Flood pay demanded

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing Editor

Northeast Nebraska farmers should be entitled to payment by the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) for crop losses suffered from a 1984 storm and flood, Senator David Karnes said Monday.

On Aug. 24, 1987, the United States Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit ruled in favor of South Dakota farmers who had sued the federal government for payment of crops lost in the disaster.

"Following the decision by the court in favor of South Dakota's farmers in this case, there should be no question that Nebraska farmers are entitled to the same treatment," said Karnes.

In 1984, farmers on both sides of the Missouri River were devastated by flooding. Many farmers were prevented from planting crops that year and suffered a substantial loss of income.

"I just wrote a letter to Ag Secretary Lyng urging the USDA to work with me to find a solution to the same problem for Nebraska farmers," Karnes remarked. "And I plan to meet with USDA as soon as possible."

Forty-four counties experienced some degree of flood damage from the disaster. The federal disaster order issued at the time included the 24 counties that were most heavily damaged.

The amount of damage to northeast Nebraska counties totaled nearly $17.1 million. Among those counties affected, Karnes said, were Cedar, Wayne, Dixon, Stanton, Thurston, Colfax, Dakota, Richardson, Dodge, Cuming and Burt.

Races develop as election filing deadline passes

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing Editor

The state of candidates vying for political offices has been established, several days after the deadline passed for non-incumbents to file election papers.

Races are prevalent in several school board, county commissioner and village or city council races throughout Wayne, Dixon and Cedar counties.

One of the most highly contested races is the election of a Third District representative to the Public Service Commission. The third district encompasses Wayne, Dixon, Cedar, Dakota and 12 other northeast Nebraska counties.

Republican candidates for the post include incumbent Duane Gay of Columbus, Glenn F. Uecker of Pierce, Mark Behm of Hartington, Betty A. Rosberg of Wausa and Richard Donnermeyer of Elkhorn.

Seeking the position on the Democratic ticket are Lester E. Andersen, Pilger; Robert Young of Omaha; and Willis G. Buchholz of Bancroft.

In races locally, two candidates have filed for a seat on the Wayne city council third ward. They are incumbent Randy Pedersen and challenger Ralph Barclay. A three-person race for Ward Four has also developed between Gary Van Meter, Brad Wieland and the latest to file, Jane O'Leary.

Running unopposed for the first ward is Stan Hansen, and Darrel Faelberth is running alone for the second ward city council position.

Incumbent Robert Nissen is not being challenged for the open spot on the Wayne County Commissioner board.

There is a race for the three expired terms on the Wayne-Carroll Board of Education. Those who have filed for the positions are incumbents Neil Sandahl and Sid Hiller, along with candidates Kenneth Dahl and Kenneth Liska.

THERE ARE THREE posts open on the Winside Board of Education, with six candidates seeking election to the offices. The candidates include incumbent Dean Mann, Doug Shelton, Randall D. Jacobsen, Pat Miller, Connie Bargstadt and Daniel Jaeger.

Incumbent Nancy Warnemunde and Dave Bloomfield are the candidates for two positions on the Winside Village Board of Trustees.

Three spots are open on the Carroll Village Board. Cliff Bethune, Dick Hitchcock and Harold Loberg have filed election papers.

Pat Brudigan and Kenneth Elkins have filed for re-election to the two posts on Hoskins Village Board of Trustees positions.

Ten candidates have entered the race for the three openings on the Wakefield Board of Education. They

Bereuter, Exxon deal with proposed anhydrous ammonia reclassification

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing Editor

Soon this cold spell will snap and farmers will be into the fields preparing for the spring planting.

One question that may enter the minds of farmers, as the planting season nears, will concern the availability of anhydrous ammonia — one of the most cost efficient and convenient forms of nitrogen application used by the farmers.

Representative Doug Bereuter has written to Secretary of Transportation James Burnley to express concern about the proposed reclassification of anhydrous ammonia from a non-flammable gas to a poisonous gas "and about the serious problems the change could create for farmers."

"Any disruption in its availability to farmers would be felt immediately in the form of skyrocketing production costs and a dramatic reduction in commodity output," said Bereuter. "In addition, the reclassification would dramatically increase shipping costs, insurance rates and storage costs that would in the end be paid by the farmer."

HE SAID the proposed reclassification raises serious questions about the transportation of anhydrous ammonia on public highways. He said current federal regulations prohibit the transportation of a poison gas in cargo tanks.

"Since most anhydrous ammonia is transported in 1,000 to 2,500 gallon nurse-tanks for on-farm use, the availability of the product would be greatly affected depending on the various state and community routing laws. Under existing federal regulations affecting the transportation of poisonous gas, the transportation of anhydrous ammonia by truck to farm communities would be affected," said Bereuter.

However, Senator Jim Exon said he was assured by the U.S. Department of Transportation officials that the proposed reclassification of anhydrous ammonia will not prohibit it from being transported on public highways.

Exon is chairman of the Senate Surface Transportation Subcommittee which has jurisdiction over the transportation of hazardous materials on highways. He said DOT officials have assured him that even though there is a category of poisonous materials which cannot be transported on public highways, the reclassification of anhydrous ammonia would put it in an unrelated poisonous category that would "not" prevent its transportation on public highways.

Exon said DOT officials say the proposed reclassification is safety-related to provide more information to users.

The reclassification would only require that anhydrous ammonia be labeled "inhalation hazard" and contain a skull and crossbones on the container, according to DOT officials.

BEREUTER SAID most producers are trained in the use and application of nitrogen fertilizer, including the danger presented by carelessly handled anhydrous ammonia. "This is evident in the low number of accidents reported involving anhydrous ammonia, both on-farm and on-road. If a reclassification of anhydrous ammonia is considered, the new classification could be that of corrosive gas, as the Canadian government has done."

