Uhing said. "We'll need someone to pick up the slack."

In the earlier matches the JV's and the C squad both beat the visitors. The junior varsity won in straight sets 15-11, 15-1. Julie Wessel was the top scorer with nine points. The C squad also won in two sets 15-13, 15-5. Rachel Hasse led the girls with 10 colots.

Saturday the locals will play in the Elkhorn Valley Invitational at Tilden. The Lady Blue Devils will play Humphrey St. Francis In their first game at 11 a.m. In other first-round games Elkhorn Valley will play Humphrey and Newman Grove will battle the Norfolk reserves. Madison received a bye.

Herman named to Hall of Fame

In November 1941, after their last weary Hereford calf stumbled out of the dehorning chute on their Wayne farm, young Leland Herman decided It was time to pop the question that had been on his mind, "Dad, why don't we get a Polled Hereford bull?"

After a moment, his father expressed his doubts about the breed pressed-his-doubts about the breed-and said he didn't even know where they could find one. But the boy had been doing his homework. "Dad," he said, "there's a story in the last issue of the Breeders Gazette about some people down in Kansas who are breeding Polled Herefords. The pictures of them look pretty good."

A few months later, they made that trip to Kansas and bought a Polled Hereford bull calf from Joe and Walter Lewis. When Walter Lewis asked him how he wanted the papers on Plato Aster 25 transferred, Leland on Plato Aster 25 transferred, Leland Herman proudly answered, "Hervale Farms." Since that day 45 years ago, Leland Herman has devoted his life to producing and promoting Polled Herefords.

In recognition of his contributions to the Polled Hereford industry, Leland Herman has been selected by the American Polled Hereford Association to be inducted into the Polled Hereford Hall of Fame.

Herman had a financial stake in the Poiled Herefords from the very beginning. He bought three Poiled Hereford helfers and put up half the money for the bull with profits he earned from selling his 4-H steers. He was very active in 4-H. The young Herman showed the first registered bull calf sired by the first registered buil calf sired by the Alfalfa Lawn buil in 1944 at the National Show in Atlanta. He stood second in class to the National Champion Buil. His offspring in the commercial herd were also making news. Some of his steer sons teamed up to be the first and only Polled Hereford steers to be the champion group of three at both the Chicago International in 1946 and the National Western in Denver in 1947. His daughters were equally as popular and formed the genetic base for the Hervale herd.

Leland Herman had several class winners and sale champions. Among the highlights were when he had the 43rd National Champion heifer in 1965 and the champion calf get-of-sire at the 48th National in 1971. Two of Hervale Farms-bulls, Diamond Two and JS Spidel 260, attained Gold Trophy status. Through the years over 30 production sales were held on the farm, with cattle going to 38 states, Canada and Japan.

Herman was a charter member of the Nebraska Hereford Association, serving as its president in 1949. Seeing a need for a Polled Hereford organization in Nebraska, he helped organization in Nebraska PHA and Pharman in 1973-1976, and presided as chairman in 1973-1976, and presided as chairman in 1973-1786, and presided as chairman in 1973-1786, and president of help outstanding breeder-award and also as the honoree at the 1982 Nebraska State Fair SOP Show.

He is the third generation of his family to live on the farm where he was born-in 1922. He still makes his home there, and his contributions to his community are many. He has served on the Wayne County fair board since 1946, and as president for 35 of those years he was a strong supporter of 4-H programs. He was the organizing chairman for the Wayne County Farm Bureau and was their president for seven years.

Soybean residue controls erosion

Farmers can take a big step toward controlling erosion this fall by properly spreading soybean residue during harvest. The residue from soybeans is very light compared to corn residue, but if properly spread, it can be enough for a conservation tillage system

Soybean residue from a cropyielding 30 to 40 bushels per acre, if properly spread, can provide 30 to 40 percent ground cover the following spring. If the current crop is no-tilled into the bean residue, erosion will be substantially reduced. The difference between disking, soybean cover and no-tilling into bean cover on the rolling hills of northeast Nebraska, could mean a saving of as much as 15 tons of soil per acre. The wide combines used today, in-much as 15 tons of soil per acre. The wide combines used today, increase the difficulty of uniformly spreading bean residue. The wider the combine the better the spreader must be adjusted to do an adequate job. Some even remove the belt and drop the residue in a windrow. This not only wastes the residue, but causes the need for additional tillage to dispose of the windrow in the spring before planting.

The 1985 Farm Bill requires that by 1994 soil erosion be controlled by those who plan to participate in the USDA farm programs. Managing soybean residue for a no-till system would be a cost effective initial step

The Golden Years

The notion that senior citizens are the wealthiest group in American society is largely a myth. According to census figures, some elderly Americando have significant assets, but a large number have practically none. In 1984 the median income of households headed by a person over 65 was $18,000, compared with $29,000 for households headed by people 25-64. The median income of individuals over age 85 living alone was about $7,000, while younger people living alone had twice as much income, about $15,000. The notion that senior citizens

Exercise is most effective at reducing the blood levels of cholesterol in older people when it is accompanied by weight loss, according to researchers at the Universities of Colorado and Virginia, who reported their findings in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The "Gentle" Laxatives

When we hear the word laxative, we often think of liquids or tablets that are given to produce a rapid and often uncomfortable — evacuation of the intestine following a period of irregularity or constipation. Although the laxatives which produce this effect were frequently used in the past, a more gentle and less pproach to treating constipation is now available. This approach involves use of the "gentle" laxatives which are often referred to as emollients or stool softeners. Several stool softener products are available without a prescription. Many contain dioc-tyl sodium sulfosuccinate or related compounds.

Stool softener laxatives have a detergent-like action in the intestine, increasing the water content of the stool and, hence, its softness. The stool softeners are becoming increasingly popular because they do not appear to be habit forming, nor do they cause cramping as do many of the older stimulant type laxatives. Stool softeners are often recommended for the prevention of constipation once the problem has been corrected and are especially beneficial when combined with a fiber-rich diet and adequate fluid intake.

Have you ever had a standing ovation? Perhaps you've been part of a choir, or in a play, that merited audience appreciation. It's a good feel-dience appreciation. It's a good feeling, isn't It?

What if you could ask for a standing ovation whenever you felt the need? Would you ask for one? Do you think you deserve one?

I confess I've participated in many "standing ovations." Sometimes I even thought that maybe we were overdoing them, instead of reserving them for truly exceptional performances.

I no longer will feel that way. In fact, I will probably stand and begin

The rest of the day, whenever anyone felt the need, they stood up and announced, "I need a standing ovation!" Then Fran hollered, "Let's give her one!" and we all stood and clapped and carried on.

A message from the Nebraska Bankers in your hometown.

QUITE OFTEN THE MOST IMPORTANT THING WE LEND IS A HAND.

Lending is a concept that comes quite naturally to a Nebraska banker. It's an important part of what we do. In fact, the amount of money currently loaned out by Nebraska banks totals well over $8 billion.

Most of that money is helping Nebraskans finance business expansion, machinery and construction, college educations, farm operating expenses, home improvements, cars and trucks, furniture and home appliances.

But our interest in lending goes beyond the dollars that help build the economy.

We're lending our time and talents to an endless list of projects that help build our state and our community.

Nebraska's hometown bankers have always recognized the responsibility to take a leadership role in civic, charitable and public service affairs that are vital to each community.

Think about the civic projects that are most important to you and your town. Most likely there's a banker volunteering a helping hand.

Sure, in the long run it's good for business. But, more importantly, it's good for the towns and cities that we call home...just like you.
