NPPD owns and operates the Cooper Nuclear Station near Brownville and the plant, which has a boiling water reactor, has been generating electricity for the District's customers since 1974.

Skate away

The 1987 Super Skate sponsored by the Association for Retarded Citizens-Nebraska took place Saturday, Oct. 24 at the Wakefield Skating Rink. Nine energetic, hard-working individuals skated eight hours and 100 miles to raise over $1,000 for children and adults with mental retardation.

Theta Phi Alpha Sorority from Wayne State College skated to raise $402. Their representative, Deanna Millington, stated: "We're ready to do it again, but next time we'll be challenging other sororities, fraternities and organizations on-campus to join in."

Other winners and participants included: Karroll and Pamela Coffin, Dixon; Deb Harcourt and Patti David, Chambers; Jessica and Heath Gustafson, Emerson; Robert Nelson, Concord and Travis Birkley, Wakefield.

"Our goals had been set higher," as indicated by Robin Smith, staff member with Association for Retarded Citizens-Nebraska, "however, we couldn't have asked for a better group to come and skate. Their efforts should really be admired by all. It takes a lot of stamina and heart to skate 100 miles in eight hours."

Winners

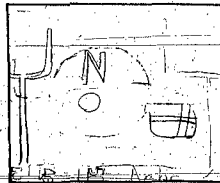

Those who won in the Wayne Area Package Deals promotion, sponsored by the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce from Oct. 5 through Nov. 6 include: Lynn Papenhause, Coleridge, $225; Barry Martinson, Allen, $225; Mary Temme, Wayne, $225; Jeannette Ormsby, Wayne, $235; Vernon Bauermeister, $216; Verlyn Anderson, $237; Judy Martindale, $250; and Nancy Bahns, $344.

After 57 years

Wayne grocer retires

By LaVon Anderson
Assistant Editor

After nearly 60 years in the grocery business, Bill Lueders Sr. is hanging up his apron.

Lueders, who began his grocery career at age 13, announced Monday that he is retiring as president of Lueders, Inc., owner of Bill's GW store in Wayne. His wife, Ellen, also is retiring as vice president of the corporation.

Taking over as president and vice president are Lueders' son and daughter-in-law, Bill Jr. and Elaine. Bill Jr.'s oldest son, Larry, 23, will serve as secretary-treasurer.

Bill Sr. will remain chairman of the board.

IN MAKING THE announcement Monday, Bill Sr. took time to reminisce on his years in the grocery business, beginning in the late 1920's when he went to work part-time at the U & I Store (United and Independent Grocers).

His first "steady" job, at age 15, was for Larson's Grocery Store, which was managed by Bill Sr.'s brother, Al Lueders, and was located in back of the present Kuhn's store on Main St.

Twelve years later, in the early 1940's, Bill Sr. became manager of Larson's Grocery Store. R. C. Larson closed the grocery department one year later.

It was at that time that Bill Sr. went to work at Quality Market, located across the street west from the Wayne State College campus.

Bill Sr. remained at Quality Market as manager until 1947 when he opened his own store, Economy Market, located at the former Second and Main St. site of the State National Bank and Trust Co.

His only absence from the grocery business was from 1954 to 1957 when he sold the Economy Market and purchased the Colony Club bar in Norfolk.

He returned to Wayne in 1957 and re-purchased the Economy Market, moving the business to a newer building located just one door east.

In 1958, Bill Sr. closed the business and purchased the City Grocery from his brother, Fred Lueders. The business, located at the present site of First Federal Lincoln, became known as Bill's Market Basket.

Bill Sr. remained at the Main St. location until the early 1970's when he purchased land at the east edge of Wayne and built a new 10,000 square foot grocery store, Bill's GW Market, which opened in August of 1973.

Just three years later he expanded the business to 20,000 square feet.

Today, in addition to the grocery store, Bill's GW Market houses a card-and book shop, delicatessen, laundry and dry cleaning business.

Lueders, Inc. also owns and operates a garbage refuse business.

Bill's GW, which employed 18 persons when it opened in 1973, now provides jobs for approximately 60 people.

"AT ONE TIME there were 13 grocery stores in Wayne," points out Bill Sr. "During the past 30 years, Bill's GW has remained a family-owned business and has outlasted major chain stores which have come and gone."

The biggest change Bill has noticed during his career in the grocery business is self-service.

"At Larson's," recalls Bill, "we were the first grocery store to implement self-service. Before that time, customers brought in their grocery lists and came back later to pick up the items."

Bill Sr. also remembers the days when groceries were delivered throughout town by horse and wagon.

Threats made to newspaper carrier

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing Editor

A mother of a young newspaper carrier had filed a report to the Wayne Police Department in late October complaining about one or more individuals who threatened the safety of her son while he was doing his early morning paper route.

The mother called the Wayne Police Department on Oct. 26 after her son was chased in the early morning hours by an individual carrying a knife. At the time, her son was delivering newspapers on the Wayne State College campus.

Monday afternoon, Wayne Police Chief Vern Fairchild provided details when asked by The Wayne Herald about the incident and the mother's complaint.

He said that the mother's complaint was basically that "a vehicle with people in it were shouting at the boy on the paper route and threatened him a couple times."

When asked if it says in the report how the paper boy was threatened, he said "it was not listed how the boy was threatened."

Fairchild said it was reported that the vehicle used by those making threats was black, but no license number was listed. No physical characteristics of the individual(s) in the vehicle were mentioned in the report.

Fairchild was asked if any type of weapons were reported involved in the incident. He replied: "supposedly, a knife was displayed at least once."

THE INCIDENTS occurred "up in the north part of town," said Fairchild. In contacting the concerned mother, she confirmed that the incidents happened near Bressler Park and on the Wayne State College campus.

Fairchild said the person or people involved in the threats, to the paper carrier have not been caught. He said the mother's complaint was treated as legitimate.

"We're looking for cars early in the morning that match the description," said Fairchild.

No recurrence of the incidents have taken place since it was reported Oct. 26.

He said that if anyone sees a suspicious vehicle, they should "tell us [the police department] about it immediately."

"We don't mind investigating suspicious things," he added.

The mother, when contacted Monday, said her son was on the WSC campus completing his route between 6:30 and 7 a.m. when he spotted an individual, holding a cat and a knife in his hands.

SHE DIDN'T WANT her name, or her son's name, mentioned in this story. She said the individual ran after her son and threatened him with the knife.

One other time, she said her son was "swerved at" near Bressler park by someone in a vehicle.