Joel Pedersen to receive prestigious Eagle Award during Sunday event

Joel Pedersen, 17-year-old son of Randy and Rozan Pedersen, will receive the Eagle Award during a ceremony to take place this Sunday, March 20 at the Wayne-Carroll High School Lecture Hall. The event begins at 2 p.m.

Pedersen has been an active member of Boy Scout Troop 174 since 1981 and he has served as Scout Leader, Assistant Patrol Leader, Quartermaster and Senior Patrol Leader.

During his scouting career, he has participated in a variety of troop events. He attended Camp Ben Delatour at Red Feather Lake, Colorado. He also has backpacked in the Big Horn Mountains in Wyoming and at Philmont Scout Ranch at Cimarron, New Mexico and he has canoed the Niobrara River and the Boundary Waters of Minnesota and Canada.

His Eagle Scout project consisted of organizing the construction of a park at the corner of Second and

Joel Pedersen
Main Streets, where the State National Bank and Trust building once stood.

Pedersen is a senior at Wayne-Carroll High School and is a member of the National Honor Society and representative for the Wayne American Legion at Boys State.

He was selected for Who's Who Among American High School Students in 1987 and has participated in golf. He also is a W-Club member and served as captain of the football and wrestling teams.

Master of ceremonies for the Eagle Award ceremony will be John Struve, former assistant scoutmaster of Troop 174. Conducting the Eagle ceremony will be Brent Pedersen, scoutmaster of Troop 174, and presenting the Eagle Challenge will be Dr. Ralph Barclay.

The public is invited to the award ceremony. There will also be a reception at the school following the Eagle Award presentation.

Hubble Space Telescope will be examined at Wayne State College planetarium

The Hubble Space Telescope, capable of identifying a firefly 10,000 miles away, will be examined at the Wayne State College Planetarium in Carhart Science Building on Sunday afternoons, 3:30 p.m., from March 20 to May 1.

The spring program is titled "First Light — the Space Telescope Story."

Through a blend of special effects, music, photographs and narration, "First Light" will explore the world which the space telescope will reveal when launched on a future shuttle flight. The show examines how the telescope's space-age technology will bring distant galaxies into sharper focus and provide a more detailed view of the solar system.

"The show details the development of the telescope since one of the earliest astronomical observatories was built 400 years ago," said Carl Rump, planetarium director. "Since then, telescopes have become increasingly powerful and exact but have not been able to overcome the blurring effects of Earth's atmosphere."

"The Hubble telescope will be launched into space, where the Earth's atmosphere won't hinder our ability to see distant objects clearly."

The Hubble Space Telescope program was written and produced by the staff of the Davis Planetarium of Baltimore's Maryland Science Center. The distribution of "First Light" is made possible by a grant from NASA Educational Affairs and the Space Telescope Science Institute Associates Program.

More information is available by calling Carl Rump at 375-2200, extension 343.

And four candidates are in the running for two positions on the Allen Consolidated Board of Education. They include Larry Boswell, Judy Vavra, Diane Blohm and Myrna McGrath.

Several Dixon County Commissioner district races will take place. In District II, incumbent Earl Rowland, Newcastle is being challenged by Palmer Lund of Newcastle and Kenneth Watchhorn of Ponca.

Incumbent Dorothy Mattes of Allen is unopposed for the District IV seat. There is a race for representative of District VI involving Dale E. Anderson, Calvin Swagerty, DeLoy Benne and Eugene Swanson, all of Wakefield.

Looking at Cedar County, City of Laurel Mayor Jim Recob is opposed

Included among the candidates are incumbents Jim Lipp, Gene Quist; and challengers Nick Britzell, Kami Asbra, Paul Pearson, Rick Adkins, Bob Dickey, Garry Anderson, Sharon Thomas, Brian McBride, Craig Monson and Douglas Krie.

And in the Village of Dixon, candidates include LeRoy Bathke, Marvin K. Nelson and Leo Garvin. The candidates for positions on the Village of Concord board is Victor Carlson, Roy Stohler and Steve Martindale.

The Lower Elkhorn Natural Resource District reports that the primary ballot will show six incumbents and five non-incumbents running for positions of Director.

In Subdistrict One, Dale Lingenfelter of Plainview will run unopposed, as will Dennis Newland of Norfolk in Subdistrict 3. In addition, Howard Hansen of Stanton, in Subdistrict 5, and Clinton Von Seggern of Scribner, in Subdistrict 8, will both run unopposed.

John K. Hansen of Tilden will oppose incumbent Francis Zimmerman of Battle Creek in the Subdistrict 2 race. Alvin Wagner of Hoskins, incumbent, will be challenged by Richard J. Gavit of Wayne in Subdistrict 4.

There are no incumbents running in Subdistricts 6 and 7. Emil D. Sobota of Schuyler will be running for his first term in Subdistrict 6. Charles Reppert of Pender, and Barbara Greve of Wakefield have both filed for the position in Subdistrict 7.

There was no filing in Subdistrict 9. An appointment for this Subdistrict will be made by the Board of Directors at the end of Bert Petersen's term in January of 1989.

Tore Nelson has filed election papers to challenge incumbent state senator of District 17, Gerald Conway.

Republican Congressman for the First District, Doug Bereuter of Utica, is being challenged by Democrats Marlin Pals of Lincoln and Corky Jones of Brownville.

And in the U.S. Senate race there are four candidates — Democrats Bob Kerrey and Ken Michals (West Point); and Republicans Hal Daub of Omaha and current senator, David Karnes of Lincoln.

The good old days

Promises, promises.

Years ago, municipalities across Nebraska were promised state aid because of all the state's special property tax exemption programs granted in the past. The state aid was needed to replenish those funds which the special exemptions took away.

