Safe turkey shortcuts

Let's face it. Sometime between Thanksgiving and New Year's Day, turkey will tind its way onto your menu.

And because time is one thing you may not have much of during the holidays, you may be looking for shortcuts. The good news is there are shortcuts you can take without risking an outbreak of food borne illness.

WHEN YOU'RE shopping, save time by deciding beforehand what kind of turkey you want. Do you need a full size bird or can you use turkey pieces or a turkey roll? Buy your frozen bird early to get the right size without having to run from store to store.

Don't buy a pre-stuffed fresh turkey or keep a fresh turkey for more than two days without cooking. Raw turkey and stuffing ingredients are highly perishable. It may be impossible to keep a stuffed fresh bird cold enough in your home refrigerator to prevent bacteria growth.

WHEN YOU'RE cooking, you can save time by thawing your turkey in the nicrowave. Follow your owners manual instructions to insure safety and the best quality bird.

best quality bird. Otherwise, plan to thaw your bird in the refrigerator (it may take four to five days) or in cool water in your sink. When using the cool water method, be sure to change water every 30 minutes. Remove the giblets and neck from the thawed turkey and wash the bird inside and out before cooking. You may pat it dry with paper towels, season and positing the year.

If you plan to stuff your turkey, keep it refrigerated until the stuffing is prepared. Then stuff and begin roasting. Caution: don't stuff a turkey you plan to cook in the microwave. A stuffed bird is too dense to assure thorough cook-

After you've finished eating, the last thing you want to think about is packing away leftovers. However, those cold turkey sandwiches you're looking forward to could be leopardized if you don't quickly refrigerate the meat.

Lueders, Inc. More than a grocery store

Since opening Bill's GW Market in 1973'at the east edge of Wayne, Lueder's Inc. has expanded and today includes Bill's Lunch Counter, a complete bakery and delicatessen, a book and card shop-and a-taundry and dry cleaning business.

"The Lueders boys have been in the grocery business in Wayne since the 1920's," says Bill Lueders-Jr., president of Lueders, Inc.
That history includes Bill Jr.'s father. Bill Lueders Sr., who began his grocery career at age 13. Bill Sr.'s brothers, Al, Chris and Fred, also were in the grocery business in Wayne at one time or another.
Last week, Bill Sr. announced his retirement as president of Lueders, Inc. tollowing a career spanning 57 years. With the announcement, Bill Jr. says Bill's GW Market is now the oldest, and the newest, home owned supermarket in Wayne America.

"We've doubted our size, from 10,000 square feet to 20,000 square feet, since opening our doors in 1973." says Bill Jr. "We've also gone from 18 employees in 1973 to approximately 60 in 1987."

During the expansion in 1976. Bill's GW Market extended its grocery, meat and dairy departments, along with doubling its freezer and fish departments.

Bill's GW Mar ket also added an ice cream parlor which today is known as Bill's Lunch Counter, offering daily specials and three varieties of homemade soup daily, along with special Chinese and Italian cuisines. Bill Jr. is especially proud of the grocery store's produce and meat departments. Manager of Bill's meat departments Manager of Bill's meat department is Bill Paysen, and assistant meat manager is Curt Wheeler.

"We have one of the best meat markets in northeast Nebraska," boasts Bill-Jr., adding that Bill's GW Market is one of the few grocery stores in northeast Nebraska to still use swinging meat instead of boxed meat.

Linda Nelson has managed the produce department for the past 13 years. During those years, Bill's GW Market has extended its produce varieties: "Today," says Bill Jr., "we stock produce that we'd never heard of before. Produce that today's customers demand."

Sarah Surber is manager of Bill's bakery department which, with the help of Janet Schmale, offers homemade decorated cakes for all occasions in addition to a variety of pies, doughnuts, rolls and breads.

In the delicatessen department, customers can purchase homemade sandwiches and broasted chicken along with salads, cheese and other delicatessen items.

Another customer service is available through the delicatessen department and is run by Chantip (Tippy) Hewitt. During the upcoming holidays, Tippy will go into a person's home and prepare a complete Chinese meal for any size group. Tippy can be reached through Bill's GW Market at 375-1540

'We try to meet our customers' needs wherever we can," says-Bill-Jr. who owns and operates Lueders, Inc. along with his wife Elaine and son

Larry.

Bill's GW Market is open Monday through Saturday from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m., and Sunday from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Lueders, Inc. has continued to expand in other areas since forming in 1973. Six years ago the corporation added the C & D Refuse business which serves Wayne and the surrounding communities of Carroll. Concord and Dixon.

Three years ago, Lueders, Inc. constructed a 10,300 square fgot building on the Bill's GW parking lot. "What we would like," says Bill Jr., "is to make the building into a mini malt. The space is available."

After halftime the top six wore the white jerseys and played well at times, according to Aggers. The whites broke open a tight game when Scott Hurley canned a three-point shot with about 10 minutes to play. From that point the whites went on. Klaver's teams have made steady-improvements—In. The last couple years. Two years ago the Lady Wildcats finished 3-24 and went winless in the CSIC.