The mother said she had heard a rumor that the suspect involved in the Wayne threats was arrested before Halloween by the Norfolk Police Department.

However, Gene Buss, a captain with the Norfolk Police Department, said late Monday afternoon that there have been no arrests made by the Norfolk Police recently that were linked to the incidents in Wayne.

The mother said the Wayne police force did a commendable job in patrolling the areas where the threats occurred and in notifying the homes in the Wayne "Safe House" program about the situation.

Says Wayne-Carroll Elementary Principal

'Head lice situation not out of control'

By LaVon Anderson
Assistant Editor

The situation is not out of control, however Wayne-Carroll Elementary Principal Dave Lutt said parents need to be aware that head lice have been detected on students in both the Wayne and Carroll grade schools.

"It's not the numbers," said Lutt, "it's just that, a consistent three to four cases of head lice are being detected each week."

Lutt added that the problem began shortly after the start of the school year and is inherent of a school situation where students are in close contact with one another on a daily basis.

The elementary principal emphasized that head lice on a child does not mean he or she comes from a filthy home.

"Lice like hair whether it is clean or dirty, long or short."

"DON'T BE embarrassed if you find your child has been infested with head lice," said School Nurse Lu Ellingson, "and don't hide it."

In addition to seeking treatment immediately, Ellingson said parents should also inform the school so that precautions can be taken to guard against other youngsters being infested.

Ellingson said the same holds true if a youngster is in the care of a babysitter and is found to be infested with head lice. "Tell the babysitter or anyone else the youngster has been in contact with."

WHILE HEAD LICE may be difficult to spot (the insects themselves are only one to two millimeters long). Ellingson said itching of the head may be an indication that a youngster is infested.

The most visible manifestation of lice infestation is the presence of nits (eggs). Nits are small, silvery and oval-shaped and are attached to the hair shafts, about one-half inch from the scalp, where the eggs hatch within seven to 10 days. Once hatched, the louse reaches adulthood in about two weeks.

"If a youngster has dandruff or scaling it will flake away," said Ellingson. "Lice, however, attach to the hair shaft and must be stripped with the fingernail."

If a parent is in doubt, Ellingson said they should have the child checked by a qualified person such as the school nurse or family physician. Ellingson added that some hairdressers also are qualified to determine if head lice is present.

LUTT SAID ONCE head lice are detected, the youngster is excluded from school until treatment has been obtained.

If he or she has a brother or sister in middle school or high school, they too are checked by the school nurse.

Ellingson recommends that in the event head lice is found on one family member, the entire family be treated to avoid re-infestation. Although over-the-counter medications are available to treat head lice, Ellingson encourages parents to take their child to a physician who can prescribe a much more effective delousing medication.

The newest prescribed medication requires only a single application to kill both the lice and eggs," said Ellingson, "while over-the-counter medications are not nearly as effective and often require several treatments."

Ellingson added that once treatment has been obtained, and the youngster is "nit free," he or she immediately returns to school.

Nit removal is simplified by using a fine tooth comb available with prescribed lice medications.

ALTHOUGH HEAD LICE do not jump, they do fall and are therefore highly communicable.

Lutt said the school has taken several precautions, including visiting with the youngsters concerning steps they can take to help prevent the incidence.

"I mainly tell the kids to avoid direct contact," said Ellingson, "such as putting their heads together when they study."

Ellingson said youngsters also are discouraged from sharing hair brushes, combs, coats, hats, scarves and other headgear.

Recently, where several cases of head lice were detected in second and fourth grade students, Lutt said the youngsters were asked to bring plastic bags or grocery sacks for a period of 10 days to place their coats and hats in rather than hanging them all together.

SINCE LICE CAN live for up to 48 hours off the human body, Ellingson said it is important to clean the child's home environment.

Clothing, sheets, blankets and pillowcases, as well as other personal belongings, should be washed in very hot water and dried at high heat for at least 20 minutes. Items that cannot take washing and drying should be dry cleaned.

"Don't forget to clean hats and coats," stresses Ellingson, "and don't forget to vacuum the mattress once the bedding is removed, along with carpets and upholstery."

Ellingson said persons with waterbeds should take special care since lice thrive in warm environments.

Combs and brushes should be cleaned in hot water, and items that can't be cleaned, such as stuffed animals, should be placed in sealed plastic bags for 14 days.

When to intervene

Just when should the press step in?

On the front page of today's edition, a story is displayed concerning vocal threats of a suspicious nature that had been made to a paper carrier.

We realize that this type of situation as publicized can cause panic among both children and adults. However, we checked into the story after hearing a rumor on Monday (Nov. 9) that an individual was arrested in Norfolk, who was linked to making the threats against the Wayne individual.

As the day progressed on Monday and following a trip to the Norfolk Police Station, we found no truth to the rumor. There have been no arrests with the Wayne incidents and no further information on the investigation, according to Police Chief Vern Fairchild.

Certainly, it isn't our intention to sensationalize on the situation. The names of the people who made the complaint have been left out of the story for protection of identity — that's how real their fear is in regard to the circumstances which have happened in the past.

We could have completely avoided the issue knowing that panic could arise, and just continue to let the police department continue their investigation without the media interfering.

But what if later there was an abduction? A missing child? Could any newspaper staff member live with himself knowing abduction attempts or sincere threats were attempted in the past and had gone unreported, and later some sort of kidnapping occurs?

We couldn't. In this instance, we take the attitude: Better safe than sorry.

Equal notice

State Senator Gerald Conway, who resides in Wayne, surprised a number of Democrats in this area with his announcement that he had decided to change political parties.

He also surprised the media. Our publication didn't know about the political party change until after the news had already infiltrated through the area. That's hard to comprehend, knowing that Senator Conway resides in Wayne and made his voter registration change at the Wayne County Courthouse.

Attempts were made to contact him prior to Monday's paper, but he was unavailable for comment until his return from Chicago, where he chaired a conference on business development for the Midwestern Council of State Governments.

Reasons for the change, he said (in a news release that came Tuesday of this week — six days after he made his registration change) is that he feels he can be more effective working with the Republican organization and in turn be more responsive to the concern in his district.

The party switch makes Conway the 49th Republican of the Nebraska Unicameral. There are now 21 Democrats and one independent.

We believe the people in this area, particularly our subscribers, should have had equal access to information concerning the report of Conway's party change. His supporters on the Democratic side should have been made aware of his party registration prior to last Wednesday, much sooner than when the story appeared in our Monday edition — the earliest we could have reported the registration change.

His announcement of his intentions, on an equal district-wide basis, would have saved him from some criticism.