Wayne Mayor Wayne Marsh has written a letter to our state senators, asking for support of Governor Orr's plan to return state aid to the level it was in 1982-83 ($17,900,000) and restore the cuts that have been made to the cities, towns and villages of Nebraska.

He said that during the past five years, the city of Wayne has seen "a continued erosion of state aid" that has caused great strain on the city's budget and has translated into property taxpayers contributing more to the burden.

Since 1982, nearly $2,200,644 has been cut out of the state aid to municipalities across Nebraska. Governor Orr's proposal will bring that proposal back up to $17.9 million.

If appropriated by the legislature, this would be the first time that the statutory amount of "state aid" to municipalities would be fully funded.

Over the past years, the city of Wayne and Wayne County have seen a drain on state and federal funds — one particular source depleted is the popular general revenue sharing funding.

Passage of Orr's additional state aid proposal would be the shot in the arm needed which would be helpful in reducing the city's property taxes.

It would mean an additional income of $9,693 to the city of Wayne, according to City Administrator Phil Kloster — making a nice dent in the city's efforts to hold the line on property taxes.

We also would like to see the senators pass Orr's state aid increase proposal, and allow our share of the increase — specifically for tax rate reduction.

Delay the drilling

Discovery of manganese, at levels higher than normal — at the proposed well site which will eventually be supplying water to the city of Wayne — caught some city council members by surprise.

Previous sampling did not indicate this level of manganese. The water can be treated, but at what expense? That is why the city council should not even consider proceeding with a bid letting on the $1.18 million water distribution project until this problem is reconciled.

Future tests will tell about the well field site that the city council has chosen as the city's tap for future water sources. For now, the right thing to do is to wait out the test results before plunging into the project.

Nebraska may face loss of highway funds

U.S. Senator Jim Exon (D-Neb) is cosponsoring legislation to overturn a controversial interpretation by the Federal Highway Administration that would reduce Nebraska's 1988 federal highway funds by more than $.94 million.

The bill would change the Federal Highway Administration's ruling to allow eight states that have not finished their interstate to double dip to get extra funds. The double dipping means 42 states, including Nebraska, will receive less federal highway funds than expected, according to Exon. The bill was introduced by Senators Charles Grassley (R-IA), Jim Exon (D-Neb), and eleven other senators.

"It is not fair to penalize Nebraska and other states for having completed their interstates in a timely manner," said Exon. "It does not make any sense for the Federal Highway Administration to penalize states who finished their interstate and reward states that did not," he added. Nebraska finished its interstate when Exon was Governor.

Nebraska was originally projected to receive $97 million in federal highway funds for its 1988 road building program, but due to the interpretation, may only be allowed to spend $88 million.

These funds are provided by the Federal Highway bill that was vetoed by the President and overridden by the Congress. Important highway projects were delayed once because of the President's veto; and as a result of this Federal Highway Administration ruling, some road projects could be delayed again.

Fairground bill allows expanded use of taxes

by Sen. Gerald Conway

Less than one-third of the 1988 Legislative Session remains unfinished. Friday, March 11 marked the 42 day of the 60 day session and with eighteen days remaining, Senators are debating Appropriation bills during the mornings and Senator's priority bills in the afternoons. With time growing short, the pressure increases to address those issues that each Senator deems most important.

Non-priority bills have virtually no chance of passage unless they have already made their way through the legislative process and are nearly ready for final reading. One of the reasons 700 and 750 bills are introduced each year is that many of them are bills reintroduced from a previous year which were not acted upon by the Legislature.

One of my non-priority bills which has advanced through the process and will apparently be passed by the Legislature is LB 977. This bill would expand the use of revenue raised by the county tax levy for capital construction on county fairgrounds. Presently, our state statutes permit such revenue to be used only for constructing new buildings. LB 977 would permit the revenue to also be used for renovation, repairs, and maintenance. The legislation does not raise the tax levy.

By altering the statute to include repair and maintenance work, fairgrounds will be able to conduct needed renovations and repairs which at this time are difficult to accomplish without continually raising fees to cover the expense. I believe LB 977 will save tax dollars because it permits the fairgrounds to spend less money to repair deteriorating facilities instead of more money to build brand new ones as replacements.

Last week the Legislature spent a day participating in the "New Horizons" project. New Horizons is patterned after an idea recently implemented in Florida and is aimed at establishing in the Legislature a long-range planning process as a guide to recognizing and assessing the long-term impact of the laws it passes. In recent years, because of the economic adversity the state has faced, state government in Nebraska has, for the most part, acted with a "crisis management" style.

New Horizons is designed to help avoid a short-term reactive approach to legislating and to encourage a more thoughtful approach to implementing our laws. As part of a historical overview, Robert Manley, a Nebraska historian, noted that a survey in 1887 showed a majority of Americans were concerned about drug abuse. A recent survey showed the same concern; his point being that by placing a historical perspective on the activities of government, we hope New Horizons will encourage the members of the Legislature to develop a longer-term view while reaching their decisions.

Governor Orr has proposed modifications to the state income tax system which her administration promoted last year in LB 773. During the transition period from our previous "piggy-back" system, problems with the new format have been identified. To address some of these problems, the Governor has introduced a bill which proposes to raise Nebraska's standard deductions to better match those used in the federal tax system. The Governor estimates that this will reduce individual income taxpayers' tax liability by approximately $8.8 million, primarily for the elderly and low-income taxpayers. Several other proposals are also in the Legislature at various stages of the process which would alter LB 773 to some degree.

TV violence concerns rise

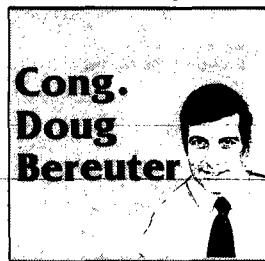

I am cosponsoring the Television Violence Act of 1988 (H.R. 3848), which would allow the television industry to undertake collective voluntary measures to curb the violence in programming seen by children without running afoul of the antitrust laws for a period of three years. This bill would not impose regulation on broadcasters, but instead would provide an opportunity for them to discuss voluntary guidelines for cutting down on television violence.

There is much concern about the relationship between televised violence and later aggressive behavior in children. There is no question that television violence is pervasive; from Saturday morning cartoons to Friday night detective programs, children are exposed to scenes of graphic violence. We do not want to desensitize adults or children to the effect of violence in the real world, and we do not want to accept violence as a way to resolve our differences.

Many more heavyhanded bill that address television violence have run into First Amendment problems. In the intensely competitive television business, it is commonly held that violence sells, making it unlikely that a network will attempt to unilaterally reduce violence. At the same time, our antitrust laws prohibit these large corporate competitors from meeting to discuss ways to address the issue as an industry. This bill provides the television industry with a narrow exemption from the antitrust laws for a period of three years so that its members may meet to discuss and implement voluntary guidelines to reduce television violence.

Child Care Improvement Act
I am one of the introducers of the Child Care Services Improvement Act, a five-part bill that provides a pragmatic long-term approach to meeting the nation's child care needs.

The bill established a $250 million block grant to be administered by the states, which will provide grants for communities non-profit organizations, small businesses, and educational institutions to increase the supply of licensed or accredited child care. The grants can be used to provide certificates and scholarships for child care assistance to low-income families, loans to businesses to fund the start-up costs of employer sponsored programs, sick-child programs and after-school care.

In addition, the bill requires states to develop strong outreach programs to help parents evaluate their day care providers and to assure providers access to training and technical assistance. It also includes a two-year provision designed to encourage authorized family child care providers to join the system by allowing them to continue to provide services while they are in the process of becoming licensed.

The bill addresses the difficulties in finding liability insurance by authorizing $100 million to the states to establish child care liability insurance pools. It makes $25 million available for state administered revolving loan funds to help home care providers finance the capital improvements necessary to become licensed. And it streamlines the tax treatment of small providers, reduces IRS red tape, and eliminates some of the disincentives to becoming a child care provider.

At present about five percent of employers sponsor day care centers of help their employees pay for care. The Child Care Services Improvement Act authorizes a tax credit for companies which sponsor on-site child care facilities requires dependent care-to-be-a-part of cafeteria plans and creates an annual awards program that will recognize businesses that adopt personnel policies that help employees to reduce the number of child care hours they need.

The bill is an alternative to a bill introduced by the House leadership that would cost $2.5 billion.

Letters

Plain and simple

I wish to address a few key issues today. The objective of the Right to Vote initiative circulated by the Nebraskans for the Right to Vote Committee and other interested persons, is plain and simple. "The object of this petition is to enact a law to withdraw the State of Nebraska from the Central Interstate Low-Level Radioactive Compact, and to require voter approval for construction of any low-level radioactive waste disposal facility within this state." All Nebraskans whether you believe we should or should not, withdraw from the Central Interstate Low-Level Radioactive Waste Compact (CILLRWC) should be clamoring to sign this petition. At the present time, citizens of all five of the member states, are merely spectators to the laws and actions of the CILLRWC. By compact law, even Nebraska's LB 426 and the recently heard LB 1092, can be superceded by it. The CILLRWC can and will override any and all state laws to meet its ultimate goal — the siting of a low-level radioactive waste disposal facility. In November of 1988 the Right to Vote initiative will give Nebraskans the voice they never would have as a member of the Compact.

Once we have successfully withdrawn from the Compact, Section 3 calls for that before a site may be constructed, a state-side and local vote for site approval must be taken. This will be achieved by a simple majority of the electors of both the state and local area. It also clearly states in Section 3, that should a waste disposal facility have begun construction or operation, the Attorney General of Nebraska shall immediately stop all construction or operation. Should the Attorney General within fourteen days not stop construction or operation of a waste facility any resident of this State shall have power on behalf of all Nebraska residents to close all construction or operation of a disposal facility.

The petition, also, does not in any way call for a shut down of the two nuclear power plants found in Nebraska or affect the continued medical and research use of nuclear materials. Section 6 of the petition directly addresses these facilities. It is here I wish to answer the accusation of Dr. David Hoelling of Pender, members of Gov. Orr's LLRW Task Force and the State Medical Association LLRW Task Force, to Sam Welch, Executive Director of Nebraskans for the Right to Vote, on his advocacy to close down the two nuclear power plants. Sam has never directly advocated a shut down. Who has changed their mind more? I recall several meetings I attended where Dr. Hoelling strongly declared U.S. Ecology must not be the developer for our compact. Who is our developer? U.S. Ecology!

Any person who has even mildly read, listened, or studied this issue, knows reactors are a very important portion of our electric power sources. Because of various reasons, common sense and economics included, Sam Welch has never advocated shut down. He, and myself, do not wish for immediate shut down. But, I do advocate, no extension, renewal or issuance for a new nuclear power plant a license for operation of the Nebraska plants from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission. NPPD and OPPD must seek alternative or more efficiently use of the present resources available to use (i.e. fossil and especially hydro sources).

I also feel it is unfair for NPPD employees to receive letters from the parent company to state that there is a possibility of job loss should the Cooper Nuclear Station close due to success of the Petition Initiative. Come on, NPPD! Be real with your employees. It is not the objective to cause Nebraskans to be out of a job.