Soybean market to be strong in spring

While soybean prices are likely to dip in the next couple of months, a number of indicators point to a strong market next spring, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension grain marketing specialist said.

Lynn Lutgen said "I'm fairly bullish on soybeans rebounding by next spring. I think we're looking at an increase in the cash price for beans of at least 75 cents a bushel by that time."

"There is a possibility of soybeans reaching $6 per bushel or better," he predicted, cautioning that "that's not an average, but the opportunity may be there to realize that figure" under the right set of circumstances.

There's enough of a promise, the ag economist said, "for soybean growers to take a harder look at the strategies of soybean marketing during their winter planning."

The biggest factor in the expected and hoped-for turnaround is the upward trend in the demand for crushed soybeans, (soybean meal), Lutgen said. As of Sept. 1 of this year, the projected demand for meal from U.S. soybeans is 1.2 billion bushels for the 1987-88 marketing year, up from 1.179 billion this year and 1.053 billion bushels in the 1985-86 marketing year.

The big expansion in demand for crushed beans comes mostly from the poultry and hog complex, where demand for meal to be used in rations is expected to be as high or higher than last year.

Coupled with this expanded use of a soybean by-product is an overestimation of the 1986 crop by some 40 million to 50 million bushels from original projections, Lutgen said.

Carryover of U.S. soybean stocks will have dropped 20 percent over a three-year period if current estimates on supplies next year are accurate, he said.

Stocks dropped from 536 billion bushels in 1985-86 to 436 billion at the end of this calendar year. The figure is expected to be 410 billion by next fall.

"That's a lot of soybeans, when you look at a six-year average carryover prior to 1985 of 293.3 billion bushels. But we're moving into a more manageable situation," Lutgen analyzed.

Another factor contributing to optimism on the worldwide soybean supply is the belief that large-scale competitors of the U.S. in the Southern Hemisphere — notably Brazil and Argentina — are not likely to increase soybean acreage for their current crop season, which is just getting underway. "Their growers are influenced by currently low soybean prices; (an average of $4.80 per bushel in the U.S. this year). "Fewer acres planted by our Southern neighbors would give more strength to an upscale price scenario in the spring," Lutgen said.

He had these further observations on factors influencing 1988 soybean market prices:

— While U.S. soybean exports are projected to be down somewhat next year, "I doubt that that will happen." A continued slide in the value of the U.S. dollar will increase chances of foreign purchases of soybean meal, soybean oil and whole beans. The prospects for moving more soybean oil through exports is cloudy, however.

— An offsetting factor to the possibility of stimulated soybean exports attributed to a falling American dollar is the condition of foreign stock markets, such as Tokyo. If stock market prices in customer countries for U.S. farm commodities continue to fall, there will not be as much money to spend for U.S. goods, despite favorable currency exchange ratios.

Lease hunting issue complex

About the time the fifth group of hunters stops by on Saturday morning to ask permission to hunt, it occurs to a farmer or rancher that perhaps there is money to be made by charging hunters a fee.

Maybe so, maybe no. Lease hunting is about the only activity permitted on land in the Conservation Reserve Program. But there's a whole lot more to making it pay than posting your land and collecting checks.

Recently, the Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service co-sponsored a multi-state workshop on lease hunting, delivered to many locations via telephone.

Lease hunting is a complex issue and a farmer or rancher will need the advice of experts before getting too far into it.

SPEAKERS AT the extension workshop emphasized farmers and ranchers must view lease hunting as a business, not as a little something on the side.

For starters, hunters will expect far more when they're paying to hunt than when they are not.

Especially, they will expect that the land they're leasing will be managed for wildlife, with quality habitat provided for whatever species of game the landowner has advertised.

In the lease hunting business, there is no substitute for quality habitat, and in most cases providing it will be an expense for the landowner. He or she will need to know quite a bit about the population characteristics and natality and mortality of the chosen species to maximize its productivity.

Although it goes against the agricultural tradition of doing things orally and by trust, a written lease is essential, for the protection of all parties.

Legal advice is needed to set one up. And having insurance coverage for lease hunting in force before the first hunter signs up is essential.

LANDOWNERS ALSO need to consider how they will market their service and what it will cost. This means identifying the potential customer. If he or she is from the Big City, it may mean advertising in that city's newspapers, as well as in hunting publications. But if there's free public hunting of the same species nearby, lease hunting may not be viable.

Taking into account costs for habitat, legal advice and marketing, and a reasonable profit for the trouble, the landowner can set the fee — which will probably be far more than he or she thought at the outset.

A hunting guide publisher from Florida suggests that $50 per hunter per day for pheasant hunting in Nebraska would be feasible.

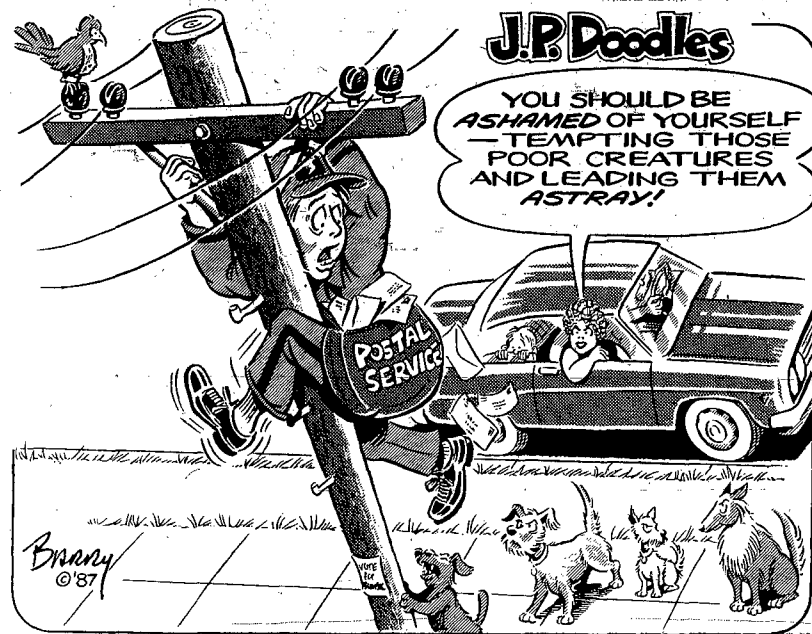

AND AS IMPORTANT as the financial considerations are, the landowner must also enjoy people. Without that characteristic, lease hunting isn't worth the extra work, the increased liability exposure, and the inconvenience of having strangers on your land.