People, the bottom line is, make sure, having either positive or negative feelings on this issue, that YOU get this issue to the citizens of Nebraska. We do not need to be spectators, we need to be participants! Remember Nebraska's slogan: Nebraska, The Good Life!

Bring on 882

An assertion presented before Senator Loren Schmitz, chairman, and the Natural Resource Committee on Feb. 25, 1988.

The salvation of a state is watchfulness in the citizens. Nebraskans For Clean Environment know there are many wastes contaminating our state. The study of radioactive waste is our No. 1 priority at this time. We are gathering information and acquiring knowledge on nuclear wastes, bills, laws, etc. on state and federal levels.

Health and environmental hazards are increasing steadily each year. Introduced to society. Studies now show nitrates in some Nebraska drinking water from ground water exceed standards. Radioactive wastes follow the same patterns as nitrates when absorbed into ground water or soil.

It is time for Nebraskans to "prevent" another source of contamination by bringing in other states non-federal low-level radioactive wastes. We must reduce the production of this waste so we will not be adding another health and environmental hazard for centuries to an already large list of hazardous wastes. New technologies that produce no harmful wastes to mankind must be explored and used. Clean-up of the water or ground is extremely costly and many times unsuccessful. U.S. Ecology/Bechtel applicant for a dump facility cannot guarantee there will be no seepage into our aquifers. Who could even vaguely predict the phenomena that can occur in a 500 year period. Who will be liable to the generation saddled with a health hazard that inevitably could occur?

We urge the passage of LB882 and advance it to General File during this session for legislative debate. This bill relates to radioactive wastes pursuant to the Central Interstate Compact. The time is short for recipients in Nebraska whose area will be selected for a low-level radioactive waste site or sites. According to Nebraska Dept. of Environmental Control "Deadlines and Key Events" during late 1988, U.S. Ecology/Bechtel will begin "Site Specific" study of two sites.

The people in the chosen community within a radius of twenty miles of the proposed site should have the opportunity to vote for or against a facility being built. Public identity on a statewide basis is essential to Nebraskans. All parts of LB882 are necessities to our democratic process to protect Nebraskans from jeopardizing their health and environment for future generations. The People in the chosen area need to educate themselves about the problems taking place in regard to storing, monitoring and disposing of radioactive wastes.

An outstanding example of problems arising from past experiences with radioactive wastes in areas that contain wastes in the abandoned Federal Hanford Nuclear Reservation in Washington State. Recently radionuclide iodine 129, a 16 million year half life radioactive waste component, hazardous to mans health has shown elevated levels in well DB-07, 1350 ft. deep in the Mabton Confinement aquifer. The Federal Hanford Reservation, which is located a top an area rich in underground water, included a variety of facilities handling radioactive wastes. The quantities of iodine 129, do not exceed Environmental Protection Agency drinking water standards yet, but the inevitable is there, it is increasing.

How did radionuclide iodine 129 get there? Natural uranium deposits! No there is no elevated levels of uranium present. So it is not natural contamination.

Fall out contamination from the Hanford reactor? Iodine 129 from reactors would likely be very small, but amounts from the reprocessing plants solvent mixed with kerosene is the most likely source.

Vertical fractures in the rock network probably allowed the solvent to move rapidly down to the Mabton aquifer. The test well DB07 is located 13 miles from the Hanover reprocessing plant. The Hanford site was declared suitable 30 years ago but these discoveries lately have raised serious questions about U.S. Energy and Nuclear Regulatory practices and suitability of this site.

All of Nebraska sits above 3 aquifers at different depths extremely rich with water. Nebraska's geological features and climate are not suitable to host a facility for 500 years. Congress and our states in the compact need to re-evaluate the impacts on environmentally unsuitable states to host a low-level radioactive waste facility. The warning is there in closed contaminated dumps.

West Valley New York's Radioactive waste facility, now closed and awaiting cleanup, was licensed by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

Monitoring computers incorrectly predicted the movement of Radionuclide iodine 129 from leaking tanks at West Valley. The same solvent, kerosene, used at Hanford Reservation in Washington folled the computer. Kerosene is lighter than water and remains at the top of the Mabton aquifer explaining the levels detected so dramatically from one day to the next in the same hole.

I hope this clarified the necessity to advance LB 882 to General file and become a law.

Area residents need to become educated and vote on the serious issue of storing, monitoring and disposing of radioactive wastes now and for centuries to come.

Please write or tell immediately your Nebraska Senator from your district to support bills LB882 or LB1092. These bills give radioactive dump site area registered voters the right to vote yes or no in favor of a low-level radioactive waste facility in their county.

Area 4-H'ers participate in District Council Training

The 4-H system of "Learning by Doing" doesn't end with graduation. Four members of the Dixon and Wayne County 4-H Councils participated in four learning sessions at a recent District 4-H Council Training in Plainview.

The 4-H council is the "Board of Directors" for the county 4-H program.

Capitalizing on the fact that "None of us is as smart as all of us", The Cooperative Service planned nine training meetings across the state. Council members at last Tuesday's training, had the opportunity to share their "glad gifts", participate in a session on "Empowering Teens", and learn more about developing and managing 4-H resources.

"Sharing Success" by bartering for ideas you need in exchange for your ideas that work was the popular session of the evening. Each council member was equipped with three pieces of paper on which to record their "glad gifts," and three "tickets" to use in purchasing additional ideas from others.

What is the secret to involving youth in leadership roles? Teens who were actively involved on the county level, formed a panel and provided new insights to approaching the program from the teen's point of view. Marta Sandahl, a third year Wayne County 4-H Council member and officer, was one of the three teens making up the panel.

Ann Brockhoff, Resource Development Specialist for the Nebraska 4-H Development Foundation, was on hand to share effective principles in acquiring and managing resources from the private sector.