If all the costs pencil out and family members are enthusiastic about the idea, lease hunting can be profitable.

Once established, there's the possibility for branching into such related enterprises as shooting and archery ranges, dog raising and training, bait and boat care, and other facets of the expanding outdoor recreation industry.

If hunters come from outside the local area, the local economy also benefits.

But as attractive as lease hunting may seem, it takes a lot of preparation and a lot of work to make it pay.

New pork slogan accepted by many

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing Editor

The saying "Pork — The Other White Meat" is helping the pork industry more than some people may realize.

Kent Ganseboom of Osmond, president of the Nebraska Pork Producers Association, said the saying has "not only been accepted by the producer, but by the customers."

Ganseboom spoke to an audience of over 110 people during Sunday night's Wayne County Pork Producers 7th Annual Pork Awards Banquet which took place in the North Dining Room at Wayne State College.

Ganseboom's remarks came prior to the naming of the 1988 Wayne County Pork Industry Queen, Diane French, daughter of Darrell and Dorothy French of Carroll, was crowned the 1988 Pork Industry Queen by the 1987 Queen, Kaye Hansen.

The evening program also included a history lesson given by the guest speaker, Gary Miller of Norfolk — a black powder shooter and muzzle loader who talked of the early days of the mountain men in Nebraska, dressed in the traditional frontiersman attire.

The pork industry has witnessed some changes over the past year, Ganseboom told the audience. "The industry is becoming very aggressive."

A check-off program has had overwhelming support from the producers. And the promotion of pork as the "Other White Meat" has gained notoriety across the country.

"People want life diets. And the consumers perceive light as white," said Ganseboom. He said most of the promotion dollars are aimed toward the metro areas, where the consumers are.

AND WITH THE funding achieved through the successful check-off program, advertising dollars can be concentrated in the urban areas. Also, funds can be shared cooperatively with the state and local association, Ganseboom said.

"We're making good use of a few dollars to make a lot of dollars," he said.

Ganseboom said the Pork Council Women of Nebraska are circulating a booklet in the elementary schools that tell of the economic and nutritious benefit of pork. "All these children will know how farmers and pork producers affect the economy of this county and the state," he said.

In speaking further about the pork industry, Ganseboom said that fall of 1987 was good to the pork producers. "But there are more heavier weights out there than we want to see," he mentioned. Once these heavier hogs are gone, the prices could come back up, he said.

GANSEBOOM SAID the stock market drop had its affect on the hog producers. But not all of it was bad news.

"The devaluation of the dollar allowed foreign countries to take a second look at the boneless products of pork," he said.

Two of those countries include Japan and Mexico, he said.

"The move overseas is bound to help us make a little bit down the road," he added.

"If we all stick together and do our best, we can compete with the big guys any day."

"We'll have to make changes, because we're in a changing world. But if we stick together, we'll be able to make a good living for our family, too," he said.

Dale Hansen, president of the Wayne County Pork Producers, announced the award winners at Sunday's banquet.

They include: 4-H Rate of Gain Award and 4-H Pen of Two Award — Chad Sebade; 4-H Achievement Award — Val Krusemark; Carcass Award — Doug French; Open Class Market Hog Award — Scott Hammer; Pork Booster Award — First National Bank of Wayne; and Commercial Award — Alvin and Mike Anderson.

The Outstanding Pork Producer Award went to Dave Jaeger of rural Wlside.

Blaine Nelson of Leslie Township and Don Johnson of Hoskins Township were elected to the board of directors. The 1987 officers and board of directors included: Dale Hansen, president; Jim Lutt, vice president and membership chairman; Don Johnson, secretary; Mitch Baier, treasurer; Dave Stevens, publicity; Gene Lutt, state director; and board of directors' David Jaeger, Randy Owens, Roger Lutt, Dan Loberg, Richard Janssen, John Mangels, Darrell Gilliland and Jim Stout.

'Hacken' Away

by Chuck Hackenmiller

Ever wonder why this country has such a devastating deficit?

Monday morning at the Wayne Herald office, while looking through the morning mail, an envelope with the return address of the Department of the Treasury, United States Savings Bond Division from Washington, D.C. (official business) stared right at my face.

Now, when a letter of this nature hits the desk of an editor, it's got to have some importance, Right?

Wrong. I opened the envelope — and it was empty.

Our readers will be happy to know that the first-class mail postage and fees were paid by the U.S. savings bond division with permit no. G-55. All that just to mail a blank envelope which should have been carrying some sort of news release that I probably won't have considering running away.

When will they ever learn?

I think it's safe to say that another golf season has passed by and it's time to re-evaluate my game and the Wayne Country Club golf course.

First, on my game, the things that I need to improve upon are the following:

Driving — Develop a tolerance to seeing golf balls splash in ponds or knocking off a few branches in the wooded areas. They say if golf courses didn't have the sand traps and all those other hazards, it wouldn't be a challenge.

I say leave the challenges to the Boy Scouts. They have compasses and know how to get out of wooded areas better than anyone I know.

All the golf pros tell you to keep your head on the golfball with every swing. I tried that. Now all I have to do is learn to open my eyes when I'm about to make impact.

I hooked a lot this year. When golfing sidearm, I guess that's bound to happen.

A highlight was out-driving four avid golfers once this summer. By out-driving, I mean placing more miles on my golf cart looking for my golf balls, more so than the other three who were always somewhere in the fairway.

Those silly golfers don't know the true meaning of fun, having never experienced looking for a strayed golf ball in the middle of a driving range amongst 250 other white golf balls.

Short game — I considered my whole game as short, such as my driving and my irons. Long on the putting aspect of the game.

When you want the ball to break left on the putting green, it breaks right. Straight on, it curves. Go short and you overshoot by 10 feet on a downhill grade.

Read the greens, they say. Guess "ready, aim and fire" just doesn't cut it anymore.

Care of clubs — I have to understand that no matter how confident I feel, I'll never be able to hit a driver through a tree.

NOW LET'S turn attention to the Wayne Country Club.

— Let's shorten up the Par 5 No. 9 hole by 75 yards. That would shave at least 25 strokes off my game.

— Why not tear down the trees and move Highway 15 further west along the No. 2 and 3 hole?

— Put a grove of tall trees around the No. 4 green. Since my golf ball likes to find its way to the trees, it might as well be close to a green.

— Put some algae in the lake along the No. 11 and 12 fairway so it doesn't get so hungry and eat up all my golf balls.

— Equip each green with a lie detector test.

— Eliminate out of bounds markers. They only add confusion, and a few strokes, to my game.