Participating in the training from Wayne and Dixon Counties were: Marta Sandahl and Joyce Sievers, Wayne; Judy Vavra, Allen; and Terry Nelson, Ponca. Maureen Bruening Jensen and Rod Patent, Quad County Staff members, were also present.

Sports

Lana Erwin

Candace Jones

Dana Nelson

Holli Paige

Kristi Miller

Kodi Nelson

The selections for the All-Area girls teams and honorable mention, were made by the Wayne Herald sports staff. Selections were based on court performances in shooting, rebounding, leadership and sportsmanship.

Allen, Wayne pace All-Area team

Two Allen Eagles and a pair of Wayne Blue Devils head the field in this year's Wayne Herald All-Area Girls Basketball Team.

Lana Erwin and Candace Jones were the front runners for Allen all season long, while Wayne was led by Dana Nelson and Holli Paige.

The other two selected for the all-area squad were Winside's Kristi Miller, and Wakefield's Kodi Nelson.

All six of the girls selected have shown the ability to lead their respective teams in more ways than just scoring or rebounding. The leadership quality is abundant as is the coachability aspect.

The Allen Eagles finished with a 7-7 record, but that is very deceiving of what kind of team they really have.

Lana Erwin was the catalyst in the scoring end for Eagles, averaging 11 points per contest, while hauling down 4.2 rebounds per outing. Erwin connected on 74 percent of her free throws on the year.

Although Allen battled injury problems all season, which hindered its record, Erwin supplied leadership for the Eagles, and it was her they looked for to get the needed baskets in crucial situations.

Candace Jones is probably one of the best offsetting performers of the six girls selected for all-area honors.

Jones did a magnificent job of off-setting Erwin. When Erwin shot, Jones was there for the rebound if needed. If Erwin got jammed up and couldn't shoot, she looked for Jones, who would supply the needed help.

For the season, Jones averaged 9.5 points per game. Combining Jones and Erwin, you would come up with half of the points scored by the Allen Eagles this season.

However, Jones had another key factor in Allen's games. She was the key rebounder for the Eagles. Jones recorded 110 rebounds for the season for an average of eight caroms per contest.

You could also count on Jones' consistency from the field. For the year, Jones shot 52 percent from the floor.

Dana Nelson may have well proved that a good defense, promotes a good offense. Much to the dismay of opponent's, Nelson proved time and time again, that she would be the opposing guard's worst nightmare, as she continually hounded them, until she would cause the turnover.

Nelson averaged four steals per contest this year, by far more than any other area female athlete.

So what was Nelson doing when she wasn't recording steals? She was scoring points. Nelson ended the year with a 15 point per game average, while shooting 45 percent from the field.

She also proved to be a 3-point wizard connecting on 39 percent of her long range shots, while hitting 30 of them.

Nelson may well be the most complete player of the elite six, and is only a junior in status. Nelson also finished the season with a three assist per game average.

"Nelson played both ends of the floor very well," Head Coach Marlene Uhing commented. "Even though she had a lot of responsibility with being a point guard, she did a great job of controlling the tempo."

Uhing also went on to say that Nelson continually works very hard on her defensive pressure, and has developed a very fine passing arm. Nelson is currently the career assist leader in Wayne High School history.

Holli Paige is another of the great offsetting players. Paige stands only 5'2", however to many opponents; she stands about 6'2". Paige finished the year with 95 rebounds, which is only six less than Tonya Erxleben's team leading 101.

Paige plays guard, which automatically proves that when a player is shooting the ball, she is hustling to the board for the possible rebound.

Paige also proved to be one of the most consistent free throw shooting players on the team, connecting on 67 percent of her charity tosses. You have to remember the Blue Devils struggled from the line this season, so Paige was a key for Wayne.

Paige's hustle on the court earned two steals per contest, and her fine passing ability earned her nearly three assists per game.

"Paige worked very hard on her defense this year," Uhing lamented. "She also worked very well with Nelson in the back court."

Although Paige struggled during the second half of the season in shooting, she still managed to net seven points per game.

Kristi Miller seemed to be Miss everything for the Winside Wildcats and Head Coach Jill Stenwall this season. She was the floor leader on offense bringing the ball up the court on presses.

Miller also proved to be more than a ball handler as she averaged 12.2 points per game. She also connected on nine of her 3-point attempts to add to the total.

Not only can she shoot and dribble well, but Miller has a fine passing arm. She ended the season with about a four assist per game average. She also recorded four rebounds per outing in her point guard status.

Kodi Nelson is the last of the elite six chosen by the Wayne Herald sports editor. Nelson had the undeniable pleasure of going winless in 17 games with the Lady Trojans.

However, Nelson managed to lead the whole Lewis and Clark conference in rebounding this season. Nelson hauled down 180 rebounds on the year for an amazing 10.1 per game average.

On the offensive side of the ball, Nelson managed to score 7.3 points per game. Nelson and teammate Karen Hallstrom combined to score over half of Wakefield's points on the year.

Meyer quietly becoming a legend at David Lipscomb

By Kevin Peterson
Sports Editor

This feature is based on information received from Mrs. Edna Meyer of Wayne, Hank Overin of Wayne, and Dr. Don Meyer, Head Coach of David Lipscomb College in Nashville, Tennessee.

Traveling about five miles southeast of Wayne, you will see a white farm house which is now managed by Mike Meyer and his wife Michelle, along with their two year old daughter Sheila.

The house has been there for quite some time. In fact, during the late 1940's and 50's, it was the growing up place for the whole Meyer clan. The late Don Meyer and wife Edna raised three sons and two daughters in this small comfortable home, approximately a mile and a half from the rural school they would attend.

The eldest of the children was Don junior if you will. He was followed by Jerry, Jeanie, Nancy and Mike.