— Supervise the invention of some kind of golf ball that glows a bright red when it lands so that it is easy to spot.

— When I'm ready to tee off, concentrating heavily on execution — please don't turn the water sprinkler on me.

— Tell the mosquitoes to leave. If's hard enough swatting a small ball, let alone a pest that's the size of a pinhead.

— And finally, tell that guy who had a 39 to keep it to himself. There are amateurs at work!

To reduce national debt

Dollar coin endorsed by Senator Karnes

If legislation to mint new coins - including a dollar piece to replace the paper dollar - is adopted, the federal government could reduce the national debt by more than $5 billion in the next decade, Senator David Karnes (R-Ne) said.

Senator Karnes said two separate measures would authorize the minting of a new dollar coin and require modernizing the designs of existing coins. Karnes is a cosponsor of each measure.

The U.S. government spends millions each year printing new dollar bills, which generally wear out within 18 months," said Senator Karnes. "One measure I'm cosponsoring would replace the dollar bill with a gold-colored coin, which would have a 20-year lifespan. This alone would cut the deficit more than $1.8 billion by the end of the century."

"Additional legislation would authorize the U.S. Treasury to redesign one side of existing coins. Senator Karnes said the redesigned coins would help reduce the federal deficit since new coins are sold to collectors at a large profit.

"It costs less than three cents to manufacture a quarter, yet a newly designed quarter could be sold to a collector for a tremendous profit," explained Senator Karnes. "In 1986 alone, the profit from coinage production was $392 million. If's estimated that newly designed coins could boost the Treasury's profits to more than $1.4 billion in 1988."

According to Karnes, "The new design of the first coin chosen would reflect the celebration of the bicentennial of our Constitution, and would be minted over a two-year time period. New designs for other coins would be phased in over a six-year period."

Senator Karnes noted the legislation would require the profits received from the sale of uncirculated and proof sets of the new coins to be used for the sole purpose of reducing the national debt.

Cholesterol Lowering Drugs

The liver makes all the cholesterol the body needs for building cells and digesting food. The "extra" cholesterol comes from our diets. Recently the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute called for every adult to be tested for cholesterol. The Institute feels that the average level of 215 in middle aged Americans is too high. Approximately 40 million Americans have cholesterol levels that are above 240. A new cutoff of 200 for middle aged adults has been recommended.

A new group of drugs called "enzyme inhibitors" have been shown to cause significant reductions in blood cholesterol levels. The first enzyme inhibitor medication was approved in September by the Food and Drug Administration. This new medicine, called lovastatin, will be aimed at the several hundred thousand individuals who have inherited a high blood cholesterol tendency from their parents and those who have difficulty controlling cholesterol with dietary measures alone. Enzyme inhibitors work by interfering with an enzyme in the liver that is necessary for the production of cholesterol.

Bridal Showers

Joan Loberg

Approximately 35 guests from Sioux City, Lincoln, Hartington, Belden, Randolph and Carroll attended a bridal shower Nov. 1 in the Belden Bank parlors to honor Joan Loberg of Lincoln.

Decorations were in the honoree's chosen colors of royal blue and white. Ruth Loberg of Lincoln assisted her sister with gifts. Hostesses were Ruth Loberg of Lincoln and Mrs. Dan Loberg of Carroll.

Miss Loberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Loberg of Carroll, and Eric Brown of Ashland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Brown of Bellevue, will be married Nov. 21 in Lincoln.

Thanksgiving stress can outweigh benefits

Thanksgiving is a good time for families to get together to strengthen family ties and affections. But, the stress and strain of the season often outweigh the good will.

"Many times stress is caused simply by being overtired," says Herbert Lingren, extension family life specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

"Don't overdo it," says Lingren, "especially when traveling to see friends and relatives for the holidays. Save a couple of days for recuperating."

LINGREN SAYS that while visiting, don't overstay your welcome. "Let your hosts know when you will be coming and leaving. Don't depend on hosts to keep you entertained, and remember to help out as much as possible."

The specialist said some problems will occur whenever a number of people are cooped up together for an extended period. This can be magnified when family members have been away for awhile and then re-enter the family system.

"This type of difficulty may occur when a son or daughter has been away to college, and returns home. They often assume they will resume their place in the family exactly as it was before they left home."

LINGREN SAID problems can increase when family members aren't used to spending that much time together or when friends and relatives add to the general confusion.

"It will help to build in some 'creative' breaks," says Lingren. "For example, take the kids out to the movies, or bowling, so the adults have some time to spend together, or simply rest."

MEANINGFUL FAMILY activities will help keep Thanksgiving from becoming boring and producing conflict.

University of Nebraska-Lincoln research has shown that strong families take time to express love and appreciation for each other.

Lingren suggests one way to do that is to try the following family exercise:

Get all the family members together and select one person to be the recipient. Every family member then takes turns telling that person what they are thankful for about that person being present and celebrating Thanksgiving with them.

Go on to the next person until everyone has been included.

"This exercise will add meaning to the family celebration," says Lingren, "making it a real 'Thanksgiving.'"

Now it's time to say goodbye to all our company. M-I-C, see ya real soon (well maybe not real soon), K-E-Y, why, because I like you (well, almost all of you), M-O-U-S-E.

Well probably as most of you have figured out I'll be leaving the Herald at the end of the week, hold down the applause.

I've accepted a position as managing editor of the Gretna Guide and News beginning the 16th. Where's Gretna? It's a town of about 2,500 people on the outskirts of Omaha. It is also the hometown of my wife and I. Whoever said you can't go home again is a liar.

My 12 months here have been an experience, for the most part pleasurable. The entire Herald staff has made it fun and even enjoyable.

The coaches have all been real easy to work with and helpful for a city boy coming from the metroplex to the wide open spaces of northeast Nebraska. Oh sure there were occasions when I couldn't get a hold of a coach and stories had to be held but I guess that kind of stuff happens where ever you go.

There are some things I won't miss like working until 2 a.m. on Friday night, catching a few winks and being back to work by eight Saturday morning. But you couldn't beat some of the games I got to attend.

A few that stick in my mind: Wayne high's 45-43 basketball win over Hartington Cedar Catholic when Jess Zeiss hit the winning hoop with two seconds left; the Blue Devils' 35-27 win over Cedar this year when the locals scored three touchdowns in the fourth period to overcome a deficit; Wakefield's thrilling three-set win over Allen in the subdistrict finals to advance the Lady Trojans one step closer to the state tournament; and a pair of basketball games at Rice Auditorium against Kearney State. The women opened the night with a thrilling 83-77 win. The men came up short in their upset bid losing to the Lopers 85-83.