The Meyer clan was busy from sun up to sun down with chores pertaining to the raising of cattle and hogs, not to mention the 4-H projects the kids were involved with and of course school.

Don seemed to be a mold of his father who was very serious about matters. There always seemed to be a time and a place for laughter. They both were perfectionists. Things that were done, no matter how trivial, were done perfectly.

As time passed, Don seemed to be hounded with the thought of being a coach. In fact, when he was in the sixth grade, he would sit in the little rural school room and without provocation, draw plays in a little note book.

He would then converse with his father about the newly drawn plays, and perhaps that was the key to Don's future. A future which now entails coaching one of the most revered NAIA college basketball programs in America at David Lipscomb College in Nashville, Tennessee.

Even during his high school era at Wayne High School from 1959-63, Don would play sports, then come home and rehash the game over with his father, to perhaps improve upon his next effort.

"Young Don worked 110 percent in everything he did," City Recreation Coordinator Hank Overin said. "Like all of the Meyer kids, they weren't blessed with great speed, but it didn't matter because they developed their tools through hard work."

Don proved to be a real smart athlete. He knew he didn't have the speed to keep up with the quicker guards of other basketball teams, but he would study the opponent and find ways to cheat by cutting down on the amount of steps he had to take to cut off the defender to the basket.

"Mentally, Don was way ahead of everyone," Overin lamented. "He studied the game so much, he knew where and what was supposed to be happening at all times."

Upon graduation at Wayne, Meyer continued his education at the University of Northern Colorado at Greeley.

It was there, that he earned his Bachelors and Masters degrees, while playing baseball for the college team, which was then called Colorado State.

Meyer then went on to the University of Utah to get his Doctorate degree, and then he launched his coaching career.

He debuted as a coach at Western State College in Gunnison, Colorado. From there he move to Hamline University in St. Paul, Minnesota before settling in Nashville and David Lipscomb.

It's obvious that Meyer's philosophy on coaching stems from the conversations he enjoyed as a youth with his father. "He's a real disciplinarian," Overin says. "He works as hard as the kids he coaches, so the players know and realize that if he can do it, so can they."

Fundamentally speaking, David Lipscomb College is perhaps one of the most fundamentally sound ball teams in any division.

Meyer is so in love with the game of basketball, that he developed a summer camp to help out kids who were serious about the game of basketball.

Just to show how successful, Meyer and David Lipscomb have become since he took over the reigns 13 years ago. Meyer's summer camp has grown from a two week summer outing for boys, to an eight week boys and girls camp, total for the summer. His camp attracts kids from all over the country as well as coaches. He now attracts approximately 3,000 kids a summer.

This Thursday, Meyer will lead his team into Kemper arena in Kansas City, Missouri, also the sight of the NCAA final four this year.

David Lipscomb qualified for the NAIA National Tournament with a 32-2 record and a current number two ranking in the country.

Meyer's squad won the national tourney in 1986, giving Meyer his first ever national title. His current Lipscomb team ended the regular season as one of the most prolific scoring teams in history averaging over 100 points per contest.

Yet Meyer questions whether his team is worthy of a national title. "We have a real young team," Meyer said. "We hope to gain some quality experience, and we hope we play well."

Meyer's squad starts only one senior, one junior and three sophomores. When Meyer goes to the bench, which he does very often, his second five consists of two juniors, one sophomore, and two freshman.

In one of Lipscomb's final games before entering the national tourney, Meyer substituted 33 times in the first half of the contest.

Not only has Meyer stressed the essence of fundamentals at his college and at summer camps, in fact, while coaching at Hamline University in St. Paul, he and the assistant coach wrote a booklet on the art of shooting the basketball, and the fundamentals that go along with shooting.

At any rate, Meyer emphasizes sportsmanship as an important tool to becoming a complete player.

He teaches that to the summer camp kids as well as his own squad, and in 1986 when David Lipscomb captured the covenant crown in Kansas City, they also won the sportsmanship award.

Is it a fluke that a Wayne native such as Meyer has made it big? Hardly. Just look at the rest of the family. Before Don's brother Jerry drowned in an accident when he was 17 years old, he was an excellent baseball player for Wayne.

Don's youngest brother, Mike, who is operating the farm, was also and still is an excellent baseball player and basketball player.

Mike played for Wayne State College's baseball team from 1979-82, where he was a vital role in the success of the Wildcats.

Mike has been playing semi-professional baseball around the area. "Mike is an outstanding catcher," Overin said. "He's just an outstanding overall player."

Last season, Mike was amongst the leaders in batting in the Dodge County League, at 30 years of age.

Don's sisters Jeanie and Nancy played softball under Overin, and Overin noted that they like their brothers were very coachable athletes.

Today, Jeanie lives in Omaha with her husband Jeff Shank and son Jeff, of two months.

Nancy still resides in Wayne, while working at Wayne State College's business office.

Don was taught at a very young age to set goals, and then chase them until they became reality. He has done that, as well as built a very recognizable program at David Lipscomb College.

Some of the most noted coaches in Division I and professional have stepped forward to comment on Meyer's reign as head coach.

"The basketball program at David Lipscomb College is one of the finest in the country. Their dedication to academics, discipline and the game are standards for other programs," is what Bobby Knight of the University of Indiana has said about Meyer's program.

George Raveling, Bill Foster and Dick Motta of the now Dallas Mavericks also spoke highly of the Meyer's program.

Smith wins local contest

Duane Smith, Wayne, captured first place honors on the Wayne Herald "Pick the Winner" contest, of the boys high school state tournament.

The victory however, was hard fought. Smith scored 91 points to edge out Margaret Schram, Wayne, who finished with 90 points.