Those are just a few of the memories I'll take with me. I'd like to thank everyone for their help and hope the next sports writer will get as much or more assistance.

Well it's been fun but the ole' calendar on the wall says it's time to go.

Osceola to be first-round opponent

The task at hand will not be an easy one for the Wakefield Lady Trojans in the opening round of the Class C-2 state volleyball tournament.

The Lady Trojans will battle Osceola at 12:10 p.m. Friday at Lincoln Southeast. The Lady Bulldogs, seeded fourth, will enter the tournament with a 17-1 record. Wakefield, 15-2, is the fifth-seeded team in the class.

Osceola, coached by Dan Schiefelbein, is making its second straight trip to Lincoln. Last year the Lady Bulldogs advanced to the semifinals before losing to the eventual champion, Lincoln Christian.

The Lady Bulldogs are ranked No. 2 behind Hastings St. Cecilia. Their only loss was to Leigh in the second match of the season.

The main cog in the Lady Bulldog offense is Cindy Hays. The 4-2 senior returned for this season after being named to the first-team all-state squad. Hays has recorded 227 ace spikes this season to lead her team.

Schiefelbein also has three other returning starters from last season: 5-6 setter Kari Cerny, 5-8 setter Julie Reimers and 5-6 hitter Polly Watts. Rounding out the starting six are 5-9 hitter Andrea Graff and 5-9 hitter Pam Grosch. Cerny, Reimers, Hays and Grosch are seniors, Watts is a junior and Graff is a freshman.

The Osceola coach said experience is his team's strength.

"Our six starters accept their role on the court," Schiefelbein said. "The girls do a good job of passing the ball to Cindy. Hays is the one that will put the ball down for us."

Schiefelbein said he knows nothing about his first-round opponent.

"I know that (Kodi) Nelson girl is pretty good but besides that I don't know anything about them," he said.

Wakefield Coach Paul Eaton will be making his second trip to the state tournament. Two years ago the Lady Trojans were the top seeded team in C-2 and lost in the first round to Ufca Centennial, who went on to win the championship. Eaton is well aware of Osceola's strengths. The Wakefield coach said since Hays usually hits out of the middle Wakefield will rotate its left-side hitter into the middle to get somebody in her face.

"It will be interesting to play somebody that good, we'll find out how good they are," Eaton said.

Wakefield qualified for the state tournament with wins over Osmond and Allen in the subdistricts and an easy victory over Winnebago in the district finals.

The Lady Bulldogs, who have been pushed to three sets only twice this season, qualified after winning subdistricts and the district finals all in straight sets. They beat Friend and Shelby in subdistricts and clubbed Henderson in the district finals.

Schiefelbein said he thinks the Class C-2 title is up for grabs.

"I wouldn't count Wakefield out of it and I wouldn't count us out of it," he said. "I don't see a dog in the field."

The Lady Bulldog skipper said he thinks his team has the potential to win it all. He said he has some good players but his team can't make the mistakes they have in the last couple of matches.

"Anyone of the eight teams can win," he said. "Whoever can play hot for two days will win it."

Other first-round games include Alma (16-3) vs. Sargent (17-1) at 9:30 a.m.; Mead (15-4) vs. Leigh (21-1) at 10:20 a.m.; and Oshkosh (15-7) vs. Hastings St. Cecilia (21-0) at 1:30 p.m.

The semifinals at Lincoln Southeast will be played at 9:30 a.m. and 10:50 a.m. on Saturday with the finals scheduled later that day at 5:30 p.m. at Pershing Auditorium.

Sports Med Line

By Stephen Henry, M.D. and Regina Durbin, P.T.

To lay back in a comfortable setting and have your body reshaped...if it sounds too good to be true, that's probably because it is too good to be true. More and more "fitness salons", tanning parlors, and even hair styling shops are placing continuous passive motion (CPM) machines in their facilities to increase their revenues. Claims made by the manufacturers include achieving the "lean look" without sweating or even the most minimal physical exertion. They promise loss of inches through "toning" by flexing and stretching the muscles through their range of motion. They often claim the tables will improve circulation and therefore oxygen flow, eliminate excessive water retention and remove cellulite. What they cautiously mention is that the machines will not increase fitness or cause weight loss.

In a recent article in the Physician And Sportsmedicine Journal (Aug. 1987) several sports medicine authorities were interviewed as to the benefits of these CPM machines. They concluded that while these continuous passive motion (CPM) machines may be able to improve a client's range of motion and flexibility, they do not improve a healthy, active person's fitness level. Their greatest value appears to be in rehabilitation.

The use of CPM machines for rehabilitation was developed in 1940's by B.H. Stauffer, M.D. for his wife who suffered from polio. During present days, CPM is used after orthopedic surgery to maintain and increase joint range of motion. Frequently the post op patient will awaken to find themselves attached to a small, portable CPM machine. The use of CPM machines has revolutionized the field of orthopedic surgery particularly total joint replacements and in sports medicine, after ligament reconstruction. It is possible that CPM tables may be additionally useful with some people whose condition precludes exercise, such as paraplegics, or after a stroke.

When you examine the bottom line of continuous passive motion machines it is clear that for the able-bodied, healthy adult no physical fitness benefits are to be achieved other than possible increased range of motion. If you are truly interested in physical fitness and weight loss, for long term benefits invest your money in proper diet planning and commit yourself to regular aerobic exercise.

The Golden Years
by Gil Haase

When asked to define "old age" in a recent survey, people under the age of 30 said that 63 was "old"; people aged 30 to 39 said it was 67. Those people 40 to 49 guessed that "old age" started at 70, and people 50 to 59 answered that 71 was "old." People 60 to 64 said it was 73, and those over 65 said that over 75 was "old."

Don't worry about losing your memory as you get older, writes Dr. Benjamin Zohn. "Memory is basically a recall phenomenon, with information being stored in the brain for many years, like a computer," he says. "Not remembering everything perfectly is not such a great tragedy. One problem is that we tend to remember every past grievance, but allow the happier moments to fade from our memory. The fact is that a conscious effort can be made to 'set' the sunny days in one's memory, and to allow the discussions of the past to recede from the mind."

Lopers rally to down Wildcats

Missed opportunities were the culprit when Wayne State closed out the 1987 season with a 17-7 loss to rival Kearney State Saturday in Kearney.

Fifteen hundred people turned out at Foster Field to watch the Lopers fall behind 7-0 in the first period before rallying to score 17 unanswered points.

Wayne State Coach Pete Chapman said the difference in the game was the Wildcats weren't able to cash in on mistakes while Kearney State made good use of WSC miscues.

The Antelopes scored two touchdowns on Wayne State turnovers and they got a field goal after a short punt by Wildcat Pat Wordekemper.

The Cats struck first when quarterback Scott Raue hit his favorite receiver, John Pezdirtz with a 42-yard touchdown pass with 29 seconds remaining in the first period. Tony Wese's extra point made it 7-0. Raue hit Pezdirtz with a 20-yard strike to start the drive.

The visitors blew an early opportunity to score after Roger Benz recovered a Scoff Chochon fumble at the Loper 19-yard line. But on the ensuing play Damon Ross coughed it up and Kearney State recovered ending the threat. Wayne State drove inside the KSC 30-yard line five times and came away with nothing.

The Antelopes evened the score in the second quarter when Jeff Norblade picked off a Raue pass at the KSC 30-yard line and took it all the way back for a TD. Travis Parker added the PAT and with 6:08 left in the first half to make the score 7-7.

The Lopers had to settle for a 19-yard field goal just before halftime after Wayne State put up a solid goal-line stand holding KSC out of the end zone on three plays from inside the 3-yard line. The hosts got down in scoring territory after quarterback Mark Voss hit Paul Reilly with a 42-yard flea flicker.

The third quarter saw no scoring but there were a couple of long drives by each squad. KSC drove down to the Cat 32-yard line but on a fourth and nine Voss was stopped short of the first down.

The Lopers had another scoring threat halted early in the fourth quarter. Bud Sachs blocked a 41-yard field goal attempt by Parker to keep the score 10-7.

On the following drive Wayne State drove down to the Loper 8-yard line. Two plays later on a third and goal from the 15 Raue dropped back to pass. He was sacked and lost the ball and the Lopers came up with it.

The locals had yet another chance to go on top with less than four minutes to play. But Raue's third interception of the day ended the threat at the KSC 31-yard line.

Steve Peake completed the scoring for Kearney State with a junk touchdown with 1:15 left in the game.

The win gave Kearney State a 4-5 final record while the Cats finished the campaign 1-8-1. Wayne State hasn't beaten the Lopers since a 28-0 shutout in 1971. Kearney State Coach Claire Boroff's first season at KSC. The overall series record stands at 41-14-5, in favor of Kearney State.

Wayne State won the tale of the tape. The Cats gained 335 total yards, 226 passing and 109 rushing, compared to the Lopers 327 yards of total offense. Kearney State got the majority, 260 yards, on the ground.

KSC's Kevin Troser led all rushers with 180 yards on the ground. The Grand Island product carried the ball 31 of the Lopers 52 carries. Damon Ross wasn't far behind Troser. The Omaha native carried the ball 34 times for 117 yards. The freshman finished the year with 803 yards rushing, which ranks ninth on the school's single season rushing list and 16th on the career rushing chart. Raue finished the game 12-32 with three interceptions for 226 yards. Wordekemper was on the receiving end of six of the passes good for 96 yards. Pezdirtz caught three balls for 71 yards.

Senior lineman Dave Uhlers led the defense with 10 tackles, seven unassisted. Freshman Randy Rouse and senior Greg Cavill each tallied eight tackles and Mark Volf added seven stops.

Chapman said he thought the Cats outplayed Kearney State. He said it was his team's best performance against the Lopers at Foster Field.

A MESSAGE TO INVESTORS

from the Nebraska Bankers in your hometown.

On Monday, October 19, America learned that investing in the stock market carries with it a very real element of risk.

The longest bull market in history ended with an abrupt one-day drop of 508.3 points. The impact was worldwide and millions of people suffered loss of not only interest but principal as well.

Nebraska's banks know how important a healthy market is to our country and the world. A blow like this isn't good for anyone. A stable stock market is a reflection of a successful economy, and banks share in the desire to regain that stability.

At times like this we want to remind all Nebraskans of our commitment to provide the safest, most secure place to invest and save money.

Each account in a Nebraska bank is insured up to $100,000 by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. And the FDIC has never failed to pay an insured depositor. Never.

Nebraska's banks urge you to consider your investments carefully—and we're here to help you do just that.

Remember that the money you save with your bank is protected. The principal is not subject to the rise or fall of the stock market.

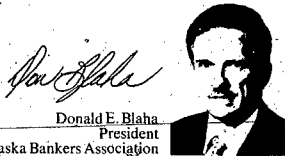

Money invested with your bank helps support the local economy as well, through loans to businesses and individuals.

Whether you invest in the stock market or not, we urge you to keep a substantial portion of your savings in accounts at your bank that are always insured.

Visit with your hometown banker about the variety of savings opportunities that guarantee the safety of your money. That way, you'll have money to fall back on if something should come along to scramble your financial plans.

Nebraskans have relied on banks as their primary financial resource for over one hundred years.

Now, we want you to know us even better.

State loses millions in federal highway funds

Nebraska has unexpectedly lost $9,383 million in federal highway funds thought to be available for the current fiscal year.

The amount that Nebraska Department of Roads had planned on receiving for 1988 construction and improvement projects was based on a continuation of the 1987 level.

The unexpected loss is due mainly to an increase in a discretionary reserve of Interstate construction funds. The large increase in this discretionary reserve is being offset by a reduction in the spending limits given individual states.

Reduction in Nebraska's amount the department was actually allowed to spend is due to the inclusion of an obscure provision in the Federal Aid Highway Act of 1987. The provision allows a few states to secure extra obligation authority by "double-dipping" into the Interstate highway construction funds.

The Nebraska Department of Roads is seeking support from the U.S. Congressional representatives to support an amendment that would maintain an equitable system and not penalize the states which have completed their Interstate and do not qualify for the reserve.

A $9 million funding loss will delay some projects in the 1988 highway program by causing a "stretch out" in the highway lettings.

In a news release, the Nebraska Department of Roads stated that "in light of impending Gramm-Rudman-Hollings budget cuts and threats of withholding $3.6 million for non-compliance of the national speed limit, Nebraska's are faced with severe constraints on planning and administering our highway department."

A spokesman from the Nebraska Department of Roads said Monday that the intentions of the department are to accomplish all of the fiscal 1988 road construction projects, with extra funding if needed to come from the financing of fiscal 1989 projects.

The fiscal 1989 program will be the one most affected by the reduction in federal funding.

Local city and county projects for fiscal 1989 could lose funding, indicating a rough estimate of approximately $1.9 million. Another estimate shows that District III (which includes Wayne County and Dixon County) could lose up to $1.4 million because of the loss in federal dollars.