Third place honors went to Duane Hedell, West Point, who finished with 83 points. All three will receive certificates to Pizza Hut of Wayne, in the order of $20, $15 and $10.

After the first round of games on Thursday, Smith had 57 points, and held a six point advantage over Schram. Hedell, on the other hand, also had 57 points.

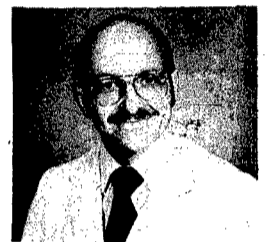

Smith picked two of the six eventual state champs. Schram picked three of the six champions, and had two perfect brackets, C-2 and D-1. Hedell, too, picked three of the six state champs.

Muscle Ache Relief

Muscle aches are fairly common, especially among those who have been involved in strenuous activity to which they are not accustomed. Muscles which appear to be especially vulnerable to aches include those in the neck, back, shoulders, legs and arms.

Nonprescription medicines that reduce muscle soreness and provide ache relief when applied to the skin are referred to as the external analgesics. According to the "Handbook of Nonprescription Drugs," ingredients in external analgesics fall into four categories based on their mechanism of action.

Methyl salicylate (oil of wintergreen), turpentine oil, volatile oil of mustard, and strong ammonia solution cause redness and irritation to the skin, crowding out the feelings of muscular soreness and pain. Eucalyptus oil, camphor, and menthol produce a cooling sensation. Histamine and methyl nicotinate cause a dilation of blood vessels in the skin, improving the absorption of all ingredients in topically applied medicines. Capsicum produces local irritation in a manner similar to methyl salicylate. Unlike methyl salicylate, it does not cause blistering or reddening of the skin.

DR. DON MEYER speaks to a room full of Wayne State athletes during the athletic banquet in April of 1986, the same year his team won the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletic National tournament.

All-Area

This season there is another honor being given out. The "Area Coach of the Year". The first recipient of this honor is Wayne Blue Devil mentor Marlene Uhing.

Uhing was supposed to have had a rebuilding year this season, with so many freshman nibbling for a piece of the action, and only one senior in Marnie Bruggemann.

Yet Uhing pulled her squad together and provided the Wayne fans with some excellent hustle and determination. The Blue Devils won the Wayne State Holiday Tournament back in December, and continued to have a fine season, losing in the district to eventual state qualifier Columbus Scotus.

For a year in which was considered that the Blue Devils would be fortunate to have five or six victories, Uhing finished with an 11-9 mark.

The following is a list of the All-Area Second Team.

The Golden Years by Gil Haase

According to the federal government-sponsored National Health and Nutrition Examination Survey, the rate of diabetes increases with age, from 2.0 percent between ages 22 and 44 to 17.7 percent between ages 65 and 74. Moreover, of the estimated 6.6 percent of Americans who have diabetes, fully half have not been diagnosed. This is good reason to have regular, thorough checkups by your physician.

"You don't have to be lean and fit and young to gain health benefits from exercise," says William Haskell, Ph.D., associate director of Stanford University Center for Research in Disease Prevention. "We have to remind people that getting out for a brisk walk is a very healthy thing to do." Many in the medical community now believe that "moderate" exercise provides all the benefits of more vigorous activity, without the risk of injury. Today, the gentler sports of walking, swimming, freshwater fishing and bicycling are most popular among older persons.

Remember When? 1945 — The United States detonated the world's first atomic bomb at Trinity Site, New Mexico, near Alamogordo Air Base, ushering in the nuclear age.

by Pat Melerhenry

We knew all the time that we weren't done with winter. At least we didn't get the snow. It must have been quite a weekend in Kimball.

State basketball tournaments are over; and I didn't watch one game, guys or gals. Now the kids can start preparing for track.

We made a quick trip to Wichita to see Sue, taking highway 81 all the way. We think making it four-lane would be great.

The Big Farmer is waiting for the first calf after finally getting the taxes figured. The forms are really complicated this year.

We're already halfway into Lent; the choir is preparing Easter music. Kids are home for spring break.

Right now, Sunday night, Clint Eastwood is on the tube, and there is a three-way chess game going on. Mike and Jon and Kelly Hansen are playing three games of chess at once, each guy playing two.

I WAS CHEERED by the Farm Journal this week. There is an advice column by a gal named Ruth Ann, and one of the letter writers says, "It seems like no one in my family takes me seriously until I begin to yell. I feel guilty about yelling, but at least things get done then."

Ruth Ann answers, "children and husbands come with a mechanism built into them that whispers in their ears when they hear your voice. 'Don't move too fast. She may change her mind. Sit real still and act like you didn't hear.'"

"After years of practice in counseling mothers who get attention by yelling, and after reading articles by experts who rarely stayed 24 hours with kids, let alone live day in and day out with the pressure of farming, I say: Yell! And quit feeling guilty. Just remember to kiss and hug after the work gets done."

I've been trying to get some reading done, but usually fall asleep after 30 minutes. We got books for Christmas; plus, I ran into some fantastic book sales in the Columbia Mall.

I'VE FINISHED Time Flies, by Bill Cosby, and Family Ties That Bind and Gag, by Erma Bombeck. I'm working on The Keepers, by Joan Burney, which has me laughing and crying.

The Monster Within, in the new Reader's Digest, is the story of a young woman's battle with leukemia and her bone marrow transplant.

I'm also enjoying Love, Medicine, and Miracles, by Bernie Siegle, A Yale surgeon. It just convinces me again of the power of the mind, even when fighting the dread disease.

Now it's time to feed cake and ice cream to the game players and TV watchers, put another log on the fire, and get this in the mail. Another weekend ended too quickly.

I appreciated this quote from the Farmer's Almanac: A real friend is someone who takes a winter vacation on a sun-drenched beach and doesn't send a card!"