Marshal's Deed, Thomas A. O'Hara, Jr., U.S. Marshal for the District of NE., to James and Lisa

Of district's electrical district

NPPD rates will vary

Wholesale electric rates for 1988 and 1989, approved by the Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) Board of Directors, will affect the wholesale customers of NPPD in different ways because the usage patterns and peak demands of each wholesale customer varies and some customers provide all or a portion of certain transmission facilities for delivery of electricity while other customers are provided this service by NPPD.

The NPPD Board of Directors has approved wholesale rates for 1988 and 1989 based on the District's cost analysis for those two years. As a result, some of NPPD's full requirements customers will have a decrease in the cost of electricity purchased in 1988 compared to 1987 while other wholesale customers will have an increase in those costs.

All full requirements wholesale customers can expect an increase in their power and energy costs in 1989 compared to 1988 because it is anticipated that all the excess revenue accumulated in the Production Cost Adjustment (PCA) account will have been refunded during 1988.

The PCA account accumulates variations between actual energy costs and the estimated energy costs used to establish the basic wholesale rate. The basic rate has provided revenues in excess of the actual energy costs in recent years and that revenue has been and continues to be refunded to customers through credits on the electric billings.

The wholesale rate adjustment together with the credits from the PCA account for the 26 public power districts and rural cooperatives that purchase all of their electricity from NPPD is estimated to have a net effect of reducing those customers' power and energy costs by as much as 1.3 percent in 1988 compared to 1987. Although the demand and energy charges in the wholesale rate will not change from 1988 to 1989, it is currently anticipated that those same customers would have an increase in their power and energy costs ranging between 4 and 5 percent in 1989 compared to 1988, primarily due to the expected elimination of the PCA credits on the electric billings. Should actual energy costs in 1988-89 be less than estimated, the PCA credits may continue in 1989, thereby reducing the level of the anticipated increase in 1989.

The wholesale power and energy costs, including the PCA credits, for the 41 municipalities that are total requirements customers of NPPD are estimated to range from a decrease of 1.1 percent to an increase of 1.1 percent in 1988 compared to 1987. The costs for those same customers, with the anticipated elimination of the PCA credit, are expected to increase between 4.2 percent to 5 percent in 1989 compared to 1988.

Fifteen municipalities are billed under a different set of wholesale rates by NPPD because a portion of their power and energy requirements are purchased directly from the federal Western Area Power Administration (WAPA). The rates for those customers are expected to increase their electricity costs within a range of 3.8 percent to 4.7 percent in 1988 compared to 1987 but it is anticipated that those customers would see an increase of less than 1 percent in their power and energy costs in 1989 compared to 1988. This difference in the way the rates will affect these 15 municipalities is due to the method by which NPPD credits PCA revenues to them compared to the method used to refund PCA account surpluses to the full requirements customers.

NPPD's 1988 and 1989 wholesale rates are based on total projected wholesale revenue requirements of $244,668,000 in 1988 and revenue requirements of $259,471,000 in 1989.

Under terms of existing contracts with its wholesale customers, NPPD reviews wholesale rates every two years.

The 1988 rates for NPPD's 107,000 retail customers are expected to be considered by the Board of Directors during December.

NPPD's chartered territory includes all or portions of 87 of Nebraska's 93 counties and the District's electrical system serves approximately 760,000 people.

Rosemary Severson of Hoskins, the out-going secretary, who raises registered Nubians, said dairy goats are an increasingly popular project for 4-H'ers, citing the goat's size and disposition as ideal for even the youngest child.

Their popularity in Nebraska is apparent with the Dairy Goat show at the Nebraska State Fair, the third largest in the nation, being only behind California and Ohio. The 1987 State Fair show had about 580 entries.

New officers for 1988 are Glen Anderson of Coleridge, president; Wyman McCain of Crofton, vice president; Donna Meyer of Beemer, secretary; and Terry Kumm of Norfolk, treasurer.

by Pat Meierhenry

Saturday morning. There is a sparrows at my kitchen window. It's been such a mild fall, we can hardly believe it.

Brother Jim plans to be in Nebraska for duck and goose hunting later this month. He reports it is still 60 degrees in Canada and the birds aren't migrating!

Our bird-watcher friends have been having lots of nice days to indulge in their hobby. I never cease to be amazed at the enthusiasm these people generate. It all starts with a class at NTCC by a lady named Willie.

But they don't just take the class once and go on about their business. They go back every semester. It's now so large, they meet in the cafeteria. They take field trips.

They participate in the Christmas bird count. And they get together in little groups at social gatherings and share their latest sightings.

One gal claims you can completely forget your troubles and those of the world around you by spending a few hours with binoculars and the bird-watcher's guide book.

She keeps telling me about all the neat creatures they see on our ponds!

Someday I'm going to have time to sit there myself.

We got into a deep discussion at lunch the other day about how we read newspapers. I start at the front and go straight through. The Big Farmer starts with the sports page. One gal I work with reports reading the obituaries, births, and court reports first.

This same gal says she reads Good Housekeeping in the same fashion, while I start with the letters to the editor, where else?

LATER IN the day, our inservice director brought in a stack of papers for me. My desk is already the eye sore of the hospital. She had read a book on how to get organized and was cleaning her office. She had determined these papers were mine.

The book she read recommended sorting things in boxes and labeling them with recipe cards listing the contents. We agreed that would pretty well eliminate the fun of being surprised when you opened the box.

I wondered what that writer would have to say about the box of winter clothes that has been sitting in our bedroom for a month.

The Handy Dandy papering crew, my sis and brother-in-law, were here last week and I have clean wallpaper in my kitchen. Then I had the fun of putting all the collectibles back on the wall. Now if I could just get the cupboard cleaned off.

After all the high school volleyball games, Mike and I have been sneaking over to NTCC on Fridays to watch the Lady Hawks. Just gluttons I guess.

I heard a funny tale about telephones at the last volleyball game this week. One local cook turned on a stove burner before she began peeling potatoes at the sink, all the while talking to her sister-in-law, thanks to the long phone cord.

When she could barely hear the other person, she looked around to discover the cord on the burner, disintegrating! Thank goodness my phone is across the kitchen so the cord hangs free. I can imagine the Big Farmer's comments after that.

Guess I'll hurry in to Winside for some of the home-made vegetable soup at the Bazaar. If I'm lucky, there will be some doughnuts left.

It's the first day of pheasant season, so the bird population will probably drop today.
